● The AAUW College Faculty Program, which began in the southeastern United States in 1962 with a three-year grant from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, has been extended to other states including California, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Oregon, Texas and Washington. The Program is just beginning in New Mexico, Nevada, Pennsylvania and Virginia, and it is expected that there will be award winners from these states in graduate schools in the fall of 1967. Its purposes are to provide additional excellent faculty members to meet the critical shortage in higher education, and to offer to women college graduates, of 35 years of age or older, preparation for a second career of their choice. Since 1962, 126 women have received awards for a year of graduate study. Address inquiries for further information about the Program to: College Faculty Program, AAUW Educational Center, 2401 Virginia Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037.

● Did you know? —Our median class is 1948. Fifty percent of Chatham alumnae have been graduated since that year. —Approximately twenty percent have been graduated since 1960, which means that one-fifth of all our alumnae have received degrees during President Eddy's administration. —And his six years at Chatham are only a little more than six percent of its ninety-seven years of existence. —The student body today is larger than the total number of graduates in the thirties. —These statistics could prove that in spite of our venerable age—we are young at heart.

● Dr. James S. Kinder, who will be remembered by many alumnae as chairman of the education department, writes of pleasant visits with Elva Bogren Goodwin, '39, in Japan, and Helen Moon Cheng Cheang, '40, in Hong Kong on a recent trip around the world. Since leaving Pittsburgh, Dr. Kinder has been affiliated with San Diego State College in California.

Nancy Williams Signed by The Met

Miss Williams

On September 21, 1965 Chatham College awarded a Special Citation to Nancy Williams, class of 1954, in recognition of her outstanding ability and distinguished accomplishment in the field of music.

On August 1, 1966 Miss Williams further demonstrated that outstanding ability and added to her distinguished accomplishments by signing a two-year contract with the Metropolitan Opera. Performing with the company at the new Metropolitan Opera House at Lincoln Center, she will sing seventeen roles.

In preparation for reaching her operatic goal, Miss Williams has appeared with several opera companies, including Pittsburgh, in concert performances and has performed for four years with the Metropolitan Opera Studio.

Organ Music for Christmas

Mr. Russell G. Wichmann, professor of music and chairman of the Chatham music department, has recorded, in time for the holidays, a delightful selection of Christmas music. The high fidelity, long play album was recorded in the Chatham College Chapel by True Image Recordings of Pittsburgh.

Chatham alumnae may bring the magnificent sound of the Chapel organ into their own homes by ordering Organ Music for Christmas through the College Bookstore. (See order form on back cover for details.) The colorful gift package jacket design is by Mr. Jerry Caplan, chairman of the art department.

Chatham Wins Award

In the Fourth Award Program for Educational Institutions for the Performance and Promotion of American Music, Chatham College was declared a winner of $500 and an Award of Merit in the category of the privately endowed college or university. The competition is sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs and by ASCAP, the donor of the supporting grant.

Winning equal awards in the same category were Carnegie Institute of Technology and Willamette University. Bowdoin College and Western College for Women received Honorable Mention and Awards of Merit. Dr. Walter Hendl, Musical Director of the Chautauqua Symphony, was chairman of the panel of judges.

Gift and Estate Planning ∞

The Economy of Giving

Federal Tax Laws Encourage Gifts to Chatham College

Federal income and estate tax laws, usually considered burdensome, can be very rewarding to people who make gifts to educational institutions. The rewards come in the form of special tax deductions and exemptions which actually lower the taxes these donors, or their estates, would otherwise have to pay. A comprehensive study of an individual's financial status often reveals how a donor may make a large gift to a college without sacrificing financial security for himself or his family.

Under the direction of Mr. Reinald McCrum, Secretary of the College, Chatham has established a Gift and Estate Planning Program as one phase of its total development program. While it does not replace the continuing need for annual gifts and capital gifts from all sources of support, it does offer a very valuable service to Chatham alumnae who might contemplate a substantial gift to the College.

The program is administered through the Development Committee of the Chatham Board of Trustees headed by Mr. Francis B. Nimick, President of the Dollar Savings Bank of Pittsburgh. Final action on any one of the plan's various forms, however, is taken only in collaboration with the donor's own attorney.

New Concept in Alumnae Giving

The Gift and Estate Planning Program, a new concept in alumnae giving, is designed to serve those alumnae and others who already have the desire to aid Chatham College. It is not a fund raising campaign such as the annual Alumnae Fund, but a program offering expert counseling in planning for future substantial gifts to the College without endangering the family's financial stability.

Federal tax laws encourage gifts to education in several ways. Practically all such gifts can now be deducted to the extent of 30 per cent of the donor's adjusted gross income, and under the tax law enacted in 1964, it is no longer necessary to keep charitable gifts within the current year's limitation. Gifts in excess of 30 per cent of income can now be carried over and deducted during the five succeeding years. Mr. McCrum realistically points out that no gift plan can actually make money for a prospective donor, but the actual cost is always less than the dollar amount donated. This is particularly true in gifts of appreciated securities.

Estate Tax Takes Big Bite

Federal estate taxes, generally payable within 15 months of death, apply if an individual's estate is valued at more than $60,000—and the rates are high enough to cause concern. The Federal estate tax is a graduated tax ranging from 3% to 77%. The larger the estate, of course, the higher the tax—and the property may be taxed again and again as each beneficiary dies.

Too often there is a misconception as to what must be included in an estate for tax purposes. Home, securities, bank accounts, miscellaneous assets, life insurance, jointly owned property, business, and even some employee death benefits are taxable. If these total $60,000 or more, the estate is subject to Federal estate taxes.

Life Income Plan

Through the Gift and Estate Planning Program, a person desiring to help the College—and at the same time make his future financially secure—may take advantage of Chatham's Life-Income Plan. Essentially, the Life Income Plan works in this way. The donor-investor enters into an agreement with Chatham whereby he or she turns over a certain amount of securities or cash to the College. The College then applies this investment to its endowment fund portfolio. During his or her lifetime the donor-investor receives an annual income, paid quarterly or semi-annually, based on the declared rate of Chatham's entire investment portfolio. Upon the donor's death, the investment which the donor has made becomes a gift to Chatham College. An option may be exercised by the donor whereby one of his or her survivors may be named a beneficiary for the earned income from the plan.

Charitable Remainder Trust

Another plan which can amplify the financial security of a person's beneficiaries and eventually strengthen the work of Chatham College is the Charitable Remainder Trust.

The judicious use of this type of trust provides a lifetime income for the beneficiary, and upon his or her death, the entire trust goes to the educational institution. The investment of the amount realized in reduced estate taxes, made possible by the establishment of the charitable remainder trust, can add substantially to the annual income of the beneficiary.

Estate planning, of course, is not solely for the benefit of millionaires. Persons with estates of $100,000 or more can benefit, too, and every one should draw up a formal will regardless of the size of his or her estate.

Any person who plans to make a bequest to Chatham College, and who is not taking full advantage of the charitable deductions allowed by law in his annual income tax return, should seriously consider anticipating part of his bequest by making annual gifts of cash or other property in amounts that will utilize the deduction, reserving the life income to himself and—if he so desires—to his wife if she survives him.

These are critical years ahead for higher education, particularly for the private liberal arts college, and financial support from alumni/ae and friends will become increasingly important. The Gift and Estate Planning Program offers several ways in which Chatham alumnae can help their alma mater to retain its nationally recognized educational program.

Requests for detailed information should be addressed to Mr. Reinald McCrum, Chatham College, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15232.

Dr. Earl K. Wallace Honored

Two distinctive honors have been bestowed upon Dr.

Earl K. Wallace, professor emeritus of chemistry.

Alumnae and friends will be pleased to know that Dr. Wallace's name will continue to be part of Buhl Hall of Science where he served so many years as teacher and chairman of the department of chemistry. Upon completion of the major renovation of Buhl Hall in November, a bronze plaque was placed at the entrance to the main lecture hall. It reads:

THE EARL K. WALLACE LECTURE HALL

honoring a preeminent teacher who served as Professor of Chemistry from 1925 to 1965

A second significant honor came to Dr. Wallace this fall when he was chosen to receive the annual award of the Pittsburgh Section of the American Chemical Society. Since the establishment of this award in 1932, it has been given each year to a member of the community who has done work worthy of note toward increasing chemical knowledge, promoting industry, benefiting humanity, or advancing the work of the Pittsburgh Section of the ACS. In receiving the 1966 Pittsburgh Award for outstanding service to chemistry, Dr. Wallace joins a group of illustrious scientists, teachers and industrialists who have been similarly honored for their contributions to science.

Chatham Receives Portrait

A portrait of William Pitt, the Earl of Chatham (1708-1778) has been presented to Chatham College by the International Business Machines Corporation.

Pitt the Elder, the Great Commoner, was the first defender of American liberties to raise his voice in a British Parliament. He was the British Prime Minister who said of the Stamp Act trouble, "I rejoice that America has resisted." Unlike many other Empire-builders, he based his conception of world power on the bedrock of liberty and democracy for all.

The painting shows this courageous and independent man in his robes of state posing at a table on which lie the Magna Carta and a map of North America. The artist, Richard Brompton (1734-1782), painted this portrait as a study from life for the celebrated life-size painting that now hangs in the National Gallery.

Marjorie Wayne Wechsler Art Fund Established

President Edward D. Eddy announced on October 31, 1966, the establishment of the Marjorie Wayne Wechsler Art Fund in memory of Mrs. Richard Wechsler, class of 1946.

Made possible through gifts from her family and friends, the fund will be used for the enrichment of teaching in the field of art, including an award for outstanding student effort and the purchase of works of art.

A Memorial to Rachel Carson

A particularly fitting memorial to Rachel Carson, Class of 1929, is the new library for the scientific disciplines in the recently renovated Buhl Hall of Science. One of America's most distinguished author-naturalists, Miss Carson's beautiful and memorable prose brought the magic of the sea, the winds and currents, and all life in the ocean and along its beaches to thousands of readers. It is hoped that the reading room will appropriately and appreciatively commemorate her great talent, courage, and extraordinary scientific curiosity and enthusiasm. A bronze plaque at the entrance reads:

THE RACHEL CARSON MEMORIAL READING ROOM

honoring a distinguished alumna of Chatham College who enriched her time by the beauty of her writing

Space for more than 100 current journals and 2500 books provide resources for all students and faculty members in astronomy, biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics and psychology. Individual carrel desks, carpeting, air conditioning, good lighting, and an accoustical ceiling provide the surroundings and atmosphere that help to make reading a pleasure.

Members of the Class of 1929 and more than 300 former science majors have been invited to apply their gifts to the 1966-67 Alumnae Fund to the cost of furnishing and equipping the Rachel Carson Memorial Reading Room.

Dr. Wing-tsit Chan Gillespie Professor of Philosophy

Dr. Wing-tsit Chan, professor of Chinese culture and philosophy, has joined the Chatham College faculty as the first Anna Randolph Darlington Gillespie Professor of Philosophy. The Gillespie Endowment was created by a gift to the College in 1963 for "the enrichment of the College's work in philosophy and related disciplines." The donor is Miss Mabel Lindsay Gillespie who has served as a Chatham Trustee for many years.

Professor Chan comes to Chatham from Dartmouth College where he has taught since 1942, serving for four years as chairman of the Division of the Humanities. A naturalized U. S. citizen, Dr. Chan was born in Kwangtung, China, and was graduated from Lingnan University. He earned the master's and doctoral degrees at Harvard and returned to his alma mater where he became dean of the university and professor of philosophy. He taught at the University of Hawaii before going to Dartmouth, and has been visiting professor or distinguished lecturer at Michigan State University, Columbia, Cornell, Chicago, Wesleyan, Smith, Wellesley and Bryn Mawr.

The author of six books, Dr. Chan's latest volumes include A Source Book of Chinese Philosophy, Instructions for Practical Living and other Neo-Confucian Writings by Wang Yang-ming, The Way of Lao Tzu, and The Platform Scriptures: the Basic Classic of Zen Buddhism. In addition, he has contributed chapters on Chinese philosophy and religion to 21 books and has published over 70 articles.

Last year Dr. Chan undertook a detailed study of the status of Chinese philosophy in Communist China. The research was supported by the Rockefeller Foundation, the American Philosophical Society, the Social Science Research Council, and Dartmouth College.

One of the nation's leading Asian scholars, Dr. Chan has assisted Chatham in choosing other eminent scholars from all over the nation for the 1966-67 series on China. He will present one of the lectures on Traditional Religions and Today.

Students and Alumnae Bring Chinese Student to Chatham

In the fall of 1965, when the study of China was selected for the 1966-67 non-western series, Chatham students decided that the study could be greatly enhanced by the presence of a student from China. The idea grew into a plan, committees were formed, and the money-raising began.

Following a college-wide campaign that raised $800, the committee approached the Alumnae Association for financial assistance in the project. With the approval of President Eddy, the executive board voted to contribute the proceeds from a February theater benefit—the Circle-in-the-Square production of The Trojan Women.

The combined assets of the student fund, the alumnae benefit proceeds, and generous scholarship aid from the College made possible the final realization of the student goal when the admissions committee selected Sapphire Lai-Ping Yuen from seventeen applicants.

Born in Canton Province, China, Sapphire moved with her family to Hong Kong at the time of the Communist revolution when she was five years old. Having grown up in British Hong Kong, she has studied English for twelve years and speaks with a charming British-Chinese accent.

Sapphire has completed one year at Hong Kong University, but due to the British three-year university system she is a member of the junior class at Chatham. She is carrying a full course schedule as an economics major. Several speaking engagements a month have kept her busy. One of these took her to the Mt. Lebanon Area Alumnae Club where she spoke about life in the free city of Hong Kong. Sapphire commented that she is tremendously impressed by the size of our country, and particularly by the lawns and gardens. With more than five million people in Hong Kong, even the very wealthy can not enjoy such luxuries.

The eldest of six children in a family of very modest means, Sapphire has demonstrated her ability to be independent by working to attend the university. Her trip to Pittsburgh is her first time away from Hong Kong.

Seventy-five delegates, from as near by as Shadyside and as far away as Minneapolis, attended the Alumnae Council held on campus Tuesday and Wednesday, October 25-26. The two-day program included, in addition to the regular fall meeting of the executive board, workshop sessions for club representatives, class secretaries and reunion chairmen, and Alumnae Fund workers. Meeting also were four standing committees: nominating, scholarship, student relations, and publications. Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort presided at all business sessions.

Providing pleasant interludes in the work schedule were a lecture by Margaret Webster, the noted actress and director who was on campus as a Chatham Visitor, and the dress rehearsal for the student production of the musical The Boy Friend. A tour of Rea House gave Council members an opportunity to see the newest dormitory facility, the gift of James C. and the late Julia Dodge Rea. It is located on the upper side of Beatty Hall and directly across the road from Mellon Hall. On Tuesday morning alumnae were invited to visit several classes.

At the closing session President Eddy addressed the group, and, in speaking about the future of the College, announced plans for a new complex of buildings to be known as the Chatham Forum. Forming a second quadrangle, the Forum will include three buildings: a Library; a Student Center housing all food service areas and meeting rooms; a 300-seat Auditorium to be used for concerts, recitals, lectures, etc. Preliminary plans have been drawn, but no date has been set for construction to begin.

Fall Business Meeting

The Tuesday evening section of Alumnae Council was scheduled as an open meeting to which all alumnae were invited. The business meeting was called to order by Mrs. Van der Voort following dinner in Mellon Hall.

There were two main items of business on the agenda: the election of two members to the nominating committee; and a vote on the proposed revision of the Bylaws. Marion Monks Campbell, '44, and Carol Moran Russell, '58, were unanimously elected to the nominating committee for three-year terms.

The revision of the Bylaws was passed, also, bringing about two major changes in procedure. The two members of the nominating committee hereafter will be elected with the other elective offices as part of the election by mailed ballot in April; and there will be only one regularly scheduled Association business meeting, the annual meeting held at reunion time. One other revision concerns the term of office for class secretaries. Until last year, when the Modified Group Reunion Plan went into effect, class secretaries were elected at each five-year reunion to serve for the next five years. This will still be true for those classes observing the 25th, 30th, 35th, etc., but for the classes participating in group reunions, the secretaries will be elected to serve until the next scheduled reunion.

Eight Alumnae Scholars Named

The Alumnae Scholarship Committee, following its meeting at Council, announced its selection of Alumnae Scholars for the 1966-67 academic year, six from the three upper classes and two freshmen.

Linda Hauser, senior from Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania, continues for the fourth year as the Luella P. Meloy Alumnae Scholar. A sociology major, Linda worked last year for Action Housing, and this year is a student assistant in the college library. She is the sister of Dorothy Hauser Fritts '54, and Nancy Hauser Bowser '59.

Gisela Kreuger, junior, has requalified for the third year as the Laberta Dysart Alumnae Scholar. A German-born naturalized citizen from New Castle, Pennsylvania, Gisela has chosen biology as her major.

The Forty-third

The Harriet Duff Phillips Alumnae Scholar this year is Vivian Lowery, senior political science major from Cleveland, Ohio. Vivian is president of Honor Board and works as receptionist in Berry Hall.

The new Herbert Lincoln Spencer Alumnae Scholar is Sarah Marks, freshman from Auburn, New York. In addition to being the grandniece of Dean Mary Helen Marks, Sarah is an excellent student. She has received advanced credit through examination in Latin, and has exempted freshman English as a result of Advanced Placement work in high school.

Mary Vanderwart from Oakland, New Jersey, became the 1967 Alumnae Scholar last year and has requalified for her senior year. She is a psychology major and works as a student assistant in the department.

For the third year Yvette Bourgeois, junior from Dallas, Texas, holds the 1968 Alumnae Scholarship. Yvette is a Chatham Scholar, a political science major, and works with Action Housing.

Jennifer Gearhart, sophomore from Pittsburgh, continues as the 1969 Alumnae Scholar. She also is a Chatham Scholar and works for Action Housing.

The freshman chosen to receive the 1970 Alumnae Scholarship is Frances Conkey from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She has earned advanced credit in French, and is interested in music and drama. Frances is serving as a dormitory assistant in Woodland Hall. The Scholarship Committee: Margaret Cooke Skidmore '60, chairman, Janet Murray Newton '42, Peggy Thompson Weil '49, Amy Botsaris '53, college registrar, and Mrs. Van der Voort and Mrs. Swisshelm, members ex officio.

Club Activity Reported

The Council workshop for club representatives, under the chairmanship of Sally Beck Lee, was attended by representatives from eleven clubs. Their reports, as well as those coming from club presidents who were not able to be present, indicate considerable activity in club areas across the country.

In Pittsburgh, four clubs are active. Decade V (1911-1920) continues to have regular monthly meetings except during the mid-winter when many members are in the south. The Downtown Club also meets monthly the year round—luncheon for alumnae employed in the city the first Wednesday of each month at the Woman's City Club in the Penn Sheraton Hotel.

The Mt. Lebanon Club has scheduled four speakers for the year: Miss Sapphire Yuen, the Chatham student from dent Eddy speak at a dinner at the Harvard Club. Honored with Dr. Eddy were Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Robert Van der Voort, president of the Alumnae Association, and Miss Nancy Hofsoos, assistant director of admissions.

Dr. Stephen Borsody, professor of history, spoke on "Europe 1966" to Chicago alumnae and their husbands. The New York City Club members and their guests heard Dr. Ann Freeman, associate professor of history, present an illustrated lecture on "The Earliest World of the Greeks." Dr. Frank Lackner, assistant professor of psychology, accompanied Mrs. Van der Voort and Mrs. Swisshelm to Cleveland where he spoke to members and several parents of present students on "The Control of Behavior."

Miss Doris Crozier, assistant to President Eddy, and Miss Peggy Donaldson, director of admissions, spent an entire day in Buffalo attending and speaking at three events planned by the Buffalo Alumnae Club. These included a breakfast for high school counselors, a luncheon for alumnae, and a tea for prospective students and their mothers. The following day they attended the same number of events in Rochester, New York, again planned by alumnae although there is no organized club there. Miss Donaldson and Mrs. Swisshelm met with alumnae in Washington, D. C. at a Sunday afternoon meeting.

Alumnae Council

Hong Kong; Mr. Arthur Bergholz on "Bergholz and Books;" Miss Marion Leslie of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette on "Early Pittsburgh Families;" and a Chatham student who participated last summer in "Operation Crossroads Africa." The members of the club have chosen Crossroads Africa as a project, and are selling pecans to raise money to enable another Chatham student to participate.

A new local club is in the process of organization—as yet unnamed, its membership includes alumnae from 1960 through 1966. Their purpose is to serve the College and to participate in as many college events as possible. Even without formal organization, they have already taken on a service project for the Alumnae Association, that of providing most of the evening callers for the Alumnae Fund telephone campaign.

Another newly organized group is the Chatham Alumnae Club of Minnesota, centered mainly in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Although small in number, they hope to make the College better known in their area by working with prospective students for admissions, and by having a college-related program to which their friends and high school counselors will be invited.

Six out-of-town clubs have had speakers from the College for their fall meetings. Boston alumnae invited husbands and parents of present students to join them to hear President Eddy speak at a dinner at the Harvard Club. Honored with Dr. Eddy were Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Robert Van der Voort, president of the Alumnae Association, and Miss Nancy Hofsoos, assistant director of admissions.

The majority of the clubs have held parties for entering freshmen and returning students, and have assisted the admissions office by entertaining prospective students and their mothers. Although not organized as clubs, several alumnae in Cincinnati, Ohio and in Westchester County, New York have served in this way.

Alumnae Day--June 3, 1967

Soon after the first of the year details of the program for Alumnae Day will be sent to the secretaries of the following reunion classes:—1902, 1907, 1912, 1917, 1922, 1927, 1932, 1937, and 1942 having five-year reunions; 1948, 1949, 1950, and 1951 attending as a group under the modified plan; and 1966 returning for a first reunion.

Alumnae Fund Participation Sets New Record

The 1965-66 Alumnae Fund, which closed on June 30, 1966, reached an all-time high in percentage of participation. Of the total number of 3750 alumnae who were solicited either by telephone or mail, 2028 or 54 percent contributed. This represents a very creditable and substantial gain over the 30 percent in 1960-61.

This evidence of alumnae support is the result of the work of 125 volunteers who worked on the 1965-66 Fund campaign. Their names were listed in the Spring Recorder.

The 1966-67 Fund is now in progress with the telephone campaign completed during the month of November. Alice Chattaway Kittle and Amy McKay Core, co-chairmen, and the alumnae office staff take this opportunity to express their thanks to the 90 Pittsburgh alumnae who made more than 3000 calls in the interest of alumnae support for the College.

Operation Alumnae

Questions about the organization and operation of the Alumnae Association have been coming to my desk frequently enough to make me realize that it has been too long since such information has been published. These are the basic facts about our organization and purpose.

Article 1, Section 2 of the constitution states that the purpose of the Association shall be to further the interests of Chatham College and of education in general, to promote a spirit of fellowship among its graduates and former students, and to strengthen their relationship with the College.

The activities of the alumnae office staff—the director and one full-time secretary—include everything that concerns alumnae and their relationship to the College. We want to be of service to all alumnae in any way we can, and we hope that you will feel free to call upon us at any time. One of the office functions, and the basis for almost everything we do, is the keeping of alumnae records. These include a class file, a master file with cross reference of maiden and married names, a geographic file by cities and states, a complete file of addressograph plates for mailing, and a file containing individual records of annual giving to the Alumnae Fund. Perhaps these statistics will serve to emphasize the importance of informing us of name and address changes.

The Alumnae Association is governed by an elected executive board which operates under a constitution and bylaws. The board holds three regularly scheduled meetings each year, and special meetings at the call of the president. We are represented on the College Board of Trustees by three alumnae trustees who serve three-year terms on a rotating basis. All other officers serve two-year terms. Election is by mailed ballot in April each year. A roster of the present officers and a listing of alumnae club locations and presidents appear on the inside back cover of this issue.

As a department of the College, the Alumnae Association operates on a budget provided by the College. In turn, all of the money raised through our annual giving program, the Alumnae Fund, is given to the College to be used in the academic program and to support eight alumnae scholarships.

We operate on the college fiscal year—July 1 through June 30 of the following year—and conduct an annual fund campaign in the fall of each fiscal year.

These are the basic facts. In our effort to answer questions we may have raised others, but we are always willing to answer them if we can.

1966 Questionnaire Progress

Last May a questionnaire was mailed to each of the 3800 Chatham alumnae. By mid-November approximately one third of that number have been completed and returned to the alumnae office.

The questionnaire was designed to serve four major purposes: 1) to furnish up-to-date biographical data for the alumnae office files; 2) to give each alumna an opportunity to express her ideas and constructive criticisms about the activities of the Alumnae Association and the College; 3) to offer the individual alumna a means of identifying herself with some of these activities; 4) to provide the alumnae office and Association officers with information for future planning and reference.

Our interest in what Chatham alumnae are doing is not just idle curiosity. In addition to the statistical data so necessary to the operation of the alumnae office, several other administrative offices have use for the kind of information you can provide. For instance, Dr. Lily Detchen, director of evaluation services, is doing a study of the graduate work, either in progress or completed, by Chatham graduates. Miss Joan Van Tassel, director of placement, has great need for more detailed information about the business careers of alumnae. The public relations office would like to know your reactions to the various college publications. These are only a few of ways in which the questionnaires are used.

If your questionnaire is one of those not yet returned—and you still have it—please send it in. Or—send a post card request to the alumnae office and another will be mailed to you.

Yearbooks Available

The business manager of the College yearbook has completed an inventory of back copies of the Cornerstone. The following years are available at the reduced price of $3.50 per copy: 1957 (30 copies); 1960 (10); 1963 (58); 1965 (7); and 1966 (23).

To order, send check payable to Chatham College to Linda Whitlock, Cornerstone Business Manager, Chatham College, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15232. The price includes handling and mailing charges.

Eleanor Boyer Church reports justifiable pride in her son Walter's twins, Walter and Laura aged five. They live in Atlanta, Georgia. Her son John is manager of the Fox Chapel Branch of the Pittsburgh National Bank. Eleanor and her daughter Martha planned to attend the inauguration, October 14, of Miss Ruth Adams as president of Wellesley College, Martha as official visitor from Wilson College and Eleanor as a past president of the Wellesley College Alumnae Association. A projected trip to the Holy Land may, we hope, become a reality.

Janet Brownlee sent greetings to the class as she was about to embark on a three-week tour of her beloved Scotland. We wish for her a safe and happy journey.

Pauline Burt is saddened by the death of her sister Mary Burt Foster (April, 1966) in Fremont, California. The class extends deep sympathy.

Adeline Colebrook Voight, our artist member, is still kept very busy. Her daughter Ellen is now in Crockett, Kentucky doing some special work for a Mennonite Publishing house.

Juanita Husband Harrison found September 10, 1966 marked by two memorable events: The enlistment of her grandson, Jay Hahn, in the United States Navy, and the marriage of her granddaughter, Margaret June Di Nicola, to Charles William Cunningham, Jr. The wedding took place in the United Brethren Church in Mt. Pleasant, Pennsylvania. Las Vegas, Nevada will be their temporary home as the bridegroom is serving with the United States Air Force at Nellis Air Force Base.

Phoebe Knight Nicholas and her husband are planning a visit to their daughter Phoebe and her family in St. Louis, Missouri.

Martha Kroenert is making her temporary home in the Passavant Nursing Center, Reed and Roberts Streets, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Mary Little Aiken is still her cheerful, courageous self in spite of a few vicissitudes which prevented her usual sojourn at the seashore.

Margaret McBurney Rigdon spent a long holiday with her son and four grandsons in Georgia, and last summer she was in Cleveland for the birth of her last (?) grandson. She finds that the climate in Texas agrees with her better than that of Ohio but is now planning a trip to Mexico for a change of altitude.

Ada Maiden McClure is contented in the Allegheny Lutheran Home in Johnstown where she is getting excellent care.

Mildred McWilliams, after eight weeks spent in Chautauqua and Buffalo, New York, was once more lured back home (September 13) by the melodic strains of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

Hazel Rider, we are happy to report, has completely recovered from an attack of pneumonia and has assumed her club, social and religious duties.

Ethel Williams Keister presented to Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Connecticut The Encyclopedia of World Art in honor of her four granddaughters who graduated there: Susan Ratcliffe Fuller 1958, Missy Ratcliffe Zimmerman 1962, Phyllis Fraser Semple 1964, and Carol Keister Semple 1966. This year Ethel took her family on a trip to Williamsburg, Virginia instead of going abroad. She is still interested in the Opera Workshop here at the College and especially thrilled by the outdoor production of The Dialogues of the Carmelites by Polenc which Ethel considered superlative in every respect. Of course she and her daughter, Mrs. Horton S. Semple, went to New York for the opening of the Metropolitan Opera Cleopatra in Lincoln Center, September 16.

Personally, I am doing nothing worthwhile and trying to like it.

NEW ADDRESSES

Adella Stewart Anderson (Mrs. Henry B.), c/o The Methodist Manor House, Middleford Road, Seaford, Del., 19073

Frances Boale Belding (Mrs. H. Ross), 4609 Bayard St., Pittsburgh, Pa., 15213

Seba South McCaw (Mrs. T. W.), 4930 Lunar Drive, Columbus, Ohio 43214

With great sorrow we report the passing of two of our classmates. Our sincere sympathy is extended to their loved ones. Books in their memory have been given by the class to the College Library. Also, we grieve with Martha Gibbons Millsbaugh over the death of her mother, September 23, 1965; and with Helen Steele Truxal over the sudden death, shortly before our reunion, of her grandson, Todd Wilson Dougherty, son of Martha Jane Truxal Dougherty of the class of 1943.

All of you who were not so fortunate as to have been present at our fiftieth reunion were sadly missed by those of us—Frances, Rebekah, Alice Donaldson, Leila, Margaret, Melba, Mildred, Kathryn, Helen, Mary Jane, Grace, Jeanne and Dorothy—who so greatly enjoyed seeing each other and reminiscing. Rose had planned to be there, but, at the last minute, was taken ill.

At the business meeting following the luncheon, Helen Truxal presented to President Eddy, as a gift from our class, a check for $500.00. Concerning this, Dr. Eddy has written: "I hope that you will express to the members of the Class of 1916 our very real appreciation for the splendid reunion gift. We are particularly proud that every member of the class participated. And I hope that all of you will be proud when you see, on the door of the faculty office in the 'new' Buhl Hall, the designation of your reunion contribution."

Rebekah Crouse Costanzo had, during the summer, a pleasant visit with her uncle in Dover, and three of their grandchildren visited her.

Edna Gaw Colvin reports a rather secluded life, of necessity due to her husband's fifteen-year confinement to a wheelchair. She says, "I am well, busy and enjoying my family and friends." She greatly appreciates hearing from classmates.

Rosemary Geary had recovered sufficiently from her June 4th ailment to be able to attend Decade V meeting the following week, where she enjoyed seeing some of the girls.

Martha Gibbons Millspaugh was greatly disappointed over not being able to join us for the reunion. A molar infection, followed by sinus and ear trouble prevented her making the anticipated trip. She hoped for a reunion picture. Alas! none was taken. Over Labor Day weekend, "Fairy" visited friends at Sun City, a retirement settlement near Hemet, California. While there, she drove to Lawrence Welk's retirement center with its glorified trailers, golf course, swimming pool, recreation center, club house, restaurant and air-conditioned living quarters.

At the reunion, we had a nice message from Alice Laidlaw Hicks. Although they sent no special news, we are glad to have heard from Amelia Slater and Grace Woodrow, who very graciously offers to assist yours truly in gathering news from you Pittsburghers.

On reunion day, we had a too-brief glimpse of and chat with Melba Martin Ingersoll. We appreciated her coming for even those few moments on a Saturday when Frank is at home needing her faithful care.

Kathryn Robb Dunn and David went with me, by car, to Pittsburgh, June 3. En route, we stopped at Somerset for a visit and lunch with her daughter Lyn, her husband, Richard Shellenberger, and their interesting children. David was honored, June 5, by the church at Turtle Creek, Pennsylvania, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination there. On a recent very delightful day's visit with me here, Kathryn and David told me of their activities since the reunion—a church conference at Mercersburg, a week's visit in Somerset, and a trip to Chautauqua, New York in August.

Jeanne Mahey Smith had "a grand summer, meeting old friends and hearing of their fabulous trips to interesting places here and in foreign parts; bowling on the green, Civic Light Opera and long Sunday drives plus good dinners after morning services."

Helen Steele Truxal spent most of her summer with her daughter Helen in New England, where their families were all together for a week. Also, all spent a week in Pittsburgh.

Adella Stewart Anderson journeyed with her son to Pittsburgh the last week in June when he attended his twenty-fifth Edgewood High School class reunion. She writes, "No people ever had more fun than we." She saw many old-time friends.

Three of our number enjoyed extensive travel during the year:

Mary Jane Stratton experienced, in reality, a "wonderful" dream she had since a student in Miss Bronson's Bible Class. Late in April, with five other church members, two from eastern Pennsylvania and eleven from Houston, Texas, she flew for visits to Rome (Catacombs, Coliseum, St. Peter's Cathedral, et al); Athens; Cairo (Sphinx, Pyramids, Mosque of Omar, King Tut's Tomb and trip on the Nile); Beirut; Biblos Baalback; Damascus; Jerusalem (Dome of the Rock, Holy Sepulchre, Gethsemane, Bethlehem, Nazareth, King Solomon's Stables). Walking across "No Man's Land" to Israel they visited the University Museum with the Dead Sea Scrolls.

Frances Boale Belding had "a hectic, but nice summer." Coming north from her winter in Florida, she attended, in Washington, D.C., the D.A.R. National Congress as a delegate of the Pittsburgh Chapter. Thence to Pittsburgh to arrange to move to her new location. In May, came a trip to Ireland and Scotland under the auspices of the Gaelic Society of Pittsburgh, led by Dr. and Mrs. Robshaw. Louise Reinicke Thorne and Helen Blair Baumann were also members of the party. Frances was enthused with the friendly Irish people, their wit and charm; the green fields, stone fences, gorse hedges, historic castles, abbeys, Irish minstrels. They visited St. Patrick's grave, Blarney Castle (yes, she kissed the stone), the Giant's Causeway and the grave of Yeats, where Dr. Robshaw read from his poems. They were afforded "red-carpet" treatment when the mayors of Galway and Londonderry dined with them and were presented by the visitors with replicas of the seal of Pittsburgh sent by the mayor. The climax was Dublin, where the Georgian Society gave a reception for them and they were entertained by the Irish Players. Of late, Frances has been very busy arranging door prizes for a D.A.R. Benefit, Fashion Show and Luncheon Bridge in November. Also she is chairman for the D.A.R. State Conference dinner.

Gertrude Frame Patterson and "Pat" spent the summer, from June 30 to August 26, on an "easy-going" 7000-mile trip to Canada. It included Niagara Falls; Prince Edward Island where they visited "Green Gables" farmhouse; five days at Baddeck, where Alexander Graham Bell spent his summers; a trip over scenic Cabor Trail; Halifax; Evangeline country: St. John, N.B.; and back in the U.S.A., Campbello, the Great Stone Face and a visit with the family, including three grandchildren, in New Jersey, and on south to the welcome sight of home. Gertrude greatly regrets having missed our reunion.

Early in September Leila Hill Lytle returned from a trip to Panama with Jim in time to celebrate her birthday at a family party. She sends greetings and best wishes.

The highlights of your secretary's summer, in addition to the reunion, were the delightful fellowship with the Dunns enroute to Pittsburgh; a visit there with niece Patsy and her family and the trip back to Chatham with her and the children as company; a week's visit with the twins, niece Jane and her four children at Bethany Beach, Delaware and a visit to "The Cloisters" at Ephrata, Pennsylvania. Volunteer work at the Day Center and Community Hospital and frequent babysitting with my grand-nephews and grand-niece fill my days delightfully.

The following letter from Kamala Cornelius Asirvatham contains a plea for help from her classmates and friends in the United States:

Bangalore 5, India

Dear Friends:

I wish to thank the Alumnae Secretary for sending me the Recorder and the news of all that is going on in the College. I appreciate getting up to date news.

Martha Patrick also keeps in close touch with me. I enjoy her friendly letters from time to time which give me intimate news.

My above address is my permanent address of my home in Bangalore, but I have to go from time to time to Madras as at present my husband has been invited by The Madras Christian College to lecture to post-graduate students till March, 1967. I stayed in Madras from June till August. Due to some urgent work I have come to Bangalore but shall be going back and forth to Madras and Bangalore. I can't stay in Madras all the months. I have many things to see to in Bangalore.

My eldest daughter, Vasanti Selver, is in Great Neck, L. I. and my second daughter, Premi, has settled with her little family in London since May 1966. Now I have only my Padmini, my youngest daughter, living with her family in the Air Force Station in Bangalore. This, of course, is a comfort to me. I miss my daughters, but my various activities keep me very busy.

We are at present in great difficulty and hardship in India due to the devaluation of the rupee. There is much discontent and trouble everywhere. Food scarcity is increasing and the prices of food are rising every day. There is all over the country general unrest and troubles of various kinds. The plight of the poor is pitiable. Young mothers, due to lack of nourishing food, can't nurse their babies. In order to satisfy hunger they feed the babies with tea or coffee. We can't get fresh milk, very expensive. Powdered milk we don't get; if we find it in the market it is sold like gold. Thousands of babies die. I wish some of my friends and classmates could send me packets of powdered milk which I can give to nursing mothers and also for little older babies who can be fed with powdered milk. I can distribute it to deserving mothers and babies.

You can send anything that is a food in "Food Parcel". Government allows food and they do not charge any customs duty on any food. The only thing is the trouble you will have in packing and sending it to me to Bangalore 5, India. Dry fruits also will be helpful. Please do what you can. A small parcel will not be expensive. This is only a suggestion. I shall be ever grateful for anything you can send.

We have had a little rain but not enough for the crops, so the people are much worried, as the Northwest Monsoon has been a failure. Now in October we hope to get Northeast Monsoon and we hope and pray that will at least be better. In India we have to depend on Monsoon seasons for our food crops.

Please do whatever you can for our needy people.

With my best regards and good wishes,
Yours sincerely,
Kamala Asirvatham, Class of 1918

Mollie Davidson Nass and her husband celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary on September 18th. They are enjoying their new apartment and keeping busy.

Lala Fournier Babbitt sends greetings to the class and says, "How I'd love to see you all."

Eleanor Fuller McMurray is living with her brother in Pittsburgh. They spent several months in San Luis Obispo, California, this winter. She enjoys the parties of Decade V. She sees Janet Hill and Ruth Long and sometimes meets Rachel Alexander Christie at the College Club.

Janet Hill wrote from Cambridge Springs, Pennsylvania, where she was spending a restful vacation.

Charlotte Hunker Hays and Byers spent the usual six months in North Carolina. They stopped overnight with Gus Rogers in Paris, Kentucky, on the way down.

Ruth Kauffman Morrison writes that this is the first time in eight years that they have spent twelve months in Florida. Their time is taken up by gardening, church and club work. She would enjoy a call from anyone spending the winter in St. Pete!

Ruth Long is enjoying retirement and sends greetings.

Dot Minor Cary and Emmett spent two months in Tucson this winter, the worst one in fifty years—rain, hail, sleet, snow—the works. They both had Asian Flu and spent a month after their return fully recovering from it. They enjoy their grandchildren and the activities of Music for Mt. Lebanon.

Florence Younkens Fowler has had a busy year. Her daughter Evelyn is living nearby while her husband has been in Vietnam. He was shot down over Vietnam on January 26th. They think he is a prisoner but have had no word. Florence sends love to all the girls.

Your secretary thanks all of you who returned your cards. My year has been saddened by the death on July 29th of my husband, Willbur W. Patrick.

Julia Aspinwall Dunlap has built a new home but her address remains the same.

I visited Catherine Caughey Johnson at her home on September 24th and found her recuperating and in good spirits.

Williard Crane Peebles loves Florida and recommends it as a good retirement location.

Elizabeth Belle Davidson is busy keeping pace with her three men—husband and two sons.

Edna Faddis Stevens is retired but keeps her hand in by teaching Spanish part time.

Elizabeth Fleming has been busy caring for her lawn during a very dry summer.

We are sorry to learn of the death of Gladys Fournier Todd's husband Lewis last November.

Margaret Hare Hurst-Brown has been globe trotting much the same as last year.

Helen Horix Fairbanks is delighted about the approaching marriage of her son Frank in the late winter.

Elizabeth Shipley Brainerd's interests are divided between her travels with Howard and their many grandchildren.

Virginia Wilcox Gilbert also is busy with her grandchildren and her church work.

Gladys Wilson Green enjoys trips to Bermuda with Ed when he takes time out from his busy architectural work.

Your secretary, Ethel Perry, enjoyed a vacation trip to Canada and the Gaspé Peninsula.

NEW ADDRESSES

Betty Wilson Lorenz (Mrs. Lloyd), Edgewater Gardens, 3275 Pinellas Point Drive South, St. Petersburg, Florida 33712

Helen Allison Dunbar wrote that Bonnie and Ina had spent a day and night with her and Jane Taylor last fall. They join the rest of us in looking forward to our forty-fifth reunion on June 3, 1967.

Peg Barnes traveled from Florida to Massachusetts last year but spent most of the two months with her sister in New Jersey.

Beulah Boggs Coffindoffer is living on her farm, one mile from Shinston, West Virginia. Her daughter and family live in Morgantown. Grandson Russell is seventeen and the twins, Sidney and Carney, are fifteen.

Dot Burleigh Courtney and her husband spent Christmas with their daughter Louise in Monroe, Louisiana. The New Year found them at the South Padre Island in Texas. In February they were helping their youngest daughter, Dottie, move into her new house in Villanova and also helping to welcome her new baby into the world. This summer they have been busy entertaining the grandchildren at White Pines, their summer cottage.

Ina Connelly Cross writes that one daughter is in California and the other in Boston, but that she is rooted in Bay Village.

We express our sympathy to Leah Davis Mead in the death of her sister, Ethel Davis Thorpe '17, who passed away on July 21, 1966. Leah and her husband hoped to see Florence Solomon Ellis while on a trip to New Jersey.

Rose Gorzo Rapach sends her love to the girls.

Sally Greves had a successful wrist operation this summer. Although living in Greensburg, she is a member of the Fort Ligonier Poetry Society and has had poems published in its magazine.

Harriet Hill Kraus and her husband have spent a quiet year. There have been trips to St. Louis, Washington, D.C. and Washington, Pennsylvania to visit the children and grandchildren. The latter are six in number. Hat would love to see any P.C.W. contemporaries at her home at any time.

Anne Jay is still in the education field. She is on a twelve-month contract with one month vacation. Three weeks of that were spent in Nova Scotia in July where she enjoyed the delightful weather, especially at Cape Breton. In March she attended an Elementary Principal's National Convention in Oregon, and then spent the weekend in Hollywood with cousins.

Ruth Keck Schell writes that they are enjoying life to the fullest and very grateful for that. She is looking forward to our reunion.

Anne Kiskaddon Griggs and her husband were delighted to spend a few minutes with Florence and Byron Knapp in Florida last winter. When at the Pennsylvania Bar Convention at Bedford Springs, Anne spent an afternoon with Harriet Barker Thompson and Martha McKibben Tannall's sister, Mary Adeline.

Florence Newmaker Knapp and Byron were in Florida for three months. Their daughter Pat and her family returned to the United States in July after two years in Paris where her husband was Assistant Secretary to N.A.T.O. The second daughter, Susie, is flying home from Paris, bringing her closest French friend for a month's visit in the United States. Newny wonders if her "feeble" French is equal to conversing with her. Son John and his family are still happily located in State College.

Jane Taylor took her vacation in April, going to California to visit her niece. Now she says that she has to "stay put."

Betty Wilson Lorenz writes that they have been busy furnishing their air conditioned apartment and studying for a written driver's examination, which both passed. Floyd goes fishing two or three times a week, both go in the pool every day that they can, and have a screened porch where they eat all their meals.

Ella May Wilson Clark had hoped to get to Pittsburgh on their travels this summer, but couldn't make it. She and Monty particularly enjoyed a week in Baxton State Park in Maine.

Your secretary spent last Thanksgiving in Kittanning with Mabel Shaffer, and an additional few days there again this summer.

Get ready to come back to college next June 3rd, girls.

Having heard from about one-third of the class mailing list this year, things seem to be on an even keel with nothing earth-shaking happening, but many are doing interesting things.

Gertrude Mixer Henry, in her continuing skilled volunteer Red Cross service to military families, was assigned last year to New Orleans to work with families affected by Hurricane Betsy. She found the damage unbelievable. Husband Norton is active in the Republican Party in his area.

"Billie" Hibbs Williams finally closed out the old homestead in Brownsville. Daughter Flo, who was with Brookings Institute in Washington, was married in April, and Billie is back at substitute-teaching in the Mt. Lebanon schools.

With Louise Hamilton Haase's daughter Martha, class of 1962, living near her now, both are active in the North Jersey Chatham Alumnae Club and Louise is becoming quite skilled at babysitting for three grandsons all under five.

Educators Hedwig Pregler and Lenore Allen are both enjoying retirement but lend their help to community groups.

Barbara Coit Templeton has been an able president of the YWCA in Greensburg but has taken time out for some foreign travel with her husband.

Grace Davis Mechling is in her sixth year of handling wedding receptions for the Forest Hills Women's Club, gives several book reviews a year, and, with the illness of her daughter's husband, is a champion babysitter for three grandchildren.

Martha Glandon Luthringer and Marshall had a memorable trip abroad this summer. Under the guidance of a Chicago TV personality they took in all of the music festivals and operas in Salzburg, Bayreuth, Verona, London and Edinburgh.

Best wishes came from Ruth Baxter Hill in Georgia where her husband is still teaching (they visited their son in Oregon this summer); from Virginia Lilley Christ who enjoys retirement in Hawley, Pennsylvania and Florida; from Alberta Sexauer Ressler who still loves Bristol Village in Waverly, Ohio; from Helen Errett Hourdequin whose husband's heart attack has slowed down their fishing and beach activities; from Marian Stewart Smith who, with two daughters married now, just golfs and plays bridge; and from Helen Leggett Corbett whose daughter has received her Ph.D. and is teaching at Boston College.

Your secretary, after thinking she was retired and being a fire-horse substitute for the public schools, is now the public relations director for the Animal Rescue League of Pittsburgh under a Mellon grant. To her surprise, she found Hedwig Pregler and Dean Barbara Lewis on the board of directors.

DEATHS

Alice Gross Puff and Harriet Clark have both died since the last Recorder was published. We shall miss them greatly. As is our custom, donations have been made to the College for books to be placed in the Library in their memory. To their families and friends we extend our love and deepest sympathy.

Our reunion—I hesitate to even think the word Fortieth, let alone write it—was fun and seven classmates came to celebrate it. We were entranced to hear about Louise Harcum Einstein's study in Japan, her Far Eastern travels last summer, and of the wonderful new adventure awaiting her and her husband. They were off to Washington to complete their arrangements to go to Taiwan where they will teach English while on leave from Youngstown University.

Marion Johnson Kipp came with her daughter, Kathy McKelvey '62, who had just received her doctor's degree in mathematics from Carnegie Institute of Technology and was on her way to Iowa where both she and her husband are on the faculty of Cornell College. Marion has an art supplies shop in Indiana where she sells her own hand-wrought jewelry.

Mabel Breitweiser Hann brought her young granddaughter who seemed like a promising Chatham potential. The others of the seven were Helen Bromley, just retired from teaching, Mary Ailes Sechler, Carrie Timothy Mountford and Gertrude Bradshaw.

Five classmates visited with us by mail. Ruth Bodner Decker's delight is her first granddaughter. Connie Clarke Russ was just back from a holiday in the Florida Keys when she wrote "This is a voice from the past! . . . Life has been good to Jack and me—three children and, at present, five grandchildren . . . I became a social worker and now am a case supervisor, and have done a good bit of graduate work in that field." Although Connie was graduated from the University of Michigan we still count her as one of us and were delighted to know that she feels some kinship too. Of particular interest to Pittsburghers was her post script: "My nephew, Maurice Cohill, is your newest juvenile court judge. Of course we are all proud of him."

Marie Pannier Townhill reported that her son was married last year, that her daughter is in Theatre School at Kent State University, and that her own activities include working two days a week for Planned Parenthood in Cleveland, her last year as president of the League of Women Voters of Hudson.

Audrey Reebel Early and her husband have purchased a "really delightful cooperative apartment directly on the Gulf at St. Petersburg Beach." Although Pittsburgh will continue to be home, they will spend at least six months each year in Florida.

Catherine Sayers continues to fill her days with many interests that include the Waynesburg Hospital, Waynesburg College, Children's Aid Society, "all of which are very time consuming but interesting", she writes. She is looking forward to a trip to England next spring.

So—Fortieth Reunion or no—there's lots of life in the old girls yet! Take heart, Class of 1966. We could write a sequel to Walter Pitkin's book Life Begins at Forty called Life Begins with the Fortieth.

And now for September's news:

Ruth G. Adams continues as a secretary at South Hills High School. She reported that she thoroughly enjoyed her vacation in Williamsburg last summer.

Elizabeth Koehn Butler was sorry to miss reunion but they always conflict with the closing of her school and it is impossible to get away. She writes she is busier than ever with a new course in the humanities and that "teaching becomes more fascinating and more time-consuming every year." Her family are all in the same places they were when she last reported: her mother in Oshkosh, her daughter and family in the suburbs of Detroit. She says that she plans to retire one of these days—but not just now.

Dorothy Schmidt Clark says she has no news to report and adds: "I do so enjoy reading the Recorder and the news of the other class members." Dorothy, you may remember, married Harriet's brother, so her death was a very special loss to her.

Abigail Cresswell's time since her retirement is taken up by her part-time work at the library and the church work which she enjoys. She was pleased to add in her note that Joan Biordi '62, who received her Ph.D. in chemistry from Carnegie Tech and is doing post-doctoral work at Cambridge University on a NATO Fellowship (Spring Recorder), was one of her English students at Ellwood City High School.

Margaret E. Good, one of our associate members, writes: "At long last you are hearing from me." She has just retired from the office of the Public School Employee's Retirement Board in Harrisburg. I wish you could all see the clipping she enclosed from the Sharon Herald of last June 22 telling of her manifold activities. Here is part of it. "Miss Good has been employed by the Department of Public Instruction for the past quarter of a century and has served the commonwealth under eight governors, four superintendents of public instruction and four secretaries of the retirement board.

"During her service in Harrisburg she has been active in civic, fraternal and church activities being a member of Areme Chapter No. 192, Order of the Eastern Star; secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Riverside Fire Co. No. 15; Wednesday Club, Civic Music Association and Harrisburg Community Theatre.

"She plans to spend her retirement by dividing her time between Harrisburg, Mercer and Chautauqua, N.Y. She is the president of the 1940 Class of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle."

Margaret left us at the end of her sophomore year to attend the University of Pittsburgh where she could obtain her degree in one-and-a-half years instead of two. Since reading the news clipping of her retirement we can understand why Margaret was always a young woman in a hurry. We salute you, Margaret, and hope you get to our next reunion.

Marion Johnson Kipp writes, "Indiana University of Pennsylvania opened its classes last Thursday so I am in the usual full swing of teaching four classes in mathematics." She reminds me that I promised to make a trip to Indiana and visit her in her shop. And I still mean to.

Julia Kadlecik Little, who did not get to reunion, told us why in the first part of her interesting letter. I quote: "Now for my little piece. I was sorry to miss the class reunion, as I promised I would come, and really intended to, until Helen Gross wrote to me of Alice passing away. After that I just couldn't bear to come and her not be there. Since we have been friends for so many years, it was a very personal loss for me. All these years we have corresponded, exchanged gifts during the holidays, and visited one another in our homes. The same goes for Henrietta. She never came to California that she didn't spend some time with me. The two in the whole class that were so close to me would not be there, and this I could not bear. Many other class members have passed this way on their way to Hawaii or the Orient, but none have ever cared to stop or call me. So I will never again return for a reunion.

"However, this does not mean I am not interested in the College, for we have a very active group here and I attend regularly. From time to time we have a college representative and the President has met with us. So I am interested. I also like to know what each and every one of you are doing; but I just can't come without Alice and Henrietta being there."

Julie continues to give us a report on her activities since she last wrote—and activities is a good word! They have been through Africa from the Cape to Cairo; through the Holy Land; around the world; a second trip to the Orient, including Saigon where they saw some bombing. And they have other trips planned! Her son was married last December and his work will take him to foreign lands. They always travel by way of Alaska, so now, she says "it may be by way of Alaska and Timbucktoo, to see our son and daughter too." In addition to their travels, interest continues in Scout work, the Hospital Auxiliary, teaching adult education one day a week, and the Republican Club.

Eleanor Fulton McCracken reports that she spent her vacation at Sandy Lake in Mercer County when she wasn't with her son and his family near Philadelphia.

Carolyn Timothy Mountford's most interesting experience of the "hot, humid summer" was attending her first International Convention of Delta Kappa Gamma in Cleveland in August. In addition to hearing outstanding speakers she enjoyed the "Tops of the Pops" concerts by the Cleveland Summer Orchestra.

Mary Ailes Sechler—bless her—knows how eagerly the class secretary waits for replies to her pleas for news for the Recorder, and wrote a note for this edition. Of the reunion she says, "Returning to campus is a worthwhile experience in itself, and renewing old friendships is always most exciting!" Her time is taken up with shopping for "back-to-school" clothes for six of her eight grandchildren. She baby sits, too, for she has a daughter and son-in-law doing graduate work and a daughter substitute-teaching. Three of her four children live near by. But her family pre-occupations do not interfere with her volunteer hospital work, her attendance at the Carnegie Travel lectures and short trips with friends. She ends with, "Of course, I am most grateful for good health, and this I most sincerely wish for all of you!"

Gertrude Bradshaw, your new secretary, wishes to echo Mary's last sentence. My most exciting experience last year was to take my name off the list of substitute teachers in April and to set out by car for a leisurely trek to Portland, Oregon where 8,500 other Methodist women were gathered for their Quadrennial Assembly. Mother and a friend of hers went with me, and in the thirty-eight days we took for our travels we made a long loop across the country, stopping in the Indian Country and the Grand Canyon, up the Monterey Peninsula from Los Angeles, from San Francisco up the Redwood Highway to Portland, then home the northern route. I am ready to start out again.

Margaret Port Arens (Mrs. Fredinand), 71-A Water Street, Chatham, Massachusetts 02633 (temp.)

Ruth Mary Wilkinson, South Gate Post Office, Sarasota, Florida 33579

Our deepest sympathy to Anne Louise Blessing Leslie whose husband passed away in January 1966 after only a day's illness. She keeps busy baby sitting with her daughter's three sons and now a little girl of Russell's. He returned to Pittsburgh in July as resident in Orthopedic Surgery at Presbyterian University Hospital. Carl is in the service, and Linda a sophomore at Hillsdale College in Michigan. In September Anne went back to teaching kindergarten at the Boggs Avenue Public School in Mt. Washington.

Kay Caldwell Mayer is very active in the Virginia Association of Workers for the Blind, being on the Board of Directors and secretary of the Northern Virginia Chapter. She has made several trips to Pittsburgh and has heard from Hilda Gustafson Jones who retired from Kaufmanns.

Betty Corey Wallis answered my card even though she did not have any special news other than that she and her family are fine. Wish more of your would reply.

Margaret Cousley and a friend spent eight weeks in Europe this summer seeing the Netherlands, Scandinavia, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, France and London. While they were waiting at the airport they met Genie Negley McLean and Tom who were coming to spend the weekend with Anna Negley Brunot, '27 and her husband in Greensburg.

We were sorry to hear of the death of Dr. Anna L. Evans, our class advisor, on December 3rd, 1965 in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. It would be nice to give something to the Library in her memory, so when we have our next reunion keep this in mind when we ask for contributions. Mardy Jones Ruthart saw a lot of Dr. Evans and she always asked about her girls.

Suzanne Finlay Heller's husband John retired as head of the Classics Department at the University at Urbana, Illinois, but will continue to teach. Susan is in New Hampshire where her husband teaches geology. Mary lives in Los Angeles, but spent last summer with the Hellers while her husband studied for state architecture exams. She worked on her music and gave a voice recital.

Dot Floyd Warren's son John is at Wooster this year, having been president of the National Honor Society, editor of the year book, and sports writer for the school and local papers his last year in high school. Charlotte is a sophomore in high school, plays in the band, plans and makes her own clothes. I was sorry to hear Brad had a serious operation this past spring and hope he is fine now.

Fran Frost Brumbaugh is proud of her first grandchild, Deborah, born December 14th, 1965.

Mardy Jones Ruthart still cannot say "no" and is president of the Lancaster County Federation of Women's Clubs 1966-68. Bobby graduated in June with an associate degree in applied science from Paul Smith College, New York and is going to Oklahoma State University for two more years in hotel management. This summer he was at the desk in the Deauville Hotel in Atlantic City. Mardy was in Pittsburgh this summer and had lunch with some of the girls.

Alice Mahood Torrens is still in the catering business. Her husband retired in January 1965, but has suffered with severe arthritis. Alice's mother was 91 in October and enjoys coming downstairs every evening. Bob is Food Director at New Mexico University in Las Cruces, New Mexico.

Betty Malcolm Clemens' son-in-law is in the service, and no doubt there are several others among the families of our class members.

After a ten year silence Pat McCurdy Bushnell writes that she has been teaching all these years and busy raising three boys. Rod, the youngest, graduated from Rutgers in June and was married August 27th to a local girl. They are living in Washington, D.C. where Rod is attending Georgetown Law School. Jeff is with the Peace Corps in Ghana, West Africa. He is a geologist and a graduate of the University of Buffalo. Doug, the oldest, is married, living in Hamburg and has two girls, 2 and 3 years old. Pat is an Elder in the Wayside Presbyterian Church and vitally interested in civil rights and social welfare. She has chaperoned a group of high school young people the last two summers—this year to work with Spanish and Negro migrant workers in Southern New Jersey, and last year to Chicago. This summer she also visited Evy Newton Flickinger in Hudson, Ohio and had lunch with Marie Pannier, '26 Chatham graduate.

Tass Craig Morgan has four grandchildren all living in Pittsburgh, so they can be enjoyed and no doubt keep Tass busy. Her daughter Ann has a boy 5½ and two girls 3½ and 1½—the last born on her grandfather's birthday. Virginia has a boy 3 months old.

Leona Newcome Meier had a delightful seven weeks trip, driving over 8000 miles in 25 states. While in Pittsburgh she "showed off" our campus to her friend who was very much impressed. They spent a couple of days with Josephine Mang Muir '29.

Kay Owen went with some cousins to Fontant Village in the Smokies, and then to Chicago for most of the summer.

Mildred Parrill Gilmore had a month's visit in Europe, going to Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland and Yugoslavia. Henrietta Spelsburg Coston and her husband visited Mildred in July.

Our deepest sympathy to Gina Ray Randall who lost her mother last November 1965. She was ninety years old and a remarkable woman, being active in mind and body till her illness.

In the Ringgold Lutheran Parish at Timblin, Pennsylvania a Schulmerich Carillon was presented to the two churches by Deane Reed Blackburn and her sister Ann in memory of their mother and father. The family has been going there to their Little Red House for many years. Ann's daughter has a new son and "this is as close as I will ever come to being a grandmother," said Deane.

Betty Porter Steinmiller's daughter Sally had an eventful year. In November they moved into a new home in Canton, Ohio; on the 30th Sally was in a bad car accident; her husband's car was hit on his way home from the hospital; and his draft orders were waiting for him when he got home. His orders took him to Frankfurt, Germany, and Sally followed him in August with Betty's help in renting the house and packing.

Ruth Mary Wilkinson and her sister Honor moved last April to Florida into a new house they designed and had built in a new section of Sarasota. They would love to see any of you who come their way.

Jane Willard Stephenson's husband retired in June, 1966 after 43 years with Westinghouse. They have made several visits to daughter Barbara's new vacation home at Santa Rose Beach, Florida. In July a wind storm uprooted a 100 ft. tree, causing it to fall across the garage and doing more than $2000 damage to two cars, a boat and other equipment stored there.

Ruth Work Miller and Bob traveled through Europe by air, train and bus. On their return they toured the west coast to Banff and Lake Louise. Their sons live in Elkhart, Indiana and Sewickley, Pennsylvania.

As your secretary I enjoy reading your letters and wish that space permitted printing them in full. I hear from Miss Mae MacKenzie, our Piano teacher when we were in college, and when she gave up her studio last year she sent me some duet books which I have enjoyed using.

It has been eight years or more since we have heard from the following members: Ruth Gillander Wehner, Kay Hartman Mensch, Hortense, Ibach Knoll, Violet Musselman Love, Clara Osgood, Bessie Rosen Birshtein, Miriam Stage Riordan, Harriette Young White. If you have any news of them or any others please let me know.

Our deepest sympathy goes to Mary Louise Miller Pitcairn whose husband, Thomas F., died suddenly on Thanksgiving morning, 1965.

The class extends sympathy to Polly Bickhart Garratt whose mother passed away on August 5 after a long illness; to Sally Johnson Bailey in the loss of her mother June 7.

Marian Reporting:

Ruth Beech Armentrout's husband retired in September. He has been vice president in charge of marketing for Wear-Ever.

Polly Bickhart Garratt was in Pittsburgh from January until late August due to her mother's illness. Frank commuted from Coshocton weekly. In March they slipped away to visit Ann Saxman Underwood and Jim in Sea Isle, Georgia. Polly reports her daughter Sue adopted a five-day old boy in February and also that Sue and Dave Wollard have a new home on the lake in Tacoma. Frank Jr. finds fishing in the Pacific Northwest an enjoyable dividend along with his teaching. Polly and Frank plan to fly out for the holidays.

Marie Bowser Lower's mother has been hospitalized with a broken hip since September 2. Too bad about your plans to see Hawaii, Marie! Can you put them on ice? Marie's grandson Brian is now a first-grader and Jeffrey is in fourth.

Doris Bushnell continues with the Red Cross in San Francisco and writes that their work is three times as heavy as a year ago, due to recruiting and clearing personnel for the Far East. She plans an October vacation at her cabin in the North Carolina mountains and catches some patio living periodically by visiting a friend in Santa Barbara.

Viola Chadwick Rosso's three sons all graduated this year. John finished at Haverford and entered University of Pennsylvania graduate school. Edwin, after a busy senior year of football, track, band and chorus at Great Valley high, will attend Villanova University. David enters high school from Valley Forge Junior High. The family went to Maine for two ten-day vacations. Vi attended reunion luncheon last June and visited with thirty-one members of the class of '31, plus a dozen from other classes.

Helen Ensminger Hughes vacationed in Wisconsin. She continues active in the Chicago Alumnae Club, and will open her home for the December tea for new and prospective Chatham students.

Marian Haines Schap and husband Ed vacationed in the southwest in June. Their older son was married in August in Clarks-ville, Indiana. Marian played a piano recital at North Central College in March.

Sally Johnson Bailey's daughter Nancy was married to Ronald M. Sokol last December 19. Sal reports that her son is Associate Ag Editor for Missouri University and an extension instructor. Sal keeps busy teaching and taking summer school courses.

Ethel Lehmann Grabe is still in Pittsburgh. She did not move to Houston, since her husband will soon terminate his work there. Ethel reports she saw Nancy McIlwain Sweet in Pittsburgh last summer. Nancy's father-in-law died and the funeral was in Philadelphia.

Peg Loeffler Loftus visited Mary Ludlow in Connecticut in June. She wine and dined Dot Thompson Seif upon Dor's return from Europe. Peg keeps busy on the library board and plans an October vacation.

Meredith Murray Heckman's travels take her to Allentown and Coraopolis to see the eight grandchildren, and in October to Elk Grove Village north of Chicago to daughter Janet. Meredith boned up with a course on new math last winter, since she continues as a substitute teacher. She also enjoys reading, gardening, entertaining and leisure.

Eleanor Nevins Rubenstein became a grandmother in May when David Hillel Topol was born to her daughter Barbara. In July Eleanor and her husband Frank enjoyed a week in Paris, another on the Lido Beach, ten minutes from Venice by speed boat, and ten days in the Holy Land where they were impressed by the magnificent Kennedy Memorial, the building that houses the Dead Sea Scrolls.

Thank you, Mary Peters Wibelm, for sitting down to write a reply before unpacking your bag. Mary just returned from Florida where she and Bob are building a home at Imperial Point, Ft. Lauderdale and after December 1 they will be at new address given above. Her daughter Molly married her childhood sweetheart, John Lewis, after graduating from Denison University magna cum laude in June. Elsie McCreery Longwell and Dr. Longwell attended the wedding.

Mary Louise Towar Potter and husband Francis enjoyed the summer in the North Carolina mountains. They will return to their home in Ormond Beach, Florida, where they have lived since Francis retired eight years ago. Mary Louise's mother makes her home with them. Women's symphony group and D.A.R. absorb Mary Louise's time.

Dorothy Thompson Seif enjoyed visiting relatives in England during July. Dor accompanied a group of Winchester-Thurston girls who flew to Switzerland to attend school. En route they spent a week in London and had several days in Paris before flying home. Dor also visited Rome. On September 4 Dorothy entertained for her parents in honor of their 60th anniversary. Son Jim returns to Yale after an interesting summer assisting a local political candidate. Her daughter Dottie Seif Kapp ('61) is building a new home near Butler.

Vi reporting:

Vi Rosso has seen Louise Dickenson several times this spring and summer, although Louise didn't go to Paoli or Maine and her visits were missed. Louise's niece Barbara was with her all summer.

Justina Gill Beggs writes that her daughter Nancy was graduated from Michigan State University in June, went to Chicago to become an airline stewardess, and is now "flying the friendly skies of United." Justina's husband David is painting lots of beautiful abstracts, while she is teaching French in the Jonesville, Michigan, High School.

Winfred Hartman Whiteman has decided to retire from teaching and enjoy her new home. Her husband Sonny is overworked but likes it. Their sons are both engineers, Larry with Stackpole Carbon Co., and Harry with Speer Carbon and living at home. Larry and his wife live near. They have two sons: Mike, seven, and Mark, who is starting kindergarten.

Martha Henderson Lewis and her mother had a wonderful trip to the west coast last year, visiting Mart's daughter and Gordon's relatives. Mrs. Henderson had a cataract operation early in 1966 and is doing well. Thomas, Mart's son, is going to school and working.

Mary King Guckert retired in June 1965 from her job as librarian at Fulton Elementary School. She and Jack are both well and Mary enjoys doing the things she never had time for when teaching.

Martha Leathers Stewart is having a glorious time with her three grandchildren, sometimes at Chautauqua. Her daughter lives in Chicago and has an eight-month-old boy. Martha's son graduated from Pitt Law School this summer with honors, accepting the class diploma at Commencement. The Dean of the Law School has taken him into his firm in Pittsburgh. Mart's son has two boys, ages four months and two years. Mart has visited with Mary Frye Llewellyn, Lida Fischer Lampe ('31) and Mary DeMotte Sutphen ('29) recently.

Elizabeth McBurney lives alone in their lovely old home but gave up her position outside to take care of things. Her parents died in 1956 and 1959. Libbey keeps on her toes and in touch with community affairs as Secretary of East Washington Borough.

Mary Mears DeWeese and husband have been in McKeesport, Pennsylvania, for about twenty years. Leslie retired from U.S. Steel Corporation three years ago and is enjoying selling real estate and insurance. They are active in church, enjoy bridge, and Mary does Y.W.C.A. volunteer work. They recently spend a weekend with Berry Hall roommate Marie Bowser Lower in New Bethlehem.

Mary Louise Miller Pitcairn's daughter Betsy is in France on a Fulbright Scholarship at the Palais Universitaire in Strasbourg. Mary Lou has no relatives except her daughter and son-in-law. She keeps busy with Chatham Opera Workshop, Garden Club, and Shady-side Boys Club.

Betty Palen Cullen writes that although her husband is still recuperating from two operations, everything is now running smoothly. They have two married sons, C. Wesley, Jr., and Cole, and two granddaughters.

Dorothy Reitz Claney moved into a new home on March 22. On April 28 she fell and broke both wrists and was in casts for eight weeks. Meanwhile her husband had a heart attack. Dorothy is now out of casts and able to drive the car, while her husband is slowly recuperating.

Alice Sheridan McClain moved to New York seven years ago when her husband Austin became president of Marts and Lundy, Inc. Their son Austin, Jr., a civil engineer from Yale, works in New York City. His six-year-old son is named Austin III. Alice's daughter Anne graduated from Connecticut College for Women, married a Yale man, worked at Harvard Medical School as a researchist for two years while her husband did his Ph.D. at M.I.T. Anne now lives in Middletown, New Jersey.

Lois Watt Cooper, after recovering from a broken hip last spring, has just returned from a wonderful trip to Europe with her husband Henry.

Ethel reporting:

Eleanor Diskin Houghton is taking off for Europe. She and Bernard retired from directing a social agency in Cleveland in June 1965 and went to Florida and Mexico last winter and to Maine in summer. They have two darling grandsons, half past two and not quite one.

Lucille Jackson Strauss had just returned from the American Chemical Society meeting in New York, keeping abreast as a librarian with new developments in scientific literature. She and Jerome enjoyed Paris, Naples, Rome, London last spring. The fields or red poppies and Hadrian's villa were of special pleasure. Lucille would like to know of any alum sons or daughters who come to Penn State University.

DEATH

Dorothy Humphrey Hedrick, July 5, 1966 in LaJolla, California. A note of sympathy was sent to Mr. Hedrick and a book has been purchased for the College Library in memory of Dorothy in behalf of the class.

Alice Bair is still teaching at Peabody High School; during the summer she attended the Institute for Advanced Study in History at Berea College, Berea, Kentucky.

Caroline Bickell Morris' son John is a second lieutenant on active Army duty; daughter Mary Lou is a junior at Grove City College.

Louise Blank Lecky reports the biggest thing in the Lecky family is the birth of their first grandchild, Douglas Charles Ashworth. Louise's daughter Diane is now working for Fisher Scientific Company in Pittsburgh.

Flo Bouldin Chase's husband has retired due to illness and they have moved to Wilmington, Delaware, near daughter and family. Son Bruce enters Williams this month and second daughter Debbie, junior high school.

Cady and Merritt Wilson spent some time in the Far East and Europe in February. In Hong Kong they were knocked down by a street car necessitating hospitalization where Cady learned two words of Cantonese. Wonder what?

Marion Brindle Miller's daughter Virginia was married June 14 to George Jansen, traffic engineer in research and survey in San Francisco. Son Robert has given up private law practice and is teaching commercial law at the University of Oklahoma; the youngest Miller is a sophomore at the University of Michigan.

Betsy Dearborn Soaren is looking forward to our 35th reunion, as several others seem to be; recently she was elected secretary of the New Jersey Chatham Club.

Charlotte Graham Dight says no news at all; her life seems to be going on an even keel.

Jean Houghtelin Phillips has enjoyed a busy summer with both boys home. She and Jack had a lovely Florida vacation in April.

Margaret Iams Jenkins' husband wrote she was recovering nicely from an operation.

Lillian Lafbury Wills says that except for travelling around, she remains the same—happy, busy and enjoying middle-age. She and Vince celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary August 15th.

Katherine Lee Sisco enjoyed a three-week auto trip covering fifteen states, sightseeing and visiting relatives and friends.

Rita Lefton Pincus says with both daughters married, she has time for more community activities; she is serving now as president of her Temple Sisterhood.

Alice MacKenzie Swain sent a copy of her 6th and latest book published this summer—a delightful volume of poetry entitled "Pennsylvania Profile". Her husband is executive director of the Presbyterian Homes of Central Pennsylvania.
Daughter Kathleen received her Doctor of Philosophy degree this summer at the University of Pennsylvania where she is an assistant professor of English. Elizabeth is cataloguer of rare books at the library of Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut. Alice herself is still the busiest of this busy family. Her poetry has been printed in Italy, India, Australia, England, Canada and Turkey, as well as in this country. One of her most surprising sales, however, was an order for her books from Soviet Russia. This is a good time for me to mention, since she never does, that Alice is included in every issue of *Whos
Who of American Women*, the American Committee Member of Studie Scambi Internazionali, and last year was named Honorable Poet Laureate of Scotland, from whence she came to us as a vivacious, applecheeked, friendly freshman. Remember?

Sally Miller Brash and her family are always doing interesting things. Eddie is editor for Life Science Library and has just finished making a picture. Sally is drama consultant for the Get-Set project for pre-school children in Philadelphia; husband Gene has retired from his sales career and is enjoying substitute-teaching.

Dottie Russell and Bea Andrews Dimsdale represented the class at Alumnae Day at the college this year. Dottie is Director of Social Work at Columbia Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Sara Stevenson continues teaching in Indiana and spending vacations at home in Pittsburgh; she says "hello" to all.

Constance Wolfe Harrison's father died in November 1965, and at the moment of writing this, just received word of the death of her nephew, Owen Lewis Wolfe, Jr. in New York. Husband Parker is cruising on the Caronia for a couple months in the Mediterranean and Black Sea area, from which trip he returns early in December.

Mary Wooldridge Beyer says Stu is an instructor at the State University of New York at Albany, where he is working on his doctorate at the same time. Daughter Christine will be a high school senior this term. Mary, too, is looking forward to our reunion next June.

Where are all the others? I looked forward to hearing from you, since it's next best to a visit. Doesn't anyone ever pass through El Paso?

Seven class members—*Helen Bixler
Watts, Anne McCullough Frey, Jean Walker Fox, Helen Walker Empfield, Margaret
White, Ellen Yeager Husak, and Mary Jane
Young*—attended the Alumnae luncheon on June 4th when Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort took office as President of the Alumnae Association. According to custom, the class presented her with a corsage.
We are very proud of Dot; she comes to the presidency after a three-year term as Alumnae Trustee of Chatham College. She is one of four associate chairmen of the Pittsburgh 1966 United Fund campaign and is a member of its Board of Directors.
Since 1956 Dot has been a director at Lawnvue Acres Children's Home in Wexford, Pennsylvania, and is on the board of the Pittsburgh Area Council of United World Federalists. The Van der Voort's daughter Betsy is a member of the 1966 graduating class.

Ruth Maxwell Doyle's daughter is also a 1966 Chatham graduate.

In June Ruth Berkey Reichley moved to the new home they built in Arlington, Virginia. Both of Ruth's boys are in high school.

The biggest news reported by *Hazel
Ellwood McClure* is the arrival of a granddaughter.

Rose Hollingsworth Stambaugh has a grandson, W. Dick III, born to their oldest son. Her second son is in St. Petersburg Junior College and the two younger boys are in high school. Rose's thirteen-year-old daughter is still having treatment for the polio she suffered ten years ago, and this year had muscle transplants in her left hand and left foot, and is temporarily having home-bound instruction for 8th grade.

It's a grandson for Eunice Shatzer Stentz.
We were pleased to hear that Eunice is moving to Glenview, Illinois.

Margaret Goldberg Maxwell's daughter Anne graduated from Waynesburg College the last of May. In June Marta finished her first year at Pikeville College, Kentucky; and son Bob finished his first year at Duke University Law School and was married in Durham, North Carolina to a Richmond, Virginia girl. Peggy sent a warm invitation to classmates and husbands to drop in on the Maxwells. She saw Ann Irwin Hoffman and her husband last spring.

It was two weddings for Marjorie Hardie Brown. Her eldest son Craig was married August 6th to Lynn Nielson, also of Mt. Lebanon; and Bruce was married September 3rd to Jean McClintock. Both older boys are out of the Navy now, and all three sons are in college. Marj is teaching English at South Hills High School.

At the close of the spring term at the University of Pennsylvania, Synnove Haugbam went to Scandinavia where she spent most of her time in Norway doing research for her doctor's dissertation. This winter she will audit two classes at Penn while writing her dissertation, and continue her weekly voice lesson.

Ruth Husak Merz was unable to attend the June luncheon because her son was home on leave after completing basic training.

And reunion weekend found Jean Ludebuhl Fischer's son John graduating from Culver Military Academy; he is now attending the University of Pittsburgh at Titusville, Pennsylvania. Jean's older son Charles was graduated from Allegheny College, and has a 2nd Lt.'s commission in the Air Force.

Alice McCarthy Bowman says she always enjoys hearing all the news of her classmates. Her no. 1 son graduated from College in June and entered law school at Ole Miss. Her daughter is a senior in high school.

Anne McCullough Frey has resigned her teaching job at Shadyside Academy, though she expects to do some substitute-teaching there. In August Anne and her husband left for a seven week trip to Italy and Switzerland. They expected to spend a few days in Geneva with Eleanor Harbison Bream and her husband Gray.

Marion Starkey Hamlet wrote that she is still teaching school. Her children are growing up. Debbie is a junior in high school and is continuing her art training. Jeff is in junior high, and Susie graduated from 6th grade in June.

Ellen Yeager Husak's son John has finished his stint with the Army, including a year in Viet Nam, and plans to attend Penn State early in 1967 to study forestry. Alan is continuing graduate studies at Carnegie Tech under a NASA grant. Ellen says her clinic work at the Child Health Conference is a stimulating outlet for her.

We received letters with no special news from Madeline Lee Sale, Mary Louise Martin, Harriet Tyler Martin, and Jean Walker Fox; though Jean did say she had just finished a paper with a dull high-sounding title for the British Museum.

In June Margaret White talked with or had notes from Berenice Beamer Williamson, Eleanor Ewing Wilson, Jane Fisher, Marjorie Gibson Shoemaker, Marjorie Larimer, Frances Lorimer Hepburn, and Thelma Stocker Trost. Our great thanks to Margaret for all she did to make Alumnae Day the happy time it was. The class extends its sympathy to Margaret on the death last February of the brother with whom she made her home.

For the Empfields, Alumnae Day was an unexpected trip to Pittsburgh, and a chance to see old friends I would not see at a regular reunion time. My husband and I enjoyed the President's reception and the dinner at Benedum Hall, and recommend it to all of you. We have one son in the Navy and the rest of the "children" distributed between jobs and school.

Our thanks to all of your who took the time to write, and to all who contributed to our treasury.

Our thirtieth reunion was a fun affair for those of us able to attend. Many thanks to Nancy Henderson O'Dell and her committee. Nineteen members of the class were on hand for one or all of the events.

Jean Andress Berger and her husband Bill, have bought a condominium apartment in Boca Raton, Florida and hope to spend their winters there away from the cold and snows of Wisconsin.

Harriet Bannatyne Moelmann's youngest child, Larry, spent the summer as a member of Experiment in International Living with a family in France. He is now a freshman at Princeton.

Mary Virginia Brown Bowden lost the rest of the summer to hepatitis after our reunion in June. Her daughter Kathy entered Randolph Macon this year.

Mary Jane Carmichael Garvin's daughter Katie is a sophomore at Gettysburg

College and her younger daughter, Jane, is a boarding student at Winchester-Thurston. Son Jim is a junior at the local high school.

Joan Dodds Shradler won the ladies' golf championship at Longue Vue Country Club. Her daughter is at Ellis and son John is a sophomore at Lehigh.

Ruth Frost keeps busy with her job and church work.

Jane Griffith Potter's daughter entered Washington University. Jack, her athletic son, is a junior in high school.

Rachel Jones Donaldson has been active in the American Field Service program and is managing "a corner store" for the use of residents of the Presbyterian Home in Oakmont.

Sally Klingensmith Bowden's older son suffered a bout with meningitis but has recovered. He is a sophomore at Waynesburg. On their return trip after taking their younger son, Bill, to camp this summer, the family spent the weekend with Helen Brown Buchanan. This is the first time that Helen and Sally had seen each other since their twenty-fifth reunion. The Bowdens were also in Nags Head, North Carolina.

Charlotte Ley Glover's daughter "Char" graduated from Drexel Institute of Technology last June. She is now a buyer at Hess's in Allentown, Pennsylvania. "Char's" husband is finishing his master's in civil engineering. Charlotte's son Allen is a senior in high school. The family vacationed at Wrightsville Beach, North Carolina.

Helen Lindsay Lee's elder son is in the Army and is now stationed in Thailand. Her daughter Normandie entered Chatham as a freshman. Helen is active with the Pittsburgh Guild of Flower Arrangers. She has had a book published on flower arrangements.

Jean Meader Lindsay spent three weeks at Tawas City, Michigan, after writing notes to get news for the Recorder.

Elizabeth Saffer vacationed in Europe this summer.

Virginia Wertz Potter reports the birth of a grandson.

Remember our class gift checks should be made payable to "Chatham Alumnae Class Account" and sent to Mary Jane Garvin.

The class wishes to extend its sympathy to Helen Thomas Nevin on the death of her mother last October. Helen is "shooting for" a much needed vacation after her son Tom returns to W&J for his Sophomore year.

Our sympathy goes also to Mary Deemer Nagel. Her husband's mother passed away on July 2nd and her father on July 3rd. George and Mary are grandparents! George William the III was born on February 4, 1966. His father graduated from C.I.T. in June of '65. Mary Lou is a sophomore at Carnegie Tech and John is a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. Charles is in high school and Harry in junior high. Mary is the newly elected treasurer (2 year term) of the Forest Hills Woman's Club. In church she is a member of the nominating committee and is fellowship chairman in the Woman's Association. No wonder she has lots of reasons for not getting her housework done!

Mary Margaret Schmitt spent two weeks in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, and Hungary this past year. She has been doing research in aesthetics when not on tour.

Catheryn Cottrell Deemer's biggest news now is the marriage of her son Art on September 10.

Virginia Leaman Cummings is teaching in "Schools for Dependent Children" in Okinawa this coming year. She left on August 12th for ten months.

Kathryn Arnold Dague had no particular news to report.

Marjorie Chubb Randall's youngest son enters college (University of Oregon) this month. She reports that it is rather lonesome and quiet now.

Ruth Kleitz Buel and her family spent another busy summer. In June they spent 2 weeks in Miami Beach, then in July they took their trailer and traveled through the New England States as far north as Fundy National Park in New Brunswick, Canada. College is pretty close now that Barbara is in 11th grade.

Our "Holiday Inn Girl" Christine Price Cannon is anxiously awaiting son Tom's return from Germany with his bride of last December. Chris hasn't seen him for 32 months. Their inn has just about completed the addition of 40 more rooms!

Sally Reese Warick continues in her capacity as secretary of the First Methodist Church. Sally's pastor and one from England exchanged pulpits for 6 weeks. The English minister, his wife, a teen-aged daughter and son and an 8-year-old boy stayed with the Warricks. They had a delightful and inspiring time together.

Elizabeth Coates Elliott expects her life to be very quiet by Recorder time. Her AFS student went home to Chile in June. Elizabeth urges everyone to look into this Exchange Student Program. It is an enriching experience. Her older son Peter capped this year in England with a stint on a Kibbutz in Israel. He is now a freshman at Columbia. Her younger son Tom will be a frosh at Harvard.

Elizabeth Slocum Haldeman reports that her life remains active and interesting. She has taken up golf to fill the void of children going off to school; one to Penn State and one to Duke University (one still in High School but not for long).

Florence Gibbs Momeyer states that she has none of the "empty nest syndrome." Her youngest son Alan leaves for college this fall, Douglas is entering law school, Rick is working on his doctorate and teaching philosophy. Glen is still with the Research Center of U.S. Steel—his only disability is a numb arm from writing checks to three universities! As for Florence, she is still a social worker for the Retarded Children Association.

Not much news from Dorothea Hunter Haas. She's really busy getting 2 boys off to college. Mike will be a senior at John Hopkins and Gary will go to W&J.

Betty MacDonald Flecker reported that Alice graduated from the University of Michigan in June, 1965 and was married on July 10, 1965 to William R. MacDonald, Jr. (no relation). They are living in Glen Ellyn, Illinois. Carl, Jr. was married to Roberta Borchers in Dayton, Ohio—July 30th of this year. He is a junior at Pitt Dental School and his wife "Bobbie" is teaching at Colfax School. Sara Joe is a senior at St. Mary's Notre Dame and is a history major and plans to do post graduate work next year.

Dorothy Hawk Bryen sends greetings to all. The Bryens had a wonderful trip to the West and Mexico this summer. They are now pouring over travel literature planning their first trip to Europe next summer. Becky is a junior and a majorette. Dottie said they all find it very exciting living so close to New York City.

Chita Cate Beal and Bill have been home all summer while the children have travelled. Jean (17) took Pete (14) for a visit to her family in Peru where she was an exchange student last year. On the way they visited their South American guest from Bogota. They are both learning to speak fluent Spanish. Chita will teach again this year at W.P.S.D. Jean is looking for a college and is quite interested in Chatham. Terry is still in the Army and Nancy is teaching in New York.

Everyone is fine and busy at the home of Eleanor Meanor Croyle. Barbara (24) is writing copy for Foley's Department Store advertising. Bob, Jr. (23) is a 2nd year law student at the University of Texas. Philip (17) is a senior in high school—figuring out where to go next year. Ginny Menchen Morrison and Dave visited the Croyles in August. Eleanor saw them in Atlanta for their son's wedding in March.

Sally Marks Volkwein says that there is never a dull moment in her life. Edward's engagement to Jane Kirksey of Greensboro, North Carolina has just been announced—the wedding is December 28th. Honey is teaching in Baltimore County, Maryland and Fred is expecting his first child in November.

Dorothy Kirkland Manthey reports that her daughter Linda, now 19, has completed her first year at the University of Indiana in elementary education. Linda worked as a nurse's aide at Kane Hospital and found the utterly fascinating. Bill is working for the Army Corps of Engineers, the Flood Control Division. For some time Dorothy has been secretary to the president of the Arthur W. Schmid Co. They are engineers who design and build machinery and equipment for the manufacture of glass. A large percentage of their work has been in Communist countries. Dara Diamond Hake's daughter Susan spent the summer with the Mantheys while she was working at Chatham's Day Camp. Susan is majoring in voice.

Helen and I wish to thank you all for such interesting and newsy cards. Helen's daughter Terry has completed her first year at Vassar College. She is returning to school early to help welcome the freshman class of '70. Jon is a senior at Staunton Military Academy and is in the throes of college catalogues! Helen is taking a fascinating course at Old Economy. This prepares her to be a guide!

Eleanor reporting:

Jean Aungst Talbot has been busy with work in the shop and a number of projects they have had in mind for years.

Elinor Bissell Offill and Paul spent their summer at the Cape baby-sitting their grandsons, ages 2 and 3. In August, daughter Linda had twins, a boy and a girl, so the Offill's now have four grandchildren. Paul is very busy as Director of Development and teacher of English at the Wooster School. Elinor keeps busy as Chief Speech and Hearing Pathologist at Waterbury Rehabilitation Center.

Helen Moon Cheang reports that her sister Sally, Sally's husband and their son came from Chicago to visit her. Sally's husband is a professor at the University of Chicago. Helen's daughter Elizabeth is in school in England. Helen has given up teaching but has two private pupils. Helen has some bad news: her husband Arthur has glaucoma and a goiter and she has not heard from her two sisters and two brothers who live in various parts of China where the Red Guard is active—unfortunately they were "born to the wrong class" as far as the Red Guards are concerned.

Helen was pleased that Dr. James Kinder, former professor at Chatham visited with her when he was on a tour of Hong Kong.

Margaret Christie Graham has a master's degree in Library Science and on October 1st started to work as full-time librarian in the Buffalo Central Library. Husband Barrie worked on fans in the Mont Blanc Tunnel. Barrie, Jr. started to Clarkson College in Potsdam, New York this fall. Keith will be a senior at Wellesley. Anne lives in Coronado, California. Sarah is undecided as yet.

Betty Crawford Colbert has big news. She passed the National Test (10 hours long) to become a Registered Parliamentarian. She is now one of about 400 in the United States, one of 11 in Pennsylvania, and one of 5 in Allegheny County. This is all under the National Association of Parliamentarians and is the result of about five years study—off and on! Britt, her oldest boy, is a sophomore at the University of Denver. Billy, her youngest, is in eighth grade at the Academy. Husband Bill has caught his breath after running for judge and is happy being a lawyer.

Jean Curry Burt reports that daughter Anne will be a junior at Carnegie Tech, and son Alan a senior in high school. She saw Peggy Christie Graham and Rachel Kirk Bobo at their 30th Wilkesburg High School Reunion.

Margaret Dunseath Wilson moved to Alabama from California in November, 1965. She likes Huntsville, a bustling boom town with its citizens coming from all parts of the U.S.A. She works for Brown Engineering Company, an aerospace company, and is doing her bit toward "landing on the moon."

The sympathy of the class is extended to Eleanor Gangloff Morris on the death of her husband, Frederick, on May 9th, 1966. He was an outstanding surgeon and former Chief of Staff at Shadyside Hospital before they moved to Jones Mills, Pennsylvania. Eleanor is still working at her clinic.

Eleanor Hackett enjoyed Reunion Day. I attended both seminars and the luncheon. I was the only one from our class attending the first seminar. Kay Rutter Hingely joined me for the second. Marianne McCallister Martin was busy that morning helping our reunion chairman, Jean Cate Joseph, and Ruth Swisshelm. At lunch the classes from 1937 to 1943 were at one table. Letitia Mahaffey Andree, '39, Frances Mahaffey Thompson's sister, Marianne Martin, Mary Baldwin '38, Doris Chatto Kimball '39, Amy McKay Core '43 and I ate together. I had a delightful trip in the west this summer. It included Seattle, Washington, a Phi Chi Theta convention in Portland, Oregon, a beautiful drive down the coast to San Francisco, Yosemite National Park and Lake Tahoe.

Jane Hanauer Kirk and her husband are rattling around in their house now that their son is completing three years in Army Security and their daughter entered nurses training this fall. Jane is still a bridge addict.

Audrey Horton Skillman always looks forward to reading about her classmates in the Recorder so-o, girls, keep the news flowing in. We all want to read about you and yours. Her oldest child, Priscilla, graduated from Penn State University, for one year taught elementary school in Shaler Township (near Pittsburgh) and on June 18th, 1966 married Charles W. Meier. They will live in Denver. Gordon Richard graduated from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, June 1st, 1966 and will study with the Savannah Program this autumn. He will sail as a 3rd engineer on the U.S. Savannah next year. The youngest, Rebecca, is at Penn State. Husband Paul works for Blaw Knox Company and Audrey has been substitute-teaching in art. On September 5th she left for a month of sightseeing in Scotland. Jane Scott Bruntjen saw the painting Audrey had in the 1966 Associated Artists of Pittsburgh Show. Congratulations Audrey!

Carrie Lou Kinzer Trapp and her husband left the middle of September to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary by flying around the world making stops in the Orient—Thailand, Hong Kong and Japan.

Rachel Kirk Bobo says she is feeling old now that Ellen Marshall Gilmore's son is working with her.

Patricia Krause Kosco has been substitute-teaching in grades one through eight and now understands the new math. She is also a Camp Fire Advisor. The family had a month's camping trip to the Black Hills plus a National Convention of Twin Mothers at Sioux Falls.

Louise Lean Fontaine says her daughter Lynn entered Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia this fall.

Helen reporting:

It seems I just finished this report for last year and it is time to do it again. All I can report is a very full summer with our son Jack being married on September 3. He will finish his senior year at Gettysburg College. Our daughter Carole is now in 8th grade.

Ruth Mengel Roosa says their family is diminishing with Paul married and Jeanie going to Ohio Wesleyan this year. Their 25th wedding anniversary was celebrated in May at Myrtle Beach in spite of the rain. Instead of a family vacation this summer they turned their backyard into a swimming pool and really enjoyed it.

Mary Ellen Ostergard Lutz was glad to say nothing unusual had happened. Their older daughter was graduated from Western College for Women and is now assistant to the Director of Admissions there. She met Mary Jane Kerr Leonard this summer bringing her daughter there for an interview.

Nancy Over Bowdler said since their cat died in October she and Bob took their first worry free vacation in seventeen years. This spring they went to England and Ireland and saw enough to make them want to go back again.

Katherine Rutter Hingely reports that their son, Jim, Jr., is a sophomore at Harvard and that she is teaching once again.

It is a new private school in the South Hills area called the Village Academy.

Aethelburga Schmidt Eden and husband took a cruise on the S. S. France last winter. In June, while on vacation at Avalon, she met one of our classmates, Polly Sommerfeld Lidel. She and her family were on vacation there, too, so the girls enjoyed chatting and being amazed at meeting at such a place after all those years.

Mary Lou Shoemaker Hockensmith says things are just great. She is planning to go to Pitt for her master's degree in speech therapy.

Frances Shoup Brant and Bob had a wonderful trip across Canada this summer. They stopped at Banff, went to the Columbian Ice Fields, over to Vancouver and crossed Puget Sound by ferry. They went down the Pacific Coast and up the Columbia River valley through Washington, Oregon and Idaho to Montana and Glacier National Park. She is starting her fourth year of teaching and is going to night school at Pitt.

Alida Spinning, after a busy year of teaching, was glad for vacation which took her to Madison, Wisconsin to the Phi Delta Gamma National Convention. Also, she spent much time back and forth between Wilkesburg and her house in the country at Mars, Pennsylvania.

Kay Thompson Mitchell says that after two weddings this summer they are moving to a smaller, but quieter, house. Their daughter was married in June and their son in July. No. 3 son, John, is at Carnegie Tech. She will start her fourth year of teaching organ at the high school.

Jean Watson Williams says she is back in school. She is going full-time this semester as California requires thirty hours after graduation and a major before she can get a teaching certificate. It isn't easy, but she loves it. Her menage is now down to one husband, two children and two collies since the big kids went to college at Berkeley.

Inez Weldon was on her way September 6 for a trip to Ireland where she planned to rent a car and see the country.

Nancy Wilson Patterson said she was rushing around getting Betsy to Wellesley for her first year. Tommy is in first year medical school at Columbia and Laurie in 5th grade. They spent July in Hampton Bay, Long Island and plan to build a house there. Their church life is busy and rewarding.

Mary Wolff Gamble reports their house is rebuilt and nearly refurnished after their tornado tragedy of last year. She is teaching part-time this fall at Indiana University campus in South Bend.

Peggy Jane Ewer Wright says things are about the same in Uniontown. Their older son, Rick, is a sophomore at Bethany College and Boyd is in his junior year at McDonogh School. She is looking forward to a trip to Greece in April with the Jefferson Medical School group.

Marjorie Johnson Ward had just returned from Connecticut where their son

Alan was married. He is Lieutenant in the Army and is now in Germany. His wife will join him and they will be there for two years. Marjorie's brother is in Korea, so she says her family has dispersed to distant lands. She enjoys the same general routine here.

Rosanne Martin says her new curriculum in nursing is exciting and challenging. She is now seriously pursuing plans for a one year "Grand Tour" of the United States in a camper—possibly in '67—more likely '68. She is finding that getting prepared is a year's job in itself.

Nelle Richards Offutt says a wedding, a college and a high school graduation within ten days in June reduced their six at home to three. Their oldest son is flying for the Navy, their second teaching school outside of Rochester, N.Y., and their third working for Gulf. Jane is entering Allegheny, Tom is in 9th grade and Marianne in 6th. Aside from keeping track of everyone this summer she managed to get in a little golf.

DEATH

The death of Harriet McKnight Brown-ing, last fall, came as a shock to all of us. A number of years ago Harriet suffered a severe illness with polio. She showed great fortitude then when she was bed-ridden for a number of months. At the time Harriet died she was ill with cancer. Once again much was expected of her. The class extends its deepest sympathy to her husband and her three boys. A contribution has been made to the Library in Harriet's memory.

Margaret Anderson spent the summer with her parents visiting relatives in Sweden and was fortunate enough to attend an informal reception given by King Gustav at his summer palace in Halsingborgon July 4th.

Betty Baker Patterson's daughter Vicki is at Sullins College in Virginia and her son Bob is a senior at Citadel.

Jane Chantler had a delightful vacation in San Juan and St. Thomas. Well, she's still the travel manager for the Union National Bank, so that figures. Jane begins her eleventh year as advisor to the Junior Auxiliary of the Butler Hospital where she works with the daughter of Mary Ida McFarland Shannon.

Sunny Croft Armstrong is busy building a house on the Clarion River near Cooks Forest. Sunny would like to see any of us that come up that way.

Ruth Demmler Benner has a son, Paul, in the Navy and a daughter, Jean, at Avonworth. They spent their vacation at Nag's Head, North Carolina.

From New Orleans, Dottie Lou Evans Kimball wrote that they would travel to Boston this fall to enroll Priscilla at Lasell Junior College. Peggy Matbeny Bailey and D. J. were looking forward to their arrival. To celebrate Ralph's tenth year as rector at St. Andrews the Kimballs were to tour Europe this fall. Can't think of a nicer celebration. The Bailey's spent a golfing holiday in the Bahamas.

Jean Faris Watt and family (son in college, daughter at Winchester-Thurston) spent their vacation at Chautauqua along with Jean Patterson Bliss and her family.

Betty Hazeltine Webber's oldest daughter is at the Westminster Choir College in Princeton and her second daughter, a high school senior, spent the summer at the University of Durham in England attending the American Institute for Foreign Study Program. The youngest, Timmy, started kindergarten this fall.

Barbara Maerker Baum's oldest is at Duquesne and the other two are in high school.

Jane McClung Sincell sent her daughter Pamela off to Monticello College for Women this fall. Jane still loves Winnetka and the beaches of Lake Michigan.

While delivering her daughter Ann at Queens College, Alice McKain Porter met another Chatham alumnae, Barbara Cooper Hepburn '43, enrolling her daughter.

Helen Moore Sacco sends greetings from the Poconos and Ethel Herrod Blackburn from Grosse Pointe, where she spent her summer "cleaning up after the kids."

Janet Murray Newton, back in Pittsburgh again, has resumed bridge with Alice Provost McCutcheon. Janet has a daughter at Penn State and a boy entering kindergarten. In between, one in high school, one in junior high and one in grade school.

It all started with "Dear Mr. Moon," and Midge Norris Wherry is now writing poetry, composing atonal music and taking a lively interest in color photography.

Two Dobermans and a stray cat keep Jane Smith O'Neill busy while Megan is in school.

Mary Elizabeth Rope LaHue reports that son Greg entered Rollins this fall. The LaHues bought a 27-foot sloop this summer so you know what kind of a summer they had. Her husband is general sales manager for Xerox.

Team teaching in the Denver Public Schools keeps Elizabeth Rouse Pray busy. One son is at Colorado State and the other in high school.

Helen Shellkopf Cline's life, with church, civic, school and Scout activities, was interrupted by a delightful visit to Nova Scotia where, she says, the deep sea fishing is wonderful. Now its back to the projects.

Mary Singer Sampson is busy at the College Student Personnel Institute in Claremont with counseling and helping to edit a new journal of abstracts on college students services. She came as far back east this fall as Ohio when she enrolled her daughter Ellen at Antioch. Her two teenage sons and their father are trying to convince her that back-packing is the way to go.

Mary Alice Spellmire Grits has a son at Cornell (Engineering School) and a daughter in high school. Her husband's firm designed the new South Hills Village.

The class has at least one daughter at Chatham, Claire Stewart Burkbart's daughter Sally. Her oldest daughter has been teaching in Nassau for the last three years.

Florence Succop Klotz had a vacation that few of us could top. She and her husband visited Churchill, Manitoba, on Hudson Bay, which is almost as far north as the Arctic Circle. While there they met a woman who had known Dr. Doult when she was there collecting flora, back in the days when we were in college. They brought back some tundra and watched white whales being processed. Her second son was married this fall and the youngest entered kindergarten.

We were saddened to hear of the death of Marjorie Wood Yearick's father this fall. He and her mother had celebrated their golden wedding anniversary just a few weeks before. Marjorie and her husband celebrated their twenty-fifth this fall. Their daughter was graduated from the College of Wooster in June.

Marden Armstrong Dahlstedt is enjoying her work as Librarian at West Deer. Marden spent a day with Miss Dysart last summer when she was here for a short visit. Unfortunately I was out of town at the time and missed her visit. I've been busy with real estate and four teenagers. Incidentally our tour of duty at this post is up. We've enjoyed hearing from all of you. Remember, 1967 in our reunion year.

Adelyne Supowitz Crumb, September 8, 1966

The class extends its very sincere sympathy to Adelyne's brother and sister who survive her. A gift has been made by the class to the Chatham Library in her memory.

Marion reporting:

Jean Bacon Smith writes that they spent the summer in Maine at the Hurricane Island Outbound School where Knut taught rock climbing. They returned to Aspen in October with plans to enter Eric in ski school this winter at the ripe old age of four.

Norma Bailey McLean reports that everyone is fine. They vacationed at their summer home in Chestnut Ridge.

A four-thousand-mile trip in their camping trailer all over Florida was enjoyed by Gladys Bistline Belz and family this summer.

From Peggy Craig Murray comes news that Agnes Conner was married this summer. Peg would like to have her address if one of you could send it along.

Jeanne DeHaven Uhl feels as though a whole new way of life has begun. She is teaching chemistry and nutrition to student nurses at Kentucky Southern College. Son John is beginning his freshman year in the School of Engineering, University of Cincinnati. The youngest children, twins Kevin and Wayne, are enthusiastically starting first grade.

Off to Princeton this fall went Barbara Findley Copeland's son. Barbara writes that Anne is still at home to keep her feeling needed with such important questions as "Mom, where's your charge-a-plate." Seems as if the "empty nest syndrome" you wrote about must be common with many of our classmates this year, Barbara.

Still traveling in seven states as part of her work is Evlyn Fulton. Evlyn enjoys seeing Lu Ann Isbam Staley who is back in Pittsburgh.

Patricia Leonard Bodle wants to know "When's anybody going to stop in?" Everyone is fine with son Bob still aiming for a trip to the moon and daughter Trish about to get "cheerleader's knee". Patty is still, according to her version, "tottering" around the tennis court and Grayladying.

Getting ready to move and trying to sell their old house was keeping Ruth Laird Grant busy. Their daughter Christine is a sophomore at Swarthmore.

With the three children in school this year, Joanne Knauss Fitzpatrick has gone back to teaching psychology to nursing students at Presbyterian Hospital. Joanne is "sure the problems will be worked out by the end of the semester."

Kelly Jones Clowes sends regards to everyone. Daughter Nancy is a freshman at Marietta College.

"Keeping up" with the six children keeps Ruth Jenkins Allen well occupied. The youngest is now in first grade and the oldest a junior at Brandeis.

Lu Ann Isbam Staley writes that they are being transferred again before she's even had a chance to see everyone. Lu Ann sent her second son off to school this year.

A delightful family vacation at Ponte Verda, Florida in July was enjoyed by Martha Harlan Kaufman and family. The airlines strike caught them so they rented a car for the drive home and looked over a few southern colleges en route. Lynn is a junior and a Rockette with the band. The Mt. Lebanon band is looking forward to a trip to the Cotton Bowl in Dallas on December 31. Betsy is captain of the junior high cheerleading squad.

Peggy Donaldson, Jane Humphrey Agriesti, Betty Monroe Musselman and I met at the Reunion luncheon in June and Martha Harlan Kaufman and Marion Monks Campbell and their husbands attended the dinner at Benedum Hall that evening.

Thank you for your cards. I wish we had room to put them in verbatim.

Dorcas reporting:

Mickey McCullough Lohmeyer and husband Paul were looking forward to a vacation in England, Ireland and Scotland in October. Their daughter Sue is now a sophomore at Carnegie Tech and brother Jim is college-hunting as he is now a high school senior.

Marylou Osterling Druschel is returning to school, the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, to work on a master's degree in Library Science, now that her girls are well started in school, one being in 4th grade, the other in 6th. She reports Scout and church activities as well as recent vacations in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Florida.

Mary Lou Reiber Peter and her family had a wonderful vacation through the east this past summer. Moreover, she's joined the grandmother's set. Her oldest, Barbie and husband Mike, have a beautiful little girl five months old. Next in line, Diane is a sophomore in college, Evan is in 10th grade and Doug in 4th.

Jean Rigaumont Wilson seems to have been doing considerable traveling over the past year. In December they went to California with a week out for skiing in Squaw Valley; in June it was Florida and in July, Cape Cod. Son Wayne, now 16, spent the summer in France with trips to Germany, Italy, and Switzerland.

Cynthianne Say Calhoun has a new "daughter" who will be living with the family for a year. She is from Finland and the placement is part of the Christian Youth Exchange Program. Their summer was spent at Chautauqua Lake.

Helen Heath Smith's note is so typically Helen that I quote it intact. "Completed one big job this year—Study Committee for United Presbyterian Women. Know more about "women in today's world" than I care to know. Vegetable garden especially productive this year; didn't have to buy any vegetables or salad greens for four months. Prize Bibb lettuce (prize unofficial but undeniably deserved). Encouraged by Peg Craig, Janet McCormick and Agnes Conner, all of whom married fairly recently, I painted front door blue—old Amish custom to denote marriagable female in residence. This represents change of approach; previously had red door. Business as usual. No vacation. Currently tired of tanned, eager, rested, energetic people returning from theirs."

Betty Spierling Arentson reports that they have seen much of the country this past year. The family all went to New York City in May to bid bon voyage to Betty's parents who were spending their 50th wedding anniversary in the Mediterranean. In June they drove to the Grand Canyon and then up to spend three weeks in their cabin in northern Utah. September found Betty and her husband having a week's golfing in Canada.

Nancy Stouffer Grantham has been on the move again. Her husband Joe was transferred to Atlanta, Georgia and they now live in a pretty little house with a creek and a forest of Jock pines. Nancy is teaching Spanish at Avondale High School.

Janet Swanson Wood reports that things are quiet around the Wood household, as Judy started her first year at Theil College. Mark, age 15, is already a six-footer.

Patty Wright Motheral is still in Pittsburgh where husband Knox is an assistant vice president at Mellon Bank. They have two teen-age daughters, one of whom is a freshman at Wheaton College and the other in 10th grade at Winchester-Thurston. Patty has a Saturday job in a gift shop on Walnut Street.

And just to catch up with reporter Dorcas Leibold, you will find her still at the old stand as executive director of the Pittsburgh Travelers Aid Society. Much of her travel over the past year has been in connection with her agency with some fun and games mixed in. May found her in Puerto Rico attending the Biennial of the National Travelers Aid Association with a week's side trip to the lovely island of St. Thomas. In September she was off for a week in Cape May, New Jersey prior to the big event of all social workdom, the International Conference of Social Work which meets every two years in different parts of the world and this year was held in Washington, D. C. Dorcas felt like a member of the United Nations listening, as she did, to international authorities addressing the 3000 delegates in different languages over translating earphones. In addition, there have been several trips to New York in connection with committee work for the national organization during which time she has spent fascinated hours at the Lincoln Center for the performing Arts—a must for any New York visit.

Marjorie Wayne Wechsler, October 4, 1966

The class is deeply saddened by Marjorie's untimely death following a long illness. We extend our sincere sympathy to her husband, Dr. Richard Wechsler, and their three children. A class gift to the Chatham Library has been made in her memory.

From all reports the class reunion was a great success but far too small—only fifteen were able to make it. Let's hope the 25th brings us out in great numbers.

A note of business—it is traditional for classes to make a special 25th reunion gift to the College. Those who attended our 20th worked out some details and you will be receiving a letter from either Peggy Korb Smith or Jean White Markell, co-chairmen of the project. It is essential that we have 100% participation to make it a success.

Our sincere sympathy to Nancy Means Creed on the death of her husband, Don, on February 26, and to Ruth Ann Weigel Gourley whose young son died last year following open heart surgery.

Vacationers are in the news. Carol Thorne King and family had a wonderful trip to Yellowstone Park. They probably passed Kitty Lancaster Cone and her family who also took a camper from Denver to Yellowstone.

Arlene Levinson Rosenberg was off for a holiday in Mexico City where she planned to use her Chatham Spanish if she remembers it after 20 years.

Another camping family was Sally Cook Collins and her four who went all the way to California to visit her family. Her oldest entered the University of New Hampshire this fall.

Both Marjory Elliott Weiner and Lois Jean Jackson Ritenbaugh report New England vacations. Lois Jean says it was a break from being a full-time referee for her three boys.

Martha Coate Challener writes that Dick has just completed a book on American foreign policy. She and Doris Rowand Schroth live near each other now and are delighted that their children get along beautifully.

Ginny Uber Haug hated to miss the reunion, but in addition to her four children she has cared for six welfare babies in the past six months. Her oldest daughter, a recent Homecoming Queen, is at college in Illinois.

Sally Villing Hughes' oldest boy, Bill, attends the University of Notre Dame, and Mariellen Roche Duval and Gene are proud that their son Dave has received a full tuition ROTC scholarship to Purdue University. Their daughter Lynn has her eye on Chatham for next year.

The third generation of Marian Lean Christie's family is attending Chatham. Janet Christie is a freshman this year. Janet and Fran Hilbish Logue's daughter graduated from high school together.

Mickey McKee Barnes and Marty Yorkin Berman have both completed their master's degrees. Marty is considering going on for her doctorate in counseling. Mickey is about to be transferred again to the New York area.

Eva Caloyer Nassikas' daughter hopes to apply to Chatham this year. Eva visited Betty Anthon Arvan this summer.

Miriam Egger Hosack's most exciting news concerns their oldest son, Larry, who spent the summer in Japan under the Americans Abroad Program of the American Field Service. Penny Myers Smith has a daughter with an AFS scholarship to Zurich, Switzerland. Penny is teaching humanities in high school and takes her classes to hear many of the lectures at Chatham.

We have a number of teachers in our ranks this year. Harriet Hoffman continues to teach fifth grade; Sue Norton Boord will substitute in addition to all her other activities; Bee Kiester Farneth is starting to teach kindergarten; Betsy Ross Pervose is teaching medical secretaries in a business college; and Ginny McDermott is easing her way back into nursing by instructing on a part-time basis at Presbyterian-University Hospital.

Roberta Carpenter Morel has been working in a school development office since December. Having her oldest in junior high gives her some free time.

Jan Bovard Poole will spend some time with her mother this year while Charles is in Vietnam. She visited Carol Thorne King and Mary Lou Burkhart Crawford this summer.

Lucy Dorsey was too busy at the bank to make the reunion. She spent a marvelous vacation right in Florida.

Joan Titus Dunlop has become involved with her music again—violin lessons, string quartet, etc. Her family spent the holidays in Washington and Philadelphia.

Helen Gilmore Reinhart is enjoying doing secretarial work as a change from the nursery school routine.

Ruth Teplitz Goodman has again had some of her paintings accepted for a show at the Baltimore Museum of Art and the Peale Museum, as well as an exhibition in "The Vertical Gallery."

Grace Savage Freeble writes that her husband had a coronary last fall but is on the way to complete recovery. Her son is a pre-med student at Pitt where he received freshmen honors last spring.

Linnea Lundstedt Evans' two oldest girls are in college, and her sons are achieving great things in the Boy Scouts.

Doris Fairfield Jamison is all wrapped up in the new house they have built.

Helen Hunter White and her family have become land-lubbers after seven years of boating. They want to do some land traveling before the children get too grown up. She says college-hunting will be coming much too soon.

Priscilla Hendryx sends happy news that she is planning to be married this winter to a man worth waiting for—a San Franciscan eager to stay there! All our best wishes for your happiness.

Ouida McGehee Young's oldest is returning to Hiram College for his sophomore year. Her "little girls" are 15 and 16. She says she's just a wee bit touchy about this 20 year bit but was sorry to miss the Reunion.

Emily Sawders Laisy corrects the last Recorder. They adopted a lovely daughter, Stephanie instead of a son, Stephan. The children are fine.

Nancy Means Creed and her children spent the summer with Jane Field Taylor in Florida where Jane's husband is stationed.

Florence Ostien Chew tells us that her four children and the dog spent the summer circulating the mumps among themselves.

Jean White Markell and Peggy Korb Smith have very kindly consented to be co-chairmen of our 25th Reunion Project. Jean spent a week in England with Bud, and Peggy sent her little (6'5") son off to college.

No special news but greetings and best wishes to all from Jeannie Thompson Johnson, Helen Parkinson Gambridge, Helen Jane Shriner Irvin, Joan Davies Bream, Nancy Showalter Thompson and Lulu Copetas Blazakis. Lu says she recently toured the Chatham campus and it's absolutely fabulous. Lets remember that for our next reunion.

I will be teaching sixth grade this year. Thanks for the wonderful response—it was delightful to hear from all of you.

Carol reporting:

Jerry Kimball Wells has been collecting books for their new high school library and put on a sock dance attended by 800 kids.

Jean Forncrook Armstrong entertained a group of Chatham students for dinner together with a Swedish exchange student who spent the weekend with them.

Ginger Long Carlson and her family have joined the camping trail. The Carlson's rented a trailer and toured Pennsylvania, and later headed for Texas via the Smokey Mountains.

Mary Aiken Brown is another addition adder (rooms to the house, not to the family). "Ake" sees Miss Marks occasionally and says "It's always a treat."

Donnie Exley Eck and Dorothy Doolittle Collins were luncheon guests of Marie Cohn Chiles at her home. Marie's husband is a regional attorney for Humble Oil.

The west beckoned again to Helen Obermayer Sellers and her family. This year HAO said they visited many of the National Parks they missed the last time out. HAO spoke to Amy Gage Skallerup when they stopped in Iowa City. Amy sent her card back with no news but a "bit of green."

Mary Alma Lapsley is truly the "travelingest" classmate. Last fall she and her mother were in Italy and Ireland. This spring she went to Mexico and the Mayan ruins, this summer to Jackson Hole and Yellowstone Park, and this fall to Hawaii. What's the secret, Mary?

See the U.S.A. in a Volkswagen bus was the song Bobbie Mueller Baylor's family sang this summer. Williamsburg, Virginia, Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, and Atlanta, Georgia were some of their stops.

At last solitude! Henrietta Meyer Garrett's Ginny Joins the all-day school crowd. Both youngsters are in school now.

Sally Geary Hansen is taking flute lessons and they recently purchased a pipe organ which necessitated some remodeling. Sally entertained the Cincinnati girls who are students at Chatham at a "back-to-school" party in September.

Sally Boggs Campbell was recently elected the first woman board member of the National Association of Broadcasters in its 45-year history. Sally ran into former roommate, Betty Johnston Smith who was visiting her sister in Gallipolis.

No startling news but always busy with their growing families are Marge Caldwell Berlin, Bonnie Beck Melborn, Normie MacMillan Morris, Betty Albach Weamer, Dottie Berg Groomes and Nancy MacDonald Sutherland.

The last card to arrive was Honey Holland Rank's with the address of their newly completed dream house.

As usual it was a swift, busy year for the Houcks. Don, Sr. spent a month in traction in the hospital last February. I taught sewing in summer school for six weeks, and we trailed to Massachusetts, Maine and the Northeast. Donnie has now reached the ripe old age of 16, and Cynthia was elected to the National Junior Honor Society.

Many thanks to all of you who responded to my annual call for dollar bills. I enjoyed your cards and letters, the most rewarding part of this job.

Wandalea reporting:

Wilma Moore Stoebe and her husband are still showing and breeding Labrador Retrievers. They also hunt with them and are learning to cook and like wild ducks, geese, quail, pheasant and grouse.

Barbara Rodgers Schlegel is teaching junior high. The four children are swimming, taking guitar lessons and "going in all directions."

Mary Lou Stone Clarke's oldest boy is a sophomore at the University of Michigan. She and Ed play tennis and ski in their respective seasons.

Doni Vail Rea has both girls in high school and is involved with them in church activities and music lessons. They all vacationed in Michigan and Canada.

Anne Wallace Huntemer reports school for all. The children are in the third and eighth grades and she and Bob are studying Scuba and Japanese in preparation for their next assignment in Japan next summer.

Ruth Zucker Bachman is the proud owner of our first Eagle Scout, son David. He is a freshman and Anne is in seventh grade. Ruthie and her husband went to Europe this summer and had a marvelous time. Now she is taking a refresher in nursing in preparation for returning to the profession after fifteen years of volunteer work in community organizations.

Eleanor Robinson Hastings also answered her card with no special news but it was nice to hear from her.

Sally Altmayer Buske reports that they are enjoying their new home and community. Barbara, 13 and Walter, 8 and their parents vacationed in Sarasota for two weeks this summer.

Marion Baker Powell's husband has been transferred to Chicago. Marion and the boys are staying with her mother, temporarily, until they find a new home.

Dolores Baney Conley and husband
Duane traveled to Ashville, North Carolina, Atlanta, Georgia, and Montgomery, Alabama on a combination business and pleasure trip.

Gertrude Beiswenger Tourtellot has been doing some traveling with Carl now that Margaret and Peter are both in school. The highlight this year was a trip to The Cloisters at Sea Island, Georgia in April for their 15th anniversary. They also spent their usual summer in New Hampshire.

Shirley Bemis Martin's twelve-year-old-son, Arthur, was a local Soap Box Derby winner this year so they had a trip to Akron, Ohio. Shirley highly recommends
Soap Box Derby to all families of 11-15-year-old boys. The Martin family had a nice camping trip to Canada this summer, too.

Barb Black Bloomstrom reports that at the Cincinnati Area Chatham Alumnae luncheon last May the class of 1950 was the best represented with the most: Judy Sutherland Latimer, Barb Illig Rabenkamp and Barb, herself.

Ann Carpenter Morris had sad news to report. Her mother passed away very suddenly on August 22. Please accept our condolences, Carpy. After five weeks in the hospital last spring Carpy says that she is fine now. She reports that they had a nice vacation with her sister and family in Florida in May. Ann's oldest boy is in fourth grade and the little girl in kindergarten.

Sully Baux Stevens called me one day and we had a delightful telephone visit.
She asked me to please convey her thanks to all of you who sent her cards. She said she is "on wheels" these days . . . either in bed or in a wheel chair. Her sons are growing up to be big boys—Bobby, 13, is 5'3", and Grant, 12, is 5'2". Sully has been in and out of three hospitals this

Lee Corey Hanson reports that 1966 marks the year that she acquired an MA degree in anthropology from Pitt. She is now relaxing and catching up on long-neglected aspects of her life—namely, husband, household, and two Scottish Deer-hounds. The Hansons are parparing for a particularly happy Christmas holiday this year since Lee's parents will be visiting them from their home in Guam.

Olive Mae Cowles Lindell writes to tell us of their particularly wonderful, happy and exciting year. They have a new daughter (an American Field Service student from Italy). Their own daughter Fae was elected "Sweetheart" of the F.F.A., son Jeff, 15, made varsity quarterback of the high school football team, and their A.F.S. daughter, Simonette Mauro, was nominated for homecoming queen. Fae received a trophy for being the outstanding 4-H girl in home economics. With three teenagers and two small boys, age 8 and 10, the Lindell family has lots of activities.

Mary Jane Crooks Rech spent a brief vacation at the El Conquistadore in Puerto Rico last February—without the crew—
Peter, 18 months, Kim, 5, Tim, 7, and Susan, 8. M.J. started the summer as chairman of the "Store on Wheels" at their hospital. Also, in politics, she worked in a winning campaign for a close friend.
Later M.J. realized that she too was on the ballot (no competition) so—she's the new County Committee-woman. She's also the general ticket chairman for a five community GOP picnic where they expect upwards of 2500 people. Throw in a little ballet, Brownies, Book Worm Club, swimming, and tennis lessons for the mob, swim teams, and on and on—already she is dreaming of next February's vacation—
Jamaica, she hopes.

Betty Davis Herzberg is again a student at Chatham—taking secondary education courses. After three semesters of part-time study she hopes to receive a teaching certificate to teach high school chemistry.
Her son is 13 and her daughter 11.

Corky Davis Anderson had a delightful reunion with Trude Beiswenger Tourtellot and her husband Carl in Cleveland this summer. She is looking forward to seeing everyone at our reunion next June.

Ruth Fabry went with her parents to Lake Placid and Vermont, and also to Florida last winter. This summer Ruth went to New York for some plays and shopping.

Kathleen Fisher Ammon's family is getting ready for a busy season of community theatre in Orange City, Florida. Don introduced children Amy and Doug to theatre life last season with roles in Miracle Worker. Leah is in 10th grade, Doug in 7th and Amy in 4th. Matt, at 2½, keeps everyone busy. Kathleen continues her social work job with the Florida DPW and teaches kindergarten in Sunday School.

Margery Hamilton Strotz, still enchanted with California, is enjoying life with two teenagers and Bobby, age 11, and their new addition—a swimming pool. She is making definite plans to attend the reunion.

Ritae Harbert Hutson reports that Timmy, 6, Brian, 4½, and Lisa, 2, are all proud of their new brother.

Jean Howard Labriola's husband Bob received his Doctor of Education degree and they have moved to State College where he is a professor at Pennsylvania State University. Jean Ann, 5, is in kindergarten and Rob, 4, in nursery school.

Barbara Illig Rabenkamp reports that she, too, enjoyed that alumnae luncheon in Cincinnati. She went with Jerry Kimball Wells who lives in Lexington, Kentucky.

Penny Jones Groh asked, "What reunion?" We're on the "Modified Plan" now and its our year in 1967.

Betty Langer Feathers and family spent an enjoyable vacation at Deer Valley "Y" Camp in August. The Feathers family moved into their new home in October. Betty also reported that her father died in June. Please accept our condolences, Betty.

Nancy Leinen Chelwick received a B.S. in elementary education in May, after 5 years of night classes, and is teaching first grade in Greenwich. Nancy, George and the boys enjoyed their sailing dinghy this summer and now are looking forward to the snow for skiing. They moved to their new home in June.

Joan MacMillan Newcomb says that they all like the mid-west very much, but were happy to spend three months on Lake Erie this summer and escape the heat of Kansas City, Missouri. Joan reports that she lost her mother last May. Our sympathy to you, Joan.

Dottie MacPhee Hunter reports that all is well with them in Miami. Cathy loves second grade and Beth at 4 wants to learn to read and do all her sister does. Dottie and Burke are busy as "advisors" for the Junior High Young Peoples Society at church, and Dottie is a "Pink Lady" volunteer at the hospital.

Gail McConner Mumma is keeping busy with Brownies and Junior Scouts while her husband is in Korea for 13 months. Sue, 10, Barbie, 8, and Bill, 7, provide company and excitement but they are all counting the days until August 1, 1967. They plan to spend Christmas in Fort Lauderdale this year with Gail's parents.

Lois Mars Mignogna reports that after going to Niagara Falls, Canada last summer ('65) they decided to stay close to home and "See Pennsylvania First" by touring Gettysburg and the Pennsylvania Dutch country this summer ('66). They also went camping with the Cowles family in Ohio and with them visited with Jeanne Wilkofskey Bloomstein and her family.

Evelyn Moffit Liebowitz is teaching second grade in North Willow Grove, having completed her master's degree at Temple University. Her girls are growing—Gayle in 6th grade and Ronda in 4th. Bern (her husband) is associate director of the Geriatrics Center of Philadelphia.

"Cookie" Raspaldo Hulme called me to say that her parents were visiting with them for a month and she forgot to send her card. Her husband Skip was promoted to vice president in charge of product planning for his company. Skippy, 12, is in 7th grade, Charlie, 10, in 5th, and Leslie, 5, in kindergarten.

Judith Riccardi Zeiller's two children are in Gulliver Academy—Dobbie in her second year—junior kindergarten, and Tee in nursery class. Her husband Warren did an L and M commercial—"Warren the Aquarist." He is the curator at the Seaquarium and has done other TV work for BBC in England and for Educational TV here.

Lennie Rothschild Klein reports that last winter she enjoyed playing Roxane in their little theatre production of Cyrano De Bergerac. Besides more acting this winter she plans to take a Red Cross Nurses Aid course. The Klein family is looking forward to a cruise to Nassau Easter week.

Betty Schweider DeBono reports that Little Bill is in kindergarten and Lorin in 4th grade. They spent a month at Sag Harbor this summer. Betty took a quick trip to Dubuque, Iowa before going back to teaching this fall.

Dobie Seale Warren's was the first reply I received, all the way from Hawaii. Dobie is deeply involved in the art world there in Hawaii. She took 2nd prize in a watercolor show and an honorable mention in another show. Late in July she flew to the mainland for a watercolor workshop near Carmel, California. In August, as a family, they flew to the Big Island of Hawaii where they camped for 8 days. The Hawaii Volcanoes National Park was especially interesting. Now the children are back in school!—Anne, 10th grade, Janet, 7th and Bruce, 4th.

Andrea Smith Cox reports from Bermuda. She and Michel have four children—3 boys and 1 girl—and the same address. This year Anthea is busy as president of Bermuda Junior Service League.

Jane Steele Edmundson had a nice vacation in Stone Harbor this summer.

Ann Thompson Johnston reports that life is as usual—busy, hectic and fun with four kids to keep her busy. Kyle, 5, started to kindergarten so she has only one at home now.

Phoebe Thorne Birmingham has four children also, Carolyn, 13, David, 11½, Joan, 10 and Susan 4½. For their annual August vacation they took their company trailer and criss-crossed the state of Colorado seeing lovely views, climbing mountains, playing in the sand dunes and going to church in the very modern chapel at the Air Force Academy.

Jeanne Wilkofskey Bloomstein's Marcia is in 3rd grade and Marc Jeffrey in kindergarten. Eli had a mild coronary in May and is very slowly recuperating.

Barbara Billeter Whitlinger, Virginia Capone Palguta, Jane Harbison, Nancy Hughes Evans and Barbara Miller Gregg all sent "Hi, but no news" cards. Thanks, girls.

And now the Cowles crew news. We, like the Lindell family, have an added "daughter." We have a student practical nurse, Nancy Bechtol, living with us. She will be here until her course is finished in February. Ivan, 11½, spent most of the summer at Valley Forge Military Academy Summer Camp, and Stephanie, 5, is going to nursery-kindergarten. This summer we picked Ivan up at his camp and as a family went camping in Maryland, Delaware and Pennsylvania for a week. We've camped almost every weekend since Easter and are regretfully thinking of folding our Nimrod up for the winter.

Many thanks to all of you for answering my request for news and to those of you who sent money for our special 25th Anniversary Fund. If you haven't contributed as yet, it's never too late, or too little. Here's hoping I'll see YOU at the reunion on June 3.

Sally reporting:

Ane DeShazo Robertson and her family have returned to the United States after a tour of duty abroad for the State Department. The Robertson's return trip took them from Geneva to Amsterdam to London to New York, Maine, and across the country to Los Angeles and the Western National Parks. For the next three years, Ann's husband Tom will be stationed in Washington, D.C.

While traveling around the country Judy Beirman Linowes keeps in touch with our class. In New Orleans she saw Janet Fitzsimmons Carr and her husband Bob. While making a plane stop in Atlanta, Georgia, Judy called Barb Stephenson Bruner. According to Judy, Delores Dean is working on her Ph.D. in Erie, Pennsylvania. Our sympathy to Deanie on the recent death of her mother.

Ann Estey Barbour is teaching a group of exceptional children in Westmoreland County. Ann is now only three credits short of certification in special education. She has been going to school part time since graduation from Chatham.

The severing of India-Pakistan relations rearranged Tomi Jones Miller's life last year. Tomi and the children were evacuated from India after a week of bombing. They stayed in Bierut, Lebanon for 3 months and returned to Jack in India for Christmas. In February, 1966, the Miller's returned to the United States after a vacation stop in Madrid, Spain. Tomi and the children are at West Point while Jack is on a year's tour of duty in Viet Nam.

Mary Jean Hague Pross's husband Myron had a 13-week vacation this year so they bought a camper and went exploring the upper peninsula of Michigan.

By next year Barb Miller Foresti hopes to have a new address. Barb and Roy have to untangle a few problems with the county before they start building their house.

Kathy Costanzo Both is teaching for the Moon Union Schools. Making plans to be in Pittsburgh for the reunion is Ann Orner Davidson. Nancy Kelly Hilland sends regards to all. Martha McLaughlin Ellers wonders if we should have a dinner dance with the other classes joining ours for the reunion. The Vassamiller's are now a camping family, according to Edie Pennoyer Vassamillet.

This past year has been an exciting one for me. I remarried in February, Paul and I bought a new house in June, and we moved in August. I have enjoyed being class secretary these five years and I hope to see many of you at our reunion on June 3, 1967.

Pat reporting:

Sally Turle Warner was married June 18 and "inherited" two boys, ages 21 and 18. She and Ham saw N. J. Fast Flender, husband and baby boy at a party in New York in June.

Vange Seitanakais Beldecos writes that Nick has been promoted to general manager of Westinghouse's Bettis Atomic Power Laboratory.

Janie Smyser Naylor's husband is now wire chief in the Squirrel Hill Telephone Office just over the hill from Chatham. Our sympathy to Janie on the death of her mother last October.

Ginny Smalley Sweet and family have moved across town and now have a golf course for a back yard, and all, naturally, are playing golf. Ginny has seen Jo Cole Gourelly, Marilyn McCord Abercrombie and Fifi Rougraff around town.

Doris Warner Brown had lunch in the spring with Judie Bierman Linowes, Marilyn Morgan Henderson and Barbara Mills Foresti.

Nora Patterson White's Lyle is now a lieutenant colonel and is commanding a battalion in Korea for the next 13 months. The Whites moved to El Paso, Texas from Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas and Nora keeps busy with the three children and all the activities that go along with being a parent.

Joan Brechin Sonnenberg and Fred were planning a vacation in Bermuda at Thanksgiving.

Peggy Hallam Justice and family still love living on the ocean in Ft. Pierce, but look forward to seeing snow at Christmas when they come to Pittsburgh.

Barbara Stephenson Bruner writes of buying a second home in Santa Rosa Beach, Florida where they will spend a month in winter and long summer weekends with children Mindy and Will.

Carolyn Cunningham Halter has six children; the oldest, a high school sophomore, the youngest a third-grader. And she finds time to take ballet lessons with her three daughters and to sing with the Los Angeles Symphonic Chorus. The Chorus has performed at the Hollywood Bowl and on TV. Carolyn hopes to get back east next summer and would love to be there for a Chatham reunion.

Fifi Rougraff returned the end of September from three weeks in Europe. While there she spent a weekend with Carla Ausenda, '51, in Milan, catching up on ten year's news. Carla is married and has a four-year-old daughter.

Writing of marvelous summer vacations and plans for winters busy with varied organization activities and volunteer duties were Elly Patterson Blacker, Beverly Roush Johnston, Florence Schwartz DeWalt, Marilyn Wolfert Zimmerman, Jody Shelley Davis and Marilyn Toner Wiley.

It was great to hear from so many of you—as always—and please write next year! Barbara Bell Gribbon and Charlie spent a day with John and me in New York last February. They have two girls and live in New City, New York where Barb writes a column for the local newspaper.

In the world of politics, Isabelle Allias is now working for the Joint State Government Commission as a technical operations officer doing research for members of the Legislative. Isabelle spent a week in Atlanta, Georgia at the National BPW convention.

Mary Anderson Sheehan and her mother had a wonderful winter cruise to the West Indies. Mary, Ted and the children also vacationed for two weeks on Long Island, and spent two weekends with Barbara Maloy Titelman and family. Barbara reports they are finally going to get their new home under construction after many years of off-and-on planning.

Pat Bennett Nicholson is working with a Camp Fire Group and Sunday school classes, now that Heather and Mark are back at school and just Jamie is at home.

Life is busy with ordinary routines for Meg Berger Canon with four of their six children now in school. Bob is pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Shadyside, Ohio.

Bo Bolger Collett reports a quiet year with all going well. Bo ran into Della Williams (associate '54) at a party right across the street. She also saw Janie Core McCombs, her roommate our freshman year, after almost fourteen years. Janie and her family spent a delightful week skiing in Canada and also took their annual summer trek to Maine. Janie is teaching four-year-olds at West Hill School and daughter Heidi is in junior high.

Lois Bradley Fegley called me while in town on a stopover to a Women's Club convention in Chicago. Lois and Frank went to Mexico this fall for their vacation.

Joan Brown Thompson's good news was that Frank is now assistant personnel director at Carnegie Tech. Joan is working part-time at Tech and keeping busy at home with David and Lynn.

I was very happy to hear at long last from Jerry Corba Wilson. Would you believe that her twins are now ten and Gary is six? The family vacationed in Wisconsin. Reg is busy all the time with his practice at West Penn Hospital.

Sally Dietrich Bailey's new daughter Sheryl joins sisters Sally and Susan and brother John. The Bailey's have completed an addition to their 85-year-old home.

Nancy Erny Johnstin has joined the "heard-from group" again. Nancy and family vacationed on the Jersey Shore. The three boys are back at school and daughter Margery is in kindergarten.

At a Chatham alumnae meeting in Cleveland, Nancy Ford Bunzli saw Althea Hockensmith Lozick, Dee Ginert Farmer and my sister Lois Flyte ('51). Nancy's husband Fred travels constantly all over South America and Mexico while she keeps the domestic life rolling with Ann, 7, John, 4, and Jimmy, 21 months.

Marline Frost Ewing's best news this year was the promotion of Jim to vice president of Ketchum, Macleod and Grove. Marline is busy as vice president of PTA, a den mother, and singing in the church choir.

Elsie Gage Balano's card was written while in the hospital after the birth of her son, Richard. John and Carrie are staying with Elsie's brother on the Island.

Another future little leaguer has joined the household of Joan Hagler Saklad with the birth of Scott. Joan has been busy on a committee to change the elementary school hours to a single session.

From down Kentucky way, Laura Hammer Inglis reports that the family traveled through New England for their vacation and found Ruth to be a good traveler. The Army is keeping Bill busy at the hospital and he is preparing for his boards also.

Jean Hulse Souleret and family have settled into a new home in Connecticut since Bill was transferred to the home office in Hartford. Jean and Bill have become avid square dancers, western style. Jean had a wonderful reunion with Carolyn Hirschberg Gorman and husband.

Ann Hutchinson Winterling and her family spent a month on the sandy beaches and rugged coast of Maine.

Mary Alice Jackson Regan and the children went to New York to see the sights while Bob was there on business. They also went to Trunkerville again and son Keith is becoming quite the fisherman.

Jackie Legros Hall is busy with church work, is president of her circle group, a den mother, and a Children's Hospital volunteer. All this with four active boys and husband Fred, who was recuperating from an operation, and some modeling in her "spare time."

Marlyn Lenchner Applebaum and Jack returned to Israel for a month's vacation. They now have an electronics parts business over there. With all the children in school, Marlyn will use her free time working as president of her Synagogue Sisterhood.

Janet Loos Seibert and her girls were at Indiana, Pennsylvania for a month. Janet is still working at St. Francis Heart Hospital in open heart surgery and pediatrics.

Janet Miller Sumner has a family of girls, Valerie, 7, Mimsie, 3, and Lorrington, now 1 year old. The baby restricted their activities this summer but they did take a trip to San Antonio, returning through LBJ country.

Nancy Miller Howard has finally settled after five years. Dick is a urology surgeon at Gundersen Clinic in La Crosse, Wisconsin. Within ten minutes of their home they have swimming and boating in summer, hunting in fall and the ski slopes in winter. Nancy says her door is always open to classmates who travel their way.

Nan Norris is taking English and math courses at Pitt this fall.

Brazil and Venezuela were the vacation spots for Lois Potts Adelson and her husband. They also took the children to Maine for two weeks of "togetherness."

Charlotte Saul Davis has returned to Chatham this year as an instructor in the political science department. Good luck to you, Charlotte, from the class. Her daughters spent the summer at camp near Manitowish, Michigan and Charlotte and her son went camping in the Hiawatha National Forest, combining vacation and avocation with the girls.

Bobbie Senior Stewart and family had a Lebanese girl as a house guest for a week, a very enjoyable experience.

New England was well-traveled by classmates this year as Lois Sherry Schworm and her family also vacationed there. Lois has visits with her sister and family from Pittsburgh, and her mother from California.

Vicki Sneathen Petsinger and family traveled to New York City, through New England, to Cape Cod for three weeks, and back home by way of Niagara Falls.

Tush Starzynski Collier is busy meeting deadlines as a staff member of the "New York Eslator" (sort of a local New Yorker magazine).

Maryanne Taptich Barnes and Bill flew to Florida in February to attend a medical meeting and went over to Nassau for a few days. While in Florida, Maryanne saw Angie Ottino Stahl and her husband. Jay 7, went to camp at Pioneer Ranch for the first time, an experience for both child and parents.

Jo Ann Trevasik Evans' children, Deb, 11, Bob, 9, and Doug, 8, are sailors, swimmers and tennis players, a very athletic family. The whole family went to Vermont for a vacation.

Kathie Wragg Batson and her husband are experiencing the joys and trials of homeownership, since building their new home last fall.

Sophie Yanchewski Engles and family spent the entire summer at the Gypsy Trail in Carmel, New York where they enjoyed swimming, sailing, fishing, horseback riding, etc.

Shirley Hartman Heil, Jane Rowlett Stuart and Marion Orr Michel had no special news to report but did return their cards. I hope a few more of you will do this so we can keep in touch.

The Hopkins household has had a quiet year. We visited my sister who lives on a lake in Ohio, and had a vacation at Tides Inn, Virginia the end of September. Heidi is now two and has made me decide that it's the parents who need the vitamins, not the children.

Lots of new addresses again this year as our rather small class continues to spread across the country.

After leasing their home in California, Barbara Komlyn Ruano and family have returned to Pittsburgh to spend the year with parents so the Ruano daughters can experience a real winter, and so Barb and Bill can renew friendships and become reacquainted with the area.

Joanne Sterling has returned to Albuquerque from Denver after completing her work with the government project there. At present she is working at a Job Corps center while continuing her doctoral studies at the University of New Mexico.

Good news from the Berrys as Jinny Hadfield Berry reports that David has been promoted to Major. Also a change of pace with him teaching ROTC at a Missouri State College.

Busy year ahead for Chung Wha Lee Iyengar who reports a new address, plans to complete her Ph.D. in chemistry at Bryn Mawr, and has scheduled visits to her father-in-law in India and her mother in Korea.

From Florida comes word that Sally Weise Hall and family should be spending a pleasant winter there while John attends the University of Florida graduate school.

Dana Rose Sleppy is glad to be back to her washer and drier after spending the summer with the whole family at a Boy Scout camp where Bob was Camp Director. The children loved it but Mom really missed her modern conveniences.

After a wonderful year in Hawaii, Sunny Koehler Peterson is back in Connecticut where Dick is the executive officer on the nuclear sub, Tinosa. She is glad to be home but life in Hawaii was one long vacation. Their stay was saddened toward the end when Sunny's father suffered a severe stroke while visiting them. However, excellent care and time have aided Mr. Koehler and he is progressing well on the road to recovery.

The big news from Barbara Douglas Lissfelt is that she finally learned to drive. Now comes the family chauffeuring chores.

Joyce Kiesewetter is enjoying her after-kindergarten hours touring the countryside in her new convertible. She spent the summer working for Operation Headstart.

Patty White Payne and Nancy Hannon Gordon had their sons baptized at the same service on Easter Sunday. Patty's husband Bud has a full schedule this year with over four hundred students enrolled in his science classes, plus evenings devoted to Poverty Program teaching. Nancy goes back to teaching at the nursery school level this year.

Besides planning a trip to the Near East for the coming spring, Lois Katz Blawfeld's project for the year is a return to college weight. She visited with Daisy Marks Mendelsohn and family in August.

Liz Miller MacDonald is still in love with Seattle. She says it is good to be out of New York and working. Liz is in the acting company of the Repertory Theatre where Pirie is associate director.

Each year I expect a new address for Marilyn Smallwood Searle, but have none yet. She and Ed are building a home by the sweat of their brow. Last year she was a carpenter's apprentice. This year she is a painter and plumber's helper. The end must be in sight. Now this is a real do-it-yourself project.

Sonya Klein Vernau returns to part-time nursing after spending an all-summer vacation in California.

Mary Jo McKee Groppe is taking advantage of her middle USA location to travel. The Gropes visited Texas and Mexico at Christmas and Seattle and San Francisco in June. Carole Williams joined them in San Francisco for a reunion. Willy, incidentally, is the president-elect of the California Association of Cytotechnologists. Congratulations!

No vacation this year for Marilyn Miles Oliphant who stayed at home to care for her beautiful new mare. Marilyn had to brush up on her riding skills since she suffered a rather bad fall the first time she tried her.

Electra Petrolis Agras and family spent most of this summer, and hopefully many more to come, in their newly acquired summer home in Ocean City, New Jersey.

Jacy Kurtz Meyers and Karl visited with Elm Musson Brower and Roger in New York before the Meyers embarked on a Caribbean cruise in January. Jacy is president of the Parkway Chapter Women's American ORT this year. Meanwhile, Elm is as involved as always in a multitude of activities. One of the most recent projects is remodeling their recently purchased co-op apartment—taking wallpaper off by hand. She is president of the New York Alumnae Club.

Haven't heard from Carolyn Houghlin Joiner for a while. Happy to hear that all is well in Beaver Falls. After vacationing in the Smokies, Don began work on his master's in religious education at Pitt.

After working for nine years, Shirley Zierer Byers is finding life at home quite a change. Bill was ordained in June and is now a minister at All Saints Episcopal Church in downtown Worcester.

Buncie Douds Campbell and husband spent three weeks touring England, Holland, Germany, and Austria. Don, who teaches German, had a good opportunity to speak the language. Buncie says she didn't speak, which isn't the Buncie I remember.

In response to those who ask Mary Irwin, who has spent three years in D.C., if she has ever met any famous persons, she can now reply, "yes." The President, Lady Bird, Lynda, Dr. Billy Graham and son all sat behind her at a church service, after which Mary shook the President's hand. "He is a huge man," says Mary.

Pat Egry Curreri writes that they spent a delightful vacation on Cape Cod giving Bill a much needed rest after a month of doing open heart surgery.

Raising children, chickens, vegetables and entertaining lots of company kept Bette Topley Jack sufficiently occupied this summer.

Joan Wilkinson Zook is still in Costa Mesa and is employed as a social worker by Orange County.

Used to see Patsy Singer Talotta frequently at the East Hills Shopping Center when we lived in Pittsburgh, but she never responded for the Recorder. She finally came through this year. Her husband Louis is an interior designer. And, of course, she has a beautiful baby boy!

Suzanne Klopp Seyler got back into the nursing field this summer as a camp nurse for six weeks. All worked out well because the boys were able to accompany her.

Each year Barb Krantz gets a little fancier. Her new home has a game room with a built-in bar and a pool table. She spent a week in Puerto Rico, arriving in time to greet Hurricane Faith.

Linda Dupnak Wise and family (one boy and three girls) are settled in Connecticut. Her husband is flying with TWA now.

From Grace Nardulli Regutti comes the report of the purchase of a large older home in Shaker Heights. Carl received his MBA from Pitt in April and accepted a job with Diamond Alkali as a senior development specialist.

Back in the teaching field is Delight Reed Dann who is starting her second year in a cooperative nursery school. With her youngest in kindergarten, Meg Floyd Kaufman hopes to do some "subbing" this year.

Rose Fossee Weyhmann is busy with church work since her election to the Church Council in January. Rose was in Pittsburgh in November when she was a bridesmaid in her brother's wedding party.

Had an interesting note from Jean Gumpel de Wunderlich who remains active in social work in Guatemala. She represented her country at the Fourth Inter-American Conference on Malnutrition in Panama.

Judy Pitasky Markstein spent an exciting spring in New York City with her family. They accompanied Don who worked there for three months for his firm.

With two in school this year, Carol Crissy Hill has a busy schedule of Brownie troop meetings and civic and volunteer work. Recently she discovered that Tee Spearbas O'Connor '57, lives nearby.

Carol Stolley Hastie has been working since February for a community action project sponsored by the Pittsburgh Anti-Poverty Program.

Quite a few of the girls have no special news but send greetings. All are busy with the daily activities of their families and express a desire to see any classmates who venture into their parts of the country.

Greetings from the Pittsburgh area are extended by Barbara Evans Danver, Esther Rothman Greenwald, Janet Schmaltz Lee and Sue Scott Fenstermaker. Elsewhere we hear from Barb DeLaney Brown in Colorado Springs, Peggy Pattison Moore in Rye, New York, Martha Kavalosky Frew in Rockville, Maryland, Joanne Hammond McDonald in New York, Marilyn Waid Stille in Warren, Ohio, Pinkus Weinhold Moes in Lebanon, New Jersey, and Marge Marr Salmon in Port Chester, New York.

Glad I'm almost to the end. My legs are tired. No I haven't learned to write with my toes. Seems we country folk acquire an occasional field mouse. Cliff is out of town so I must face this crisis the best way I know how. And that is to avoid contact by keeping my feet off the floor.

Otherwise the Ellery's are pretty well. We spent a month this summer in Pittsburgh and Rehoboth Beach. We were gone just long enough for our lawn to burn out completely so we are spending a "pleasant" fall putting in a new one. We have also become racing enthusiasts and attended the "Indy 500"—the big event of the year in Indianapolis. Clifford is a big second-grader, Liz goes to nursery school, and Becky and Debbie stay at home to bug Mom.

Thanks for the mail! I thoroughly enjoy each card and letter. Until next year, continue to be happy and keep busy.

Marcia reporting:

Eight years after graduation from Chatham we find our classmates still adding to the population explosion but never too busy to actively participate in community affairs and pursue their personal interests.

For Libby Anthon Petrolas it was an exciting summer during which she acted in two summer stock productions at a local theatre. She and John are anticipating a wonderful winter vacation in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Ruth Cooper Klodell is pleased to report that Carl recently opened his own office in the practice of ophthalmology.

A well-earned ten-week tour of Europe was Nancy Galley's diversion this summer. Nancy received her Masters of Nursing Education degree from Pitt and is now employed as chairman of the Medical-Surgical Nursing Department at Allegheny General Hospital.

Baby Jera was a timely arrival for the Recorder. Patricia Gregory Barrett wrote her news from the hospital. Pat plans to continue teaching a course in child development at Kent State University.

Kay Harper Kerr visited "Noonie" Leet Stark and her family in Dunedin, Florida last winter.

Carol Jeffreys Heiser has made the adjustment from a working woman to the role of mother and homemaker—and loves it.

Teaching math and science part time is Martha Lasky Sanders, who also is enjoying her new son.

Enjoying rural life in Crown Point, Indiana is Carole Koko Ward, complete with a pony and a small "harvest." Tom has a new County Republican appointment and received a promotion at U. S. Steel.

Carole is active in A. A. U. W. and several other organizations, is still teaching and taking courses at night. She would love to hear from all Chathamites passing through her territory.

Phyllis Prinzo McShea and Gene have been busy fixing their home. They and Mary Anne Knuth Braithwaite with their children visited in Philadelphia this summer with Nancy Knuth Thoman and her family.

After a summer of camping and traveling, Myrna Samuels Blower, Don and Bradley have returned from Colorado to Michigan where they will both continue teaching.

Following a lovely vacation in Mexico, Barbara Sanford returned to a challenging and stimulating job for the Bureau of Employment Security of the Department of Labor in the office of Farm Labor Service. Her work takes her into California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii and involves evaluating, developing and implementing programs for the respective state departments of employment.

Since Susan Smith Anderson's activities are best described by her, the following is quoted from her letter. "At present I'm working with a group of American women here on a project with a small pueblo about two hours away from Barranquilla. The town has no vaccination program, no rabies control, no kinder much less pre-kinder for the children, a devastating population explosion, and the faint beginnings of an awareness of their problems but no way of knowing how to go about it. With typical "Gringo" efficiency we're starting with the birth-control which surprisingly enough a group of the women from the town asked us to help start. We've got the Doctor, the inter-uterine devices and the date set for explanation and insertion. If we don't run into ecclesiastical difficulties it may turn out to be the first town with a program of this kind in South America. I'm going as a 'living example,' but I'm really more interested in working with the children that are already there. . . ." Suzie and Don will be on home leave during December and January and will soon after be moving to Bogota.

Happily settled in their 130-year old country house, Denise Zadeik Chatfield and Hale are both continuing their teaching. Hale's second volume of poetry will be published this winter.

Many of our classmates had a good year, but nothing newsworthy to report. Carole Ashman Briggs, Benita Biggard Rapport, Peggy Burgette Newman and Joan Herman Coleman send their regards to all.

My own good news this year is overshadowed by the fact that my father passed away quite unexpectedly on August 31. After spending some time in Pittsburgh I returned to Endicott, New York where Sam and I have been living since February. Sam accepted a position with I.B.M. as a senior systems analyst and finds his new field challenging and "fun." We took full advantage of the many lakes near us and enjoyed swimming and sailing and exploring this part of New York State.

I missed hearing from some of you this year and hope you'll bring us up to date for the next issue of the Recorder.

Carol reporting:

It is difficult to believe an entire year has passed since last I heard from so many of you, and as always, there is interesting and welcome news to report. Moving is always an event frequently reported by our classmates and this year is no exception. After spending two weeks vacationing in Florida last winter, Anna Liadis Zervos and family started building their new home and hoped to be in by November. Meanwhile, Anna and Maria, age 3, are trying to adjust to the absence of Angelo who started school this fall. Having just recently built and moved into their new home, Barbara Weitsman Marks says that she would love to have company if anyone plans to be in the area. Bob will be on the teaching staff of Temple University Dental School and the staff of Albert Einstein Medical Center.

Claudette Smith Cooper and family gladly traded living half-packed for 5 months in a builder's old model home with struggling to grow grass in their big new house, having finally moved last spring. Blacksburg, Virginia is the new home of Carol Couley Ross' family since Bruce became the new Director of Alumni Affairs for Virginia Polytechnic Institute. While her three children are in school, Carol has been having fun exploring their new surroundings.

Joe's accepting a new position as a senior systems analyst with Air Products and Chemicals, Inc. resulted in the moving of Sally Johnston Woods and family to Allentown. The Woods family has always been an active one, and among other things, Joe and Sally have accepted the responsibility of serving as advisors for the Junior High School Westminster Fellowship program of their church beginning this fall. After two "marvelous" years in Europe, Carol Fraser Hall moved to Dallas where John is associated with a law firm. Just recently they purchased a two-story Georgian house which they are in the process of remodeling. In addition to being active in a number of civic and political organizations, Carol has "even managed to put her European French to use by substituting at a private girls' school." By tagging along with John on some business trips, she has visited Washington, D.C. and California and spent a winter vacation in Acapulco and Mexico City.

I am always so impressed and proud of the number of girls who are still continuing their education as well as keeping busy as career girls or homemakers. After a vacation in New York City, Barbara Asche has returned to complete the work on her M.S. degree. Mary Anne Knuth Braithwaite has enrolled again at Pitt and hopes to finish work on her master's in library science. She keeps in practice by helping the local Parent's Association with the school library. With both Robin and Steven in school this fall, Marilyn Steinman Roth is attending the Graduate School of Library and Information Science at Pitt working toward a master's degree.

Lorrie Edwards Troyer had the opportunity this summer to take Public Health Nursing courses at Duke in preparation for master's degree work in the fall. However, the draft changed their plans, but the Troyers are pleased with Bill's new assignment at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research in Washington as a Captain in the Army Medical Corps for 3 years. Sonia Kurtz Matlick applied for and received a fellowship to get a master's degree in special education for the mentally handicapped. She began this fall as a full time student at Michigan State University and will complete the requirements within a year. Upon graduation, she plans to teach or pursue research in methods of teaching the retarded. Sonia has a particular interest in this field since her older son, Scott, age 6½, was diagnosed as severely retarded when he was three. Last April, Scott was admitted to a home for the retarded and has adjusted well. Three-year-old Greg and family thoroughly enjoy Scott's four-day visits at home.

Like many of us, Sandy Whitmyre Young has settled down to a typical suburban routine. After a camping vacation in Florida, the Youngs are resuming their activities in church and community work. Sandy is serving as chairman of the weekday kindergarten in her area as well as being active in scouting activities, the church's Woman's Association, and PTA. Barbara Sickles Bernstein plans to continue her tutoring, bowling, and possibly take an oil painting class when she's not busy with Elizabeth and Rita Claire. Freddie Richards Harper's sport is golf and she has enjoyed playing frequently this summer.

Elaine Rockwood Staples writes, "It's been a sad and busy year since the last note from you. Dick passed away suddenly on Thanksgiving Day, November 25, 1965, the day Carrie was 16 months old." I would like to take this opportunity to extend the sincere sympathy of our class to Elaine upon the untimely death of her husband. They are still in West Virginia, but the trips to Orchard Park and Pittsburgh grow more frequent. Elaine and Carrie have seen Pat Curry Tryon and her family who are living in East Aurora, New York. Pat and John have three girls—Elizabeth, Adeline, and Katie.

Betty Lou McCoy Yermack is very busy just keeping up with her three boys. Larry is now project manager in charge of the tape recorder project for the OGO satellites at the RCA Space Center in Princeton. The Yermacks see Anna Belle Irwin Few and Bill and their son William Timothy pretty often. For the past year, Jo Rita Latella Reiter has been writing a column in the Boston Sunday Herald of classical record reviews with an occasional music book review. Jo Rita says that reviewing records fits in very conveniently with house and child care. Tom began his academic career in the first grade while Greg, 5, and Ed, 3, are looking forward to a pleasant but snowy winter at home.

Until next year, thank you for writing and so promptly responding to my requests for news.

Sue reporting:

This year saw Ginny Long Springen, Nancy Levendorf Recht, Norma Hunt Mahle, Bobbi Friedman London, Margie Marcus Krinzman and Berenice McGrew Fitzgerald all move into new abodes. Norma must have had the hardest move of all, though, because, while skiing on her honeymoon, she broke an ankle! All is back to normal now. Norma is working as a biochemist for Parke-Davis, while her husband is in the U.S. General Accounting Office in Detroit.

Faith Magdovitz Willis is an assistant professor of sociology at California State at Long Beach, awaiting the end of Tom's stint as a medical officer in the Navy. The Willis' took advantage of being on the West Coast to take a Hawaiian vacation. Both Sorel Berman and Joanne Kretz Weiss are excited with their experiences in teaching. Sorel spent the summer at an NDEA Institute for Advanced Study in English at UCLA, capping off the venture with some traveling, during which she bumped into Lois Klein Schochet whom she hadn't seen in years. This fall, Sorel will be teaching creative writing, advanced placement and a new humanities program in American lit and American history, and also participating in a Harvard Seminar in curriculum development as well as teaching Sunday School! Joanne taught summer school—a remedial program in math and reading financed by the Federal Government. She enjoyed her summer get-together with Lauranne Gay, Margie Roessler, Patty Evans Burns and Arleen Campbell Timmons.

Bev Carter Bush is enjoying her work in Juvenile Court in Pittsburgh and reports that Claire Tober, a former colleague, is now with the Board of Education.

Picture Ginny Long Springen in her new olde house, filled with 3 daughters plus small furry animals, including one from Gayle Thomas; Nancy Levendorf Recht and her two little ones moving into a new house as Orv was made a partner in a law firm in Fullerton; Nancy active in AAUW and the Law Wives of Orange County (volunteer work interviewing people for Legal Aid and Lawyer Reference); Bobbi Friedman London, Ralph (still on the computer sciences faculty at the University of Wisconsin) and Marla moving into their new home; Lucy Gray Gilligan not believing Lisa's already in first grade!

Nancy Cohen Stein reports that from her new home, she rubs elbows with David McCallum and George Chakiris.

Margie Marcus Krinzman and Ed—with 2 year-old Stephen—bought a home in Needham while Ed is preparing for his ophthalmological residency. From Philadelphia, Claire Judd Schweriner reports that she is corresponding secretary of the women's auxiliary of Delaware Valley College, and Judy Levine Weintraub reports the only addition to her family this year: a Scottish Terrier named Tibby. She and Herb visited Rome and stopped off in Tunisia to see her brother Steve, who is in the Peace Corps there. Moving to Carlisle, Pennsylvania are Sandy (DeBroff) and Ron Roth with Susan and Debbie.

Carol Koepke Brown reports two exciting events: the birth of their daughter Molly, and Keith's new job with the Council of Churches which is sponsoring a North Hills Youth Ministry pilot program in which he is essentially a missionary to unchurched teenagers.

Busy as recording secretary for the Rye League of Women Voters is Amy Marcus Kellman, who is also working part-time at the Westchester Library System Headquarters as well as tending house for her husband and two lovely daughters.

Berenice McGrew Fitzgerald reports that Jim, now armed with his Ph.D., is at the experimental station of DuPont. She is happily fixing up her new apartment. Mary Anne Koenig Pomputius, who is submerged in Chinese bronzes (Art History, Pitt), was glad to receive a visit from Dr. Olga Russell, who braved the 11 ft. sunflowers blocking the path to their front door to visit en route to a new position at the University of Maine. Bill is happily filling requests for reprints of an article he published in a pathology journal. Billy and Mary Alice are just fine.

Ann (Curry) and George Haux bought the old house they were living in in Skaneateles and Ann is busy with the two children.

Betty Goodridge Westgard's husband Jim is an assistant professor in the physics department at Indiana State University. They and their two-year-old son, Bill, moved into an enormous old house in Terre Haute.

Margaret Cooke Skidmore gave birth to Elizabeth Park in March and has taken the time to become involved as a Director of the Alumnae Association. She writes that it has been most rewarding and a great privilege and wishes more of the class could be involved with the workings of the Association. In Chicago as part of her job (she also went to Denver for a convention on housing), Andrea Lopen, who recently joined the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, didn't have time for much but business. She was interviewing key people in the current housing dispute. Andrea and I will be working together on a dinner for NCDH in April.

Arleen Boyda Porter reports a meeting of the clan: Carol Koepke Brown, Kathy O'Donnell Watson and Hannah Brush Van Horn ('61). The Porters took a trip to see her brother captain Harvard's football team last fall.

After a trimester in Washington with The Rand Corporation (with Tela on horseback!), Tela (Cohn) and Joe Zasloff returned to Pitt until their December departure for Vientiane, Laos, after which it was back to Rand, this time in Santa Monica . . . then back to Pitt. I caught them in Washington in June and had a delightful visit.

Laleb Bakhtiar Ardalan, with Mani and Iran in good hands, is working as head of the audio-visual section of the public relations department, National Iranian Oil Company. Nader is field architect for NIOC and has built theatres, country clubs and homes. The Ardalans helped uncover several ancient sites digging with Professor Ghirshman, head of the French Archeological Museum in Iran. Nel described a marvelous six-week vacation on an archeological, historical and architectural tour of Iran with a rest at the Caspian.

I moved last fall from working with Ethiopia to join a small firm handling public relations and fund raising for the Embassy of Viet Nam in Washington, the NAACP and the International Rescue Committee. It's keeping me out of trouble.

Kay reporting:

In her first letter to us since leaving Chatham, Marie-Paule Visentin Van de Wierle writes of her marriage in the north of France (a blessing was offered by her uncle, a priest who came from Verona), honeymoon (a short trip to the "Chateaux de la Loire"; then a longer one to Venice "of course"), and the home she and her husband, a central heating contractor, have at the foot of the Pyrenees. "Everything about Chatham is dear to me and I am glad to keep in touch through the Recorder. We have nothing like that in French universities and it is too bad indeed."

Anne Turner Arnold has retired from public school teaching and is giving private art lessons to children and adults at home. The Arnolds spent two weeks in Fort Lauderdale this spring, and Anne went to New England during Paul's Army Reserve summer camp.

Very matter-of-factly, Sally Swartz Baldus lists her "news" in dramatic progression. (1) Sally is program coordinator at the Pittsburgh Council for International Visitors. (2) In May, David was elected Democratic committeeman. (3) They've just returned from a marvelous month in Europe!

Donna Vignevic Painter is very pleased about Walt's promotion to Radar Engineering Group Leader for RCA. The new job, the children, and some boating and camping have added up to a busy season for them.

The McCulloughs (Nina Rhoades) have had a hectic year. Bob has been away for most of it working with new IBM computers, while Nina copes at home with the boys, Tracie Lynn, and life in general. She's working on that oh-so-stylish grey hair she's wished for since she was 16!

Acting as board member of the Irene Kaufman Center and chairman of its preschool committee, settling into a new home, writing publicity, organizing a television show—whew! Glenda Rich DeBroff certainly has plenty to do with that "freedom" she's gained since both children are in school.

Kathy O'Donnell Watson's first daughter started kindergarten this term, leaving "only" three more at home.

This summer Mary Peck Galloway and her family enjoyed several long peaceful weekends at their Canadian cottage. While Dick, captain in the Air National Guard, spent two weeks with Uncle Sam, Mary did some redecorating and got Ricky ready for nursery school.

While she was teaching high school history in Chicago and he was working on his Ph.D. in economics at the University of Chicago, Ruth Pincus Gujarati met her future husband. Now they've switched locale to Greenwich Village and reversed roles. He is teaching (Labor Economics at New York City College) while she works on her degree (a master's in American Civilization at N.Y.U.).

Only a few details stand between Joan Munroe and her Ph.D. "Biochemical Preps," orals, thesis research, write-up, and defense. It fairly staggers the housewife's imagination!

The day before her son was born, Debby Rothman Phillips received her master's in psychology. This fall she'll continue in the Ph.D. program while teaching French part-time. Bill is doing research in laser materials for RCA.

Pat Ross Stoycos and her newly enlarged family find Lancaster loaded with charm and extremely friendly. Al is still with Armstrong Cork Company.

The class extends deep sympathy to Carole Smith Petro on her father's death in June. Carole is busy with plans for the Buffalo Alumnae Group and intends to spend a half day each week as a volunteer at the Albright-Knox Art Gallery.

Joan Shultz Shively took a minute from her time-motion studies (she needs more of the former and less of the latter) to catch us up on her life since leaving Chatham. The centers of her activities are listed above, in the "Births" section. Jon hopes to finish his doctorate in metallurgy at Case Institute of Technology next June.

"Glad to be back in the U.S.A.!" writes Anne McChesney Smith Wright after the 3000-mile move from Vancouver, British Columbia. Gene received his Ph.D. this June (Vanderbilt—political science) and is teaching at the University of Georgia. Anne is teaching seventh-grade social studies. Their side trips have included the last two Easters in San Francisco and the summer of 1965 in Ann Arbor, where Gene attended a colloquium and Anne studied German.

Marilyn Mercur's operatic career is building up steam. This summer she made her professional debut as Frasquita in Carmen and Elvira in Italian Girl in Algiers with the Central City, Colorado, Opera Association's five-week, nationally-known festival. She sang a concert version of Italian Girl in a Central Park performance conducted by Emerson Buckley.

A roomy house with roses, pears and grapes in the yard and a brand new kitchen. That's Laddie Lochner Krutten's translation for Cloud 9. Sharing it with her and the rest of the family is baby Jeannette, who is exactly what the older girls ordered.

Ginny Lund Browne has resumed her "one great love"—ballet dancing, and plans earnest work on it this fall. She'll be a Republican member of the election board in Arizona, too.

In the "no real news, but . . ." category are: Judy Woodruff Laughlin and Ann Meyer Klein, who have new homes; Jill Putnam Huston, who has a new baby (Hanky, her oldest, is in first grade); Bette Nadel Balk, who also has a new baby, and who has discovered that one of her neighbors is Arleen Boyda Porter's sister-in-law; Dibbie Spurr Holloway, who took a 4000-mile trip with husband, baby, and dog in a two-seater car; Morissa Bernstein Lundy, who visited Pittsburgh this summer and Boston in October; Jane Sandford, our gadabout, who toured Hawaii, Nassau, and Miami Beach.

Just before the news deadline, Gayle Thomas Harris' wedding announcement arrived. That makes her kitten, son of Ginny Long Springen's Twinkle, community property.

The Elders returned to the grind from six sunny weeks in Ocean City, New Jersey. In our search for a new home, we met Pat Mabon Johnson's ('59) parents, who had lived right in the same suburb. The ill wind which blew your secretary into the same job for her entire high school class (700) did have the one benefit of renewing interests in old friends. One was Bernice Rosenberg Prinz, who was a Chatham freshman with us. She has twin boys born in 1963, and her husband Bill is an administrative specialist with IBM. Their address: 1840 London Road, Abington, Pennsylvania 19001.

Many thanks for all your replies! Please, many more next year.

Ginger reporting:

I wish you all could read the letter I received from Terri Abrams Zionts. Aside from managing a household staff of nine, not to mention Stan and the two boys, Terri finds time to teach 50 pupils (grades 1-8) at the American International School, also English to non-English speakers two nights a week and then attend Hindu classes two nights a week. With this busy schedule Terri and Stan have traveled through much of India. They are thoroughly enjoying India and plan to travel through Israel and Europe on the way home in April.

Raising a family is the full time job of Wendy Barton Christner. With Richard in school, Wendy has 3-year-old David and the year-old-twins to watch over at home.

While Walt is doing graduate work at the University of Massachusetts, Carol Baumann Knox is working as a research assistant on RNA synthesis in Ascaris eggs.

After a year in Brazil, Nancy Bennett Thieme and her husband Al expect to return to the states in November. Al has, for the past year, served as a consultant on a transportation survey for the World Bank. Nanci has been teaching silkscreening (in Portuguese) and is now busy writing, for a women's club, a report on social welfare work in one of the Brazilian states.

Dr. Joan C. Biordi, the recipient of a NATO post-doctoral fellowship is now engaged in research at Cambridge University. Joan received her Ph.D. from Carnegie Tech this year. Congratulations!

Home decorating and a very active year-and-a-half-old son have temporarily retired Carol Black Radack from teaching. Dave is with IBM as a computer analyst. Carol often sees Penny Ulman Schwartz who lives in nearby Baltimore.

Margie Brown is now on the last lap of her medical studies, expecting to receive her M.D. in June 1967. At the moment plans for an internship are still incomplete.

Faith Buchner has been kept busy visiting Chatham classmates in Pittsburgh and serving as treasurer of a Neighborhood Association.

Carol Jo Bullen is now a part of "show biz," having joined the cast of Sing-Out '66 for the summer months. She has stayed on and is teaching junior and senior English in the Sing-Out High School. Carol wrote that she is impressed with the effectiveness of this group and inspired with the spirit that seems to be spreading around—sing-outs are being formed everywhere.

"At last I have exciting news to report! . . ." writes Barb Bunker. She will be married on November 19th to Brian Faughnan, a research physicist with R.C.A., and also has officially received her M.Ed. Congratulations and best wishes.

Never a dull moment would explain exactly the year Jane Chittenden Hopkins has had teaching emotionally disturbed children. Chitty has been living in Houston for the past year while Harry engages in post-doctoral work.

After several years in retailing, Betsy Cording returned to school for her teacher's certificate and is now teaching sixth grade. Betsy and her roommate are also owners of a two-bedroom house in suburban Atlanta.

Sally Clarke Veil is keeping busy with two children and entertaining Chathamites Faith Buchner, Alice Carson Scott and Judy Schenk Eley in August. Fred recently changed jobs and is now with Koppers Co., Inc. in the labor relations department.

Dottie Christman Lilja has completed her M.A. in political science and was employed by a research firm in St. Paul. She and John recently moved to Chicago and Dottie is looking forward to renewing Chatham acquaintances in the area.

I don't yet know how I got this job but confess I've enjoyed it, at least receiving the mail. Since the last Recorder I've moved within the GSPIA organization from registrar to admissions officer. In June I sublet my apartment (furniture and all), spent a month in Europe, running into Miss Freeman in Rome, and returned to Pittsburgh to babysit a Golden Retriever and an 11-room house. Now I am settled in a new apartment. Thanks to all of you who replied—hope to hear from everyone next time.

Barbara reporting:

Being an alumnae reporter here in Pittsburgh has its advantages since there is a group of us who see each other regularly. Vicki Hartung has completed her master's in Library Science at Pitt and works in the cataloging department at Duquesne University Library. She has become an expert babysitter for Claire Zavarich Thorp's son, Charles Monroe, IV, and for her nephew, Toni Hartung Albitz's son Steven. In addition to being a new mother, Claire continues work on her master's in fine arts at Pitt. Vicki has spent some time with Linda Clinton Easton and her family in Buffalo, staying with her two older children, Debbie 4½, and 15-month-old Ann, her god-daughter, while Linda was in the hospital having her third daughter, Martha. Linda's husband Charles is with General Motors Corporation in Buffalo. This summer Vicki heard from Jane Chittenden Hopkins who is living in Houston where Harry is doing post-doctoral work in chemistry at Rice. Also, the "grape-vine" has reported that Lee Baratelli should be home soon after spending a year traveling through Europe, Africa and Egypt.

Ruth Ghering Biro is also a part of the Pittsburgh Chatham group. She works with Vicki at the Duquesne University Library where she is in charge of the African Collection, and is participating in the Regional Council for International Education at Indiana, Pennsylvania, working on South American education. Ruth and husband Bill, who is working in German at Pitt, traveled for six weeks in a dozen European countries this summer. The highlight was a stay in Hungary with Bill's family, his first visit since he left there in 1957. Ruthie was particularly interested in seeing life behind the "Iron Curtain" where, she reports, the food was delicious but prices very high. Budapest is a beautiful city, but it lacks a large tourist trade and there is little money to spend for the upkeep of its historic landmarks. The Biros have bought some land near Seven Springs and plan to build there in the future.

Marcia Hammond Deem and Connie Merlino Tamburo met at the community pool this summer. With two lively children, Bobby 5, and Molly 3, Marcia has found time to take a course in creative dramatics and to work on props for the Pittsburgh Opera Association, and she and Dick have joined the Pittsburgh Oratorio Society.

This was a hectic summer for Judy Halko Sphon. While Dick was in a six-week training program prior to a transfer to Canton, New York, Judy lived with relatives and her second daughter was born. They are now settled in their new home in Canton.

Julie Helgesen Keilubn always was our class contest winner, and, true to form, she won a Tempest convertible in a safe-driving contest in July. Jack is now assistant manager of the Detroit office and they are living in Royal Oak, Michigan. Julie is painting, designing and making rugs, and working part time in an insurance office.

From Harriet Gray comes the sad news of her mother's death in October, and I know that we all send our sympathy to Harriet and her father. She is working for her Ph.D. in zoology at Ohio State and keeping house with her father. This summer they went to their summer home in Maine and spent some time at Monhegan Island.

Katie Kerrigan Miller is teaching biology and working on her master's in biology at Indiana. This summer Katie sang at Fran Dunlop's sister's wedding, and Fran designed and made the wedding gown and veil. Fran has been teaching in Washington County for three years, but returned this fall to school at Penn State where she will be getting her master's in social studies.

Liza Elers McCraren and her husband saw Buck and Marty Haase Carson and their three boys on the Carson's way back to New Jersey to live. The McCraren's expect to move to Columbia, Missouri in the near future. Billy Carson has started to school and Marty is singing with the North Jersey Oratorio Society.

Bonnie Glass Perlman is living in Trenton, New Jersey and leading a busy life as housewife and mother of two-year-old Jeffrey. This summer she heard from Brenda Siegel who was on a vacation in Spain and Portugal, and from Sue Berg who is enjoying her work in the Head Start Program in San Francisco.

I am teaching instrumental music in the Pittsburgh Public Schools and working on my master's in musicology at Pitt. I still sing at Calvary Church and am a member of the Pittsburgh Oratorio Society.

Lila reporting:

Elaine Kessler Ruben and Phil are fighting the freeways and smog in Los Angeles but apparently love it because they consider themselves "semi-permanent" residents. They returned to Pittsburgh for two weeks this summer and make frequent trips south of the border. Phil did a year of advanced study in dentistry at U.S.C., and Casey will start on her master's soon while continuing to teach.

Kathy Kipp McKelvey's thesis "On Coherent Sets of Characters of Finite Groups" won her a Ph.D. in mathematics from Carnegie Tech in June. She and Don are assistant professors at Cornell College in Iowa.

Rhoda Kramer Yanus has forsaken 150 children for one and loves being a full-time mother and housewife. She has spent some time with Carol Black Radach and Penny Ulman Schwartz and their families.

Julia Loubris Hanson's husband John is now working toward his Ph.D. in mechanical engineering at University of Pennsylvania and she has been fortunate enough to be transferred from the Allegheny County to the Philadelphia Board of Assistance.

Sally McGuigan Dauer finds New York more exciting every day. No longer a working woman, she is enjoying her leisure time tremendously. Sally and Molly Fletcher Abt spent a pleasant evening together in New York.

Connie Merlino Tamburo reports that she misses the fun of the mail she received as class secretary. Vince was elected State Committeeman (R) from their district, and is busy with his work in the District Attorney's office, his private law practice downtown, and his evening office recently opened in Sharpsburg.

Heather Muir Meacham is head of all women's residence halls (3800 women) at Oklahoma State University in her capacity as assistant director of housing for women. John has three more years to go on his Ph.D. in psychology.

Cleveland has attracted Irving and Nancy Landy Oleinick. He is director of the Reading Improvement Center and Nancy is a post-doctoral fellow in the department of biochemistry, Western Reserve University School of Medicine. Nancy received her Ph.D. in biochemistry from Pitt in June.

Kathleen Otto McDowell has graduated from first grade to tutoring and is "attempting" a course in oil painting. She and her husband continue to enjoy life in New England.

Chatham's interests in the Chicago area are being enthusiastically looked after by Mary Loughran Fell as president of the Chicago Alumnae Club. She reports that everybody's favorite professor, Dr. Borsody, spoke at the club's annual husband-wife dinner on November 5. Mary and Joe enjoyed a camping trip through the Shenandoah Valley in October.

Your new class secretary has begun her fifth year of teaching. Life as a wife and teacher is more fulfilling than I ever imagined it could be. I do abound with alumnae news. Renee Georgian Boulis and Susan Berg both live within five minutes of our apartment. Renee is the mother of a truly beautiful baby boy, and Susan is working diligently for the Office of Economic Opportunity, making frequent trips to Oregon. Bob and I spent a delightful evening with Judy Malmquist Banz and her charming husband when they honeymooned in San Francisco. Last year at Christmas time, Dr. Borsody attended an American Historical Society conference in San Francisco. Anna Crone Nagy, Renee Georgian Boulis, Karan Kvam, Carol Hartman and I had the pleasure of joining him for lunch. He met us with open arms—which, incidentally, were filled with dozens of red roses—and we all had a marvelous visit with him. We gave him a grand tour of the immediate Bay area. His delight with San Francisco was matched only by our own as we treasured our day with him.

To reporting:

Amy Parker Doty joined the diaper-changing circuit with the arrival of Alicia last spring. The Dotys have purchased a home and 1¼ acres in the country so they now have room for visitors.

Two classmates studying on other campuses are Beth Platz and Barbara Rogers. Beth is finishing her first year of post-graduate work at the University of Maryland, and Barbara will complete requirements for her M.S. at Simmons School of Library Science in January 1967.

Betsy Potter Oller sailed in the Flying Dutchman National Championships in Chicago this summer. She and Tom now have two boats to maintain and sail.

Linda Rutenberg Ackerman reports that Marshall is engrossed in his orthopedic surgery residency at the State University of Iowa. Linda's days are filled with Lisa, Jimmy and numerous domestic projects now that the Ackermans have purchased their first home.

After moving seven times within two months, Jane Saunders Pauline, Gary and Beth are finally settled in Dayton.

Judy Schenk Eley notes that John got his feet wet this summer teaching "Basic American Government." He has one more year of course work for his Ph.D. Judy is still working at the National Academy of Sciences.

Ellen Schreiber McBride and her husband Richard left for Europe in May 1966 where they expect to remain for a year of driving, sightseeing and camping.

Gail Siegrist Naftel and daughter Sara Lynn spent a busy summer visiting in Alabama and Philadelphia. An excursion to Nantucket was on their agenda for the fall. Gail reports that Joan Schafer Tatum has a son born on June 30th.

Nancy Stein Elman is writing her doctoral thesis in the field of counselor education. Between sentences, her mind wanders to remodeling the large home she and Marvin have purchased.

Volunteer work at a local hospital fills Mildred Stewart's leisure moments. She is a legal secretary at Pittsburgh National Bank. Mildred writes that Joan Thomas Maxwell and Rip are now living in Hartford, Connecticut. They have a small son.

Penny Ulman Schwartz has returned to student status after two years of teaching Spanish at an all-boys high school. Penny plans to obtain her M.A. in Spanish. Mike inoculated Penny with the "ski bug" and they spent a ski weekend in Vermont with Carol Black Radack and her husband Dave.

Motherhood has recently rearranged Zoe Warwick Sherman's life with the arrival of Chris. Peter is now a consultant for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Two busy homemakers are Sara Westlake Delmar and Gretchen Wright Gantzer. Sara keeps active with gardening, painting and redecorating. The exciting news of the twins' arrival came just minutes before Recorder press time. Gretchen's latest delight is her new home on a two-acre lot, a perfect playground for children Amy and Fritz. Jack finished graduate school and is a market analyst for Crucible Steel. Gretchen is "still writing and still not selling."

There is news from some of our associate class members, also. Ruth Goldberg Checker, after two years of primary teaching, has retired to motherhood with her one-year-old son, Alison.

Carole Sprinchorn is working in the Government Documents Division of the Denver Public Library and doing community theater work on the side. In October Carole left for a vacation in Budapest, Vienna and Germany.

Pat Sinn Bloomgarden had been avidly designing a yarn crewell embroidery kit which she hoped to sell to a large chain store, but redecorating the ranch house she and Barry bought has taken precedence over enterprise! The Bloomgardens have a 4½-year-old son, Jimmy.

Sherwood Troutman Freeman and Bill have three little girls. Between babies, Sherwood was graduated from Pitt and has accumulated a few credits toward her master's degree. Bill is a systems engineer for Mine Safety Appliances Company. Sherwood sees Joyce Helsing Marlowe when she comes north to visit.

This reporter is busy correspondng with other classmates:—Pat Sinn Bloomgarden and Terri Abrams Zions, and Sue Vernon Leinwand, who is embarking on a two-year stint in San Juan, Puerto Rico with Marty and their two daughters. Marty is with IBM. We travel vicariously by entertaining foreign visitors, and our 1½-year-old Debbie keeps us entertained and active.

Nancy reporting:

Marian Friedman Siegel writes that she is now teaching French in a junior high school in Hingham, Massachusetts, and that she spent the summer taking two graduate courses at Boston College.

Margie Frye Wilcox, now a children's librarian (trainee) at the Free Library of Philadelphia is working part-time toward her master's in Library Science while her husband Chub is attending the University of Pennsylvania Law School.

Margaret Fulwiler Jernstedt is busy with her new arrival Greta Ann while husband Chris finishes his doctoral thesis at Johns Hopkins.

Karin Gemassmer, after a wonderful year in Paris where she received a Certificate d'Etudes Politiques, is continuing her studies of economics and political science at the University of Cologne, writing a thesis for her diploma on DeGaulle's Eastern European politics. (Tutorial memories, anyone?)

Another of our classmates abroad, Judith Germaux describes her Peace Corps experience in Thailand as thoroughly enjoyable. She will be returning home to a June wedding and then to settle near Wake Forest, North Carolina, where Bob will be attending the seminary.

Julie Givner Reppenhagen, still teaching seventh and eighth grade science, now has a new house which she and Charles are busy "painting and repairing."

Claudia Grogan, working as assistant director of admissions at Pitt, sends greetings. So does Sue Haskell Clokey who is now a guidance counselor for the elementary schools in Waynesboro, Pennsylvania. Greetings and news of new arrival David Erik also come from Ruth Ibbotson Connell. Toni Hartung Albitz and husband Fred, a free lance writer and producer of radio and television commercials, are busy with their new son Steven Andrew.

Millie Grossman Zacher and husband Jules have entered the Peace Corps for training for work in Kenya, Africa, where she will be teaching biology and Julie will be teaching history. Sounds like a wonderful experience!

Gwenn Gurnack wrote a marvelous letter. She is still working for an advertising agency in New York. She writes that she is "progressing rapidly" on the guitar, has written words and music to original songs "three of which have been copyrighted and two of which are on the way to being published," and she is hopeful for a promotion to cub copywriter! She says she has been "writing ads like crazy."

Jane Hantman Perrin, now a proud doctor's wife, is teaching reading at Westinghouse Junior High while Ron is interning at Montefiore Hospital.

Wendy Haskell, who spent the summer working with retarded children, is again at the University of Connecticut continuing her graduate studies in social work. This year's schedule combines field work at the Connecticut Valley Hospital with classes on campus in psychiatric social work.

Sue Johnson is still "plugging away" at Red Bank High teaching U.S. History, which she combines with being senior class advisor. Sue took a trip to the Southwest this summer and on the way back got a tour of New Orleans from Mary MacConnell Ferry and husband Bill. Mary started a new job this fall as a teacher of freshman English in New Orleans.

Judi Krasner Barbarosh writes that she and George spent part of their summer traveling through Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Judi is again teaching the mentally retarded in the Army Dependent School at Stuttgart while George continues his work at the Psychiatric Clinic. He plans to go into a doctoral program after they leave Army life.

Karen Elliott is living in the Village and working for a publishing company. She sends news of two other classmates, Betsy Strong Bunting now living in California and Sally Foote Hubby, who now has a daughter, Elizabeth Adams, born last June.

Marty Fay Africa is working at the University of California, Berkeley, as a radioisotope technician while her husband Bruce is a graduate student in biochemistry. She has started on her final B.A. credits and plans graduate school in English or communications. Marty writes, "I'd wager that I get to see more Chatham people as a resident of the West Coast than anyone on the East Coast."

Beth Fellow Klemm sent news of an exciting year. She and Skip moved into their new house just in time for baby Ted's arrival on New Year's Day. Skip also has received a promotion.

Another of our associate alumnae, Justine Ladish Carbonell, sends greetings from Lancaster where husband Delfin is a professor at Franklin and Marshall.

Larry and I are both back at school again, he as a graduate student and I as a teacher in Fairfield. I spent the summer at an N.D.E.A. Institute for French Teachers in Fairfield. The summer was both interesting and enjoyable, if somewhat exhausting. We have moved to a new apartment in Stamford and are glad of the change to "city" life. Thanks to all of you for the great response to the questionnaires. If you are in Stamford, we always have room for a guest.

Linda reporting: (Marty's news is included)

Our class seems to be constantly "on the go." It is hard to keep track of them as they travel from East to West, serve in the Peace Corps, and squeeze in glamorous vacations 'round the world. Back in the States after two years of service with the Peace Corps in Brazil is Tracy Quarry. Before leaving South America she spent nine weeks touring the continent. Future plans for Tracy will be just as adventuresome. She will work with the Jobs Corps in Washington, D.C. until January; then she is enrolled at The American Institute for Foreign Trade in Phoenix, Arizona. In between times, she will squeeze in a trip to Hawaii.

Another traveler is Suzanne Clewell who is teaching fourth grade this year in Bermuda at the Dependent School at Kindley Air Force Base. She would love to have any Chathamites give her a call if they get to the island this year. Suzanne has just purchased a motor bike and is interested in scuba diving. During the summer she attended graduate school at Lehigh University.

From "down under" Alice Ropes sends her greetings. She loves Australia and is teaching at a private girl's school in Melbourne. She says the kangaroos are even funnier to watch than imagined and she thoroughly enjoys the British way of life.

From Minneapolis, comes word from Mary Ann McCormick who welcomes us to come and visit. After receiving her M.S. in speech pathology and audiology from the University of Pittsburgh, she spent the summer working for Project Headstart in Pittsburgh. While in Pittsburgh she saw Tracy on her return to the States. Now she has started her new job as a speech pathologist at the Kenny Rehabilitation Institute. Another Northwesterner, Barbie Muller Siegal, writes that she and Fred are househunting in Milwaukee. Barbie is a secretary to the American Bowling Congress and her husband is a salesman of packaging products for Alcoa.

Ruth Anne Maier Bengtson's husband Bruce is organist and choir director at the Fox Chapel Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh.

Contemplating graduate school at the University of Chicago is Patricia Prycl Klabr where Dave is on the graduate faculty at the School of Business. Pat will do social work in Chicago's South Side until January.

After her August wedding, Angela Patrizio Smith spent two glorious weeks in San Francisco. "Towards the end," writes Angela, "we were practically able to drive the cable cars as we had spent so much time on them." While on the coast she saw Marty Fay Africa and talked to Roz Benaroya. Roz, she reports is married and living in Seattle. Back in Washington, D.C. life continues its hectic pace for the Smiths. Angela is still teaching sixth grade and going to American University at night. She hopes to finish her M.A. by summer. Wallie works in the computer department for General Electric and is teaching a computer course in the evening. He also finds time to take courses toward his doctorate.

Several classmates have returned to Pittsburgh. Happy to be back is Bonnie Podolsky Theiner who has returned after three years in Boston. Bonnie graduated from Boston University last January and is now teaching at Bnai Emunah Synagogue and attending graduate school at Pitt in the field of counselor education. Micha is teaching biochemistry at Carnegie Tech.

Nancy Pierson Tolley is back temporarily and is an economic researcher for the Regional Economic Development Institute, Inc. Nancy had a "garden wedding" at her parents' home in Connecticut and John's family came from England for the ceremony. John is an engineer for Westinghouse and the Tolleys plan to eventually make their home in England.

After two years in Philadelphia, Martha Richards Cummings is living in Oakland. She loves her new job in public relations at Mellon Bank. Bob received his M.D. degree from Hahnemann Medical School and is interning at Montefiore Hospital. The class extends sympathy to Marty on the recent death of her mother.

Marianne McGuire has a new job as the Director of Public Relations for the United Mental Health Services of Allegheny County. She feels Dr. Lackner's psych classes really come in handy in understanding some of the problems involved. Future plans for Marianne include a trip to England. She reports than Janet Saperstein Slikin had a truly beautiful wedding.

Eleanor Finger Stryker, Catherine Parrish Bauer, and Nancy Moore Orlando are busy with early morning formulas for their new sons. Ellie is at Fort Sill while Bill, just back from Vietnam, attends an Army School. Then they plan to go to Texas for a tour of duty. Candy is an active member of the Cleveland Alumnae Club and is enthusiastically serving as the alumnae representative for the Cleveland area. Nancy has moved to Boston where Richard is a publisher's representative for the McMillan Company.

It was a baby girl for Nancy Munson McCormick. Erin Elizabeth keeps Nancy busy and the McCormacks are house-hunting as they have outgrown their apartment with new baby plus dog. Nancy saw Marty Fay Africa and Julie Givner Reppenbagen this summer. She spent two weeks at Chatham (Cape Cod) and collected some old furniture which will keep her busy refinishing.

Dividing her time between substitute teaching in the Baltimore schools and teaching art to incurables is Nancy McBride French. Husband Don is the assistant minister at the Roland Park Presbyterian Church.

Still in the academic grind are Ann Miller and Geraldine Palkovitz. Ann is a teaching assistant at the University of Maryland and finishing her master's thesis. Gerry is working on her doctorate in guidance and counseling and is a graduate assistant at the University of Pittsburgh. Gerry feels quite at home there as Joanne Weiner Miller, Donna Kwall and Susan Cohn are studying under the same program with Nancy Stein Elman on the faculty.

Congratulations to Joan Bailey and Carole Dela Motte. Both received their master's degrees last spring. Joan has begun work on her Ph.D. in philosophy and will be an assistant instructor at Yale teaching existential philosophy to undergraduates. Carole is equally as busy. She is working on her Ph.D. in clinical psychology and has just begun a new program in rehabilitation psychology at Western Reserve University. This year she will be interning at Metropolitan General Hospital. Carole saw Dee Driscoll Smock and sent along her new address.

Many of us have combined graduate study with full-time work and will finish our degrees this year. Nancy Beal teaches fourth grade at the Friends Seminary in Manhattan while studying at the Bank Street College. Keeping up with her art, Nancy takes etching at Pratt and goes to Cooper Union. Another Chatham artist, Barbara Caplan, is finishing course work for her M.A. in fine arts and education at Columbia. She works in the University Library. Phyllis Fox Catz is teaching tenth and eleventh grade English and working towards her M.A. at Temple University.

Back from Paris is Beverly Fretz Nelson where husband Chuck studied under a French Government grant. The Nelsons are now located in the midwest where Chuck is an assistant professor of political science at the University of Missouri. Bev reports that three hours stand between her and her master's. She hopes to finish by January.

We are happy to hear that Suanne Pollock Singer has recuperated after her auto accident last spring. She has a new job as a lay reader for the Akron Public Schools grading English themes of "D" students. To qualify for the position, she went back to school for six weeks this summer. Eric is now an active two-year-old and Howard is a pediatric resident at Children's Hospital. They expect to remain in the Akron area for two more years.

Ellen Brown Derby is a busy mother of two little ones but still finds time to actively participate in the local chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi International Sorority. Glenn is a sales management trainee for Gliddon Paint Co.

At the University of Michigan we find two alumnae, Barbara Morris Stock and Grace Emley. Barbara is working toward her Ph.D. in psychology in the field of emotionally disturbed children. She worked this summer at the University's fresh air camp for delinquent and socially maladjusted teen-age boys. Lee enters his junior year in medical school. Grace is working in the pharmacology department of the medical school doing research on a medication study. She took a vacation to New Jersey and spent some time with Barb Caplan. While walking around campus Grace was surprised to meet Dr. Adelman! "If anyone is in the area," she says, "they are more than welcome to come and stay with me."

Kitty Barley Paiste's news is a new home "way out in the country." During a brief trip to Pittsburgh to attend her sister's graduation from nursing school, she saw Valerie and Lucille. Grace Wilson visited her often while she was at Harvard Summer School.

Graduating from Cornell, associate member Christine Burley has begun her nursing career at the Lying-In Hospital of New York. Her future plans include a two-months' jaunt westward to California.

Still in love with the West is newly-wed Karen Blomquist Struckman who continues to remain in Denver after a late spring wedding. Russ, an alumnus of Drexel, is a bridge design engineer for the Colorado Department of Highways.

Dottie Evans Fulton reports that Bob has changed jobs from the Office for the Blind to Family Service where his work consists primarily of family and marriage counseling. Both are active in the local Employ the Handicapped committee and are on the County Health and Welfare Council.

Carol Baker Wildemann is doing research for the Health and Welfare Association in Pittsburgh. She saw Bette Watson Merchant on her return from her Peace Corps assignment in Africa.

A newsy letter from Carol Daugherty Heierman has kept us abreast of her whereabouts since graduation. The summer of '64 she remained in Pittsburgh to teach at the Chatham Laboratory School of Music. Afterward, she won a scholarship to the marvelous Aspen School of Music in Colorado where she ran into our former classmate, Sarah Franklin. New York City claimed her the following year where she continued voice at Juilliard and worked part time at Lincoln Center's Philharmonic Hall. "Marriage and master's degrees seem to be compatible," says Carol. "John will have his M.B.A. soon and I will have a M.A. in music from Hunter." Meanwhile studies continue in voice at Juilliard and she is free-lancing in the New York area. Just for fun and relaxation the Heiermans topped off their summer semester with a "pseudo-camping" venture to California with tent and supplies stuffed into the back of a sports car. Much of the camping fell by the wayside and they retreated to motel life.

As for myself, (Linda Wason Bardonner) I am still teaching in Hampton Township and will finish my master's this winter. During the summer I was the director of the Oliver Kaufmann Pre-School in Squirrel Hill and have decided that I would rather teach than be an administrator. John is finishing dental school this year and is going in the Army before starting private practice.

Carolyn reporting:

Pittsburgh was the scene for two lovely alumnae weddings. Janet Saperstein Slifkin and her husband, who is a clinical microbiologist at Allegheny General Hospital, have settled in Shadyside. Janet is teaching again at Peabody High School and is working toward her master's degree in the art of teaching English at the University of Pittsburgh. Susan Uptegraff Endersbe was also a summer bride. She and her new husband, Robert, chose a lovely place for their wedding reception—Mellon Hall gardens. This fall Susan begins her second year of teaching at Plainfield High School, while Robert attends Rutgers University and works in the development laboratories of Federal Pacific Electric Company in Newark.

Congratulations to Toba Schwaber for receiving her master's degree at Columbia University! After a summer trip to California, where she stopped to visit some 1964 alumnae, Toba began work this fall as Baltimore City Hospitals' first psychiatric social worker, in which capacity she will work on a new, experimental acute psychiatric unit.

There certainly are lots of busy and ambitious people in our class. Barbara Silverman Freed is teaching first grade and taking some courses toward her permanent certification. Linda Simmons is putting her Arts course knowledge to good use in the publications department of the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. After a year in the Army, Sally TerBush Drescher and husband Don are living in Akron where both have returned to their old jobs; Don as a chemical engineer and Sally as a literature research chemist. Linda Weinberg Rosenzweig and her husband had an interesting trip to Maine and Nova Scotia in July. Mary Ann Wrigley Church and her husband have bought a new house and are busy fixing and getting settled. This past year Joanne Zweig Friedman worked as an administrative assistant for a sociology research project at Carnegie Tech. The basic area of study was that of the role of women, specifically college women. While she was working, she took night school courses at the University of Pittsburgh to qualify for the graduate school of psychology. This September she began graduate work with the aid of a graduate assistantship in testing.

Two of our Peace Corps Volunteers have returned this summer from Africa. Lolly Smith says she is "in the middle of some sort of transition from teaching in Africa to doing something constructive in the diaphanous web of the Great Society." After their return from Tanzania, Africa, Bette Watson Merchant and her husband Dave have gone to Syracuse, New York, where Bette will teach seventh and eighth grade social studies while Dave works on a graduate degree in political science and East Africa Studies.

It was nice to hear from some of our associate members this time. Karin Rumstedt Babb is living on a beautiful three-thousand-acre ranch on the outskirts of Los Angeles. She says that "they film many movies, television shows, and commercials on the ranch so there is always something going on." Sally Taylor Pleasants says she is just recuperating from their move to an old, new house. Suzanne Ward Flanigan is enjoying life taking care of her two little girls. She also keeps in close touch with two of her former roommates, Beth Fellows Klemm and Nancy Munson McCormack. Judy Wentworth is settling down to a job in the department of pathology at the University of Chicago after a summer tour of Europe. She said that she used Miss Freeman's four tours of Rome and found them extremely helpful.

As for your reporter, Carolyn Tamplin Ward, my days this fall are rather lonely since my husband Dave is at Officers Candidate School for the Coast Guard in Yorktown, Virginia until the end of January. I will be kept busy, I am sure, with my first-year group in a non-graded school in Mt. Lebanon. Hopefully in February Dave and I will be sent to guard the coast of some fascinating place like Hawaii or California.

Susan reporting:

Barbara Brenman will return to the states after spending the summer with her parents in Igmir, Turkey and settle down to civilized things!

Sally Brown Lincoln wants her friends to know that John has been transferred in case the news is not included in the class of '65. Chances are that they will be living in Manhattan for John is working for Harleco Reagents in New York City and they look forward to seeing many of their Dartmouth friends who are living in the city.

Linda Burkhouse is teaching in the Scholars Program at South Hills High School, Pittsburgh.

Kathy Birris also is teaching in the Pittsburgh area—algebra and plane geometry at Mt. Lebanon High School.

Anita Cadwallader Horowitz is enjoying being married and traveling.

Leslie Caplan Itskowitz, another happy married woman, is working on her master's at San Diego State and Alan is head medical officer on the U.S.S. Pickaway.

Diana Cole spent the summer in Siena, Italy studying voice and will continue her study this fall at the New England Conservatory.

Susan Cohn Brenner writes that in addition to getting married she has been playing golf diligently, but still has not broken 100.

Jane Coulter Burger will be combining marriage and education as she is working on her master's in educational research and psychology at Pitt.

Marty Coyne has had a busy summer. Besides working for Family and Children's Service in Pittsburgh, she was in Jean Wiest's wedding and is having a gay time living with Barb Wallace and Karen Goff.

Louise DeCarl spent the summer working as a legal secretary in the patent department of Borg-Warner Corp. in Chicago. She is still planning to enter law school this fall and was accepted at both Chicago and Washington, but in late July had still not decided which school she would enter. By now she should be settled somewhere and hope that she is happy with her decision.

Nancy Dechter is continuing her study in psychology at the University of Texas and planned to visit Dr. Hood and Mr. Woodward, ex-Chatham faculty in September.

Jerilyn Donahoe loves working for the Urban Redevelopment Authority of Pittsburgh.

Adair Douglas, has also been successful in acquiring a good teaching job. She is teaching 11th grade U.S. History and World Cultures at Scotch Plains High School, Scotch Plains, New Jersey.

I certainly enjoyed hearing from all who replied and thank you for sharing news about what you have been doing with the rest of us in the class. As for me, I am really enjoying team teaching and am fortunate to be working with a group of excellent teachers and challenging students. Though the last couple of weeks have been hectic with moving into the apartment and teaching chores, I am very happy with my new life in the Philadelphia area and can not wait until December 28th when it will be complete, for this is Jim's and my big day.

Bonnie reporting:

Again this year several graduates have settled in the Pittsburgh area. Since that big day in Alice Graham Weber's life, she's been busy with lesson plans for her twelfth-grade English class in the Upper St. Clair District, while husband Paul has been working as a methods analyst for Wheeling Steel Corporation. In August they visited Barb Crick and then attended Helen Schofield's wedding.

Also teaching English in the Pittsburgh area is Judy Howard. After spending a thoroughly delightful summer in Europe she's ready to settle down to the real world. Another new teacher is Karen Goff who is keeping up an apartment in Pittsburgh with Barb Wallace and Marty Coyne.

Bobbie Hewitt happily writes of her engagement to Jon Orloff, a nuclear physics doctoral student at University of Pittsburgh. She's now living with Ann Sparks, loves apartment life and her job as a claims representative with Liberty Mutual Insurance Company.

Marty Friday, like so many class members who flocked to Boston, enjoyed working in the psychology service of a V.A. hospital up there. Now she looks forward to attending the University of Pittsburgh to work on a master's in psychology.

Also continuing her education is Jarene Frances who started this summer to work on a master's in journalism at Syracuse University. She also works part time as a switchboard operator in a local hospital. This fall Irene Fraser is attending the University of Illinois in political science. She spent the summer working at the Regional Council for International Education in Pittsburgh. Raquel Halty, another ambitious one, writes that after taking three graduate courses at the University of Pittsurgh, she is continuing her studies of the Romance languages at Harvard Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Kathy Hopkins Macher writes that while her hubby Don is studying at the University of Pennsylvania Dental School she is usually teaching ninth-grade English and working toward a master's of education at Temple University.

Carole Early Cupps has been substitute teaching, getting her apartment in shape, and, in general, recovering from her wedding and honeymoon trip to Bermuda. Her husband Sam is an IBM salesman.

After a lovely wedding in New York City, Anne Greenhouse Klein and Steve enjoyed fixing up their apartment in Columbus. Now he's back in the grind at Ohio State Medical School while she's teaching government and economics to twelfth-graders.

Peace Corps volunteer Hannah Gilman is taking off for Korea to teach conversational English in a high school over there. She spent an exciting three months training in Hawaii and writes it is truly a paradise, but the language is murder!

Marnie Elder had a wonderful summer with her wedding on August 20th. Ray is an economic analyst for Standard Oil of New Jersey. Judy Fellows Ducheck is a programmer for the Highway Department of Virginia, while her husband Karl is an accountant.

Kathy Hoover Hill will be traveling with Scott this fall. Scott is finishing his master's degree in chemical engineering at MIT, and this last semester takes them first to Oak Ridge, Tennessee and then to Bound Brook, New Jersey. In February they'll be settling down, though they've no idea where as yet.

As for myself, Bonnie Markey, I spent a grand seven weeks touring Europe with Pickle Prouty. Now I look forward to doing medical social work at Mt. Sinai Hospital in Cleveland. A warm welcome is extended to all those who are passing through the Cleveland area.

Marjorie reporting:

Pat Kane has begun a two-year course of study in the Winterthur Program in Early American Culture, a cooperative program of the Henry Francis du Pont Winterthur Museum and the University of Delaware. She finds the museum an exciting and beautiful place, and writes that she is fast becoming a Wilmingtonite.

Lory King is attending graduate school at Johns Hopkins, studying contemporary English literature.

Ruthe Klein is on the Dean of Women's Staff at Penn State, as senior resident for Ewing and Cross Halls, and is working part-time toward a master's in education. Her area of study is student personnel administration in higher education.

Sandy Kretz writes that she spent the summer working as a maid at Yellowstone Park with Jackie Cain. She raved about the wonders of a summer out in the fresh air after that grueling senior year! This next year she will be working for her master's in political science at Rutgers.

Donna Kwall is attending graduate school at the University of Pittsburgh, studying counselor education at the NDEA Institute.

Penelope Langston Zollinger is attending the University of Pittsburgh's Graduate School of Library and Information Science, while husband Bill is in his fourth year of medical school there.

Vivian Lazur writes that she has received a National Science Foundation Fellowship with which she is pursuing her studies in the Natural Sciences at Carnegie Tech, working toward a master's.

Carol Beth Levin Hill is with her husband at Fort Rucker, Alabama, where he is with the Judge Advocate General's Staff of the U.S. Army. She has not accepted a teaching job so she will be free to go with Ed at temporary duty stations. Instead, she is learning to play bridge! I'm sure many of us envy her her free time.

Betsy McGregor has a job editing a weekly and monthly Bulletin at the Peace Corps Department of Career Information Service. She writes that she loves her job and Washington and has an old friend there, as Miss Tascketta is now the assistant director of that department.

Nancy McNabb writes that she is now employed as a research assistant at the McNeil Laboratories, Inc., in Fort Washington, Pennsylvania.

Rebecca Mark has been busy during the summer taking a graduate course, doing social work, traveling, and working with the highly controversial Maryland governor race.

Bonnie Marks is attending Graduate School at Columbia. Her area of study is graduate faculties in German.

Judy Parry has spent the summer at Brown University studying for her forthcoming career of teaching English in Tunisia for the Peace Corps. Her courses sound rather staggering—French, Arabic, teaching English as a foreign language, and background and culture of Tunisia. Study time was 14 hours a day, but she loved it and was very anxious to get going.

Deanna Hickox, an associate member of our class, will also be working in the Peace Corps. She graduated from Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon, and will teach high school math in Uganda. Her training will be at Columbia in New York.

As for me, Margie Morrison Hofer, I am working as typist and general helper for three special consultants and the assistant to the Director of the National Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institution. All those many hours spent in Art classes are finally proving worthwhile! The job is much fun, and I am learning a great deal. Bill is still stationed at the Army Exhibit Unit here in Alexandria, but is due for discharge in February—O happy day. It was fun to hear from everyone, and I hope it won't be another whole year before I hear again.

Sherrie reporting:

Associate class member Mary Bruce McCulloch Mitchell sounds busy teaching at the Victoria Modeling School in Bethel Park, Pennsylvania, and taking care of redheaded Clark, while Dave is an account assistant with the Ketchum, MacLeod, and Grove Advertising Agency.

Dan and Sally Payne have moved to Boulder, Colorado, and would love to see any Chathamites who might be in the area.

After her September wedding Nancy Persson Klock is teaching fifth grade at the Fairview Elementary School in the Fox Chapel school district. Nancy's husband Gary is a graduate student in G.S.I.A. at Carnegie.

Betsy Pincus Candler and her new husband are now living in Dallas, Texas, where Dan is a research engineer for the Mobil Oil Corporation.

Jeff Potter wrote from Hilo, Hawaii, that the Peace Corps Training Program is "like running off a pier at full speed . . . a dynamic, self-critical, idealistic, antibureaucratic bureaucracy." As of September 23, Jeff will be stationed in Thailand, where she will teach English and physical education.

Ann Quenin, after a summer abroad in Europe, Turkey and Greece, is a free-lance copywriter for Horne's advertising department and is sharing an apartment in Pittsburgh with Janie Lanigan.

Another Pittsburgh resident is Helen Read, who is doing medical research.

The teaching profession is, as usual, very popular with Chatham graduates. Madelon Rose is a sixth-grade teacher in Chicago, after spending the summer in East Troy, Wisconsin, as a counselor for Hull House, a settlement house camp.

Nancy Ross Delatash is teaching French and physical education at the Cynthis Warner School in Tacoma, Maryland, and George is an MA candidate in English at the University of Maryland.

Nancy Ruehl took some guidance and counseling courses during the summer at Catholic University in Washington and is now entertaining some lucky third-graders in Forestville, Maryland. Ruehl reports that she spent a swinging weekend in Hazelton, Pennsylvania, where she was in Susie Cohn Brenner's wedding, along with Sherrie Smith.

Nancy Russell Ross is studying at the Graduate School of Social Work at the University of Pittsburgh, and Richard is an educational specialist with the Pittsburgh Diocesan School Board. The Rosses are busy making plans to build a house they hope to have completed by next summer.

Living in San Francisco and, naturally, loving it, is Catherine St. Clair. Cathy is a stewardess with Pan American Airlines and finds her flights to Hawaii, Panama City, and Tokyo very exciting.

On the other side of the country, Andra Sandson is a staff assistant in Computer Operations for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in White Plains, New York.

Carol Sheldon, in Washington, D.C., is a staff member at the Washington Center for Metropolitan Studies, a non-profit research and educational organization funded by the Ford Foundation and the Meyer Foundation.

Lesley Smith plans to work in Montreal, Canada, where her fiance, Dr. James McGregor, is at McGill University.

Sandi Smith Mueller is also teaching at the high school in Palo Verde, Arizona, and living in Tucson, while Jim is a graduate student in anthropology-archaeology. They have found that Arizona is hotter and more humid than advertised.

I had a fantastic summer seeing every corner of the U.S.A. with Lois Welsh. When we weren't visiting friends, among them Clare Stebbins in Quincy, Illinois, Bibi Boles in Van Nuys, California, and Jackie Cain and Sandy Kretz in Wyoming, we pitched a tent and got as comfortable as possible sleeping on the ground. Aside from that 11,000 mile jaunt I squeezed in a couple of Chatham reunions—one at Carole Early Cupp's wedding, and later at Susie Cohn Brenner's wedding. I have, at last, settled down to a job with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company in Boston. Thanks for all the letters, group, please keep them coming.

Sage reporting:

Pat Mullen reports that she is hunting a job "with the ranks of the unemployed liberal arts English majors," and Carolyn Smyser Hammer expected to be looking for a job around the end of September. First she wanted time to recover from her trip to the Bahamas with her husband Paul in August.

Ann Sparks is working at Western Psych and is studying clinical psychology at Pitt.

Joanie Stahlbrodt is now teaching 5th grade in Penfield, New York and is also studying part time at the University of Rochester. She was maid of honor in Sage Tower Mumma's wedding in August. Sage and Mike honeymooned in Jamaica and are now back in Pittsburgh. Mike is continuing work on his Ph.D. in physics, and Sage is planning to take some courses in chemistry at Pitt during the second trimester.

Sue Taylor is enjoying a supervisor training program at Bell Telephone and is looking forward to continuing training at Fort Knox. She was in Pat Turcotte Olsen's and Suzzy Callas Frances's weddings over the summer.

Judy Stone says that she is now a full fledged Vista volunteer and is working in the small Spanish-American community of Santa Rita. She is working in community development, and has started a newspaper for the community and a small scale tutoring program. Her fiance, Reyes, is a doctoral candidate in sociology at the University of Colorado.

"Goodman" Trader is studying microbiology and has a teaching assistantship.

Betsy Van der Voort spent the summer apprenticing and acting at the Totem Pole Playhouse. She is now teaching French at Sewickley Area High School in Westmoreland County.

Barb Wallace is working for the Catholic Social Service of Allegheny County and is based in Pittsburgh.

Sue Ward Swartz, whose husband Howard is in Law School at the University of Toronto, is working in merchandizing at a large department store in Toronto and teaching piano in her spare time.

Naomi Waterston reports that she is in Graduate School at Tufts University and is studying child development in the Eloise Pearson Department of Child Study.

Patty Williamson, who is in a joint MA program in religion at Garrett and Northwestern, worked this summer in New York City at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. She saw Binky Wu a few times. Binky is now making perfume and contemplating going to medical school.

Linda Whitmyre is presently working for A.T. and T. as a computer programmer. This summer she worked for the International Voluntary Service in Germany and Austria.

● A gift of approximately $20,000 has come to Chatham College through the bequest of Mr. Norman L. Shaw of Pittsburgh. His wife, who died in 1961, was Grace Gill Shaw, associate member of the Class of 1910. The legacy, which is unrestricted as to its use by the College, has been added to the general endowment by action of the Board of Trustees.

● The first project of the newly organized Junior '60 Alumnae Club was the sponsorship of a benefit showing of A Man for All Seasons on April 16 at The Kings Court Theater. Students, faculty, administration, and Pittsburgh area alumnae were invited to participate. The proceeds have been designated for scholarship aid to a foreign student at Chatham for the 1967-68 academic year.

● Programmed Instruction was the subject for discussion at the Fifth Annual Alumnae Seminar for Educators held on campus on April 26, 1967. Following dinner in Mellon Hall, the group of alumnae who are teachers in Pittsburgh area schools moved to the Earl K. Wallace Lecture Hall to hear Dr. Jerry G. Short, Program Director, Instructional Systems Study of the American Institutes for Research, discuss the advances in programmed instruction and their meaning for the classroom teacher.

● Miss Mary Helen Marks, Dean Emerita, was hospitalized for several months last fall. Her many alumnae friends will be glad to know that she has returned to her apartment at the Arlington, 515 South Aiken Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15232.

● The photography for the article on Buhl Science Hall was done by three members of the Chatham community. Mr. William J. Jungels, instructor in English, has shown some of his work in the Three Rivers Arts Festival and as part of a two-man show at Chatham last fall. Lee Macey, a member of the senior class, also has exhibited in the Three Rivers Festival. She has had work published in The Point, and in a booklet prepared by the Mayor's Committee on Human Relations. Mr. Benjamin B. Richards, college librarian, pursues photography as a hobby.

CRABS and LABS EGOS and EGGS

MARY ANDERSON SHEEHAN '54

In April 1966 the Louise C. Buhl Hall of Science was closed to undergo extensive renovations, and with that began one of the newest and most interesting chapters in Chatham history.

Former science majors and members of the class of 1929 who have contributed to the furnishing of the Rachel Carson Memorial Reading Room, and members of the classes of 1916, 1931 and 1941 who assigned their reunion gifts to the renovation project, are perhaps familiar with the story. For other alumnae, this may be their first introduction to the "new" science building.

My tour began with a visit to the new math-physics laboratory located on the left of the main entrance. Its gleaming chrome and green cabinets attract the eye, and invite the viewer to step in and examine the equipment. Under the chairmanship of Dr. William A. Beck, the math-physics department has developed and expanded greatly. Whether it's in demonstrating the shining air track that dominates one side of the lab (its arrival coincided nicely with the re-opening of the Science Hall last fall), or in describing his year of teaching at the Jesuit College in Bagdad while on leave in 1965-1966, enthusiasm is the keynote to Dr. Beck's approach.

At the present time the department averages three to five majors a year with the students deeply involved in independent projects. Undoubtedly, "the bright, attractive lab serves as an inducement to these students—a great contrast to the dingy, dark rooms used before," commented Dr. Beck. His students moved into the new quarters on November 1st, having been temporarily located in Mellon Hall library during the first six weeks of the semester.

Directly across the hall is the office of Dr. Joost H. Kiewiet de Jonge, lecturer in astronomy. This department was added in 1957, and judging from the number of upper-classmen taking the course, it has become a very popular part of the curriculum.

Dr. Kiewiet de Jonge, thoughtful and slow-spoken, makes a deep impression upon the listener. He favors "an 18th century drawing-room approach to science," and deplores the lack of mathematical intelligence on the part of most people today. His interests are varied—the Swiss method of education, politics, trips to Europe to visit members of his family.

During the weeks when construction work was being completed, Dr. Kiewiet de Jonge also conducted his labs in Mellon Hall. It is quite a change for him now to meet his class in the superbly equipped Earl K. Wallace Lecture Hall. For those who remember this dark room with its rows of old desks, rising tier on tier, the contrast is indeed great. Its attractive yellow desks, arranged so that all can see equally well, and its facilities for overhead projection make it a model lecture hall for the use of all departments.

Chemistry Lab

In the center of Buhl Hall, and extending throughout the three floors, are several environmentally-controlled rooms. The room on the first floor is the property of the biology department and contains both warm and cold chambers for experimental work. A tour with Dr. Norman D. Chmura, chairman of the department, was all too short.

The facilities for upperclass independent work are absolutely matchless. Work areas, including small labs and desk space, are provided for all tutorial students, making it possible for each student to keep all of her experimental materials together in one place. An aura of concentrated study pervades the department—indeed, the entire building—and certainly the work being produced by the science majors attests to this. We passed one senior surrounded by underclassmen as she was engrossed in lab work on her tutorial, Water Balance and Salt Regulation in the Land Crab. It was with a certain feeling of squeamishness that I accompanied Dr. Chmura into the environmentally-controlled room where another senior was working on Photo-Sensitivity in Cockroaches.

Most of the biology majors plan to continue with work at the graduate level; at the end of February one had been accepted at the University of California at Berkeley, another at the University of Oregon, and still another in the Graduate School of Public Health at the University of Pittsburgh. "They are excellent students," commented Dr. Chmura. "It is no exaggeration to say that at least half of their work is original research."

The equipment of the biology department will be further enhanced this summer with the construction of a greenhouse adjacent to the west end of the building and easily accessible to both the Wallace Lecture Hall and the laboratories.

In the environmentally-controlled area on the basement level is the animal room shared by the biology and psychology departments. Here, again, are individual work areas for uninterrupted work on tutorials.

The psychology department is under the chairmanship of Dr. James C. Diggory who left the University of Pennsylvania after twenty-four years to come to Chatham last fall. Dr. Diggory's plans for the psychology department are highly stimulating. In the animal lab the day I visited it, there was an incubator with five dozen eggs in it. "We are going into the poultry business," Dr. Diggory told me. "When these eggs hatch (the 'due date' was March 5 or 6), we'll watch those baby chicks from the moment they break out of the shell. The students will observe every stage of their development."

Dr. Diggory

Psychology Lab

In another part of the lab, Dr. Diggory has designed and constructed a machine for "imprinting"—a process whereby the chicks, at the very early age of 6 to 15 days, will respond to certain objects placed before them.

There are twenty-one senior psychology majors this year, and their tutorial subjects are wide in scope: Attitude Changes in Young Negro Children as a Result of Project Head Start; Human Concept Formation; How Novelty of a Visual Pattern and Complexity of a Visual Pattern Affect the Interest of a Young Child are some random examples.

Housed in a bright corner room on the lower level of Buhl Hall is the Rachel Carson Memorial Reading Room. I was introduced to this lovely room by the best possible person, Mr. Benjamin B. Richards, the college librarian. The walnut book shelves and individual carrels, the decor of natural tones accented by bright red, and the enormous stone fireplace are most inviting. An adjacent room houses the stock of bound scientific journals.

On the second floor of the building resides the chemistry department headed by Dr. Mark C. Paulson. Here again one senses the spirit of independent, meaningful study. Dr. Paulson has lived through two science department moves, the previous one at Bardley College, and swears, "Never again!" The chemistry department, perhaps more than any of the sciences, suffered from the absence of lab space during the renovation. Make-up lab sessions were still being completed as late as the end of February.

The new chemistry lab facilities are outstanding. Only one, the organic lab, is conventional in nature, and here Dr. Paulson pointed out the excellent hood system which clears the air of noxious fumes and odors.

The facilities for independent work are limitless. Already, visitors from other colleges have examined the innovations at Chatham with the idea of emulating them. To mention a few examples: instead of one large laboratory for freshman chemistry, there are now four smaller, interconnected labs, each equipped with sprinklers in case of fire. The old freshman lab, located at the end of the hall, has been divided into smaller labs where upperclassmen have their own facilities and desk space.

The environmentally-controlled room on the second floor houses chemistry equipment requiring specific temperatures. Much of this priceless equipment was moved to Mellon Institute during the summer months to insure its protection while the department was being rebuilt.

My tour of the new science facilities ended here, and I was with a sense of enormous pride in Chatham that I left Buhl Hall. The College has taken another great stride forward, and I hope that in time each alumna will have the opportunity to see for herself how very well it has been done. How exciting it would be to come back and start all over again—this time as a science major!

Miss Crozier

Contrasts in European Education

Miss Doris B. Crozier, assistant to President Eddy and assistant professor of anthropology, spent three weeks in March on a seminar and field study, Contrasts in European Secondary and Higher Education, conducted by the Comparative Education Society. The participants were college and university administrators and secondary school superintendents from all over the United States.

Miss Crozier tells the story of her interesting trip in her own words:

"I had received the list of participants in advance, but it was only when we began to assemble in the SAS Lounge at Kennedy Airport that I realized how many people there are in a group of 104.

"Our work began immediately, for Dr. William Brickman, president of the Comparative Education Society, delivered an introductory lecture on the backgrounds of European education while we were waiting to board the plane. These airport lectures, punctuated by interesting announcements of plane departures to all parts of the world, were a regular feature of the trip. We frequently attracted quite a crowd of listeners on these occasions.

"I shall not attempt to outline the whole trip, but the itinerary included London, our first stop, Aix-en-Provence and Marseilles in France, Florence, Italy, Moscow, Russia, and Rostock and East Berlin in East Germany.

"In every place, we visited secondary schools and talked with the faculty, and at each university we talked with the Rector and had conferences with faculty members and students. Of course, we did not make all of these visits 'en masse'. We divided into small groups according to our particular interests. In this way we had the opportunity to talk on an almost one-to-one basis with faculty and administration.

"The contrasts between the things we saw in each country were great, but there were many continuities too. In England, France and Italy, everyone we talked with was enthusiastic about the changes which will be introduced in the educational systems of their countries. They were eager to ask our advice on some things which we had already tried. In Russia and East Germany they were equally eager to show us their schools and classes, and to point out their great advances.

"Of course, I was especially interested in the students. When, on a Saturday night, we met at the London School of Economics with a group of student leaders, I could almost have closed my eyes and thought I was back home. All the complaints were so similar, even to Vietnam and dormitory regulations.

"In Italy and France the students complained bitterly about their lack of freedom to choose courses, large lecture classes, lack of contact with the faculty, and the fact that they receive no guidance except from other students.

"In East Germany and Russia the students feel that they have a great deal of freedom and involvement in the administration through their student groups—Free German Youth and the Komsomol—which are almost completely responsible for student life outside of the classroom, and which are involved also in deciding stipends awarded to students. A student leader at the University of Rostock said, "We have no important conflict or problem with the administration. We are both interested in the best possible education."

"We had a wonderful time talking education with the others in our group and with all of the people we met. The trip had its lighter moments, too. When we walked into the charming office of the headmistress of a British school, there in a basket in a sunny, flower filled alcove was her beautiful bull dog who rose to greet us with great majesty. The headmistress assured us that he came to school every day. And in an Italian secondary school, when we returned to the faculty room for our discussion with the Italian teachers, there on the table were bottles of wine and cookies for our delectation—at eleven o'clock in the morning!"

Ninety-fifth Baccalaureate and Commencement May 28, 1967

The fathers of three members of the Class of 1967 will be the principal participants in the Baccalaureate and Commencement programs on Sunday, May 28.

Dr. Eugene Dawson, president of Colorado Women's College, will deliver the Baccalaureate address in the College Chapel at 10:30 A.M. Assisting in the services will be the Reverend John A. Phillips of Kennett Square, Pennsylvania. Their daughters, Lolita Dawson and Gail Phillips, will receive their degrees later in the day.

Chatham College's 95th Commencement will be held at Carnegie Music Hall at 3:00 P.M. The speaker will be Ambassador Sol M. Linowitz, U.S. Representative to the Organization of American States (OAS), whose daughter June is a member of the graduating class.

Ambassador Linowitz

Ambassador Linowitz, a summa cum laude graduate of Hamilton College and Cornell Law School, is a member of the New York State Regents' Advisory Committee on Educational Leadership, a trustee of the Inter-American Foundation of the Arts, vice chairman of the Board of Trustees of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Before accepting President Johnson's appointment, Ambassador Linowitz was chairman of the board of Xerox Corporation and Xerox International. He also has served as chairman of the State Department Advisory Committee on International Organizations and chairman of the National Committee for International Development.

Dr. Hallowell Named

Mary Helen Marks Visiting Professor

One of the nation's leading cultural anthropologists, Dr. A. Irvin Hallowell, has been appointed as the Mary Helen Marks Visiting Professor for the first semester of the 1967-68 academic year. An authority on relationship between personality and environment, Dr. Hallowell is professor emeritus of anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania and curator of social anthropology at the University Museum.

He is a member of the Permanent Council of the International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences and past president of the American Anthropological Association, American Folklore Society and the Society of Projective Techniques. He also was a Guggenheim Fellow and a Viking medalist in general anthropology.

Dr. Hallowell's field work has been conducted principally among the Algonquian peoples of North America. His focal points of professional interest, as represented in his published works, have included kinship and social organization, folklore, culture and personality, psychological dimension of human evolution and the history of anthropology.

Having received the B.S., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Hallowell was awarded an honorary Sc.D. by the University in 1963. At that time he was cited for his important contribution "to our understanding of human nature in the long perspective of evolution" and for "sharpened insight into the connection between personality and social environment."

Dr. Andrews' Paper Published

Dr. J. Cutler Andrews, professor of history and chairman of the history department, has completed a three-year term as president of the Pennsylvania Historical Association. His presidential address, delivered at the annual meeting of the Association on October 21, 1966, has been published in the January issue of Pennsylvania History.

In his paper, The Gilded Age of Pennsylvania, Dr. Andrews devotes most of his attention to an overview of the Commonwealth in the late decades of the last century with emphasis on the economic and social aspects of that period.

According to Dr. Andrews, this "was a period of tremendous industrial growth, of increasing urbanization, of forces making for both cultural homogeneity and heterogeneity, of political corruption and political reform, of technical changes that made life more comfortable and somewhat more unstable, of the gradual diversion of the profits of large-scale business into expenditures for the public welfare, and of a kind of sober piety chiefly characteristic of rural Pennsylvania and of segments of middle-and upper-class groups of its urban society.

"No one individual dominated the culture of the Gilded Age in Pennsylvania to the same degree that Benjamin Franklin influenced Pennsylvania culture in the second half of the eighteenth century. Yet Pennsylvania was very much a part of, and in fact a dynamic element in, the process of scientific and industrial change that in the next century would place American civilization at the center of the world stage."

Editorial Board Appointed

A committee was appointed last summer by Dorothy Van der Voort, president of the Alumnae Association, to study and evaluate the Alumnae Recorder. The purpose of the evaluation was to determine in what ways the magazine might be revised and improved to better serve its reading audience.

Prior to a meeting of the committee on October 26, 1966, the members studied the alumnae magazines of other women's colleges and the statistics from the Recorder section of the alumnae questionnaire. This advance study and a morning devoted to discussion resulted in four basic recommendations: 1) that class news must continue to be a major part of each issue, but that it should be streamlined to conserve space; 2) that at least 12 pages of each issue should be devoted to news, articles, and editorial content; 3) that consideration should be given to new design for cover and format; and 4) that an editorial board of five members should be appointed to work with the editor as an advisory committee.

To fulfill the fourth recommendation, Mrs. Van der Voort has appointed the following alumnae to serve as members of the editorial board: Helen H. Smith, '44, chairman; Rachel Kirk Bobo, '40; Lois Applegate, '31; Mary Anderson Sheehan, '54; Sue Allardice, '59.

There was time to incorporate only a very few of the board's suggested changes in this issue, but work is already in progress for a new look for Fall 1967.

The Marjory Rea Laughlin House

At the bequest of the late Mrs. H. Hughart Laughlin, Chatham College has received the Laughlin home and property on Woodland Road. In announcing the new addition to the campus President Eddy said that it is expected that it will serve as a residence hall for students and will include library-study facilities.

The College Board of Trustees has voted to name the property the Marjory Rea Laughlin House.

Home of the Laughlin family for more than fifty years, it is one of the large family residences on Woodland Road built at the time of the Michael L. Benedum and James Rea houses, both of which were presented as gifts to the College.

The twenty-two room house is located directly across the road from Andrew W. Mellon Hall and is situated between the James and Julia Rea House and Berry Hall.

Caplan Works Exhibited

Mr. Jerry Caplan, assistant professor of art and chairman of the art department, had a showing of his recent works at the Pittsburgh Plan for Art from March 20 through April 9. The exhibit included sculptures, watercolors, and glazes, the latter a new element in the Caplan technique.

In a review of the show in The Pittsburgh Point, Myrna Schwalb calls Mr. Caplan an artist in love with life. She says, in part, "This is the work of a man in love with life, who sees beauty—and humor—in the most mundane objects, who enjoys—and permits us to enjoy with him."

A Pittsburgh-born artist, teacher and lecturer, Mr. Caplan received his bachelor and master of fine arts degrees in painting and design from Carnegie Institute of Technology. After further study in Painting and Sculpture at the Art Student's League in New York and at the University of North Carolina, he taught at the Rochester Institute, Rochester, New York, at the Tyler School of Fine Arts of Temple University, and at the College of Steubenville, Ohio.

At present Mr. Caplan is conducting a seminar on modern art at the Pittsburgh Plan for Art, and he has been invited by the Frick Commission to lecture on the current scene in art. He is a past president of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, and has served on the boards of the Society of Sculptors of Western Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh Watercolor Society, the Pittsburgh Plan for Art, and the Three Rivers Artist Advisory Committee.

Student Honors

Woodrow Wilson Fellowships

Two Chatham seniors have been awarded Woodrow Wilson Fellowships which will provide one year of graduate education with tuition, fees and a living stipend paid by the Foundation. Nancy R. Freudenthal, history major from Baltimore, Maryland, and Carol Mason, zoology major from Upper Darby, Pennsylvania, were two of the 1,259 winners in the national competition.

Receiving honorable mention were two other seniors, Heather Bastow, political science major from Amherst, Massachusetts, and Mary Vanderwart, psychology major from Oakland, New Jersey. Miss Vanderwart has been the 1967 Alumnae Scholar for two years.

Crossroads Africa

Two sophomores have been selected by Crossroads Africa to spend nine weeks this summer experiencing international relations on a person-to-person basis with African villagers. Sarah Bornstein, a political science major from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is currently the president of Chatham Community Government. Marjory Kaplan, a Pittsburgh resident student, is considering political science as her major and has served this year as assistant feature editor of the Arrow. After a week of orientation, the girls will be doing blue-collar work with a group of eight or nine other American and Canadian students and their African counterparts under the direction of an experienced leader. As Crossroaders, they will have the opportunity to meet political, labor, and religious leaders of their adopted African countries.

Heinz Summer Study Abroad

Pamela Davis, a junior French major from Hampton Falls, New Hampshire, has received the 1967 Heinz Summer Study Abroad Award to study French language and literature in France. Established in 1961 by Mrs. Clifford Heinz, the award is available to a sophomore or junior for travel and study abroad in a field related to her major or for research. The recipient is selected by a faculty committee and is expected to share her experiences with the college community upon her return. A Chatham Scholar, Miss Davis is an assistant feature editor of the Arrow and a member of Campus Keys.

Foreign Affairs Scholars Program

Vivian Lowery, senior Alumnae Scholar from Cleveland, Ohio, is the recipient of a fellowship from the Foreign Affairs Scholars Program for graduate work in international relations. She will enter Columbia University as a candidate for the master's degree in international affairs. The program is administered by Howard University in Washington, D.C., and is funded by the Ford Foundation. Miss Lowery has served recently as president of Honor Board.

If we go on the assumption that no news is good news, 1911 news must be good for it is very sparse.

Sara Carpenter, Ruth Phelps and Edna Reitz had a small fifty-fifth reunion at the June luncheon.

Sara is renewing her acquaintance with the campus through the eyes of her grand niece, Elizabeth Ziegler, a freshman, living in Dilworth Hall.

Irma Diescher Messler says she is well and full of her "old bounce" after last year's attack of shingles.

Elma Trussel Bannen and Belle McClymonds Marshall both have good days and bad days but are interested in alumnae affairs.

Other class members are presumably well and active.

Faye Atkinson McCune writes that her husband, after years of eye trouble, at last found encouragement and was operated upon in July. His trouble is keratitis and the doctors expect a successful outcome. Faye thought that some one with similar trouble might be encouraged to hear this. Her own health has improved, and she would like to see all her classmates.

Lucile Atkinson Baker is busy with the usual occupations. Her husband's physical state is still such that many things he formerly took care of fall to Lucile's lot. Lucile has many pictures and possessions gathered from her travels which she wishes she could share with Decade V, were she in Pittsburgh. She speaks especially of what she brought from Indonesia and the interest her pictures and collections would add to any talk on that country. I am sure we all wish we could be treated to such a program.

It is not hard to believe Helen Blair Baumann when she says she hasn't settled down yet! Helen is enjoying her church, College Club activities, Decade Club, her friends, and color T.V., so life for her is still full of zest. The trip to Ireland and Scotland which was in anticipation last year was realized and Helen loved everything about it. Frances Boale Belding and Louise Reinicke Thorne were also on the trip which was sponsored by the Gaelic Society of Pittsburgh, and the three favored Decade members with a triple account of their experiences. Helen again was hostess to Decade at the Christmas meeting in December.

As I write this, Christine Cameron Bryan may have already departed on a trip to California to visit her sons—Jack in the Los Angeles area and Duncan in San Francisco. Christine has a grandson in Vietnam.

Laila Clark Ament and I had our annual Recorder visit by phone. Mrs. Dilley, Laila's auntie, is keeping well and looking forward to her 103rd birthday in May. It will be about the time the Recorder gets in the mail and let me speak for all of our class in extending congratulations to Mrs. Dilley.

Helen Craig Culley will be returning soon from a year abroad. Last May she set forth with her daughter and family as her son-in-law was having a sabbatical and going to Austria to study. He has been a Fulbright researcher at the University of Vienna. From May to July their time was spent traveling in Europe.

Elizabeth Donebo Stoltz's letter came, as usual, from Palm Desert, California where she and her husband spend the winter months from November to April. Elizabeth's sister, Catherine Houston, who attended Dilworth Hall, had been east on a visit, so drove home to California with Elizabeth and Mr. Stoltz. After visiting their daughters in the Los Angeles area they went to Palm Desert. Elizabeth has taken up golf, as she says, "in my old age."

Louise Fletcher requested that every one be told she is still around. I can vouch for that as we had several little get-togethers at Chautauqua in August. In October Louise had a cataract operation and is going through the follow-up adjustment period now. Fortunately she was able to get back to Sarasota for the winter where she is in touch with Frances Boale Belding. Louise attended a Chatham party at the home of Ruth Wilkinson, '28, and her sister from Pittsburgh. They happen to have as their doctor the son of our Emma Osterloh.

Emma Geiselhart Osterloh says that Recorder time comes around so quickly she hasn't time to muster up any exciting news. Daughter Betty drove down and took Emma to her home in Connecticut for a six-week stay last summer.

It isn't always possible for Jeanne Gray Orcutt to get to Decade meetings so we don't see her as often as we should like. All Jeanne's children and thirteen grandchildren visited her at some time or other during the summer and fall.

Sylvia Wayne Gotham is well and again wintering in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida with her brother Marc. When in Cleveland Sylvia continues to divide her time between her own apartment and her brother's home in Lakewood, having many friends in both places. Sorrow came to Sylvia in October in the death of her beloved niece, Marjorie Wayne Wechsler, also a P.C.W. graduate, class of 1946.

If any one comes across a book of poetry with the interesting title of Reflections on a Gift of Watermelon Pickle, look in it for some of Mildred Weston Rogers' poems. Her poetry has also been appearing in other anthologies, viz. The Discovery of Poetry by Sanders and Language for Daily Use, Harbrace Edition. The big event of their year was a trip to England, Spain, and France where she and Mr. Rogers drove themselves around in rented cars. Mr. Rogers was interviewing people to get material for a book called Ladies Bountiful, published February first. It is the story of women behind the genius of men like D. H. Lawrence, James Joyce, etc., and Mildred rates it as "fascinating."

Both Grace Wilson and Martha Young McKeon wrote "nothing new to report." Grace is still doing some volunteer work at Brooklyn Hospital and the Y.W.C.A. She visited her niece and family in Sewickley again over Christmas, and enjoyed a telephone visit with Christine Bryan.

Life for me, Betty McCague, has been going along about as usual. During the year I had pleasant visits in Chambersburg, Packanack Lake, New Jersey, Chautauqua, and Cincinnati. In Cincinnati I greatly enjoyed visiting Florence Keys Sisler's daughter, Lucy Ann Watson and her family. I also made a flying trip to New York in October to attend a Penn Hall Alumnae luncheon as I had been named chairman of Penn Hall's Alumnae Giving Fund for 1966-1967.

NEW ADDRESS

Mary Estep Starr (Mrs. Caryl E.), 5903 Murray Avenue, Bethel Park, Pa. 15102

Apparently there has not been much activity among the members of the Class of 1915 as I have very little news to report.

Mary Estep Starr is living with her daughter and her family.

Betty Cameron Frank and Mary Ruth Jeffrey report no news of interest but send greetings to everyone.

Olga Losa, who usually has interesting travel to report, spent the month of March in Pompano Beach, Florida.

Louise Rohm Johnson's interest has been that of family affairs. She visited her son, Major Robert Johnson, Retired, in Georgia; also attended the wedding of her oldest granddaughter.

As for your secretary, she has been at home except for a couple of short trips.

Helen Pardee Nichol
(Mrs. O. C.)
32 Shady Drive West
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15228

Martha Crandall Noyes reports, "We have enjoyed visits with Helen Pardee Nichol and her sister Elizabeth, and also quick surprise stops at our home by Ruth and Roy and Dot and George. Drop in often, the rest of you. Charles is active and fine again. I'm now agile after a broken-hip escapade. We spent Thanksgiving at Jim's with the four grandsons. Daughter Martha is now on a government grant investigating music opportunities for youth through symphonies and high schools of twelve cities."

Martha Dunbar Say and her husband are serving another six-month visitation assignment with the First Presbyterian Church, Fort Lauderdale, Florida. She says, "This year we have the experience of living in the Church's Retirement Manor, so you see we are gradually easing into retirement living. Another way to measure our years is by our oldest grandchild, Beth Calhoun, who was accepted at Grove City College last fall. "Happy Hill," Chautauqua, is our family reunion spot during the summer."

Dorothy Stoebener Markell left Pittsburgh with George in January for a three-month visit with her sister Edna in Deerfield Beach, Florida. Both she and Martha are looking forward to seeing each other.

Jane Errett entertained Betty McClelland Crawford, Louise Reinecke Thorne and Helen Pardee Nichol for a week in September at her summer home in Bethany Beach, Delaware. Although the weather did not cooperate, and Marjorie Errett, '19, was hospitalized with a hand badly cut by a window blown out in a storm, we did enjoy being together. Our chief project was trying to find Pinewater and Shawn's Hiway. Earlier in the summer, Louise had a memorable trip to Ireland and Scotland.

Mona Crytzer Nagel was quite a traveler the past year. January found her in Arizona, February and March in Florida, July in Alaska, Lake Louise and Jasper, and in between times, she relaxed at her home at the seashore.

Edna Evans Peterson is kept busy substitute-teaching in a public school near her home.

Ruth Gokey Walters and Roy visited their doctor son in Warren, Pennsylvania at Thanksgiving, then drove east to New Jersey to spend the holidays with Roy Jr. and Harriet's families. "Winter finds us in an apartment in Buffalo, New York. When the first bird appears, we'll trek back to our cottage on Chautauqua Lake for the summer."

I was very glad to hear from Agnes Dorman Walling. For the last twenty years, she has been living in a cooperative apartment in St. Petersburg, Florida. In the summers, she visits her daughter and family in Falls Church, Virginia, and then spends four or five months at Ashville, North Carolina. She is always glad to see College and Dilworth Hall friends.

Estelle Shepard White and Bert drove out to Washington State where they spent Thanksgiving with Bert's sister. Christmas found them at their son's home in California. From there, they drove on to Lake Chapala, Mexico where they enjoyed the Mexican sunshine and flowers for the rest of the winter. Her daughter Betty's husband, Theodore Lockwood, has been elected President of Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut.

Dr. Elizabeth White, our honorary class member from the faculty, has published a delightful book entitled Remembered Days. It is a family history with charming descriptions of life at the turn of the century.

Greetings to all the rest from Leah Claster and Marianne Rea Hamilton.

That very important milestone, our 50th Anniversary, will be here in a few weeks, so we are eagerly anticipating a reunion with everyone returning to the College. Do your best to be there.

NEW ADDRESSES

Lois Farr Hamilton (Mrs. Russell J.), 2416 Sahuara Avenue, Tucson, Arizona 85716

Mary Sprowls Spragg (Mrs. Walter S.), R. D. #1, Box 311, Monongahela, Pa. 15063

The sympathy of us all goes out to Florence Fast McIntyre in the death of her husband in October. Her daughter Lois, with her three-year-old, is staying with her mother while her husband is in Vietnam.

Edith Honsaker Schumacher is again in Florida for four months, continuing to enjoy their retirement years. She hears from Hazel Curry Koehler, whose son and daughter are both married, and who has several grandchildren.

Probably none of us had ever traveled by dog sled until Mabel Shaffer included this method of transportation last summer on a second trip to Alaska. She also used more comfortable methods, going by ship up the Inside Passage to Juneau and by plane to Anchorage and Fairbanks. She visited Edith on the way home, and spent two weeks with Ella Martin when Ella returned from a long hospital stay. Ella is better now and we hope has good health ahead.

Louise Montgomery says she keeps busy just keeping out of trouble. Edith Pew spent some weeks in Texas this winter and took a theatre trip to New York.

The youngest of our class is naturally the last to retire. Mary Byrd Russell Buckley has now given up her government position, and writes that "it will be nice not having to get up at 0430 and commute seventy miles per day."

You will all be sorry to learn of the death of the oldest brother of Gladys Sullivan Peters. Gladys has a granddaughter from Connecticut attending Winchester-Thurston in Pittsburgh.

Building a summer home on Baker Lane in Rector has occupied Mary Reed Reeves.

Lois Farr Hamilton loves her new home in Tucson and keeps busy with her garden and volunteer work at two libraries, one at Holy Cross Hospitality House for Mexican and Negro children and adults. Lois also paints, and enjoys her grandchildren.

Wilma Davis Kennedy expected to be in California for the month of April and is making plans for a trip around the world.

Marcella Collier DesJardins was in Florida for part of the winter, and was looking forward to another happy summer at their cottage on Crystal Lake with her eight grandchildren.

Stella Esby, Marcella Geary, Ada Lou Andrews Day and Lucile Long Haseltine report that they are well and busy. I can say the same with appreciation for all the responses received.

NEW ADDRESSES

Dorothy McCormick Means (Mrs. Hobart L.), 220 South Home Avenue, Apt. 404, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15202

Mary McKinney Wilson (Mrs. Howard M.), Gateway Towers, Apt. 11-E, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222

Marcia Norris Herr (Mrs. G. Barrett), King George Avenue, Colonial Park, Harrisburg, Pa. 17109

Harriet Barker Thompson had a delightful visit with Martha McKibben Tatnall and her husband who are "so busy they don't know they are retired," and also attended an interesting conference for Democratic Women in Washington which included a tea at the White House and a meeting with President and Mrs. Johnson.

Harriette Bowers Sime makes the most of educational opportunities on Long Island, goes frequently to New York City, and enjoys golf and walking on the beach.

Jean Bumgarner, Margaret Foster Bergstrom, Margaret McRoberts Egbert, Lyda Hamilton, Betty Mason Richards and Marion Rainey Johnston, all busy with community activities, send their greetings to everyone.

Dorothy McCormick Means, Mary McKinney Wilson and Marion Moffett Barnes have become apartment dwellers. Mary has a view of the Allegheny River, and enjoys the convenience of living downtown. Marion planned a winter trip to the West Coast.

Marie Ohle Craig, still in Phoenix, is doing work for the Republican Party and the Cancer Society, and is singing in a church choir.

Marjorie Patterson Kaiser's son was drafted from his surgical residency and sent to a captain's life in Korea. His bride, a nurse, is also doing hospital work there, and both are interested in a Korean orphanage.

The response from the Medicare Set has been wonderful—and not a Golden Age Club anywhere! I am fortunate to be on the Ligonier Valley Library board at the time it is receiving the gift of a beautiful new library from the Richard King Mellon Foundation.

Marian Frank Patterson (Mrs. A. Gordon), 18 Lyman Circle, Shaker Heights, Ohio 44122

Elizabeth Archibald Andruss and her husband have returned from a five-month trip around the world. They visited Australia, New Zealand, Singapore, India, Egypt and Europe.

Louise Bumgarner and her sister Jean are busy all the time—attending the Fox Chapel Town Hall series, buying for the gift shop, and entertaining.

Sarah Chisholm Springer makes many pilgrimages to Pittsburgh to see Sally Lou and her family. In Uniontown, it's lots of hospital work, D.A.R., College Club, etc.

Katharine Dashiell Roberts and her husband enjoyed a visit to Seattle last summer with their son John. She meets many Chatham College graduates in Ft. Lauderdale, enough to start a club. Why not do it, Katharine?

Helen Gokey Denigan and husband Ted are enjoying retirement activities which include gardening, traveling and visiting their children. Ann lives in Denver with her three children, and Ted will leave soon with his family, three boys and a girl, to live in Texas.

Louise Graham Brown reports the birth of a son, Christian Chamberlain Plumb, to her daughter Barbara who continues as Home Furnishings writer for the New York Times Magazine. Louise poured at a tea given by the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Headquarters in Washington, in honor of Princess Irene of Greece.

Margaret Herron continues to enjoy her retirement and travels frequently to matinees in New York, to Philadelphia, Boston or Washington. She does her share of church, garden club and college club work, and is also affiliated with A.A.U.W.

Last year we received a newsy letter from Kathryn Kelty Tea, and this year a welcome one came from her twin sister, Dorothy Kelty Fairchild. She and her husband have sold their Men's Shop prior to retirement. She is proud of her daughter Kathryn, a notable artist who has had many showings of her work, but her greatest achievement is the five grandchildren which Dottie enjoys so much. Dotty was looking forward to a happy reunion with her twin, Kate, in April.

Harriet McCaw Hale, who moved about two years ago to a new home in Columbus, quite near friends and relatives, sends greetings to all her former classmates.

Jean McColl Horton and Art enjoyed a trip last fall to California and Hawaii, and to the Bahamas in December.

Frances Rolfe is enjoying the sunshine in Phoenix, Arizona this winter after spending Christmas in Connecticut.

Marshall and Mary Shane Muir are very happy in their new home in northern New Jersey. Marshall has retired from a regular pastorate, but is kept busy preaching as a substitute in nearby churches. They visited in Pittsburgh in September when the Bellefield Presbyterian Church celebrated its 100th Anniversary.

Elizabeth Stevenson McQuiston continues her activity with the Pittsburgh College Club. Last summer she and Bryce visited her sister Sarah in Claremont, California. At a recent wedding there was a small class reunion, since Bee, Louise Graham Brown, Helen Ahlers Patton and Sarah Hunter Drake were there.

This year Sally Springer helped with the gathering of news. We thank all of you who wrote, and only wish we had heard from all the others. My only news is the marriage of my daughter Virginia to William J. Kearney on October 22, 1966. They are living in Chicago.

NEW ADDRESSES

Margaret McEwen Swanson (Mrs. Emil T.), 311 Dogwood Drive, Park Forest, Ill. 60466

Ruth Powell, 502 Second Street, California, Pa. 15419

Class of 1927 Fortieth Reunion, June 3rd, on campus. Do plan to come and help make it our biggest. The committee:—Isabel Epley, Rae Stevenson Bair and Anna Negley Brunot.

Mary Harner Britton and husband flew to Madrid on March 8 for a 21-day revisit to Spain, Mr. Britton's native country. They traveled by autobus to Seville, Cordoba, Granada and Malaga.

Elizabeth Hewitt Holland, with her husband Dr. Ralph Holland, is on a world tour to see the Church at work in many lands.

Margaret Johnston McClintock is spending the winter in Florida, golfing and playing bridge.

Dulcina Marshall Walker and husband toured Europe during the summer of '66 and will visit the Scandinavian countries this year.

Catherine McRoberts Gunia flew to Los Angeles in January to visit at Seal Beach Leisure World with her brother and his wife.

Eleanor Mowry McKelvey and husband enjoyed a relaxing Caribbean cruise in November.

Anna Negley Brunot, with her husband, her sister, and her sister's husband, had a delightful two-week Caribbean cruise over the Christmas holidays, more or less in celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary.

Frances Ray Dunlevy and a friend spent five weeks last summer driving through lesser known parts of France, looking up medieval architecture, pre-historic caves, Merovingian tombs, and art works. They visited in Sion, Switzerland, where the oldest organ in Europe, in playable condition, is located—dated 1390 A.D.

Mary K. Reed Lose spent the month of May '66 on a delightful trip to Europe.

Irene Stout Carskadon visited her "old home town" in October, and was present at the dedication of the beautiful new church in which she had worked before going to California to live.

Inez Wallis had a wonderful trip by auto to San Francisco last summer, going west via Louisville, Hot Springs, Dallas, El Paso, Mexico, and Phoenix. In San Francisco they enjoyed baseball at Candlestick and took in the Shrine Convention. On the return trip by plane, they were caught in the air lines strike.

Grace Wilson is planning for this summer a jaunt from her home in Daytona Beach, Florida, to Point Barrow, Alaska.

Adeline Crown Jubelirer and her husband went to Spain in March, to the Costa del Sol to play golf at Marbella. They go often to Lexington, Massachusetts to visit their daughter, her husband, and two grandchildren.

Our best wishes for complete recovery to Martha Worthington Herriott who has spent many weeks on an enforced holiday from her work at Washington and Jefferson College with a broken leg, and to Mary Scott Scott who suffered a heart attack some time before Christmas.

Ella English Daub mentioned in her letter that her mother is nearly 87. I am sure that many of you, as I do, have fond memories of Mrs. English and join me in sending her greetings and our best wishes.

Isabel Epley is "just doing the every day routine of teaching."

Eleanor Ewing Buterbaugh's son is chief psychologist at Apple Creek Hospital in Ohio; her daughter-in-law is the "perfect one," and her granddaughter is "a joy."

Margaret Gibson McCrum has her own business of supplying Gas Lanterns—some of hers are lighting the Chatham campus. She collects Early American lighting devices, and attends the conventions of the Early American Industries Association and the Rushlight Club of Boston. Last year they went to Salem, North Carolina which was settled by the Moravians, a group of the same people who settled in Pennsylvania. Her interest extends to the Early American Glass Club of Pittsburgh, of which she is a director, and to the Presbyterian-University Hospital Aid Society, for which she is program chairman this year. To keep busy, she is a member of the Mt. Lebanon Chatham Group, is having a fling with French at the Y.W.C.A. and German at the Mt. Lebanon High School evening classes. Margaret has three grandsons—all the same age—Timothy, and two adopted ones, Dennis and James.

Miriam Kinkel, after thirty years, has left the University of Pittsburgh and Falk School. After doing some part-time teaching at Point Park College, liking the feeling of moving and expansion, she has joined the faculty as associate professor of education. Her scope of teaching includes music appreciation, music education, piano workshop, children's literature to early childhood, and elementary education. In addition, Miriam finds time for supervision of education seminars.

Grace Wilson, in addition to taking extended trips, is teaching in adult education, through the Junior College in Daytona Beach, social studies and special classes in American vs. Communism, a required course in Florida schools. This winter she is learning to transcribe Braille, is working for the Red Cross Blood Bank, and the Mental Health Association.

Ruth Scrivens Pospishil has the honor of being president of the Mt. Lebanon Area Chatham Alumnae Club. She won't say so, but we learn from Ruth Swisshelm that she is doing an excellent job.

Emelyn Taylor Roblffs is substituting this year for the Dean of Women at the University of Portland, who is finishing work for her doctorate. This has been a very interesting year for Emelyn and she has done some thinking in retrospect about the sage decisions of Miss Coolidge and Miss Marks, Minerva, the one and only, crumbs at dinner on Sunday, and a thousand other things we of 1927 would have to talk about.

Plan to come to reunion, and then we can talk.

The Rachel Carson Memorial Reading Room in Buhl Hall of Science has been furnished and equipped through the generous gifts of former science majors and members of the Class of 1929 whose contributions to the 1966-67 Alumnae Fund have been designated for this purpose. Of the 65 graduate and associate members of the class, 41 (63%) have either paid or pledged a gift in Rachel's memory. Additional contributions made between now and June 23 will be credited to the project. Checks should be made payable to Chatham College and mailed to Ruth Swisshelm in the Alumnae Office.

Please keep in mind that we are only two years away from our 40th reunion when we hope to have a sum which we will be proud to present to the College in memory of all classmates who have died since we entered as freshmen. Contributions to this Class of 1929 Memorial Gift Fund are entirely separate from annual gifts to the Alumnae Fund, and may be sent either to your secretary or to Ruth Swisshelm. The money is on deposit in a special savings account and will continue to earn interest until June 1969. To date, 12 members have paid the total amount of their pledges and 5 others are making annual payments. How about all the others? We will fall far short of our goal without the support of everyone.

Martha Ackelson Smith and Allan acquired a granddaughter and a grandson in 1966, children of their son and daughter. The Smiths planned a spring vacation in Mexico.

Dorothy Appleby Musser's big news is out—a trip to Africa with her husband and children. The Mussers enjoyed another exciting vacation together last July when they took a float trip down the Middle Fork of the Salmon River—white water all the way!

Erma Bachman Stewart, who teaches in Butler High School, has a new grandchild. Her son Tom and his family live in Clearfield, Utah.

Lucretia Bond Wagner left the United States in November for a year's tour of service in Asia. After visiting Japan and Hong Kong, they are now in South Vietnam where Glenn's work with the Pocket Testament League takes them into the most troubled areas. Lucretia described visits to the outposts of the Special Armed Forces less than a mile from the Cambodian border and to the Mekong Delta via armed helicopter. She is possibly the only American woman to have witnessed the fighting at such close range. This, and visits to the military hospitals, have made her realize that the war is very serious and very real.

Clara Boyd Bond has sold her home in Florida, and is enjoying part-time work in the rental office of the Grosvenor Park Apartments, Rockville, Md. Clara has five grandchildren, three in Winston-Salem, N.C., and two in Baton Rouge, La.

Ellen Connor Kilgore is recovering from a leg fracture resulting from a fall on wet leaves. The Kilgores returned from Europe last June just in time to say goodbye to their daughter and son-in-law who were leaving for Japan where both will serve for two years in the Hiroshima Hospital. Ellen and Lee expect to visit them this summer. Ellen also reports a new granddaughter.

Kay Crawford Stancati has supervised volunteer staff members and foreign assignments for the American Red Cross for the past eight years. Her husband is a college biology teacher, and son Michael is a college student. Kay attends Chatham alumnae meetings in Chicago but seldom sees any '29ers. Perhaps she and Peg Constans Jones can get together since we have "found" Peg again in Chicago.

Our sincere sympathy to Mary De Motte Sutphen whose mother passed away last June. In addition to acting as secretary for her husband in his general insurance business, Mary is chairman of the Blood Bank, substitute worker at Lakewood Library, and active in the Jamestown Y.W.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. Hospital.

Our sympathy, also, to Elsie Duncan Harrison whose mother died in July following a stroke. Elsie's son Scott has returned from Vietnam and is now with his wife and two children in Milwaukee where he is serving his residency at the Orthopedic Hospital.

Bessie Friedman Wasser reports three married children, four grandchildren, and complete recovery from her bad fall last spring.

Enid Fruth McFarland's husband is an ophthalmologist in Phoenix, and her son is interning at Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. After vacationing in Montana last summer, and spending Christmas at Pebble Beach, the McFarlands are planning to spend the month of July in Hawaii.

Lillian Green Surbled and her sister visited five countries in Europe last summer.

Our sincere sympathy to Marion Hal Verner in the loss of her father and her brother in the past year. Since their deaths, the family business has been sold and Marion fills her time with other activities. She has three grandchildren, and she enjoyed a trip to Europe last fall.

Jane Haller McCafferty finds that teaching ninth grade keeps her abreast of the latest in styles, hairdos, and slang. She is looking forward to getting re-acquainted with her grandchildren when her daughter, Nancy Watts, x'55, returns to Washington from Hawaii this summer.

Mary Louise Jones sends us the happy report that she is in complete good health again, and busy with her mimeo business which includes hand-lettered sketches, fancy formats, travel brochures, etc.

Mary Kolb is deeply saddened by the November death of her dear friend, Esther Beiswanger, with whom she planned and built her home at High Horizon Farm. Mary enjoyed an exceptional honor when she was invited by Secretary of State Rusk to attend a National Foreign Policy Conference for Educators on June 16-17, 1966. The Conference highlighted current foreign policy issues, and provided a forum for discussion of world affairs with high ranking officers of the State Department. She attended all sessions of the Conference, and came away with great enthusiasm for what she had learned.

Josephine Mang Muir spent last Easter in Florida and a summer vacation in the Poconos. A visit from Leona Newcomb Meier, '28, was a summer highlight.

When Anna Miller Nolan was in Pittsburgh to attend her brother-in-law's funeral in January, she visited with Evelyn Thompson Wible and other Chathamites. Anna spends about half the school year doing substitute-teaching at Margate Junior High School.

Helem Myers Knox and her husband continue their careers, as teacher of advanced French at Hemphill Senior High School and school district supplier for Eberhard Pencil Company respectively. A new granddaughter brings the total to five.

Katherine Reebel's academic interests, as professor of social work at the University of Michigan, are concerned mainly with the very young and the very old. In addition to her teaching, she serves as social work consultant to the Veteran's Administration Hospitals in Ann Arbor and Dearborn, and to the Orthopedic Clinic in Detroit. Kay spent the Christmas holidays with her father and sister, Audrey Reebel Early, '26, in Florida.

As Director of Professional Relations, Optometric Extension Program Foundation, Inc., Martha Stem was one of two staff members representing her organization at the 69th Congress of the American Optometric Association in Boston last June. During a recent eastern trip to Williamsburg, she saw the filming of a sequence of Lassie and was able to take stereo pictures of many of the scenes.

A snapshot of Mary Lou Succop Bell's new granddaughter verifies her description of "gorgeous."

En route to the Delta Tau Delta convention in Portland, Oregon last summer, Anne Textor Thompson stopped for a week of dude-ranching in the Tetons. She hoped to see Betty MacColl during a spring vacation in Florida. Daughter Jane is a junior high school teacher, and Marcia does social work in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Dorothy Warner has added dressmaking to her spare-time hobbies of knitting and furniture antiquing. She continues as secretary to the general engineering manager of Bell Telephone Company.

Kay Watkins Strauss's younger son graduated from Western Reserve College in June 1966. Pete, the older son, has returned from military service to his position as customer service manager for the Manhasset branch of Abraham Straus.

Peg Woolridge Fifer's reply came in the form of a new booklet of verses, Notes from the Fifers, Vol. 2, 1967. The poems are warm and sensitive—Peg's personality shines through each one.

Vi Eichleay Petty recently returned from Nassau where she met her newest granddaughter. Her oldest son, Bob, has returned from two years in Mozambique, Kenya.

With the November marriage of her son, Jean Huff Bailey has finally acquired a daughter. Tom and his wife live in New York where he is employed by an investment banking firm. After next October 1, when Jean's husband will retire after more than 40 years with H. J. Heinz Company, the Baileys look forward to seeing the world.

Janet Kutcher Bair and her husband, a Presbyterian minister in Mason City, Illinois, have two married sons and eight grandchildren. One lives in California, and the other is with the U.S. Food for Peace Program in Recife, Brazil.

After living in Chicago, Buffalo, Michigan City and Indianapolis, Lois Parker

Stewart has returned to Pittsburgh. Since her husband's retirement from the steel business, both he and Lois have become associated with their children's business, Hyde Travel Service in Webster Hall—a rather unique situation with the parents employed by the children!

Louise Sutton Ivory, a reading specialist for grades one through twelve in the Langhorne area, served last summer as psychologist at an evaluation and research center near West Chester.

In making calls for the Rachel Carson Reading Room fund, Ruth Swishelm finally, after all these years, reached Ethel Getty Ditty. She and her husband keep their home base in Summerville, Pa. (P.O. Box 95), but spend much of their time in the Florida Keys, although their trailer home suffered major damage in a hurricane last fall. Another call brought the news that Alienne Mong Van Cleve's husband has had a long serious illness. They live at 3807 Callo Altar Street, Tucson, Arizona 85716. And Carrie Duvall Leffler sang the praises of the wonderful climate and the beautiful blue grass country around their home in Lexington, Kentucky.

Ruth talked also with Grace Sherman Fullerton in Salem, Oregon. In an effort to up-date her teaching certificate, Grace is spending two days and nights each week in Portland where she does substitute teaching during the day and takes a course each night. Her son, Captain Gordon Fullerton, an Air Force test pilot, was named to the team of astronauts for the Air Force Manned Orbiting Laboratory Program. Daughter Ann is in sixth grade.

DEATHS

Nora Weichel Thompson (Mrs. Richard F.), July 20, 1966. A note expressing the sympathy of the class was sent to Nora's husband and family.

Perfect weather, a large turnout of classmates, and a delightful all-day program combined to make our 35th reunion a day to remember. Our reunion gift of $526.64, slightly more than the $500 goal set in 1961, was presented, in Bea Lewis's words read by your secretary, to President Eddy, who asked permission to assign it, along with gifts from the classes of 1916 and 1941, to the renovation of Buhl Science Hall. Three plaques in suitable places in the building will commemorate the gifts. In view of this, it was particularly fitting that Dr. and Mrs. Earl K. Wallace were seated with us at the reunion luncheon. A stroll along Woodland Road to attend the reception given by President and Mrs. Eddy, and later to Benedum Hall for a delightful outdoor buffet supper, brought the day to a fine climax.

Thanks to all who replied to the cards, and especially to all who contributed to the Reunion Gift. Bea Lewis reports that she is going out as much as possible, and that she would welcome a visit from any who can stop to see her. In response to a suggestion for a small "off-season" reunion, I would be glad to meet all who are interested on June 3, at 12:30 P.M., at Stouffer's Oakland Restaurant. Please call me (531-8209) so I can make a reservation.

Eleanor Bartberger Dearborn reports progress toward completion of their cabin in the Endless Mountains in northeast Pennsylvania, Dick, Jr.'s search for the right college, Dick, Sr.'s weekend flight instruction, and her own involvement with real estate work, School Board and Library Commission. Ebbe felt in the minority at reunion—no grandchildren!

An early morning fire on November 4 did considerable damage to Edith Beale Asper's home in Juneau. Following a brief stay in a hotel and later in an apartment, they returned to a still unfinished house in time for Christmas with the boys. Linn, Jr. is a first year student at the University of Washington Law School, and Jim is a sophomore at the University of Oregon. The second big event of the winter was the January inauguration of the new Governor, Walter J. Hickel. Lots of snow, not too cold, and one real five-day "blow" covers the Alaska weather picture.

Martha Bradshaw Stout's older son, Bill, is completing his thesis for a Ph.D. degree in mathematics at Purdue. Don is a junior at Penn State.

Dorothea Crawford Macy and her husband enjoyed a vacation in Bermuda last summer, and planned a winter trip to California. Their youngest daughter was married on December 23 and now lives with her lawyer husband in Washington, D.C.

It was nice to have Ramona Crawford Shirey and husband Paul with us in June, her first trip back for a reunion. The Shireys now have nine grandchildren.

Clara Falconer Simmermacher and her husband can see the intra-coastal Waterway from their new home at Hobe Sound. Their youngest daughter is now married and they are enjoying their retirement away from northern cold and snow.

Our sincere sympathy is extended to Lida Fischler Lampe whose husband died last May 15 after a very brief illness. Lida's younger son was graduated from Grove City College on our reunion day, and is to be married this coming June.

Margaret Jefferson is busier than ever as Headmistress of St. Anne's School, Charlottesville, Virginia, since they have moved into their new buildings. Last summer Margaret enjoyed a trip to Seattle, Yellowstone Park and the Grand Tetons, and plans to study at the University of Virginia this year.

Kay James McCann completed a course in oriental art at Stanford last June, took two painting courses during the summer, and is now studying the natural history of the California coast at San Jose State College. Field trips for the Audubon Society and conservation work for the AAUW have included two state conferences, exploration of the new Point Reyes Seashore Park, watching the amazing concentration of migrating geese, ducks, cranes, etc., in the Sacramento River Valley, and conducting several bird counts in Palo Alto's Foothill Park. In addition to this exhausting schedule, Kay made a trip to Denver in April to visit her mother and brother.

Florence Jones Maddox's younger son, a Lt. JG, is stationed at the Long Beach, California, Naval Yard. Daughter Diane is chief of service at the Computer Center of the University of Cincinnati.

Addie Lasner Sachs and Meyer have bought a six-room apartment in University Square, and Addie says the price is right for overnight guests. On the same floor they found Lou Turner Crookston's brother-in-law, who had engaged Lucille Laughlin Logan's husband Earl to help with the decorating.

Margaret Marsh Symonds was sorry to miss reunion, but she and her husband enjoyed a trip west during June and July. Peg's son Bill, who was discharged from the Navy last fall and is working in Van Wert, Ohio, will be married in May.

Our sympathy to Anne Norcross Brockschmidt whose father died during the time that her husband was hospitalized for surgery.

Anne Ritenour Harbison's husband Frank suffered a stroke some months ago and they have moved to a house better suited to their needs. They found the baths at Hot Springs, Arkansas, helpful, and planned a trip to Palm Springs to spend February and March in the desert sun. Both of their sons are married, Frank, Jr. and his family living close enough for weekend visits, and Joe in Houston, Texas.

Beverly Robison Smith finds life on the Bay of Naples, Florida, much to their liking, and would welcome visits from classmates.

Although Kay Rockwell Potter was in Pittsburgh several times last year, she missed the reunion. On that weekend she and Bill saw her father receive an honorary degree from a university in Oshkosh, and dedicated an oil portrait of her mother to be hung in the lobby of Mercy Hospital. In October Kay went to West Point for the dedication of her mother's portrait in Benet Hall. Mrs. Rockwell was a direct descendant of Sylvanus Thayer, "father of the U.S. Military Academy." Several weeks' rest in Arizona was on the calendar for mid-winter. The Potters are enjoying shallow-water fishing in Bianka, Jr., and deep-sea fishing and a trip to Bimini aboard Bianka II, their 34-foot fishing boat.

Roberta Rode Johnson's husband Latimer has continued to improve since a heart attack last year. In July they visited son Bob, a consultant engineer with IBM in Chicago. Following a November trip to Florida, they returned in time to welcome son Richard and his wife, home for the holidays from Pomona, California where he is branch manager of the First Western Bank. Their youngest son, Norman, will graduate from Baldwin High School and is college bound. The Johnsons planned an April trip to Arizona.

Lucilla Scribner Jackson and her husband had a long trip last fall to Australia, Bangkok, Hong Kong and Japan. They now have six grandchildren, ranging from a few months to seven years of age.

Lois Sproull Hinckley is enjoying her term as president of the Sarasota Branch of AAUW. Daughter Nancy is serving with the Peace Corps in Thailand, and there are three small granddaughters in the Hinckley family.

Mary Stuart, now living in Las Vegas, is making progress in recovery from her illness, although she still is not able to write. She is alert, interested in activities, tries to improve her typing, and enjoys having friends visit her. Best wishes, Mary, for your complete recovery soon!

Helen Wonders McCormick feels that the most important news is that we did fulfill our pledge of a reunion gift to the College. Helen's daughter Jane is teaching Latin at the George School in Bucks County. Helen saw Louise Ehrl Heasley in November when she was recovering from surgery.

While Olive Wycoff MacCarthy and Parker were at Nags Head in August, Florence and William Maddox and Martha and Walter Stout visited there also. Earlier the MacCarthys had gone to Charleston, South Carolina, and in the fall they saw Margaret Ray McDowell and her husband at his office at Boston University.

Your secretary enjoyed a flight to California in September, and three days at the Greenbrier in October. Jury duty in February held up the preparation of these notes.

When Ruth Swisshelm was in New York in March, she "found" Frances Fiske (known to us as Ruth during the year she spent as a member of our class). Frances, after many years in the publishing field, has recently moved into public relations and fund raising with a New York firm.

Marian Baughman Monroe (Mrs. Vaughn W.), "High Point," Star Route, Jensen Beach, Fla. 33457

Elizabeth Cline Blake (Mrs. William), 275 Bartley Avenue, Mansfield, Ohio 44906

Marguerite Cunliffe Gape (Mrs. Charles A.), 479 Walnut Street, Meadville, Pa. 16335

Marjorie Hopkins, 1681 The Alameda, Apt. 18, San Jose, Calif. 95126

Estous Lee Davidson (Mrs. John H.), 1004 Redstone Road, Washington, Pa. 15301

Helen McCreery Jovanovic (Mrs. Michael K.), P.O. Box 214, Freeport, Grand Bahama

Carolyn Pierce May (Mrs. Robert A.), 8-N Hampton House, Hagysford Road, Narberth, Pa. 19072

We hear from Evelyn Aliff Dautlicke that her husband Joe has recovered from his long illness and is back at work at his new job as industrial relations director for the company. Jay and his bride live in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, where he is in his third year of graduate study in biochemistry. Susie graduated in June from Bucknell and teaches music in the public school. Cory, a junior at Chatham, has begun her tutorial in psychology. Evy is still teaching.

Sara Allison Allman mentions having attended a New Jersey Chatham Alumnae Club meeting where slides of the campus were shown.

Dorothy Ballantyne Milliken has had two teenagers from Argentina living with them through the World Organization for Cultural Exchange. Dot's husband Ed has recovered from a coronary and is back to full activity. Ginny was graduated in June from West Virginia Wesleyan College, and in October married Mr. Hugh Buzzard. She is teaching fourth grade in Moundsville, West Virginia.

Evelyn Bitner Pearson is enjoying her two daughters who are still in school, and also her five grandchildren. She does volunteer work with Goodwill Industries, and enjoys her remodeled "town house" in Shadyside.

Some, who have no particular news to report, send greetings. Among this group are Jean Blair Hodgins, Genevieve Davis Crawford, Jessie Doudna Phillips, Charlotte Iams, Mary Johnston Krudener and Edith McBane.

Betty Allen Clarke has been attending the monthly luncheons of the Downtown Alumnae Club at the Woman's City Club.

On the Dayton, Ohio Reserve Teachers Staff, Clara Condon Bair has been enjoying the experience of teaching in various types of schools from carpeted air-conditioned buildings to old-fashioned ill-equipped ones.

Marguerite Cunliffe Gape is now a certified Home-School Visitor, having taken classes at Westminster College for qualification. Last summer she again helped run the Kiwanis Club Pancake Palace at Crawford County Fair. She plans to go to Cheyenne, Wyoming, this summer to visit Charlie's folks.

One has to make up for basking in the Arizona sunshine during the winter, claims Dorothy Edsall Fuller, so she and Ed worked through the summer after their winter sabbatical. On a quick trip to New York and Boston they left daughter Carol in Binghamton, New York, where she is teaching first grade. Dot is doing part-time work as a cataloger in addition to her part-time work as science librarian, and has been president of the faculty women's group.

This spring Marjorie Hopkins will have a book published by Parents' Magazine Press. For the young, if not slow, reader, it is a picture book entitled The Three Visitors. Grandma and Grandpa buyers, please take notice! Marj is teaching eighth and ninth grades.

Gene Llewellyn Price is looking forward to a visit in June from her son Roger, Claudia and grandson Todd.

Estous Lee Davidson's daughter Lee (Mrs. Roger Davidson) is living in Bermuda with her two children. John Davidson, Jr., will graduate from Pitt Law School in June, and daughter Mary will graduate from Denison University that same month.

We hope that Phyllis Lebew MacArthur will make a speedy recovery from recent surgery. She reported having a wonderful auto trip to California last summer.

The class sends most sincere sympathy to Ruth Ludebuehl Early. Her mother passed away on May 31, and on December 18 her husband, Joseph Early, died after suffering a coronary. Ruth is staying in Fairmont and continuing her work at the Library. She wished to express her great appreciation of the many sympathetic messages received from classmates.

Eleanor Jane McClimans Muncaster's son Hugh graduated from Parsons College in June and is now in the U.S. Army at Ft. Gordon, Georgia. David is a freshman at Indiana State University at Terre Haute.

A telephone call from Helen McCracken Bennett revealed that daughter Sue is on the Mt. Lebanon High School Aqua Club diving squad. Son Wes is a 1st Lieutenant in the Strategic Air Command Titan II Missile Team at Little Rock, Arkansas. Crackers has been doing case work at the Ward Home for Children in Mt. Lebanon.

Louise Metzgar Iams reports that son Bill graduated in June from Northwestern Medical School and is a surgical intern at Johns-Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. He and his wife Pam are the proud parents of Christine Louise born May 18, 1966. Son Charles D., who graduated in February in business administration from Parsons College, is in the midst of job interviews and the "when and if" of military service. Louise, Charles and Dan enjoyed a Jamaica vacation last spring.

A card from Mary Crumay Kehew reported the birth of their first grandchild that morning, the son of their daughter Ann who lives in Baltimore. Their second daughter, Amy, graduates from Grove City College in June in elementary education. Sara, the youngest, is a sophomore at Hood College. Mary is doing substitute teaching and her chief teaching joy is a homebound eleven-year-old boy who has a heart condition.

Nancy J. Longnecker, in her twenty-sixth year with Koppers, is assistant to the director of public relations. Her eighty-nine-year-old father, for whom she keeps house, is in good health. Nancy has enjoyed some interesting travels—in 1960 to France and the British Isles, 1962 to Portugal and Spain, 1964 to Scandinavia.

Jane Metzger Epstine has two granddaughters, Abby Louise, 2, and Lesa Belle Morrison, 4. The four-year-old will be the third generation to go to Winchester this fall. Jane is the only woman vice president of the YM&WHA, a member of the board at Montefiore Hospital and a director of the Montefiore Ladies Aid Society.

A phone call from Ruth Morgan Lansberry when she was in Pittsburgh, told us of her new grandchild, Charles Thomas, born July 31, 1966. Ruth's daughter Elizabeth married an attorney and they live in Washington, D.C. Ruth is kept busy commuting between her home in Somerset and her mother's home in Pittsburgh.

After spending the first winter in seven years in Warren, Dorothy Newell sailed on April 10th on the New Kungsholm to visit the smaller ports and places she has never been, such as the Azores in azaelea time, Spain for the camellias, the wine country of France, apple blossom time in Normandy, Holland in tulip time, the Channel Islands, Wales and the Isle of Man. Last year's African Safari included visits to the famous "Treetops" and the Mt. Kenya Club, jeep trips to see the wild animals, and a gold miner's dance at a compound in Johannesburg.

Ruth Nirella, at Peabody High School, was busy with Oklahoma!, the senior class play. After her trip to Spain, Portugal, Sicily and the Middle East two years ago, Ruth visited Nova Scotia and the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Ontario. This summer it will be the seashore and a tour in her new Pontiac.

The Christmas blizzard in Philadelphia sent Carolyn Pierce May and her husband to the Reef in January, returning in March to their new apartment. Bob, Jr., is a Lt. in the Air Force. We are sorry to hear of the death of Carolyn's brother, Audley, in Spain.

Gertie Ray Mann and Carey visited Ruth Early in Fairmont after Ruth's husband died.

Ruth Ross has retired from teaching because of poor health. We hope things will be better for you, Ruth.

Helen Rowand Dunkle's daughter Christina is teaching in Oakmont High School, and Maryann is a freshman at Allegheny College. This keeps Helen busy sending "care" packages.

No weddings, grandchildren or graduations for Vi Sekey Jessop. The third and last college education in the family will be finished next year when Jennifer will graduate from Chatham.

Jean Saul had a fall on the ice in December, but fortunately no bones were broken.

The class is sorry to learn that Genevieve Shibley Karn's mother died in November. Her son Bill is back in the States and studying for his master's at Pitt.

Life is busy for Sallie Stevenson Foster. Susan graduated from Grinnell College last May, spent the summer studying ceramics with Marguerite Wildenheime in California, and has been accepted again for further study this summer. Nancy, a junior at Carleton College, spent last summer digging in the 13th century Indian ruins at Grasshopper, Arizona with the University of Arizona Archaeological Field School. Will, an Eagle Scout, is a high school sophomore. Sallie continues to work full time in public welfare and her husband still teaches at Scripps College.

Martha Stuart Muhlbeizler and her family still find North Carolina an ideal place to live. They are continuing in the beef business, raising some choice "steaks." Daughter Judith is teaching English at Memphis State University, having received her master's last summer.

Lillian Wilson Ruckel's son Bob is a student at Bethany College, and Linda is a 10th-grader.

Miriam Young White became a grandmother last November when son David and his wife Carol had a baby girl, Julie Carol White. Daughter Susan is at Newport School for Girls, Newport, Rhode Island this year. Mim is still teaching music at Hastings so she and her husband enjoy a busy schedule.

Dorothy reporting:

Helen Birmingham Proctor is working full time on market research projects, now in the publishing field in Rye, New York. She belongs to the Women's National Republican Club, New York City, and spends her spare time working at the Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, where she will be secretary of the auxiliary board for another two years.

The past year has been a sad one for Marion Burns Sabina. Her daughter Lynn's husband died January 11, as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident in March last year. Beside his wife, he leaves three children, Pamela, Kevin, and 14-month-old Gregg. The class extends its sincere sympathy.

Elizabeth Cober O'Donnell is still teaching and two of her girls are in college—Kathy, a junior at the University of Indiana, and Patty, a freshman at the University of Oklahoma. Judy is a sophomore in high school.

Katherine Dangerfield Buckmaster is still living at Faraway Farm, but finds houses and housing developments creeping up all around, thus the new address for the same location.

Margaret Eichleay Storer is now a full-time kindergarten teacher, and last summer started her climb toward a master's degree in reading and language arts at the University of Pittsburgh. Beside all this, she is house chairman for Harmarville Rehabilitation Center. Daughter Margaret is college hunting.

Jean Engel Reppun's family is growing up. Martha will graduate from the University of Hawaii this summer, Charlie is a sophomore at Hamilton, and Tom plans to attend the University of Puget Sound next fall.

Lois Ewing Unger's reply came just in time to include a granddaughter in this year's news. She was born on February 9, 1967 to daughter Melissa and husband James Eberz. Herbert, Jr. is in the Air Force stationed at Lackland, Texas. They also have a teenage son at home.

Shirley Gordon Emley's oldest son is married, and daughter Grace is a medical technologist at the University of Michigan Hospital. Jonathan is at Kiski.

Last summer Eleanor Harbison Bream's husband received an assignment to the U.S. Mission in Geneva, as executive officer of the U.S. Delegation to the 17-nation (since France withdrew) Disarmament Conference. They were delighted to have Anne McCullough Frey, '34, and her husband visit them briefly while touring Europe. Last September Eleanor and Gray drove to Greece via Yugoslavia, and covered practically all of the accessible mainland before taking the ferry back across the Adriatic Sea to Brindisi and thence up the east coast to Italy.

Caroline Hesse Ender has almost more substitute-teaching than she can handle and still have time for babysitting with her two grandchildren. Last summer she and her 84-year-old father enjoyed a trip west, but Caroline plans to be at home this summer and invites all for a visit and swim in their pool.

Winifred Jeffries Saxon is sorry to have missed our last reunion. She enjoys church and club activities, and a vacation in Florida.

The class extends its sincere sympathy to Louise Leadman Faller whose father died last summer following a heart attack. The family felt sadness at parting with Helgi Sindrason, the A.F.S. exchange student from Iceland who lived with them last year. On a brighter note Louise reports the purchase of a cottage at Lake Chautauqua and the anticipation of happy times there.

Prudence reporting:

Gail Mouromsef Keith and her husband enjoy the Reno, Nevada climate, many visitors from the east, and their activities in church work and in the mining engineers society.

Anna Claire Snyder Milford, Director of Nursing Service at Richmond Memorial Hospital and mother of three active sons (John, a senior at University of Richmond; Dale in second year of fine arts at Richmond Professional Institute; Jim, 15, in high school), says "I definitely reject the thought of a quiet old age—couldn't take it!"

Virginia Schweinsberg Hyde often accompanies her husband on business trips to L.A. and other glamour spots.

Gretel Trog Simmons, with three grown daughters and grandchildren, is now teaching in elementary school and helping the Girl Scouts. She says temptingly, "Don't just drive through—stop." They live in Daytona Beach, girls!

Helen Wilson Houston's daughter Jean was married April 1. Daughter Roberta is a high school senior. Both sons are lawyers in Pittsburgh.

Dorothy Taylor, in addition to her work at U.S. Steel Research, devotes her whirlwind energies to music, investment counseling and Pilot Club.

Mary Dolores Steinecke, living in Sarasota, reports a very satisfying routine—braille, church and AAUW.

Gertrude Russell Lydic's son Clark is a sophomore in electrical engineering at Lafayette. Son Jim is deciding on which college to enter.

Virginia Watkins DeMer's husband Larry is a hospital administrator in Jacksonville, Florida. Teenage daughter Genie is specially interested in dancing. The Demers family enjoys visits to Nassau.

Eleanore Splane Trullinger, on a recent sabbatical leave, has been doing graduate work at Adelphi University, and plans to return to teaching as chairman of the mathematics department, Syosset, L.I. She and husband Jim are close enough to New York City to enjoy the theatre and opera. Their two sons are in college.

I received a wonderful letter from John A. Sproull writing for Charlotte Wright Sproull, who has long been a hospital patient. Their daughters, Kathleen and Lucy, are married and have children. Son John teaches math at New Kensington High School. Charlotte sends greetings to all her friends from Torrance State Hospital, Jamison Building, Torrance, Pa. 15779.

Mary Seaver Hewitt and her Mellon Banker had a wonderful Christmas and New Years holiday in St. Croix, Virgin Islands.

Dorothy Wood Clarke's son Richard graduated with honors from Rensselaer (outstanding senior, etc.), was married on August 20 to Miss Mary Ann Tacy, and is now working on his master's degree. Barb is a senior at Bucknell. Among Dorothy's many pastimes is volunteer work with American Field Service.

Greetings from Vida Hurst Kerr and Don who live in Murrysburg with sons David and Andrew.

The experience of gathering news for five years has been an enjoyable and rewarding one for your two secretaries. Each year we received more responses and more notes of appreciation from you. We thank you for this as we look forward now to seeing you at our Thirtieth Reunion on June 3, 1967.

Gretchen Adams Dennison sends appreciation and best wishes to the class.

Connie Bell Sedgwick keeps busy with her work for the Montanari Clinical School for emotionally disturbed children. Connie and son Dwight took a whirlwind trip through Switzerland in March last year. Dwight was one of seventeen Georgia Tech students chosen to take a ten-week trip to Germany, Poland and Russia during the summer. He is a senior this year and will start on his master's degree in the fall. We were sorry to hear of the passing of Connie's other son, Sedgie, last August. We extend our deepest sympathy to the Sedgwicks.

Betty Bevan Winkler is busy making plans for our reunion. Her daughter Helen became engaged at Christmas and began working as a receptionist at Crump Inc. in January. Son Henry is working on his master's degree at Ohio University and will probably go into the service after the school term.

Elizabeth Bradley will be leaving for a European vacation on May 26.

Martha Branch Culbertson and husband had a wonderful three weeks in Europe last April. Her family boasts two freshmen: Alan at Ohio Wesleyan and Anne in high school. For Christmas these two freshmen enrolled their mother in an eight-week sewing course, complete with textbook and much homework.

Mildred Brown McIntyre's daughter Claudia was married in March last year and is now living with her husband in Montevideo, Uruguay. (Embassy) Son Charles is at home this year taking courses in architecture at Kent State University. Mildred's four granddaughters keep her busy but delighted. Lowe's "Sea-Still"—making fresh water from sea water aboard boats—was introduced at the New York Boat Show. They hope for great things in the domestic and foreign markets.

Shirley Campbell Berg's family is practically grown up. Gretchen is a private secretary, attends Northeast Broadcast School, and hopes to get into radio work by spring. Peter and Geoffrey are at Yale, junior and freshman respectively. Russ is still in electronics at Avco, and Shirley does some substitute-teaching. In summer they manage several week-end trips with the trailer and without the young people who are otherwise engaged.

Nancy Diven Seagren's oldest son, Barry, is in his second year at Covenant Seminary in St. Louis. Dean, a junior at Cornell, is majoring in physics. Bill is a ninth-grader at Shady Side Academy.

One of our busiest classmates is Elsie Dressler Helsel. Just read what she wrote! "I am busier than ever, if that is possible, but enjoying every minute. This has been a big writing year with four publications. And I have a new job as Associate Editor of Mental Retardation Abstracts, and will 'moonlight' as a Consultant to the MR Division of Planning and Grants here in Ohio in the area of Protective Services. I have also been appointed to the Advisory Committee of the MR Division of the U.S. Public Health Service in Washington. My children are busy, too. Bill will probably be teaching English next year in Pennsylvania and living in our home there. Robin, our CP, works two days a week in the CP Workshop, and Margie is whizzing along in the accelerated program here in Upper Arlington. Life has been very good to us and we are grateful."

Early in June Helen Ferber Wikert will be leaving for a vacation in their new Airstream trailer. Daughter Diane will graduate from Fox Chapel Area High and plans to enter Pittsburgh Art Institute in September. Son Ray lives in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and works for Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Paint Division, as a chemical engineer. Helen is proud of her new grandson, Paul Raymond Wikert, born January 24, 1967.

Martha Jane Gerwig Rial was in New York with her husband when the blizzard hit. It was Tuesday evening and they could see any play they wished! Martha Jane's son Frank is a roommate of Nancy Diven Seagren's son Bill at Shady Side Academy. Fred graduated last June from Mercersburg Academy and is now an engineering student at Carnegie Tech.

Betty Grace Hammer Maxwell is already excited about seeing everyone at the reunion on June 3. At least twenty of our classmates have indicated they are planning to attend. We hope that many more will join us.

We learned that Lois Haseltine Moses' son has graduated from college and is married. James, the second of her three sons, is in Vietnam. Daughter Ann Louise is a senior at Penn Hills High.

Marguerite Heggie Bryson and husband enjoyed a carefree week in New York City. Son Michael is serving as editor of the Pitt Student Directory. He was one of fourteen selected for the national leadership honorary, Omicron Delta Kappa, was elected to Student Government as a Senator, and will be the delegate from Pitt's Chapter to the Sigma Chi convention in Miami in June. And he's still on the Dean's list! Jeanie's a sophomore at Penn Hills High taking project English and project geometry.

Louise Johnson Purnell enjoys working in the local water company office five hours a day. Son Dave is a junior at Princeton and John is in sixth grade. Husband Dave is with Laurel Pipe Line Co.

Betty McCarty Boyd moved from Pittsburgh to a beautiful ocean beach and year-round golf. When you get to South Carolina, she wants you to stop in and enjoy all this with her.

For relaxation, Margaret McBride McMaster has been taking piano lessons. She will be celebrating the 30th with a new house. Ready or not, the family is moving to McMurray on April 26th.

The most interesting news came from Eugenie Miller Snell. She is now a producer with Genesis Productions Inc., 27 Bank Street, New York City, 10014. (If you are in New York, phone WA 4-6626). They are producing a play on Broadway in October. It is "Song of the Grasshopper" by Alfonso Pasco, one of Spain's foremost modern playwrights. The director is Charles Bowden and the star will be Alfred Drake. They go into rehearsal on August 14 and will have a five-week out-of-town tour before the Broadway opening. Traveling with Charles has been exciting, too. He was promoted to Manager Line Services for all Butler Aviation last fall. They were stuck in the great snow of Chicago and then again in Boston. We hope they had sunshine on the West Coast in February.

Margaret Peebles Knauerhause enjoys working part time for her local Cable TV Company. Son Erik is a freshman at Penn State, Vicki a junior in high school, and Suzanne in ninth grade. They will be moving to Chillicothe, Ohio about June 1.

Jane Phifer Gwyer's son Gwilym is home from his tour of duty with the Navy and is working. Jane wishes she knew how to write a book so she could record some of his hilarious experiences.

Jean Phillips Horn is enjoying her job as medical secretary. Her husband is sales manager of Southern Fabricating Company. In June, 1966, son Jack received his master's in industrial engineering, and he and his wife moved to Smyrna, Georgia, where he is employed as an operations analyst for Lockheed Aircraft. Their daughter, Cynthia Leigh, was born on December 17, 1966. Jean's daughter Janice is still attending the University of Alabama.

Martha Potter Koerner and husband Vic are trying to keep up with a growing family. Their daughter Terry, a bio-chemist, is working in Boston. Fred is in his third year at Monmouth College, and Jim is in his third year at Mt. Lebanon High School.

1966 was highlighted for Kay Pyle by a trip to Mexico City and to Yucatan where she accumulated much interesting material on the Aztecs and Mayas, which she puts to good use in her Latin American geography classes.

Helen Royston Hollingsworth and family were moving to Portland, Oregon, in March. Helen regrets that she will have to miss the reunion.

Dorothy Sargent Garrison has two sons in the Navy. Tom, who is married now, is in a data system school in San Francisco, and Bob is a hospital corpsman stationed in Japan. Dot and Wally flew to San Francisco for a week at Thanksgiving. Dot continues her teaching at Wilksburg High School.

Isabel Silvis Sterling, encouraged by her family, is still absorbed in oil painting at the Cleveland Institute of Art. Judy, a sophomore at Wellesley, took two of her mother's paintings back to school with her. Pete is in ninth grade.

We extend our deep sympathy to Naomi Sayre Steck whose father died while visiting Naomi in September. He was buried near his home in Miami, Florida. Betty Mahood Arthurs and her husband represented all Naomi's friends down there.

Elsa Stiefelmaier Talbott sent no news this time but "got the ball rolling" by enclosing a check toward our class gift.

Lillian Taylor Franz and Bill enjoyed an October vacation in the Smoky Mountains and North and South Carolina. Enroute home, Lillian talked on the phone with Mary Yellig Early's daughter. Betty Grace Maxwell, Martha Torrence, Betty Williams, Betty Winkler and Lillian had an enjoyable holiday dinner at the Top of the Towers.

Thayer Thompson Russ writes that her son Eddie is studying for his master's degree at Pitt. He, Marianne and granddaughter live close by.

Mary Travers Scott's daughter Nancy was married on June 4, 1966, to Glenn Jenks. He has entered the Episcopal Seminary in Philadelphia and Nancy is teaching in the School for The Deaf in Philadelphia. In February Mary visited her other daughter in Midland, Michigan, and spent some time with Mary Jane Addy Braley while her daughter was teaching.

Mary Watson Seed is president of United Church Women in Greater Lawrence, New Hampshire. This, with her candy business, keeps her very busy. Kathy, a senior in high school, plans to go to college.

Olive Wilson has withdrawn from social activities to work intensively on the several books she has written about her art work, and which she illustrates with her own colored photographs. However, as a delegate, she attended the national convention of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century in Washington, D.C., this spring.

June 3rd

Alma reporting:

Elva Bogren Goodwin is really enjoying Japan, where her husband is with Alcoa. She has traveled a lot in Japan and South-east Asia this past year; has taken courses in Japanese dollmaking, woodcarving, flower arranging and brush painting; and for a while taught English at a Japanese high school. She is looking forward to our next reunion, even from Japan!

Peg Cooper Uptegraff's daughter #1 received her master's degree at Pitt and was married in June 1966 at Heinz Chapel, with the reception at Mellon Hall because she was graduated from Chatham. Daughter #2 is in pre-med at Penn State. The twins, 12, will join their parents for the Chautauqua 1967 season. Five of the Uptegraffs (#1 was busy elsewhere) flew in their Piper Aztec to Freeport, Nassau, etc., last March. They hope to go to Mexico this year.

Kay Cuthbert Hardee sent a Christmas letter she started in 1960, but couldn't find time to finish until 1966. During this time she was for a while the medical director of the Bryn Mawr Treatment Council for Alcoholics, one of the first of its kind using public health nurses and family doctors. She and Pearson spend their vacations on their cruiser, which they bought in 1964, and have made many friends among the boat owners who belong to the U.S. Power Squadron. Owning a springer spaniel has led to the development of another hobby—entering dog shows, not for breed but for obedience.

June Feick helped her parents celebrate their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary in December. The low balance in our class savings account bothers June.

Mary Gregg Stockton's daughters are both students at Carnegie Tech, where Mary still works.

Betty Hobbs Dougherty had just returned to McKeesport from British Honduras where the family goes each year for light tackle fishing. Her oldest son has been married four years, her daughter for two years, and one son remains at home. The family planned to return to British Honduras this spring, and to go to Norway in July.

Millicent Hoyt Faison flew to Mexico City recently with her husband for a week. Later a camping trip was planned for the sake of their son, 10, and daughter, 7.

Esther Jackson spent a week in Puerto Rico last summer. Her mother lives near Esther now, in Silver Spring, Maryland.

Jean Keenan Farrill is still teaching second grade near Cleveland. Her oldest daughter is finishing her doctorate after getting a two-year $10,000 fellowship.

Mary Jane Kerr Leonard is having a memorable year or two. Last April Rowland became executive director of the United Givers Fund of Richmond, Henrico and Chesterfield Counties. The family moved to Richmond in September, one daughter was married in December, and another daughter will be married in August.

Genevieve Love Smith is still teaching at Point Park College, which has become a four year institution. Genevieve's new spelling program was published by Appleton-Century Crafts last spring and is doing well.

The class extends deep sympathy to Letitia Mabaffey Andree whose father died January 13. Letitia is still teaching at Liberty School.

Amy McBride Bell continues to enjoy life in Lewisburg. In her spare time she is learning to play the organ.

You'll notice that Alma Mockler Bacon's address has been changed back to the old one in Clayton, Ohio. We returned last December after sixteen months in Ankara, Turkey, where my husband was General Social Welfare Adviser to the Republic of Turkey for the United Nations. Our three children attended school there. We found living in a different culture completely fascinating. Last summer we spent a month driving through Eastern Europe. In eastern Czechoslovakia we visited four villages looking for relatives who might have stayed behind even after seventy years but didn't really expect to find anyone. Much to our surprise we found my mother's uncle, his son, wife and two children—relatives I had never known about. Then we visited with Jarmila in Prague. She is fine, looks very well, and finally got the chance to do what she always talked about doing back in 1936-37—she showed me her beautiful city of Prague. Her husband and her son are well, too. She asked about everyone and she wants to be remembered.

Beth reporting:

Ellen Morehead Lewis' oldest son Eric is at the University of South Carolina. Lance is a junior in high school, and Bruce is a freshman, showing a keen interest in electronics. Ellen spends much of her time doing Bill's office work.

Hortense Norton Seedlock is the new "first lady" at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, where Maj. Gen. Seedlock recently became commanding general of the U.S. Army Engineer Center and Fort Belvoir. Bob, Jr. and his wife came for Christmas from Fort Carson, Colorado, on their way to Fort Ben Harrison, Indiana, and then to U.S. Army, Hawaii. Beth paid a later visit to Quarters 60, coming from Anchorage where she works at Headquarters, U.S. Army, Alaska. Walter is a sophomore at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and Marion, the youngest, is a high school junior.

Lillian McPetridge Wilson has been busy the past two years as president of the University of Virginia Hospital Auxiliary. They had Bob Hope for a benefit performance and raised $20,000 to furnish the new-born special care unit at the hospital.

Florence Ray reports that she continues to enjoy Seattle and the University of Washington where Medicare, Poverty, and Civil Rights Programs make great demands on the School of Social Work.

Florence Smith Hess and her youngest daughter expect to pay a visit to Chatham this spring. Her oldest child will enter medical school in the fall, and her second daughter is at Duke where she is a classmate of Betty Slocum Haldeman's daughter.

Betty Speer Schenck is enjoying her new role as a grandmother. Daughter Gretchen will be graduated in June from Denison, and plans to enter graduate school in the fall.

Betti Rindlaub Lord is teaching remedial speech in Philadelphia, and also has private clients. Betty visited with Esther Jackson while attending a convention in Washington, D.C., and enjoyed seeing Madge Mill Eulenstein and Virginia Gunning when she was in Pittsburgh last summer.

Ruth Ross Duer is in charge of six caseworkers and a secretary-receptionist at the new St. Helena branch office of the Welfare Department.

Rose Marie Weller Black reports that their daughter Marjorie, a senior at Winchester Thurston, was chosen as her school representative in the American Field Service Summer Abroad Program. She spent two months with a German family near Hamburg, an enriching and rewarding experience. Harry III, a junior at Allegheny, was his college conference wrestling champion last year. Rosemary is in first grade. Posie is secretary of three organizations and is busy with college visitations.

Helen Starkey Dixon reports nothing but snow-digging in Chicago this winter, and Ruth Wyant Riggs just says "Hello."

Doris Chatto Kimball is working for an interior decorator in the old Edgewood Station, and will be doing the buying for a new gift shop in the old baggage room. Molly is 12, Rich 10, and Amy 8.

Many thanks for sending your cards back so promptly. We are still in Pittsburgh, but Jerry is now busy with the construction of the new steel plant in Midland. Charles is a happy first-grader.

Dorothy Geschwindt Schieber (Mrs. Robert A.), 185 MacAlpine Road, Ellicott City, Md. 21043

Mary Linn Marks Colbaugh (Mrs. John H.), Longfellow Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15215

Ruth reporting:

Our sympathy goes to Betty Anne Bacon Kerestes whose husband passed away in January. Did you know that Betty Anne's daughter Margaret is a freshman at Chatham?

Jeanne Anne Ayres Widgery was one of the eight who attended our twenty-fifth reunion in June. We all were so delighted about her new book, The Adversary, and went home with autographed copies. The Widgery's summer plans include a trip to England and Wales to visit Rolande's family. While there, Jeanne Anne will do research for her new novel which is one-third done already! 56,000 words!

Alice Chattaway Kittle thinks she may write a book on how to empty old houses and remodel apartments. She and Jim moved after twenty years in the same house. Immediately afterwards she had to empty the house she was born in, as an encore! We are sorry to hear that Jim's mother died, and that Alice's mother is very ill.

Elizabeth Frey Wicke is delighted with her job as a social worker with neglected children. She also works at being a wife and mother, which also suits her just fine!

Dottie Geschwindt Schieber and Bob are back in Baltimore where they started twenty-five years ago. Bob is Plant Manager at the Westinghouse Molecular Division. Son David graduates from seminary in May, and oldest daughter Jan is married and lives in Ohio. Linda, the youngest, is a sophomore. Dottie was sorry to miss our twenty-fifth reunion, and really doesn't feel that old!

Also sorry not to have been here is Jean Hammer Schoman. Husband Earl has two church charges, and Nancy is tops in fifth grade. The only subject Jean hasn't taught is Shop in her duties as substitute teacher!

Natalie Lambing Paige and her mother toured England, Scotland, and Ireland by car, and came home with a Border Terrier by the name of Hanley Castle, but called Annie. Being lovers of the sea, the Paige family stays afloat as much as possible. Natalie and Peter took a trip down the Inland Waterway last October. Betsy Colbaugh Mabaffey was visiting so there was much catching up on news. Son Peter is a sophomore at the University of New Hampshire, Douglas in his last year at Choate, and Lee will go to boarding school next year.

Mary Linn Marks Colbaugh now lives across the street from her roommate Jean McGowan Marshall. Jack is Chairman of Liberal Arts and Sciences Department of Point Park College, and they are grandparents! Linn had a son November 18, 1966, James Eric Bowman. Ted is somewhere on the "Shark," the nuclear submarine.

Carol Martin is another who was sorry to have missed the twenty-fifth. She took the Roamer Tour and visited Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec for a lovely vacation last summer.

When Weasie McIntyre Casner wrote, the big Chicago snow had fallen, and they were digging their way out. Ted, 17, graduated in June, and is college searching. Christopher, 13, and Sandy, 12, are in junior high. A trip to Jamaica was planned for April.

Adelaide Mitchell Hughes, our globe-trotter, on her way back from Australia, stopped in Honolulu to see Helen Weller Tkach. Husband Jim travels a lot, so Mitch goes on one or two overseas jaunts a year. In May she is off to Europe. (When you are in New York, Mitch, give me a call. I'm only 40 miles north). Son Jim is in first year medical school at Stanford.

Mae Oettinger Schweinsberg's daughter Beth is married, and son John will be off to college in the fall.

Ruth Gracy Suttner is still teaching fifth grade, and has three high-schoolers. Living in California, she wanted to brag about the weather, but then it started to rain, buckets, as she was writing. You can't win them all!

As for Ruth Strickland Clark ('tis I) my roaming days are about over. Chet retires from the Air Force in June as a Lt. Col. after twenty years of active duty. I should write a book on what it is like to move 29 times in 25 years! Pam graduated from Parsons College in February, and plans to substitute teach until June. Then we are going to Europe to visit all the lovely friends we made during our five years there.

Mary Bertha reporting:

Our 25th was the best reunion yet, although only nine classmates attended, plus seven husbands. We were delighted to have Miss Marks as our guest at both luncheon and dinner. Following the luncheon, Jean Marshall presented our Class Reunion Gift of $1,455.84 to President Eddy. It represented contributions from 86% of the class membership, and has been put to good use in the newly renovated Buhl Science Hall. The reunion wound up—as all '41 reunions seem to do—at Jean and Butch Marshall's home where we saw movies of our graduation day, courtesy of Ruth Strickland Clark and Chet, who had taken the pictures. The Clarks and the movies, after 25 years, had finally caught up with a reunion. It was a great day, and we thank the Marshalls for their hospitality and the Clarks for the entertainment and the "late, late show." A word to the many who missed the 25th: Come and have fun in '71!

Eleanor Asp Stahl has completed a philosophy of education course at Urica College and is teaching business subjects at Rome Academy. John is industrial relations and personnel manager of Alcoa's Rome Cable Division. Son John is a high school junior, and daughter Carol teaches English in Norwich, New York, while working on her master's.

Dorothy Goff Stiteler is using her college Spanish while an exchange student from Chile is living with them this year. He is their youngest son's age and fits into the family quite well. In June they went to San Diego to the wedding of their Air Force son, and could not attend reunion.

Jane Pierce Eaton and Pat celebrated their 25th Anniversary with a month in Europe. Patty was studying in Italy all summer, so three Eatons had a family reunion in Rome. Sons John and David are in Fairbanks, Alaska and Bowling Green, Ohio, respectively. Pat was in a serious automobile accident in October, but has now nearly recovered from head injuries and multiple facial fractures. Jane is teaching a class of 21 third-graders.

Mildred Rudinsky Kochanski continues to plod toward a master's in elementary education, no small job with three active sons aged 4, 6, and 15.

Eleanor Schaffer Kautz's son David is an enthusiastic second-grader. John is taking night courses toward an M.B.A., and Eleanor continues in social work.

Jane Shidemanle Cross' tentative summer plans call for camp for the girls and a trip to Europe for Jane and Bob, depending on his summer research program.

Elinor Weibel Stoltz is so sorry she and Ed missed reunion. They were in Biloxi that week and could not juggle dates and planes and sitters to include Pittsburgh and Chatham.

Julia Wells Jackson writes: "I ran into Pat Kent Alier at parent's weekend at Washington and Lee last fall. We were each visiting our student sons. It was so nice to see Pat again who is as charming as ever." We heartily agree with those sentiments.

Charlotte Wolf Beckman's daughter Mary is now an R. N. at Toledo Hospital. Carl, 17, is a high school junior and works for a veterinarian in his free time, while Alan, almost 11, is enduring 5th grade.

Sue Woolridge Fishburn's answer was short and sweet: "No news is good news! Just plain busy, that's all."

I, Mary Bertha, enjoyed a wonderful fall vacation in Virginia and North Carolina which included another visit to Williamsburg and the Smokies. The Outer Banks were a new part of the world to me and the best part of the trip.

Thanks for the mail. It's truly a delight to receive, and I enjoy every reply. Only one complaint. You guessed it—not enough replies. So let's get with it the next time the postman brings your Class News post card. Like Christmas, it comes but once a year . . .!

Jean Archer Rothermel's second son spent last summer in France, and this summer the Rothermels will have a French teenager living with them. In the meantime, Jean is back at college studying library science.

Mary Campbell Eckhardt is busy with their antique business. Daughter Lynne works in Wilmington, Delaware, and son Robert expects to enter Harvard in the fall. A sailing trip around the Exuma Islands in the Bahamas is being planned.

Two weddings this year for Nancy Doerr Wilson—one daughter married last June and another to be married in May. A German boy has lived with them this year, attending school with their son Rick.

Janice Goldblum is curriculum consultant in the central administrative offices of the Los Angeles school district.

Louise Haldeman Richardson's daughter Barbara was married in April 1966. Fourteen-year-old Cindy was hospitalized as the result of a tobagganing accident.

Claire Horwitz Klein, busy with community activities, was on the program for Carnegie Library Biennial Program Services Institute. Sons Alan and Evan are 16 and 11, respectively.

Eleanor Keffer Hoon and Bill enjoyed an Indian Summer cruise on the Queen Elizabeth.

Marian Lambie Arnheim's sons are both freshmen this year, David at Yale, and Dan at Shady Side Academy. Daughter Louise is in fifth grade at Linden School and studies ballet at Chatham.

Althea Lowe McCalmont is chairman of the behavioral sciences department at Point Park College.

Amy McKay Core, in her capacity as Alumnae Fund Chairman, expresses her appreciation for the help of the many classmates who worked on the 1966-67 campaign.

Nina Maley Ross' children range in age from 19 to 9.

Connie Meyer Waldschmidt's three sons are Chad, a freshman at Hillsdale College in Michigan, Bob, a sophomore at Fox Chapel High School, and the youngest who belongs to The Idlers—three guitars, drum and singer—who practice at home. Summers are spent at Conneaut Lake.

Two trips to New York are Jeannette Myers Erler's news this year.

Dorothy Minneci McCabe, after moving from Le Roi Road to Penham Lane, planned a trip to Florida in March. Daughter Patti is a junior at Winchester-Thurston.

Two sons, 15 and 10, and two daughters, 13 and 7, keep Marjorie Noonan Ladley busier now than when they were youngsters.

Janet Ross, still with the West Area YWCA, traveled to California last summer by way of the Trans-Canada Highway, and visited her sister, Ruth Duer, '39, in St. Helena.

Mary Schweppe Hoffman's three daughters went in as many different directions last summer—Mimi to France, Mary to Chautauqua, and Becky to summer school.

Priscilla Sweet Bentley reports a busy family. One son is a junior at Clemson University; the other will graduate from Westminster School for Boys in June. Husband Bob, a civilian after 22 years in the Navy, is personnel officer at the new Georgia Mental Health Institute; and Priscilla is chairman of the English department at Dykes High School.

Peggy Suppes Yingling's daughter Ann is married and teaches sixth grade in Bethel Park, and June and Molly will graduate from high school and junior high in June.

A June 1966 move to Indiana, following Bob's transfer in March, was the big event for Louise Wallace Menges last year. Daughter Merrily, now a senior at Indiana University, studied in Sweden and Russia last summer. Sally is working for a year before starting to college, Bobby is a junior at Munster High School, and David is in kindergarten. Louise returned to Pittsburgh in December to attend the Chemical Society dinner honoring her father.

Marion Kieffer Arnold's sons are Mike, 17, and Doug, 14. Husband Tom works with the computer recently installed in the lab at Vanderbilt Hospital Clinical Research Center.

Gloria Silverstein Goldberg and her husband celebrated their twentieth anniversary with a Scandinavian trip. Gloria is working part time as a teacher's aid in a learning center for educationally disadvantaged children.

Peggy Wragg Bender's family is growing up. Allen and John are junior and freshman at University of Southern Florida; Jane is a high school junior; Roy, Jr. is in junior high school, and Robin in sixth grade.

I, Pat Byers, have four-year-old Chuckie at home, while Paul is a junior and Kris a sophomore in high school. Dorothy Autore's help in preparing the class news is very much appreciated, considering how busy she is with five youngsters, the youngest just three. It is not too soon to begin thinking about our 25th reunion in 1968.

Mary Jane Youngling Tygard (Mrs. Ralph E.), 1201 McKenna Way, R.D. #7, Greensburg, Pa. 15601

Janny Beck Jameson's daughter Priscilla is a freshman at Chatham, as is my daughter Pam. Both girls report Chatham is the "greatest." Janny is doing some substitute-teaching and Bill is president of the school board. Their sons are 12 and 16.

Janet Brewster Reynolds' husband John is now at Lockport Sears (that romantic little town), but they have not moved as yet.

Professional work plus being United States Representative for Paris American Academy of Music is keeping Pauline Basenko Thomas busy. Her daughters, Paula, 15 and Lilli, 11, are also musically active. Pauline expects to make her first trip abroad this summer.

Helen Clewer Armstrong is still teaching fifth grade, and Marion Coben is still playing the piano, both happy in what they are doing.

Miriam Davis Schellbaas' daughters are both in high school, and the older one was Homecoming Queen last fall.

Harriet Fleming Murryn is busy trying to keep up with her boys aged 14 and 11.

The Pasadena Star News can now boast of having our Louise Flood Egan as a columnist.

June Collins Hopkins' son Bill, and Phyllis Ingraham Stout's daughter Sue were both American Field Service Exchange Students last summer, Bill in Turkey and Sue in Germany and Italy. In January, Sue represented New Jersey at the Youth in Government Week in Washington, and Bill represented Maine.

Barbara Hansen Cummings' daughter Suzanne will be an exchange student this summer in Holland.

Janet K. Kennedy has been in Boston since 1948. She arrived as a graduate student in social work from Smith, and for the past fifteen years has been at the Judge Baker Guidance Center—a children's psychiatric clinic. For the past eight-and-a-half years she has helped to run its residential treatment center.

The Skating Club Carnival, with 300-400 costumes, has Audry Heston Kidder going in circles, or maybe it's figure eights.

Ruth Jenkins Horsburgh, with Kenny and the children, went to Mexico for Easter. Carolyn Cosel Lampl had a quick ten-day trip to London with Jack last fall, and spent Christmas with the family in Montego Bay, Jamaica.

Edith Succop Dibble expects to move in June. (Note new address).

Lois Lutz Pierce is moving to Dayton, but has no new address as yet. Jane Wood Ziercher loves her new address and the whole family is in the swing of things with church, school, etc.

Nina McAdams Handloser is doing some substitute-teaching in kindergarten, and spent two weeks last summer cruising on a friend's 40' sailboat. The cruise was sponsored by their Yacht Club and took them to Catalina Island, Ensenada, Mexico, and the Todos Santos Islands, Mexico.

Betty McCrory McBride will be getting her oldest off to college next fall. The McBrides spent last summer camping their way to the West Coast with trailer and six children.

Petie McFall Schall is still active in the Symphony Young Peoples Concerts and P.T.A. Anyone living in her Ward will have an opportunity to help vote Petie in as Republican Committee Woman in May.

Jeanne McKeag Steele sends her love to all from Reynoldsburg, Ohio. John is with the Federal Bureau of Roads. John, Junior, is a freshman at Ohio State, Ellen is attending Ohio University, and Charles is a junior in high school.

The class sends sympathy to Jane Meub Evans on the loss of her mother in January.

Marie Minnemeyer Huston's husband was named "Boss of the Year" by the Jaycees of Manassas. Congratulations!

Jane Murray Blair, still active in scouting and P.T.A., spent five wonderful weeks in Michigan last summer.

Emily Noll Zerbe and I must have crossed paths some place last summer. The Zerbes trained to Montana, then drove to Glacier National Park, Waterton Park, Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper in the Canadian Rockies, then on to Seattle. They flew back. We flew to Vancouver, visited Seattle and Victoria, then boarded the train to come east with stops at Jasper, Lake Louise, and Banff.

Eleanor St. Clair Hurtt's son Bill will graduate from Harvard in June and has announced his engagement to Stephanie Pearce of Rumson, New Jersey. Andrea is a student at Winchester-Thurston, and Betsy is in school in Ligonier.

Jean Thomas Fisher has a daughter in the same junior high where she teaches and an older daughter in high school.

Helen Truxal Noyes missed our last reunion for a good reason—she was receiving her master's degree that day. Young David is now at Exeter, Martha is at home, and Helen is teaching English.

Virginia Volkey McVickar is the interior decorator at Gimbels, South Hills Village, and is also doing some free lance writing. Husband Gren is a stock analyst.

Tillie Wilcox Moncrief reports seeing Portia Geyer McCoy often. The Moncriefs have taken up skiing and enjoyed a week at Killington, Vermont.

Mary Jane Youngling Tygard has moved to the woods (literally) in back of Mountain View Inn off Route 30. They are learning to be country cousins by trowel and error. Ralph is now controller with Vasco Metals in Latrobe.

Polly Wilson Ackenheil is back after a marvelous year in France. She is busy working on our 25th Reunion and has high hopes for help from all of us.

Martha Cox Hartman is in bed with her "back out of whack," so while she lolls in bed dreaming of her vacation in Europe next summer with Howard and the children, I have been reporting for both of us. Coxie is still busy with the League of Women Voters and my most exciting activity is working as a volunteer guide at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

We had lots of notes this time and it was wonderful. There was no great news, but "hellos" from Lois Allibouse Harnack, Alice Demmler, Alice Hanna Ference, Janet Harkless Beattie, Virginia Harper Dale, Helen Robinson Forsyth, Gertrude Schmeichel Hutson and Patty Smith Joyner.

Patty reporting:

I enjoyed getting reacquainted with all of you if only via the postman. I hope more answer my cards next year.

Greetings, but no news, from Ruth Arnold Harmon and Rosemary Hoge Miliken.

Ann Lee Alexander reunited before Christmas at the King Edward with Gloria Molinatto Spellacy, Pat Gersmann Joseph and Rusty Baird Grinder.

Patti Balch Lando plans to vacation in Mexico City and Acapulco with Bob. Daughter Sandi is waiting to hear from college, and son Mark is a sophomore at prep school.

Margie Bennett Sherts vacationed at the shore last summer with Gloria Loller Lewis and Rusty Baird Grinder and families.

Elva Braziell Hively is kept busy with sophomore and senior high school students. She had a Florida vacation and an annual visit with June Davies Rush.

Helen Brown Michaels and family, including Helen Jeanne, 4½, and Eileen, 2, enjoyed a vacation in San Francisco. Our sympathy to Helen on the death of her father in October.

Alice Burns Kasimirskey is enjoying warm Florida weather, is busy with tennis business, and invites all Florida vacationers to visit her in St. Petersburg.

Margaret Cavanaugh Boylan is enrolled in the counselor education program at the University of Pittsburgh on a full-time basis, and plans to have her M.A. by June. "Children love a book-totin' Mom," she says.

Ruth DeHaven Rigg vacationed in San Francisco last summer, and co-authored a research paper that was published in February.

Peggy Dodge Poindexter is working on the Symphony Fund drive in Pleasant Hills.

Ellie Goldfarb Hirsh and family are moving to New York City after seventeen years in Glencoe, Illinois.

Pat Gersmann Joseph reports Herb's promotion to Office Collection Force (Internal Revenue). Pat has recovered from a serious accident which occurred in September, 1965, and visited with Ellen Card Donnell in Boston this winter.

Gi Gi Gilliland Denniston was visited by Joan Wiley Nutting while Gi Gi was living in Florida. Joan is a tournament bridge player these days. Gi Gi and family recently moved to California where her children have found the delight of surfing. Flip is a freshman at Stanford and plans to spend next year on campus in Germany.

Ruth Grasso Vaughn traveled from Texas to Florida to Erie, Pa., via station wagon and camper. She spent the summer aboard their yacht (the Ruth M.), then cruised the Great Lakes, the Mississippi, and finally back to Texas.

Else Greger Miller reports all children in school, grades 1, 3, 4 and 6.

Vicki Haverstick Myers loves North Carolina, but would like to see some Chathamites once in a while.

Marie Huot Kenyon's daughter Suzanne attends Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, studying art. Marie and her younger daughter live in Pennsbury Village. Marie is busy with her job at Oliver Tyrone Corp., and vacationed in the Bahamas in June.

Lee Hutton Sage's son is studying forestry at Paul Smith's College in the Adirondacks. The family has moved back to the Sage family farm in Bradford, and Lee is busy taking care of a fifteen-room house.

Alice Kells enjoyed dining with President and Mrs. Eddy and Dean and Mrs. Henderson at a January Chatham alumnae meeting in San Francisco.

Esther Kennedy Macdonald's daughter Barbara is a sophomore at San Diego State College. Son Bruce is 2½.

Angie King Sedwick announces husband Bob's new position as director of George Washington University's Tidewater Center, which is composed of 350 graduate students. He is also director of his own consulting firm, Administrative Research Associates. Their son Curt is in tenth grade and became an Eagle Scout in December. Daughter Betsy is in junior high and is also active in Scouting. Angie works with the Girl Scout Service, Lay-Readers for High School, and is University representative at Fort Monroe Wives' Club.

Gloria reporting:

Mary Alice Kline Morris' oldest daughter, Marty, will enter West Virginia University next fall in music education. Mary Alice and Betty Fleck Hendrickson visit together now that they call West Virginia home.

After nine months of renting, Leslie Lees Birch is busy settling the family in their new west coast home. Ed's latest spy case resulted in the arrest of a German Sgt. at March Air Force Base. The girls look forward to using their pool this summer, and Leslie is enjoying being reunited with her brother and sister after many years.

Another communication from the west coast is from Lois Powers Moore whose family enjoys the daily sunshine and the 70-80 degree winter weather. Tom, Jr., a junior at Penn State, and Ed, a ninth-grader, are both six-feet-plus.

Peg Schumacher Meyer hopes they never have to leave Arizona. Her latest project is the transcription of braille.

And would you believe that in the fall it will be kindergarten for Marty Steward Dimmick's youngest and college for the oldest? College in the fall for Jessie Smith James' oldest, too.

Norma Trozzo Hopkinson and Sam are planning a Bermuda vacation with the Conleys (Dolores Baney) this year.

Nancy Walters Cobetto writes of a luncheon reunion with Nancy McDonald Sutherland, and of making arrangements and accompanying songstress Betty Gillett and husband.

Laura Wiley Robertson and family will remain in Rome for another year or more. Last summer's boat trip took them to the desolate, cold North Cape of Norway. This year they will bring the children to the States for a quick visit in July.

Reports of busy lives but no "news" came from Virginia LeFurgy Tabbs, LaVerne Lowar Scott, Barbara Mason, Peggy McSwigan Friday, Janet Thomas, and Joan Werner Peterson who mentioned our pleasant reunion last June.

And speaking of last June, the reunion was fun—perfect weather, good company, lovely surroundings, luscious hors d'oeuvres and punch, and a gourmet supper. Sorry you couldn't all be here. Hope to see you next time. And it's not too soon to begin thinking about our 25th reunion gift to the College. Start filling those piggy banks!

DEATH

Sally Francis Mayball, November 5, 1966. We extend our sincere sympathy to her husband and family. A class gift has been made to the Library in memory of Sally and the four other classmates who have died since graduation: Helen Echelmeyer, Ariana Powell Hall, Catherine Stauffer Monteverde and Margaret Baltzer Brunko.

Jeanne Balter Alexander wrote just before leaving for their annual trip to Puerto Rico. Her children are Lee, a high school sophomore, and Lynn, a sixth-grader.

Lu Berry Wenneker and family returned to their home (1120 Wightman Street, Pittsburgh 15217) in August after spending the summer camping all over Greece, and attending the theater festivals in Epidaurus and Athens.

Elaine Beyer Zivkovich and family had a long weekend trip to the Shenandoah Valley in October. We extend our sympathy to Elaine whose father died last August.

Irma Catcart Prine and her husband spent two weeks in Florida, and they got together with Marjorie Alexander Brinkworth and Don in December. Irma has been elected Elder of her Presbyterian Church, is active in the League of Women Voters, and is consultant to their Scout Troop.

Elizabeth Christy Snell enjoyed a skiing vacation. They have two cheerleaders in the family, Tina in senior high, and Lindy in junior high. Tommy is swimming
A.A.A. and Jimmy is in kindergarten.

Barbara Evans Dismukes took their Golden Retriever to Indianapolis for breeding; the result in February—"seven gorgeous golden babies!"

Mary K. Fletcher Anderson says Mt.
Vernon is their town. She and Lois Ann Planck Russell have been trading recipes and visits.

Jean Forward Frank is taking two courses at Chatham, at the same time keeping up with the ski craze. Jean broke her arm in December, not skiing, but reports complete recovery.

Jean Fraser Bailey's two teen-age sons and 10-year-old daughter keep her busy.

Bobby Hanson Helm, busy with P.T.A., hospital auxiliary, teaching 4-year-olds at church, and YMCA building fund drive, hopes to make it from Wisconsin to our reunion.

Louise Heineman Harper reports the usual family activities, but quiet mornings with both children in school.

Barbara Hoge Dansak says Art's business is developing and they and their children—teen-age son and six-year-old daughter—enjoy the 70° winter weather in Phoenix.

Betty Junk Weltman, like most of us continues to be busy with church and neighborhood activities.

Harriet Kerr Daye taught in the Vernon County Headstart Program last summer after a week's orientation at the University of Connecticut at Storrs (a vacation for the rest of the family!).

Ann Lanicker Ulrich says a jet trip to California was the highlight of their year.
In San Diego, they visited a destroyer bound for Vietnam, a thrilling but sobering experience.

Jane Linton Smith is teaching corrective reading full time in the Westfield schools.
They have become campers and are looking forward to seeing Newfoundland and Labrador next summer.

Marjorie Livezy Sims is teaching 3rd grade again this year. They are looking forward to a grand celebration in June when husband John receives his B.S. degree after 9 years of part-time school!

Eleanore Luthringer Matson and Ray attended a meeting of the Chemical Marketing Research Association in San Juan, and Eleanore is "working again" as financial secretary at the Valley Presbyterian Church.
Their children, Ginger, 13, Barbara Jean, 9, John, 6, and Scott, 3, are involved in singing, Scouting, camping, riding, etc.

Olga Mamula Kaish is teaching two adult education classes, one on physical fitness for women, and an Americanization class, and she is serving as vice president of Central New York Water Resources Council. Her husband is with General
Electric, and has been promoted to Lt.
Col. in Marine Corps Reserve. Their four children are aged 2, 5, 7 and 9.

Marilyn Marks Zelt's oldest son graduates from high school this year. We extend our sympathy to Marilyn whose mother died last November.

Carol McCollough Stride and family have been transferred back to Pittsburgh.
She hopes to see everyone at Reunion.

Jean McGregor Kondrat and family, their house torn up for five months while being enlarged from 7 to 10 rooms, escaped for four weeks via camper trailer to Yosemite and Yellowstone Parks. Jeff is 15 and 6' tall, and the twins are 13.

Jean Moreledge Michaelian is very happily settled in Virginia where they are still considered "Yankees." Her parents are on a 95-day cruise around the world, following
Dr. Moreledge's retirement.

Carolyn Mountford DeFrance is back in college taking courses to renew her teaching certificate.

Joan Nusbaum Cone and family plan to tour the country by camper this summer.
Husband Art has written a book on fishing which is being published by Macmillan and should be on the market next fall.

Fran O'Neil Kerr is back east again after 6 interesting years on the West Coast.

Shirley Patterson Kroske moved to Greenville, South Carolina, where husband
Bill has taken a new position with an advertising agency. She says Pittsburgh is only 4 hours away in her little Cessna.

We all wish to express our deepest sympathy to Jane Reed Shaffer whose husband
Ed died on January 7, 1967.

Mary Lou Rider is taking a course in group guidance techniques at Western Reserve, and an adult education class in advanced bridge.

Virginia Rix Markle had a week in San Francisco while husband Bob attended school, and enjoyed renewing acquaintances with Barbie Moore Hageman and Hal.

Joyce Robinson Houck is still participating in mother-daughter field hockey, with the field getting longer and Joyce's breath shorter! Will she be able to play with her 3-year-old when she reaches junior high? Stay tuned!

Ann Shane Perkey is teaching kindergarten and plans to become permanently certified in elementary education. They enjoyed a Christmas visit from Timmy Mountford DeFrance and her family.

Mary Shumaker Drake is missing the cold less and enjoying Houston more. Our deepest sympathy to Mary whose mother died last October.

Beverly Stein Johnston attended the National Association of Independent Schools Conference in New York.

Katie Trench Pittman's husband Frank was made an engineering manager of the Westinghouse Molecular Electronics Division.

Mary Lou Tite Ellsworth is active in Cadette Scouting, P.T.A., the College Club, and the children's play group called the "Pretenders." Their camping spirit will take them on a trip to New England and Nova Scotia this year. The Ellsworths and Smiths (Jane Linton) live only a block apart and attended the Army-Navy game together.

Candy Walker Hyser and family enjoyed a vacation at Ocean City, New Jersey.

We want to thank those of you who returned your cards saying "hello!" even though you had no special news—Jeanne Anderson Nesbit, Electra Anthon Caloyer, Liz Barnhart Blaine, Ruth Brodnax Craig, Mary Jane Ewing Sipe, Patricia Hardy Buits, Peggy Thompson Weil, Jean Tigaris Karidis and Mary Elizabeth Wiles Knight.

To everyone: we are glad that so many of you plan to attend our reunion Saturday, June 3. It promises to be the most enjoyable yet! Arrange now to be on hand. We'd love to see you! Your responses make our work less of a job and more of a joy!

G-G reporting:

Eleanor Balent Young and her family have joined the campers' ranks and covered Mt. Rainier, Olympic National Park, Pacific beaches, parts of the Cascade Mountains, and parts of Oregon via the sleeping bag and tent route. Eleanor is also taking elementary education courses.

Ann Crouse Harvey and Dave have been in the Chicago area since December when he took a new job with Fisher Scientific Company. They hope to be in their new home in Griffith, Indiana by mid-April. Ann is planning to come to reunion.

Anne de Shazo Robertson, Tom, and the boys returned from Switzerland in July and are busily adjusting to life in the States. Anne is working on a Ph.D. in clinical psychology at Catholic University.

Madelyn Engelhardt Sayles is forever grateful to the Machinists' Union—she and Bert were stranded in Spokane, Washington, by the airline strike and had a fabulous trip home in a rented car.

Norma Jean Gittins Stoffer met Jean Wilkovsky at an AAUW meeting shortly after N.J. and Van's move to Lorain, Ohio. While N.J. goes to meetings, Van is building a pipe organ in the basement.

Andy Holden Loudon is the associate editor of a new Wall Street publication, Mergers and Acquisitions.

Shippa Hoy Dible is moving again—which will make five houses in a little over a year. Len has been promoted to production manager of Alcoa's Davenport, Iowa, works, so they must leave the present home which they lived in only three months.

Alice Ann Jones Winner and son Chris are coming home for the 1967-68 school year. A.A. will stay with her father and get the education credits she needs to teach at the American International School in Vienna, and Chris will spend his first year in an American school. A.A. says she never wants to work as hard again as she and George did this fall opening their laundromat.

Pat Kennedy Earley has held several posts in the League of Women Voters. She and her family took their first trip west, and also spent several days in New York City where Pat had lunch with Joan Young Drugmond and Mary Jane Regal Hagemeister. In August, Donna Bischoff Mees visited Pat.

Our sympathy to Louise Larson McGeary on the death of her father in July. She and Hunter and their son did some traveling last year, from Florida to Cape Cod to Niagara Falls to the Poconos—not all at once!

A report of good health and nothing new from Lois Franke Lee, and a hello from Marilyn Black Auchterlonie whose sons are enjoying their new sister.

As for the Tritschler's, we're all thunder-struck at the sheer energy of toddler Charles and waiting for the snows to melt so the second season of the Saratoga Performing Arts Center will begin. To all who may come this way to see it or go on to Expo 67, please call. Confirm your reservations at reunion!

Shirley Elliott Johnston reporting for Shippa:

Patricia Meyer Kovacs spent the summer in Nantucket and a winter vacation in Jamaica.

Laura Miksch Diaz drove with her husband, mother and two daughters to Florida last June, arriving in Dunedin just two hours ahead of hurricane Alma. Added to this excitement, daughter Tami was stung by a scorpion and had to be treated at the local hospital!

Nanna Moore Pollitt has returned to college to complete certification to become a high school librarian, now that all four children are in school. Don has been promoted to assistant manager of the Fruit and Vegetable Division of the American Agriculture Marketing Association.

Patricia O'Keefe Beede has also returned to college as a graduate student at the State University of New York in Albany, aiming for a master's in education. Pat and her family enjoyed trips to Washington, D.C., and Cape Cod.

Rosella Petraglia, while vacationing in Hawaii, was delightfully surprised at Wai-kiki Beach to meet Dr. Thomas H. Hamilton, the President of the University of Hawaii. All '51ers will remember Dr. Hamilton who was Vice President of Chat-ham when we were in school. Rosella also visited Stella Pavloff in Los Angeles on the way back from Hawaii.

Elizabeth Rudisill Beadle started the New Year right by winning a Mustang Fastback from Philadelphia radio station WIBG! !

Emily Seaberg Barends' oldest children, Jenny Ann, 9, and Frans, 7, are members of a competitive swim team.

Marlene Shettel Stovicek spent ten days in Acapulco in February. Now that the youngest, Bart, is in kindergarten, Marlene is spending more time on the bookkeeping at E. J. Stovicek Company.

Norma Smith Watters and husband Les spent their sabbatical leaves from February through August, 1966, traveling 33,697 miles by car within the United States. They also purchased a lot on the Island of Montserrat in the Carribean and planned to go there during spring vacation. Norma took comprehensive examinations to qualify for the doctoral program at Pitt.

Marguerite Sullivan Hannon has traveled with husband Jack to Florida, California, Las Vegas, New York, Greenbrier, Capon Springs, Washington, D.C., Cleveland, Erie and Detroit where he is opening training centers with a unique programmed instruction. "Mugs" is busy also with four children and their related activities.

Peggy Tucker Thompson, her husband and four children spent last year in Cambridge, England, with a two-week April holiday in France and Geneva where they stayed for two days with Anne DeShazo Robertson. During June, July and August they lived in a tent and toured England, Scotland, Wales, France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Belgium. Peggy highly recommends this way of "doing" Europe with four children on $18.00 a day. They saw Phyl Dornberger ('48) on a bench outside of Wells Cathedral, England, and pitched their tent next to Helen Primrose Andersen in Edinburg Municipal Campground. "A fantastic adventure for all of us and we're counting the years to our next sabbatical," says Peggy.

Joann Walthour has our deepest sympathy in the sudden death of her father in January. In July, 1966 Joann and a friend flew to London to attend the Tenth International Summer School of the Nursery School Association of Great Britain and Northern Ireland at New College, Oxford. After a month in England, they went on to Amsterdam and Copenhagen, and sailed home on the Queen Mary.

Pat Whitehill Kirk is enjoying her adventure in Europe where her husband is the Group Head of Computer Programmers with the Belgium Air Defense. The children attend the local school, and have become quite fluent in French. They will be in Liege until June, and then will make another move somewhere in Europe before returning to California by June of 1968.

Joan Young Drugmand is "thinking snow" since they bought a piece of Vermont. They now have a chalet located at Jay Peak ski area.

Lois Young Flyte is going to sell some things she sews at the newly-opened Women's Exchange in Chagrin Falls. The Flytes traveled east last summer, and made a trip to Canada via Niagara Falls.

Peg Shafer Shuck, Audrey Sommers Whigham and Martha Whaley Webster hope to see all of us at our reunion on June 3rd.

As for the Johnstons, we are enjoying every detail of the building of our "dream house" where we expect to move in June. See you on June 3rd!

Phyllis reporting:

Sincere sympathy to Diane Barratt Swift whose mother was killed in an automobile accident in Ohio, November, 1966.

Miraculously, her father survived and is doing well. Diane is teaching piano for the children's choir at church, and is busy with four children, ages 8, 4, 2, and 14 months.

Sheila Burke Loeffler also has four children, and is a substitute teacher in the grade schools. She performed in the Junior League production of Peter and the Wolf.

Greetings from Alice Berry Adams and Catherine Cornish Montgomery who are busy with their families. Alice and this reporter see each other every week "before and after" at the beauty parlor.

Thelma Fiori Lacerte and her husband are planning a trip to the mid-west this summer with their four daughters.

Cynthia Fortanier Wagar and family are excited about their new Sedan Cruiser that will sleep six. Bill will be getting his master of science degree in June. Cynthia has been in touch with Sylvia Wales Grabam, and Carmen Gardner Reeve who has five children.

Elizabeth Franz Purdum is still trying to promote better understanding of the social and educational needs of the mentally retarded by continuing as director on the board for the Monterey Peninsula Association for Retarded Children. Elizabeth's husband Bill graduates with his M.A. in June.

Bunny Fraser Bell and family enjoyed visiting the historic spots around Boston during their vacation. She and husband Dick went to a Chatham dinner in Boston and met President Eddy for the first time.

Lois Glazer Michaels is busy with her family and also as president of Ladies Hospital Aid Society, P.T.A., and human relations committees. The Michaels summer at Wellfleet, Massachusetts and winter in Florida.

Diane Gray Hall is Republican State Committeewoman for Dauphin County, her third term.

Helen Halpern Berkson and family are pleased to be back in the east after all those years on the west coast. They are hoping this move will be permanent and are looking for a home. The Berkson's enjoyed their summer vacation at Yellowstone National Park.

Sincere sympathy to Lynn Hann Baxter whose father passed away in August, 1965. Lynn was graduated from Westminster College in New Wilmington last spring, and is now teaching at Sharon Junior High School since her three children are all in school.

Peggy Harbison Hendrickson is spending this year with her family in Pittsburgh, while her husband is in command of an army aviation section in Vietnam. She is teaching at the Home for Crippled Children, and enjoys a monthly get-together with Marie Damiano, Jean Schofield Fornof, Barbara Logan Brown and Marie Richards, '54.

Sally Hoffman Spangler is busy with the Tam O'Shanter's All Girl Fife-Baton-Drum Corps and is director of the Jr. Corps, known as the Kiltie Kadets. She is also vice chairman of Somerset County Young Republicans, does substitute-teaching, and looks after three children.

Last spring Marion Gallup Drummond went on a concert tour with an Oberlin violinist, and she is still performing at the piano and vocally. Her three children are all playing the violin. When her boys played in a concert in Columbus, she visited with Jean Sweitzer Bower.

Natalie Kaufman Levant is enjoying a player piano which her husband won as a contestant on "Concentration."

Nancy J. Lutz traveled this past year in a professional capacity—in April to New York City to attend the National Science Teachers' Convention; in June to Miami Beach to attend the annual convention of the National Education Association.

Our sincere sympathy to Jean Sweitzer Bower and Marcia McDowell Bennett on the death of their mothers.

Many thanks to Sally Crum Ferrell for her news to this secretary.

Your secretary is now a real "scribe," helping Dick. He recently formed his own company, the R. M. Spitz Company, and yours truly is secretary and bookkeeper. We attended a scrap convention in Los Angeles, and were amazed at the amount of paper work that piled up while we were gone. Charlie, 11, still plays the drums, Billy, the accordion, piano and clarinet, and Kathryn, the piano. Needless to say, the Spitz household is noisy!

Jeannine reporting:

Two classmates are including activity in the League of Women Voters in their busy routines. Gloria Palmer Hadsell also works part-time in a doctor's office now that her youngest is in nursery school. Mary Carroll Williams Hofer has been concentrating on constitutional revision for Pennsylvania and apportionment in her League work. Her family now has a thirteen-foot trailer in which they plan to travel this summer. Mary Carroll hears regularly from Katherine Derrick Zubal and says she will be happy to furnish her address for any of our classmates who wish to have it.

Summer can't come too soon for campers Ann Stoebr Grupe and family. They have traveled as far south as Myrtle Beach. Ann's husband is in data processing with Crucible Steel in Pittsburgh.

Barbara MacDonald Whalen and her Texas-bred family moved to Michigan when Hank was promoted to the home office of Ford Motor Company. Bambi sounded unenthusiastic about adjusting to northern winters again.

Also in a new community are Jean Ritchie Clift and physician husband, George, who has opened his practice in internal medicine and endocrinology in Fairfield, Connecticut.

Representing Chatham at the inauguration of the new president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology was Helen Means Pounds. Husband Bill is now Dean of the Sloan Graduate School of Business Management of M.I.T.

Marilyn Vandermay Ostendorf says she has no exciting news; she just keeps busy sewing, ironing, chauffeuring, and decorating her new home.

Susan Smith Schweitzer was planning to quit work at Eastman Kodak in the spring and hopes to begin building a new home on lakefront property on Lake Ontario this summer.

Alice Snook Kalla and Dick bought an old house and have wielded the hammer, painted, and plumbed. They planned a ski trip to Colorado in March.

Trish Wilkinson is always on the go. This year it was working in Niagara Falls, Canada, then a vacation in Greece.

24—Chatham Recorder—17067

Not quite as far but just as enjoyable was Jane Smith Donaldson and Bob's trip to New York City in October.

Elaine Vincic Berman had just returned from a 2½ month trip to Capetown, South Africa and Israel, with her three-year-old and ten-month-old children in tow. She said it was great fun reading Christmas cards in February.

This secretary, Jeannine English Abel, has had the usually eventful year. Highlights were two weeks in New England playing chamber music, and the opportunity to play Maria in "Sound of Music" in summer theater.

Libbie reporting:

Working for the Chatham Alumnae Fund was fun, reports Barb Beecham Volk. Their family vacation at a ranch in the Tetons, and a week-long sail (parents only) on Chesapeake Bay, made summer 1966 a memorable one.

The thrill of moving into their own home was experienced by Yvonne Brooks Saxton and family in November. Yvonne continues her work in Public Health Nursing, part time, and enjoyed a reunion with Jill Burnham Bowser in May.

Marilyn Campbell Kahn's glowing account of her new home and the wonderful outdoor life her family lives is so appealing that she could easily be Florida's major promoter.

Helping "a little" with husband Michael's architectural practice and enjoying daughter Marika's growing activity, keep Eleanor Carroll Molnar happily busy.

Linda Cunningham Bhame likes living in Atlanta where Carl is a consultant in the textile trade, and they can pursue their interest in the theatre and opera.

Being elected Elder of the First Presbyterian Church, a wonderful family camping trip to Yellowstone Park, and Chicago's "Big Snow" were Nancy Follett Waichler's interesting news items.

Zoe Ghiates Lalos and Ted enjoyed three weeks in Europe last May.

With her youngest son in nursery school, Lois Gilpin Pollock has time for a class in weaving.

Marcia Glazer Arnold's interesting part-time work at Pitt involves the "Communication in Guidance Project" of which she is project editor. Marcia plans a trip to the West Coast in May and hopes to see some alumnae there.

New activities for Jean Graham Rhodes include Girl Scouting this year. Carla Norberg Gaut put Jean's family to work painting the Gaur's new home last summer.

Marilyn Hill's vacation in Hawaii enabled her to visit Nancy McCafferty Watts and family. Marilyn is planning a visit to the Soviet Union with the Citizen Exchange Corps this year.

"Just busy with four daughters," writes Janet Hoy Sterling, but that's not all. Serving as Sunday School superintendent and helping with the Head Start program claim a share of her time also.

Marie Kibler Gaertner is still a staunch member of our kindergarten teachers group.

Finding old friends from Pittsburgh is never a problem for Claire Koller Runger. A group of them get together for dinner frequently in Houston.

Ruth Levinson Kalish is enjoying her nursery school teaching, and had a lively reunion with the families of Dottie Bigg Milstein and Sandy Blumberg Sonneborn last summer.

Kay Avers Headley and Mary Jane Kahn send greetings to everyone.

The Williams are looking forward to a move to the Pittsburgh area in June. I have been teaching nursery school this year and enjoy working with the "little people" again. Collecting and reporting your news is a pleasant duty for me. Thanks so much, all of you who took the time to answer and send your contributions. See you in '68!

Joan reporting:

Marion Thorne Wright visited Nancy Boyce in Washington, D.C. after Christmas this year.

A trip to Hawaii for Barbara McVicker Martin and her husband occurred last fall. Barbara's latest enterprise is the 14-member "Fox Chapel Baja Marimba Band."

Ruth Oberheim Webb is chairman of an art contest for her Junior Women's Club.

Patricia McCormick Goodrich has been winning prizes for her portrait paintings, and selling portraits and sketches. She has visited with Lois Gilpin Pollock in Wilmington, Delaware, and heard from Muriel Oakes Prien concerning her trip to Russia, Warsaw, Budapest, Berlin and Madrid last summer.

Patti Johnson Bogar, besides new home and new baby, has been cast as Mary in a forthcoming local production of "Mary, Mary." She keeps in touch with Judy Torin Orr and had news of Helen "Smokey" Stover who some of you may remember from freshman year. Smokey lives in Wayne, New Jersey and has three children.

Nancy Walker DeWard is teaching sixth grade and serves on the state bylaws committee of AAUW.

Carla Norberg Gaut is working part time as a chemist at University of Pennsylvania Hospital. Both she and B. J. Woods Goodwin are enjoying new homes. B.J.'s mother is in her fifth year as resident director at Fickes Hall.

Carol Warnecke Harris has caught up on fourteen years of news in her letter. After leaving Chatham, Carol received her B.S. at Wilson College and then her master's degree at Cornell University. She taught for three years before marrying Robert E. Harris. Winston-Salem, North Carolina and now Topsfield, Massachusetts have been her homes. There are three children in the Harris family, John, 5, Elizabeth, 3, and James, 10 months.

Marilyn "Pat" Smith Jankowski has had recent contact with Charles LeClair, Dean and Professor of Painting at Temple University. He had an exhibit in New York and contributed some of his paintings for a special exhibition at her church.

Greetings but no particular news from Mary Kay Sanner Hooper, Natalie Stern Miller, Marion Sweeney Guthrie, Betsy Musser Anderson, Anne Cohen Winkelman and Sally Seiple Tallai.

The mainland will soon be welcoming Nancy McCafferty Watts and her family. In May they will return from Hawaii and settle in the Washington, D.C. area where Bill will be working at the Pentagon.

My news, Joan Monahan McFalls, consists mainly of our new daughter who arrived in the nick of time to be included in the Recorder this year. Any other news from Pittsfield is superfluous!

Betts reporting:

Things haven't changed much since last year—people are still moving, having babies (a big swing to daughters, tho'), and Polly Fleming's still raising a ruckus in Europe! This time, she and Mary Pensyl, '63, slept through Switzerland on their way home from Milan and a vacation in Italy and Switzerland, and ended up illegally in Djon, France. Needless to say, they don't know how it happened, and you can bet that after seven hours of explanation the customs officials weren't really convinced—just tired! Polly renews her invitation to anyone visiting London.

Lynn Backus Wilson and Hal have found a home in the Philadelphia area; and Barbara Baker Kreindler and Herb are looking for one. Hal is now with United Engineers & Constructors of Philadelphia. Herb Kreindler has become a manager with General Electric's Missile & Space Division in Valley Forge, and Barbara says she'll be anxious to hear from other alums in Philly once they get there.

Sandy Esman Cherner is thrilled with San Francisco. Nick finished his residency, entered the Army, and was assigned to Ft. Baker, California, where his office is only "feet" from the Bay and almost directly under the Golden Gate Bridge. They live in Sausalito, half a block from Steffi Ruben Klein. Nick replaced Steffie's husband, Zeke, at Ft. Baker, and the two families see each other often.

Mary Killen Cochran welcomed her old roommate, Keay Baker Hathaway, and family for a wonderful visit last fall. Keay brought a letter Mary had written to her in 1953 when she learned they were to room together. "How embarrassing to read old letters!" One of the children came out of the toybox wearing Mary's dink—they're still laughing!

Jean McLlwraith McCally writes of an exciting year: "The Peace Corps began an experimental affiliation with Antioch College here in June, starting with an advanced training program for college juniors (75) for Rural Community Development in Colombia. As part of the training program, horsemanship was a requirement. So, I ended up teaching 'horse science' to PC trainees all summer; and spent the most fascinating hours with these kids. It was my job to teach them EVERYTHING there is to know about horses in 20 hours of instruction, including care, management, veterinary medicine, riding, jumping, shoeing, etc. Well, it was such a success that we had another training program this fall, artists of Ecuador, and I did the same thing from November through January for them." And still, she has time for Mike, the boys, and their farm.

Alice McGee Collins is another classmate distinguishing herself in areas out of the ordinary. She's become the student pastor of two little churches on the outskirts of Pittsburgh. "I'm still working on my degree (Bachelor of Divinity), but when these churches were without a minister I just couldn't resist the chance to try my hand. I was surprised they would accept a minister of the female sex, but things have worked out better than I expected." Alice also finds time to costume the Chatham drama department productions.

Out on the Michigan frontier, Carol Grim LeClere and Bill have settled in their authentic log cabin home just 20 minutes from Ann Arbor. It's complete with private lake and glorious views, and Carol extends an open "invite" to those who'd like a tour of the house and a "dip or skate, depending on the season. You can't beat our rates!" Carol's teaching nursery school four mornings a week.

Our guitarist in Wisconsin, Marilyn Grady Candler, has finally gone all out in letting her hair grow "so I'll look the part!" She and George are trying to stir up some "action" in their PTA as co-chairmen, and George is choir director at their new church.

The rest of the replies were filled with glowing accounts of what isn't new. Ginny Ladish Angulo has been home all year waiting for some of us to visit. Now, rather than holding her breath too long, she's decided to bring her young son to the States to show him off this summer. Dottie Devine Agnew has added piano lessons to her weekly schedule. She visited Irene Patterson Sichert last summer and enjoys living close to Dolores O'Neill Cooper. Jo Long Pabl has been doing substitute teaching and is "gradually picking up those awful education credits I resisted at Chatham." After teaching for three years, Patricia Alogna Reiss is happy to be just a housewife, mother, and decorator of their new home.

Barbara Johnston Tredennick, Nancy Kasper Nixon, Kathy Iannuzzo and Nancy Cannon Cocke join everyone in sending their best to you all.

That's all. Have another good year; and please remember that under the new system, our group reunion with the classes of 1956, 1958, and 1959 will be held in June, 1969.

Lynn reporting:

Sue Feldman Cohen has gone back to piano lessons after 12 years, and is busy with PTA and Synagogue groups. They will be traveling to Mexico City and Washington, D.C. in May, and were in California in February.

Jackie Miller Ross has a new English setter, and lists among her numerous activities—squirrel taming (??).

Gisela Paoli Villapana sends greetings and says that with both children in school for half a day she has time for fixing up their new house.

Children in school and more time for activities is also reported by Maggie Poolos Yeotis. She has been keeping up with her art work along with church and civic work. Maggie's husband was appointed municipal judge and has an election this April, so she is busy campaigning. They went to California to see Michigan State in the Rose Bowl.

Mimi Skinner Wainwright and Bill are going to Quebec in June where he will present a paper to an international philosophy congress. Mimi is still teaching but plans to quit. They were at the New Jersey shore last summer and had a cabin at Missouri State Park.

Nancy Teeters Bunce has four children, 7, 6, 5, and 2. They are happily settled in Pueblo where Chuck is an auditor of the First National Bank of Pueblo. Busy with all of the usual activities, Nancy welcomes Charhamites, and has heard from Sally Schmidt Gregerson and from Barbara Scott Smith who has two children. Nancy's big news was a visit from Dr. Henry Bugbee. She saw he was speaking at a nearby state college and invited him for lunch.

Carol Vogel is still traveling but has branched out. Now her trips take her to New Orleans and Dallas instead of just Altoona and Johnstown. Carol will be teaching at the University of Illinois this summer in the library science program.

Rhoda Weitsman David says David is now senior chemical research analyst with Mobile Chemical Company in New York City.

Three classmates have moved south. Ellie Wills Meyer, in Florida, says Jim is teaching at the junior college, she does substituting, and they enjoy the water sports. Ann Scott Byers, in New Orleans, talks of the different way of life in the south. They spent Christmas in Florida. Jane Stocker Burfoot, in Virginia, is getting used to their first move. Fred is with the Army Engineers in Washington, D.C.

Just hello and best wishes from Gail Miller Maiolo and Rose Senoff Eisenstein. Sheila Stevens Otto is still coordinating the volunteer pre-school program and working with CFM.

My year has been busy with being assistant Girl Scout leader, work on the PTA board, and continuing as a reporter for our weekly newspaper. We finally sold our other house after a year and are back to one mortgage instead of two.

It appears that more than ever the class of 1959 continues to be on the move. Now living in Columbus, Ohio is Joan Winters George, where Jack is assistant professor of medicine at Ohio State Medical School. Eleanor Roeger Nyhus is now back in the United States after spending 27 months in Haiti. Ellie expects that her Washington stay will be temporary, and that they will be reassigned overseas next year.

Diane Montgomery Montgomery dashed off a quick note from Bremerhaven, Germany in the midst of packing to return home to Pittsburgh where Dick will be attending Carnegie Tech. We also received a card from Betsy Lytle Suatoni enroute to Erie, Pennsylvania where Frank will begin his orthopedic residency. Harriet Moore Clements reports her move to London, England where Tom is employed by Esso Europe.

It appears that classmates turn up just about everywhere. While Christmas shopping in Lansing, Susie Quad Croel stopped to see an exhibit at a local store. The show was Lois Shook Becker's and now several of the paintings are being exhibited permanently in the Croel living room. This year Lois also had showings at the January furniture show in Chicago and at the Atlanta gift show.

Than Metro Tsoukas' brief note, an editors delight, reported two eventful happenings in 1966; her three-week holiday in Greece and her husband's appointment as chief-of-surgery at Tuxedo Park Hospital in New York.

Nancy Sherwood Wilcox began a new career this year as a part-time editor-writer for Fidler Textbook Publishers. She is thrilled with the challenge this job provides, and would appreciate any comments from classmates who have used these textbooks in the classroom.

Our congratulations to Ruth Gottesman Leigh on her recent marriage. Also newly married, Peggy Fullick Longacker has transferred her studies toward a Ph.D. in linguistics to the University of San Diego where her husband is a member of the linguistics faculty.

The recipient of her PTA's "Teacher of the Year" award, Bette Jo Bergad Greenberger continues her busy round of activities. She and Howard spent the summer traveling in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark.

An January telephone call from Winchester-Thurston offering a third-grade teaching position, and only 24 hours to make her decision, has taken Sallie McQuiston Schneider back to teaching and Laura to kindergarten at her mother's old school. Martha attends nursery school, and all of the Schneiders are happy with their new way of life. A new Star Sraft Constellation Camper, complete with kitchen and sleeping space for eight, will take the family camping again this summer, probably back to Jekyll Island and the Tampa area. Last summer Sallie was in charge of a Bible School in the Larimer Avenue section, and one of their field trips was to WTAE-TV where Sue Allardice showed them the workings of a TV studio.

Regards are sent to all of you from Lynne Hughes Mayer, now engaged with a very active Alumnae Club in Chicago, and from Alma Salvetti Jennings who reports a recent appearance as soloist with the College Community Orchestra.

Bobby Einhorn Chester sends her regards, as well as those of her two over-seas correspondents, Beverly Fleishman Pimsleur in Germany and Harriet Clements in London. Regards were also sent by Barbara Reeser now living in Wyomissing, Pennsylvania, and jointly by neighbors Judy Davis Levitan and Ellen Goldsmith Goldberg. We have heard also from Sally Head Mulcahy, Ann Reynolds Wise, Diane Mendelson Cummins, Marie Smith Smith and Pat Mabon Johnson, and locally from Gloria Horowitz Klein, Carole Glass Gottlieb and Barbara Shapiro Klein.

The Greenbergers are thrilled and kept terribly busy with our newest venture—a cheese, pastry, gift and gourmet food shop called THE SWISS COLONY in the South Hills Village Mall. The Reichs, both deeply involved in organizations, still manage to bowl quite a bit and sneak in a trip or two when we get the chance.

We both ask you to excuse the editorial chopping of some very lovely letters. We received dire warnings concerning the importance of brevity in this issue and we had to be ruthless in our cutting. Perhaps by next year we will have mastered the technique—anyhow, please give us a chance to practice.

Sally reporting:

Traveling to parts of Europe and Asia last year were Nigar Abbasi Husain and Shahid, who took little Ayesha on her first "home leave" to Pakistan via Europe; and Margaret Ferguson Goldstone and Leo, who spent a month in Egypt including a visit to the temples of Abu Simbel now being re-sited under the auspices of UNESCO and the Egyptian government. The Goldstones hope to holiday this year in the States as Margaret would like to show Leo, who is an Englishman, "that there is more to the U.S. than New York and Washington, D.C." Margaret is Consultant to the Office of Mass Communication, UNESCO, while Leo is Chief of Education Statistics for UNESCO. They have seen Marjorie Hanson on her several visits to London and Paris.

In addition to a continually busy domestic life with 2½-year-old Loren, and "little Cynthia crawling all over the place," Judy Allan Mitchel is an increasingly active member of Reading's League of Women Voters and a Chatham Alumnae Representative. She is still planning to finish the M.Ed. degree at Tufts "as soon as I'm free-er." Barry received his 5-year pin from AVCO as a staff scientist.

Two other busy mothers are Hannah Brush Van Horn, whose Karla is "just about ready to crawl," and Robin Askin DeKleine, who is also teaching Sunday school while Bill is taking evening graduate courses at Rutgers in addition to being an institutional representative for the Boy Scouts and a deacon in the Reformed Church in America. The DeKleines plan to go fishing in Canada this summer "without children" before getting Kelly ready for school in the fall.

Shirley Lewis Minner and Fran Keenan Bonfigli have both been teaching again this year. Under the Title I program, Shirley took her 19 sixth-graders on several field trips last summer—the most exciting one aboard a Navy Destroyer from Chicago for a 3-hour cruise on Lake Michigan. Gene received his master's degree in mechanical engineering last August and is working steadily toward the Ph.D. Fran's husband John has a new job as a social worker at Somerset State Hospital. Fran had lunch with Danni Karp Bloom "whose children are adorable."

Joyce Teegardin is working on a master's degree in rehabilitation counseling at Kent State University and is traveling all over Ohio doing field work and internship.

"Doctor" Marianne Byrn Caple is working in enzymology as a research chemist for the botany department at the University of California—Davis Campus. She received her Ph.D. in chemistry from Berkeley in September 1966. Two of her articles have been published in the Journal of the American Chemical Society. Marianne saw several Chathamites at a dinner for President Eddy and Dean Henderson in San Francisco and is very impressed by the reports of Chatham's progress, especially the new science building. The Caples took a 17-day trip with two other couples in a private plane to Ohio and Michigan last summer. Chuck is now office manager for the Weyerhaeuser Company Distribution Center in Sacramento.

A correction and an apology: through a typographical error the name of Liz Jones Sheehan's daughter was published last year as Keith. It should be Kerith Leab. One small "r" makes a difference and we are sorry.

Your reporter has been learning about labor unions, as I was appointed to a committee of the Michigan Library Association which is investigating the implications of a recent Public Act which gives public employees the right to bargain collectively. As a reference librarian I daily feel the effects of the "information explosion," and as a "faculty wife" I am again enjoying the academic life of a small college. We spent some time last summer in Maine and the Thousand Islands, and a weekend at the Stratford (Ontario) Shakespeare Festival—a "tradition" to which we are again looking forward this year.

Sue reporting:

Sue Hocker Ballay is Alumnae Representative for the Cincinnati area, is on the board of trustees for the performing arts center in her suburb, and is also directing Bus Stop for another drama group. Joe is still with the University.

Martha Bulkeley Hostetter was moving in March to Harrisburg where her husband will be the minister of Covenant Presbyterian Church. Martha is busy with Junior League, and entertained Brenda Purdon Stober and Bob last fall. The Stobers are house-hunting, and Brenda is working on her thesis.

Mary Louise Kaylor Maury and husband Jim have bought a home in Newburgh since Jim's return from Southeast Asia. Mary Lou is a steward at the Air Force Officers Wives Club and works with the Red Cross. She and Jim spent a weekend with Karen Tiedy Ream and Bob.

Sue Jessop McGowan plans to go back to school for a master's in sociology next year. Anne Putnam, a frequent visitor at the McGowan's, and Sue planned to take Linda Morgan out on the town before her March 4th wedding.

Daughter Kathy keeps Jean Thonen Nickel busy, but she did find time to accompany Nick to Cleveland for a weekend and we spent the day talking and shopping.

Donna Gagliardi Marinofsky is an active member of the Boston Alumnae Club. She and Bruno spent five days in New York with the Stobers.

Yours truly has been working as a Sunday School consultant for the first and second grades, and I am still teaching the C scale to my piano students. We spent several weeks in Florida last June following a lithographers convention, and not too long after writing this I will be leaving with the children for another visit in the Florida sun. Hope to hear from more of you next year.

Ruth reporting:

Joan Cercone Gilson reports a vacation trip to Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, highlighted by a boat tour on the waterways around Miami Beach, and a visit with Mary Booth Fassett Roberts when she went to Elmira, New York, to attend her brother's wedding in November.

The sixth move in seven years has taken Barbara Easton Marks to a new location in New Jersey where she is teaching French and language arts in a Cherry Hill junior high school, and husband Jim is teaching industrial arts in a junior high school outside of Philadelphia. Barb attended Anne Sauers Brassert's lovely wedding last summer.

Having completed her master's degree in history, Alice Evans is now completing the 16-week officer's training program in the Navy.

Fran Goodside Feigert has moved to what she refers to as "the small, typical mid-western town" of Galesburg, Illinois, where Frank is an instructor in political science at Knox College. Fran completed her master's in library science in June, after which she and Frank vacationed in New York for a month.

Besides teaching 4th grade in Severna Park, Maryland, Carol Lemke Keil is working on her master's in liberal arts at Johns Hopkins, taking courses that stress the history of ideas. Carol and Elmer enjoyed a trip to Williamsburg and the Smoky Mountains last fall.

Sue Linder is working as copy editor for Encyclopedia Americana, and is an officer in the largest Reform Democratic Club in New York. She was a delegate to the state convention this year.

After attending the 1966 summer session at the University of Kansas, Elizabeth Waite vacationed in the Colorado Rockies, and later in Georgia, before returning to teach her 7th and 8th grade Spanish classes in Baldwin-Whitehall.

It has been a busy year for the Weiss family. We have expanded the first store that we opened last March, and opened our second store in November in Fairmont, West Virginia, about 25 miles from Clarksburg. I am kept extremely busy between working in the stores, taking care of the two children, and participating in various business and social organizations. I was a little disappointed with the alumnae response this year. I hope to hear from more of you next year.

Jan reporting:

This year several of our classmates report new additions to their families, but this certainly doesn't seem to restrict their "extra-curricular" activities. Libby Jones Gadd manages to keep busy with a newly-formed garden club as well as with little Scott and Jenny.

Adair Sidford Alworth, in addition to keeping track of three sons, in recording secretary of the Junior Woman's Club of Cedar Grove and managed to win another first place in the Club's State contest.

Mary Sendek Jakabcsin sends news of her first child, and reports that she keeps in touch with Betsy Waite and Dottie Sief Kapp as well as with Margaret Brennehan, who is still at the Chicago Public Library.

Jackie Nadolny Rosenberger divides her time between being a housewife and working as a medical social worker at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh. She and Karl were married in their small church in Carnegie and honeymooned in the Adirondacks. This May they plan a trip to Nassau. Karl, an accountant, received his M.B.A. in June 1966.

Sue Childs Matheson accompanied Jim on a business trip to Mexico—their first trip out of the U.S. They have been studying Spanish in adult education, and, since some of their friends speak no English, they put this knowledge to good use.

As of March 1, Eila Foster Amdur and David are residents of Dayton, Ohio. David is the new assistant director of the Jewish Community Council of Dayton. Their new apartment is part of an 800 unit self-contained apartment community and has a beautiful view. Eila is sorry to leave her position as a team leader in the Fort Pitt School, but plans to return to teaching.

Ronnie Friedman Kanterman worked last spring and summer in the Brentwood Schools where she taught a special reading class under the government poverty program. The children had emotional problems which interfered with their studies, and Ronnie's job included visits to the homes of these twenty children and a detailed case study of each.

Danni Karp Bloom sends the exciting news of a goal in sight—she expects to receive a master's in library science in June.

Donna Lange continues doing movie and theatre reviews and still finds time for much far-flung travel. On her itinerary this past year were Washington, D.C. in cherry blossom time, the boardwalk in Atlantic City, and the views in the Pocono Mountains. In addition, she writes, "I took off for two weeks by car to Yellowstone National Park where I got acquainted with the bears. They come right up and look in the car windows. Had other firsthand views of elk, moose and deer in a beautifully natural setting. Took oodles of pictures. The Grand Tetons were equally impressive."

The Printz's joined the ranks of devoted campers last summer after spending several days on the shores of Long Island Sound. Even with two small boys, we enjoyed the peace and seclusion so much that we heartily recommend camping as the perfect tranquilizer for city dwellers who need an occasional escape. There were two exciting happenings for us this past year—I had first paintings included in a community art show last June, and Morty was awarded a Public Health Service Travel Award for the Biochemistry Congress in Japan this August. We hope to squeeze in a visit to Pittsburgh before he leaves. My thanks to all for your prompt replies.

each annual blurb in the Recorder to generalize about the goings-on you report! This year there was great activity in the line of chasing babies.

We may assume that the classmate having achieved the greatest degree of proficiency in this area is Sudy Bullock Bell. According to my unofficial calculations, she is the sole individual in this portion of '63 have mothered two off-spring. The four Bells will return to Dartmouth this summer when Jim leaves the Navy.

Other busy mothers include Betty Bennett Morrow, Meg Alexander Sprengle, Jos Browning Cerul, Betsy Snyder Cottingham and Ellen Block Blumenthal. Betsy is able to find some time for continued redecorating of their new "old" home, and Ellen and daughter Linda were anticipating Mickey's return from Vietnam in March.

We stay-at-homes might feel justifiably envious of Bobbie Fellabom Emerick and Stevie Cooperman Parker, who each reported major journeys during the past year. In September Bobbie was lucky enough to tag along when husband Dick's company sent him to England and Germany. Stevie and Alan headed in the other direction, spending a memorable two weeks in Japan. They were especially fortunate in having as "guides" the family of a Japanese neighbor from California, thus seeing the country in a way most tourists never could. In July they will move to Cleveland where Alan will take his surgical residence at the Cleveland Clinic.

Perhaps it's not quite a "first," but Kathy Haas, daughter of Nancy Sander Haas, took her first airplane ride at age six weeks. The pilot was father Dick, who couldn't wait any longer to introduce her to the pleasures of his occupation.

Anna Crone Nagy is looking forward to retirement from her job with a stock brokerage, with a good deal of impetus for this move provided by their new home. Furthermore, Anna reports, it's been suggested at work that, with all her "inside" information on what makes the market tick, she should be able to retire for good in five years!

It appears that we'll miss Margie Conner's name among the credits on Broadway for a while. She's working for her degree in elementary education at Brooklyn College, in a program for people who will teach in "disadvantaged" areas. This is an outgrowth of her deep interest in a young boy whom she tutored in her lower East Side neighborhood, and, although she's just begun the formal training program, she's convinced she's found her niche.

Mary Cook Guy, the newest bride in this fourth of the class, finds both married life and graduate work in library science highly appealing. Both she and Donald are students at the University of Illinois. Half of another student couple, Jan Carver King, reports having coupled a new job in the Computation Center of the University of New Hampshire with part-time study in sociology. Next fall she expects to be an instructor in computer science in the math department there.

Gail Bloom Verlin extends an offer of free "concert" tickets and congenial company to anyone in the Camden, New Jersey area. The music will be provided by their new stereo system and the welcome by Gail and husband Mike, who will receive his medical degree in June.

Since the last Recorder, I've retired from elementary teaching and am working as a computer programmer for the National Cash Register Company, the unlikely result of a degree in history and three years of teaching seven-to-ten-year-olds. Your letters this year, as usual, have been a pleasant interlude in the tunnel months. On paper you sound like a bunch of people it would be very nice to run into again!

Fender reporting:

One of the pleasant surprises which comes as a result of this job is receiving a phone call from a class member whom I haven't spoken with since June of '63. Pam Johnson Fenner thought she was going to miss my deadline for responding so she called me from Boston. After recovering from the initial shock we had a delightful chat. Pam and her husband Paul have bought a four-bedroom home in Weston, Massachusetts, right on the Boston Post Road. Pam reports that daughter Liesel is now almost two. If any of you are in the Boston area, the welcome mat is always out at Pam's.

Rachel Gorr Johnson reports that during the past year she has "just mainly been a mother!" With twins that is a full-time job. Please note Rachel's new address.

Bonnie George Switzer's son Brian Robert was just two days old when Bonnie responded to the questionnaire. Bob is doing post doctoral work at the National Heart Institute of the National Institute of Health in Washington. Bob and Bonnie will be there for two years and then they have tentative plans for a year in Munich.

Sue Hunt Roose is still working on her M.A. in government. She and Jack had a wonderful trip to Europe last spring.

Sue Herb Reichard recently underwent major spinal surgery at the Temple University Hospital, and will be laid-up for at least six months. I am sure I speak for the class when I say that we all wish her a speedy recovery and let's hope that this is the last operation. Daughter Katherine is almost a year old.

Nancy Fleming Demoise, having received her master's in education, is teaching chemistry. Her husband Chuck is on the verge of receiving his Ph.D. and after that, Nancy says "who knows." Do keep us posted!

Some of us have always been destined for that exciting life, and Sheila Grobe Rossbach is one such person. Sheila married a lawyer, received her master's in social work from Smith College, and with her husband moved to Wiesbaden, Germany. I wish I had the space to report all of Sheila's doings. She currently has two jobs. The first is with the U.S. Air Force Child Guidance Clinic as a clinical social worker. The other . . . she has a fellowship from a German Foundation which enables her to gain experience as a German case worker with a German family agency in preparation for joining the faculty at the German Academy of Social Work as a field work supervisor. Wow! Sheila's husband Ande is taking his current law boards and polishing his doctoral dissertation in international corporate law. After this, he may accept a position for next fall as counsel to the Common Market in Brussels. After all Sheila has done to adjust to the language and customs of Germany, she'll have to go through the same process in Belgium. Sheila and Ande will be visiting the States this summer.

Nan Hall Lombardi, husband Joe and son Christopher are living in New York City. Joe is the architect on "Instant Rehab," the 48-hour rehabilitation of slum dwellings which I'm sure you've all read about. Since he also is involved in experimental housing in San Francisco, the Lombardi's will be dividing their time between the two cities. Also, they recently bought a brownstone in New York and are working on plans for the renovation.

Mickey Kammerman Kurzbard and Steve are in Washington, D.C. where Steve is doing his radiology residency at George Washington University Hospital and she is attending the University Law School.

Judy Lawner Palkovitz and Harry are in Charlottesville, Virginia for two years where he is doing his residency in neurology at the University of Virginia Hospital. Judy, with her M.A. in metropolitan studies from Syracuse, is a researcher for the Institute of Government at the University of Virginia. Judy reports that she'd be delighted to lead any of us on her special tour of Monticello. Lucky Judy, she and Harry are going to Puerto Rico and St. Thomas.

Barbara Kessel Bloxson and her husband Ray had an experience they will never forget when their apartment in Topeka, Kansas was ravaged by that tornado which we all read about. Fortunately, they weren't there at the time and they have been able to pick up the pieces and move to a new apartment. I wish I could show you all the pictures Barb sent to me of the destruction. Barb is still teaching third grade and Ray is in his last semester of law school and is also working for a law firm. They both hope to remain in Topeka after Ray graduates.

Particularly rewarding is the response received each year from the associate members of our class. Doe Friedman Hentschel and her husband Tom moved into their first "real" house this fall. Their son Brian is 13 months old and he has apparently inherited Doe's enthusiasm and energy. Doe even gives credit to HD&B!

Patti Dobyan Lupton and her husband Baker are up to their ears in babies; twin boys were born in August and their first son is 3½. Baker is attending the University of Richmond for his master's in business administration, while still working for Westinghouse. Because of the increase in the Lupton family they moved in April, and an open invitation is extended to all who would like some real Southern hospitality.

Sue Hill Warner and husband Ed are living in North Carolina where he is an engineering student at North Carolina State University and Sue is teaching third grade in Raleigh.

The response to this year's questionnaire was pretty good, although there are some obvious absences which I'll have to concentrate on next year. If any of you are ever in New York, do look me up as I'd love to see you all. I can be found in the phone book, or at the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company where I am doing foreign exchange work in the International Division. I'm sure we could rally enough '63ers who are in the area for a quasi-reunion of our own.

Marty reporting:

Sally Mercke is back in the States after finishing her work in the Peace Corps in June 1966. She had a leisurly trip homeward via Egypt, Greece, Italy, France, and England where she visited with Lucille Davis and Ba Norris, then spent an evening with Sheila Grobe Rossbach in Weisbaden. Adjustment to the USA was via Nancy Fendrich, Sue Bradley and Ellen Rush in New York, and Jocelyn Browning Cerul and Mary Ann Conti Sheline in Pittsburgh. At present Sally is working at the Arthur D. Little Company in Boston. She writes that she misses Togo, but it's good to have her home again just the same.

Greetings from Margot Myers Clark, who continues as a case worker at the Welfare Department in Indiana. The Department was the scene of a labor dispute in the summer when a newly organized independent union and an eleven day strike led to recognition and pay raises. Margot writes that they are working on all areas of improvement in their bargaining sessions because public welfare is in dire need of changes.

Susan Johnson Dyer and her husband Paul moved to the Berkshires in September, where Paul teaches English and psychology at the Winchester School. She loves their way of life and the charming surroundings, and writes that daughter Amy, as the only faculty child, is the center of the boys' attentions.

By her efforts and campaigning, Ann Niedermeyer Fox helped save the day when the existence of the Pittsburgh Playhouse was threatened last year; she also put in some time working there on sets, lighting, etc. Her latest news is a "new" old house recently acquired in Mt. Lebanon.

A fabulous trip to the west coast highlighted the summer for Judy Paulsen Webb. She is still teaching and sends greetings to everyone.

Betsy Phelps Tucker has moved back to Cleveland where her husband took a position with IBM in the fall. In September she visited Bunny Boonyaprasop Osatananda in Thailand. Bunny now has three lovely children. In December Sandy Rossio and her husband visited the Tuckers.

Diane Phillips is contributing what she terms a "little bit" to the fight against poverty. In October she left Seven Hills Neighborhood House to become discussion leader-supervisor-administrative assistant of the Cincinnati VISTA Training Center. After her contract for this training cycle was over she began another new job in December as a field service worker for the Greater Cincinnati Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers.

Carol Pike Maynard is still working at the United Aircraft Research Labs. She writes that Sue Rockwell Coen is nearby, and that Sue's son Timmy is absolutely adorable.

Mary Riley Smith is living in London after spending six months in Paris where she worked for NATO and studied French. After her wedding in March in a tiny country church, she and her husband plan to stay in London for about two years. Visitors welcome!

In November 1966 Sue Rockwell Coen was blessed by the arrival of Timothy James. After teaching in the spring, Sue spent a relaxing summer during which Jim went to night school. Jim left for Guam for three months in January, and will probably go back again later in the year, so Sue is spending much of the time at home in Pennsylvania.

Since her marriage in August Helen Roesing Monroe has moved to Rhode Island, where her husband is in sales. Helen is substitute teaching in art, French, English, Latin "and anything else they call me for," and teaching art in adult education classes.

When Dianne Rubin Newman wrote, she was enduring an eight-week sitting still period while recuperating from a skiing accident in Sugarbush, Vermont, where she broke her ankle.

As for myself, I could repeat last year's news and it would be accurate. We attended various sailing regattas in the summer and had a marvelous time—no trophies, but we never came in last! In November we moved to our present address, a home nearer town which we are renting. I enjoyed all your notes this year. Let's hope there will be more next year.

Nancy reporting:

New babies and graduate work seems to be the recurring theme this year for the Class of 1963.

Barb Shullman Young's Joel arrived 5 weeks before they left Guam and now has adjusted to the routine of father's new life as a graduate student and has convinced his mother to start too. Judy Strain Barton reports, however, "Jennifer confirms the rumor that being a mother is more fun." Husband Richard is busy as a freshman member of the House of Representatives.

Jan Skeloski Matey is enjoying her new baby and helping husband John as a director of the local Junior Achievement Program. Nancy Welsh Lees and her two daughters are able to share the fun with Joe now that he has completed his doctorate and has more leisure time. They had a wonderful time with Jack and Sue Hunt Roose while vacationing last summer.

Louise Sonnenberg receives her M.D. this June and will be interning in the Philadelphia area. She is following her presidential pattern by being recently elected president of the Alumnae Association of the Howard School for Girls. Caroline Whaley is finishing up her doctoral thesis and hopes to teach in one of the Philadelphia area colleges this fall.

Carolyn Rogers Flood is doing graduate work and is in the midst of settling in a new house. Debbie Wolowitz Cowan is busy moving, too. After honeymooning in Spain, Portugal, and Morocco, she is settling down in Cleveland where Dale is senior resident.

Since I last reported, I've moved and have acquired a cat and new Labrador puppy. I'm now working for First National City Bank's new Travel Division and have plans to visit Russia and Greece this fall. Thanks for the newsy responses—they seem to be a busy group.

Marsha reporting:

Susie Archer Dawes and Lou are settled now after their December wedding and Florida honeymoon. Lou is teaching high school physical education and coaching track and soccer. Susie likes her job as Youth and Women's Program Director at the Canandaigua (N.Y.) Family YMCA.

Several classmates are pursuing graduate degrees. Sue Atherton Kleine is working full time toward completion of her master's degree in history at the University of Pittsburgh in April, and hopes to go on as far as possible on a doctorate before husband Doug graduates next year. She attended the summer weddings of Mary Krein Howarth and Myra Hull Gillum and sees a lot of Nancy Speck, Ellie Raden and Mary.

Joan Bretz Pierce has completed her course work and now must finish her thesis for a master's in economics from the University of Illinois. She is working as an admissions assistant in the Graduate School of Library Science and her husband is a doctoral candidate in economics at the University.

Bonnie Dallas Palmer is making good progress toward her Ph.D. in English at Michigan State, having passed the qualifying exam in October and getting her M.A. officially in March.

Ginny Damato has her master's in education from the University of Bridgeport 2/3 completed. The last year for her was a changing, exploratory one. She did some substitute teaching and tutoring, casework for the Connecticut State Welfare Department, looked into positions in market research and personnel recruitment, and is presently exploring teaching possibilities in Europe. She leaves for Southampton, England on June 6.

After spending September in Europe, Becky Bennett and Patty Baisler have settled in San Francisco. They both love it, which is understandable from the report that they spent two weeks in Mexico and Squaw Valley and are planning a trip to Hawaii in the spring.

Penny Barley attended Middlebury College summer graduate school in Spanish, and then taught school until February when she entered Peace Corps training.

Sheila Bennett Harris is working in her husband's light fixture store. On trips during the last year they saw Jill Squire Popish and Adrienne Sivins in New York, Sidney Hudig in Boston, and Pam Stirba Russell in Allentown, Pennsylvania.

Diane Browsky Levine and her husband David, a physician in the Army for two years, have been stationed in Seoul, Korea since March. She sounded very enthusiastic about the prospect of either teaching English there or doing social welfare work with an international service organization.

Diane Brutout, happily planning her summer marriage, is currently teaching political science at Slippery Rock State College. Her fiancé, Paul, is working for the County of Common Pleas in Allegheny County (Pittsburgh).

Pam Davis McGee and husband Hugh are settled in Long Beach, California. He is an ensign in the Navy and assigned to a mine sweeper.

Frances Darr Aley writes that her family, especially the twin boys, keep her busy. Jane Tobey visited them at Christmas time. Frances hopes to get her master's degree after they make their next move sometime this year.

Penny Embry McGoeey, her husband who is an attorney, and new daughter Gillian live in Scarsdale, New York.

Janie Flaster Biggard still likes teaching 7th and 8th grades at Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind.

Your reporter spent a busy summer and fall involved in Senator Bogg's re-election campaign. I hear from Linda Kates Meyer often. John and I were in New Orleans for five days in February (I joined him there after a business trip), and accidentally ran into Lynn Schreiber Glasser and Steve on Bourbon Street! It was good to hear from all of you who returned the questionnaires.

Myra reporting:

Basking in their own villa in sunny Southern Italy, Sandy Goldman Forquer and husband Tim have been learning how to live with infrequent electric power, and are enjoying watching their tangerine trees blossom. Sandy is taking advantage of Tim's job location by attending Berlitz classes to learn Italian; she writes, "We are now awaiting the arrival of the warm weather and days on the beach. Arivider la!"

Nancy Gettes is taking graduate courses in biology and chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, where she is on the Dean of Women's Staff as a resident advisor. Nancy plans to enter medical school this September, either at Temple University or at Penn.

Judy Goslee finds herself in a whirl of preparations (PR expert Ann McClure is handling all announcements) for her June 10th wedding in Georgetown, Delaware. Denny works as a Pittsburgh sales official for Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Ever-enthusiastic Susie Haas Nordby still loves her job with pre-primary children, and, up against the perpetual challenge of housekeeping, writes, "Bulging closets mean we must move. But where is our dream house?"

Judy Haberman Katz has a new job—editorial assistant of the Israel Universities Press, part of the Israel Program for Scientific Translations. Her work deals with the publications in humanities and social sciences, and, just for the fun of it, Judy is also taking several courses at the Hebrew University.

Beverly Hamilton looks forward to receiving her master's degree in April, 1968 from the University of Pittsburgh School of Social Work, whereupon she plans "to migrate to a large east coast city."

Carol Hartman will shortly be winding up her job in the personnel department of the Emporium. She plans a visit east and then is bound for Mexico and Hawaii. Future hopes include a job in public relations work.

Sallie Hendon is personal secretary to the executive director of the Washington, D.C. Tuberculosis Association. She is most enthusiastic about working one evening weekly at the Washington International Center.

It was fun getting together again with Sara Heslep. Currently studying English at the University of Chicago, she has been accepted at the University for graduate work in her field. Sara fills her spare time with participation in the Episcopalian Young People's Organization and in two on-campus choirs.

Spending the summer in Oxford as a research worker in psychology, Elaine Hillman Moroney fell in love not only with the charms of the English countryside, but also with those of her "Irish JFK" Michael. Married in picturesque St. Aloysius Church, she and Mike honeymooned through France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria and Germany. Very happy in their new house, Elaine enjoys learning Italian and bridge with Mike and making shopping excursions to London.

Nancy Johnson has a new "challenging, frustrating, and rewarding" job as a social worker for the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind. Requiring much field work, her job has provided "new insights into blindness and into the aging process, not to mention poverty." Unfortunately, recently-converted ski enthusiast Nancy is now recovering from a badly broken leg, injured on a Vermont Ski outing.

After an exciting cross-country trip, Linda Kates Meyer is working for an aeronautical company while husband John serves as a Naval Legal Assistance Officer. They are taking advantage of the San Diego climate to participate actively in numerous outdoor sports, even to Honda-ride and to watch a Tijuana bullfight.

Eager to get back to the books, *Evie Kinast McElhane*y has applied for fall admission to the University of Connecticut and, in fact, has been studying ahead: Ron is teaching her college algebra for a required math course! Evie enjoyed seeing Doe Adamson on campus; Doe is working on her master's in political science.

Mary Krein Howarth had a lovely wedding, for which Ellie Raden sang and Bonnie Dallas Palmer served as matron of honor. She and David honeymooned in Bermuda, where they ran into vacationing Jill Squire Popish and husband Paul. Mary's Law Center office has been moved to Webster Hall—"of all places!" Mary is most enthusiastic about her library school computer course, but regretfully reports the death of Topsy, her faithful black Saab. Mary, Sue Atherton Kleine and Sage Tower Mumma are enjoying organizing a new alumnae club for the graduates of the sixties.

Karen Kvam is working for Blue Cross-Blue Shield as a work measurement analyst determining future costs for Medicare and other Federal programs. Coffee breaks are lively with political discussion, and Karen writes that she is "tutoring, taking clarinet lessons, and saving tons of money!"

Linda Lanius Tomlins and Jack were married in New Orleans, after which they visited Mexico, New Mexico and Denver. Now they are looking forward to moving to Albuquerque, New Mexico, where Jack will teach Portuguese at the University. They plan to buy an old adobe house and a dog.

Ann McClure is pleased to report a promotion at U.S. Steel where she is now working for the assistant director of public relations. In addition, Ann recommends socializing with Duquesne law students as a most enjoyable activity.

Linda Marsh McGurk and Jack are thrilled with son Greg, and Linda writes that making his christening dress "was like another tutorial almost" but that "it actually came out rather successfully."

As for me, Myra, I received my M.A. in May and had a hectic but wonderful summer working as an arts and crafts instructor and planning our wedding. With the timely help of maid-of-honor Nancy Johnson and bridesmaids Barbara Zitko and Jennifer Lewis, '68, everything went well. Driving Gary's tiny sports car, we arrived bag and baggage in Chicago, where Gary is now a student of Ph.D. economics, and I am secretary and editor for the recently-retired chairman of the obstetrics and gynecology department. Although I plan to teach next year, the work is delightful, as is Chicago, and our Christmas trip home was a joy. On the way back we stayed overnight with Lynne Jack Porterfield and husband Jim. Jim is getting his degree in philosophy at Kent State University, where Lynne, a Slippery Rock graduate, is enthusiastically studying for her master's in dramatics.

Pat reporting:

Debbie Potter Simone and husband Tom are both working for advanced degrees—he for his Ph.D. in English at Claremont and she for her master's in library science at Immaculate Heart College. Debbie reports that her scholarship work in Chatham's library has "more than paid off."

It seems that library science has been the chosen vocation of many 1965 alumna! Dotty Raymond Matsui and Martha Repman are also engaged in this area of study. Dotty is at Pitt while her husband Yas is continuing his program at Carnegie Tech. Martha is a library trainee for the Philadelphia Library System and is doing part-time study in this area at Drexel.

A few of our classmates have shown such proficiency in their fields that they've already received promotions. Give us your secrets, Jinny Powell and Barb Schneider! Barb has been promoted from private secretary to administrative assistant with the MAI Equipment Corporation (Data Processing) in Elizabeth, New Jersey. She occasionally sees two other New Jerseyites, Karen Fried and Barb Zitko. Jinny has a challenging and exciting job with Huot Associates of Mel Richman in Pittsburgh as a full-time commercial artist "handling a variety of advertising brochures, ads, slides, presentations, etc." She also studies ceramics with Frank Ross at Carnegie Institute Museum.

From Baltimore comes Jenia Royster Brown's delightful, newsy letter. Jenia is a caseworker at the Baltimore Department of Public Welfare, and is contemplating a return to the academic world to obtain her master's in social work. Meanwhile, Jenia's spouse, Taylor, has a year and a half to go at the University of Maryland Law School.

Via Jenia comes word of Nicki Neece Lallande. She's living in Norfolk, Virginia, while husband Joe travels the oceans deep for Uncle Sam. This spring she's planning to meet Joe at various European ports as the Navy moves him around. Bon voyage, Nicki!!

From our nation's capital comes word of Myra Mensh and her job as editorial assistant on the American Journal of Psychiatry.

Jan Patterson is teaching this term in the Hempfield Area School District as a remedial reading teacher in two junior high schools. The program is government-sponsored and is designed for culturally-educationally deprived children. Jan is working for her teacher's certification at Pitt, and has also completed about one half of the requirements for her master's in clothing and textiles at Penn State.

Susan Michaels Orringer is still teaching first grade in Pittsburgh, but she and Mark will be leaving the city next year upon Mark's graduation from Pitt Medical School, moving then to wherever Mark will do his internship in surgery.

Sandia Mountain Rosche is quite a busy young wife and mother, having moved into a new colonial-type house, and taking care of year-old Amy.

Another happily-married classmate who resides in Connecticut is Joan Montgomery Waltz. She and Fred are spending some of their spare time working with young people—Fred as youth director of their church, and Joan as advisor to the Girl Scout senior planning board. While Joani does some part-time secretarial work for her Dad and takes care of daughter Kristin, Fred works as a systems analyst for Phoenix Mutual Insurance Company.

Two of our teaching classmates are finding that wonderful three-month summer vacation the perfect time for travel. Beverly Miller, a second-grade teacher in Croton-on-Hudson, New York, spent all her "newly-earned savings" on a "splendid splurge" last summer, a seven-week tour of London and the Continent. Bev may go to graduate school full time next year to earn a master's in the teaching of reading. Similar news comes from Claudia Miller, a French teacher at Allderdice High School. However, she has her trip to Europe to look forward to—this summer. Then Claudia says, it's back to the academic world and graduate school next fall!

Patsy Scarry Jones is a sixth-grade teacher at the Interlaken Central School. Patsy and Ralph had a carefree wedding trip to beautiful Bermuda and then had to settle back into the academic world when September came since Ralph is still studying at Cornell.

Eileen Raden, still studying voice at the Playhouse and singing with the Mendelssohn Choir, participated in a live TV performance of Queen Sabbath with the Beth Shalom Choral Society in observance of Jewish Music Month. Ellie is moving this spring to Philadelphia where she will work for the Philadelphia Youth Opportunity Center.

In February, as I write this report for the Recorder, I'm doing it from a slightly elevated position . . . like from about three feet in the air! Sid is due to return from DaNang, Vietnam shortly, on March 12th, after a year's tour of duty; and we're to be married on April 8th. Although I received my ring "by proxy" in August, I absolutely will not say "I do" until he's beside me! I still love teaching at Ellis, but I must leave it behind next year since Uncle Sam is taking Sid and me to Boston for a final tour of duty. Actually, I'm quite excited about seeing all the Chathamites who live in the Boston area—one of whom is my former roommate Jane Tobey. Come August Jane will be "Mrs.," and we're hoping the four of us can get together often in Boston. Can't wait! A happy year to all of you!

Jane reporting:

Diane Wirsig is completing work on her master's degree in English at the University of Chicago. She and her fiancé, Tom Garrity, are proud to announce their first arrival! Details remain a bit sparse, but the Vietnamese child's name is Kim.

Sandy Small, having completed her master's degree in history, is job hunting in Durham, North Carolina. Virginia Stretton Smith and her husband Douglas have moved to Lansing, Michigan, where she will start teaching in the fall.

Also teaching are Ellen Tiller Weil and Rina Sigal Segel. Ellen is teaching third grade, and Rina, having received her master of science degree in education, is now teaching fourth grade.

Lynn Swartz Jacobson loves her new job as assistant to the director of planning at West Penn Hospital. After a camping fiasco with the Harrises, (Shiela Bennett), she and Blair have vowed to travel as "typical tourists" in the future.

Jill Squire Popish reports that Paul is enjoying his internship in pediatrics. They are heading for the Virgin Islands about the time this goes to print.

Ronya Sieg Sallade is still with Project TALENT and sends her best to all.

Martha Wilson left Pittsburgh last fall to join the staff of Julius Garfinckel and Company in Washington, D.C. Just outside Washington, Elaine Wenger has a new job as secretary for two young lawyers.

Ingrid von Dattan has seen many Chathamites due to Susan Archer Dawes' wedding, living with Shirley McNerney, and working in Boston where so many of us seem to congregate.

Marcia Webb Buxton and husband Tom are with the Peace Corps in Peru. They are involved in community development work in Indian communities located in the Andes. They were thrilled to see Mrs. Joan Becker, Chatham Librarian, when she and her husband were in Lima at Christmas time.

After moving into a new house and greeting their son Ned, Janet Simpson Prescott and husband Ed are finally finding time to enjoy Philadelphia, where Ed is on the faculty of University of Pennsylvania, Wharton School.

Pam Stirba Russell and Bill have become great "camping nuts" and are waiting for warm weather so they can haul the sleeping bags out from storage.

Key West, Florida now has a potter, courtesy of Susan Vansant Bartz. She and Jarold are under the hot sun while he is serving as an officer aboard the USS Sea Poacher.

News from our associate class members was a bit sparse but hopefully more will be heard from next year. Judi Wetlaufer Clinton is working part-time in a small art gallery, fulfilling credits as a fine arts major, and taking care of Marshall IV! She and Peter have seen Sally Tredwell Duff frequently. They also spent a delightful evening at Sam and Jackie Smyth Gawthrop's new home outside Philadelphia.

Tina Swensen Cummings and John have moved south. Tina is teaching three days a week at the Children's Hospital in Atlanta as well as tutoring in the afternoons. She and John had a grand vacation in New Orleans, and then went home to Chicago for the holidays.

It's hard to believe a whole year has gone by since our last issue! After completion of graduate school and a heavenly trip to Hawaii, I finally joined the ranks of the employed. I have thirty first-graders in Canton, Massachusetts. Weekends are devoted to skiing and initial planning for a summer wedding. A huge thank you to all who responded. May you have a healthy and happy year.

CHATHAM COLLEGE ALUMNAE RECORDER

FALL, 1967

"... the communications fields offer the biggest, fattest, widest-open opportunities I know for women to find a creative expression that won't have to take a back seat (in a man's world)."

CHATHAM COLLEGE ALUMNAE RECORDER

● The Girls Who Change Your Mind

(p. 3) is the first of a series of articles about Chatham alumnae whose careers demonstrate that a liberal arts education can lead to interesting jobs in almost every area of employment for women. Helen Smith, the author, should herself be one of those included in this exploration of the field of communications. She operates her own advertising agency, Smith and Armbruster Inc., in Monroeville, Pennsylvania, and shares her many talents in her volunteer work with the United Presbyterian Church U.S.A. Miss Smith has served as fundraising consultant for the Alumnae Association, and currently is chairman of the Recorder editorial board and an alumnae member of the Chatham Board of Trustees.

● An Open House for Seniors from the Pittsburgh area secondary schools was held on campus on Saturday, September 30, 1967. The program for prospective students and their mothers was co-sponsored by the Admissions Office and the Alumnae Association. Following the welcoming remarks of Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort and President Edward D. Eddy, the seniors attended a session on "College—What It Means To Me" conducted by Chatham students, and their mothers participated in seminar discussions on "College Today" with four members of the college faculty. Campus tour and a reception in Mellon Hall completed the program. Alumnae volunteers, under the chairmanship of Cordelia Suran Jacobs and Gwen Bach Lammert, served as registrars and aides.

● Organ Music for Christmas, the high fidelity, long play album recorded last year by Russell G. Wichmann, chairman of the music department, in the Chatham College Chapel, is again available through the College Book Store. This delightful selection of Christmas music in its colorful gift package jacket designed by Mr. Jerry Caplan, chairman of the art department, may be purchased by using the order form on page 42.

● The new cover design is the work of Sue Allardice, the artist member of the editorial board. She is responsible, also, for the layout for the stories beginning on the next page.

THE GIRLS WHO CHANGE YOUR MIND

HELEN HEATH SMITH '44

Chances are very good that you have been motivated to some kind of opinion or action by the work of the Chatham alumnae who are the subject of this article. In this day of fantastic communications capabilities, and communications failures almost equally fantastic, the knowledge that there are some clean-upright-and-trustworthy Chatham graduates sprinkled in the melange may be somewhat consoling.

The industry of communications arts is relatively small in relation to its influence and to the volume of super-heated controversy carried on by its admirers and detractors. This country has about 30,000 newspaper reporters, around 85,000 persons engaged in radio and television broadcasting, and possibly as many as 150,000 advertising and public relations professionals. Added to these principal categories are magazine, technical, and book writers and editors. All in all, not a very large segment of the working population.

The industry's wage scale cuts a wide swath. A beginner may start with a paycheck as slim as $60 a week, while at the top are annual salaries in six figures. Almost every level between these two extremes is well-represented.

How many Chatham alumnae are, or have been, engaged in this field full-time or part-time, or are related to the field through their husbands' employment is difficult to (Many editors, including thank goodness ours, feel now that they'd much prefer a wide liberal arts background to a journalism major. I gather this is also true of many other fields.)

estimate. However, the sampling of full-time communications professionals furnished by the alumnae files is probably as representative as any group in this kaleidoscopic field could be. Among them are a newspaper reporter, a book editor, a public relations field executive, a design coordinator, a television graphic artist, two agency copywriters, an agency radio-television writer-producer, an advertising account executive, and a former agency owner who is now free-lancing.

Debbie Little, at the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, is on her maiden voyage. "Working," she says, "is so much more physically strenuous than college that I find myself collapsing when I get home at night."

Debbie entered the communications field with the same special preparation virtually all Chatham graduates have had—none. Her beginning at the Post-Gazette will be familiar in another way, too, to girls embarking on newspaper careers; she started in the women's department. Once the women's department represented not only the beginning, but the end, of opportunity for women on newspapers. Now the horizons are considerably wider, but the route is hardly less arduous. Debbie is now a general assignment reporter, a title she equates with "garbage can." The job has included movie reviews, obituaries, short stories, wedding announcements, and feature articles, and Debbie concedes that the general assignment route is a "great way to learn the business." She finds excitement in the variety of her daily work schedule, and in the many different kinds of people she meets.

"Newspaper work is teaching me to be alert," she adds. "It's very possible to get a story on my lunch hour if I keep my eyes open."

Long past her career-launching days is Helen Ryman, grand dame of Pittsburgh advertising women. Helen is just one year short of Social Security, but considerably short of retiring: "I am going to do part-time PR assignments, writing and editing mostly . . . ready to do some serious writing . . . still working with Council House Mental Health project, outlining a plan for volunteer recruitment . . . editing Woman's City Club Bulletin . . . working with Project Outreach, supervising preparation of a newsletter with girls who cannot spell or type, but who have ideas and a drive to be different."

The advertising field was young when Helen began writing copy for Joseph Horne Company in 1926. She went from there to the women's department of the Pittsburgh Press, then to the Chicago Herald-Examiner, and back to Pittsburgh to the Roosevelt Hotel where her promotion acumen earned her the job as sales manager.

Helen Ryman '24

Helen was instrumental in establishing the Pittsburgh Playhouse as a community institution. Her promotion campaigns put the Playhouse on the list of things-to-do in Pittsburgh. Then in 1942 she joined one of the City's older advertising agencies, Ensign Advertising (now W. Craig Chambers, Inc.) and eventually became vice president. In 1951, she opened her own agency and operated it until four years ago. Since then she has been teaching and free-lancing.

An innovator with a reputation for follow-through and getting-the-job-done, Helen Ryman has consistently applied her considerable talents to civic and charitable purposes as well as to earning a living. Of her perennially heavy schedule of good deeds she says, "It keeps you off the streets."

At least two Chatham alumnae have combined interest in the theater with their advertising careers. "It's not an accident that I have been most interested in the assignments that bordered on the show business field," writes Peggy Matheny Bailey, '42, Boston advertising account executive. "As long as I can remember I've been a theater buff. I was only five years old when I played my first professional role —Tinker Bell in 'Peter Pan' with the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater Company in Atlanta." Peggy directs and acts with a local little-theater group that celebrates its golden anniversary this year. For ten seasons she made frequent appearances with summer stock at Boothbay Playhouse and Deertrees Theatre in Maine. She is a member of Equity and of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA), and sometimes stars on radio and TV commercials in Boston.

One of Peggy's directing assignments was an hour-long musical fashion show for the supperclub of the Americana Hotel in both New York and Hollywood, Florida. The performers were forty-three children, some as young as 4½. The first rehearsal was chaos, she reports, until she recruited a handsome male associate to charm the moppets' mothers out of earshot.

After several agency stints that included personal public relations for the Kennedy family, and Christian Herter's successful campaign for governor, Peggy became a specialist in advertising, marketing, and promotion of products sold to women—Wamsutta sheets and towels, Curity diapers, Carter's knitwear, Chatham blankets, Cott beverages, Pepsi

Peggy Matheny Bailey '42

Cola, Underwood deviled ham, Sheraton Hotels, Cluett Peabody's "Sanforized" process, Salada Tea, as well as many regional and local accounts.

Until quite recently, Peggy was an account executive for Kenyon & Eckhardt's Boston office. Because of the many evenings required by her work, she has now elected to free-lance. She doesn't expect the free-lancing to provide much added leisure, but her work schedule will be more nearly under her personal control. She wants more time for the church youth work she and her husband do, for Republican party activities, for teaching creative writing at Boston Ad Club, working for charitable causes, and for her newest enthusiasm—golf.

Ruth Garland Lesko, '56, was a drama major at Chatham, and did a year's graduate work in drama at Yale. She acted off-Broadway for two years, and keeps her hand in the dramatic field with such extra-curricular things as directing for the Twin Towers Arts Festival in Pittsburgh's North Hills and doing publicity for the Pittsburgh Playhouse.

The drama training has been handy, too, for the regional radio and television material she writes and produces for

Ruth Garland Lesko '56

Lando, Inc., Pittsburgh advertising agency. Among her current productions are "Cooking from A to Zelda," a five-minute cooking show sponsored by Foodland Supermarkets on WTAE-TV, other Foodland commercials, Mabro (home remodeling), and Roth Rug Co. Her past work includes commercials for Drake's Bread, Vimco spaghetti, Lincoln Homes, Giant Eagle supermarkets and Sun Drug Stores.

In a former agency job, Ruth found herself in competition with her husband. She was working on Alcoa's introduction of aluminum cans for soft drinks, while her husband, whose competitive agency worked for J&L Steel Company, was laboring in behalf of soft drinks in steel cans. "For a long time," Ruth recalls, "our dinner table conversation was very guarded."

Ruth fell into the advertising business accidentally. Applying for a job as a feature writer for Seventeen Magazine in New York, she was talked into working in the advertising department instead. The persuasion "wasn't too hard," she remembers, "because the advertising job paid a heckuva lot more, and I found I took to it like a duck to water."

One of many Chatham women handling home and career quite successfully, Ruth advises, "My husband said I'd better tell you I have a full-time housekeeper to take care of the children, so you don't think I chain them to a wall during the day." Daughter Tanya is a first-grader this year; son Hud is three.

Gorham sterling, Dutch Boy paint, and Bristol Myers copy rolls out of the typewriter of Rosalind Case Reynolds, '55, at The Marschalk Co., New York. She also had time recently to roll out a children's book which, if published, will be called "Whale of a Tale" and will help young readers to make up their own stories. Past work includes copy for Hellmann's mayonnaise, Gold Medal Flour, and Pillsbury.

Roz began communicating in a copy pool, typing other people's copy. Then came retail work for a small agency, a stint with a larger agency, and finally Marschalk.

The whole Reynolds family enjoys action. Roz and her lawyer husband ride and bicycle in Central Park, regularly swim, sun, and have massages in health clubs. Son Gerald swims, shoots, plays LaCrosse. One of the family's three cats just had kittens. They live in Gracie Square about two blocks from Mayor Lindsay, a man also interested in action.

Last August Roz went on "The Match Game" for a lark and won. She advises other alumnae to try their hands. Begin, she advises, in advance of your next New York trip by writing Rosell Barnhard, The Match Game, 375 Park Avenue.

Rachel Kirk Bobo, '40, says her career in communications started under the tutelage of Hazel Shupp (now Mrs. P. W. Hutson, retired) in advanced composition at Chatham. "Soon," she says, "I fell in love with putting words together and gave up the idea of being a chemistry major."

Rachel's first job was with an advertising agency all right, but putting-words-together had to wait a bit; her main duty was clipping competitive beer ads. She endured this state of affairs for three months, then moved to the Bulletin Index, a Pittsburgh news magazine, now defunct, which served as a training ground for dozens of would-be writers in the area. In this job she acquired a wealth of experience, but no other wealth to speak of, and one day, incensed by an undeserved brow-beating administered by the publisher, she dramatically quit. ("One of my finer moments.")

After two years back at Chatham as field secretary, Rachel joined the Pittsburgh Press as a general assignment reporter and put words together for five enjoyable years. At this stage of her career she took time out for home and motherhood, returning some years later as a writer with Price & Price, Pittsburgh advertising agency.

Except for one more career-leave of five years, she has continued with Price & Price, doing radio, newspaper, and general copywriting for a long list of accounts, including Thrift Drug, Otto Milk, National Union Insurance, and Swift Homes.

Rachel represents a narrowing breed of communications writers—much in demand—with the versatility to move smoothly from one kind of writing to another, changing subject material, point of view, and media rapidly, often many times in a few hours.

"The communications trade has the advantage, for a woman, of being the sort of thing one can go back to. I suspect the average woman is in and out of the business world at least twice in her lifetime, and not all trades equip one to do this."

Rachel Kirk Bobo, '40

She points out, and exemplifies with her own writing career, that the communications field is one which can be abandoned and re-entered with reasonable ease—an important consideration for women whose varying family responsibilities govern their availability in the job market.

For Sue Allardice, '59, communication is principally a matter of graphic art. As an artist in the promotion department of WTAE-TV, Sue designs and produces the station identification and program promotion slides shown on Channel 4, Pittsburgh. She also designs and executes artwork for print media—newspaper and magazine ads, booklets and billboards.

Like many of her compatriots in communications, she began her career with lowly duties in a job only remotely related to her present work. Her first stop was the advertising department of the Mt. Lebanon (Pittsburgh) News where she worked as an advertising saleswoman. Her next step was to Joseph Horne Co. as a fashion copywriter. From Horne's, she moved to WTAE. She still does some copywriting, but devotes her major effort to her preferred medium, art.

Both in her work and as a hobby, Sue is proficient at photography. She paints, principally in watercolor, and has exhibited locally at the Three Rivers Arts Festival and in two one-man shows (Central Blood Bank and Pittsburgh Press Club). She is secretary, archivist, and librarian for the Visual Communications Society of Pittsburgh (formerly the Art Directors Society).

Sue sees many possibilities for career-minded women in television, although there is still evidence of wage differentials between women and men. She believes that the rapidly growing network of educational television stations opens up an exciting future for the industry. Meanwhile, for immediate excitement she recommends cave exploring, climbing, and camping with American Youth Hostel, of which she is an enthusiastic member.

"It's my observation that equal pay for equal work is still a live issue for women in this area of the industry (television)."

Sue Allardice, '59

Marion Swannie Hall, '45, has the remarkable distinction of staying with the same employer from the summer following her graduation until the present moment. The company for which she works, IBM, is large enough, however, to have provided the brief false start and the initial maid-of-all-work stint that seem to characterize the typical career story.

Marion took a seven week training course for IBM's systems service program, a technical course rife with diagrams and flow charts. When it was all over, she requested, and got, an advertising job instead, and in IBM's very young advertising department she learned to perform all the steps in writing, designing, and producing promotion materials in a variety of print media.

From that point on, Marion's career skirts the typical and invades the distinguished. Since 1960, she has been coordinator of IBM's corporate design program, a job that takes her into the fields of architecture, product design, graphics, interior design, exhibition development, and audio visuals.

Last year she added an additional area to her impressive repertoire—the management of IBM's department of arts and sciences. This department operates the IBM art gallery on East 57th Street in New York, manages the Company's large fine arts collection, and controls its program of touring shows. The latter program currently has on tour seven art shows and four shows comprised of working models of the inventions of Leonardo da Vinci.

Marion's corporate design responsibilities keep her in touch with some thirty different company locations in this country and abroad, and require frequent travel, including a yearly trip to Europe. The most interesting aspect of her job, she says, is the opportunity to work with some of the world's most talented designers, artists, and architects.

Marion is a director of the American Institute of Graphic Arts and a member of the Arts Advisory Council of the New York Board of Trade.

If your junior high and highschool young people receive new English textbooks published by Harper & Row, you can take solace in knowing that their editing and production has been in the competent hands of a Chatham alumna, Mary Loughran Fell, '62.

Mary's Chatham major in French prepared her in typical fashion for her first job as advertising supervisor for American Hospital Supply Corp. Her internship in the communications business was swift and thorough. "I had to paddle fast to keep my head above water," she recalls. Her husband, trained in printing, aided with regular cram sessions in graphic arts, which often lasted far into the night.

After two-and-a-half years, Mary decided to make a move she describes as "from bedpans to books." She joined Harper & Row as assistant director of promotion in the publisher's textbook division, Evanston, Illinois.

In this position she used all the knowledge gained from her two-and-a-half years of production cramming. She did creative writing, supervised design, layout, and printing production. A year later, she moved into the editorial department where she is working currently. Now responsible for the actual preparation of texts, she finds her work "very challenging and very rewarding."

Mary has just completed a term as president of the Chicago chapter of Chatham alumnae. With the Junior Chamber of Commerce wives' organization, she has been working with underprivileged children in a Chicago settlement house.

As members of a ballroom dance group, she and her husband are recent first-place trophy winners. By way of contrast, Mary is the proud owner of a pair of ten-pound Sears men's work shoes, necessary accoutrements for the hiking trips she and her husband habitually take. Equipped for these forays into the wilderness, Mary describes herself as a "vision of loveliness" with backpack, ten-pound clodhoppers, and baggy jeans.

Out in San Francisco, Priscilla Hendryx Salter, '46, exhibited some reluctance to discuss her job as a regional public relations executive for Westinghouse. "With our Pittsburgh headquarters almost 3,000 miles away, I've managed to keep them wondering for years," she explains. And she has a valid point; what headquarters wouldn't wonder about an employee who takes Walter Cronkite on an underwater trip in a deep submersible?

Priscilla reports that part of her work is writing softsell feature stories. She might well have described them as "softshell," because her favorite area of work is associated with Westinghouse underseas developments. It was in this capacity that she sent Walter Cronkite on his deep dive, and that she met renowned marine engineer Jacques Cousteau. To add to her understanding of her undersea subjects, she bravely and briefly took up scuba diving—"but never again."

Priscilla works with the Western winners of the Westinghouse scholarships for high school seniors with unusual science aptitudes. She reports this as "one of my most stimulating activities . . . the kids are brilliant and interesting."

Working with all news media, including the trade press, Priscilla says, "I am writing about Poseidon missile launchers one day, radio telescopes the next, and refrigerators half-an-hour later." She came to her present job with experience in both newspaper reporting and agency work, and found, unexpectedly, that working for one company can be as demanding as working for many different clients. A rather attractive fringe benefit of her career is that it led her to an editor who blue-pencilled "Hendryx" and substituted "Salter."

Priscilla's job is exciting and varied. She sets up press conferences, works with photographers on many different kinds of assignments, answers a constant barrage of "wild" telephone questions. "But in the end," she says, "all roads lead to the typewriter, and I'm eternally grateful to Mrs. Shupp for teaching me to write a sentence."

Among our sampling of Chatham graduates in communications, Priscilla is one of several who mention gratefully their undergraduate training in "the typewriter and the sentence." Possession of skills with these two tools would no doubt be lauded by all alumnae who have had to make a living for any period of time. As preparation for a satisfying job, there is ample evidence that, along with a liberal arts education, they are enough.

"The nicest fringe benefit was marrying an editor I met through the job."

CHATHAM REPRESENTED by ALUMNAE at ACADEMIC CONVOCATIONS

During the past three years forty-one alumnae have accepted the invitation of President Eddy to represent him and Chatham College at inaugurations, convocations, dedications and anniversary celebrations all over the country. They have donned cap, gown and Chatham hood to march in academic processions with representatives of hundreds of other institutions of higher learning, and have been honored guests at all of the events that are part of such celebrations.

Their letters to President Eddy tell of their pride in representing their alma mater and their pleasure in participating in these festive occasions.

Rose Senoff Eisenstein, '57, attended the dedication of the Franklin F. Moore Library at Rider College; Elizabeth Cober O'Donnell, '35, the inauguration of John Ralph Haines as president of Monticello College; Jane O'Neill Cox, '41, a convocation at C. W. Post College; Nancy Gwosden Curry, '50, the inauguration of Frederic W. Ness as president of Fresno State College; and Margaret Graham Lathrop, '42, the dedication of the campus of the York (Pa.) Junior College.

Patricia Smith Joyner, '45, represented Chatham at the inauguration of Wesley N. Haines as president of Franklin College; Katherine Reebel, '29, a member of the faculty at the University of Michigan, the inauguration of Harold E. Sponberg as president of Eastern Michigan University of Ypsilanti; and Roberta Bills, '59, the inauguration of Bruce Dearing as president of the State University of New York at Binghamton (Harpur College).

Virginia LeFurgy Tubbs, '47, attended the inauguration of Richard Carleton Gilman as president of Occidental College; Martha Holland Rank, '48, the inauguration of James M. Moudy as chancellor of Texas Christian University; Lillian McFetridge Wilson, '39, the Seventy-fifth Anniversary celebration at Randolph-Macon College; and Mary Duff Miller, '31, the inauguration of Wilbert E. Locklin as president of Springfield College.

In her native Puerto Rico Gisela Paoli Villapana, '57, represented the College at the inauguration of the Right Reverend Theodore E. McCarrick as president of Catholic University. Myrtle Sexauer Cobb, '29, was President Eddy's representative at the inauguration of John David Alexander, Jr., as president of Southwestern University at Memphis where she is a member of the faculty.

Ann Curry Haux, '60, attended the inauguration of James Everett Perdue as president of the State University of New York at Oswego; Mary Jane Kerr Leonard, '39, the inauguration of Arthur L. Schultz as president of Albright College; Carolyn Pierce May, '33, the inauguration of George D. Culler as president of the Philadelphia College of Art; and Marian Jobson, '23, the inauguration of Joseph P. McMurray as president of Queens College.

Other representatives included Elizabeth Albach Weamer, '48, who attended the inauguration of Elizabeth J. McCormack, R.S.C.J., as president of Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart; Jane Meub Evans, '45 the inauguration of Albert LeRoy Pugsley as president of Youngstown University; Mary Ida McFarland Shannon, '35, the dedicatory services for the Butler County (Pa.) Community College; Frances K. Meyers, '65, the inauguration of Albert Edward Holland as president of Hobart and William Smith Colleges; Anna Liados Zervos, '58, the inauguration of the Very Reverend Malcolm Carron as president of the University of Detroit; and Harriet Rosser, '54, the inauguration of Ray L. Heffner as president of Brown University.

Peggy Matheny Bailey, '42, an alumnae member of the Chatham Board of Trustees, was President Eddy's representative at the inauguration of Ruth M. Adams as president of Wellesley College. Mary Bovard Schwartz, '50, attended the inauguration of Archibald M. Woodruff as chancellor of the University of Hartford; Alene Hutton Sage, '47, the inauguration of the Very Reverend Reginald Redlon, O.F.M., as president of St. Bonaventure University; Karen Blomquist Struckman, '64, the inauguration of Maurice B. Mitchell as chancellor of the University of Denver; and Nancy Stauffer Grantbam, '44, the Centennial Convocation of Morehouse College.

Elizabeth Rowse Pray, '42, attended the Academic Festival celebrating the changing of the name of Colorado Women's College to Temple Buell College; Jane Shidemantle Cross, '41, the inauguration of Morley J. Mays as president of Elizabethtown College; Carole Smith Petro, '60, the inauguration of Martin Meyerson as president of the State University of New York at Buffalo; Mary Louise Weber McClenahan, '39, the inauguration of Bernard Schroder Adams as president of Ripon College; Isabelle Allias, '54, the Centennial Convocation at Lebanon Valley College; Joan Anderson Booth, '59, the inauguration of Burton Crosby Hallowell as president of Tufts University; and Stephanie Ruben Klein, '57, the inauguration of Robert Joseph Wert as president of Mills College.

Five alumnae participated in convocations at institutions where their husbands are members of the faculty: Sarah Stevenson Foster, '33, the inauguration of Mark Curtis as president of Scripps College; Mary Jane Knapper Wallhausser, '55, the inauguration of Carl Gustaf Fjellman as president of Upsala College; Phyllis Ingraham Stout, '45, the Bicentennial Convocation at Rutgers University; Helen Means Pounds, '53, the inauguration of Howard W. Johnson as president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Marigolden Guest Trutschler, '51, the inauguration of Joseph C. Palmountain, Jr., as president of Skidmore College. Mrs. Trutschler also attended the inauguration of Harold Clark Martin as chancellor of Union College.

Alumnae volunteers continue to play a vital role in their service to the College, and it is with sincere appreciation that President Eddy takes this opportunity to recognize those who have represented him and the College.

DANFORTH GRADUATE FELLOWSHIPS

The Danforth Foundation announces the fourth competition for its Graduate Fellowships for Women. The objective of the program is to find and develop college and secondary school teachers among that group of American women whose preparation for teaching has been postponed or interrupted. Information and application materials may be secured by writing to Laura Bornholdt, Director of Graduate Fellowships for Women, The Danforth Foundation, 607 North Grand Boulevard, St. Louis, Missouri 63103. Nomination by an institution is not required.

Registration for the required tests closes January 2, 1968. Awards will be announced on or about April 25, 1968.

Elsa Braun Searing, who for many years has served as secretary of the Class of 1902, died on July 29, 1967. Mrs. Searing was devoted to her alma mater and was a past president of the Alumnae Association. At the request of her family, memorial gifts have been made to the Chatham Forum Fund, and a bronze plaque will be placed in the future Library of the College.

NEW ADDRESS

Eleanor Boyer Church (Mrs. Walter S.), 1051 North Negley Avenue, Pittsburgh,
Pa. 15206

Eleanor Boyer Church attended the inauguration of the president at Wellesley College October 14th and moved October 25th with only ten days warning. Although adjusting to apartment living she suffered most of the winter from bursitis in her left arm and shoulder. Her daughter Martha, happy with her new job at Wilson College, had a five week tour of the Far East, flying by the polar route from New York to Tokyo, then from Hong Kong to Bangkok and Nepal. She spent one week in Calcutta, one week in North India, and one in South India at Lady Doke College where she visited Miss Clapp who had resigned from Wellesley to aid in the administration of this college. Martha then flew to Teheran, to Istanbul, to Athens and then home, having crossed the international date line twice. The Atlanta twins, Walter and Laura, go to first grade this year and are in separate classes for the first time in their school experience. As founder of the Social Service Board at Presbyterian Hospital, Eleanor was awarded an orchid and honored by being declared a member of the Board for life.

Janet Brownlee was in Pennsylvania in July for the reunion of 189 Brownlees. In 1913 her Aunt Janet read a paper at the reunion; this year Janet read a paper on the "Brownlees of Scotland." Letters from missionary friends in Jordan state that the T. B. Sanitarium where Janet taught English to the student nurses was taken over by the Army in the recent crisis. The Arab warden of the Garden Tomb was killed, Janet spent some time there in 1953 and 1960 and does not know what the future of the Garden Tomb will be.

Pauline Burt, now hale and hearty, has given up the care of her cottage at Lake Willoughby and spent her spring vacation at Cape Cod, to be greeted upon arrival by eight inches of snow. Her summer was spent "in the quiet secluded mountain and lake country of northern Vermont far from this world of summer riots, wars against aggression and increasing taxes!" What bliss!

Juanita Husband Harrison reports two weddings and the birth of her first great-grandson, Charles William Cunningham, July 26, 1967, in Las Vegas where his father is serving in the U.S. Air Force. Her grandson John Hahn was married to Jane Pekonin on August 5th in Mt. Pleasant, Pennsylvania, and the wedding of her granddaughter Rebecca Kathryn Blakemore to Edgar Lee Avirett, Jr. was an event of September 2nd in Tallahassee, Florida. Both young folks are students at Florida State University.

Phoebe Knight Nicholas rejoices in her blessings; good health and the return of daughter Phoebe and her family to the Pittsburgh district.

Martha Kroenert is still a patient in the Passavant Nursing Home, Reed and Roberts Streets. Do send cards!

Mary Little Aiken is recuperating at home after successful eye surgery but eager to be able to "get up and go." One of her five grandsons is enrolled as a student at W. & J. this term, to Mary's delight.

Marguerite McBurney Rigdon, after enjoying the three week's visit of four strenuous grandsons, embarked on a trip to London, England for the month of September.

Ada Maiden McClure is improved in health so that she can take part in the activities of the Lutheran Home in Johnstown where she now makes her home.

Mildred McWilliams is so healthy and wealthy that she travels extensively; even when she is "at home" she is usually "on the go." Her usual itinerary is St. Petersburg, Chautauqua and Buffalo, New York.

Hazel Rider reports a recent illness that requires rest and care. Our best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Ethel Williams Keister sent no personal news so I shall report what I see in the papers. Ethel's grandson, Lt. Stephen Ratcliffe, a graduate of the Salisbury School in Connecticut and the Citadel, Charleston, South Carolina was married on August 12th to Rita Ann Fredericks in New Milford, New Jersey. Ethel's grandsons John Kemp Fuller, Jr., John Galt Zimmerman, Jr., and Harton Singer Semple, Jr., were members of the wedding party. The young folks will make their home for the next two years in Adana, Turkey where Lt. Ratcliffe is serving with the U.S. Air Force. Ethel's granddaughter, Carol Semple, was the winner of the 1967 Western Pennsylvania Women's Golf Championship and came home from Hollins School for a barn dance debut party given by her grandmother and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harton Singer Semple of Sewickley, on September 7th.

Personally, I am still longing for new worlds to conquer but so far have found nothing.

Frances Boale Belding, after selling her home in Sarasota, Florida, and renting a furnished apartment there for the winter months (beginning about the middle of January) has been busy this summer changing furniture in her Pittsburgh apartment. In June she was one of a party of six, including Louise Reinecke Thorne, '17, who, in Montreal, boarded a Holland-American Line vessel, visited Expo '67, cruised to the Gaspé, up the Saguenay River and down to New York via Cape Cod.

Edna Gaw Colvin writes that life for them goes on at an even keel—a little more slowly each year—but they are "well and contented."

Martha ("Fairy") Gibbons Millsbaugh was anticipating a Chatham Alumnae Club meeting in September at the home of Julia Kadelsik Little, '26, who planned to show her travel pictures from the Orient and Africa.

Leila Hill Lytle had some happy news. Her younger son, Jim, a major in the U.S. Army, was married on April 1.

My request for news evoked the following "poetic" gems.

From Margaret Lee,

"No tales to tell,
No yarns to spin;
Home, sweet home
That's where I've been."

From Melba Martin Ingersoll:

"Your rhymes are very clever.
My reply's the same as ever:
'No news but war and taxes
And now and then—the weather'".

Also, a third production comes from Amelia Slater:

"To the mountains I went;
Three weeks I spent.
The weather was perfect,
The people pluperfect;
The speakers were good
And so was the food.
Then back I came
To routine tame."

Mildred Nichols Kohman spent the summer at Lakeside, Ohio. During August, her daughter and son-in-law and their four children visited her. Mildred was planning a trip late in September, destination unknown at time of writing.

We have had, and will have, some additional travelers from our number.

Gertrude Frame Patterson and "Pat" celebrated her birthday, June 23, by flying by National Airlines jet from Tampa, Florida, to Los Angeles; thence by Pan American to Honolulu. They found the islands, which they visited by small jet travel, simply delightful. The Hawaiians use these jets as casually as we use autos and busses. Accommodations, all with lanais, were unusual; food was outstanding and at every meal they found a Vanda orchid at one of their places. Mountains, several active volcanoes, beaches, gardens, rice paddies, coffee and pineapple plantations, leis in greeting at airports and at luau, and most friendly people who are proud of their statehood, made it a trip which they highly recommend. On their return, via San Francisco, they spent ten days in California.

More distant travelers were David and Kathryn Robb Dunn who flew in May to Japan to visit their daughter Barbara and family at Sendai, a large city in northern Japan. Barbara has a new daughter named for Kathryn. They greatly enjoyed the trip by jet plane and also the fast Japanese trains. They were greatly impressed by the friendliness and courtesy of the people.

In the offing is another journey, the Mediterranean cruise on the "Coronia" by Helen Steele Truxal and Dorothy Stoebner Markell, '17.

Adella Stewart Anderson, now living at Seaford, Delaware, early in July went by Pullman, which she greatly enjoyed, from Wilmington, Delaware, to Boston, Massachusetts. There her daughter and family met her and they drove to New Harbor, Maine, where Adella stayed at an old-fashioned boarding-house where they served family-style meals. En route back, she visited her son and his family in Connecticut. Adella wishes with many of the rest of us that she could promote more use of good trains.

Jeanne Mahey Smith reports a busy, pleasant summer, including a drive with her husband, in May, to Madison, Wisconsin, for his University of Wisconsin class reunion. They enjoyed beautiful Lake Mendota, a series of reunion luncheons, banquets and even breakfasts. En route home, they visited with old friends in Detroit and Northville, Michigan, and Toledo, Ohio. At home, "Bowling on the Green" began in May and continued throughout the summer. Civic Light Opera during the summer brought enjoyment, as did one of the performances of the Opera Workshop at Chatham College Chapel.

Mary Jane Stratton has had to curtail activities because of the "inevitable creeping up of the infirmities of age." She is enjoying her home even with its burdensome responsibilities.

Grace Woodrow says that "retirement continues to be fine" with time to do some things not before possible and still enough responsibility to prevent getting to the "creaking, idling condition."

Rebekah Crouse Costanzo and Rosemary Geary both send greetings but report no news.

As for your secretary, life is interesting with frequent baby-sitting with my niece's children. In early June, I had a week's visit in Alliance, Ohio, with niece Patsy's family. On the return trip by car from Pittsburgh, Louise Reinecke Thorne came with my sister Jane and me to visit with her daughter Mannie Wright, whose husband's place of ministry had, a short time before, been moved to Lancaster, Pennsylvania. During her visit, Louise and Mannie entertained Kathryn Dunn, Jane and me at a delicious lunch, including famous Reinecke pop-overs. We greatly enjoyed hearing from Kathryn about their trip to Japan.

DEATH

Ellinore Salinger Coleman (Mrs. Bertram R.) in November 1966.

Rachel Alexander Christie reports that Bob still works and that she is often busier than she likes to be with various activities.

A letter from Kamala Cornelius Asirvatham brings a cordial invitation to visit her at their bungalow at 14 Spencer Road, Bangalore 5, India. Her husband has retired, but unfortunately has been ill for the past six months. Kamala describes the colorful display of flowers in their garden—roses, hibiscus, morning glory creepers, bouganvillea—and fruit trees bearing coconuts, mangoes, bananas and avocados. She tells, also, of the extreme poverty, discontent and unrest in her country, and asks us to remember them in our prayers. She holds little hope of attending our 50th reunion next year, but wishes that she could join us on that special occasion.

Mollie Davidson Nass and many others are looking forward to our 50th reunion on June 8, 1968.

Janet Hill writes of meeting Ellen Crowe in Stouffer's in August. Ellen was in our class for two years but graduated from Carnegie Tech Drama School. She will retire from the faculty of Centenary College in Hackettstown, New Jersey, in May 1968. Janet is still in the City Law Department and hears from Ruth Long, Eleanor Fuller McMurray, and Emilie Kates Logue whose cards indicate that she concentrated on Ireland on this year's trip to Europe.

Charlotte Hunker Hays and her husband still enjoy North Carolina from April to October, and they would be happy to see any who might travel their way at Webster. Charlotte writes that Bert's daughter Sally (18) suffered severe facial injuries in a bad automobile accident in California, but they are thankful that she is still alive.

Ruth Long, who has been busy and keeps well, joins Charlotte in sending greetings to all.

Claire Klein, '43, daughter of Annetta Marks Horowitz, writes, "Mother broke her hip on Christmas Eve and at that time was in the hospital for 8 weeks. On May 23, she had a mild stroke and went to St. Francis Hospital, and at the moment (September) is still there as several complications set in. In the next few weeks we hope to move her to Negley House for further recuperation. She asked to send regards to all in her class."

We are sorry to hear of Annetta's illness and hope that she will soon be much better. Thanks to her daughter for writing to us.

Ruth Kauffman Morrison, who visited her sister in Pittsburgh in July, has enjoyed Florida where the summer was not too hot. She hopes to come to our reunion next spring.

Dorothy Minor Cary writes that they "stayed at home last winter because it was such 'nice' weather until March hit us. We won't let the early winter days fool us this year."

Florence Younkings Fowler says, "This has been a busy but quiet year for me. There has been no word from nor about my son-in-law who is supposedly a prisoner in Vietnam. I help when I can with my daughter and her four boys who live a month at Kitty Hawk Beach in July."

Thanks to all who sent in cards. I hope to see many of you at reunion next June.

DEATH

We deeply regret the passing of Catherine Caughey Johnson on September 11, 1967, but we are thankful that her suffering is over.

Elizabeth Davidson Davidson reports that life goes on as usual.

We apologize that last year's listing moved Helen Bennett Nelson from Daytona Beach to St. Petersburg and make the correction by listing her proper address above.

Edna Faddis Stevens and her husband expect to spend part of this winter in the south with their two daughters.

Elizabeth Fleming and her sister had an interesting trip to Expo '67 and down through New England this summer.

Margaret Hare Hurst-Brown still spends her time between London, England and Williamsburg, Virginia, and enjoys her international family.

Helen Horix Fairbanks has moved to the King Edward Apartments since her son's marriage last winter.

Minnie McGrew Croyle is quite content with her apartment life in the Shady-side area.

Mary Stevenson's reply came in last year too late to make the Recorder, but she wrote that she is secretary and one of the incorporators of the Historical Society of West Newton, and she has been busy with the restoration of the oldest house in the area which had belonged to her great-great-grandfather.

Gladys Wilson Green and Ad have returned from a trip to Belgium and France, and are proud to report the possession of nine grandchildren.

Life goes on about as usual for your secretary and she urges you to be thinking about our 50th reunion in 1970.

NEW ADDRESS

Rose Gorzo Rapach (Mrs. Michael B.),
810 Peachtree Road, Apt. E, Greentree,
Claymont, Del. 19730

Helen Allison Dunbar was one of the six attending our forty-fifth reunion. It was such a pleasant day that she thinks we should start planning now for our fiftieth.

Peg Berryman Lowstutter was sorry to have missed reunion. She fell on the ice in February, breaking her hip. She has a pin in it and has graduated to walking with a cane. Beavy is still working, although he could retire.

Beulah Boggess Coffindoffer came to reunion and then spent the remainder of the weekend with Jane, Ina and Bonn.

Margaret Brown Spurr serves on several boards, plays a lot of golf and bridge, teaching bridge occasionally when a group urges. She has six gorgeous grandchildren and one unmarried son at home.

Betty Dean Boots has been busy house-hunting and preparing to move. She says, "Hello to all the girls."

Dot Burleigh Courtney had a wonderful year, having spent two months in Greece, Yugoslavia and Southern Italy, with a memorable tour of the Greek Islands. She has had the usual summer with visits from the children and eleven grandchildren.

Our sincere sympathy is extended to Kathryn Carter Kuenzel whose husband passed away July 23rd after being ill since January. Kathryn is back at her office job which, she says, occupies her mind and helps to fill her days. She extends best wishes to all.

Bonn Connelly rates the journey back to reunion second only to one other—that of Columbus in 1492. She and Ina came on Friday and spent the weekend with Jane Taylor. Later they spent a week at Chautauqua.

Ina Connelly Cross expressed her enjoyment at being with the group. She and her daughter Emily toured the Scandinavian countries during the summer.

Rose Gorzo Rapach would have come to reunion had she received a notice. It evidently did not reach her when she moved. After her husband's retirement they decided upon the convenience of apartment living and moved from Wilmington. Rose was quite busy as a substitute teacher until her husband's illness.

Micky Gray Harlor sends her love to 1922 classmates, recalling the happy days together. She and Don live in Cleveland and spend the winters on Sanibel Island, Florida.

From the Tarentum Valley News we learn that Anne Jay retired after 40 years of service as elementary principal of Arnold schools. The article notes that Anne has kept up with the latest teaching techniques through study at Margaret Morrison, Columbia, Pitt and Stanford. More than 800 children presented her with gifts and cards at a surprise party in her honor.

Anne Kiskadden Griggs is another who was sorry to have to miss reunion but sends her best to all.

Florence Neumaker Knapp was so involved with Byron's fiftieth high school class reunion that she didn't make it to her own. They spent a month in Florida last winter, and then took the Argentina to South America as far as Buenos Aires, enjoying shore stops and marvelous weather on the way.

Susan Scott Tucker missed the reunion while on vacation with her husband in Detroit. Still busy with her painting and teaching art, Susan had a pen and ink drawing show in Mt. Lebanon last March and a show of paintings at the Oakland Mellon Bank in October. In between she sees her children and seven grandchildren.

Florence Solomon Ellis and her husband had a wonderful trip to Venezuela with a group of newspaper men. Her daughter and family are visiting her husband's mother in London. The oldest grandchild is thirteen.

Jane Taylor, after the reunion and a quiet summer, planned an October trip to California.

Florence Wilson Lorenz and her husband feel quite settled after a full year in Florida where they enjoy their apartment and pool. Even their travels this year have been within the state.

Ella May Wilson Clark and her husband came north in May for his fiftieth reunion at Amherst. After spending the summer at Garden City, Long Island, where son Roger lives, and in Maine and Cape Cod, they returned to Kiski in August to visit with old friends.

Your new secretary undertook the job with many misgivings, but it has been fun hearing from the ones who answered so promptly. On reunion day I attended one of the morning lectures, then met the others in Woodland Hall for lunch. Our class meeting was in the faculty lounge in Falk Hall—business nil, but lots of reminiscing—followed by a reception at President Eddy's home, a tour of Benedum Hall, and a buffet supper served on the porch and terrace. Then, with no school bells ringing this fall, I went off to Cape Cod where my sister and her husband are building a house overlooking Martha's Vineyard Sound. I spend many weeks with them at Falmouth and Naples, Florida.

Judging from those who replied (10 out of 37) and those I see locally, we seem to be healthy, busy and mellowed.

Martha Crowley, silent for a long time, reveals that she is now retired from private school teaching, has been directing a library in Poughkeepsie, but is now back living in New York with her family.

Elther Miller Kagan, as a Rabbi's wife, shares her husband's enthusiasm for teaching in a Roman Catholic college, and directing a new counseling center in New York City. Her oldest son is soon to graduate as a doctor. Her second son, who was graduated from Harvard with all the highest honors, is taking graduate work in films and T.V., and was an interpreter to a group that went this year to Russia and three satellite countries.

Martha Glandon Lubringer travels with her husband on business and convention trips all over the country, had a nice visit with Louise Hamilton Haase and her husband, enjoys being on a couple of building committees for community projects, and can't wait until her husband retires next May to travel more.

Barbara Coit Templeton, now in her third year as YWCA president in Greensburg, is part of a new community aid organization called FISH, identified by this Christian symbol of old. They help the citizenry in emergencies through the use of a telephone answering service. Barb has found it a real close-up on humanity.

Grace Davis Mechling has added book reviews to the many club activities she handles like a pro.

Stella Wagenfehr Shane has retired from her school visitor job and is enjoying her free time.

Leanne Allen, at long last, has time to attend and enjoy the Chatham lectures.

Helen Errett Hourdequin still goes to Mexico every winter.

Ruth Baxter Hill, still a professor's wife, was surprised at the pleasant weather in Georgia this summer.

Virginia Lilley Christ, still spending six months in the Poconos and six in Florida, discovered down there that the wife of Vaughn Monroe, the singer, is a 1933 Chatham graduate.

Helen Leggett Corbett, at lunch with me at the Press Club, gave the details of her Ph.D. daughter's wedding last spring. A real creative offspring!

Our class was fortunate this year in not making the vital statistics section of the papers. Since we last reported to the Recorder we have gone busily and happily about our jobs, be they professional (for money, that is) or volunteer; be they baby sitting, exploring interests that the extra time afforded by retirement makes possible, or discovering new spiritual dimensions to life.

Mary Ailes Sechler writes: "Return to volunteer work at the hospital gift shop always seems to mark the end of summer for me . . . and getting six of my eight grandchildren outfitted in 'back to school' clothes is another pleasant fall experience . . . I've had a quiet but busy summer with three of my four children moving into new homes. Enjoyed Alumnae Day at College in June, the only one of our class there, but still found many to talk to and that beautiful campus to see and be proud of!"

Abigail Cresswell says, "I am truly enjoying my retirement—perhaps it should be called semi-retirement since I work in the Elwood City Library three hours a day, five days a week. I enjoy this contact with the public."

From Eleanor Fulton McCracken we hear that she is still librarian "in a school ravaged by summer riots" although she was away on a five week cruise to Iceland and Scandinavia, including Leningrad, while this was going on.

Alice Greves reports that both she and her sister are retired and dividing their time between Greensburg, her Aunt Alice's in Irwin, and Lake Worth, Florida. She is well and happy and tells of her interest in "a group called The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship which tries to help college students to really find Christ. I don't know whether or not there is such a group at Chatham, but how I wish there were, and had been before we left in 1926, and that they had reached me."

I hope Miss Kerst sees this letter from Ruth Justice Rowley. "Millard retired the first of May and we have been buzzing about like demented wasps ever since . . . We went to Washington, D.C. to spend some time with Jennifer, our younger daughter, who is a research economic analyst there." Then followed a trip to Pittsburgh, a visit with Millard's mother "who is 91 and going strong; bought a trailer and went to Ohio where our other daughter, husband and family live. They are trailer buffs . . . they took their family and trailer and we took ours, and we spent three weeks with them at a lake in Ohio. Then—having polished off the relative route, as Millard said, we have been in Rhode Island, Cape Cod, Letchworth Park, New York, and various spots else. Our community theater is burgeoning here. I was in Look Homeward, Angel in February and directed Never Too Late in April. I am playing Grandma in Albee's The American Dream in September; so we are set here for a month while that is in rehearsal. Then we are off to South Carolina for a month and a half. We are foot-loose and, I'm afraid, completely irresponsible . . . at the moment it's great fun just to enjoy ourselves. It's kind of a yummy dessert after a lifetime's living that on the whole has been most pleasant. I wish all my friends the same."

Elsie McElwain Emery's big news is that on July 8th her sixth grandchild, John Lawrence, was born; which makes the count five boys, one girl. Her hobbies, she reports, are painting and taking care of her Afghan hound.

Audrey Reebel Early is another of our class who has taken to the Florida sun. She writes: "Jim is now retired and our time is spent between Pittsburgh and St.

Petersburg Beach, Florida, where we have bought into a co-operative apartment situated directly on the Gulf of Mexico . . . During the summer we take off on an occasional jaunt to near or far places.

Word from Helen Simons Polybemas empties our letter pouch for this Recorder. Helen writes that when her husband retired they moved to Littleton, New Hampshire, to be near nine of their ten grandchildren. Littleton is in the heart of the ski and maple sugar area, "near several towns in which we served churches, so we frequently run into people we have known for many years." Because we missed printing news from last year we will quote from her 1966 Christmas letter. "After nine years at Guilford College we are moving back to the North Country . . . The South and its people have been very kind to us, and we leave them regretfully . . . Since we had to make a choice, the scales were heavily weighted by our young folks in New Hampshire, by the associations of nearly 39 years as members of the New Hampshire Conference, and by our love for the people and mountains of this beautiful land . . . So, we come back for our final years to our first love."

Your secretary is spending a great deal of time helping wives of foreign students with the intricacies of the English language. Every Tuesday afternoon we have a group at the First Methodist Church, Centre and S. Aiken Avenues. If anyone reading this is free all or some Tuesday afternoons from 1:30-3:30, and is interested in talking to women from around the earth, please call me—682-7000. We have a wonderful time, and we need you.

It was nice to hear from Kay Caldwell Mayer who keeps busy except on her vacations with her family in the Pittsburgh area.

Betty Corey Wallis and her husband go places, but their trips are planned for leisurely traveling and are not exciting to anyone but them, so she says.

Margaret Cousley represented us at the alumnae meeting in June. She spent her vacation at Chautauqua.

Ruth Dennis sold her mother's home and is living near Toledo University and nearer her school. A neighbor is a 1956 Chatham graduate, Sheila Stevens Otto.

Suzanne Finley Heller and her husband were in London again this summer where John was working at the British Museum. They traveled through France, Scandinavia, Germany, and Switzerland. Mary and her family were there also, her husband working with an architectural firm and Mary singing in the London Bach Society. Susan is living in Philadelphia while her husband is teaching geology at Temple University.

Our deepest sympathy goes to Dorothy Floyd Warren in the death of her husband, on May 28, 1967, and to Alice Mahood Torrens whose husband Ted died April 1, 1967.

Fran Frost Brumbaugh's husband had a heart attack while on their vacation in Wyoming in August, 1966, but is back at work now. Fran was in the hospital several times this past year and I talked to her the day after she came home after an operation in July. Her daughter Barbara was on the way from Orlando to stay with them for a while.

Mardy Jones Rubart was in Pittsburgh this summer and saw some of our class members. Bob was elected an Elder in their Presbyterian church.

Mildred Parrill Gilmore and her husband took a trip to the West Indies last Christmas.

Betty Piel writes that "the last seven years have been the most productive years and have brought much personal satisfaction." Having a doctorate and being the chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages is quite an honor and we are proud of you, Betty. She takes necessary trips to professional meetings during the year, taught in summer school this summer, and in August went on a pleasure trip to New England and Montreal with members of a bridge foursome.

I received a nice letter from Peg Port Arens in October 1966, too late for the RECORDER. Ferd had retired in November 1965 and they bought a home just five minutes from three beaches, a golf course, and the village. Unfortunately Ferd did not live long enough to enjoy it. A letter received this September brought the sad news that Ferd had died suddenly on January 6, 1967. Their two boys are married—Sandy, living in New Jersey, has a 17-months-old boy; Fritz, in Columbus, Ohio, a 9-months-old boy. Both families spent their vacations with Peg this summer. Her father died in March of 1965, and her mother is living in Florida where Peg spent a few months this spring. Our deepest sympathy to Peg and her family.

Betty Porter Steinmiller, Del and Mary came to Atlanta in June and we had such a good time. Bob Frederick, Sally's husband, was at Fort Benning, Columbus, Georgia. He is stationed in Germany and was on a Rifle and Pistol team sent to the States for matches at various camps, but Sally could not come with him. He returned with the Steinmiller's to Pittsburgh and then flew back to Germany after seeing his family in Ohio.

Gina Ray Randall's son George received his M.A. in English at the University of New Hampshire and reported to the Army at Fort Knox, Kentucky in October 1966. Mary graduated from the College of Wooster in June 1967, and Trudy finished all but her student teaching at Paterson State College.

Greetings from Deane Reed Blackburn who may fly up with Barbara and me next June for reunion.

We did not hear until this year that Bessie Rosen Birshtein lost her mother in 1965. Our belated sympathy to you, Bessie.

So glad to hear from Miriam Stage Bostwick. She is now owner of a successful women's specialty shop, "The Dress Box." She has excellent help which gives her an opportunity to go to New York, Europe, or wherever, and "just work enough to keep me busy and out of trouble."

Ruth Mary Wilkinson and her sister entertained some Chatham alumnae at their new home in Sarasota last December; Louise Fleischer '13, Frances Boale Belding '16, Ruth Rimer Hooton '26, Lois Sproull Hincley '31, and Dolores Steinbeck '35.

Ruth Work Miller and Bob had a week's cruise to Bermuda in October 1966, a Caribbean cruise over Easter, and toured the British Isles in May. They spent the summer in Canada at Lake Ahmic.

My husband had a heart attack November 12th, 1966 while listening to the Auburn-Georgia Tech game. He is fine now and able to go fishing again. We flew to Buffalo for a meeting at the Westinghouse office in April for five days, staying with the Steinmiller's. In July we spent a week at Barbara and John's summer home at Santa Rosa Beach on the Gulf, and then went on to Belleair Beach. At the annual Synodical meeting of Georgia in June I was honored with a Life Membership in the Women of the Church for having served as Registrar and Treasurer of the Synodical Training School for four years and Business Manager for the last three years.

I want to thank those of you who sent letters and checks. For the rest of you, please send some word and a check before our 40th reunion next June, so we will have many letters to read and a nice gift to give to the College in memory of Dr. Evans.

DEATHS

Dorothy Daub, May 6, 1967
Pauline Mason Skinner, May 6, 1967

We are saddened by the passing of two of our classmates. Our sincere sympathy is extended to their loved ones. Books in their memory are being placed in the Chatham Library.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to several classmates who have lost members of their families during the past year: to Amelia Lockard Welker whose husband Bill died on November 28, 1966; to Betty Palen Cullen in the loss of her husband Charles on September 4, 1967; to Viola Chadwick Rosso whose brother died in August, 1967; to Marie Bowser Lower whose mother died in January, 1967; to Elise Searing Loxterman whose mother died in July, 1967; and to Dorothy Thompson in the loss of her father in December, 1966.

Catherine Backofen, still at Schenley High School as a librarian, went on a N.E.A. tour of Scandinavia and says it was "Quite a trip! Quite a summer!"

Myra Boor Fuller reports teaching two classes at Allegany Community College in Cumberland, Md., plus the usual club, church, and golf, with long weekends with husband Denton to New Orleans, New York, Florida. Her daughter Martha is an assistant in the microbiology lab at Alfred State Tech near Wellsville, N.Y.

Marie Bowser Lower and husband Lloyd went to Europe last April with the Pittsburgh Press Club. They visited England, France, East and West Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain and Portugal. Marie is teaching English III instead of Latin this year.

Miriam Bulger, after two wonderful months in the British Isles, is back teaching in Mt. Lebanon. For the first time Miriam met many relatives in Scotland, Isle of Man, and England. She also mastered driving a right-hand-drive car, with a four-speed gear shift, on the left side of the road.

Doris Bushnell completed 25 years with the American Red Cross in June. Her office was busy recruiting staff for Alaska floods in August, plus all staff to and from Vietnam going through. She hoped to see friends in Washington, D.C. en route to her North Carolina cabin in October.

Vi Chadwick Rosso is getting used to having a son with his M.A. in Latin and Greek and another with a motorcycle. Her youngest she must now look up to also—even at the age of 15.

Dorothy Collins Pierce moved last November into a house she had loved for many years. There is a view for miles in all directions. In December she was chairman of the 40th Anniversary Symphony Ball and continues as vice-president in charge of special events. With her husband she visited Anne Saxman Underwood and Jim in Sea Isle, Ga. last fall. Her grandsons, ages 4 and 7, visited her this summer.

Betty Daugherty Dennis reports that their oldest daughter, Doreen, with her husband and 3 children, lives in San Mateo, Cal. Son Fred is an Ensign in the Navy and is due to report to Mediterranean area. Their daughter Lynda, husband, and baby live in the Dennis's guest house.

Louise Dickenson was busy with P.S.E.A. affairs this summer, so had to be content with a week at Virginia Beach when she took her niece Barbie home after a summer in Pittsburgh as Louise's guest. Barbie is taking this year of school in Carnegie, sharing the apartment with Louise and Binkie, the chihuahua.

Helen Ensminger Hughes opened her home in October for the Chicago Alumnae Club annual tea for prospective students.

Dorothy Fisher Maury had just returned from a very rainy vacation at Rehoboth and Williamsburg when she wrote. Her children are scattering: Virginia off to school in Wisconsin, Bill in Kansas, and Sam moving to Birmingham.

Imogene Flanagan Truman has been taking her second year in the School of Social Work, and still has busy summers at camp. Daughter Brigid teaches art in Seattle and son Barry is in college.

Justina Gill Beggs is beginning her eleventh year of teaching French in Jonesville, Michigan. David is still chief designer for his company (toy manufacturer). Wendy, their older daughter, with husband David lives in South Bend, Indiana. They have three children. Teena's young daughter, Nancy, was married December 10, 1966 in Jonesville. She has just recently returned to live with Justine and David since her husband was drafted.

Marian Haines Schap and husband Ed visited friends in Connecticut and Maine and toured Nova Scotia in August. They spent several days in Pittsburgh with Dorothy Thompson Seif and Dottie Seif Kapp, '61.

Winifred Hartman Whiteman has kept her promise of last year to retire. She keeps busy, however, in their new home surrounded by some forty acres, or at their cabin on a ten-acre plot that borders Clarrion River Dam. Her younger son, Harry, planned to marry on November 4th, making a busy fall for the family.

Martha Henderson Lewis now has a grand-baby namesake, Martha Ellen Valore, born on January 14. Martha is busy with her home and tending to the needs of an elderly friend who lives with her and her mother. Her son Tom has transferred to Ohio State to finish his college work.

Alice Hewitt Murphy plans to attend our 1970 reunion. Her activities include being principal of Vermont and Cajou Elementary Schools in San Bernardino, presiding High Worthy Priestess with her husband, Clell, as Watchman of Shepherds, San Gorgonio White Shrine, president of the International Club of the Supreme Worthy High Priestess, Dorothea E. Shaffer. Alice is the official representative as she travels in Hawaii and Canada. Christmas vacation she and Clell spent in the Hawaiian Islands. This summer she visited Mexico, Panama, Trinidad, Lisbon, France, and the British Isles. Alice has 5 children and 9 grandchildren. Her husband works for the City Water Department.

Danica Ivanovich Henninger writes of the wonderful trip she and Joe took in 1965. They met their son Mike, then a lieutenant in the service, and toured Portugal. In Spain they met painter friends, hired a car, and visited Granada, Seville, Toledo, etc. They photographed old walls and rubble until their children laughingly said—"Material for future water colors!"

Sally Johnson Bailey cancelled plans for Europe for a kidney stone. She has a new grandchild, Julie Nelle, born in July to son Richard and wife, who both teach at the university nearby. Sal is teaching. She was in the hospital in July with an infection. Have a better vacation next summer, Sal!

Ethel Lehman Grabe continues as a social worker at Children's Hospital. Her son Charles is recuperating from injuries in Vietnam in January. Sallie is at Presbyterian Children's Village in Rosemont, Pa. after receiving a master's degree from the University of North Carolina. Elinor, who lives in Pittsburgh, has a second son, Scott Low Wilson. Ethel and Dick will visit their oldest daughter near San Diego and see the rest of the 4 grandchildren, and then see Charles and Pam in Arizona.

Amelia Lockard Welker was east this summer to see her family. She moved to a small apartment after Bill's death. Her son and family are close by.

Peg Loeffler Loftus has a new address and a cliff dweller's view. She and Frank took an extended vacation from October to May in the New Jersey area. They find the apartment quite different from suburban living and really like the gypsy life best.

Nancy McIlwain Sweet has been recuperating from a broken hip since Labor Day 1966, and was able to walk down the aisle without a cane when her younger daughter, Prue, was married August 22. Coburn has given up his work as college English professor to devote his time to research for a biography of William H. Miner (native of Chazy and founder of Miner Foundation) and to be in charge of the Alice T. Miner Colonial Collection.

Mary Louise Miller Pitcairn sees Lois Watt Cooper occasionally, but says the Royal York is too big to have it happen often.

Marcy Murray is fine and enjoys seeing Chathamites at California Alumnae Club meetings. She is sorry Alice Hewitt Murphy is so far away.

Meredith Murray Heckman enjoyed summer visits by all 9 grandchildren. She continues her substitute teaching and Joe is still running his drug store.

Veronica Netopil Morrone flew abroad to visit relatives and friends on both sides of the Iron Curtain. She spends a day a week in social work and enjoys her house and hobbies.

Eleanor Nevins Rubenstein plans to be at our next reunion. She manages to see her grandson David almost every month. Last June she had a wonderful trip through Brittany, France, enjoying the coast and cuisine. She recommends La Baule as a fabulous resort.

Ruth O'Donnell Gallagher still works for Kraft Foods. Her daughter has 3 lovely little girls and lives in South Hills. Ruth flew to California in the summer of 1966 to visit her son, who has since married and has a baby girl. Ruth was pleased to hear from Nancy McIlwain Sweet after 35 years!

Mary Peters Wilhelm flew to Hawaii in June. She and Bob enjoy living in Florida, including going to the beach. They were expecting their daughter Molly and husband for a September visit. They visited in Ames, Iowa and Washington since moving to Florida.

Louise Peterson Jamesson has been teaching social studies "umpteenth" years at Linden School. She and Charlton drove through England, Scotland and Wales last year with some left-hand driving hair-raising experiences.

Sally Reamer Matlack is improving after knee surgery. She and Ed moved to a new home in Media, Pa. this fall after 26 years in Lansdowne. The Matlack Brothers have sold their business, so Sally and Ed will spend their time between Media and Fort Lauderdale.

Dorothy Reitz Claney reports that both of her arms, broken this time last year, are now fine, and her husband is improving after last year's illness. Dorothy was in the Eye and Ear Hospital from April to June for eye surgery, but is much better and full of pep.

Elise Searing Loxterman's husband has been retired for two years and they love it. They have a greenhouse and garden, enjoy golf and bridge. Elise's mother, Elsa Braun Searing, '02, was 89 when she died. Elise's oldest granddaughter is in junior high in Elkhart, Indiana. Three other grandchildren provide admission to the children's zoo when on a visit.

Dorothy Thompson Seif drove to Las Vegas in August. In June she attended her son Jim's commencement at Yale and stayed for a week's institute. Her first grandchild, Karl Kapp, is a living doll.

Mary Louise Towar Potter was glad to return to their Florida home after a rainy, cold summer in the North Carolina mountains.

Louise Vallowe Spinelli is teaching again. She expected her daughter home from Chautauqua Assembly briefly before starting the sophomore year at Mercyhurst College in Erie. Louise enjoyed Dr. Eddy's newsletter and was reading the book recommended. She is president of Steel Valley B.P.W. Club for a second year.

Lois Watt Cooper and Henry have taken several short trips to Florida, North Carolina and Chicago, and planned a fall cruise to the West Indies. They have 7 grandchildren, aged one month to six years, with only one boy in the lot.

Mary Elizabeth Woodworth's apartment building was robbed again this year. At Christmas and Thanksgiving she visited St. Petersburg and Nassau. This summer she went on the maiden voyage of "Delta Queen" up the Cumberland to Nashville, Tenn., then via Cunard Line from New York to Expo '67, where she saw DeGaulle at close range. A weekend in Jennerstown and one at Lake Canadohta completed her summer.

MARRIAGE

Alice Bair to Mr. L. Ogden Albright, thereby happily acquiring three children and five grandchildren. Their address remains the same, 623 Whitney Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15221.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to Sally Miller Brash whose husband Eugene died suddenly after a very brief illness on December 21, 1966; and also to Flo Bouldin Chase, whose husband Maurice died in May following a long illness. Flo's son Bruce is a sophomore at Williams College in Massachusetts.

We are happy with Charlotte Graham Dight at the birth of her first granddaughter, Jennifer Louise; and with Rita Lefton Pincus at the birth of a grandson. I wonder how many grandchildren our class can claim.

Helen Matz Grant announces the marriage of her daughter Kathy to a New York attorney last winter. Helen's son David and his wife are also in New York, at Columbia University, after six years in London and Athens.

Carolyn Bickell Morris' son, a 1st Lt. with U.S. Army Transportation in Okinawa, was married there last March to Sally Wheeler.

Mary Wooldridge Beyer's daughter Christine entered Middlebury College this fall.

Ruth Fugh McMurtry's family is busily engaged in the pursuit of learning. Ginger, who was graduated from Mount Holyoke in June, is now at the University of Wisconsin Graduate School of Political Science; Randy received his Ph.D. in organic chemistry at the University of Colorado in August; and Larry will receive his master's degree in history at Colorado State University this fall.

Catherine Cochran Schaeffer's son Lee worked in audio-visuals at Syracuse University this summer.

We extend our sympathy to Mary Frances Tarr Peat whose mother died in September 1966. Mary Frances is busy with Garden Club and several study clubs.

Katherine Lee Sisco was happy to be recovered from an operation in March in time to come to reunion in June.

Among our travelers are Marion Stone Howard who visited New Hampshire, Texas, Florida and New York; Marion Brindle Miller whose trip to Europe included Russia and countries they had missed on other trips; Carolyn Morris who enjoyed Colorado and Florida; Marie Hahn Lewis who vacationed at Cape Cod; Lillian Lafbury Wills who visited Kitty Ireland while in Texas; Sally Brash who took a trip to Mexico with Helen McCracken Bennett '33; and Dottie Russell, Catherine Schaeffer and others who enjoyed many little trips.

Many classmates have written about interesting employment and activities, for instance our busy doctor, Jo Herrold Sponheimer, and Dottie Russell who has an interesting new job at Columbia Hospital. Sara Stevenson and Ruth McMurtry teach full time, while Lillian Wills combines part-time teaching with all sorts of community activities. Marie Lewis works in the sales analyzing department of the Hahn Packing Company, and Mary Beyer works for Manpower. Sally Brash continues her work with the Children's Theatre and Headstart, and Georgia Meinecke Weldon is still comptroller of the Verona, N.J., Service League Thrift Shop which maintains a day nursery for working mothers. Betsy Dearborn Souren plans programs for local nursing homes, while Peggy Price Guyton is happy in her library work and other activities. Rita Pincus is very busy as the president of her Sisterhood.

Your correspondent, Alice Swaim, has signed a contract with Folkways Records for a poetry record to come out this winter, and a brochure "Beneath a Dancing Star" was published in Italy in September.

Retirement plans are making their first appearance this year. Harriet Osman Lundquist and her husband are having a 43'6" boat, The Ariel, built this winter, and plan a shakedown cruise next summer. In 1969, they plan to live on it and cruise within a 770-mile range.

Lil Wills and her husband are retiring next July to St. Petersburg, Florida, where they will be near grandchildren and friends.

Caroline Brady Wilson is convinced that Chatham refines the spirit and the mind, and hopes that the Class of 1932 can make a special gift to the College at our next reunion in 1972. That sounds fine—how about it, girls? Alice Bair Albright has already sent a check for the petty cash department of the class treasury which pays for secretarial mailing expenses. The present balance, on deposit in the Chatham Alumnae Class Account through the alumnae office, is $37.11.

Everyone who attended reunion had a grand time. Too bad more could not be there, but all the news helps a lot. Thank you so much for sending it in.

DEATH

Amelia Iacovetti Smith, February 5, 1967. The class extends its sympathy to Mally's husband and family. A gift has been made to the Library in her memory. She died after a long illness, having developed multiple sclerosis soon after her graduation and marriage.

We extend our sympathy, also, to Berenice Beamer Williamson and to Helen Bixler Watts, both of whom lost their fathers this year.

Hazel Ellwood McClure wrote to say "hello" and let us know how much she enjoys reading about everyone.

Jean Hamilton Charlesworth's oldest son, Jim, received his Ph.D. in Biblical Studies, and left in September for the University of Edinburgh on a Fulbright Fellowship. Her youngest son, Art, is studying at Duke for his doctorate in math. Jean invited everyone to visit her in the library of the Seabreeze Junior High School, Daytona Beach, Florida.

Ruth Husak Merz had a trip to California in June, visiting parents and her sister's family. Ruth's daughter, her husband, and four-year-old daughter live in the North Hills area, and her son, a member of the Air Force, is stationed at McCord Air Base near Tacoma, Washington.

Denver, Colorado is the home of Ann Irwin Hoffman's granddaughter. At home, Ann has one son working and playing organ in a combo, and a younger son is a senior in high school and playing guitar with another group. Ann's husband has made a complete recovery from a stroke suffered a year ago.

Mexico was the vacation destination for Eleanor Kenworthy Clements.

Luise Link Ely sent the picture of their daughter Lynn Luise that appeared with the announcement of her engagement to G. Harrison Houston, 3rd. Lynn is a senior at Mount Holyoke.

Jean Ludebuehl Fisher's youngest son, John, is a sophomore at the University of Pittsburgh, Titusville campus. Their oldest son, Charles, a 2nd Lt. in the Air Force, was married in August.

Ann McCullough Frey and her husband had a delightful weekend in Meadville when they attended Charles Fisher's wedding. In April, the Freys spent three weeks in Portugal and Madeira. Anne is president of the Rectors Guild of her church, and busy with the Bazaar.

Mary Louise Martin and her sister had a trip to Expo '67 in July.

The class extends its sympathy to Eleanor Post Forsythe on the sudden death of her husband, Louis C. Forsythe, on July 27, 1967, in Union City, Pennsylvania, where they made their home.

Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort had a busy summer with daughter Ellen and three grandchildren home from Paris for two months, and their son-in-law Bernard there for a month with them; and there was a French cousin for a "baby-sitter" with visits from two French nephews and friends. When Dot wrote, they were planning a home wedding on September 23, 1967, for Betsy, Chatham 1966.

Avanella Schlosser Grafton has finished a busy rewarding year as Worthy Matron of the Kittanning Order of the Eastern Star. Avanella is still counselor at Kittanning High School. She hopes to attend Alumnae Day next year.

Harriet Tyler Martin reported a wonderful trip to San Francisco and Hawaii. The Martins have purchased a house in Westport, Connecticut, on a private road that goes to the river and a boat landing.

We were happy to hear how much Jean Walker Fox and her husband enjoyed Alumnae Day this year, but very sad to learn from Jean that she had been ill and hospitalized, and that Dick had suffered another coronary.

Ellen Yeager Husak's oldest son is working for the Post Office and living at home, and her younger son is now a doctoral candidate in civil engineering at Carnegie-Mellon University. The class extends its sympathy to Ellen on the death of her mother last December.

As for your secretaries, Margaret White reports that "vacation was mostly spent working on the house and disposing of some things." She attended a convention of the American Guild of Organists at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, with side trips to the Pennsylvania Dutch area and the Ephrata Cloisters. Margaret sees Marjorie Larimer occasionally. In August, I (Helen) had a wonderful trip to Expo '67 with my youngest son, my daughter and granddaughter. We have two boys in high school, one working, and our oldest son stationed on the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Jean Andress Berger's youngest daughter was married on September 30th, and then Jean and her husband left for the Far East. Before leaving, the Bergers were apartment-hunting and hoped to sell their home in Milwaukee. They plan to winter in Boca Raton.

Harriet Bannatyne Moelmann became a grandmother in January when daughter Lynda had a son. Harriet and John traveled to Puerto Rico, England and Hawaii this year, and visited Port Bannatyne in Scotland. Jack, their eldest son, is a 1st Lt. in the Air Force, stationed in Massachusetts. Larry, their youngest, made the Dean's List at Princeton.

Mary Virginia Brown Bowden and her husband spent three weeks in Europe, a welcome change after Mary Virginia's year-long bout with hepatitis. Their daughter Kathie returned to Randolph-Macon Woman's College for her sophomore year.

Olga Catizone Bonaddio is working at Pitt's Graduate School of Public Health on a long range study of the biological effects of exposing food to radiation. The project is under contracts with the Atomic Energy Commission and the Food and Drug Administration.

Mary-Stuart Clements Harriman continues as librarian for 3-M Tape Research. Son Ed, who received his M.A. from the London School of Economics and is now working on his Ph.D. there in political sociology, worked last summer in Jerusalem under Dr. Eisenstadt, head of refugee relocation for the Israeli government. Daughter Alice was married in June and she and her husband are students at the University of Minnesota.

Sympathy is extended to Edna Dague Rigg who lost her mother this summer.

Joan Dodds Schrader was busy this summer with her niece's wedding to an English boy. Joan's golf suffered, but she hoped to defend her title at Longue Vue before leaving for a fall vacation at Ocean City.

Frances Ferguson O'Callaghan's husband answered for her as Fran was involved in American Legion Auxiliary work. She was elected Eighth District President and attended the national convention in Boston. Her husband thought he had retired when they moved to Florida, but he too is a Post Commander and Eighth District Chaplain. Their son Robert was married at Christmas time, and daughter Ann takes flight lessons and works as a model and photographer. The family spends some time in the Bahamas where they own property.

Jane Griffith Potter's daughter Susan worked in Yellowstone National Park this summer before starting her second year at Washington University in St. Louis. Charles, Jr., is a senior in high school, and Carolyn is in ninth grade.

Betty Guckelberger Roantree still enjoys tutoring, mostly in math, and teaching bridge. Her son Tom received his M.A. degree at Pitt and is now with I.B.M. in Akron. Daughter Kathleen was graduated from Penn State and is teaching English at Gateway High School this year. Younger daughter Sheryl is a junior at Penn State.

Nancy Henderson O'Dell underwent a sub-total thyroidectomy this summer but is fine now. Daughter Nancy Leah, who was graduated from Endicot Junior College, is now a student at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh. Son Herbert was married a year ago and is working for his M.A. in Theatre Arts at Penn State University. Husband Bill continues to enjoy his golf.

Marian Johnson Woodfield is college-hunting for daughter Sally who will graduate from Pine Crest School in Fort Lauderdale this year. Son Jeff is a senior at Washington and Lee, and another son, John, is a doctor with the Mayo Clinic specializing in gastro-enterology, is married and has a daughter. Daughter Barbara is an architect and is married to an architect, lives in Rye, New York, and has two children. The Woodfields love living in Florida.

Libby Klingensmith Bowden, her husband and two sons enjoyed a Gateway Tour of Europe this summer. Sally is employed with the Child Welfare Service, while Bob is on the faculty at Waynesburg College.

Charlotte Lee Glover and her husband traveled to the University of Virginia to enter their son Allen there, and then continued on to Florida to visit Charlotte's father. Their daughter Charlotte resides in Morristown, New Jersey, where her husband is with Bell Telephone Laboratories. Charlotte is working part-time in the Elliott Company library in Jeannette.

Helen Lindsay Lee wrote from the Lee Farm in St. Johnsbury, Vermont, which is not far from President Eddy's summer retreat. Although Helen said that she had a quiet summer, she planned a one-man art show this fall, and has been invited to give a flower arrangement program in New York at the Metropolitan Museum of Art to the Symposium of the Flower Show School.

Helen Martin Woods cruised to Bermuda last spring, built and decorated a new home, celebrated the first birthday of her daughter's son, and packed her son Hugh off to Pitt Graduate School. She is now settled down to a quiet life in Weirton, West Virginia.

Carol Pfordt Davis and her husband spent vacation time with Paul and Margaret Eichleay Storer, '35, at the Storer cottage on Lake Michigan. Carol's pride and joy is her grandson Robbie who has started to nursery school.

Agnes Ralston did not have time for vacation this year—too busy moving into her new apartment; and Ginny Wertz Potter sent her regards, having no special news to report.

Margaret Rowe Hustead's husband Jim has retired and is dreaming of the green hills of Pennsylvania. They find the Oklahoma weather too warm. Their son Jim is a sophomore at Vanderbilt University, and daughter Virginia is a high school senior. The baby of the family is eleven-year-old Charlie.

Jean Wallace Bishop vacationed on Lake Erie. Her daughter Bonnie is in Florence, Italy, at the University of Syracuse Foreign Study Program.

Lola Wright Crawford's son Slater is at Columbia University working for his Ph.D. The Crawford's older daughter is at Vassar and the younger daughter is at the Ellis School. Lola and Jim, along with Helen and Ed Lee, helped Fred and Dot Swan Mercer celebrate a wedding anniversary.

Ruth Simpson Woolford is busy as a "jack-of-all-trades" in a stationery store in Wayne. Daughter Judy lives near Princeton, and another daughter, Nancy, and her husband live in Reading. Son Sam is in high school. The Woolfords have one granddaughter.

Katrina Utne Brown and her family visited Norway, swam in the Olsbojord, climbed the snow-covered peak of Brittishorn, and spent a few days in the town of Utne on the Utnfjord. Katrina's elder son is a freshman at the University of Arizona.

All future travelers in Michigan, please note . . . Jean Maeder Lindsay, your class secretary, lives only three blocks from I-75 Expressway. You can't miss it . . . you can smell the Dow Chemical Company!

Your local secretary, Mary Jane Carmichael Garvin, traveled in Europe this summer. She and her husband attended the Million Dollar Round Table Conference in Lucerne, Switzerland for a week. Upon returning to New York City, they met their daughter Katie, a student at Gettysburg College, at Kennedy Airport and saw her off to Amsterdam. She spent the month of July digging at an anthropology find near Winchester Cathedral and the month of August touring the Continent.

At our 30th class reunion, those present decided that we should present a 35th reunion gift to the College. To date we have approximately $350, which includes $35.37 left over from our reunion party. You have all been notified and we hope you will contribute. Make your checks payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account and mail to your class secretary. Many thanks to those who have already done so, especially to the two who have sent in the total amount to earn interest until the gift is made in 1971.

Martha Wycoff Cross (Mrs. Ralph R.), 825 Audrey Place, Dayton, Ohio 45406

Well, classmates, we stand on the threshold of our 30th reunion! Until then, we have the following news to report:

Kathryn Arnold Dague and nine-year-old David left Patty at West Suburban Hospital, Oak Park, Illinois, to begin her nursing career. Son Rusty has started his sophomore year at Wheaton.

Marjorie Chubb Randall, who has moved after seventeen years, would like to attend our 30th reunion but can't plan that far ahead.

Elizabeth Coates Elliott writes that despite earth-shaking events in Detroit this summer, all three of her men worked there. Paul and Elizabeth drove east when their sons returned to college and returned via Pittsburgh to visit their families.

Mary Deemer Nagel reports that, in addition to ironing lots of shirts and attending the Clubwomen's Conference at Penn State, she will help with our reunion. John is a sophomore at University of Pennsylvania, Mary a junior at Carnegie-Mellon University, Charles is in high school, and Harry is in junior high.

Dora Diamond Hake's daughter Sue graduated last May Phi Beta Kappa from Chatham. She is now teaching music at Francis Scott Key Memorial Junior High School. Bill is a freshman at Gettysburg College.

Florence Gibbs Momeyer can't believe it's going to be our 30th reunion! She and Glenn visited their oldest son, Rick, who teaches philosophy at the University of Washington in Seattle. David is in the second year of law school, and Alan is a sophomore at Penn State. Florence is assistant executive director, Retarded Children's Association, Allegheny County. Glenn is with US Steel Research Center.

Dorothy Hawk Bryen, Jimmy and Becky have returned from a thrilling tour of eleven European countries. Now Becky, a high school senior, joins the "looking-for-college" group.

Dottie Hunter Haas and Ben are really traveling, a Caribbean cruise last March and a trip to Europe in October. Son Mike is a lieutenant at Fort Benning, Georgia, and Gary has started his second year at W. & J.

Helen Johnson Montgomery now has a "stiff lower back" due to a fusion of vertebrae, but she is her usual gay self. Daughter Susan is an honor history student at Denison University, and Sam entered West Virginia University this fall.

Ruth Kleitz Buel had a busy summer—two weeks in Florida, and travel-trailer trips to Letchworth State Park, New York, and Nags Head, North Carolina. Barbara, a high school senior, is a "going-to-college" candidate and Virginia is in 8th grade.

Ellie Krause Schlossbach is the proud grandmother of Daniel Paul Warden, born November 8, 1965, and Steve Stewart Warden, on February 17, 1967.

Bea Lynch Perrin is busy as secretary of the Board of Trustees and chairman of the nursing committee at Montefiore Hospital.

Eleanor Meanor Croyle keeps busy with League of Women Voters, golf, bridge, etc. Bob, Jr., 24, is in his last year of law school at Texas University; Barbara, a working girl, is talking of a spring wedding; and Philip, 18, is at Stanford. Father Bob is fine. Eleanor keeps in touch with Ginny Mencken Morrison.

Peggy Perry Huessener's children are 15 and 12. She is chairman of the College Club New York Theater Tour, on the Board of Fox Chapel Town Hall, golfs, gardens and travels.

Chris Price Cannon had a wonderful Christmas when her son brought his lovely German bride home. They now live close by. Chris suggests Holiday Inn for our reunion.

Sally Reese Warrick says we are "getting closer to the front of the book (The RECORDER) each year." Sally is now head librarian at Citizen's Library, Washington, Pennsylvania. Dick, Jr., is an Army instructor and Dick, Sr., is still in "the insurance world."

Janet Riddle Brinker had just returned from Ogunquit. She is W. A. Chairman at the Episcopal Church and teaches fourth grade on Sunday. Riddle is also busy with Cazenovia College Auxiliary.

Phyllis Schaeffer Geffel is in love with the Northwest (i.e., Seattle, Washington). Melissa is a senior at the University of Washington, Jan a high school junior, and Chris a freshman. Phyllis is a caseworker.

Edith Thompson is one of many who are looking forward to our reunion.

Dottie Ringler Creutzer and Willard had another of their fantastic trips, and are now in the throes of remodeling their home.

As I write this I (Helen) am in Springfield, Ohio. Jan graduated from Staunton Military Academy in June and is now a third generation freshman at Wittenberg University. He worked at the Dashields Locks all summer. Terry worked in Boston this summer and has since returned to Vassar College for her junior year. Bern and I are enjoying each other's company.

Dottie and I have enjoyed hearing from you and hope to see you all in June. Start planning now to attend our 30th reunion. Save June 8, 1968. That is the day!

Catherine Thompson Mitchell (Mrs. Loyal A.), 211 Belmont Road, Butler, Pa. 16001

Helen reporting:

This report reminds me of what I always say of the Christmas season. I have known this for a year, but here I am hurrying to meet the deadline. This has been one of the faster years for us. Jack went through major surgery in March, but we managed to all attend Jack, Jr.'s graduation from Gettysburg College in June. He is now working in the banking business and he and his wife live in Harrisburg.

Jean Aungst Talbot says they have been quite busy reproducing a pair of Queen Anne banquet tables, and have done some major construction and finishing at their home.

Janet Brennan Aull says she is still living a contemporary life in her Victorian home. Ray, Jr. is a lieutenant in the Marine Corps, Carol is married to a young lawyer and her baby makes Pat a grandmother, and Kalia is six-and-a-half now. Janet says life is full of good things for all of us in spite of our troubled world.

Margaret Christy Graham and Barrie were about to go to the West Coast to visit their No. 1 and No. 3 daughters who live in Coronado. No. 2 daughter graduated from Wellesley College last June and is now living in England. Barrie, Jr. is a sophomore at Clarkson College taking engineering. Peggy has been a full-time librarian for a year now.

Ruth Clark Nelson said they had just taken their son, David, to start his freshman year at Colby College. Stephen is a junior in high school. Ruth is working part time as a social worker at the Southwestern Maine Health Information Center.

Nancyann Cockerille Gleichert sent her card from Detroit where they were attending a convention. Their daughter Ann is married and teaching in Fort Worth, Texas. Gregg is a sophomore at Baylor University. Nancyann is teaching in an adult education program for high school drop-outs, and is busy with adult Campfire training and Sunday School work. In October they planned a month's vacation around the east coast. They just swam and watered their eternally dry Texas grass this summer. To answer your question—NO!

Fay Cumbler Nelson wrote me a long letter. Their son Jack was married in August. He is in the service so the plans could not be too definite, and many other things went wrong in the preparations. The climax came when the bride's sister, two minutes before the wedding, dropped Jack's ring down a crack in the chapel steps. A commercial note—Dow's New Bathroom Cleaner will remove a combination of shaving cream and silly soap from a new car finish, without leaving a trace!

Jean Curry Burt has both of their children in college now—Anne is a senior at Carnegie-Mellon University in the home economics department, and Alan is a freshman at Kenyon College taking the pre-medical course.

Margaret Dunseath Wilson moved back to Pittsburgh in April to accept a position of secretary with the Henry C. Frick Educational Commission with Mary Kolb, '29, as its Executive Director. She misses living in the South, but this opportunity and challenge was too good to turn down. She had an enjoyable summer playing golf with her old golf cronies.

The class expresses its sympathy to Jane Hanauer Kirk whose father died in August.

Rachel Kirk Bobo sends just a "hello" as she is on the Editorial Board and knows we have to conserve space. Carrie Louise Kinzer Trapp also reports nothing special this year—just well and happy.

Louise Lean Fontaine and her family had just arrived home from a month's touring of Europe. Their daughter Lynn is a sophomore at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, and Tom, Jr. is a senior in high school this year.

Anne Ludlow Kinney says their oldest children are both juniors in college this year, Rob at the University of Delaware and Harriet at Allegheny College. Anne is teaching one elementary French course this fall in an adult education program.

Eleanor reporting:

The class extends its sympathy to Marianne McCallister Martin upon the death of her father this year.

About October 1st, Rosanne "Posy" Martin started her "dream jaunt"—friend, dog, cat, bicycles, small car and various other things—all of them dependent upon a lovely camper named Herman—for a year or so of having a look at this country of ours. They will follow the seasons, see the land and the people. Posy is leaving California with many regrets along with the anticipation for the trip. She says now she will become one of the unemployed or one of the partially retired. She hopes to see some of you on the way.

Betty Ann Morrow Joslyn writes that Dave is a sophomore at Northwestern and Ann is in sixth grade. She continues to do ladies auxiliary type of work here and there.

Meo Ostergard Lutz says her life is a continual round of community and church activities and family, but it is stimulating and fun. Her older daughter is graduated from college and is in the admissions department of Western College for Women. Her second daughter is a junior at Syracuse and her 14-year-old son is very tall. She saw Ruth Demmler Benner this summer.

Nelle Richards Offutt's children are living all over the United States this year—Jim and Becky, her eldest, are stationed as Lt. j.g. in San Diego; Bill flew as the steward on the Alcoa Forecast plane; Bob worked in town; Jane was a counselor at Camp Redwing; Tom went to Boy Scout Junior Leaders Training Camp in New Jersey, the World Jamboree in Idaho and the Order of the Arrow Conference in Nebraska; Marianne went to camp for a month. Nelle and her husband played golf in between packing and unpacking for all.

Frances Shoup Brant is still teaching and working with organ and choirs at her church. She took a short trip into Mexico and now feels there is nothing like the good old United States.

Alida Spinning and Mary Wolff Gamble enjoyed a good year and extend greetings to all their classmates.

Virginia Stahl Walker writes that in between business trips to Atlantic City and State College she was busy this summer remodeling her home. She frequently gets together with Amy McBride Bell, Class of 1939, who lives in Lewisburg.

Catherine Thompson Mitchell moved one mile north to the township and was amazed at what she had accumulated in 21 years in the same house. Her taste for furniture has changed from Early American to Baroque Victorian. The family enjoyed a trip to Expo '67.

To those of you who missed our 25th reunion, we missed you! The sixteen of us who made it had a grand afternoon of reminiscing and catching up on news. And now for some more catching up:

Mauky Anderson enjoyed three weeks of relaxation on the beaches of Florida in June, and a visit to Expo '67 this summer.

Marden Armstrong Dahlstedt has begun her third year as junior high librarian, and highly recommends library science as an ideal mid-life career. Daughter Ellen is a senior in high school, and the family is looking forward to their new home on the island after her graduation in June. The Dahlstedt address after June 1968 will be 2613 Bay Avenue, Beach Haven Gardens, Long Beach Island, New Jersey 08008.

Betty Baker Patterson's son Bob, Jr. graduated from the Citadel last June and is going to law school. Vickie is a sophomore at Sullins College, and Glen is 8th grade. Pattersons and Fairs got together for a good visit last winter.

Jean Burchinal Purvis reports on her family: Joe III, 22, graduated from Haverford, and now has a graduate assistantship in physics at the University of Rochester. He is to be married in June. Bill, 19, is in his second year at Juilliard School of Music. Bob, 17, Sally, 16, and Tom, 12, are in Butler High School. Jean says she does part-time public relations "when the spirit moves her."

Jane Campbell Fair was busy getting ready to move, looking forward to "more time and less house." Son Bob, in the Navy, is due to leave for overseas after a year in San Diego, where Jane and Herb visited him in May.

Jane Chantler journeyed to Puerto Rico for a week in the spring, stopping in Miami on the way home. As part of her job as travel agent at Union National Bank in Butler, she visited fashion houses to learn about fashions of the Caribbean—nice work! Jane is also president of Butler County Council of Republican Women.

Sunny Croft Armstrong reports things perking along per normal in Fox Chapel suburbia. Tom II is a junior in high school, Alison in 8th grade. The family works weekends on "Alison Lodge" on the Clarion River, but planned to take time off in October to visit Expo '67.

Ruth Demmler Benner is thankful for her 20 four-year-olds in nursery school to keep her "young at heart," now that her own are away. Jean is in Geneva College, and Paul in his second year in the Navy.

Biggest news of the year comes from Jean Faris Watt. Son Bob is married, and Jean and Gib are grandparents! Grandma isn't ready for the rocking chair yet, though—she's gone back to college! Jean is studying sociology at Pitt, as are son Bob at University of Toledo, and daughter Carolyn at Ohio University.

Our sincere sympathy to Margie Graham Lathrop who lost her mother in May. Her summer was busy with wedding plans.

Daughter Virginia was married September 2, and is living in California. Margie and Earl expect to visit them this winter. One son is a sophomore at Williams, and one in junior high.

Betty Hazeltine Webber sent two off to college this fall. Stormi is a junior at Westminster Choir College, and Pauli a freshman at Bucknell. Bill and Kathy are in 7th and 8th grades, and Tommy in 1st. Like most of us, Betty finds it very quiet around the house these days!

Margaret Hibbs Keller is working in the Passport Office at the State Department. Her Air Force husband has returned from a year in N.E. Thailand, and is in Headquarters Command at Bolling AFB. Their two children are in college—son at Penn State, and daughter at Smith.

Marjorie Higgins Phillips' family vacationed in Jamaica this summer. Bill is managing editor of the newspaper in Tallahassee, and Marjorie started September 1 as a social worker. Their daughter is a sophomore at Florida University, son in high school, and youngest in junior high.

Phyllis Keister Semple still has her two younger daughters at home. A son was graduated from Yale, the oldest daughter will graduate from Wheaton next spring, and the second daughter is a sophomore at Hollins.

Barbara Maerker Baum reports one son a junior at the University of West Virginia, another a high school senior, and daughter a sophomore.

Jane McClung Sincell has found a great job, 8:00 A.M.-12:00 Noon, which leaves her plenty of time for the beach in summer and bridge in winter! Daughter Pamela is a sophomore at Valparaiso University, and son Jim a senior in high school.

Alice McKain Porter is sorry to have missed the reunion, and wonders if there are any Chatham grads living around Hendersonville, N.C. Her daughter is a sophomore at Queens College, son a senior in high school and president of the student body, and the youngest is a freshman.

Janet Murray Newton wrote her card from the Poconos, where she and Bob were attending the Pennsylvania Municipal Authorities Association Convention. Her score is: two in college, two in between, and one in 1st grade. For the first time in 21 years, all are in school!

Ruth Notz Carland's oldest son, Richard, is a freshman at Thiel, and youngest daughter, Maureen, began kindergarten.

Jean Patterson Bliss also has a daughter at Wheaton College, and a son at Mercersburg Academy. She spent the summer at Chautauqua, antique-shopping with Jean Watt, Ellen Wiik, and Barbara Copeland.

Alice Provost McCutcheon and Jane Smith O'Neill say "Hi!" but no news. Jane says they're still "on the animal kick, on the farm."

Dorothy Purkiss Linke has received her Reading Specialist License—the first in Indianapolis. Now she is doing a semester of research with three 7th grade classes to complete her specialist in education degree from Butler. Dorothy and her daughter spent two weeks touring the Hawaiian Islands. Bobbie is a sophomore at Indiana University with a radio-television major.

Elizabeth Rowse Pray had the honor of representing Chatham at Colorado Woman's College's renaming ceremonies, now Temple Buell College. Son George is a senior at Colorado State College and Jon a senior in high school. Elizabeth is teaching 5th grade, and she and Glen have taken up square dancing.

Nancy Scott Ralston missed our reunion because daughter Dede graduated from high school that week. She is now at Lincoln College, Illinois.

Betty Steffler Baker is still teaching 6th grade. Son Richard is completing his master's in public relations. Daughter Kathleen is a sophomore at Miami University. Dick has been made vice president of Show Barton, Inc. this year.

Claire Stewart Burkhart had an "international" summer, with a student from Ghana, Africa making his home with them, and an English college student for week-ends. Their own students are scattered—oldest teaching school in Nassau, Bahamas, middle one a junior at Chatham, the youngest a freshman at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Florence Succop Klotz and John celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with a three-week trip to Europe in July. Seeing Mont St. Michel and Chartres brought back memories of a freshman history report for Miss Dysart. They visited scenes of the Reformation, climbed Mont Blanc by telepherique, and Matterhorn by cable car, and enjoyed the plane flight both ways.

Marjorie Wood Yearick has three in college. Daughter Peggy is a teaching assistant at Pitt while getting a master's degree in Biology. Anne is at D.T. Watson School of Physiatrics and will get her degree in physical therapy from Theil College in June. Kathy is a freshman at Slippery Rock, and plans to be a physical education major. Pat and Chip are still in high school, and "Ma and Pa are getting a little greyer on top and a little rounder in the middle."

Mina Woy Wonders is teaching 3rd grade at Building #1, Gateway District. Son Bob is a sophomore in high school, and daughter Mary Beth will graduate from Otterbein College in June.

Your new secretaries, Helen Shellkopf Cline and Joan Myers Rankin seem to have gotten a late start—we haven't quite reached the college age yet! Helen's Karen is a senior in high school, and Tommy is in junior high. The family vacationed at Nags Head on the Outer Banks, plus some long weekends for golf. Helen is still teaching 3-year-olds in nursery school two mornings a week at the church.

Joan lost her mother in January. The Rankins vacationed at Chautauqua and Washington, D.C., and the boys are now in grades 11, 7, and 4. We acquired a full-time assistant minister on our church staff this fall, and look forward to a full program for the winter. In answer to numerous questions, Houston, Pa. is 25 miles south of Pittsburgh, near Washington, Pa. If you ever rode the old streetcar (now extinct) to W.&J. you went right through it!

This has been a pleasure, hearing from all of you. So many are educating their children, and so many are continuing their own education and doing worth-while jobs. Could be we're prejudiced, but we think that '42 is a class to be proud of!

DEATHS

It is with extreme sorrow that we announce the death of two of our classmates: Marjorie Harter Steigerwalt in August and Margaret Browne Green in September. To their families and loved ones we all extend our very sincere sympathy. Gifts to the Chatham Library have been made in their memory.

This year the news from our 1944 classmates fairly bristles with young'uns off to college. How come they're THAT old and we are still so YOUNG! In spite of frantic plans for matriculating youngsters in everything from first grade through higher education, many busy '44 wives and mothers have found time to: 1) move; 2) travel; 3) engage in extra curricular activities, as witness the following:

Evelyn Glick Bloom, wife of the executive editor of one of Pittsburgh's special newspapers, the Jewish Chronicle, has the most timely news in view of the recent Arab-Israeli crisis. Her husband, who was on a news assignment in Israel, and Evelyn got out just a half hour before the outbreak of the six day war. What a story they can probably tell! Other than this Evelyn's life is spent with her two girls, 15 and 12, and two boys, 14 and 9, and two girl scout troops, as if her own weren't time-consuming enough!

Jean Bacon Smith and family have deserted Aspen for a year-round Outward Bound School located in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina. Husband Knut is rock climbing and rescue specialist; son Eric is starting kindergarten and daughter Ingrid, age 2, will be following before long.

Norma Bailey McLean and family spent their vacation in Washington, D.C. while Orison attended a psychology convention there. The children are in the 4th, 6th and 8th grades. Susie visited Aunt Peg (Peggy Matheny Bailey, class of 1942).

Gladys Bistline Belz is still teaching piano. The family, including her two children, were among the many to visit Expo '67, Quebec City and New England this summer.

Joan Bowdle Turnbull, spent six weeks in Europe last spring ending with the Rotary Convention in Nice, and Joan can't think of anything nicer for a French teacher who will show many new slides to her class.

Jeanne DeHaven Uhl, is still teaching chemistry at Kentucky Southern College on a part time basis. Son John is a sophomore at University of Cincinnati, and son Bob is trying to decide which college to go to in 1968. Husband John spent time in Europe as a consulting engineer.

Peggy Donaldson is still carrying on at Chatham and sends greetings to everyone.

Barbara Findley Copeland recently returned from another wonderful Chautauqua vacation. Son Jim is a sophomore at Princeton, and Anne is a high school junior.

Evelyn Fulton is still carrying on for the Presbyterian Church, but took a month off for a well-earned vacation in California.

Still house-hunting is Portia Geyer McCoy around Philadelphia. Their search was deferred temporarily while they enjoyed six weeks at Stone Harbor, New Jersey in spite of rain, fog and jelly fish!

The Ayes (Gladys Heimert) covered 10,000 miles on a seven week family camping trip last summer (1966) and then took off with husband Tom in the spring for a relaxing trip to Hawaii. Son Ralph is wondering which college to enter in another year and daughter Pam, 15, is testing her skills in water and snow skiing.

Lu Ann Isham Staley and family have moved from Pittsburgh to Davenport, Iowa which they are finding much to their liking. The boys are at Princeton and St. Andrews. One of the Staley's first visitors was Evelyn Fulton, that ever lovin' parapeptic.

Other college enrollees are two daughters of Ruth Jenkins Allen. Ruth keeps busy with the other four children still at home, however.

Kelly Jones Clowes' news isn't as action-packed as others, but it seems to have had some good results anyway. Kelly spent considerable time in the hospital having knee surgery, but, since this was in Pittsburgh, many Chatham classmates visited and kept her time occupied. We all wish her well.

Ruth Laird Grant is continuing to enjoy life in West Virginia. She is attempting an art program for 8th graders.

Dorcas Leibold's activities of the past year include a Christmas holiday family gathering at home of brother Jack in Phoenix, Arizona; presentation of a paper at a national Travelers Aid meeting in Buffalo in the spring; attendance at graduation of nephew from Culver in June; cancellation of a September cruise because of hurricanes and plans to be aboard one of Queen Elizabeth's last runs in October.

Patrica Leonard Bodle spent a busy summer, including selling their house and moving into a pretty new one. Son Bobby is a rising high school senior and daughter Trish a ninth-grader.

Ruth Lynch McFarland has sons entering college, Fred to Pierce College for engineering, and John to Westmont College on early admission and honors for pre-med. Son Tom, a Life Scout, is entering high school. Husband Bob is still with A.E.C. working on a liquid sodium project. Ruth and daughter Lois Ruth spent a week together at Girl Scout Camp this summer.

Ann McClymonds Turnock has returned from a 4,000-mile camping trip to the Grand Tetons and Yellowstone. Nick's entire family, 20 persons from four widely separated states and ranging in ages from 71 to 2½ years, held a family reunion "on wheels." Daughter Ann, who was touring Southeast Asia this summer, could not be present but returned in time for her junior year at Chatham. Christine entered Penn State, and Jim attended a wrestling training camp in July in preparation for a varsity slot at Churchill High School.

Martha McCullough Lohmeyer reports that they have been living in the New York City area since February and find it very exciting. She is doing volunteer work for the Committee to Rescue Italian Art.

Betsy Meader Downing has returned from three months at their lake home and Bill is busy with his book. Their older daughter helped uncover an ancient culture on the Snake River, son John, 16, took a 22-day canoe trip, and their younger daughter went to Girl Scout camp in Wisconsin. Betsy is busy with the usual "motherly" things—teaching Sunday School, College Club, etc. She mentioned their interest in Dr. Eddy's Letter to a Student.

Mary Lou Oesterling Druschel spent a traveling summer with trips to Expo '67, the New England States, Mississippi and Florida. Mary Lou returned to work as a research assistant in biochemistry at the University of Tennessee.

Becoming a "stateside" housewife again has involved many adjustments for Lil Sheasby Bauer, but she has enjoyed getting their home in Philadelphia organized. Bob is a national accounts executive for Koppers on the east coast. Lil and Portia Geyer McCoy meet frequently for lunch. Tillie Wilcox Moncrief lives in Lancaster so everyone got together at the Bauers and had a nostalgic evening.

Helen Smith puts things so well I have to quote from her card. "I notice a hippy tendency unassociated with Haight-Ashbury and that my patience is more easily taxed these days (how easily everything else is)." In a few more delightful lines Helen reports she really has no special news. I presume everyone knows that Helen is chairman of the editorial board for the Recorder, and is beginning a three-year term as an alumnae trustee.

Still in Atlanta, Nancy Stauffer Grantham is teaching Spanish in high school and finds that Jean Sweet teaches English where her youngsters go to school. Nancy represented Chatham at the 100th anniversary convocation of Morehouse college.

Justine Swan Quigley returned to her fifth year of teaching third-graders this fall. Charlotte is at Pepperdine in Los Angeles for her sophomore year, Joy is 16 and Dorothy 10. Justine hopes to make it to a reunion soon.

Thank you for returning your cards and please, next time let us hear from everyone.

Vacationers are in the news again. Louise Myers Duerring was off to Ocean City but returned home in time to take care of a litter of Weimaraner puppies. Another visitor to Ocean City was Joan Davies Bream who is still claiming that absolutely no one had aged at the twentieth reunion.

Joan Titus Dunlop visited with Ruth Perry Parker on their way to Expo '67. She says Ruth looks great and has five lovely daughters. Joan's husband is heading a Boy Scout encampment in South Dakota with Sioux Indians. Look for an article on this "first" in Boy's Life magazine.

Both Patty Eldon Carpenter and Marjorie Couch Lynn enjoyed New England vacations. Patty's eldest daughter is at Denison University. Lois Jean Jackson Ritenbaugh spent a relaxing vacation at their cottage, or as relaxing as anything can be with numerous sons.

Three of our members had a little reunion in New Jersey this summer. Mariellen Roche Duval, Helen Hunter White and Micky McKee Barnes all wrote about their gabfest. Mariellen is getting two ready for college, and hosted three boys from England, Italy, and Afghanistan as part of the American Field Service Program. Micky's oldest daughter will be a freshman at Pembroke.

Marty Yorkin Berman and Carol Thorne King report wonderful holidays touring Spain, France, Italy, Portugal, and England. Carol's big news is their move to London. She welcomes all visitors. Marty has finished her master's degree and is considering several job possibilities. Her big news is a daughter off to Chatham. Her daughter will meet another classmate's daughter—Eva Caloyer Nassikas is delighted that her Ricka is in Chatham's freshman class.

By the time the Recorder arrives a number of us will be back teaching—Penny Myers Smith, Betsy Ross Pervorse, Harriet Hoffman and Helen Gilmore Reinhardt. Harriet is doing departmental teaching this year and will supervise several student teachers from Indiana. Penny's daughter is off to Mt. Holyoke. Gilly reports enjoying the company of Mary Ann Yocky, Doris Rowand Schroth and Mary Coate Challenger who live in her area.

Our most sincere sympathy to Betsy Ross Pervorse on the death of her father who has lived with her for several years.

Chickie Sawders Laisy has bought a hundred-year-old house in Baltimore which they are enjoying immensely, and Lula Copetas Blazakis has a lovely new house just across the river from Trenton in Yardley, Pennsylvania.

Roberta Carpenter Morel tells us that at last she has some real news—she has become a grandmother of a beautifully baby girl born to her daughter in July!

Many of our classmates report on children off to college this year. Evie Matthews Reese has a son at Union College. Evie is teaching a creative arts workshop for junior high girls. Linnea Lundstedt Evans has two in college this year, and her oldest daughter, Donna, graduated cum laude from the Moore College of Arts and is planning a career in design.

Sally Cook Collin's daughter is at the University of New Hampshire.

Ouida McGehee Young has a son who is a junior in chemistry. Ouida is working on a publication for her church which she finds very stimulating. She tells us she hates to admit it but she does lay claim to a few wrinkles after all these years. Who doesn't?

Sally Smith Cross has a college-bound daughter off to St. Mary's in North Carolina, and Ginny Uber Hawg's oldest girl is a sophomore at Augustana College. Another of her girls was an exchange student in Northern Germany this summer.

Arlene Levinson Rosenberg is doing psychiatric social work with the Mental Health Clinic at the University of Connecticut. She says it's great working with the college generation.

Ruth Teplitz Goodman is doing free lance fashion illustrating and finds time to act as chairman of the League of Women Voters.

Lucy Spriggs Dorsey has been made State Registrar for the Colonial Dames of the XVII Century as well as being vitally involved with the activities of the American Institute of Banking.

Ronnie Staples Jorgensen tells us that after three moves in two years they are finally settled, and with all her children in school she plans to work as a secretary for a C.P.A.

Jeanne Thompson Johnson has been working with teen-age programming for the Y.W.C.A., and Agnes Filippelli Walsh reports that with all five children in school she plans to take a nap every afternoon.

Doris Sisler White hopes to see more of Chatham and the Pittsburgh girls since her sister has moved there recently. She says they've passed two milestones—a son of driving age and a daughter who finally lost her braces.

Doris Fairfield Jamison attended a urological convention with her husband in New York and spent a lovely afternoon with Mary Wells Karlson.

Mildred Kovacs Rubenstein's daughter spent the summer at Northwestern University attending the National High School Institute.

Jean White Markell's daughter Leigh has returned from being an exchange student in Switzerland, and Peggy Korb Smith's son Bob has returned to Duke University for his sophomore year. Peggy and Jean, co-chairmen of our 25th reunion fund, take this opportunity to thank those who have already replied to their September letter, and to urge the others to help us reach our 100% goal.

Jane Field Taylor sent us a new address and is looking forward to "shore duty" and living in the Washington, D.C. area.

Florence Ostien Chew has three in school and only one at home, which will give her time to "catch up" on things.

Marty Coate Challenger is spending a busy year as president of the P.T.A. and in charge of the University Wives Newcomers. Her husband Dick has several books going—one to come out soon entitled Admirals, Generals and American Foreign Policy. He is also doing one for Harper and Row on John Foster Dulles.

No special news but greetings and salutations to all from Helen Jane Shriner Irvin, Nancy Showalter Thompson and Jane McPherson Graber.

Your secretary thanks you all for writing. It is a delight to hear from you. I'm still teaching school. It's an advantage in a way because our idiot dog has had twenty-four puppies in the last year and a half, so instead of "stars" for good work I offer puppies. The parents hate me but the kids think I'm great!

Joy reporting:

Ginger and I take over secretarial duties for the next few years. The 19th reunion was an opportunity to renew acquaintances with classmates and College, and rejoice in the academic spirit of our alma mater. Our next "official" reunion will be our 25th when a gift will be in order. Those of us present voted to request each of you to contribute a minimum of five dollars each year to the 25th Reunion Fund. Please make checks payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account and mail to either Ginger or me. We will see that they are deposited in a special savings account to earn interest between now and 1973. Sometime before then we hope to have an "in-between" reunion, perhaps 1970. Meanwhile, express your wishes through your class secretaries.

I was escorted in June by my elder son because Bruce was in Pittsburgh Eye and Ear Hospital following an operation for a detached retina. He recovered satisfactorily and I enjoyed being a Pittsburgher again. Son Dick is a senior, sophomore Robert is a football player, and Liz, 7, is a mascot. Like others, we're college shopping.

Marie Cohn Chiles has moved for the fifth time in three years—back to Houston. She is enjoying symphony and museum activities again, and is learning Braille as a part of her work with the Lighthouse for the Blind, to transcribe books for children.

Shirley Morrow Hedenberg was moved by the Highway Department. She is working on her last sixteen credits toward reading specialist accreditation. Her older daughter is a freshman at Edinboro, Don is a sophomore in high school, and Jackie is beginning junior high.

No news is good news from Mary Aiken Brown, Dorothy Berg Groomes, Jean Hadfield Smith and Mary Ann Houck Brown. Wonderful summer vacations were good news from others. Helen Obermayer Sellers and family enjoyed Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands in August. HAO reports that son Joe, a freshman, likes girls but David, sixth grade, prefers pets.

Bobbie Mueller Baylor, George, and their minister took a group of fifteen high school students on a canoe trip down the Allegheny River. They enjoyed it so much that they are planning to buy a family canoe next summer. Her children are in the 1st, 4th, 6th and 9th grades and she is substitute teaching math, chemistry and German.

Janet Kirkup Marville is willing to settle for her trip to California and Hawaii with family as the big news for 1967. I'd second that!

Carol Lenz Houck and family camped at Gettysburg, Washington, Williamsburg and Shenendoah this summer, then son Don left on a three-day, 167-mile bike trip and a 50-mile canoe trip. Ah, youth! Cynthia visited Ocean City, but Missy kept the old folks at home company.

Dottie Doolittle Collins and Rip relaxed for two weeks at a Pennsylvania Dutch Inn in Downingtown, then picked up nephew Bill, age 15, for his annual summer visit. The rest of his family spent a late August week with the Collins.

Nancy McDonald Sutherland left baby at home this summer when she and Jack took the other six children to New York for a week. She claims that a family that size shakes up even the most blase' New Yorker!

Jinny Queeneth Berman reports a visit to Hawaii and California this summer. 23-year-old Stephen is now married and living in California. Martina, 18, is a freshman at Auburn University. Ricki, 17, is color sergeant in the high school honor guard, and Mickey, Jr. is in 2nd grade and wants to be a soldier. Jinny missed seeing Ann Wallace Hunter in San Francisco before they left for Japan.

Shirley Lawrence Grasso said they vacationed in Massachusetts in August and plan to go south for Christmas. Children are now ages 10 and 7.

Frances Henry Fitch is still teaching full time. Bill is a senior in high school and her youngest is now in 6th grade.

Travel continues to be Mary Alma Lapsley's major interest with Cape Cod on the itinerary last summer and a trip to Europe—her seventh—in the fall. She also planned to visit Athens and the Greek Isles.

Nornie MacMillen Morris reports that son Richard is a freshman at Grove City College, Jeff is a high school junior, and Ronnie is in junior high.

Hilda Fish Bricker was awarded a master's degree in education from Duquesne this spring and is glad to have those school days behind her and only first-graders before her. Daughter Patti enjoyed University of Chicago this summer.

Gina Barkley Robertson says it's nothing new, but three boys, organ lessons, and church activities are enough to keep her busy.

Betty Albach Weamer is working on a master's degree at Manhattanville College, in the field of education. Two of her three daughters are away at school this year.

Honey Holland Rank has been in her dream house for a year now, in which time she and Dale have entertained all their kin, sold seven acres of property, and given birth to a new neighborhood. She extends a hospitable invitation.

Jean Forncrook Armstrong is entertaining a sixteen-year-old girl from England this year, under the American Field Service program. Her oldest daughter, Cathy, is college-shopping for next fall, just as we were, twenty years ago.

Mary Jane Humbert Upshaw had a less fortunate summer. Her father was in a nursing home and her mother broke her hip. They are both home now, but she is at wit's end trying to run one home in Virginia with three children and one in Pennsylvania with six nurses and a housekeeper. We hope your Year of Trouble will soon be over, Mary Jane. Her son Larry, 15, is at Hampton Roads Academy, Jill is 11, and four-year old Chipper is in nursery school. Jack is enjoying civilian life and is working on Polaris subs—navigation and launch equipment.

Grace Migliore Frances' daughters are now in third and sixth grades, so she is doing medical social work part time.

Jane Picard Pursell reports that she is loving kindergarten teaching, and that the first three weeks are the hardest.

Sally Geary Hansen is taking advantage of a brand new Conservatory of Music building at University of Cincinnati. She is studying flute and taking two music courses. Dick and Gerry Kimball Wells visited in June. Their Linda is also a college freshman.

Our number 1 career girl, Marianne Boggs Campbell, announces that after seventeen years as manager of WJEH in Gallipolis, Ohio, she has resigned to accept a position as director of community affairs with AVCO Broadcasting Corp. She works with five television and six radio stations, in seven locations, from Washington, D.C. to San Francisco, to extend their involvement in their communities. Sally's office is in Cincinnati, so she maintains a permanent residence in the Sheraton Gibson Hotel, and commutes weekends via company plane to her home in Gallipolis and Bill. In her spare (?) time, she serves as first vice president of the Ohio Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs.

Bruce and I enjoyed entertaining Layton and Ceil McKay Geddis and daughter Chris, and Tom and Jessie Gilbert Chew and Ginnie and Geoff at the lake this summer. 'Twas like old times. Thank you for your generous response of news.

Ginger reporting: . .

Mary Lou Stone Clarke is enthusiastic about being back in school. She is attending Oakland University, taking a course in Chinese history. When daughter Charlotte, age 11, no longer comes home for lunch next year, Mary Lou plans to take more courses. She and her family spent the summer in their garage building a sailboat and were hoping to float it before the ice arrived. Her oldest is a junior at Ann Arbor this year.

For almost a year now Ruthie Zucker Bachman has enjoyed every day as staff nurse at Presbyterian-University Hospital. Since the end of August she has been an instructor in the School of Nursing, a job she loves. Ginny Vogt McDermott is there, too. Ruthie and family spent their summer weekends at their farm in Fayette County. Son David, age 16, worked in the herpetology department at the Carnegie Museum, while Anne, age 13, went to camp for two months. Husband Jim is still very active in Scouting. Ruthie participated in the Moving-Up Day exercises last spring. Her cousin, ninth member of her family to attend Chatham, graduated this year.

A card from her husband's secretary informs us that Marian Murray Deutzel is in Switzerland until the end of this year.

No special news since they settled into their new home last February, but Charlotte Exley Eck is delighted with Huntington and the friendly people they have met there.

Carol Watson Smith is caught up in the hustle and bustle of their teenagers' busy schedules, not to mention her own activities.

Doni Vail Rea had a busy and wonderful summer, dividing her time between the "Shore" and "college-looking." She spent several days at Grand Chapter for her Eastern Star Chapter and looks forward to next year already. A daughter learning to learn keeps her always "on the go."

After many long years of labor, Anne Kennard finished her dissertation and was graduated from Loyola University, Chicago, in June this year. She now has a Ed.D. degree in educational psychology. She specializes in tests and measurements as a research associate with the Milwaukee Board of School Directors. However, in November she started a new job as coordinator of testing and research for the elementary public schools of Elk Grove Village, Illinois. Congratulations, Anne.

Many, many thanks to all who responded to my earnest request for news in a hurry. Blame my lateness in getting the cards out on a fantastically wonderful summer in England and duties as president of the Mannequins' Guild. As to the former, the only cultural shock I experienced was upon returning from Europe (we had a super week in Paris). As to the latter, the models in Pittsburgh have been negotiating for a raise since last November and only recently succeeded in obtaining one. The main thing that keeps me busy, however, is a group of 100-plus juniors and seniors at Peabody High School. Oh, yes, and then there's the house we are waiting to be finished. Meanwhile, back at the asylum. . . . The 19th reunion was simply great. The menu alone should have lured the most died-in-the-wool stay-at-home. The lectures were stimulating, and the auld lang syne was the best of all.

Priscilla Ballard Pfalzer, now that her boys are both in school, has gone back to teaching kindergarten. Everything has changed except the 5-year-olds, they are refreshingly the same. Their family found time to pack, unpack and pack again this past summer. They went to Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Seattle, and Victoria, B.C., then home to unpack and pack again in time to be off for a vacation at Stone Harbor, N.J. Then home again in time to get everyone ready to go back to school. Son Trich, 12, built a car and raced in the local Soap Box Derby.

Dolores Baney Conley thoroughly enjoyed the class reunion even though there weren't very many present! Do has accompanied Duane on several business trips. A highlight of the summer was a trip to Bermuda with Norma Trozzo Hopkins and husband Sam. Also, as a committee woman in her township, she was involved in trying to inspire voters for the general election in November.

Nancy Beamer Stewart says that last year she was reading coordinator for Burrell Schools—then came Lucy! Now she is teaching third grade and supervising student teachers. She, too, enjoyed the reunion and missed a lot of faces.

Midge Beetle Winnicki saw her first-born, Alison, off to college this September. The Winnickis brought Alison to Bethany and spent a few wonderful days with the Cowles. Lois Mars Mignogna and family entertained us all at a picnic and we three gals had a marvelous gabfest.

Shirley Bemis Martin reports that she never received any announcements of the reunion—poor mail service, probably. The seven Martins went camping in New York State and Quebec and spent 6 days at Expo '67.

Harriet Brotzman Boedecker feels that she is much too young, but her daughter is contemplating Chatham next fall. Harriet is working full time as assistant Town Clerk in Sudbury. Husband Bob travels a lot. Son Robert, 14, is a semi-pro singer—classical!

Shirley Chelsted Nichols' new son is "her" baby to their three year old daughter. Their oldest son is a freshman in high school, and her husband is now director of advertising and sales promotion of Univac Division of Sperry Rand, bringing about their move from Long Island to the Philadelphia area.

Lee Corey Hanson has during the past year joined the great body of educators. Her students are DOGS and their owners in the Animal Rescue League Class in Schenley Park. She says that she behaves like a drill sergeant—shouting orders "Heel," "Sit," "Come," etc.

Jackie Davies Templeton is teaching third grade. Her children are in 4th, 5th, and 7th grades, so they have band, Cub Scouts, music lessons, etc. plus church and college activities. Jackie received her M.Ed. degree from Case Western Reserve on September 8, 1967.

The class extends sympathy to Ann Denigan Richardson whose mother, Helen Gokey Denigan, class of 1925, died in September 1967.

Ruth Fabry continues to send me cards periodically from her travels, one recently from Lake Placid where she went on vacation accompanied by her 6-month-old daschound.

Kate Fisher Ammon reports that life gets fuller with senior high, junior high, elementary school and nursery school PTA's this year, and the New Theatre group presentation of Teahouse of the August Moon with Don directing. October 1 brought Kate's promotion to Family and Children's Supervisor for a newly formed unit with State Welfare in Deland. She went to Biloxi, Mississippi for the APWA Southeast regional conference, returning in time for jury duty.

P. D. Good Rudd and Al were fortunate to have Grandma take over while they spent 1½ weeks in Hawaii last March plus a cruise home on the "Lurline." Sandy, 2, is at home while the boys are in high school on one schedule and two other girls in grade school on another schedule. P. D. has a part-time job transporting high school students from school at noon to a hospital downtown and then back again in the late afternoon—a new Federal Education set-up.

Nancy Hughes Evans reports that they have been at camp this past summer as usual, and had another good year.

Nancy Leinen Chelwick received her degree in elementary education from the University of Bridgeport, Connecticut in June 1966. Last September she began her teaching career in the first grade, Parkway School, Greenwich, Connecticut. George and the boys (Chip, 16, Tom, 13, and Jeff, 9) are very helpful.

Joan MacMillen Newcomb still enjoys being the alumnae representative for admissions in Kansas City.

Dottie MacPhee Hunter reports a larger house complete with a swimming pool and patio, an acre of land, lots of trees, good school, and friendly neighbors. Brownie Scouts, Church and Hospital Auxiliary occupy her spare time.

Rita McEldowney Spalding is still painting, had a wall hanging accepted in the Three Rivers Arts Festival, and was preparing for a one man show in the Penn Hills Library. Her mother died in July. Please accept our sympathy, Rita.

Ann Morgan Cascorbi's news came too late for last year's Recorder, but she had a trip to Europe to meet her new in-laws, then the birth of a daughter in March 1966, and next, a return visit from her in-laws for six weeks. In December Helmut will finish his residency, and they hope to take a 2-3 month vacation. Andy is still active in ACS and the Chatham Alumnae Club, but has retired to be a housewife.

Anne Pennoyer Newcomb complains that I don't leave enough time to write before the deadline. But, if I leave too much time everyone puts it aside and forgets to send me news! How would it be if I didn't remind you and you just send me news around the first or second week in September? You made the news this year, Anne, with lots of time to spare!

Marilyn Rickel Hetzel and her three children were in Columbia Hospital for various kinds of surgery including two emergency appendectomies. The children are all in junior high—12, 13, and 14 years old. George continues on the Wilk-insburg School Board. Marilyn is bazaar chairman at church and dance class chairman at College Club this year.

Lennie Rothschild Klein also lost her mother this past year. Our sympathies to you, Lennie. She feels "ancient" with her oldest son 13 and the "little one" almost 10. She and Bob spend much time nowadays as spectators at all the sports. They are still active in little theatre with Bob now in The Odd Couple.

Martha Lou Scott Bennett has added another little boy to their group so now has to add on to their house! August brought a Chatham friend as a most welcome resident to Lancaster, Nancy Garlow Hoop, '52. Martha says that with Lancaster being such a tourist attraction, surely some of the class of 1950 must be among the thousands who visit there each year. If you are one of them she would be delighted to hear from you. Martha, you may very well see the Cowles family next summer. My husband's brother Howard lives in Lancaster.

Dodie Seale Warren and family had a pleasant voyage by ship from Hawaii to Vancouver, then across Canada to Winnipeg by train, and on to South Carolina by plane. Bill and the children stayed with his parents there while Dodie went to Flat Rock, N.C. to study with Eliot O'Hara, a famous watercolorist. Then they all flew to California to visit friends, and Dodie again left her family and went to paint for a week at Carmel. It was a wonderful summer they will all long remember.

Jane Steele Edmundson missed the reunion because of having the baby, but had a wonderful visit with Anne Carpenter Morris, Trudie Bieswenger Tourtellot, Penny Jones Groh and Barb Whiteside Harris. They moved around the corner in August, and Johnny started 3rd grade this year. John began a new job in April as head of the Erwin Massey office in Pittsburgh, administering offices in Houston, Texas, and Kansas City, Missouri.

Nancy Tanner Shaffer is no longer "lost" thanks to a card from her mother. Mrs. Tanner reports that Nancy taught chemistry and mathematics during her stay of over four years in Venezuela. She is the mother of four boys and two girls, and her mother says she looks the same as she did when we were in school. She has been to Pennsylvania and California in the past two years. She would love to hear from any of the girls who would like to write to her—mail is very welcome down there.

Mary Lou Tedesco Nasser sent her youngest off to school this year, and she is still teaching.

Phoebe Thorne Birmingham is doing some kindergarten substituting because her youngest is now in kindergarten.

Jeanne Wilkofsky Bloomstein's family spent 10 days at an American Institute of Industrial Engineers Convention in Toronto with a side-trip to Expo '67 last May. In April they visited Eli's sisters in Rhode Island and Boston, Massachusetts. Jeanne has more leisure now that Marc is in 1st grade and Marcia in 4th.

And now for the Cowles news. We still have our "daughter" Nancy Bechtol, who is now a licensed practical nurse at Sewickley Hospital. Ivan spent another summer at Valley Forge Military Academy and is now in seventh grade at Mt. Gallitzen Academy where classes are small and he gets the individual attention he needed. Stephanie is in first grade. After we picked Ivan up at camp, we camped our way to Expo '67, and then camped on the way home in the St. Lawrence Parks near Cornwall, Ontario. Since February I have been a Tupperware dealer—for fun and profit!

Many thanks for the news and also for the contributions to the 25th Anniversary Fund. Have you sent yours?

Sally reporting:

Kathy Costanzo Both is teaching the sixth grade at Moon Union School. The Boths spent their vacation in the state of Washington.

Last spring, Christine Metro Kachulis and her husband Tom took a trip to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Judy Bierman Linowe's husband Harry was elected president of the District of Columbia Certified Public Accountant group. Judie has been busy with her new home and four children.

Back in Pennsylvania, but the wrong end, says Janet Houston Rhein, who moved to Wynnewood from New Jersey. The move was necessary when husband Joe took the position of vice president with a company in Philadelphia.

Nancy Kelly Hilland has had a busy summer with the birth of #5 child, 4th son, and a move to Florida while husband Carl is on his overseas tour of duty in Saigon, Vietnam for a year.

Martha McLaughlin Ellers is working as the school librarian at the school her children attend. She worked from January to June cataloging the books and setting up regular library procedures. The Ellers had an enjoyable trip to Expo '67 in August. Martha's husband Dick, a reporter for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, discovered, on an assignment to meet with a group of business women from Vietnam and Thailand, that he was interviewing a Chatham graduate, Mrs. Oranut Boonyoprasop Osatananda, class of 1960. "Bunny" was equally surprised to meet someone with a Chatham connection. (Further details and picture with the 1960 Class News).

Our traveling girl, Tomi Jones Miller, is now in Northern Germany. Her husband Jack is the commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion, 18th Artillery, and is also senior officer on the Post. Because of Jack's position, Tomi is honorary president of just about every ladies' organization and very busy. All the Millers think that Germany is the nicest tour of duty they have ever had.

M. J. Hague Pross is retiring from teaching to take care of her new daughter. M. J. also keeps busy directing three church choirs.

Just back from five weeks in Iceland, says the card from Artie Gianopoulos Helgason. Artie, her husband and their son the endless night life due to the midnight sun.

Dolores Dean, who has taught English in the Ridgeway (Pa.) Area Schools since 1961, received her M.A. in Teaching at Gannon College in June 1967.

Our sympathy to Joan Fisher and her mother on the recent death of her father. Joan is assistant principal of the Roberts School in Penn Hills.

Nancy Garlow Hoop has moved again, the fourth time in ten years. The Hoops enjoyed the strange, exotic scenery and are enjoying their new location in Pennsylvania Dutch country.

They moved even though the house wasn't quite finished, writes Barb Mills Foresti. Although they are busy with the finishing details, they are already enjoying their new home and the surrounding woods.

Edie Pennoyer Vassamillet and her family have an eight-month-old foster baby living with them.

Janey Oellig Gould, Doris Fritschi and Barbara Firth Armstrong are keeping busy with their families and other activities.

I have enjoyed receiving the cards and letters, so keep on writing to the new secretary who will be elected at our reunion on June 8, 1968. See you there!
Pat reporting:

Ann Hafer Berry wrote between movings—from their summer home at Conneaut Lake back to Meadville for the winter. Husband Chuck travels a great deal for Revley Marine Engines, and Ann's activities are many, from superintendent of Sunday School, board member of League of Women Voters, etc., to starting and continuing the Meadville Co-Operative Nursery. Her boys are aged 15, 11 and 7.

Barb Stephenson Bruner sent her new address special delivery and reports that they are thrilled with their new home. Barb continues to teach at Emory Medical School and is in private pediatric practice with two other physicians. Both she and her mother plan to be in Pittsburgh on Reunion Day—Barb's 16th and her mother's 40th.

Sally Scragg Campbell is still working at Camp Lejeune and is expecting Jim home soon from Vietnam.

Evelyn Skalikan Nestor has gone back to school this fall to work on her teacher's certificate.

Ann Wood Pawkyk and family spent seven weeks this summer touring the USA, and Sally Turle Varner and Ham had a 17-day cruise from Bermuda to Rotterdam. Sally talked with Ann Gibb in Bermuda and had lunch with N. J. Fast Flender in New York.

Nora White Patterson's husband will be home from Korea by press time. They are looking forward to spending the next year and a half in Boston while Lyle works on his master's degree at Babson Institute.

Bev Roush Johnston and Ralph had a glorious week in Puerto Rico and Dorado Beach, and Bev plans to resume substitute teaching.

Muriel Spindell Tonkin has found a neighbor in Ann Braddon Hansen, and, along with travel and volunteer work, still finds time to keep in touch with Davey, Judie, N. J. and Charlie.

Busy with summer vacations, club activities, home and children, but taking time to send greetings, were Jody Shelley Davis, Peggy Justice Hallam, Janie Smyser Naylor, Marilyn Wolfert Zimmerman, Pat Printz Harris, Sally Marks Griffin and Nancy Paul Farley.

I am looking forward to our class reunion—surely it must be this year! Many thanks to all of you who have written. I hope the rest of you are just saving up your news until you see us all on June 8, 1968 when our class returns with 1953, 1954 and 1955.

Isabelle Allias is still helping to keep the government moving in Harrisburg, having done a study on automotive safety. She spent some vacation time in New York and West Virginia and also a week in Puerto Rico.

Mary Anderson Sheehan and family enjoyed two weeks in New Jersey and Long Island, Labor Day weekend with Barbara Maloy Titelman and family. Barbara has been busy moving and getting settled into their new home. Her address remains the same. She is active in the Community Theatre and is now president of the organization.

A new house under construction for their family of eight has been keeping Meg Berger Canon busy these days. Meg has done some substitute teaching in the local schools.

Marilyn Bickmore Boleky has also been occupied this past year with planning, designing and building a new home. Marilyn and family spent their vacation again at Nags Head and were joined by Alice Berry Adams, '53, and family.

New baby Timothy and the completion of their dream house keeps Nancy Boeklen Hutchinson busy, in addition to the usual things with children—Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts, nursery school, etc.

Bo Bolger Collett spent their vacation in the heart of the White Mountains in New Hampshire. Bo talked to Pat Yount Hudson before Pat left for France. Bill Hudson is working for S.O.V.I.R.E.L., a French glass-making concern and they will be there five to seven years. After a quick Berlitz course in French before leaving, they spent a marvelous time sightseeing through the French Alps and the Chartreuse Valley.

Lois Bradley Fegley and Frank had a wonderful four-week vacation in Europe and the Scandinavian countries, stopping in England, Belgium, Holland, Germany and France. They ended their trip in Oslo, Norway, where Lois' brother and family are living. A quick stop in Pittsburgh to pick up Kent and Kyle from Grandma, and then back to Nassau.

From another part of the world came a letter from Kate Coleman Thomas. She, Pete, Kathy, 5, and Pety, 2½, live in the Philippines while Pete is stationed at Clark Field. Kate has been active in Red Cross and has helped set up mother-baby care classes with the help of the Red Cross Hospital and R.N.'s club. The Thomas' will return to the States in January but as yet do not know where they will be stationed.

Sally Dietrich Bailey and family spent a wonderful summer at the shore and taking some side trips around the country.

We have many world travelers among our classmates this year. Nancy Ford Bunzli is now living in Madrid. Fred will be handling sales in Spain and Portugal, and they are planning to remain over there indefinitely.

Moving back to Pittsburgh after six years is Marline Frost Ewing. Her husband Jim is now vice president of marketing and planning at Ketchum, Macleod and Grove. Marline is busy settling into their lovely old home in Ben Avon.

Billie Fuellenworth Sampson and family are on the move these days. Harold and Billie went to Santo Domingo in December, spent February in Acapulco, took the children to Los Angeles for three weeks in June and a trip to Ocean City in August. They are investing in some property in Acapulco so hope to spend more time there. Billie took a ticketing course from United Airlines and is helping a friend with her travel agency.

Helping a candidate for school committee in November is keeping Joan Hagler Saklad occupied with 40,000 voters to reach in Newton. Building an addition to their home has been time consuming, also.

Laura Hammer Inglis and Bill traveled to Pasadena in time for the Rose Bowl Parade and game last January. Painting lessons, and Ruth now in the "terrible two" stage, keep Laura busy.

It was nice hearing from Georgianne Hosapes Molnar again. She and her family spent most of the summer at the shore. Georgianne is serving her second term as president of Roselia Foundling and Maternity Hospital Auxiliary. While on vacation she visited with her sister-in-law Helen Collier Hosapes, another Chatham girl.

Jean Hulse Souleret and Dottie Hauser Fritts and husbands met for a reunion this summer, after many years, at the American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Connecticut to see Midsummer's Night's Dream.

Trunkerville was the vacation site again for Mary Alice Jackson Regan and family. After spending the summer around the pool and busy with the Little League, Mary Alice hopes to do more substitute teaching now that both children are in school.

Jackie Legros Hall does part-time modeling and has been president of two women's groups this past year.

From Israel comes word from Marlyn Lenchner Applebaum. They are now living in Zahala permanently and find life quite exciting after the war.

Janet Loos Seibert and family now live in Indiana and are trying to adjust to small town life after New York City. Janet is working at Children's Hospital in intensive care. Laura, the eldest girl, had emergency surgery in May for osteomyelitis, but is much better now.

Mary Lou Matvey Shombert's husband Don is now associate professor of chemistry at Douglass College, Rutgers. Mary Lou has spent the first of two years as president of the New Jersey Alumnae Club. During a week in Pittsburgh Mary Lou hoped to have time for a visit to Chatham.

Nan Norris went to Expo '67 on vacation and found it very enjoyable. She is taking a Shakespeare course at Pitt, a nice change of pace from her work.

A trip to Phoenix, Los Angeles and Seattle provided a pleasant summer for Marion Orr Michel who has been busy house-hunting for a move to New Jersey.

Harriet Rosser attended a session at the University of Rhode Island within the framework of a children's theatre workshop. One of the staff members was Sylvia Demmer from the Education Drama Association, Birmingham, England.

Along with mothering a large litter of poodle puppies, and watching her three children and a yardful of neighbor children in their pool, Lois Shapiro Schaefer has not had time to be bored.

Jane Rowlett Stuart and family joined the exodus from Florida to North Carolina for their vacation. The children are kept occupied, leaving lots of time for Jane and Jim to relax, play golf and tennis.

Bobbie Senior Stewart reports that Harry has built a new dentist office, and with moving from the old house to their new location, they have stayed close to home this summer. Manny Thorne Wright's ('55) husband is the new pastor of a church near Bobbie.

Hudson, Ohio is the new home of Barbara Shatto Freeman where husband John is the Akron Division Manager of Ryan Homes. Barbara says that Hudson is like a little bit of New England set down in Ohio.

Lois Sherry Schworm has been busy getting settled into their new home after a move to Baltimore. Lois had a reunion with Helen Halpern Berkson ('53) and her family.

Heard again from Chris Simmons after a stretch. Chris has finished her pediatric residency at Johns Hopkins and is now at Boston Flasting Hospital doing a fellowship in pediatric hematology. For sun and relaxation, Chris had a vacation in St. Croix and also spent a week at Cape Cod acting as pediatrician for her five nieces who were visiting grandparents.

Rose Spoa is teaching kindergarten and is president of the Lawrence County Coordinating Council of Pennsylvania State Educational Association. She spent a week at the Penn Hall workshop at Wilson College and also a few days at Asbury Park.

Tush Starzynski Collier and family vacationed in North Carolina. Tush is serving as president of the Mid-Hudson Writers Guild.

Marilyn Stilley Spalding has been on the move lately. After eight years in Birmingham, Alabama, Jim was transferred to New York. They built a house and enjoyed it only six weeks when they learned they were coming to Pittsburgh. Marilyn says they have built their fourth and last home now—they hope!

A new and bigger house was needed by Lois Thompson Anderson and husband to accommodate their six boys. They spent their summer vacation at Southold, Long Island.

One of our famous Chatham alumnae Nancy Williams Ridinger, sang on opening night at the Met this year. Our good wishes and congratulations to Nancy.

Kathie Wragg Batson's second son and Andrew, now two, keep her stepping.

Sophie Yanczewski Engels and family went to Maine twice in July and took a trip to Maryland, Washington and Virginia. Sophie and her husband are planning to buy and open a girl's camp next summer.

Jerry Corba Wilson, Elsie Gage Balaban and Nancy Miller Howard reported no special news, but Elsie's new Vienna address sounds intriguing.

The Hopkins' big news this year is our son David Crandall, adopted in May. He was four months old and it is so much fun having a baby around again. Heidi, now three, is pleased with brother David. We visited my parents in Lancaster and my sister Lois in Ohio this summer.

Some exciting events are in store for Mary Irwin in the coming months. Shortly after her wedding in the Third Baptist Church in Washington, D.C., she and her husband-to-be are to spend a year in England where he will be doing research in nuclear physics.

Barbara Komlyn Ruano writes that they are back in California after their year in Pittsburgh. Bill is teaching sixth grade in a new school especially designed for team teaching. On the way back home they made a delightful two week tour through Mexico.

It seems that Sally Weise Hall will be spending a few more winters in the Florida sunshine. John received his master's degree in engineering and has accepted a job with the Florida Gas Company at Winter Park. No new address yet—still house hunting.

Dana Rose Sleppy and family vacationed at the Jersey Shore after spending the summer with Bob at Camp Semiconon where he was camp director. Dana has been working with emotionally disturbed children during the winter and finds it most rewarding.

Some of our classmates manage a small reunion now and then. Janet Schmults Lee and Pat Miles Claypoole and families got together in August while the Lees were in Michigan. Janet's husband Chuck has been named pastor of the Gladden U.P. Church in MacDonald, Pennsylvania.

Charlene Sparks Ferguson visited with Bette Topley Jack and Nancy Wallace Bridges this summer. All three are busy with their lively young ones.

Daisy Marks Mendelsohn has met, in New York, Barbara Schwartz Kohn who started to Chatham with us. Barbara's husband Gene directs the New York office for John Warneke. Aside from that news, Daisy came up with her own tidbit for the day. Says she, "Sculpture class last year was a real bust. . . ."

Perhaps some of you Pittsburghers have had the pleasure of viewing, on WTAE, the work of Ruth Garland Lesko who is producing Cooking from A to Zelda.

Buncie Douds Campbell spent the summer at Scranton where Don taught in an NDEA Institute. Recently he was made foreign language co-ordinator at the Mt. Lebanon High School.

Mixing business and pleasure, Rose Fossee Weyhmann spent three weeks in California this summer, including five days on the Monterey Peninsula where Walt attended a physics conference.

After twelve and a half years, writes Sunny Koehler Peterson, Dick has gotten his first shore duty. He has orders to be the Director of the Executive Department of the Submarine School in New London. Best of all they don't have to leave their lovely home.

Marilyn Miles Oliphant spent most of the summer with her hand in a cast. She broke it in a fall when her horse hit a chuckhole, but Marilyn is itching to saddle up again.

Our sympathy to Barbara Miller Tindall whose mother passed away in May. The Tindalls have moved back to Youngstown.

Jinny Hadfield Berry has been learning to play guitar this past year. Perhaps to soothe the ruffled brow after a hectic day with six young children?

Suzanne Klopp Seyler's new address reflects only a change from Post Office box to delivery. Suzanne is back in nursing as a public health nurse working for a visiting nurse agency.

Some how I neglected to record the birth of Patty White Payne's little boy last year. With two older children in school Patty really enjoys his company.

Carole Meanor Piggford's husband has accepted the position of an Assistant Professor and Director of Admissions at the Graduate Library School of the State University of New York at Albany.

Still no new address for Marilyn Smallwood Searle although they moved five acres of grass, planted four hundred and fifty evergreens and took time off to visit Expo '67 and Pittsburgh.

Sandy Sheriff Horrocks reports the purchase of a new home in Upper St. Clair. Norman is a native of Manchester, England and teaches in the Library School at Pitt.

This is the last year in Philadelphia for Pat Egly Curreri whose husband Bill has started his last year at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital as Chief Surgical Resident. Next summer comes Army duty.

Mary Bailey has completed her thesis for her M.S. in Nursing at Duke. At present she is teaching senior nursing students at a Diploma School of Nursing at Rex Hospital in Raleigh. She spent a delightful vacation traveling to Niagara Falls, Muskoka Lake, Ontario and Expo '67.

Good news from Judy Pitasky Markstein. This year Don was admitted to the partnership of Price Waterhouse and Company.

Cynthia Snider Greene feels that she has an ideal location in her new Miami home. She enjoys the convenience of living in the city but has a wooded nursery area across the street to give her a rural illusion.

From New Mexico we hear that Joanne Sterling is back in school again! She received a Research Fellowship from the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration and will attend the University of New Mexico to finish her doctoral residency. She and Joan Wilkinson Zook, who lives in California, keep in contact by phone and are attempting to plan a meeting at some geographical midpoint.

Now that Lorrie Barry Hoskin's young ones are growing up, she has become more active in the League of Women Voters and had a thoroughly enjoyable time at the state convention in San Francisco last spring.

Lorrie Barofsky Schmookler was in an auto accident in December and was out of commission for seven months. She still wears a neck brace. Some of Lorrie's fabric collages are being shown at a New York store and she is hoping for a show next spring.

Had a nice long note from our European correspondent, Ann Hawthorne Lewis. She and Bill are still touring whenever possible. They were in Munich at Christmas, London, Dublin and Edinburg in the spring, and Bavaria, Switzerland and Italy in the summer.

Linda Dupnak Wise says that Connecticut is the best place yet. Jake is flying co-pilot on International TWA.

Mary Jo McKee Groppe and Carl have said goodbye to Leavenworth. Carl is now an Associate in Medicine on the Northwestern University Staff at Cook County Hospital. Carole Williams was honored to be chosen godmother for Mary Jo's newest arrival. Willie, who is the proud owner of a new Oldsmobile convertible, took office in September as president of the California Association of Cytotechnologists.

This has been an important year for Shirley Zierer Byers—her first as a minister's wife. That, plus the added thrill of adopting their little boy, has made 1967 a year to remember. Shirley is involved in church activities with much of her time spent in interpreting Spanish to aid refugees in getting settled.

With all her children in school Jacy Kurtz Meyers is spending more time with Women's American ORT where she is serving on the Pittsburgh Regions Board. Karl and his partner (stockbrokers) are contemplating opening a fifth branch of their firm.

Sue Scott Fenstermaker had a wonderful visit with Grace Nardulli Regutti in Grace's new home last fall. This summer Sue and family vacationed in Cook Forest. Grace and Carl had a respite from the northern winter in December when they traveled to Hollywood Beach, Florida where they attended a CSMA convention.

Nothing new from Barbara Krantz but she plans to remedy the situation this year if possible with a new car, new job, new location and a trip to Europe. We will be watching for the results next year.

Sali Moore Sharaf will be working in a psychiatric clinic this fall, supervising children and social workers.

Joyce Kiesewetter, who taught in Headstart this summer, will be team teaching this school year.

With the arrival of her new son, Sonya Klein Vernau still finds time to work part time at Allegheny General and keep busy with P.T.A. activities.

Both Sally Newton Vanderslice and Esther Rothman Greenwald enjoyed summer vacations at the shore. The Vander-slices are lot hunting for a perfect place to build "the house." Esther is looking forward to a quiet fall with both girls off to school.

Greetings come from Joanne Hammonds McDonald who is kept busy with her basset pup. In addition to that, she is secretary of the New York City Chatham Alumnae Club, of which Elm Musson Brower is president. Elm is busy as usual with the Municipal Arts Society, the Museum of the City of New York school guides, and is trying to find a show to revive for off Broadway. Son Hugh attends the Episcopal School.

Meg Floyd Kaufman and Peggy Pattison Moore just slipped in with last minute "hellos." Meg, whose youngest is in first grade, hopes to substitute this year.

Thanks for the lovely cards and letters. I wish it were possible to convey the warmth and contentment contained in them.

The Ellerys have had a good year. July marked the high point with the arrival of our long awaited, much anticipated daughter, Kathleen Patricia. The two male members of the family are deeply involved in football at this time with young Clifford playing on a YMCA team coached by his father. With Liz in kindergarten and Becky in nursery school I have only Debbie and Kathy at home full time. Life is busy but we wouldn't have it any other way.

So-long until next year.

Marcia reporting:

For the past ten years we of the Class of '58 have juggled husbands, babies and homemaking with jobs, classes, and community activities—all successfully. Our babies are now little people going off to school, and we continue to do much more of the same in our additional free time. . . .

Thespian Libby Anthon Petrolis continues enthusiastically with her favorite pastime—summer stock. She also worked with the Playhouse Musical Comedy Workshop and Actor's Lab, plus some industrial shows and work at Pitt.

In their rare leisure hours Jean Babb Ersoz and her family are engaged in decorating and gardening at their new home. Jean has been appointed clinical assistant professor at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School and medical director of inhalation therapy at the Presbyterian University Hospital. Both are certainly impressive accomplishments.

Two trips to Canada—one to Montreal for Expo '67 and another to Niagara Falls kept the family of Benita Biggard Rapport happily busy during the year. Part of their summer was spent in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

Peggy Burgette Newman is working diligently to master the art of playing the piano and organ. Obie continues to attend school.

Our sympathy to Betty Farmerie Seaborn who lost her father in May. Betty writes that George has begun work toward his master's degree in quality control.

I caught Pat Gregory Barrett as she was on her way out the door of her new home. She was leaving for London, where her husband was to deliver a lecture. From there they planned to tour Paris, Brussels and Amsterdam. We extend our deepest sympathy to Pat whose mother passed away, ironically, on the same day her daughter was born last year.

Nancy Galley assumed a new position as assistant professor in nursing at the Allegheny County Community College. She vacationed in Denver, Colorado last year and visited with Pat Kappel Lloyd.

Marcia Katz Kresh vacationed in the Bahamas and spent some time in Atlantic City and Ventnor. She writes that she is now able to play whole tunes on the guitar and took a course at Pitt during the summer.

Martha Lasky Sanders is still teaching mathematics and attending graduate school. Paul has been made director of an English department at Tech.

The New Americans Program in Morris town, New Jersey has a new chairman—Rosemary Leet Stark. Noonie's most recent project was teaching English to eight adults who spoke only foreign languages. This led to her current job of organizing the facilities to teach reading and writing to illiterate and semi-literate people. Noonie is buzzing with enthusiasm over her new "adventure."

Betty Ann Maruca Wolke is enjoying her "bald baby girl." Bob, who is a nuclear chemist, was promoted to the rank of full professor in the chemistry department at the University of Pittsburgh.

Active and happy is Claire Rubenstein Sachnoff. She and Ronnie vacationed in Puerto Rico and also visited Gettysburg and New England. Claire had occasion to see a number of our classmates over the past year: Ruth Cooper Klodell, Barbara Goodstein Selbst, Pat Gregory Barrett and Jan Miller Schmidt.

Myrna Samuels Blower and Don spent the summer traveling through the southern states to decide where their next residence would be. Don accepted a teaching position in Atlanta, Georgia, and after their exhausting summer, Myrna looked forward to settling there.

Marilyn Steinman Roth continues to work toward a master's degree at Pitt.

When Ann Scheckter Powell's three boys are not keeping her busy, she devotes some of her spare time to the Allegheny Alliance, a liberal independent Democratic organization in Pittsburgh.

Some of our classmates who currently enjoy a "status quo" but wish to send regards to everyone are Kay Harper Kerr, Joan Herman Coleman, Dede McFarland Wilson, Janice Miller Schmidt and Phyllis Prinzo McShea.

Pat Tanton Blayden looks forward to reading all about us, and also to seeing us when we "reunite!"

Biggest news from the Kublanows is that Sam was promoted to manager of the production control systems department at I.B.M.-Endicott. We vacationed with children and friends on Cape Cod this summer and made frequent trips to Pittsburgh during ing the year. We are in the throes of building a house which provides us with a unique blend of joy and aggravation!

I enjoyed hearing from so many of you this year. Thank you for your prompt responses.

Carol reporting:

Ten years ago at this time we were deeply involved in such industrious pursuits as tutorials, student teaching, Philosophy of Life papers, and the worrying and wondering about after Chatham, what? Was that really TEN years ago? Was that ONLY ten years ago?

For Vinnie Fichtel time has been moving quickly. In June of this year, she accepted a position as Human Relations Representative with the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission. The Commission's programs include the investigation of complaints of discrimination and education toward changing practices and attitudes to achieve equal opportunity. Vinnie finds her work challenging and hopes she may help to find some of the answers to the problems.

Barbara Sanford is very happy with her work with the Farm Labor Service of the U.S. Department of Labor and has had a promotion since last year. Her responsibilities have involved Barbara in two Indian conferences in Albuquerque and Salt Lake City, and she hoped to attend a conference of Rural Youth in Washington, D.C. in October. If Barbara takes her vacation in Hawaii as planned, she should get in touch with Airin Lee Kim who has been living there for the past year. The Kims find their new home an ideal place to live, especially with two small children. They are hoping eventually to visit their home, Korea, since they have now come half way.

If not Hawaii, how about a vacation to Florida in a self-contained travel trailer? Freddie Richards Harper says it is perfect for the needs of a young family. In fact, they are presently making plans to purchase an even larger trailer for future family ventures. Sandy Whitmyre Young also believes in traveling with the family at vacation time. They spent a week on the Outer Banks of North Carolina on the remote island of Ocracoke. Anxious to see humanity again, they did an about-face and spent a week in one of the most crowded places they could find—Expo '67.

Winter is the perfect time to travel according to Inna Komarnitsky Hays who took six weeks, the station wagon, and three boys across the mid-west and south to California last February. Perfect, I suppose, if you live in Minnesota. However, it seems April is not the month to leave sunny Arizona for Pennsylvania as Barbara Bath O'Callaghan can attest to having made such a trip to visit her parents. She ended up with pneumonia from all the rainy weather.

Claudette Smith Cooper writes that the weather couldn't have been more congenial for their vacation on Wolf Lake near Baldwin and for their visit to Interlachen National Music Camp and Sleeping Bear Dunes. At home again, Diane is in second grade while Lynda is on the waiting list for nursery school so she can get away from Big Bad Bill. At 2½ he is the neighborhood bully. Sally Johnston Woods says that with both Joey and Jim in school, it has been quite a let down after their busy summer. Her work in the Allentown Junior Women's Club, the A.A.U.W., and the new responsibility as alumnae representative will help keep Sally busy.

The big news reported by Anna Liadis Zervos is their new home which they built and moved into last April. Angelo is in first grade, while Maria, 4, is Anna's home companion. Even with three daughters to keep her on her toes, Barbara Goodstein Selbst managed a visit to Chatham last May. In the spare time that Betty Lou McCoy Yermack's three sons allow her, she serves on the boards of the League of Women Voters, the local nursery school, and the adult school where she is teaching Spanish conversation one evening a week.

Lorrie Edwards Troyer has been accepted into Catholic University's master's program in nursing and is anticipating a "wild year" trying to meet class and home schedules. Barbara Asche completed her M.S. degree in nursing education at Pitt in April, 1967 and moved to a new apartment in May. This September she began teaching in the new nursing department at Allegheny County Community College. Sonia Kurtz Matlick also was granted her master's degree in special education this past year and will be working in a class of twelve trainable retarded children, ages 9-14, assisted by a teacher's aide. Eventually they will move into a school now under construction which will offer new and unique facilities for retarded children. When complete, there will be a sheltered workshop, residence hall for part-time care of the children, a pet shop, swimming pool, and a day care center for the severely retarded. It will be a privilege and challenge for Sonia to be part of this program.

Elaine Rockwood Staples and Pat Gardner spent a marvelous week in Miami Beach this summer. Both Elaine and her daughter Carrie are in school this fall, which indicates this will be a busy year for them. A cruise to Bermuda in May and a trip to Boston in August were Barbara Sickles Bernstein's vacation highlights. At home, Elizabeth, 4, and Rita, 1½, are Barbara's delights.

Carol Cowley Ross has just entered the "golden age of chauffeuring" what with kindergarten, junior choir, brownies and cub scouts, and Bobbie Weitsman Marks has her hands full with her daughter and two sons.

Just under the wire came a letter from Lois Ingham Peeler. After a busy summer when she, Yorke, the boys and the dog enjoyed their new camping equipment on a trip to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, Yorke is engaged again in his work as minister in charge of student work for the State Conference of their church. Lois will again be involved with high school students—she is referee for the area high school basketball team and is thinking of applying for the position of truancy officer—and is the advisor for an ecumenical youth group from the Congregational, Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches.

Please make note that under the newly-adopted group reunion plan, our class will hold its next reunion in June 1969 with the members of the classes of '56, '57, and

'59. It should be lots of fun so begin making your plans now. (Note to Lois Peeler: Yorke can attend his 10th at Princeton without the anticipated argument!)

Susan reporting:

Twins were a surprise to Jim and Berenice McGrew Fitzgerald and they arrived six weeks early at that. Such an unexpected bounty made apartment living a little tight, so all four moved into their own four-bedroom, two-story colonial house in Wilmington. Jim is still with DuPont but Berenice has given up her test tubes for a while.

A whirlwind courtship of nine weeks (to the day) culminated on January 12th in the marriage of Sue Gordon and Arnold Levin, a New York attorney specializing in labor relations. Between trips to California, Arizona, Miami, Nassau and Williamstown, the Levins found time to celebrate publication of the revised edition of Arnold's book, Successful Labor Relations.

Sue filled me in on some class news: that Pat Erb Meyer and Phil are planning to move into a new house in Virginia; that Charlotte Hogg spent two weeks in India at a Peace Corps conference, stopping in Greece on her way home; and that Ginny Long Springen, Keith and their three children are fine.

"Bunny" Boonyoprasop Osantananda, on a 12-week American tour with 46 Vietnamese women business executives, was surprised to find herself being interviewed in Cleveland by Richard Ellers, husband of Chatham graduate Martha McLaughlin

Mr. Ellers interviewing "Bunny"

Ellers '52. Bunny is research and planning chief for the Thai government's Board of Export Promotion, and with the others, was observing American business in action.

Andrea Lopen married Ira Jolles, New York City's Director of Taxes, this spring in a beautiful (I was there) ceremony at New York's St. Regis Hotel. They honeymooned in Greece and Turkey, returning enviously bronzed and relaxed.

Enid Gruskin Sapira, Joe, Lee and Andrea will be returning to Pittsburgh next summer where Joe will take up his position as assistant professor of medicine at Pitt Medical School.

Bobbie Hesse Tabachnick writes that Teddy started his own private practice in psychiatry in Pittsburgh and that she's busy decorating his office. Both Allen and Jimmy are in school which gives Bobbie at least a few hours a day to be a lady.

Nancy Levendorf Recht, who was looking forward to the October visit of Todd and Morissa Bernstein Lundy, is keeping busy with the AAUW Bulletin and as editor of the PTA Newsletter.

Joanne Kretz Weiss and Frank had a pleasant summer "beaching" with 2½-year-old Gretchen, and enjoyed reunions with Patty Evans Burns, Penny Cherpes, Arlene Campbell Timmons, Laurie Gay and Margie Roessler McDuffey. Frank received his master's degree in metallurgical engineering from Pitt last spring and is now manager of quality control for Pennsylvania Engineering Corporation in New Castle. Fortunately the new job did not require a move from their home in North Hills. Joanne is a Great Books discussion leader and teaches a Saturday morning class in Christian Doctrine.

I quote MAK (Mary-Anne Koenig Pomptius) verbatim as I hate to edit her news. She writes: "am working with the J. C. Leff Collection learning connoisseurship or museum curatorship plus research on my oriental pots and gee-gaws. For recreation—learning scuba diving. Bill is in the process of publishing another paper besides his teaching and studying. Technically he's a junior associate staff man at V.A. Hospital and part of the Medical School faculty at Pitt. Billy, our 8-year-old City Kid, prefers horses to piano lessons but does nicely with both. Mary-Alice 2 years old (let me brag), has a vocabulary of over 100 words and probably as many curls."

Joan Beckley Clark reports that the Clarks are exploring California. This winter, after taking a ski lodge at Lake Tahoe, Bob had R.B., 5, Stewart, 4, and Emily, 3, all on skis by springtime. Joan is involved in an arts and crafts program at the Marin County Juvenile Hall, and in the planning of a California historical sites tour held in conjunction with a book on the subject published by the Junior League.

Margaret Cooke Skidmore is reluctantly relinquishing her term as a member of Chatham's alumnae executive board. She enjoyed both a talk by Dr. Borsody at a pot luck supper in Chicago and dinner with Dr. and Mrs. Eddy in the spring.

Who else would receive her Ph.D. (in psychology from Emory University) standing next to a 6' 7" giant? Faith Magdovitz Willis, who, as assistant professor in sociology at Cal State, found time to give birth to Sarah Cathryn on January 5th. Next year, Tom leaves the Navy for a residence in surgery in Atlanta.

Our politickers have been busy: Barbara Eckel Goettler traveling to New Orleans and Scottsdale to National Republican Party meetings (as well as moving into a new home); and Amy Markus Kellman, who, aside from working two days a week at the Westchester Library System and reviewing books in a monthly column for Grade Teachers Magazine, finds time for the League of Women Voters and the Rye Democratic Party, of which Sy is a committeeman and she a member of the finance committee.

Norma Hunt Mahle quit work in April in preparation for the birth on June 19th of Anne Elizabeth. Lee Davidson Davidson writes that she is being bullied around by the terrible two, Stephen and Jennifer, but still finds time to work part time at the Bookmark.

Pat Evans Burns squeezed in a trip to Florida before the arrival of her second son in May.

Ed and Claire Judd Schweriner took a trip to Bermuda and enjoyed taking Randi to the seashore this summer.

A new house and a new baby were in store for Jim and Betty Goodridge Westgard this year, baby Anne joining Billy, now three. Jim is still on the faculty at Indiana State University.

Joe and Tela Cohn Zasloff returned to Pittsburgh from a long stay in Laos just days before Joe began teaching at Pitt. Security clearance allowed Tela to become more involved in helping Joe with his work for the Rand Corporation.

Larry and Arlene Boyda Porter bought their first home and are both working for their master's degrees at the University of Dayton.

Greetings come from Sorel Berman, who is teaching English at Brookline High School, Bobbie Friedman London, who is enjoying painting, Nancy Cohen Stein, who is getting a kick out of learning to play the guitar, and Ellen Clarke Bode, who is taking courses for her elementary teaching certificate, substituting, and enjoying camping and square dancing as a family.

Another quote I can't bear to leave out comes from Ann Curry Haux: "Heather V. Haux—born November 3, 1966. Good thing George likes women! Three girls, me, girl dog, cat, and as of April, girl horse. His only ally was our canary named Herbert and he died last winter. . . ."

I'm still addicted to New York and over compulsive when it comes to my job which (shades of my tutorial!) is fund raising account executive for the Roger Baldwin Foundation of the American Civil Liberties Union, that is, its tax-exempt arm. Any ideas from any civil libertarians, latent or otherwise, would be welcomed!

Kay reporting:

Address changes figure strongly in our classmates' news. Joan Shultz Shivley's husband Jon got that Ph.D. in metallurgy from Case Institute of Technology and then accepted a position with Atomic International, a division of North American Aviation. Joan gives California life rave notices!

Husbands' transfers re-located Dibbie Spurr Holloway and Judy Woodruff Laughlin. Beth Laughlin began first grade, and sister Anne is in nursery school. The Holloways enjoyed seeing George and Ann Curry Haux and their three beautiful girls on the way home from a Canadian vacation. Dibbie is doing Children's Theater for Junior League and working in the x-ray department of York Hospital.

Dottie Schall Schweiger loves their brand new house and is busy installing the lawn, drapery rods, etc. Former owners of the home Walt and Donna Vignevic Painter bought had already put in finishing touches—including a 38' x 30' heated swimming pool!

Her last State Register closed—for awhile, anyway—Marjorie Roessler McDuffey and Doyle spent a month's honeymoon in Las Vegas and Southern California. Doyle's job requires a lot of travel, but they are in Houston just now.

The Kungs (Marcia Smiley) are hooked on a new sport: sailing. This with golf, tennis, skiing and her job in Chatham Admissions leaves Marcia little spare time to learn to cook (or not overcook) Chinese food. Husband Ed is a research supervisor with Jones and Laughlin.

Claire Tober has been a social worker at Woodville State Hospital, and began another master's degree in September at the University of Pennsylvania with work at Haverford State Hospital as part of her placement.

In early August, Naomi Kipp Smith was packing for a move to Juneau, Alaska, where Gene will be a budget and management analyst for the state.

Jane Patterson will finish the "twenty-fifth and last grade," her senior residency in OB-GYN at Kaiser Hospital in Los Angeles in June.

A quick resume of Marilyn Mercur's singing activities: participation in a four-week Mozart Symposium conducted by George Schick of the Metropolitan Opera, followed by well-received performances of "Marriage of Figaro" in Brevard, North Carolina and Chautauqua, New York. She sang holiday services in the Catskills in October. Touring Boston and environs and attending Andrea Lopen's beautiful and elegant wedding rounded out the year.

Our deep sympathy goes to Joan Munroe on the death of her father. Oral exams passed, Joan has only the thesis to finish for her Ph.D.

The peripatetic Wrights (Anne McChesney Smith) have traveled all over the southeastern and central United States. Anne worked with Head Start last summer.

Debbie Rothman Phillips finished a summer internship in school psychology and will continue another through the year along with a part-time position as school psychologist in Plainsboro, New Jersey. Meanwhile little Ronald is one year old—the age of exploration.

Adding to her many social and community activities, Glenda Rich Debroff is looking forward to being active on the Alumnae Association nominating committee.

Mothers of four new daughters, Ruth Pincus Gujarati, Ann Meyer Klein, Nina Rhodes McCullough, and Gayle Thomas Harris, send greetings. Gayle is still with the Legislative Reference Service and is redecorating the new home. Nina hopes to get back to reading chemical formulae on the job this fall—if she hasn't forgotten how!

Squibs on other classmates: Jack and Laddie Lochner Krutten took their girls to Holland for ten weeks with his family there. Getting a brand new home built and decorated plus volunteer work at the local mental health clinic occupies Marcia Rubinoff Rosenthal. Just one trip to Bermuda and a couple to Florida for Jane Sanford this year! Carole Smith Petro is taking two courses at Canisius College and working with the Buffalo Historical Society. As reward for her work since college graduation, Anita Gessler Hecht has been promoted to assistant to the treasurer and controller of a major publishing house. Pat Ross Stoycos enjoys the Lancaster AAUW and singing in a choir there. Teaching Vacation Bible School gave Mary Peck Galloway two-thirds of a notion to go back to work. Hank Huston (Jill Putnam Huston) is assistant principal in the North Allegheny School System. And Bette Nadel Balk sends regards.

Jay Elder began first grade across the street from our new home, which is about as "decorated" as it could be in a busy and happy year. Visiting Bill and Carole Smith Petro and their bright little girls highlighted a long-weekend trip to Expo '67 this fall.

Ginger reporting:

After two years and 50,000 miles through 20 countries in Europe, Scandinavia, England, Africa, the Middle East and somewhere behind the "iron curtain," Lee Baratelli has returned to the U.S.A. and plans to sit and do nothing requiring serious thought for at least two months. Lee, after 2½ years with IBM, sold everything and with a friend set out to see the world. They hitchhiked, lived the life of permanent students on holiday, and had all the added excitement of fleeing the floods in Italy and being in Israel working when the war broke out in June. Lee encourages everyone to do what she did and guarantees you will return looking and feeling younger and immediately start planning your next trip.

Nanci Bennett Thieme, who has spent the last two to three years writing me letters about the social and economic conditions of Thailand and Brazil, was now only able to write me about her new interest, son Alfred. At the very bottom of the card Nanci was able to squeeze in some information on Al's new position with the Intra-American Development Bank, and commented that for actually living in the USA again, the Thieme's are finding it quite an interesting country. Nanci also mentioned that Joan Schafer Tatum, x'62, had come to Falls Church from Newport News for a short visit.

The big news from Sue Berg Veit is the announcement of her marriage in May. Sue is still working for the San Francisco Regional Office of the OEO in Community Action Programs.

Carol Black Radack dashed off a note to me as she, Dave, and Danny were driving across country from Washington to San Francisco. The Radacks' destination was Pearl Harbor. Dave was transferred by IBM and Carol writes that they are looking forward to an exciting two years in Hawaii.

Sue Black Elwell dashed off a quick note to report that the Elwell's are having a ball in Niger and are waiting for Chatham visitors whom they can take touring. Sue writes that one of the great assets of Niger is that the government is one of the most progressive and stable in Africa.

In June Margie Brown received her M.D. and is now officially Dr. Brown, currently serving her pediatric internship at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. Margie has not made definite plans yet for a specialty but is considering pathology along with pediatrics. Congratulations, Margie, and best wishes for the future.

Traveling and settling into a new job has kept Faith Buchner quite busy this year. Faith is now working in the personnel department of the City of Philadelphia where she is responsible for writing job announcements, reviewing applications and preparing examinations for a number of positions. She is enrolled in course work at University of Pennsylvania which will be relevant to the new job.

Every year Jane Chittenden Hopkins seems busier than the year before. This year Chitty has kept up the whirlwind pace with a fast Christmas trip to Los Angeles (where she talked briefly with Elaine "Casey" Kessler Rubin), Mexico, Las Vegas and the Grand Canyon. In June Katherine arrived, and in September the Hopkins left Houston to settle in Atlanta where Harry is assistant professor of chemistry at Georgia State.

It seems as though most of the people I heard from have recently moved or are in the process. Dottie Christman Lilja and John returned to Minneapolis at the end of August. They have bought a five-bedroom, sixty-year-old house in the city, and as if this were not enough, Dottie is expecting to do some part-time work. John recently joined Dura-Process Company as comptroller.

Sally Clarke Veil has been settled in Huntington Station, Long Island almost a year. Sally's husband Fred was promoted and transferred last November by Koppers Company, Inc. He is now the manager of industrial relations at the Farmingdale plant.

Nancy Dax Biamonte, husband Fred, and baby Nicole are looking forward to spring when they will leave Manhattan for a house in the country. By then her husband will be in a new job which will take him, (and, hopefully, wife and baby) to Europe frequently.

Newly settled in a four-bedroom house on 45 acres full of apple trees and blueberries are Barbara DeAngelis Helmsstadter, Dan and the two children. They have been busy getting acquainted with the countryside and the people, and have ventured to the ocean and to Boston, less than an hour away, for sightseeing. Barb extends a welcome to any Chathamites living in the area.

To round out the world-wide distribution of this part of the class of '62 we find Pat Brauman Wolf in Alaska for the next three years. Pat's husband Aaron completed his residency in psychiatry in June and is now in the Air Force.

A postcard from Betsy Cording reported that she had just returned from a trip to the Pennsylvania mountains, and was looking forward to visiting her roommate at Chatham, Josefina "Titi" Baradello, who was married in April and is now living in Washington, D.C.

Ann Fox Stebbins, in a note to the alumnae office, sent her new address and accounted for the years since she left Chatham:—graduation from State University of Iowa, one year at Katherine Gibbs School in New York, three years with a brokerage firm in Chicago, followed by an operation for a spinal fusion in September 1965. Now recovered, she is living, working and enjoying the sun in Florida.

The past year has managed to slip by, like the one before, without my noticing. My moving and traveling have been curtailed, but in April I extended a business trip into pleasure and visited Lynn Leister Rojahn in Coral Gables, Florida. I was glad to have the opportunity to see Lynn and Ted because shortly after I returned to Pittsburgh Lynn wrote that they had been transferred to Puerto Rico. Recently I was roused out of bed by a phone call from Susan Baird Blake, x'62. Susie and David and the children were driving back to Detroit, where David is a member of the faculty at Wayne State University. It has been good hearing from you all, even though the response was only 50%!

Barbara reporting:

Word from the second section of the alphabet suggests that the stork has been busy this year:—4 boys and 1 girl. Liza Elers McCraren and her husband, proud parents of Peter, are still living in New Mexico. Jane Hardimon Libbing and Fred have bought some property in Quebec on the St. Lawrence where they plan to spend summers with their family. Here in Pittsburgh, Marva Jo Hord Harris and Eugene, in addition to adopting a son, Eugene, Jr., have moved into a new home.

The Keiluhn's just made the deadline with news of Jon, born on September 13th. Jack and Julie are living in Rhode Island where Jack is in the Navy doing photography work.

In addition to being a wife and mother, Katie Kerrigan Miller is starting back to teaching and this summer she worked on her master's at Indiana University. Katie reports that Fran Danlop has completed work on her master's at Penn State, and is teaching in Rochester, New York. Katie's daughter, incidentally, is Fran's namesake.

Marty Haase Carson and Bonnie Entin Perlman both write that they are busy with family and community activities. Marty and Buck's three boys are growing rapidly: Billy is in first grade and Bobby in nursery school. This summer the Carsons visited Pittsburgh with the Elmans (Nancy Stein), the Deems (Marcia Hammond) and Craig and Gail Payne Bryan.

Joyce Helsing Marlowe and Claude, still in Tennessee, have bought a house which they are busy painting and plastering. This summer the Marlowes were visited by Sherry Trautman Freeman and her three daughters.

Vicki Hartung, as usual, is a wealth of information about classmates. The apartment on Marchand Street is still open house for transients of the Chatham variety. In addition to a busy social life, Vicki also is working on her M.S. in history, and playing hockey. Linda Clinton Eaton and Charles and their three daughters visited in Pittsburgh this summer with Vicki.

I've become a full-time student once again, at Pitt where I am working for my master's in music. Thank you all for your response to the Recorder. I'd like to answer all of your letters personally but . . . this will have to suffice.

Lila reporting:

Lynn Leister Rojahn describes San Juan, Puerto Rico as a "tropical paradise." She and Ted are now settled in their new home and invite anyone passing through to please look them up.

Karen Leyonmark Geary is managing to take care of her six-month-old daughter, and help Jim develop a museum and a Civil War battlefield right in the heart of Shenandoah Valley. She invites anyone traveling that way to stop by and perhaps play a round of golf—their house is virtually surrounded by an eighteen hole golf course.

Rhoda Cramer Yanus finds time to be active in some community organizations, but most of her time is spent taking care of her daughter. Carol Black Radack and family stopped overnight at her house on their way to their new home in Hawaii.

Elaine Kessler Rubin visited Pittsburgh in September and stayed overnight in the dorm with her sister Alice, a senior at Chatham. She describes it as giving her a "strange feeling," and says it brought back a lot of memories. She and Phil have been making weekend trips to San Francisco, Lake Tahoe, and Palm Springs. Casey is still teaching first grade, while Phil develops his dental practice in Los Angeles.

Dottie Mar Villers is also teaching, but on the high school level, and she has finished her M.S. degree at the University of Southern California.

Connie Merlino Tamburo is excited about Vince's change of jobs. He is now a resident counsel for the Associates Discount Corporation. Both he and Connie are involved in the Allegheny County Young Republicans; Connie is art editor for its publication.

Judy Mitchell is pursuing her interest in art by taking night courses at Columbia University. She is working at Columbia, helping M.A. and Ph.D. candidates locate college teaching posts throughout the world. Her greatest enthusiasm is reserved for her fiancé "of New York City and Rome, Italy." She spent a month in Italy this summer and hopes to be married a year from now.

Many of our classmates will be delighted to hear of Nancy McQuillan's engagement to Peter Bolanis, a favorite of the '62 Chathamites. Nancy has begun a new job as fashion coordinator at Saks—with four months of the year off! She reports that Dee Stuart is vacationing in the British Isles.

From the Erie, Pennsylvania Times-News we learn that Etta Mueller Moredock and her husband have left that city, where he was a minister at the Church of the Covenant, to go to New Mexico where he is now teaching religion and philosophy at Albuquerque Academy, and serving as chaplain of the private school for boys.

Your secretary has begun her fourth year teaching eighth-graders in one of Oakland's poverty areas. Once again, I am enjoying it more than ever. I am quite dedicated to these children—they are so deserving of one's affection. I had the opportunity to spend one month on a Federal project this summer in which I developed curriculum which would be meaningful for the disadvantaged youth of the district. My contact with Chatham friends has continued. Bob and I spent a terribly funny afternoon with Susan Berg Veit and Elaine Kessler Rubin and their respective husbands last Christmas. Recently, Sally McGuigan Dauer surprised and delighted me by calling from New York and talking for a half hour! Regretably, I said goodbye this month to Renee Georgian Boulis. She left San Francisco for Georgia, as Matt was transferred there on the last leg of his Army commitment. Thanks for everyone's response. Hope to hear from you next year.

Terri reporting:

Congratulations to Barbara Rogers who completed her requirements for an M.S. at Simmons College in January and is now employed as a reference librarian at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Ellen Schreiber McBride also has a new job as an art editor for Holt, Rinehart and Winston in the textbook department. After a year of travel in Europe, Ellen and Richard are now living in New Jersey with a beautiful view of the New York skyline. Richard is with Nopco Chemical Company in Newark.

Plenty of new houses to report this year! Nancy Stein Elman wishes she had more time to "putter," but between new baby Deborah, teaching at Pitt, and finishing her Ph.D. thesis, she's a busy gal. Nancy and Mary did reunion with Marty Haase Carson and "Her Three Sons," Marcia Hammond Deem, and Gail Payne Bryan, when Marty visited Pittsburgh.

Amy Parker Doty and Richard spent much of their summer painting their house and planning a new patio. Amy is a full-time housewife in the summer, but once school resumes and Richard returns to teaching in Rochester, Amy becomes a part-time research technician at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Gail Siegrist Naftel's house has turned out to be a "perpetual project!" The Naftel's summer plans included a three-week antique hunting expedition in New England (after which they may need another home just for storage, according to Gail). Sara Lynn, now four years old, is still trying to decide whether or not little Jim can stay.

Sherwood Trautman Freeman also reports a new address, but this time they can't quarrel with their neighbors. On one side they have racing horses! Sherwood, Bill and his own stable of girls (Sherwood, Anne and Meighan) traveled to Kingsport, Tennessee to see Claude and Joyce Helsing Marlowe and all enjoyed the visit immensely.

"Class of '62 artist makes good" may be the headline in the Pittsburgh newspapers any day now. Zoe Warwick Sherman, who is teaching oil painting for the art department of the Upper Saint Clair Women's Club, does commission portraits and paints for herself, has been chosen as the "great artist" in her Women's Club sponsored art show at the big local shopping center. Son Chris approves of Mommy's other "involvements." Hospital Auxiliary unit chairman, Arts and Crafts Center teacher and student, and occasional substitute teaching. Peter Sherman is now with Ugitte Gases Incorporated. Zoe's blue ribbons for painting would go well with Sonny Sohnlein Harshb's and Donald's trophies. The Harshes belong to a sports car club and try to find a rally to attend every weekend. With more confidence and equipment, they may move from the novice class to the expert category. Sonny stays in rally "shape" by chauffeuring Mike to nursery school, but Donald drives himself to classes. He is working full time for Chemical Abstracts and part time on his Ph.D. in chemistry.

When my card arrived, Penny Ulman Schwartz and husband Michael were touring Europe in a Karman Ghia. Penny's mother reported that Penny had been attending Johns Hopkins day school and had only one course to complete her master's degree work, but the trip was too good to pass up.

Judy Schenk Eley and John traveled during the summer, too. They claim they've become enthusiastic campers, after a trip to Expo '67 with a stopover at the Thousand Islands. Judy and John reunited with Alice Carson Scott, Dave and David. Judy is still working on a part-time basis with the National Academy of American Sciences, while John prepares for his Ph.D. comprehensive examinations in political science.

On their regular trip to the Daytona "500," Gail Payne Bryan and Craig took Craig and Laura along for their first look at the ocean. To recuperate (?), Craig and Gail had a vacation by themselves in Virginia Beach before settling down for the asphalt season.

Sara Westlake Delmar writes that twins are lots of fun after the hectic first few months. Sara has even found time to take a few courses in sewing and painting. Ken Delmar keeps busy with his yard, Army Reserves and his musical combo. Does Ken occasionally play a trumpet lullaby for Shea and Shari, Sara?

In the "not-much-new-but-regards-to-all" category, we have Georgette Vernaccini Coombs who is busy with a new baby and a new house, Linda Rutenberg Ackerman, and Jane Saunders Pauline, who has "evened-off" her family with arrival of Douglas to balance Beth, 3.

It's hard to know where to begin reporting the events of the Zionts family. We left our house in Calcutta, India on March 31st and spent two months traveling through the Middle East, Europe and England with our two sons, David, 3½, and Michael, 2. The children were remarkably adaptable and moderately interested. Our trip was far easier once we picked up our Volkswagen camper-bus and quit plane-hopping. We returned to the U.S. on May 31st and spent a month in Pittsburgh so the children and their doting grandparents and great-grandparents could get re-acquainted. Early in July, we moved to Buffalo where Stan is a professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo. We've made two visits to Pittsburgh since our move and have finally consolidated our three households: Pittsburgh, Calcutta and traveling. We even added a puppy, a miniature Schnauzer we call Bina Das, to complete our "air of permanence." After a year of British-style nursery school in Calcutta, David is entranced by American methods and toys at his new school. Michael, Stan and I are doing the work of our eight servants in India and enjoying being back in the U.S. We're not promising to stay home, however. Once the travel bug has bitten—! Stan is arguing for South America next, but I'm holding out for Australia! A final word of thanks for all those on my list who found the time to answer my queries.

Carolyn reporting:

Mary August Taylor is working at the Smithsonian Institution as a research assistant to Dr. Martin Buzas in the Department of Invertebrate Paleontology. Her husband Job is a Lieutenant in the Navy and an aide to Vice Admiral Masterson.

"Times don't seem to change much," wrote Joan Bailey. "Here I am getting ulcers over a thesis again." She received her master of philosophy degree in June and is now busy on her thesis for her doctorate, after which she would like to teach.

Harriet Bass Little moved from Marlboro College to Burlington where her husband Tim is getting his master's degree in European history at the University of Vermont. Harriet is working as a secretary to the Director of Student Activities at the University.

Still sounding like the Chamber of Commerce, Karen Blomquist Struckman extends a welcome to anyone traveling through Colorado to stop and stay with them in their new home. One very exciting news item—anyone driving by Manitou Springs, Colorado, towards Pikes Peak next summer will drive over one of her husband Russ's bridges (he's a design engineer for the Colorado State Highway Department). Karen also mentioned that Barb Caplan visited her in August. Besides visiting Karen on her trip out west, Barb stopped to see Bibi Boles in Los Angeles and Marty Fay Africa in San Francisco. When I talked with Barb the first week in September, she was recuperating from a busy first day of teaching at The Hewitt School in New York City, where she teaches art at the elementary level and lectures on art history at the secondary level.

After a "fun packed" leisurely year of teaching in Bermuda, Suzanne Clewell is back in Washington, D.C. teaching an ungraded class of seven, eight, and nine-year-olds in Montgomery County, Maryland. She spent a busy summer, too, completing work for her master's degree in elementary education at Lehigh University.

Dorothy Cohn Porper is teaching, too, at Churchill High School while her husband finishes his senior year as a dental student at Pitt.

Joyce Cordella Chew's little Gabrielle is like most 14-month-olds—busy every moment! Joyce plans to take her second sculpture course and perhaps some painting lessons this year, while her husband Milt is working for Bell Labs. Joyce saw Kitty Barley Paiste and Grace Wilson in Boston this summer. Joyce and Milt also have frequent visits from Valerie Valentine.

After having completed all course requirements for her doctorate in clinical psychology, Carol DeLaMoite has accepted a job as the first staff psychologist at Cuyahoga County Department of Child Welfare's new Metzenbaum Children's Center. The Center serves as a receiving home for children who must be taken from their homes and who will eventually be placed in foster homes. In addition, Carol hopes to complete her dissertation this year, as well as serve on the advisory committee for the special music therapy program for mentally disturbed and retarded children at the Cleveland Music Settlement School.

Another busy one is Grace Emley who says she begins work at 6:45 A.M. and gets out of class at 6:30 P.M. Grace is enrolled in a master's degree program at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, and she is also taking a course at the University of Michigan where she continues to work. Grace is also writing a paper for publication soon.

Dorothy Evans Fulton is working three days a week as a placement specialist with retarded residents at Western State School and Hospital in Canonsburg, Pennsylvania. Dottie finds her job of developing job openings in the community and doing job placements for residents in the "discharge" unit very interesting and challenging, plus, she says, it gives her more time with Laurel.

This past summer Beverly Fretz Nelson attended the University of Colorado (Boulder) for graduate work in adult basic education, and now she is conducting adult education tutoring programs in mid-Missouri for a nine-county regional agency of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Her husband Charles is an assistant professor of political science at the University of Missouri.

It was good to hear from our associate members once again.

Catherine Barley Paiste took time to dash off a letter before the two o'clock feeding of her new baby, Wyn. New baby, plus two English setters, makes quite a house-full. Kitty was very excited to tell of her success at playing Cupid—Grace Wilson plans to marry one of the Paiste's best friends in October.

Christine Burley is still enjoying her work at the New York Hospital and plans to start graduate work in nursing at New York University some time this year.

Kathleen Coyle Guenther is not only keeping herself busy raising two boys, ages 4 and 2, but also in organizing an Arts Fair for the Junior League of Reading. It will be a two and three dimensional show for all the Berks County art students in the secondary schools. Her husband George is the Deputy Secretary of Labor and Industry with the Shafer Administration in Harrisburg.

As for your reporter, Carolyn Tamplin Ward, my husband Dave and I have finally settled in New York City where Dave is stationed with the Coast Guard for the next two and one half years. We're in a perfect spot—on Governors Island—just off the tip of Manhattan with a bird's eye view of Miss Liberty and a 10 minute ferry ride away from the big city. I love my new job with the American Field Service—I'm "looking after" (through letters and visits) 75 foreign students from 32 countries who have come to the U.S. to study in high schools across the country for a year. I know what a popular place New York is for trips or short visits, and we'd welcome any and all to come see us on our island.

Marty reporting:

In a chatty note Ruth Anne Majer Bengston reported that she gave a full length recital at Chatham last April. She is continuing as Mr. Wichmann's assistant at the Shadyside Church. Husband Bruce, who is organist and choir director at Fox Chapel Presbyterian Church, gave three recitals in New York last spring.

After two wonderful years at Tiffany's in New York as the assistant to the vice president and later personnel secretary, Marcia Mann Butler is now living in Washington, D.C. where her husband Bruce is working on his master's degree in international law at Georgetown and George Washington Universities.

Traveling on a stern-wheeler steamboat down the Ohio and Cumberland Rivers ("just like Mark Twain") gave Nancy McBride French a real taste of river life this past summer. While Nancy is teaching math at Roland Park Country School, Maryland, her husband Don is serving his assistantship at Roland Park Presbyterian Church.

We send best wishes to Mary Ann McCormick Tucker on her recent marriage. Her husband Jay is a third year student at the University of Minnesota Law School. Mary Ann is continuing as speech pathologist at Kenny Rehabilitation Institute in Minneapolis.

Graduate study at the University of Michigan in a joint program of education and psychology is keeping Barbara Morris Stock busy. Barbara's two major projects for the fall semester were teaching an educational psychology course at the University and working on a project involving elementary students in a perceptual experiment measuring kinesthetic after effect. Barbara and her husband Lee, who is a senior medical student at the University, will be moving to San Francisco for four months in January where Lee will be working with an ophthalmologist until his internship begins.

Barbara Mueller Siegel writes from Atlanta, where her husband Fred is a sales engineer with Alcoa, that she is doing part-time library work. The Siegels have recently acquired an English sheepdog which they plan to show and breed.

An invitation to visit comes from Nancy Munson McCormack who recently moved into a four-bedroom house. Daughter Erin is now "swimming for real" and talking constantly. Nancy also writes that she plans to go back to substitute teaching one day a week starting in January.

After working for the summer at the Reader's Digest Almanac doing research and some copy editing, Susan Offill returned this fall to teaching at the Dalton School in New York City. Sue mentioned in her note that she occasionally sees Barbara Caplan and Nancy Beal.

Building a new home is keeping Candy Parrish Bauer involved. Her husband Ed changed jobs in July and is now a research metallurgist for Metallurgical Engineer United Engineering Foundry. Candy adds that little Brian "is into everything."

Angela Patrizio Smith received her master's degree in education in June. She is teaching sixth grade in Montgomery County, Maryland while her husband Wally works as computer consultant for Informatics, Inc. This past summer Angela taught two classes of beginning bridge for children ages 12-14.

The Urban Redevelopment Authority of Pittsburgh now claims the talents of Nancy Pierson Tolley who works there as an administrative aide. (This position, Nancy wrote, was formerly held by Chathamite Judy Launer Palkovitz). Her co-workers include Suzie Callas Francis, Jeri Donahue and Emmy Hill. Nancy's husband John is an engineer with Westinghouse Electric.

Associate class member Bonnie Podolsky Theiner is working on her master's degree in counseling and guidance at the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Education. She is also busy tutoring Hebrew and teaching a synagogue confirmation class. Her husband Micha is assistant professor of biological sciences and chemistry at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Volunteer work for the hospital and the hospital wives' groups keeps Suanne Pollack Singer active. Her husband Howard is senior resident in pediatrics at Akron Children's Hospital. Other big news from the Singers was the arrival of Andrew Carl.

Tracy Quarry has had an exciting year. She went to Hawaii last December for a "two week vacation," came home in March and left again for Hawaii after two weeks. While there, she worked for Avis-Rent-A-Car. She returned from Hawaii September 10 to begin working for a degree in foreign trade at the American Institute for Foreign Trade in Phoenix, Arizona.

Since graduation Nancy Redmond has studied art and Italian in Florence which she described as a marvelous experience; taught reading and arithmetic to adults on a government program in Utica, New York; and, worked and studied at the University of Chicago while also taking courses at the Art Institute of Chicago

In order to combine her interests in art and education, she is a full-time student this year at the Art Institute.

Best wishes also go to associate class member Alice Ropes Turnbull on her recent marriage. Her husband John is a Banhen, Australia Rules Football Umpire. Alice writes, "After the first of the year, it's high adventure for the Turnbells as we sightsee, work and visit our way around the world."

Rob and I (Marty Richards Cummings) are now living in Syracuse, New York where Rob is a first-year resident in obstetrics and gynecology at the Upstate Medical Center. I am working as a claims representative for the American Mutual Insurance Company.

Nancy reporting:

It's back to teaching again for many of our classmates this year. Jo Ann Rymer Lightcap is teaching English in the Latrobe Junior High. She and husband Robert, an attorney, vacationed in New England this summer and stopped in New Hampshire to visit Margaret Fulwiler Jernstedt, husband Chris and daughter Greta in their new home. Susan Uptegraff Endersbe is also teaching while husband Robert is busy working and attending Rutgers. Bonnie Taschler is now an instructor in the Speech and Drama Department of Milton College in Wisconsin. Bonnie returned last spring from eight months in Europe where she worked as an education counselor for the Army in Germany, taught in the overseas division of the University of Maryland in Turkey and traveled to Greece, Italy and Austria. She plans to return to Germany again in the summer and is, in the meantime, busy directing a play.

Congratulations to Janet Saperstein Slifkin who received her master's degree from Pitt. She is teaching at Peabody again and is developing into a gourmet cook in her spare time, much to husband Malcolm's delight. Another classmate in the Pittsburgh area, Natalie Selkovits Lustig is working at Pitt toward a master's in library science. When she is at home, young daughter Jessica keeps her busy. Sally TerBush Drescher is also in the Pittsburgh area once again. The Dreschers spent last Christmas in Arizona and California, with a "wild weekend" in Las Vegas, and then returned to Akron to complete the move to Pittsburgh and a new house. The arrival of daughter Kristen in July has helped to keep Sally busy.

From around the world in Karachi, Pakistan, comes a fascinating letter from Bette Watson Merchant. Bette is working for the Investment Advisory Center of Pakistan while Dave is an intern with the American Embassy Office. Since Dave is enrolled in the Masters of International Public Administration Program at Syracuse University, Bette and Dave will not be returning to Syracuse until August of 1968. Bette writes that Karachi is an interesting city to live in and that they have enjoyed discovering Pakistan. She writes, "Perhaps the most interesting aspect of Pakistan is its Islamic nature—for Americans, a religious state is most intriguing, if frustrating at times."

Busy new mother Linda Weinberg Rosenzweig is working on her master's in history this year. She finds her time quite filled by two new projects: lovely daughter Amy and the new, old house she and Richard have bought and are in the midst of refurbishing.

From Michigan, Mary Ann Wrigley Church reports that she is using her spare time to redecorate her house and refinish some furniture.

News of new jobs comes from two classmates. Linda Young has traded students for computers and is enjoying being a programmer for IBM in White Plains, New York. Joanne Zweig Friedman, while furnishing a new apartment and continuing her graduate studies at Pitt, has taken on the added responsibilities of being assistant director of Pitt's Testing Service.

After her May wedding in Washington's National Cathedral, Linda Simmons Bacon and her husband spent two weeks on the island of Hawaii and one week in San Francisco visiting relatives. Linda is working as an archivist, editing the Woodrow Wilson Papers at the Library of Congress.

News of new jobs, too, comes from some of our associate members. Karen Rumsdelt Babb has a new job as a "mailman," which she reports is quite an experience. She and Al still find time to enjoy their ranch and son Paul who is in kindergarten this year. Sally Taylor Pleasants writes of her new son Matthew and of John's promotion to manager of the Institute Cleaning Plant. Suzanne Ward Flanigan reports that they love Atlanta, where they have moved since Barry was promoted to district manager; they also love their new boxer puppy.

Larry and I have returned to Milford and to a new apartment. (I feel completely qualified to write a handbook on moving!) Larry is working at Yale as a research assistant and is also completing his master's. I am in my fourth year of teaching French and still enjoying it. Thanks for the good response. We always welcome visitors.

Linda reporting:

After 2 years in Iran, Garland Mackroth is back in the States teaching third grade at a Washington, D.C. girls' school. Upon completion of her teaching tour in Tehran, she worked in a film (James Bond type!) and traveled extensively through Russia, India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Kuwait, Turkey, Egypt, Israel and Lebanon. She was back in time to be in Linda Simmons' May wedding and reports frequent visits with M. C. August Taylor.

Another traveler, Judy Germaux Page, toured in India, Israel, Jordan, Egypt, Greece, Italy, London and Amsterdam on her way home from her Peace Corps assignment in Thailand. Newly married to a seminary student, she is a reading specialist in a North Carolina elementary school district.

After mastering Swahili, Millie Grossman Zacher and Jules are at home in Philadelphia far from the Peace Corps in Kenya, Africa. Jules is a systems analyst with National Drug and working on a M.A. in international economics, while Millie is trying to find time to squeeze in the credits for her Ph.D. in English in between feedings for baby Jill. The Zachers hope for an overseas assignment with Richardson-Merrill Drugs.

Retired math teacher Doris Haukland Nielssen is a full-time homemaker now that baby Ingrid is here, and hopes to experiment with some of those recipes she has been clipping from magazines and never tried. The Nielssens bought a summer cottage on a lake and enjoy fishing, sailing, Canadian sunsets, and a fireplace in the evening. Another former teacher, Jane Hantman Perrin will be basking in the Florida sunshine while Ronald serves his 2-year residency at Tyndall Air Force Base in Panama City. Julie Givner Repenhagen also retired from teaching and is busy raising a new floppy-eared schnauzer. Things have been quiet on Long Island except for some skiing last winter and visits with Nancy Munson McCormack.

New careers are the news for several classmates. After completing her master's in social work from the University of Connecticut, Wendy Haskell is working at Beth Israel Hospital. She divides her time between case work with indigent families and patients in the psychiatric clinic. Wendy extends a warm welcome to anyone living or visiting in the Boston area. Guenn Gurnack is now a full copywriter for Lennen and Newell, Inc. Advertising in New York. She is taking courses at the New School of Social Research. Her former roommate Margie Frye Wilcox, who has a newly-acquired master's in library science, is a children's librarian with the Free Library of Philadelphia while husband Chub finishes his final year of law school.

From Germany, Karin Gemassmer sends news of her engagement to Dr. Dielrich Ehle, a lawyer. She plans to receive her diploma from the University of Cologne in political science and economics, and to be married next summer. Claudia Grogan has set her wedding date for November. She is still at the University of Pittsburgh as the assistant director of admissions. Another prospective bride, Sue Johnson, is still hard at work teaching in Red Bank, New Jersey. She reports that former classmate Pam Cox Moore has a baby girl, Tracy, and is living in Virginia where her husband Pat is a Naval physician.

Happy to be back in Pittsburgh is Sue Haskell Clokey who is busy job-hunting while husband Frank practices law.

News from Bourbon Street is that resident Mary MacConnell Ferry is now the assistant chairman of the Archbishop Chapelle English department and advisor to the Literary Club and a student literary journal.

Jan Kessling Boese's main "work" is baby Kirsten who is bi-lingual at 19 months. Jan has taken a German course to keep up with her daughter and plans to add French. Klaus is associated with the Fidelity Bank in Philadelphia in the international division. The big adventure for the Boeses this year was a flight to Seattle to visit Klaus's grandmother and the Pacific Northwest. Judy Wentworth visited Jan on a trip to Philadelphia and there are frequent visits with Phyllis Fox Catz who lives only minutes away. Jan reports that Phyllis's new baby Sheryl is a "little dear."

Margaret Fulwiler Jernstedt is very proud of her husband Chris who received his Ph.D. at Johns Hopkins and accepted an assistant professorship at Dartmouth College. The Jernstedts have built a home in New Hampshire. Marian Friedman Siegel reports that Bill is in his last year of Dental School and hopes to get an internship next year.

Congratulations to Marty Fay Africa who received her B.A. in English from Berkeley. She plans to get her secondary teaching credentials and a M.A. in art history. Bruce finishes his Ph.D. in biochemistry this year and is considering a post-doctoral fellowship.

Three more credits and newly-married Virginia Host Himmelrich will have her master's in language arts at Pitt. Her husband Bob tests and counsels students at Pittsburgh Automation Institution. The Himmelrich's enjoy league bowling and golfing. Sandy Heisler was a bridesmaid in Ginny's wedding.

Not much news but greetings from Mary Shaker who has been teaching French to gifted elementary children in Cleveland.

After a 6,000 mile trip with a travel trailer and 2 large dogs, your reporter is now an Army wife in Texas. I finished my master's at Pitt, and John received his D.M.D. and is now a Captain in the Army Dental Corps at Fort Bliss for two years. We love the warm southwestern climate and the proximity to Mexico and the west, but miss the trees and greenery of Pennsylvania where we plan to return after our tour of duty is over.

Susan reporting:

Barbara Crick Klingsporn had a small wedding with Alice Graham Weber as her attendant. Her husband Hal is working for Esso and Barbara is teaching French at Dayton High School in Springfield, N.J.

Jackie Cain Miller and Philip are attending Columbia Graduate School this fall, Philip in the School of Business, and Jackie in the School of Social Work.

Janie Coulter Burger has almost completed her thesis in educational research, and is working at the University of Pittsburgh with the Field Service and Research in the government-sponsored "Project Follow Through."

Louise DeCarl has found her niche in law and will continue her study at Loyola University. Louise was in Rachel Stein's wedding on August 24th.

Susan Cohn Brenner loves married life and San Francisco. She is studying counseling at San Francisco State College this year.

Both Kathy Birris and Linda Burkhouse are combining graduate school and teaching. Kathy is at the University of Pittsburgh in secondary education and math, and Linda is studying history at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Nancy Dechter expects to get her M.A. in social psychology in February and then return to Pittsburgh.

Both Jerilyn Donahoe and Suzi Callas Francis enjoy their work at Urban Redevelopment Authority of Pittsburgh. Jerilyn entered the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public and International Affairs this fall. Suzi writes that Dave passed his qualifiers in May and expects to have his degree in medical electronics in a year and a half.

Lynette Burley McNally is kept busy writing for Fairchild Publishing, Inc., Women's Wear Daily, and The Pittsburgh Point.

Barbara Brenman has moved north and loves Chicago where she is working at the Social Security Administration Center.

Leslie Caplan Istkowitz will either teach or go to graduate school while her husband finishes his service duty in the Navy.

Pam Armstrong Lakin and Mike traveled through California and Oregon and visited their families before returning to New York where Mike is teaching German at Alfred University.

It was so good to hear from Becky Blasingame. She loves Europe and is kept busy working for International Telephone and Telegraph and taking courses at the University of Brussels.

It was marvelous to hear how many friends have had such a successful first year and good to know that most were satisfied and doing well. As for me, I couldn't be happier. Jim and I had a wonderful summer traveling in the Northeast and Canada, and now I am again involved in team teaching in the fifth and sixth grades while Jim is in his third year at Jefferson Medical College.

Connie reporting:

Isabel Hausner, after sampling some courses in graduate school and in law school at N.Y.U., concurrently, has decided against law and for political science. This year she has a graduate assistantship in problems of international organizations and non-western civilizations, and a new address in New York City. Isabel reports that Jane Gross, who has returned from a trip to Europe, is her next door neighbor in Apt. 1-K. Also from Isabel's newsy letter we learn that Jane Nobel Maxwell's husband is a Ph.D. candidate in American studies at Columbia Teacher's College. Jane graduated from N.Y.U. in June and is taking some extra science courses before entering medical school.

Returning to the classroom this fall were several classmates. Judy Howard and Karen Goff continue to teach in the Pittsburgh area. In addition to teaching Judy is also studying for her master's in English at the University of Pittsburgh and has been busy preparing for December 16, 1967, at which time she and Michael Reilly, a Duquesne graduate of 1964, plan to take the big step. This year Karen is teaching English and reading to high school freshmen and is also attending University of Pittsburgh in education. Karen enjoyed reunioning with Ann Quenin and Carole Cupps at Beth Marty's wedding and also vacationing in Puerto Rico with roommate Barb Wallace this summer.

Carole Early Cupps is teaching first grade and also making graduate courses in education and psychology at Michigan State.

Ann Greenhouse Klein resumed teaching after a summer of relaxation and research in adolescent psychology at Ohio State University. Kathy Hopkins Macher continues to teach high school English and will complete her master's at Temple University in education. She sponsored the school newspaper this year and was quite pleased that several of her editors received full scholarships to leading schools of journalism.

Marty Friday retired from her job as psychiatric social worker at Metropolitan State Hospital in Massachusetts and is attending Boston University in social psychology. Another ambitious class member is Irene Fraser who is attending University of Illinois in none other than political science.

Kathy Hoover Hill worked in the children's room of the Morristown Library, but is now planning to work toward her master's in library science at Rutgers University. Scott is working at an Esso research center.

Congratulations go to Jarene Frances who recently completed her master's in journalism at Syracuse University. After two weeks of traveling around the midwest, Jarene has settled in the quiet town of Hopewell, easily accessible to New York City and Philadelphia, and is doing public relations for the Division of Mental Health and Hospitals of the State of New Jersey.

Raquel Halty also finished her master's in Spanish literature at Harvard University. She has been appointed as an instructor in the Department of Modern Literature at Northeastern University in Boston where she will teach Spanish and possibly French.

Mrs. Hickox, Deanna's mother, writes that Deanna has been with the Peace Corps in Africa since January after having graduated from Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon, a year ago June.

Bobbie Hewitt Orloff was happily married in April and has settled in Shadyside while Jon studies for a doctorate in physics and she works with aged and medicare for the Information and Referral Service of Allegheny County. She and Jon bought camping equipment, and, along with their two German shepherds, roughed it in West Virginia over the summer weekends.

Judy Fellows Duchek continues to do computer programming, this time for Bell Telephone Laboratories in New Jersey.

As for myself, Bonnie Markey, I have recently retired from my job in the social work department at Mount Sinai Hospital in Cleveland, where I worked primarily with teenage unwed mothers, and have moved to the "big city" of New York where I am working toward my master's in social work at Columbia University.

Pat Kane is continuing work on a master's in Early American Culture at the Winterthur Museum. Her summer was spent in research for her thesis on 17th century Connecticut chests!

Marjorie reporting:

Ruthe Klein Kaplan, a recent bride, is hoping to finish her M.Ed. in student personnel administration this year. Her new husband is a graduate student in metallurgy at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Sandy Kretz is enjoying her new job as a management intern with the Office of Economic Opportunity, having received her M.A. in political science from Rutgers in a year she describes as full of great experiences.

Donna Kwall has completed her M.Ed. in counselor education at the University of Pittsburgh and is going on to work toward her Ph.D. in that field this year.

Cristina Lagueruela has received her master's in government at the University of Miami and expected to be teaching there in the fall.

Penny Langston Zollinger, after 15 credits of graduate work in library science, spent six months working in the hematology lab at Presbyterian University Hospital in Pittsburgh. Her husband Bill was graduated from medical school in May, and they have now moved to Cincinnati where Bill is serving a surgical internship at Cincinnati General Hospital while Penny goes job-hunting.

Vivian Ann Lazur will be planning a wedding and teaching biology at Wilkins Junior High in Pittsburgh—a busy schedule!

Carol Beth Levin Hill will be substitute teaching this fall while her husband Ed continues to serve as a lawyer with the Staff Judge Advocate, U.S. Army.

Rebecca Mark Orlinsky is working at the Peace Corps in the East African division while her new husband Zeke is an investigator for the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission.

Elizabeth Marty Welch will be substitute teaching in San Diego and studying reading education at San Diego State. Her husband Curtis is serving as an Ensign in the Navy.

Nancy McNabb writes that her life has been normal except for a "dream vacation in Madrid, Spain." She is presently sharing an apartment in Philly with Emily Doyle.

Paula Mysell Evans and her husband Rob both finished M.A.T.'s at Harvard in June and spent the summer at the Breadloaf School of English in Middlebury, Vermont. This fall they are teaching French and English respectively in the Boston area.

Judy Parry is teaching English with the Peace Corps in Sfax, Tunisia and "loving it." She writes that she spent a challenging summer teaching poetry to a group of aspiring poets.

Celia Paul is at Columbia and expects to complete her master's in social work this year. She is considering working in Africa when she finishes here.

It was good to hear from some of the associates, too. Barbara LeFevre Falkner is teaching 7th and 8th grade social studies in an inner-city school in Cincinnati while her husband Tom, who plans a career in banking, works on his M.B.A. in finance at the University of Cincinnati.

Heather Martin Price is busy taking care of her little daughter Beth while Jim works as an architectural engineer at Edwards Air Force Base. They live in the Mojave Desert, and as Heather wrote they were experiencing their first rain in several months!

As for me, Margie Morrison Hofer, I am still at the National Collection of Fine Arts here at the Smithsonian, where I am secretary to the Curator of Contemporary Art. NCA is busily preparing for the opening of its "new" building—the renovated Patent Office Building—next spring, and my husband Bill, who finished his Army obligation last February, is working here also as consultant designer to the architect in charge of the renovation. Be sure and come see this new museum if you're in Washington after next May. It's a beautiful place!

Sherrie reporting:

Margaret Paulson is enjoying Chicago and the University of Chicago, where she is working on her master's thesis in anthropology. Marg spent the summer working part-time for the university's data processing center and got a chance to see a few things besides books around Hyde Park.

Nancy Persson Klock is a vocational worker at Mount Sinai Hospital in Cleveland, and Gary is a consultant with the firm of Ernest and Ernest.

Texas is not really so far away, according to Betsy Pincus Candler. Karen Lake, '67, stopped by in March, and Carole Swenson, '67, in June. When Betsy wrote she and Dan were planning a trip east in September to visit family and friends.

Ambassador to Thailand, Jeff Potter, reports that the second six months of Peace Corps life is easier than the first, once you have geared your pace of life to that of your host country. Jeff plans a December trip to Indonesia and the famed island of Bali, and hopes to spend next summer traveling in Europe before returning home.

Pickle Prouty has been helping to keep the Chatham fires burning in Boston, where she shared an apartment with Clare Stebbins and worked for D. C. Heath Publishing Company. Her fiancé, Bobby, is a graduate of Washington and Lee College and Law School, and is currently stationed at Fort Devens, Massachusetts, where he is a First Lt. in the U.S. Army Intelligence Corps.

Ann Quenin has a new job as a copywriter with Ketchum, MacLeod, and Grove, a Pittsburgh advertising agency. Q.'s repertoire on the guitar is still, incredibly, growing, and she keeps neighbors Goff and Wallace entertained. She planned a trip to Turkey in September to visit her family.

Greetings from Helen Read, who reports that she saw a lot of the Pittsburgh crowd this year, especially with her handy-dandy motor scooter. Helen began a new job as assistant chemist at Koppers Co. on October 2.

Nancy Ruehl is busy with her third grade class, and has also been taking courses in guidance and counseling at Catholic University in Washington, D.C. She saw Susie Cohn Brenner over Labor Day weekend.

Holly Marie has been keeping her mother, Nancy Russell Ross, busy, while pop Richard is a vocational rehabilitation counselor in the Federal O.E.O. program. Nancy hopes to return to graduate school in urban affairs in January.

After her December wedding and the completion of an M.A. degree in history from Carnegie-Mellon in June, Sheila Sadin Nevins is teaching tenth and eleventh grade history at Lake Washington High School near Seattle, while Don is an intern at Virginia Mason Hospital. They had a marvelous trip out to the West Coast and find the Northwest a delightful place to be—the humidity is slightly lower than Pittsburgh.

Another West Coast convert is Catherine St. Clair, whose job as an airline hostess now includes flights to Vietnam, as well as Hong Kong, Bangkok, and Hawaii. Cathy spends her free time furnishing her apartment in Early American ala Oriental.

Carol Sheldon sent her "hello" in between classes at George Washington University, where she is studying for her M.A.T. degree.

Lesley Smith McGregor and her new husband Jamie spent their honeymoon sailing the seas of Maine and New Brunswick, after two weeks in Carmel, California. Before her July wedding, Lesley was taking courses in art and Oriental history and working as a model.

As for me, Sherrie Smith, after a year of the 9-to-5 ritual in the business office of the New England Telephone Company, the allure of a student's vacations got the best of me and I am now studying for an Ed.M. degree at Boston University, just working part-time for the telephone company. Former Chathamite Jennifer Piebler and I love apartment living in Boston, and have seen a surprising number of familiar faces around town. Thanks for the news, gang, hope to hear from more of you next year.

Renny Mazo Cohen sends greetings from Columbus, where Dennis is a student at Ohio State Medical School.

Mary Bruce McCulloch Mitchell's husband Dave has a new job as advertising manager for B. K. Elliot. The Mitchells had a fabulous trip to Expo '67, and Mary Bruce also got a chance to see Pam Byerly Stuckart last summer.

Jeanne Menzie is teaching seventh and ninth grade social studies at Forest Hills Junior High in Pittsburgh, as well as taking courses in library science at the University of Pittsburgh.
Sage reporting:

Ann Sparks Haight is now working on her M.A. degree in psychology at Temple University, while her husband George is in his second year at the Medical School at Temple. Ann attended Bobbi Hewitt Orloff's wedding in April.

Rachel Stein Gragg and her husband Mike are both working for doctorate degrees at the University of Arizona, Rachel in government and Mike in chemical engineering.

Susan Taylor is planning to work for a M.A. degree in English at Pitt. Sue reports that she visited Pat Turcotte Olesen in Chicago and that she was in Pickle Prouty's wedding in October.

Jan Thomas Wolf is waiting anxiously for her husband Harton to come home from Vietnam, but is managing to keep busy working for Automated Personnel International.

Maureen Thomas is continuing her studies in the doctoral program in social psychology at Penn State. She was fortunate enough to be awarded an NDEA fellowship for this year.

Barbara Wallace went to Puerto Rico for a vacation at the end of the summer, and is now working for an advanced degree in social work at Pitt.

Naomi Waterston is teaching this year at an English public school. Her class consists of about 30 five-year-olds, whom, as she says, she hopes she can understand. Naomi now has a master's degree in early childhood education, which she received from Tufts.

Patti Williamson is working on a government financed sociological research project at Northwestern. She has temporarily discontinued her master's work in religion, but has not completely forsaken the academic world.

Lynn Williamson Lawrence is working as a job analyst in the personnel department of the New England Merchants National Bank. Her husband Rick is now in Harvard Business School.

Pat Mullen is trying life on the west coast for a while. She plans to stay in Los Angeles for about a year and then return to Pittsburgh.

Joan Stahlbrodt is teaching fifth grade in Rochester, New York. She was in Pittsburgh in early September to attend the wedding of Judy Graytock, '67, and Bill Dengler.

As for me, Sage, I am now working toward a M.S. in chemistry at Pitt, while Mike continues to work toward his Ph.D. We are hoping to be finished soon, and we are looking forward to living in another part of the U.S.

CLASS REUNION SCHEDULE • 1968 through 1977

Have you wondered when your next class reunion will be?

This chart will provide the answer for each of the years through 1977.

From the 25th through the 50th (in bold type) reunions are held every five years.

Before the 25th, classes meet in groups of four as scheduled on the chart.

This year's reunion on June 8, 1968, will include 1918 (50th), 1923, 1928, 1933, 1938, 1943 (25th), the group of 1952, 1953, 1954, 1955, and a 1st reunion for 1967.

The entire Alumnae Day program is open to all alumnae. Plan to attend whether it is your reunion year or not. You will be most welcome.

● The Chatham College Centennial Planning Commission, under the chairmanship of Mr. Leonard G. Doran, Secretary of the College, has met several times during the winter months to consider ideas for celebrating the event in the Fall of 1969. The following persons are serving as members of the Commission: two trustees, Mr. Francis B. Nimick, Jr., and Helen H. Smith, who is also an alumna; two alumnae representatives, Margaret Cooke Skidmore, of Chicago, and Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort, president of the Alumnae Association; Dr. Willard Arnett and Dr. Donald G. Adam of the faculty; students Naida Karoly, sophomore, and Mary Alice Brannin, junior; and from the administration, Mrs. Nancy J. Brem, director of public relations, and Dr. Carl A. Trendler, director of special projects.

● The Girls at Center Stage (p. 6) is the second in a series of articles about alumnae whose careers demonstrate that a liberal arts education can lead to interesting jobs in almost every area of employment for women. The author, Rachel Kirk Bobo, was one of those interviewed for the opening article on the field of communications. Of her own stage experience she says, "I was an enthusiastic, if untalented, actress in the days when you had to crawl in a window for a Stage Left entrance." Pre-1950 alumnae will recall the questionable stage facilities in old Dilworth Hall.

● Laura Kreps Holding, a graduate of the class of 1894, was, at the time of her death on November 11, 1967, the oldest living member of the Chatham Alumnae Association. Mrs. Holding was born on December 9, 1873 at Brownsville, Pennsylvania. The widow of the late James C. C. Holding, a former Pittsburgh steel executive, she had lived for many years in Forest Hills, Queens, New York. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Laura Anne Holding who accompanied her mother on her last visit to the campus several years ago, two sons, James, Jr., and Allen K. Holding, a grandson and three great-grand-children.

From one of the first to one of the finest, that is the record of Chatham's progress in her 99 years of trial, of change, and of growth as an independent liberal arts college for women.

The major development program upon which Chatham now embarks, her first such program in 12 years, is filled with exceptional challenge and promise. I welcome this opportunity to present the basic concepts to you. I hope you are going to be as excited about these new Chatham developments as those of us on the campus assuredly are.

The aim of the program is to insure the continuation of the high quality of the Chatham educational experience—a level of quality which is recognized here at home, in the nation and abroad.

Specifically the program calls for the construction of three interrelated buildings to be known as the Chatham Forum and for a doubling of Chatham's endowment. The proposed location of the Forum is shown in the accompanying plot plan.

The Jennie King Mellon Library

At the outset, let's talk about the first of the three buildings which will be included in the Forum. Chatham's most obvious need is for new and enlarged library facilities. The Middle States Association pointed this out bluntly in its recent evaluation report on Chatham. The present library, charming as it is, is too small and cannot be expanded.

Our library collection now totals 76,000 volumes. To maintain the quality of our educational program the collection must be doubled. This will provide a strong basic undergraduate library. In addition, Chatham can draw upon and contribute to the other libraries of the area through the Pittsburgh Regional Library Council.

The concept of the new library is based on the belief that no educational building should be constructed with but one, narrow, presently conceived function in mind. The whole field of library science and of information retrieval is on the edge of substantial new developments which will change many of the present ways of library operation.

THE DREAM OF A NEAR TOMORROW

by Edward D. Eddy

The proposed new library will be adaptable to many uses and will provide space for at least 150,000 volumes and carrels for 300 students. It will contain more than 40,000 square feet as compared with 9,756 square feet in the present structure.

Thanks to the splendid gift of more than two million dollars from Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Mellon, the new library, which will be named for Jennie King Mellon of the Class of 1887, can be planned to meet both present and future needs. The present library will continue to stand and will be renovated for other academic purposes.

Lecture Hall-Little Theatre

The second building in the Forum complex will be the Lecture Hall-Little Theatre. At present there is no group facility on the campus which seats more than 170 except the Chapel with a capacity of 720. The only drama, lecture and recital facilities are makeshift in nature. Such functions are inappropriate to the Chapel which was given to the College as a place of worship.

The new Lecture Hall-Little Theatre will provide a comfortable seating capacity for 300 to 400. It will be designed to be in almost constant use as a lecture hall, audio-visual classroom, conference center, theater and recital hall to serve the campus and the community. It will be connected with the facilities of WQED, the Pittsburgh educational television station which is affiliated with the National Educational Television Network.

The uses of this building will be directed toward the question: "What is man trying to say about himself and his condition?" With this facility at hand Chatham will be able to expand her call on musicians, writers, artists, sociologists, anthropologists, actors and playwrights—indeed upon all who have something to say about the condition of man.

Student-Faculty Center

The third building in the Forum will be the Student-Faculty Center. Primarily it will be a dining facility for students, faculty and guests of the College, designed to encourage the almost lost art of intelligent conversation. The exchange of points of view among knowledgeable people adds an essential dimension to liberal education.

The present dining area in Woodland Hall is completely outmoded. Food must be prepared and served on three different levels in spaces which have been altered and remodeled several times since Woodland was built in 1909. Students eat hurried, noisy meals in one large area.

The new dining facility will include a number of smaller rooms with distinctive decorative motifs. Students in a seminar may dine with their professor. Language classes may practice their linguistic skills in daily conversation. Students and faculty may continue their discussion with visiting lecturers and artists across the dining table.

The accommodations will include facilities for larger numbers who must dine quickly to keep to class schedules, as well as an informal rathskellar for snacks and for late evening arguments.

In addition to dining spaces the Center will include meeting rooms, lounges, and a greatly enlarged bookstore. The third floor will provide critically needed additional facilities for the Department of Art, encompassing sculpture, painting, drawing and ceramics. Space will be available for both art majors and non-majors as well as faculty members, so that all may have the opportunity to express and develop creative interests.

Endowment

A substantial increase in our endowment funds is urgently needed to maintain present quality and to undergird Chatham's continuing development. Additional endowment funds are needed especially for faculty salaries and student scholarships. Chatham's current compensation of faculty is excellent by national standards, but each year requires a major adjustment if Chatham is to maintain its competitive position. This is essential.

Additional scholarship funds are urgently needed to attract and retain the outstanding and deserving scholars who contribute significantly to Chatham's high level of academic quality. In the face of rapidly rising educational costs Chatham must strive to maintain its broadened socioeconomic diversity among students and not deny the opportunity for a Chatham education to a truly deserving student.

It is a great pleasure to report that in addition to the handsome gift from the Richard King Mellons, three million dollars has been subscribed by Chatham's Trustees and special friends, so that we may now count a total of five million dollars secured toward the seven million dollar goal which will be sought from voluntary contributions in the first phase of the program.

A recent article in Fortune (October, 1967) entitled "Private Colleges: A Question of Survival" points to the crucial crossroad confronting private colleges—either additional voluntary support must be forthcoming or the private institution must turn to state and Federal tax funds. The response of Chatham Trustees and friends strongly encourages us to believe that Chatham will be able to maintain its private character. So does the growing record of alumnae participation and support. When the alumnae capital fund drive is launched next fall, we will be counting on each of you.

At Center Stage

by Rachel Kirk Bobo '40

Breathes there a woman with soul so dead who never, never in her growing-up years envisioned her name in lights and herself bowing to the applause of millions?

Chatham alumnae who spent their extra-curricular college hours learning lines and rehearsing have mostly gone into teaching or speech correction or some other worthy but unglamorous aspect of their field, but a handful of "slightly insane and thoroughly masochistic" graduates have brought the daydream to life.

The quotes are from one of them, Bibi Boles, '65, a beautiful and sensitive actress who has been storming the stages and the film, television and radio studios of Southern California for two years with some success ("My Three Sons," "The Nurses," classical repertory).

"I plan to keep working for as long as I can face the very depressing and discouraging fight for parts," Bibi says. "I cannot recommend acting as a field unless one cannot possibly exist without it."

Obviously, Bibi can't imagine life without the theater, at least partly because she grew up "with it and in it." Her parents are both actors, and her childhood was spent in summer theater and film and recording studios. Consequently she chose Chatham rather than a drama school because she wanted to "widen my perspective." Although she was a drama major because "I couldn't escape it" she valued most the courses in arts, English, philosophy and history . . . learning the "ways and means of finding information."

Between professional engagements, she is still working on techniques of breath control, singing, body control and mechanics, as well as Shakespearean styles.

Another Chatham graduate who hears the "roar of the greasepaint" is Elizabeth Miller MacDonald, '56. Behind her she has a year of postgraduate work at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, acting with the Pittsburgh Miniature Theater, secretarial work ("in order to eat") for various theater people including Robert Whitehead, who initiated the Lincoln Repertory Theater. In 1963, she married Pirie MacDonald Tutchings, and the young couple toured together with the national company of "Mary, Mary." She then worked with her husband's summer theater in Delaware.

For the past two years, Elizabeth has been acting with the Seattle Repertory Theater where her husband has been associate director. Elizabeth has done such parts as Mary Warren in "The Crucible," Mariane in "Tartuffe," Anya in "The Cherry Orchard," Viola in "Twelfth Night," and Cecily in "The Importance of Being Ernest." This year, except for January in Seattle, the MacDonald-Tutchings are in Cambridge, where Pirie has a Rockefeller grant for study at Harvard and Elizabeth is taking classes in pottery, jewelry and French.

Though she has performed at school and women's clubs since early childhood, she never thought of concentrating on drama at college. "I wanted a broader base," she explains. "Chatham helped to prepare me to prepare for a life in the theater. If I wanted or expected more than that, I would not have stayed in a liberal arts college."

Speech therapy is a good field for women, Elizabeth thinks. "It's fascinating, and there's always a demand—which is certainly not true of the theater in general." Despite that rueful observation, don't take Elizabeth MacDonald's name off the call boards yet.

A somewhat more optimistic view of the professional theater is taken by Eugenie Miller Snell, who has been a part of it for most of the time since her Chatham graduation in 1937—and whose red-haired, green-eyed beauty seems unmarked by all those busy years.

Even the quick closing of the first presentation of Genesis Productions, Inc. last September failed to quench her spirit. She and her three feminine associates are already planning a second drama, "Five in the Afternoon," which won an award from the National Council on the Arts. Genesis' first production, "Song of the Grasshopper," starring Alfred Drake, closed after four Broadway performances, but Eugenie was considered buoyed by the presence in New York or on tryouts of Lois Hazeltine Moses, Gretchen Adams Dennison, both '37, and Mary Virginia Brown Bowden, '36 and their husbands.

After her many college roles, including Malvolio in "Twelfth Night," Emily Dickinson in "Brittle Heaven," Queen Elizabeth in the 1935 May Day and leads in "Death Takes a Holiday," "Bill of Divorcement," and "Little Women," Eugenie took her M.A. in drama at Western Reserve University, which in 1951 invited her back to play the lead in a musical play written by Lynn Riggs to commemorate WRU's 125th anniversary.

In 1939 and '40, she toured with a General Electric show and then played it at the New York World's Fair. From 1941-45, she took roles at the Pittsburgh Playhouse and Pittsburgh Children's Theatre and directed the Savoyards (Gilbert and Sullivan devotees).

The following two years, Eugenie acted with the U.S. Army Special Services in Europe. She also directed "The Mikado" on the French Riviera, using G.I.s and stars of the Nice Opera and French films. The Army experience was "fascinating," and not the least fascination was meeting a dashing British Guardsman, Charles Snell, whom she married in Pittsburgh in 1947. Until 1957, she was more or less inactive, but then, back in London, she played on BBC-TV and ITV for two years.

Her husband, who is now assistant vice-president of operations with Butler Aviation Company in New York, has always encouraged her, and Eugenie feels the field of drama-speech is a good one for women.

Thirty years after Eugenie, Ellen Goldbloom Kight graduated as a drama major. She married a manufacturer's representative, got settled into an apartment, and by September was ready to start her career. She heard there was a job at the Pittsburgh Playhouse and applied, without knowing what it was. It was theater, wasn't it?

The job turned out to be assistant to the director of public relations, a new aspect of theater for Ellen, but very important, since the Playhouse had a rebuilding job to do and a job of communicating to the Pittsburgh area. She is taking dance classes and hopes to get back to acting again when she's a little more practiced in housekeeping. Her experience has included teaching creative dramatics at a fine arts camp and serving as apprentice at the Grist Mill Musical Playhouse in Andover, New Jersey.

Lucille Laughlin Logan, '31, was an English major and taught at Shady Side Academy for 23 years, but theater was always an interest—"good, bad or indifferent, I loved it all," she says. During her teaching years, she wrote many plays for her first-graders. But drama was just a hobby until she and her husband were spending the summer in their vacation home near Jennerstown, Pa., site of the Mountain Playhouse.

The directors of the Playhouse, friends of the Logans, wanted to do a Pennsylvania Dutch play, and Lucille had just read a book with that setting. So she volunteered to write a three-acter, "just as if I knew how." Apparently she knew how, all right, for "Apple in the Attic" has been presented seven times at four summer theaters. She and the author of the book have become close friends and collaborate on revisions after almost every run. The play has been optioned once to a Broadway producer, and Lucille feels that it may yet catch on.

"I'm not aggressive about anything except this play. I think it's good," she says. (How about it, Eugenie?)

As women doctors often go into pediatrics, Chatham

graduates in drama seem to gravitate toward children's theater. Perhaps the doyenne of children's theater in the United States is Rita Criste, '20, who held three jobs for many years: assistant professor of dramatic production at Northwestern University School of Speech, supervisor of drama for the public schools in the Evanston, Illinois area, and director of the Children's Theater of Evanston. The latter job she just left at the end of 1967; she retired from the public schools in 1963 and from Northwestern in 1966.

She was a pioneer in teaching by television ("How lucky I've been in the time and place in which I've lived!"), and has frequently given lecture-demonstrations on creative drama for children throughout the United States and Canada.

The Evanston Children's Theater recently did a play by another Chatham alumna, Beatrice Lewis, '31. The play "Snow Treasure," about the Norwegian resistance to Hitler, was very popular during World War II, but then became out of date. Now it's history, and the children love it again.

Bea has written about a dozen plays for youthful audiences, mostly in connection with the Pittsburgh Children's Theater. Her version of "The Emperor's New Clothes" was done at the Pittsburgh Playhouse Junior, and "David and the Giant" recently turned up on the stage of a Texas junior high school. But now her time is mostly spent in researching and writing a history of the Carnegie Tech Drama School.

Besides her work for young theater fans, Bea did a good deal of dramatic writing for radio in its great days. She created two series for Pittsburgh stations and many shows for a packaged program concern. Her first plays, while still in college, were one-acters written for Drama League Competitions at the instigation of Miss Vanda Kerst, long head of the speech department. Bea won third prize with her very first effort. In the thirties, she worked with many Little Theater groups and for two years wrote a community theater column for the Sunday Press.

"I always liked getting ideas over through dialogue," she says. "But now I'm out of the way of thinking in terms of theater. Theater just isn't as exciting . . . it used to be something you looked forward to."

Knickerby-Knockerty Players: "St. George and the Dragon"

Still very active indeed in children's theater is Madge Miller Eulenstein, '39. She's written 43 plays, had 23 published in the United States and England and some translated into Japanese, Swedish, Afrikaans and Braille. She's even been the subject of at least three master's theses!

"Children's theater is an excellent field," Madge says. "It's not overcrowded, and I probably do better financially than most professional writers."

Although she was an accomplished campus actress and started speech lessons at eight, she never had "the slightest desire" to act professionally. She never took any writing courses at Chatham, but had always written fantasy, even as a child. Her first play, "Knave vs. Knight," a meller-drama, was written to serve as a fund-raiser for the Verse Choir's spring vacation trip. While Madge was taking her master's at Western Reserve, Miss Kerst asked her to try a children's play for the speech majors. The result, "The Prince of Pantoufla," was produced, shown to Drama Critic Harold Cohen and his wife, who passed it along to the director of the Pittsburgh Children's Theater . . . and a career was born!

In the next few years, Madge wrote a half dozen plays for the Children's Theater and also acted, "But I hated touring." She also taught at two city high schools, a private studio and Chatham, Margaret Morrison and Duquesne. In 1949, she took off for New York to write for television and managed to crack the Canadian network, but not the big time. So she was receptive in 1951 to an offer from two theatrical friends to write and direct for a new children's theater, the Knickerty-Knockerty Players. She's been at it ever since except for about ten years, when she was taking care of her children while they were small.

Knickerty-Knockerty plays to about 10,000 children a year, mostly in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York and Connecticut.

The theater is a family interest with Eulensteins. H. Robert, an attorney and teacher of law, performs with the Little Lake Theater and Mt. Lebanon Players. Betsy, 10, writes plays for school and loves to act. H. Robert, Jr., 11½, stage manages his sister's shows in their basement theater, but his compelling interests are scientific.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Courses in drama-speech do not always lead to the wings. In fact, most Chatham graduates of that department are probably teaching or doing clinical work.

And that suits Lu Beery Wenneker, '49, just fine.

"I had no idea of making the professional theater a career," says Lu, who took two majors, speech and art, at Chatham and has combined them into a full and satisfying life. Lu is head of the fine arts department at Ellis School in Pittsburgh, teaching art history and drama.

Lu, who starred in the O'Neill trilogy and the Sophocles "Antigone" at Chatham, doesn't take the easy way with her teen-agers. They've done Shakespeare's "Tempest," "Skin of Our Teeth," the Benjamin Britten opera, "Noyes Fludde," and Aristophanes' "The Frogs," among other things.

Though presently a teacher, Lu started as a costume designer for the Pittsburgh Playhouse, played eight roles there and had a season in summer stock at Ogonquit, Maine. She also worked as a display artist at Gimbels, which she left in 1953 for motherhood. In 1958, she went back to Chatham for education courses and two years later started at Ellis.

Lu married one of her Chatham teachers, Dr. Jerry Wenneker, associate professor of drama. They are the parents of a son, 15, and daughters 13 and 10. In addition to being wife, mother, teacher-administrator, Lu is still a student, working on a Ph.D. in art history at the University of Pittsburgh. Two years ago, she won a Fulbright fellowship for study in Florence, and the entire Wenneker family spent the year in Italy and Greece.

Of course, there's Frances Meyers, '65, who is teaching basic speech and doing speech correction at Brooklyn College. She thinks college teaching is one of the best fields available for women, but she's at Brooklyn because she wanted to be in New York, where the theater action is. Many teachers in the city are continuing their own professional training or playing occasional roles on and off Broadway—and Frances still has her hopes high.

After graduation from Chatham, ("We need a decent stage!"), Frances went to Cornell for her master's. As a graduate assistant, she worked on costumes one year and taught speech and worked on props for the University Theater the second year. Last spring, she delivered a paper on "The Rhetoric of Napoleon Bonaparte" at the Eastern States Speech Convention, and the Brooklyn offer followed.

For the future—a start on a Ph.D. in a year or so, when she's made the choice among theater history, dramatic literature or speech correction.

Norma Trozzo Hopkinson, '47, is a speech major who has achieved standing in a field that's at one remove—hearing. Now clinical assistant professor and associate member of the Graduate Faculty, School of Medicine, University of Pittsburgh, Norma has a staggering schedule of laboratory, clinic and classroom work and finds it all most rewarding.

Her major interest centers around the study of behavioral responses of patients with certain ear pathologies to a variety of auditory signals, and she has presented seven papers at national conferences and authored or co-authored three brief research reports and twelve clinical or research publications.

In 1967, she designed a training program for the first sub-professional staff, including writing a computer program to teach the diagnostic of the hearing problem. In '68, her main concern will be with a National Institutes of Health study of "cochlear dysfunction" in an out-patient population. A far cry from the medium in "Blithe Spirit" and the ballet dancer in "The Time of Your Life," two favorite roles at Chatham.

Norma took her M.A. at Northwestern University in speech pathology and audiology while teaching at Chatham during the school year. The same year, 1949, she married Sam Hopkinson, then started a five-and-a-half year stint as instructor and hearing consultant at the Pittsburgh Hearing Society. In 1955, she went to the Eye and Ear Hospital as a clinical audiologist, then as supervisor of the clinical audiology program for adults and school age children. While she worked full-time, she studied for the Ph.D. and that required, Norma points out, "a spouse who is patient, indulgent, emotionally strong and helpful."

She's always been "extremely proud" of her liberal arts training at Chatham. "Although many individuals of a scientific bent tend to negate the importance of a general exposure in the college years, when it might have been wise to be learning the second law of thermodynamics, I have never heard a disparaging word about Chatham in this context," says Norma. "I have noted only respect for its program and perhaps some envy."

In spite of a schedule for which the word "busy" is downright relaxing, Norma enjoys attending athletic and social events at the junior high school where her husband is the principal, and she likes to cook, though she has a woman once a week to clean and iron.

Marianne Boggs Campbell, '48, took a speech major, along with majors in economics and history, as preparation for law. She never dreamed of a career in broadcasting, but today she is director of community affairs for AVCO Broadcasting Corporation, with radio and television stations in Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, Indianapolis, San Antonio, Washington and San Francisco. She was the first and so far only woman director on the National Association of Broadcasters board, the first woman appointed to the Radio Code Board, a president of the Ohio Association of Broadcasters, only woman to serve on the Small Business Administration Advisory Council for Ohio and on the board of directors of the Gallipolis, Ohio Chamber of Commerce. And that's just a sampling of her honors. Is it any wonder she was chosen one of the top ten women of 1960 by the American Business Women's Association?

Marianne went to AVCO just last year after 17 years as general manager of radio station WJEH-AM-FM, Gallipolis, which she put on the air in 1950. Under her management, the stations gained national attention for community-oriented and, incidentally, profitable operation. Her testimony before the FCC several years ago was outstanding and proved that radio can become an integral part of its community.

In her new job, she travels to the various stations to help them extend their community involvement. This includes a great many speeches. For example, in December, she addressed the national staff conference of the American Cancer Society and in January, spoke to the ACS's Ohio Division Crusade Training meeting. In February, she moderated four bridal fashion shows for KYA in San Francisco. In March, she spoke at the Distributive Education Clubs of America leadership conference in Kentucky and was program chairman for the national meeting in Chicago of the Association for Professional Broadcasting Education. She is delighted that a new airport in Gallipolis makes it easy to commute from her home on the 400-acre family farm to Cincinnati, where she maintains a weekday residence in the Sheraton Gibson Hotel. Her Gallipolis housekeeper has been with the family for 20 years, so Marianne has time free of household chores so she and husband Bill can enjoy their weekends together.

"I couldn't be doing what I am now if I did not have such a devoted and cooperative husband," she says—and understanding husbands, sure of their own identities, seem to be a prerequisite for married career women.

Drama and speech is a good field for women, Marianne believes, whether it leads to a career or to more effective participation in community activities. "There is no substitute for the ability to speak clearly and concisely," she states.

"Chatham was ideal. Small classes meant hard study, and our professors were the best. I wouldn't change one thing about my basic college education at Chatham."

No matter where they are, behind the footlights, a microphone, a teacher's lectern or a playwright's desk, our Chatham speech graduates are happy with the life they've chosen—or that's chosen them. And they're a credit to their college. ■

ALUMNAE-STUDENT RELATIONS AT CHATHAM

Two of the busiest members of the Alumnae Association executive board this year are the co-chairmen of the alumnae-student relations committee, Cordelia Suran Jacobs, '60, and Gwen Bach Lammert, '51. The name of the committee is self-explanatory, and the program has been the responsibility of the first vice president with one of the directors appointed by the president to serve as co-chairman.

On the firm foundation established by two former vice presidents, Vange Seitanakis Beldecos, '52, and Marianne McCallister Martin, '40, the activities have multiplied until the program, or the necessary preparation for it, continues on a year-round schedule.

A successful program must have a starting point and ours begins, wherever possible, with the prospective student. This first contact is accomplished in three ways:

1) In club areas we follow the common practice, at least among women's colleges, of the club-sponsored tea or coke party to which eligible secondary school juniors and seniors and their mothers are invited. Usually held during the Thanksgiving or Christmas holidays, present students are at home to serve as sources of first-hand information about the College, and the mothers have an opportunity to see in the alumnae a glimpse of what their daughters may become after four years at Chatham.

2) Eighty-two alumnae in twenty-nine states serve officially as representatives for the college admissions department. They are carefully selected by the admissions and alumnae directors, and they receive an official three-year appointment from President Eddy. These representatives receive all college publications including the ARROW, visit high schools in their geographic areas with the Chatham admissions counselor, represent Chatham at college nights, and conduct interviews with prospective students who cannot visit the campus.

3) A Prospective Students Open House, co-sponsored by the Alumnae Association and the Admissions Office, is held on campus the last Saturday in September. This is for secondary school juniors and seniors and their mothers from the Pittsburgh area. The president of the Alumnae Association presides at the program in which President Eddy and members of faculty, staff and student body participate. The committee calls upon present students and recent alumnae to serve as registrars, hostesses and guides for campus tours.

Progressing from the prospective to the actual student, a letter of welcome is sent to each entering freshman soon after orientation week. No attempt is made to explain the Alumnae Association at this time. It is solely a friendly gesture and an offer of any service we might render from the alumnae office. Another "friendly gesture" activity is the back-to-school party given by a number of alumnae clubs for the entering and returning students from their areas. These usually take place in late August or early September.

When the Alumnae Council meets on campus late in October the committee meets with student leaders of all campus organizations to discuss ways in which the alumnae can serve the students and vice versa. From these discussions come some of the best ideas for future activities.

Students are frequently called upon to participate in Council sessions. For one program a student from each class was invited to present a frank evaluation of the College as she saw it, her reasons for choosing Chatham, and an assessment of how it was living up to her expectations. It was interesting to note the stages of development from the exuberant freshman to the poised senior. It was notable, also, that there was no evidence of restraint in expressing their very candid opinions just because they were speaking to alumnae.

The Alumnae Association, through the Alumnae Fund, supports eight scholarships, two in each class. We keep in close touch with these Alumnae Scholars, and honor them at a pre-holiday dinner each December. The Scholars for the 1967-68 academic year are:

Seniors—Yvette Bourgeois, Dallas, Texas, and Gisela Krueger, New Castle, Pennsylvania.

Juniors—Bobbi Franklin, Portland, Oregon, and Jennifer Gearhart, Pittsburgh.

Sophmores—Frances Conkey, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Sally Marks, Auburn, New York.

Freshmen—Norma Schreiber, New Britain, Connecticut, and Shelley Stuart-Bullock, Ossining, New York.

The Recorder is distributed to all seniors, Alumnae Scholars, alumnae daughters, and to all dormitories and the Infirmary. The Alumnae Association also provides an annual subscription to The New Yorker for the Infirmary.

This year, at the request of the students, the committee arranged for three career discussion sessions with alumnae. Meeting from 7:00 to 8:00 P.M. on February 28, March 12 and April 4, three recent alumnae talked informally about their careers:—Debbie Little, '67, newspaper journalism; Sue Allardice, '59, art in advertising and television; Diane Brutout Neimann, '65, college teaching and work with the Juvenile Court.

After mid-year exams are over and the long winter slump sets in, students are invited to avail themselves of the hospitality of local alumnae, usually in groups of two to four for Sunday evening supper. The alumnae committee enlists the hostesses, and students are asked to sign up in their dorms if they would like to enjoy the pleasant change of a home-cooked meal in a family atmosphere. An occasional breakdown in communications may cause momentary consternation, but for the most part the arrangements happen as scheduled.

In the past we have entertained the members of the senior class at a variety of brunches, teas, luncheons and evening parties. This year two dinners were scheduled on consecutive nights, providing a choice of time for the senior guests. Seating was arranged at tables for six with an alumna hostess at each table. Two hours passed quickly over a good dinner, lively conversation, a pleasant welcome by the president, Dorothy Van der Voort, and a brief description of the mysterious workings of the Alumnae Association by Cordelia Jacobs.

At the Closing Convocation in May the members of the senior class receive the college colors to replace their class colors, and are formally inducted into the Alumnae Association. Also at this time the Annual Alumnae Award, an engraved silver bowl, is presented to an outstanding senior by the president of the Association. And, to make her induction complete, each senior receives a certificate of membership, a fact sheet about the Alumnae Association, and the inevitable card to be filled out and returned to the alumnae office as the basis for the permanent record file for still another class of Chatham Alumnae.

This is the basic story of alumnae-student relations. Add to this a variety of small services by the alumnae office staff—from providing addresses of former students, to alumnae housing for individuals and touring choir members, to filling requests for alumnae job counseling in major cities, to assistance in student fund-raising projects—we do our best to oblige.

COOPERATION—ALUMNAE STYLE

Through the cooperation of several alumnae in three widely separated cities, three present seniors have enjoyed eastern, southern and western hospitality while pursuing academic activities.

Early in December Kathleen Kratt, with Dr. W. Dale Richey, associate professor of chemistry, traveled to Houston, Texas to attend the 11th Robert A. Welch Foundation Conferences on Chemical Research. They were met at the airport by Marie Cohn Chiles ('48) and her husband and taken to the Chiles home for dinner. Later in the evening, other Houston alumnae and their husbands joined them there to see pictures and be brought up to date on the College. Kathleen was housed for two nights with Eleanor Meanor Croyle ('38) and the third night with the Chiles.

Dr. Mary Bradshaw ('27), a member of the faculty at American University, made her apartment headquarters for Karen Frick who spent two January weeks in Washington, D.C. to interview twenty-four Congressmen and eight committee staff members. All of this was part of the research for her tutorial—an examination of the various roles which members of the House Judiciary Committee played in the passage of the 1966 Civil Rights Act.

From March 29 to April 4 Patricia Elio attended the American Chemical Society National Convention in San Francisco with Dr. and Mrs. Gerst Gibbon. Dr. Gibbon, assistant professor of chemistry, presented a paper at the conference. Patricia's hostess in San Francisco was Barbara Sanford ('58) who generously shared her apartment.

Naturally, these things do not "just happen." Word travels around campus that the alumnae office can arrange almost anything—any time, any place—and, with the cooperation of obliging alumnae such as these, it is almost true.

New York Club at United Nations

Another form of alumnae cooperation was responsible for a very successful venture in New York City. On February 28 more than five hundred persons from the alumnae clubs of ten colleges met at the United Nations for a late afternoon tour, cocktails in the Delegates Dining Room, and to hear Lord Caradon, permanent representative of the United Kingdom, speak about the work of the ambassadors to the United Nations. The participating colleges were Barnard, Briarcliff, Chatham, Goucher, Hollins, Mills, Mount Holyoke, Randolph-Macon, Skidmore and Sweet Briar. The group is already working on plans for another joint project for 1969.

Ten College Group Meets at Wells

The association presidents and alumnae directors of another cooperating group of ten colleges held their third annual meeting on April 4-5 at Wells College. The previous meetings were held at Sweet Briar and Connecticut. In addition to these three and Chatham, the group includes Bryn Mawr, Goucher, Hollins, Randolph-Macon, Skidmore and Wheaton. The purpose is to discuss new ideas in alumnae relations, and to consider the solutions to problems common to all of the member colleges. This year Dorothy Van der Voort, president of the Chatham Alumnae Association, was responsible for planning the program and presiding at the sessions.

WOODROW WILSON DESIGNATES 1968-69

Three Chatham seniors have been placed on the Honorable Mention List of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program:—Pamela Davis from Dover, New Hampshire, whose major is French literature; Alice Ireland, a mathematics-computer science major from Millville, New Jersey; and Kathleen Osmond, a political science major from Monroeville, Pennsylvania.

Miss Davis, a Chatham Scholar and member of Phi Beta Kappa, also has received a Fulbright Grant for a year's study in France. She plans to do her graduate work in 18th century theatre.

Lucile Atkinson Baker's husband had the misfortune to break a hip and is in a nursing home, so Lucile is busier than ever, but mentions being cheered by hearing from the rest of us. Says she marvels at the careers of the younger alumnae when she reads the Recorder. She sent in a picture of several candidates for queen of a Mid-Winter Ball which included her attractive granddaughter.

It is good to know that Helen Blair Baumann is still enjoying living in the city so much. She disclaims doing anything spectacular, but continues to be interested in her church and the nearby attractions at the College Club and Carnegie Institute. Helen keeps in touch with friends and is a faithful attendant at Decade V meetings.

There is a chance that Christine Cameron Bryan will get to Pittsburgh this spring and we are hoping to see her. At the time of her writing she was just recovering from a spell of flu.

Laila Clark Ament had a nice visit in Washington last spring with Donna, her granddaughter who has a position there. When I talked with Laila, she reported that her auntie, Mrs. Dille, was well. All will be glad to hear that and will be thinking of her when she has her 104th birthday in May.

Lack of space forbids me to relate the details of Helen Craig Culley's experiences abroad, but she had a wonderful time in those fourteen months. She and her daughter's family traveled all over Europe for two months before settling down in Vienna.

Elizabeth Donehoo Stoltz and her husband have again been wintering in Palm Desert, California. They report delightful weather, a little golf, and the fun of watching the grandchildren grow up. They hope to get to Pittsburgh some time this summer.

Louise Fletcher has not had a very comfortable year since she had to have a second cataract operation and this time there were complications. I am sure we all sympathize with Louise. Fortunately she was able to get back to Sarasota for the winter. Not long before writing me she had been to a meeting of the A.A.U.W. branch which was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Hinckley. It so happens that both Mrs. Hinckley and the vice-president, Dolores Steinecke, are graduates of our college.

From Emma Geiselhart Osterloh we get the report that everything is about as usual—even another vacation in Connecticut. And Jeanne Gray Orcutt and Grace Wilson

DEATHS

The class regretfully reports the deaths of three members: Rosalie Supplee on August 23, 1967 after many years of semi-invalidism; Irma Diescher Messler who died instantly when struck by a car on November 18, 1967; and Elma Trussel Bannen on March 16, 1968 after being in poor health for some time.

We extend our sympathy to Clarissa Blakeslee Ingle whose husband Charles passed away in the summer of 1967.

Belle McClymonds Marshall continues to reside at Negley House.

report "no news" except that Grace has a new address as indicated above.

The year 1967 did not treat Sylvia Wayne Gotham very well. She was taken ill in Florida, had to be brought home, and was in the hospital for four months. It is wonderful to be able to report now that she is completely recovered, back in Florida for the rest of the winter, and enjoying life again. She hopes to see Faye McCune while in the south. Is considering making a move when she returns in May and taking an apartment in the building where her brother lives. Sylvia sends love to all.

My card to Mildred Weston Rogers reached her just after she and her husband had returned from London again where they had been doing more research for their writing. Mr. Rogers appeared for an interview about his book Ladies Bountiful on "The To-day Show" on February fourteenth. Mildred's poems continue to appear in the anthologies, the two latest being "Eight Lives and Under" and "Creatures in Verse," both published by Macmillan.

Martha Young McKeon writes that life goes on about as usual, including some freelance editorial work when she feels so inclined. She takes great interest in her four lively grandchildren. Was planning to spend February in Florida and hoped to see Sylvia Gotham there. Martha always has the welcome mat out for any of us that may get up her way.

The class secretary spent her spring "vacation" in the Sewickley Hospital, but in July and August went off on visits as usual. And in October I had a brief visit in Chambersburg where I enjoyed seeing the big improvements at Penn Hall.

Louise Robm Johnson as usual spent the winter in Hollywood, Florida, but will return to Wilson, New York for the summer. In November Louise had the pleasure of attending the wedding of her grandson, Douglas Foss, in East Aurora, New York.

Mary Estep Starr leads an interesting life with her daughter and family. Three children mean a lively household. She and Olga Losa left in February for a Caribbean cruise which must have been most enjoyable. Olga, who is our world traveller, had a nice trip last summer, "A Through-the-Lens Tour" of the Scandinavian countries.

We are pleased to report that Mary Ruth Jeffery is achieving success with her writing. A one-act comedy received third prize in a playwriting contest last spring. The December issues of the Carnegie magazine contained an article entitled "Zoroaster and the Star of the East." Congratulations, Mary.

Betty Cameron Frank is busy with community affairs and family life. She sends greetings to all.

Your secretary has nothing eventful to report except a tour of Eastern Canada including a visit to Expo '67.

The main event which involved all of us was our 50th Reunion at the College in June. Seven of us sat down together in the big dining room. Each of us found as her place-card, a vision of her old self. These portraits were reprints from our old Class Album, furnished by Ruth Swishelm. Helen Pardee Nichol made a bright speech as she presented our gift of $1,030, a sum which made us feel proud. For this accomplishment we may thank the class members who proposed and managed the ten-year plan, and also some members who gave generously. The money will be used to furnish outdoor benches for leisure hours on the campus. Four of the husbands joined us in the afternoon for the President's Reception, and later for the dinner of barbecued steaks on the terrace of the Benedum mansion, overlooking East Liberty. The weather was kind and we had a happy time. This secretary believes that her classmates chose very fine husbands. We were able to continue our reunion and reminiscing when we gathered on Saturday night, as Louise's guests, in Carol Thorne King's lovely home in Fox Chapel. On Sunday, partings began but some of us visited with Martha and Charles Noyes in their home in Butler. Now we look forward to our next reunion.

Martha Crandall Noyes takes pride in Jim and his family, and in Martha's progress in music and in her occupation with IBM computer programming. Martha and Charles have enjoyed a Caribbean cruise, entering ports which they did not see before.

Martha Dunbar Say and her husband continue their winter work in Florida churches, and their summer social life in Chautauqua where they gather the younger generations about them, and also entertain their traveling friends. Their children gave them a luxurious time at Williamsburg to celebrate their Golden Wedding, in advance, last fall.

Edna Evans Peterson sends greetings to all from Greensburg. She lives there now with her sister, Marge, who is not well.

Lillian Fisher Lichtenstuh and her husband own a home in Miami Beach near to relatives. Their son, who has two daughters, lives in Pittsburgh, but frequently visits them.

Ruth and Roy Walters lead a double life, on Chautauqua Lake in summer and in Ridgewood, New Jersey in winter. Their sons and daughters surprised and delighted them with a Golden Wedding party in December in Ridgewood with a full family reunion. We sorrowed with Ruth last fall when she lost her beloved sister, Helen Gokey Denigan, '25.

Pauline McCaw Patterson moved to Dayton, Ohio, where she is near to her daughter Eleanor and is able to enjoy the company of four grandchildren. She also devotes time to volunteer work in the Kettering Memorial Hospital.

Elizabeth McClelland Crawford is now thriving on regular meals after a tedious time of hospital tests. During the reunion her spirits hit a low point because she had to miss the celebration after she had been at the heart of planning for it. We tried to carry some of it to her in her hospital bed, but we knew that was not good enough. Now she has been able to travel to Bill's home in Robinson, Illinois for a family reunion. She is president of Devade V. One granddaughter has announced her engagement.

Helen Pardee Nichol is one who gets around, with a son in Cincinnati, a daughter in Crown Point, Indiana, a sister in Butler County, and an appetite for culture in Martha Dunbar's company at Chautauqua, where she also visited Ruth and Roy. At home she engages in church activities in Mount Lebanon.

Louise Reinecke Thorne is hard to find. She visits Phoebe in Cleveland and helps with algebra lessons; Mannie in Lancaster, Pennsylvania where your secretary gets a swift glimpse of her; Jack in California; and unless the President's tax cramps her style, she will visit the Kings in London, whence she receives bright youthful letters. Louise did not get her 12 children but she has 13 grandchildren, and so competes with Ruth Walters.

Estelle Shepard White and Bert send greetings from Sanibel Island, on the Gulf Coast of Florida, near the Caloosahatchee River, far away from Connecticut snow. Marian and her husband are doing nicely in Merry Acres. Soon Betty's husband will become President of Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut.

Dot Stoebecker Markell has colorful memories of a cruise on the Mediterranean, with tours to miscellaneous inland cities. The surgeons have ministered to her affected eye, and now they allow her to go to the beauty parlor and even to Florida for an extended visit.

Nell Trimble Shumaker sends loving greetings from Belle Vernon. After eighty years in London, her daughter Mary Lou and family are at home. She and her brother Elmer arranged a lovely Golden Wedding celebration for their parents.

Miss Elizabeth White sounded gay as we chatted on the telephone. Living in Wilmington, Delaware, she is near her nephews. One of them has placed her in the third stage of life—the "Aren't you remarkable" age.

To follow the interests and travels of us old ladies, a secretary needs a good Atlas and she will learn world geography. So much development from that small group who once planted a tulip bed on the College Campus. An estimated count of grandchildren shows 58, but all the returns may not be in yet. And they are all Aces. Two of them are engaged.

Your new secretary still lives in her comfortable small home in this village, near to friends and relations, playing for church and an occasional pretty wedding, with some baby-sitting, watching the old generations re-appear in the new one.

DEATHS

Virginia Hoeff, September 15, 1967

Gertrude Bair Wood, September 29, 1967

Margaret Workman Witherspoon reports that New York is so exciting that she is happy to stay home and let her husband do the traveling. Their children are far away—Nancy in Caracas, and Maurice, Jr. in Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Marjorie Errett writes from Aiken, South Carolina, where she has taken a house for the winter months. She and her Pekinese "Pug" are enjoying the spring-like weather with budding flowers and trees. She expects Brownie Bovard to stop on her way south.

Viola Cox sends word from Santa Barbara, California that she still thinks this the perfect retirement place. She is busy with church and club activities and "lots" of bridge luncheons. August was spent with her nephew in Duluth and December in Mexico City.

Rachel Buck Reinken still enjoys life in Irvington, Virginia. She and her husband took a five-week trip to the Scandinavian countries last summer. They left in February for Florida. She reports 15 grandchildren—3 in college.

A letter from Augusta Rogers regrets she was too late for news in the last Recorder. Her home and hobbies keep her busy. She finds Paris, Kentucky a pleasant place to live—full of childhood friends and relatives, and a relaxed, easy life.

Marjorie Barron McKelvey is still living in the Perry Avenue home, rounding out 39 years there. Her husband Paul and son are still in General Practice. A new grandson arrived last January.

A note from Martha Brownlee Bovard enroute south, reported a wonderful weekend visit with Marjorie in Aiken. Brownie hoped to see Lex in Miami. Her daughter Janet, class of 1946, and children have been with her while Janet's husband (a Lt. Colonel in the Air Force) has been in Vietnam. Brownie looks forward to our reunion in 1969.

A letter from Mary Crawford tells me news of classmates but little of her own doings. However, I know she keeps busy as she has been coming to Decade V meetings with Elizabeth McCague, class of 1913.

News comes from Hartford and Dorothy Clarke Albright. She and her husband enjoy visits from their children and grandchildren who live in California, Oregon and Ohio. She still hopes someone from 1919 will be near Hartford and call.

Helen Bell Frost called but had nothing new to report. Her oldest granddaughter will enter West Virginia University this fall.

A surprise call from Henrietta Leopold tells me she is still at work at Psychiatric Hospital. She hopes to see some of you in June 1969.

I am sorry to report the deaths of two classmates—Virginia Hoeff and Gertrude Bair Wood. Our sincere sympathy goes to their families.

Nothing new from your secretary. Life just goes on as usual. Thanks for your letters, and I am sorry that I can not include all the news you send. Just remember our 50th Reunion in 1969. Hope many of you can come.

NEW ADDRESS

Ella F. Martin, 209 Hillwood Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15209

The sympathy of the Class goes out to Lucile Long Haseltine whose mother died in October, and to Marjorie Caughey Musgrave in the loss of her twin sister, Catherine Johnson, '20.

Florence Fast McIntyre spent Christmas in Texas with her daughter Marcia, and later went to California. Her daughter Lois will be in Plattsburg, N. Y. where her husband, Major Snider, is stationed after a year in Vietnam. Ella Martin gave up her apartment and is living with her niece for the present.

I had the pleasant surprise of a call from Hazel Curry Koehler and her attractive daughter who now lives in this area. Hazel looks well and has many interests. I also met Gladys Sullivan Peters at a Ladies Day lunch of the City Farmers Club. Her son-in-law, Dr. Ossman, is leaving Chatham to take the Chair of Political Science at the new Eisenhower College at Seneca Falls, N. Y.

Edith Honsaker Schumacher was enjoying the winter at Oceanside, California quite literally since their apartment had a marvelous view of the ocean. She had been back to Uniontown and down through Virginia last summer.

"Watching eight grandchildren grow is my most important preoccupation these days," writes Marcella Collier DesJardines. "We are remodeling our cottage on Crystal Lake to make room for them all. My husband still practices law at a terrific rate and we plan to spend March in Tucson. Kindest regards to all."

Marjorie Caughey Musgrave also finds great enjoyment in her two grandchildren, the older now in school.

Cards returned by Louise, Mary, Liz, Peg and telephone calls with Stella, Edith, Lucile, Marcella and Ada Lou all repeat the same message—no special news but busy, or, as Mabel Shaffer put it, "every day full to overflowing as a retired life should be."

Marjorie Patterson Kaiser (Mrs. Carl, Jr.),
21 Cherry Road, Kingston, R. I. 02881

The class extends its sympathy to Harriet Barker Thompson on the death, in September, of her brother John, a Presbyterian minister in Canton, Ohio.

Betty Mason Richards is very busy as usual. All her grandchildren are now in school.

Marie Ohle Craig is still keeping up her political, charitable and church activities in spite of not feeling well.

Marjorie Patterson Kaiser is spending a year on the Island of Malta where her husband is visiting lecturer in economics at the Royal University. They had an adventurous trip through Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Yugoslavia on their way and find the island tremendously interesting.

Marion Rainey Johnston has finished making her home into apartments and finds it most convenient.

We also received greetings and good wishes from Jean Bumgarner, Dorothy McCormick Means and Marion Moffett Barnes but no special news.

Please keep the 8th of June for our reunion. You will hear the details later.

DEATH

Our class has been saddened by the death of Helen Gokey Denigan on September 22, 1967. She was always a gay, vivacious person and will be missed by her many friends. We extend our deepest sympathy of her family.

Helen Ahlers Patton wrote to me of Gokey's illness. She and John often see Ted Denigan who lives nearby in Mt. Lebanon.

A note from Amelia Aiello Cangì says she and Bill are enjoying retirement with mixed feelings. Last summer they visited their son Joe in Dayton, and friends in Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Louise Bumgarner, Margaret Herron and Bee Stevenson McQuiston sent greetings but no special news. At the College Club

Bee sees Sally Hunter Drake and Bertha Pitts Olander. The College Club is celebrating its 60th Anniversary this year, and as past presidents Bee and Louise Graham Brown are being honored. Louise still travels a lot as second vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and recently stopped in New York from Providence, R. I. to visit her daughter Barbara and grandson Christian.

Sarah Chisholm Springer and Bill are busy with all the usual activities, hospital and D.A.R. work, bridge playing, etc. Last summer they enjoyed an extended trip through the southwest. They were happy this year to welcome a granddaughter, Amanda Brooke Menge, who lives nearby in Pittsburgh.

Katherine Dashiell Roberts and Cyril enjoy the Florida sunshine, their pool and patio. Last June their son was transferred from Seattle to Cape Kennedy, so they now can see the four grandchildren. Cyril spends much time in a wheel chair, but they are limited in activity only by Katherine's hiking ability.

A most welcome letter came from Marian Frank Patterson. She and Gordon have moved back to Cleveland and are enjoying retirement by traveling and involvement in community affairs—the Church Guild and volunteer library work. She says, "Right now we are getting our cameras and walking shoes ready to start on a trip to Morocco and Portugal. We expect to join Jim and Dorothy Burleigh Courtney in the Balearic Islands and spend some time with them before we fly home in time for Easter." Last summer, while visiting Montreal during Expo '67, they had a thrilling unexpected reunion with Bee and Bryce McQuiston and Ray and Dave Bair in a hotel lobby there. Marian sends best wishes to THE class.

After a period of inactivity caused by a cataract operation last year, Frances Rolfe was off again on a nine-week luxury tour of Europe aboard a chartered Pullman Land Cruiser. The highlight was going through Grimael Pass with snow piled twenty-four feet high on each side of the road.

The extent of my travels has been to Chicago last fall to welcome twin grandsons born to Jinnie and Bill Kearney. They are named William Brown and David Nabors Kearney. Sally Springer and I see each other often as we play in two bridge clubs and are involved in our active D.A.R. chapter.

I regret the scarcity of news. You who don't write should know we are all interested in every one in the class. As the years pass, our old friends become more precious.

DEATH

Viola Eichleay Petty (Mrs. H. William), on April 16, 1967. A gift to the Chatham Library has been made by the class in Vi's memory.

Lucretia Bond Wagner spent last spring in Vietnam assisting Glen in his work with the Pocket Testament League. They made frequent trips to the battle zones, arriving by jeep, truck, helicopter or dug-out canoe—always to the pleased amazement of the troops. During their tour of duty, they were the guests of a Chinese gentleman from Saigon who made his home and servants available to them. At this time they were permitted an interview with President Ky at the Palace. The Wagners are now in Naples, Florida, where Glen is recuperating from an illness. Both boys are married as well as their "adopted" son, Jerry May, son of a German missionary.

Rachel Carson's biography will be ready for publication in the fall. The writer earnestly requests anyone having photographs, letters or anecdotes to make them available to him. He is especially curious to know where she obtained the goat used as mascot at our hockey game. Write: Mr. Philip Sterling, Kirby Lane North, Rye, New York 10380.

Ellen Connor Kilgore has had a lovely year. In April, she and her husband spent two weeks in Japan visiting their daughter Susan and new granddaughter. In June, they visited Italy, and later in the summer had trips to Michigan and Arizona. There are some rewards to having one's family grown and settled! This winter Ellen has enjoyed the Chatham morning lecture series on Africa.

Elsie Duncan Harrison and Chuck divided their Christmas holidays between their son's family in Milwaukee, where Scott is a member of the hospital staff, and their daughter's family in Wayne. They vacationed in Florida this spring.

Lucille Evans Lynch continues her work with Goodyear Rubber Company in Akron, Ohio. Her husband is on the staff of the Westminster Church in that city. She looks forward to retirement in 1969 and also to attending our reunion.

Bessie Friedman Wasser sends greetings. She and Sam visited their daughter and her family in Forest Hills, New Jersey in February.

Enid Fruth McFarland and her husband enjoyed a wonderful vacation at the Mauna Kea Beach Hotel, Hawaii, last July. This year they expect to visit Australia. Their son, Henry, is a resident in neurology at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

Our deepest sympathy to Ethel Getty Ditty whose daughter passed away suddenly at Frederick Memorial Hospital. Dr. Donald Ditty was associate professor of home economics and chairman of the department of home economics at Hood College. At the request of the faculty and students, a Donald Ditty memorial fund has been established to provide scholarships to deserving and needy students. Dr. Ditty was listed in Who's Who in American Education and was a prominent member of home economics organizations.

Lillian Green Surbled continues her teaching of Latin and French at Keystone Oaks Senior High School. Shovelling snow and cutting grass on their suburban acreage seems to constitute a large part of their extra-curricular activity.

Marion Hall Verner is keeping busy since her retirement, ice-skating, learning to play golf and, at present, serving as vice-president of the South Suburban Women's Club. She reports a new granddaughter, Suzanne.

Mary Louise Jones reports good health and no complaints. She continues her mimeograph work.

Junieta Kalbitzer Pollock spent most of last summer touring the Pacific Northwest with her husband and daughter. Daughter Julia, a sophomore at Chatham, plans to spend the summer in Vienna studying German under the auspices of Classroom Abroad.

Although Mary Kolb continues her work with the Frick Commission she is going "country." Mary is now the owner of three horses and, as a reward for her interest in gardening, took three prizes at the Westmoreland County Fair last fall—a first for potatoes and seconds for broccoli and onions. On January 7th she participated in a panel program on TV Channel 4—"A Tribute to George Washington Carver." Hope many of you were fortunate enough to see her.

Janet Kutscher Bair's husband entered semi-retirement on January 1 of this year and is now busy as minister of visitation in the First Presbyterian Church, Jacksonville, Illinois. She reports that the change from a large parsonage to a small apartment requires quite an adjustment! Her son Jim continues with North American Aviation in Anaheim, California. Son Bill and family are in Ithaca, New York, where he is doing graduate study at Cornell University in agricultural economics and sociology, with a view to continuing his work with the "Food for Peace" program.

Betty MacColl has been assisting Mr. Sterling with material for his biography of Rachel Carson. She, too, would like to know where Rachel got the goat. Kay McClaren Sutherland's daughter Nancy, is spending a winter vacation with Betty, with the thought of moving to Florida permanently when her father retires next year.

Josephine Mang Muir hopes for a trip to Australia and the South Pacific Islands if President Johnson does not object; otherwise, she will vacation in the Canadian Rockies and Bermuda.

Ann Miller Nolen finds plenty of time for relaxation since moving into a condominium apartment. She continues substitute teaching at Margate Junior High School.

Katherine Reebel was invited to the White House in October of last year to witness the signing of the rehabilitation amendments—H.R. 12257. She received the pen used in the ceremony as a memento. Kay has been elected a ruling elder in the First Presbyterian Church in Ann Arbor, and has been appointed to the Veteran's Administration central office for a five-year term as advisor to the Social Work Committee.

Frances Reeder Battaglia reports that all three of her children have married in the past year and a half. Mark received his master's degree in landscape architecture from Michigan University and is living with his wife in Boston. A daughter, Deborah Frances, born last October, makes Frances a member of the Grandmothers Club. Mark and several associates have won first prize in a national landscape competition sponsored by the city of St. Louis for a downtown mall. Cathy lives in California with her husband, head of the western division of Universal Publications. She is doing photographic modeling and has recently taped a TV commercial. Charles was married while interning at Los Angeles County Hospital. He is now in the U. S. Naval Reserve, stationed at Camp Pendleton, California.

Mary Lou Succop Bell sends greetings. Her new home is quite a change after thirty-two years at the same address.

Evelyn Thompson Wible writes "no news". She enjoys the frequent visits of her four grandsons. The Wibbles had a pleasant trip to the West Coast last October.

Dorothy Warner's trip to New Orleans last fall proved to be a ball! She continues her work with the Bell Telephone Company.

Kay Watkins Strouss has happily acquired a daughter with the marriage of her son, Henry, last July. Also, she now has good reason to commute to New York City.

Ruth Hunter Swisshelm, keeper of our 40th Reunion Gift Fund in the alumnae office, reports as follows: 18 paid-up pledges of $25 or more, 5 partially paid pledges, (leaving 30 graduates and 14 associate members still to be heard from), and a total of $705, plus interest, in the Fund to date. With only a year to go until our 40th and the College's 100th, we hope that we will be hearing soon from those who have not yet participated. Make checks payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account and mail to Ruth in the alumnae office. AND, it is not too soon to be making plans to attend the reunion in June 1969. We hope that everyone will make a very special effort to come for this one—we aren't getting any younger, you know!!

Your secretary and her family returned from their African safari with varying reactions. She, her daughter and son loved the outdoor life and contacts with tribes completely untouched by civilization. Fred, Jr. brought home 17 trophies. Fred, Sr. declares he will never come closer to Africa again than from a jet 30,000 feet in the air. A trail ride from Jasper into British Columbia is in the making for next July, and, we are leaving for Grand Bahama and Florida as soon as I put this in the mail.

Editor's addenda: Ellen Kilgore brought a copy of the Peoples Natural Gas Company VOICE to the alumnae office to show me a two-page spread about "Musser's Christmas Kingdom." Knowing that Dorothy would not report on this herself, I am taking advantage of my editorial prerogative to mention it here. How else would we know that Musser Forests, Inc., covers 10,000 Indiana County acres, embraces 100 farms, and produces 50,000,000 trees a year? Or that Musser Christmas trees decorate homes in all of the 50 states? Or that son Fred, Jr., and daughter Nancy are active participants in the business with father, Fred, Sr.? Or that daughter Nancy looks so much like mother Dorothy that I had to look twice to be sure which one was in the picture?

It has been most gratifying to receive your letters. We hope that those who did not reply kept silence only because there was nothing new to share. Many letters revealed a genuine fondness for relaxed living in retirement or semi-retirement, and almost all expressed joy and happiness in life itself, and particularly in the grandchildren. We have no current address for three of our classmates: Naomi Bowser Rimer, Ann Bozic, and Julia Connell Callahan. If anyone has a clue, please notify the alumnae office.

For myself, the years are good. Best of all has been the eliminating of vigorous activities which left little time for leisure and the things I've always hoped to do. Last fall I took a short driving vacation to New England, stopping for a day in Sturbridge Village and turning homeward after visiting Acadia National Park.

Margaretta Barr's heartwarming letter explained her long silence. For ten years she was Director of the Public Library in Princeton, New Jersey, and lived near Eleanor Dearborn. In 1965 she retired because of ill health and moved to Toledo to be near her sister. After surgery and the use of trial drugs, her health is improved, and she hopes soon to do part-time work. She follows our class news with great enjoyment (and particularly her sister's class: 1929), and is much impressed with the expansion of the College.

Eleanor Bartherger Dearborn's involvement in school board and community services leaves little time for real estate work. Last fall E. B. and Dick took a trailer trip through the west, spending some time along the Idaho Yankee Fork of the Salmon River in the heart of the old gold mining country. Dick, Jr., is a freshman at Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pennsylvania.

Edith Beale Asper and Linn left Juneau on December 23 to attend the wedding of their elder son, Linn, in Imley City, Michigan. The young Aspers met when Linn, Jr., was working on the ferry and his future bride was coming to Juneau to be with her sister. After the ceremony Edie and Linn, Sr., went to Las Vegas, stopped in Oregon to look in on Jim (a junior at the University of Oregon), and in Seattle where the newlyweds are continuing their studies (Linn has one more year in law school).

Martha Bradshaw Stout and Walter are looking forward to two commencements in 1968. Younger son Don will be graduated from Pennsylvania State University. Elder son Bill completed his Ph.D. in mathematics at Purdue last August, and his wife completed her master's degree. However, the formal ceremony will take place in June 1968. Bill is teaching statistics at the University of Illinois.

Elizabeth Brandon sold her home in Beaver Falls to Geneva College for a girl's dormitory, and has moved into an apartment. She left on December 15 for her sixth annual trip to Florida. With secretarial work taking up part of her time, Betty spends the rest of the days enjoying leisurely southern living, and being out-of-doors.

Geraldine Brinley Leech is thrilled at being grandmother to daughter Linda's first child. They are looking forward to the time when Ralph can retire.

Sally Cecil Faisst and her husband spent the Christmas holidays abroad — with friends in Switzerland and a week in Madrid. Sally mentioned the use of 4th of July sparklers and lighted candles as Christmas tree decorations in some European countries, but reported that they did not seem to have fires.

Dorothea Crawford Macy comes to Pittsburgh often to visit her family. She and Ted planned to return to Arizona this winter. Two years ago they visited Betty Daugherty Dennis in Santa Fe, New Mexico. Both of Dode's daughters are married, and there are three grandchildren.

Ramona Crawford Shirey writes enthusiastically of life with nine grandchildren. The Shirey's youngest daughter, Pamela, was married last year and is continuing her work with the Children's Aid Society, supervising 35 children in foster homes. Ramona has been occupied with Montgomery Homemakers groups, connected with the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State. Paul is thinking of retiring in a year or so, and they think they will have enough to do taking care of their home and their apartments.

LaVerda Dent Moran says that when Tom retired in 1966 they moved into an apartment, but eight months later he was working full time again as a consulting engineer, and LaVerda accepted a two-day-a-week teaching assignment. They both retired "for good" at the end of January and left for Florida in February. If they decide to settle there permanently, LaVerda promises to come back for that 40th reunion.

Helen Dombhoff Neely's eldest daughter, Shirley Brown, '62, gave the Neelys their second grandchild last April. John, Jr., was graduated from Princeton in June, was married the next day, and is now stationed at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. The youngest, Mary Lou, is a sophomore at Duke University.

Clara Falconer Simmermacher is selecting new furniture for their home in Hobe Sound, Florida, and comments that each time they have to go north they wonder why they do it. They still have their Cleveland house, but hope to sell it this summer. Christmas was spent in Houston, Texas, where their youngest daughter and family live. The rest of the family is scattered: daughter Gay and family have been transferred to Chicago, and Joan is looking forward to a year in France where her husband will do graduate study at the Sorbonne.

Gertrude Ferrero Prather hopes to be in Pittsburgh some time for longer than a weekend so that some of us may get together for a chat.

Lida Fischler Lampe is alone, now that her younger son was married last June, but she manages to keep busy.

Margaret Forrester Runnette's children are all married now. Daughter Ann was married to Thomas Laurence Piper, III, in April, 1967, in New York, and is a secretary at Kidder Peabody. Their second son, Bill, is an assistant secretary at the Manufacturers Hanover Bank in New York, and lives in Darien, Connecticut. Charles, III, is a lawyer for Pan American, and lives in Forest Hills, New York. Peg hopes to do still more traveling in between visiting the children—to Florida in the winter and Canada in the summer.

Ruth Haddock's mother is with her now, having been in California for about ten years. Ruth says she does not even get to alumnae meetings in Chicago, but is always happy to meet passersby who visit the campus at DeKalb. She came to Pittsburgh last August and was much impressed by the new buildings, particularly Chatham Center.

Kay James McCann was forced to spend two months recuperating from a fall early in 1967, but since then has been involved in all of her favorite activities—Audubon Society, A.A.U.W., Palo Alto Art Club, and League of Women Voters. Kay has some of her paintings on display at her church and the local library.

Margaret Jefferson, Headmistress of Saint Anne's School, was preparing for a school evaluation in April. Last summer the school housed a three-week graduate summer session for independent educators. Margaret spent last year's vacation in Maine, visiting Noushka Turner in Connecticut on the way home.

Florence Jones Maddox and husband William are enjoying his five-week vacations. Last summer they took trips to Northern Michigan, the Kentucky hills, and Chicago. Later on they drove to Florida, stopping in Atlanta to visit relatives and friends, and to attend William's 40th reunion at Georgia Tech. Their younger son, Dave, is a Lt. JG at Long Beach Shipyard, where he is in charge of repairing the destroyer MADDIX. When he leaves the service in August, he plans to enter graduate school.

Lucile Laughlin Logan had a memorable trip to Bogotá, Columbia, early in 1968. She was thrilled with the people, the scenery, the mountains, the acres of wildflowers, and the new taste of tropical fruits. While in Bogotá, Lucile visited missionary friends whose older daughter is living with the Logans while attending Westminster College. The second daughter will join Lucile and Earl next year. The Logans are delighted to have acquired "at this stage of our lives a ready-made family of a lovely teen-ager and another on the way!"

Beatrice Lewis comments that this year news is scarce, but reports that she and Addie Lasner Sachs had a gay time on October 21 when they shared a 40th reunion of their Schenley High School class at Chatham Center.

Elsie McCreery Longwell and her husband are very proud to announce the birth of their first grandchild in May, 1967, the son of their daughter Joan.

Helen Miller was ill most of 1967. Surgery and traction, following an auto accident, kept her in and out of the hospital. She is now working on a part-time basis and hopes that this can soon be extended to full time.

Linda Munroe Sutherland feels fortunate to have all three sons located in Pittsburgh. Two are married and the third has just graduated from college. The grandchildren make Linda very happy, and she keeps busy with many interests.

Vartanouch Paronoukian Turner and husband Dick attended Carnegie-Mellon homecoming, and while in Pittsburgh they drove around our campus. Last June, daughter Anne Arnold, '60, became the mother of a son—the first boy in Noushka's family for 70 years. Noushka is busy with her husband's business, Turner Realty, piano lessons, church and community activities.

Isabelle Patterson Konold, still in social work with D.P.W., had a busy fall with a trip to Expo '67, several weeks in Florida, and several weekend trips, plus a visit from California relatives. She enjoyed a surprise call from Gerry and Ralph Leech, and would welcome visits from classmates traveling on Routes 11 and 30 through Chambersburg.

Margaret Ray McDowell's husband has resigned his post as Dean of Social Work at Boston University, and is now in the Social Welfare Section of the National Council of Churches in New York. They will move to New York when their third daughter, Evelyn, completes high school in June. After Evelyn enters nursing school Margaret hopes to accompany John on some of his trips—perhaps to a conference in Helsinki, Finland, next summer. Last summer they enjoyed a trip to California via Canadian railroads.

Anne Ritenour Harbison and Frank went to Naples, Florida, for the month of February to escape the cold in New Orleans. Anne thinks that keeping well is a real challenge these days, and is grateful for her luck and happiness.

Kay Rockwell Potter's youngest son, Larry, was married last May, providing a good reason for a large family reunion. The Potters have 13 grandchildren. Following eye surgery on June 13, Kay is now looking at the world through blue-tinted contacts. Kay and Bill traveled down through the Keys and to the Islands on Bianka III. Their boat is completely fitted for deep-sea fishing and cruising, even to air-conditioning. Kay adds that her trips to Pittsburgh are too brief, so she encourages friends to call them when in Florida.

Viola Smith is now head of the English department at Wilkesburg High School, and is planning a trip to Jamaica in June. When her sister Margaret came to live with her several months ago, they moved to a new location.

Doris Thomas' note says that she is Professor, Dean of Foreign Students, Dean of International Studies, and Director of Adult Studies Program at C. W. Post College, Long Island University. In this program, 250 men and women 25 years of age and older, earn baccalaureate degrees.

Olive Wycoff MacCarthy and Parker went to Florida and Nassau late last winter; in August to Nova Scotia, around the Gaspé Peninsula and to Expo '67; and then shipped daughter Marti off for extensive traveling in Europe. They planned to go to Hawaii this spring.

Lois Spruill Hinckley is running for public office, a seat on the Town Commission of Longboat Key, the island community where she and Bob live. Although there are fewer than a thousand voters, there are some issues in hot dispute and local political life is vigorous, with two candidates for every vacant place. Lois will know the outcome on March 21. In the meantime, Lois is President of the Sarasota Branch of the AAUW and feels extremely lucky to have a very capable and friendly group. Their daughter Nancy is due home this spring from a serve with the Peace Corps in Thailand. She will return via Australia, Israel, Greece, Italy, Spain and as many other places as funds will allow. She may not settle permanently in Florida—no skiing there! Lois concluded with a poignant comment on the times that our class has lived through. "What convulsive years . . . and it doesn't look as though things are going to be any calmer for the class of 1968. Their prospect seems to be one of accelerating, interlocking complications. I wish them courage and wisdom, and hope that in the 21st century they will be looking forward as we do to the class news in The Recorder."

We want to thank all of you who answered our cards. Jean Blair Hodgkin, Genevieve Davis Crawford and Mary Johnson Kruedener had no particular news but sent greetings to all. Our class of 1933 is looking forward to its 35th reunion in June. We hope everyone will make a concentrated effort to be there.

Sara Allison Allman's daughter Sally is a freshman at Baldwin-Wallace College, and the Allmans are getting used to the "quiet" around the house.

The nicest event this past year in Dorothy Ballantyne Milliken's life was the birth of "Chuck" to Ann and Jim, and "Beth" to Ted and Mary, all on the same day in May. Now Anne and Jim have three boys, and Ted and Mary a boy and a girl. Youngest daughter, Ginny, is still teaching in Moundsville, West Virginia. Ed has a new plant in Harmarville which is taking all of his time. The usual activities of church, Garden Club, bowling and College Club help to keep Dot out of mischief.

This past year Helen Chambers Swartz has taken an active part in an organization named "One Parent Family Organization." No, she doesn't have any children, but anyone separated from his mate, either by death or divorce, is eligible if he is of good moral character. The group gets together every Saturday night either in a recreation room or at the home of one of its members, for dancing, refreshments, etc. In other words, it is a good time club and brings together people similarly situated in life. Besides, Helen is taking dancing lessons. She is still working in the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation in the Department of the Interior, almost five years from retirement. Then there is choir rehearsal and an occasional meeting during the week. So you see our Helen is quite busy.

This year Clare Condron Bair is teaching special education in the local high school in Centerville, Ohio, and for that reason she cannot plan too far in advance for our reunion.

Marguerite Cunliffe Gape reports the summer of 1967 was marked by fires in her life. First Trinity Cathedral had a fire the Sunday before her daughter's wedding. They did have the ceremony in the Cathedral Chapel and the reception in the dining room, in spite of smoke odor. Then the shoe store, where she worked all summer, had smoke and water damage from a fire in a drug store in the same building. It's an experience that she doesn't want again. For her vacation, she and her mother drove to Cheyenne, Wyoming, and enjoyed the entire 4000 miles. This summer, she returns to school for more credits.

The reunion date may come at a busy time for Jessie Doudna Phillips. Daughter Anne is graduating from Vassar and son David from high school, both in reunion week. Anne may teach after graduation and David is registered at W. & J. College. Their third child, John, is in seventh grade.

Dorothy Edsall Fuller says the biggest event of the year for the Fullers was mainly professional—a move into a magnificent new four-million-dollar science center. Ed's department moved in August, but Dor's library didn't make it until January. The move itself was a nightmare of confusion but now they are reasonably well settled. Dot is "purring" with joy over her handsome, spacious quarters. She was in Pittsburgh for a day last April for her father's funeral. She doubts that she will make the reunion as they leave in August for a nine-month trip around the world (in spite of travel tax) so the budget (time and money) may not permit any preliminary jaunts.

Virginia Hall McAlleese is now living in Potter County. Johnny and two other Pittsburgh physicians accepted positions to organize a new hospital in Coudersport, Pennsylvania. It has been quite a challenge to staff the hospital with qualified specialists as well as to be responsible for the purchase of equipment, etc. They built a home in the mountains and Ginny says it is beautiful country up there. She misses her friends and makes the 160-mile trip to Pittsburgh frequently. Ginger will graduate from Rollins College in June, and Anne is a sophomore at Queens College, Charlotte, North Carolina.

Marjorie Hopkins would like to be in Pittsburgh in June but is afraid school will keep her fettered. She is planning a study trip to Germany and France for a month this summer. She has two more picture books to be published late in 1968 and early 1969. Grandparents are welcome to take note!

Charlotte Iams has a nephew, Jay D. Iams III, of Madison, Wisconsin, who will graduate from the University of Wisconsin. Charlotte plans to fly out for the occasion.

Teaching, going to school, visiting her grandchildren and traveling a bit keeps Phyllis Lebew MacArthur occupied. She is planning to come to the reunion and is looking forward to seeing everyone.

Gene Llewellyn Price cannot make the reunion because she is flying to Omaha to visit her son Roger, Claudia and grandson, Todd, who will be three years old in August.

Ruth Ludebuehl Early spent part of her vacation last summer on an escorted tour of Expo '67, and part was spent with Jay, Barbara and Bobby. She also visited Joe's grave in Missouri and spent some time in the Smokies. She is hoping to go to Yellowstone Park in August. She still enjoys her library work at Marion County Public Library.

Edith McBane has moved to an apartment on Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh. She says this bare fact in no way indicates what an upheaval it was to move from a house which had been her home for almost forty-eight years. In 1967, Edith wound up twenty-five years as a member of various church boards at the national level. She could not be re-elected to the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations of the United Presbyterian Church because she had served the maximum of twelve years. Edith commented that her reply card seemed "full of years" and wondered why!

E. J. McClimans Muncaster and her husband took a cruise last fall to Santa Domingo, Aruba and South America on a freighter-passenger ship. Son Hugh is a sergeant in the U. S. Army and has been in Korea for almost a year. David is a sophomore at Indiana State University, Terre Haute, Indiana. Step-daughter Amy and her husband had their first child, John, in August, 1967.

Helen McCracken Bennett is no longer working as a case worker for Ward Home for Children. She is now doing volunteer work two days a week at Woodville State Hospital where her father was once superintendent. Last summer she spent her vacation in Mexico with Sally Miller Brash. Sue is in eleventh grade, and Wes is Captain of a crew at a Tactical Missile Complex, Kadena Air Force Base, Okinawa.

Louise Metzgar Iams announces the marriage of their youngest son, Charles Daniel, to Eileen McNally of Crafton. The wedding took place the evening of February 9 during the worst ice storm and traffic jam that Pittsburgh has seen in many years. Some friends could not attend at all, but many managed to get to the St. Clair Country Club later in the evening for the reception. Early in March Dan left for a tour of Army duty in Vietnam.

Dorothy B. Newell is recovering nicely from an operation. She tells us of a lovely cruise last spring on the Kungsholm to the Azores, the wine and chateau country of France, and to some seldom visited places in the British Isles. She traveled many highway miles during the summer months in her car named "Homer." She left early in March for a Mediterranean cruise but hopes to be on hand for reunion.

Ruth Nirella has been busily producing plays at Peabody High School—Oklahoma! last spring, and a political play, First Lady, this year. Ruth appeared in a successful TV show entitled The Thirty-ninth Witness. She vacationed in Ocean City, finishing with a motor tour to the Carolinas. Ruth invites all '33-ers to the Salmagundi get-togethers the third Saturday of each month. Ruth is a member of a special committee for the Board of Education to plan activities for the Great High Schools.

Gertrude Ray Mann tells of her family reunion at Christmas. She says this isn't really Recorder news, but we feel that with the passing of the years, no news is more important than that of our families. Gertrude's husband Cary was home after three months on business in South America; Cary, Jr., came from Boston; and Bob came from Iowa City where he holds a graduate assistantship at the University of Iowa. They also had three other graduate students as holiday guests.

Edith Rial Benford is still living in Greensburg, although they have a farm at Buffalo Mills, seven miles from Bradford, Pennsylvania. Their son John is married and is a stock broker, and son Tom is a Plant Quarantine Inspector for the U. S. Department of Agriculture in New York City. Edie says she is now a blonde.

Ruth Ross has retired from teaching and is enjoying housekeeping and some private tutoring.

Helen Rowand Dunkle, Vi Sekey Jessop and Jean Saul send greetings and hope to join us in June. Vi's daughter Jennifer will be graduated from Chatham on May 26.

Sarah Stevenson Foster will miss the reunion because at that time her daughter Nancy will be graduating from Carleton College.

Last October Dorothy Gleason Van Wickle was elected vice president of the Pennsylvania Music Association. She is still a member of the audition committee for the Tuesday Musical Club and also on the board of the Pittsburgh Piano Teacher's Association. Last summer they vacationed on an island 650 miles north in Canada, and in December flew to Jamaica for a holiday.

Estous Lee Davidson's son John was graduated from University of Pittsburgh Law School, is practicing in Houston, Texas, and on October 14 was married to Cathy Beard. Daughter Mary, a 1967 graduate of Dennison University, will be married in May to a University of Michigan law student.

Louise Leadman Faller writes that she and Bob had a delightful summer, going back and forth to their cottage at Lake Chautauqua where they indulge their enthusiasm for sailing. With their youngest off to college, they're enjoying the novelty of doing just as they please!

Even in a temperature of 30 below zero, Winifred Jeffries Saxon wrote us a warm note, saying she is active in club and church activities in Hornell, N. Y. She sends greetings to all our classmates.

Jane McQuiston Webb loves the State of Florida and has taken up golf. She has had "quite an eventful year" because daughter Pat married in Plantation, Florida; son N. Douglas is in the service in Massachusetts; daughter Roberta is a freshman at Rider College, New Jersey; and son Robert is a senior in Pompano High School.

Helen Birmingham Proctor says the brightest moments of this year have been the Alumnae Board meetings which have brought her back to the campus after quite an interval. She wishes we could all meet "our eight wonderful Alumnae Scholars." Our deepest sympathy goes to Helen, who recently lost her father.

Catherine Boyd Hawley has become fascinated with birdwatching and spends much time planning grounds and garden so as to attract a great variety of our feathered friends. Son Chick is at Rollins College, daughter Kitty at Mt. Vernon Junior College. Their oldest daughter is married and has two beautiful daughters of her own, and Cass's youngest, Freddy, is in the local junior high school.

Eleanor Harbison Bream wrote briefly from Geneva, Switzerland, where she and her husband Gray are stationed. Gray is still with the Disarmament Conference and on this subject she says, "I'm sure the newspapers in the States keep one abreast of how the non-proliferation treaty is progressing (or not progressing?)." State Dept. people are trained not to say much.

Jean Engel Reppun wrote a good letter from Hawaii, reporting on herself, her doctor husband, and their wonderful big flock of children. With several now in college or about to enter, she says the Reppuns are "suffering from maltuition." Among the thousands of eager tourists hopping to Hawaii nowadays, she hopes to greet some who are from Chatham College.

Prudence Goodale Martin, who works as a secretary for a Foundation, had three operations last year, but has recovered well and sends warm good wishes to the Class.

Ruth Moorhead Sward continues in her private law practice and Keith is a clinical psychologist in Beverly Hills, California. Two of their daughters are attending Stanford University—Martha as a freshman and Susan, a junior. Ellen is in tenth grade. Ruth would love to be visited by any classmate who travels to the vicinity of Santa Monica.

Along with her home chores and church secretarial work, Gertrude Russell Lydic is kept busy writing to two sons in college—one at Allegheny College and one at Lafayette College. The latter, Clark, a junior electrical engineering major, has been elected treasurer of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity chapter on campus.

This past year Virginia Schweinsberg Hyde traveled to Puerto Rico, Palm Springs, California and Las Vegas, in addition to journeying to their Florida home many times. The Hyde's have gained two new members for their family circle. A granddaughter, Brenda Sue, was born to Gretchen and her husband on June 20, 1967. Daughter Janet was married to Bob DeHaven on November 25, 1967 and is teaching Spanish at Moon Junior High School.

The class extends its sympathy to Margaret Smith Whitaker whose husband, Reginald Whitaker, died on June 28, 1967. Peg is now living in Wilkesburg and would be happy to renew old friendships. She and Margaret Stockdale Jenkins have been seeing each other and catching up on happenings over the years of separation.

Dolores Steinecke and Helen Wilson Houston replied but said they have nothing new to report.

While attending a district meeting of the Business and Professional Women, Dorothy Taylor met Louise Vallou Spinelli, '30. Other Chathamites in the Monroeville chapter are Helen Smith, '41 and Evlyn Fulton, '44.

Dorothy Wood Clarke reports their first grandchild, David Edward Clarke, born to Richard and Mary Ann in March 1967. They live in Troy, New York. Dot and Ted combined business and pleasure last year on a vacation through the south, including Gatlinburg, Tennessee and Atlanta.

Dorothy Woodward Evans flew to California to greet her first grandchild, Richard Lee Parker, born December 13, 1967. Janice and her husband, Dr. William Parker of Costa Mesa. Dot and George's son David received a B.S. in electrical engineering from Purdue University and is now employed in Phoenix, Arizona.

Our thanks to those who responded, both with news and checks for our class reunion gift. We hope to hear from many more next year.

DEATH

We deeply regret the passing of Thay Thompson Russ (Mrs. Edmund V., Sr.) on November 17, 1967. To her family and loved ones we extend our very sincere sympathy.

We extend our sympathy to Connie Bell Sedgwick and Jean Phillips Horn, both of whom lost their mothers this year, and to Micki McBride McMaster whose father died early in January.

With this issue Mary and I take over secretarial duties for the next five years. At our 30th reunion Betty Bevan Winkler, Helen Chabot Swartz, Betty Grace Hammer Maxwell, Louise Johnson Purnell, Betty Lewis Williams, Micki McBride McMaster, Isabel Silvis Sterling, Lillian Taylor Franz, Mary Travers Scott, Mary Lee Trimble Brittain, Martha Torrence, Alice Viehman Shiffman, and Olive Wilson enjoyed catching upon all the news of the past five years. Betty Winkler and Louise Purnell thank you for the checks you sent for the gift to the college and all the news you sent in these past five years.

Constance Bell Sedgwick's son Dwight received his degree in industrial engineering at Georgia Tech and is now working on his master's degree. Connie has retired, and she and Frank have redecorated her mother's condominium apartment at Deerfield Beach, making a "home away from home."

Betty Bevan Winkler's son Henry was married January 1, 1968, and since last September has been a psychology professor at Ohio State University (Belmont County Branch).

Since October Martha Branch Culbertson has been commuting forty miles almost daily to see Neil who is slowly recovering in a Jamestown, New York hospital from an automobile accident. Hopefully, he will be home in another month. With Martha's parents in and out of the hospital this last year and Neil where he is, their two teenagers, Alan and Anne, have been a marvelous help.

Mildred Brown McIntyre and Lowe have purchased a luxury home on wheels in which they, their children, and grandchildren hope to make many wonderful trips. Daughter Claudia and husband will return to the States from Montevideo in July, and son Charles is a frequent visitor to Chatham.

Shirley Campbell Berg's son Peter graduates from Yale in June and Geoff will be half way through. Shirley tutors in math and also serves as a substitute teacher.

Margaret Brewer Dowler's son Dave is majoring in industrial design at Syracuse, and son Landy transferred to Penn State where he is majoring in landscape architecture.

Nancy Diven Seagren's entire family attended son Barry's wedding, December 1, in Switzerland to an English girl he had met when both were students in Switzerland. Barry and bride are now in Willow Grove, Pa. where he is completing his year of student internship at Calvary Presbyterian Church. Before returning home, Nancy and family traveled in Italy and Switzerland.

Sally Donaldson Stall and husband are living in Cambridge, Massachusetts for just this year while Robert spends his sabbatical leave from Oberlin College studying at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Sally, to keep in touch with her teaching, is taking graduate courses at Lesley College.

Her oldest son was married in September and is studying for his master's degree at Ohio University. Her daughter is studying at the University of Wisconsin, and her youngest son is a junior at Western Reserve Academy in Hudson, Ohio.

Helen Ferber Wikert and husband travel as much as possible in their Airstream trailer, visiting Expo '67 and the New England States. Daughter is studying interior design at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh. Helen and family have just celebrated the first birthday of their first grandchild.

Looking after the needs of five youngsters and three dogs keeps Mary Follansbee Buck quite busy, but she still finds time to do community work. Mary and Herman have three ready for college in the fall—the twins and Herman's older son. Herman is a delegate to the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention where he finds the convention work quite stimulating.

Martha Jane Gerwig Rial went with Jack to his mid-winter meeting in New York City. This year they were confronted with the garbage strike, last year they had the "big snow." Her two sons are both sophomores—Fred at Carnegie-Mellon and Frank at Shady Side.

Betty Grace Hammer Maxwell and Mary Jane Addy Braley have nothing spectacular to report, but send their greetings.

1967 was a year that the Lois Haseltine Moses family will never forget. Their second son Jim returned from a year's duty with the 25th Infantry in Vietnam, with orders to spend the next seventeen months in Germany. He and his fiancée were married and are now living in Germany with their new-born son—coming home in July. Second son Warren received his master's degree in social work at the University of Connecticut, and in October he and his wife presented Lois and Campbell their first grandson. Third son Bob has enlisted in the navy and is serving on a supply ship out of Sasebo, Japan. Daughter Ann graduated from high school and is now attending the College of Wooster. Lois and Campbell acquired an apartment in Manhattan where he spends half his time as Medical Director of the American Heart Association. Being free to travel, Lois is enjoying every minute of it.

Mary Heumann Lore's only daughter is married and living in Philadelphia; the oldest son, Ayars, is a second lieutenant with the army engineers in Korea; second son, Nedis, is a junior at Lehigh University; and the youngest son is in eighth grade. Mary keeps busy doing volunteer work, playing golf, and traveling with her husband.

Since Florence Kinley Mercer's daughter Lynn is a freshman at Rollins College in Winter Park, Florida, and son Tom is a sophomore at Carnegie-Mellon, Florence has more time to travel with Lyle and do some redecorating. They plan to spend several weeks in Florida at Naples and Key Largo.

Betty Lewis Williams is kept quite busy on her Headstart Program at the Fairwood School in the Pittsburgh area. Last fall Betty, Betty Grace Maxwell, Betty Winkler and Martha Torrence spent a weekend at Bedford Springs.

Betty McCarty Boyd highly recommends Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, where she and Harry have lived for almost a year. They love the people, the climate, the golf, and the ocean.

Micki McBride McMaster's daughter Kitty was married last summer. Since Micki now lives only a few miles from Grace Crutchfield Christenson, she sees her quite often.

A big event for Eleanor Marshall Watters and husband this year—a granddaughter, their first grandchild, and the first girl in both families for thirty-five years!

Eugenie Miller Snell finds her new address, right at 34th Street, quite convenient. Charles is now vice-president of operations for Butler Aviation. As soon as they are really settled, Eugenie will be job-hunting now that Song of the Grasshopper has closed.

Jane Phifer Guyer's third and last child is now at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Jane, with her church secretary work, and Herb, with his many commitments on local, district, and conference level of the Methodist Church, are kept quite busy.

Being semi-retired, Jean Phillips Horn now works only four or five days per month. Daughter Janice graduated from the University of Alabama and is now teaching first grade in Muscle Shoals. Jean is doing a lot of traveling with her husband who is sales manager with South Fabricating Company.

Kay Pyle and Lillian Taylor Franz send their greetings. Kay visited Expo '67 and has visited in Tennessee. Lillian is kept busy at Carnegie-Mellon and visiting her mother, who suffered a stroke and is now in a nursing home.

The latest news from Naomi Sayre Steck is that she has been appointed to the Bucks County Economic Opportunity Board.

Isabel Silvis Sterling is now oil painting and has even sold some of her paintings. Daughter Judy is a junior at Wellesley, and Pete is a sophomore in high school.

Elsa Steifelmeyer Talbot doesn't recommend a December wedding. Daughter Sue was married December 2nd.

One of your secretaries, Martha Torrence, is quite busy with her position as principal of two elementary schools in Shaler Township, and with her duties as president of Chalfant House Evening Club.

The second of your secretaries, Mary Trimble Brittain, is now on a trip around the world with her husband.

At the time of this writing, Dorothy Whitehead Heinig will have met her first grandchild, William Theodore Heinig II. In June she and Bill will go to Colorado for Doris's graduation from the University of Colorado. They hope things go better than last January when Dorothy spent a week in the Denver hospital with a blood clot in her leg and Bill broke his ankle skiing. Suzanne is a junior at Lake Forest College.

Olive Wilson, for the third year, is continuing as recording secretary for the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century.

Beth reporting:

In a note to the alumnae office, Elva Bogren Goodwin told of being ensconced temporarily in the Mandarin Hotel in Hong Kong while awaiting their furniture to arrive from Japan. Elva visited Chatham when she was in Pittsburgh last fall, and delivered a book on flower arranging which she had carried all the way from Japan to present to the Library. The beautifully bound and illustrated volume was welcomed enthusiastically by both the Library and the art history department.

Peggy Cooper Uptergraff's daughter Sue is back in Scottsdale following a teaching stint in Plainfield, New Jersey. Judy is one girl in three hundred in the chemistry lab at Penn State. She is a sophomore pre-med student. Son Roy III will enter eighth grade as a dorm student at Shadyside, and Kathleen will wait until she is in the ninth grade to leave the nest.

Katharine Cuthbert Hardee and her husband visited friends in the mission field in Ecuador, and she had the opportunity of seeing a portion of South America as it really is, not as tourists see it. Although Kay didn't go to practice medicine, the mission doctor was away during the time she was visiting so she had the opportunity of handling a number of emergencies that came to the mission.

Betty Jane Duckwall Lanbach had no special news, but sent greetings to everyone.

June Feick is now doing case work and home finding for Child Welfare Services. She loves the work and wishes she had switched jobs sooner. If anyone in or near Allegheny County would like a foster child, call June.

May Gregg Stockton's job and home keep her busy. Her two daughters are in the Cameron Choir, and went on a tour to Washington and Philadelphia to sing for the high schools and churches in that area.

Helen Harris Davis has been made administrative assistant to the whole nursing department. Her daughter Marta was accepted for a four-year medical technology program, and this means that the end of the Davis degree gathering is in sight.

Totty Hoyt Faison had an opportunity to see slides of the college and hear about life on the hill these days from a senior and one of the chemistry professors who were in Houston for a special meeting. Boy Scouts, Brownies, Little League, choir, swimming lessons, and church basketball keep Totty on the go, but she does manage to play some bridge, do volunteer hospital work, and be active in D.A.R.

Ivy Huetter McLaughlin spent a busy year redecorating their house from top to bottom. They are now making plans for a trip to Spain and Portugal during Scott's spring vacation from school. Everything is ready, even the Spanish Lessons.

Jeanne Kalish Samuels teaches art to little children, and enjoys putting in her own studio. She says she hasn't done anything for posterity yet. Two of her daughters are at Smith, and one is in Thomas Jefferson Junior High School.

Jean Keenan Farrill's son Jack is a freshman at Cornell. Her daughter's fiance returned safely from Vietnam, so they are looking forward to a wedding in July. Jean is still teaching second grade.

Mary Jane Kerr Leonard joined the "grandmother set" in July when David's wife gave birth to a boy. Dottie Jo was married in August to an Irish Quaker and is living in Dublin. Linda will get her B.A. in June when her husband gets his M.A. from the University of North Carolina. Mary Lou is a freshman at Whittier College. Rowland enjoys his job helping to solve the problems of the changing south. They are both still active in the Society of Friends. They live right off route 95 on the main line north and south and would love to see any of you as you are traveling by.

Genevieve Love Smith is still doing the same work, still thinks Point Park College is great, still lives at Chatham Center, and is still happily married. John spent some time last year in Japan for Pittsburgh Plate Glass Industries, and will be in Italy this year. Genevieve hopes to join him there if their vacations fit.

Letitia Mahaffey Andree and her husband have been busy this winter doing over their second floor. Last summer they took a trip to the West Coast.

We wish to express our sympathy to Alma Mocker Bacon on the death of her mother last fall.

As for the Foxes—I think I am busy and active until I read your cards, and then I wonder just what I have accomplished. We are still living on Churchill Road, but since Jerry's job will be completed in the summer, we are waiting to hear where we will be sent this time. Many thanks to all of you for sending in your cards so promptly.

Alma reporting:

Amy McBride Bell writes that in addition to taking organ lessons she is involved as an officer in the local A.A.U.W., the church, the county Red Cross, and the Lewisburg Civic Club. She has been helping John this year in his position as head of the Central Pennsylvania Section of the Mechanical Engineers. They have had jaunts to Canada, New York, the shore, and home to Pittsburgh.

Hortense Norton Seedlock reports a new address, now that her husband has retired from the Army, but only until this summer because then they plan to move to New York City after last child, Mary Marion, finishes high school. Hortense now has three married children away from home. She says, "If I can load the children with enough junk maybe we can fit into an apartment (no snow or mow) and I shall visit the museums daily."

Betti Rindlaub Lord says that she had a fascinating trip last summer to the Hawaiian Islands, and on the way home she motored through western United States. She still teaches, has private cases, and works in parochial schools on Saturdays.

Mary Jane Totten Dickinson's family just goes along like any other with two teenagers. Diane enters Colorado State University this fall to study animal science. High school sophomore Scott, Jr., is reaping the rewards of soccer-torn knee ligaments, leg in cast, and crutches. "Scott continues his interest in flying (it comes in handy for business trips) and I try to go three ways at once," says Mary Jane.

Mary Bea Weibel McEwen writes about her family: a daughter at Monmouth College, a son starting at Purdue this fall, and another son in eighth grade.

Posie Weller Black is serving on Carnegie High School's committee of the American Field Service exchange student program, and is currently "Mutti" to an AFS student from Germany. She is also on the board of the Carnegie Civic Symphony and executrix of two estates. Harry III will graduate from Allegheny College in June, Marjorie is a freshman at Sweet Briar College, and Rosemary trudges along in second grade.

Doris Chatto Kimball has spent this year helping Bob to recover from a heart attack, but reports that he's as good as new. They became grandparents January 6 with the arrival of RSK IV. Molly (13) has taken over the cooking and sewing. Ricky (11) is the yard and snow man. Amy (8) is the diplomat."

After being with the United Nations in Turkey, my husband decided to go to Vietnam as a social worker for AID, the Agency for International Development. The rest of us had to stay behind, and I am now a full-time teacher. Bill was home for three weeks at Christmas, and I expect him again in June. Next year I expect to see all of you at our thirtieth!

Ruth reporting:

Our sympathy goes to Eleanor Asp Stahl, whose mother died in September. We also hope her father has recovered from his illness. John was transferred from the Rome, N. Y. plant to ALCOA's Lebanon, Pa. plant in November. Son John has been accepted at Colgate Pre-Medical School, and his sister Carol is about to complete her master's, and teaches school.

Both of Gladys Patton McNeill's sons are in college, Gary at Hiram and Brad at Cornell. Gladys acquired her master's several years ago from Syracuse, and teaches 7th grade. She and Paul are thinking of taking up skiing but so far it is just a consideration!

Again we send our sympathy to Jane Pierce Eaton whose father died in August, after a long illness. Jane and Pat were awaiting the arrival of son John who is stationed in Alaska. He will be discharged in May. Jane says, "Oh happy day!" Patty is in college, and David and his wife presented them with their first grandchild, a girl. We are glad to report Pat is 98% recovered from that terrible accident.

Eleanor Schaffer Kautz presented a paper this fall at the Ohio Welfare Conference. She says it brought her a new experience. A gentleman apologized for not recognizing her as a celebrity when they had met for lunch earlier that day! Eleanor keeps very busy with welfare work and an active third-grader.

Jane Shidemantle Cross says, as usual, plans for summer are indefinite. The girls want to go to the shore, she wants to remodel the house, and Bob has to spend part of the time teaching. I wonder who will win?

We had a lovely letter from Yvonne Simoens da Silva. Our sympathy goes to her due to the death of her mother in July. Daughter Monica Borkay has a Brazilian scholarship to Eastern Washington College in Cheney, Washington. Her son Carlos Henrique Borkay is 16, and, mother reports, tall and handsome. He would like very much to correspond with a girl his age from the U. S. Yvonne is a busy person. She directs 8 pages of a women's section in a Rio paper, writes a daily column in another paper, and has a governmental job.

Alice Steinmark Andrews' big news is the forthcoming marriage of her daughter next summer. The young man is a chemical engineer at Carnegie-Mellon, and the bride-to-be is a music major at the same institution.

After a traumatic summer, Elinor Weibel Stoltz and family are settled nicely in Princeton. They are ready to act as guides to all who have sons interested in the University. They miss Chicago and their lovely house, but think Princeton is great.

I think Julia Wells Jackson has more offsprings in college than any other '41 graduate. The two oldest boys are in pre-medical school. David is a junior at Washington and Lee, and Thomas is a freshman at the University of North Carolina. Then there is one more to go—Roger is a ninth-grader. At the time of writing, she and Richard were heading for Florida and some surgical meetings on the way.

We are most happy to report that Charlotte Wolf Beckman's husband Carl is recovering from his heart attack in January, but is still in the Toledo Hospital. Daughter Mary, who works in the emergency room of the same hospital, was to be married April 6th.

Susan Woolridge Fishburn is fine after her bout with surgery in April, and still helps John in his law office. Mary is at the University of Iowa, and Alice, about to graduate, wants to go there, too. Jack is a junior in high school, and Bill is a ninth-grader.

Your reporter Ruth Strickland Clark still lives in Garrison, worrying over a 150-year-old house. Chester is the proud owner of an advertising and public relations agency in Newburgh, N. Y., and Pam is a social worker in and for the City of New York.

Mary Bertha reporting:

Our sympathy goes to Mildred Johnson Rexroad whose son, James Harvey, passed away last May.

Jeanne-Anna Ayers Widgery, our Author, has completed two-thirds of her new novel! The five Widgerys had five wonderful weeks last summer touring England and Wales where Jeanne-Anna did research, soaked up plenty of atmosphere for the book.

Ann Butler Stewart, back from her first trip west, was much impressed by real Indians, cowboys and Las Vegas in that order. She is now a full-time reference librarian. Last spring Ann went to England to visit David who is studying at the University of London. Second son Dick is at General Motors Institute, and John is a high school junior.

Dottie Geschwindt Schieber and Bob love their new home in Radnor, Pa., their twelfth move in 26 years! Linda is at Ashland College, Dave is an assistant minister, and their eldest, Jan, is married. The stork is not even in sight, but Dottie says, "I can't wait to become a grandma."

Kittanning, Pa. is now home to Jean Hammer Schoman and Carl, and they are rediscovering the joys of town life. Carl is minister of Faith United Presbyterian Church to which he was called just before Christmas.

Pat Kent Alter was en route to Palm Beach for her first viewing of her first great-niece. Pat and George acquired a daughter-in-law in June; they are well pleased with No. 1 son's choice.

Mary Kinter McDowney and Bob spent five weeks last fall touring the British Isles. Daughter Alice is now at Pitt getting her master's in education.

Natalie Lambing Paige and Peter found the old homestead quiet, empty, and sonless last fall when Lee entered Choate and Douglas entered Lehigh. Peter Otis is a lacrosse star at the University of New Hampshire. All the Paiges, including mama, ski at the drop of a snowflake. The boys and pa are champion sailors and have the hardware to prove it.

Happy to be back at the organ again is Anne Lindsay York. She now plays for a number of church services. Son Kenneth is working toward a Ph.D. in physics. Margaret is joining the faculty at Bryn Athyn College, and Janet will graduate from high school.

Mary Linn Marks Colbaugh and Jack spent Christmas with their grandson in Idaho Falls where son-in-law Ted is training nuclear submariners. Jack is now Dean of the Evening Division at Point Park College.

Carol Martin reports no earth-shaking news—just busy with her job plus church and community activities. From far away Carlisle, Pa. she still roots loyally for the Pirates, hopes '68 will be their Big Year.

Weasie McIntyre Casner and Bob are off to Scottsdale, Arizona for a winter vacation and golf. Their Ted is a happy freshman at Monmouth College.

Since September Allison Meyer has been with Goodwill Industries as secretary in the Rehabilitation Department. She plans to do graduate work at Pitt this summer.

Mae Oettinger Schweinsberg and Jack had to bring both their mothers back to Pittsburgh from Florida because of ill-health. Son John is a freshman at Grove City, and daughter Beth and husband now live in Philadelphia.

Dottie Oliver Friday's travel agency, Gulliver's Travels, continues to flourish. In June her eldest son will be graduated from medical school, and her second son from LaSalle. The latter has been accepted for the Peace Corps. No. 3 son is a high school sophomore and Elizabeth a freshman at Wittenberg University.

An obituary notice in the Pittsburgh Press called our attention to the death of Jane O'Neill Cox's mother on February 23rd. We extend our sympathy to Jane and her family.

I, your pen pal for the second year, (just 3 more years to go) had a great New England vacation in September, loved the Cape and Martha's Vineyard. Currently I'm in the throes of estate-settling, since my father died last June, and preparing to move to Michigan.

While Pat was arranging your cards beside her typewriter in preparation for preparing the class news the next morning, she was unaware that a terrible fire was building up inside an attic wall. Within a few hours it had destroyed the Byers' newly remodeled third floor with all of son Paul's belongings, and had sent them all out into zero weather to watch helplessly as water from the fire hoses turned the entire house, inside and out, into a mass of ice. Fortunately, they smelled the smoke before retiring and were able to get the children out. Chi narrowly escaped with his life as he slammed a trap door on the flames, an act which possibly saved the rest of the house.

The questionnaires and Pat's rough notes from your cards were all that could be salvaged from her materials. The rest was frozen to the table and lost. The news that follows is the result of the joint efforts of your other secretary and Ruth Swisshelm in the alumnae office.

Of course our big news this year is our 25th reunion on June 8, and many classmates are planning to attend. Perhaps Amy McKay Core has the best idea. She writes,
"If I were living outside Pittsburgh, the 25th reunion would mean a trip and a pleasant break in the everyday routine. Such an occasion calls for that anyway, so I'm planning for that change of scene (and avoiding several crosstown trips) by staying in the dorm on Friday night. I invite all of the rest of you to join me! Anyone for spaghetti at Sodini's?" Amy's current activities include the chairmanship of the Chatham Alumnae Fund (Have you made YOUR contribution?), YWCA Council,
W & J Auxiliary Board, and The Herb
Society of America.

Margaret Anderson Thompson will miss reunion for a very good reason—June 8 is her oldest daughter's wedding day. Daughter Mimi will graduate from Mary Burnham School, and Susie is in the ninth grade at Country Day School. Margaret is active in the Stamford Junior League and Children's Aid of Connecticut.

Margie Ballard Brine's daughter Bonnie was married last June and is living in Baltimore. Harry, Jr., is an S.A.E. pledge at Penn State. Margie lists bowling, reading, and watching the stock market as her hobbies, the latter a result of belonging to an investment club.

When Florence Croyle Beal replied, she and Russ were ready to leave for a two-week trip to Barbados, Grenada, and perhaps Trinidad. Their son Andrew is a freshman at Carnegie-Mellon University, and daughters Nancy and Beverly are in the 8th and 4th grades. Florence is completing a year as president of her garden club.

Mary Evelyn Ducey Crabtree's life revolves around the theatre. She and her husband Paul operate the Cumberland County Playhouse in Crossville, Tennessee. In addition to acting, designing costumes, and directing, Mary Evelyn is also teaching creative drama in the grade school—957 children, 5 days or 27 hours a week! The Crabtree family—mother, father and seven children, ranging in age from 22 to 6—made theatre history when they all performed in "Tennessee U. S. A.", which Paul wrote (music, lyrics and book), directed and produced. Mary Evelyn says, "If I sound proud, I am!" She will tell more at reunion about her family, their new home which she designed, and all of their many activities.

Nancy Doerr Wilson's two daughters are married, Nancy in June 1966, and Peggy in May 1967. Son Rick is a midshipman at the United States Naval Academy. More about her activities at reunion, also.

Jane Fitzpatrick McGough and Ginny Hendryx Shank are serving as co-chairmen of the class reunion committee, and, of course, hope to see a large number on campus that day. Jane and Walter spent an enjoyable month in Europe last year.

Florence Frey Burnite and her husband are planning a trip to celebrate their "richly blessed marriage which will be 25 years old on June 2nd."

Eleanor Garrett Gittings, in addition to church, club and Girl Scout activities, teaches camping courses, has travel-camped all over the United States, and has participated in archaeological "digs." Daughter
Nora, 21, will be graduated from Grove
City College this year. Matthew is thirteen.
"Pinky" hopes that Nora's graduation and our reunion will not conflict.

Janice Goldbloom, who spent two years in France (one at the University of Paris), and one year traveling around the world, is currently "specialist" writer-developer of projects for Specially Funded Programs for the Los Angeles City School District. She is sorry that it will not be possible for her to come east for reunion.

Barbara Heinz Barone, so busy with those eight children from 3 to 19 years of age, hinted that there might be more time to attend the 50th, but will try for this one.

Claire Horwitz Klein, who says "absolutely" she will be at reunion, is office and/or member in more organizations than we have space to report, but lists as note worthy her two years as president of the Pittsburgh Conference of Jewish Women.
Her two sons, Alan and Evan, are 17 and 12.

Vance Hyde Feinberg, mother of three delightful daughters and free-lance writer, is also employed full time as an advertising copy chief and co-ordinator of special events. (We could use you for our reunion event, Vance. Sorry you will not be able to attend.)

Miles Jannouch Price says that her children, Christine, 18, and Edward, 16, are doing all of the things she wanted to do, such as summering in Montana and skiing in Austria. We are looking forward to seeing Miles on the 8th.

Elinor Keffer Hoon, who keeps busy as receptionist for her husband, an ophthalmologist, plans to keep her reunion attendance record intact—hasn't missed one yet!

Marian Lambie Arnheim's oldest son,
David, 18, is a sophomore at Yale; second son, Daniel, is a sophomore at Shady Side Academy; and 11-year-old Louise is in sixth grade at Linden School. Marian says she is "still writing—still unpublished", and is currently "looking" at modern art. The Arnheims will have two reunions in a row —Falk's 25th Medical School reunion is the weekend before ours.

Connie Lauer Stein enjoyed a pre-reunion visit with former roommate Jean Sweet Bentley in Atlanta last fall, and hopes to continue to "catch up" on news in June.
When she wrote she was leaving to attend a two-week Institute on Public Affairs in Washington as a representative of Nashville, Tennessee. Mark, 18, is a freshman at Harvard, and Joy, 15, a sophomore in high school.

Dorothy Marshall Autore, in addition to her work as class secretary and being mother to five children, aged 11, 10, 9, 5 and 3, is interested in sewing, graphoanalysis, and spending the summers in the oldest country log cabin in Western Pennsylvania.

Jane McComb Angevine, whose husband was recently elected a trustee of Chatham College, expects to be in New York on June 8 to meet her oldest daughter, Bunny, on her return from a year at the University of Paris. Their three other daughters are Sherry, 18, Kathy, 14½, and Barbara, 11.

Janet McCormick McDole has moved into a new apartment, and has had the pleasure of selecting new furniture for it, even to a new piano, "for me, the frosting on the cake," she says. She hopes to come from Seattle to see everyone on the 8th.

Connie Meyer Waldschmidt has "compromised" on reunions—they are going to her husband's 25th at Allegheny. Charles, 19, is a sophomore at Hillsdale College, and Robert, 16, a junior at Fox Chapel
High School.

Dorothy Minneci McCabe, an enthusiastic member of the reunion committee, says,
"Only our cooperation will make the reunion successful." She's so right!

Jeannette Myers Erler was looking forward to a week in New York as a pleasant break in the winter routine.

Marjorie Noonan Ladley's oldest son, Tom, played varsity football at Fox Chapel High School and can now help his busy mother with the driving chores. It's an active family with Barbara still swimming in the YM & WHA team and the two younger children in Boy Scouts and Browns. Marj has been Amy's co-chairman for the Alumnae Fund this year and will be chairman next year.

Gloria Silverstein Goldberg is seriously considering a trip from Palo Alto for reunion. We certainly hope that it becomes reality. Her two children are John, 15½, and Lauren, 13½.

According to all available reports, we have two grandmothers and they seem to be quite happy about it. Jane McCall Downing, a busy real estate saleswoman, has two grandchildren, and Barbara Steele Mangan has one. A second move in four years, after so many years in Pittsburgh, has taken the Steeles to Wayland, a suburb of Boston, where Bill has become the general manager of the Credit Bureau of Greater Boston, and where Barbara is enjoying the pursuit of her interest in primitive antiques. She will not make reunion due to high school graduation for Kathy.

Peggy Suppes Yingling loves her work as minister of two mission supported churches, and wonders why they didn't move into the city years ago. Oldest daughter Ann is married, June is a freshman at Chatham, and Molly is at Ellis. Ed is refueling all atomic naval ships and traveling to different ports.

Since their arrival in Djakarta, Indonesia in July 1966, one or all of Marian Teichmann McKone's family have been to Japan, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Thailand, Singapore, and the islands of Sumatra, Bali, Kalimantan and Sulawesi. Marian is active in the American Women's Association and the Women's International Club of Djakarta, and plays Mah Jongg, a very popular game with the Indonesians.

Martha Jane Truxal Dougherty's five boys and her work with the Allegheny County Medical Society, Columbia Hospital Guild, Crescent Hills Civic Club, and the College Club keep her very busy, but she is going to find time for reunion, too.

Claranne Von Fossen Johnson, whose husband is chairman of the department of chemical engineering at the University of Colorado, lists herself as housewife and retired (?) psychologist. She will be too busy at that time of year to come back for reunion. Her daughter Julie Anne is 14.

Attendance at reunion for Louise Wallace Menges depends upon the date of Bobby's graduation from high school. Merrily, after three years at Muskingum, will graduate from Indiana University in January 1968. She spent the summer of 1966 in Sweden and Russia. Sally entered Indiana University last fall and wants to be an air line hostess. David is six.

Well, in spite of fire, water and ice, there is the news as we see it. Five others responded with the news that they plan to come in June: Jean Archer Rothermel, Peggy Dietz Abele, Jean DeWoody Bailey, Elizabeth Esler Duncan and Nina Maley Ross. We hope that YOU will be joining them.

Ye old scribes are sitting here drinking tea and reading all your news. I, Coxie, and family had a stupendous three-week trip to Europe last summer. We arrived in Istanbul for the earthquakes. I am now back to teaching piano again plus being a leader for a Cadette Troop. My two cheerleaders keep me unbelievably busy with their activities.

Marie Minnemeyer Houston had an unfortunate spill in Garfinkel's resulting in one broken foot and phlebitis. We all hope she is navigating by now.

Patty Smith Joyner and family enjoyed a grand trip to California last summer.

Jane Murray Blair is still active in PTA and has a Cadette Troop. She reports the "teen phase" is aging her.

Betty McCrory McBride is busy as the wife of a college Dean and mother of six. Her oldest, Sue, is a freshman at Wittenberg University.

Marjorie Selleck Ireland is active in pushing for legislation to raise teacher salaries.

Carla Gregson Dubs' daughter Andrea is a junior at Chatham. Greg is in high school and Michael in kindergarten. Carla is busy with Social Welfare, United Fund, and clearing four acres of Connecticut woods. She reported lunching with Marion Swannie Hall in New York.

Tillie Wilcox Moncrief has a daughter at the University of Connecticut. The family spent the summer at Stone Harbor.

Ruth Ford Woodward has daughters 9, 13, and 16, and has an eye on Chatham for her sixteen-year-old.

Dorothy Barrett Braden's daughter Sandra left Westminster College for marriage and is now in Texas. Her younger daughter is a sophomore at Westminster and fourteen-year-old Laird is at home.

June Collins Hopkins' family of boys spans the ages—from a four-year-old preschooler to high school junior, to a Harvard freshman.

Miriam Davis Schellhaas has a daughter at Grove City College and one more at home.

Ours seems to be a class of travelers. Louise Flood Egan had a quick look at Hawaii and Japan (where sister Marge is with the Embassy) last summer. Later she took her children back to Pittsburgh and Lake Erie for a family reunion. I, Patsy, saw Louise and her lovely half-dozen in October while on a vacation trip with Charlie through California. Louise is doing a little free-lance work just to keep her hand in and is playing lots of tennis to keep in shape for car pooling the children. I am busy as a volunteer guide at the Museum and expect to be busier with Chatham Alumnae. It's great having a daughter at Chatham.

Harriet Fleming Muryn reports the usual athletic activities with a couple of boys plus an exciting trip to Expo.

Ruth Jenkins Horsburgh has boys at Bowdoin College and Denison University, and she and Ken were off to Hawaii in March with daughter Laurie.

Carolyn Cosel Lampl reports a busy life with Playhouse Ball, Opera Benefit, Shakespeare Festival, Head Start teacher, and mother of a twelve-year-old Judo yellow belt and a sixteen-year-old debater, jazz musician and science experimentalist. She also managed to fit in trips to Miami, Scottsdale, and Puerto Rico, and one to Pittsburgh to meet with the alumnae reunion committee of which she is chairman.

Marian Uptegraff Sunnergren reports that husband Ed will be working in Mexico for several months. She and the children hope to join him for a family vacation.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Emily Noll Zerbe and Marion Cohen who lost their mothers during the past year. Marion's musical activities were curtailed in meeting the responsibility of family during her mother's crucial illness.

We had no special news but nice notes with hello's to all from Helen Clewer Armstrong, Jannie Beck Jameson, Virginia Harper Dale, Nina McAdams Handloser, Petie McFall Schall and Trudy Schmeichel Hutson.

Patty reporting:

Ann Lee Alexander finds life at University of Pittsburgh Graduate Library School exciting, and is interested in hearing from anyone who might enjoy librarianship.

Betty Anderson spent three wonderful weeks touring Scandinavian countries last summer with a group from Pitt, and renewed acquaintance with Mary Lou Wallace Frazee at Westinghouse's Bettis Atomic Plant.

Jottie Beeson Schrader and Frank have moved into their new home in Jackson, Michigan.

Helen Brown Michaels is busy with church, choir, and children in kindergarten and nursery school.

Alice Burns Kasimirsky enjoyed a trip to the Smoky Mountains with her family last summer.

Mary Chambers Gibbons is attending the undergraduate school of social work at Pitt and was delighted that her credits from Chatham were accepted.

Peggy Dodge Poindexter is kept busy in church and Girl Scouts and also is chairman for the symphony drive for Pleasant Hills. Allan is assistant Boy Scout leader and chairman of the Education Committee at church. They spent last Christmas in Texas.

Dorothy Fennell Stebler happily reports her son Eddie's safe return from Vietnam, and that she is teaching ceramics. Her husband is president of National Consumer's Association for the second year.

Pat Gersmann Joseph says her brief news this year is that her daughter Randy enters college in the fall, and Judy is busy in drama in high school.

Barbara Gill Gregory has a new job in social work and a new home in Cleveland, Ohio.

Ellie Goldfarb Hirsh, lucky gal, has just returned from Jamaica where she stayed at the Racquet Club and played tennis. She enjoys living in New York City and sees Joan Kaufmann Mendelsohn once in a while.

Else Greger Miller, another lucky gal, planned a trip to Hawaii this winter.

Isabel Griffith Borland and family are returning to East Wallingford, Pennsylvania, from California. Daughter Nancy, 15, is schooling in Pittsburgh, and son David, 13, will attend school near Philadelphia.

Vicki Haverstick Myers spent Christmas in Pittsburgh, and gave a program on Pittsburgh for her Book Club series on cities.

Lee Hutton Sage had the honor this year to represent Chatham at the Inauguration of the 15th President of St. Bonaventure University at Olean, New York. Daughter Chris plans to attend Chatham in the fall.

Alice Kells is teaching biology, chemistry, and earth science in a private girl's school, and is taking a course at National Science Foundation Institute at the University of California.

Esther Kennedy Macdonald is recuperating from an operation, and daughter Barbara was married on February 24.

Dayne and I spent several weeks in Europe last summer with our daughters, Tricia, 15, and Becky, 14. This winter we have added another daughter to our family, Sabine Kosenow, 17, a German American Field Service student who has been a real joy in our home. I hope to hear from more of you next year. As you can tell by my section of news, very few girls answered my cards.

Gloria reporting:

Mary Alice Kline Morris is really enthused about teaching 4th grade—her first venture. She writes that oldest daughter Marty, a freshman at West Virginia University, has the leading role of Maria in West Side Story. Of course, Mom and Dad are proud! We were sorry to hear of your father's death on January 12, 1968, Mary Alice. Please accept our sympathy.

Last May Dolly Larson Webb and husband brought a 35-foot Chris Craft all by themselves up the Inland Waterway. Don't feel too bad, Dolly, just 'cause daughter Patty is 20 years old. Son John plans a midwestern college in the fall.

"Happy existence" is how Virginia LeFurgy Tubbs describes the "activities available for middle-aged home-makers with elementary and junior hi children." That's great, Ginny, but we don't like the sound of "middle-aged."

The Scotts found out that gambling doesn't pay during a brief stop at Las Vegas on their way to California recently, according to Vernie Lowar Scott.

Josie McKenrick Tobie and group have finally adjusted to life in Lancaster, Pa. after 1½ years. The girls are very fond of their long-awaited horse which grazes in the neighbor's six-acre pasture, and Josie and Alan have fond memories of their recent visit to the West Indies and Antigua.

The Fridays, she's Marjorie McSwigan, had just returned from two weeks in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Las Vegas.

News from Arcadia, California and Lois Power Moore is that Tom, Jr. recently became engaged and is serving with the Army Engineers in Germany. The Moores enjoyed a round of engagement parties and festivities during Tom's November visit home. Now Lou is busy sending goodies to her favorite soldier overseas.

Doris Snyder Hookway is looking forward to news from everyone and thinks the Chatham expansion program sounds exciting—she hopes our class will do its part.

It was nice of Mary Stewart Dimmick to thank me for "staying on the job." Wish more folks would write in, Mary.

Janet Thomas comments that she would prefer teaching in Florida rather than Bethel Park, particularly on a day when it was five below at Greater Pitt Airport.

Hello from Janice Wilson Bader who says she had a telephone reunion with Elaine Sauerwein Mathison when Bob and she were in Chicago recently. We're sorry you missed the class reunion, too, Janice—try to make the 25th.

Our sympathies to Carol Wise Walp and family on the sudden death of her mother November 16, 1967.

Laura Wiley Robertson again greets us from Rome, after a visit back to the States with the children last July via London and Expo '67, and a Christmas tour of Tunisia.

Now what's the matter with the rest of you—can't you even say hello on that return post card? In any event, I am looking forward to a "swing" through Atlanta, Houston and Los Angeles in the spring for my employer, USS Chemicals, Mainstay Department (we have a fancy little gadget that goes around the country coating sewer pipe). No, I'm not like Ed Norton, but we do have offices in those places.

Jeanne reporting:

Marge Alexander Brinkworth is trying to drop many outside activities so that she can devote more time to her writing. Next year all of her five children will be in school.

Jeanne Balter Alexander was packing for their annual Puerto Rican trip. Her oldest, Tie, is 16 and driving. Lynn, 13, is in 7th grade.

Ruth Brodnax Craig says that they also have reached a milestone since their 16-year-old is now driving. They rented a trailer and toured Florida during Christmas vacation. While traveling they stopped to visit colleges.

Claudia Bullers Janke has found the "fountain of youth" in their new daughter. Lisanne, 11, Rolf, 9, and Daddy all agree.

Ruth Clarkson Brown is busy being a full-time mother. Her children are Julie, 2, Lisa, 5, Stephen, 8, and Alison, 11.

Ann Lanicker Ulrich is busy working with her husband Richard in a new business, Ulrich Shipping Agency. Their oldest son, David, is a freshman at Clarion State College.

Lu Berry Wenneker, Eva Christy Frangoulis, and Jannie Couch St. Clair report no news but send a big "hello." Jannie hates to think how many years have slipped by since we were "young and gay."

Jeanne Anderson Nesbit thanks you for answering. Pulling your post cards from the mail box brightened many a cold January morning. I have been kept busy with substitute teaching in the first and second grades.

Betty reporting:

Mary Kay Fletcher Anderson is currently working with the Head Start program as Director of Volunteers in Mt. Vernon, Ohio. They had a great vacation in Florida during Christmas vacation.

Naomi Garlick Kinard and family now live in an antique Victorian Shake house in the middle of Annapolis, Maryland. She is in the process of refinishing the house, taking piano lessons, and on weekends she is a tour guide for Historic Annapolis. She invites you all to come and she will give you the two-hour tour.

Roberta Hanson Helm is struggling with her Hospital Country Festival while trying to plan a vacation to Florida. In between all this she has become interested in the sport of Curling, and barring any broken bones, she hopes to continue since it is a lot of fun.

Louise Heineman Harper had a hectic year. Her husband spent some time in the hospital in February, her father died in April, and her mother had a very serious illness and recovery period. Her youngest is in school and she is now able to do some outside work.

Harriet Kerr Daye is still teaching trainable retarded children in Venango County, Pennsylvania. She attended a seminar on brain damaged children in Philadelphia. Her 10-year-old spent his Christmas vacation in the hospital with a ruptured spleen, but is fine now.

Shirley Lawrence Mason writes that they "hit the jackpot" in Las Vegas with the birth of twin boys. Her husband Jim is Superintendent of Schools for Clark County, Nevada. This 62,000 pupil school district increases by 4 to 6 thousand pupils a year and presents quite a challenge.

Marjorie Livesey Sims moved to Richmond, Indiana last summer where John is now working for Avco. She is working as a Home-School Counselor for a new junior high school.

Greetings but no news from Sally Dougan Augustine and Betty Junk Weltman.

Marilyn reporting:

Eleanore Luthringer Mattson enjoys the activities of the Cleveland Chatham Club in addition to her other activities centered around the children, school and church. She is a Girl Scout troop leader and financial secretary of the church.

Olga Mamula Kaish was glad to see everyone at the class reunion last spring. She is working part time as a counselor on the staff of the Dean of Women at Syracuse University.

Marilyn Marks Zelt's oldest son is a freshman at Grove City College this year. She keeps busy with her painting and church activities, in addition to her family.

Carol McCollough Stride is glad to be back in Pittsburgh and busy getting settled. Her girls hope to put a horse in the barn!

Jean McGregor Kondrat writes that her family will move to Dallas, Texas in June. Her children, age 15 and twins 13, look forward to ski weekends in New Mexico and vacations in Mexico or Colorado.

Clara Miklos Hoon accompanied Bob last July on a business trip to Europe for a month. They spent the Christmas holiday season in Jamaica. Both Mike and her husband are learning to play golf.

Joan Morledge Michaelian is busy with her four children and their activities. She enjoyed a trip to Pittsburgh last summer and a drive through Chatham campus.

Carolyn Mountford DeFrance has just renewed her teaching certificate at Youngstown University. Her sons Bill and John helped her with modern math. David, a second-grader, lives for ice skating. Timmy and Bill enjoyed a Christmas visit from Ann Shane Perkey and family.

Jo Nusbaum Cone enjoyed a weekend visit with Jean McGregor Kondrat and family. Art's fishing book, Fishing Made Easy, has been selected by the Outdoor Life Book Club as their May selection. They ordered 50,000 copies! Jo is busy substituting and running for the Colts Neck School Board on a ticket with 5 men for 3 seats.

Shirley Patterson Kroske's family have been "South Carolinians" for a year and a half and are enjoying it. Children are now 10, 14, and 16. Shirley is teaching music in a day school, does organ substitute work, and serves as registrar of the Greenville Chapter of American Guild of Organists. Her family enjoys trips in their Cessna.

Pat Pew Simpson is director of a "Head-Start and Catch-Up" program for culture-deprived children sponsored by her church. She also teaches the college-age Sunday School Class, and is taking two education courses at the local branch of the University of Texas to complete her teaching certificate. She occasionally gets a chance to wave to her husband and 8-year-old daughter as they pass in the driveway!

Mary Lou Rider spent last summer's vacation in the hospital. She is learning to play golf and can hardly wait for spring. Her life as a guidance counselor is never dull.

Ginny Rix Markle's family enjoyed a 4-week drive to show the children "The East" last summer. Bonnie's quite interested in figure skating and John is almost a man now. Ginny is on the board for an antique show in San Diego next summer and busy with Girl Scouts.

Bobby reporting:

Ann Shane Perkey returned from a pleasant three-day trip to New York City just as the garbage strike was making things unpleasant. She is taking entrance tests to enroll in Pitt Graduate School and son David will be choosing his college soon.

Barbara Shields Sullivan is recovering rapidly from a recent emergency appendectomy.

Peggy Thompson Weil teaches four-year-olds at a Shadyside Church Nursery School. Although she, Andy and the children still ski together, she admits to taking along her knitting for those last hours of the day. Children Wendy, 13, and Peter, 10, each have a horse which they care for themselves.

Mary Lou Tite Ellsworth is employed as a medical-secretary to a surgeon. She and family camped out at Myrtle Beach, S. C., then toured New England last summer. She hopes Pittsburgh '49ers will plan something groovy for our reunion in '69 to include husbands.

Now that Jean Tsagaris Karidis has children in senior high, junior high and grade school, she rounds out her days with PTA, Sunday school teaching and volunteer work at Kane Hospital.

Corinne Welch Patton and family are comfortably settled in their new home which she and Jim designed themselves.

Eleanor Wenning Atwell and surgeon-husband had a lovely combined meeting and pleasure trip last spring to England, Scotland and Ireland, including rounds of golf at St. Andrews and Gleneagles. Amy, 13, skis and will be a freshman at Ellis next year. Bobby, 16, skis, golfs, and shakes the house with his electric guitar. He will be a junior at Shady Side Academy.

Miz Wiles Knight has been elected vice president and program chairman of the Rochester branch of MENSA. She and Clem spent a week at Expo last May and planned to visit relatives, friends and maybe some classmates in the vicinity of Fort Lauderdale in March.

Greetings but no news from Ginny Van Scoy Armin and Candy Walker Hyser.

Thanks for all those friendly responses. Going to the mail box was pure pleasure this month, because of you. Speaking for myself, the requirements of five children, ages five through 13, and two kitties (one thinks he should sleep in the lid of this typewriter) plus a variety of "busy-work" ranging from open housing and peace to a friendly YMCA guitar seminar, occupy my life. The children got their first face-full of the Atlantic Ocean last summer and would like to go back tomorrow. See you in '69. Cheers.

DEATH

Margaret Shafer Shuck (Mrs. Donald L.), November 1, 1967. The class is deeply saddened by Peggy's sudden death, caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. A note expressing the sincere sympathy of the class was sent to Peggy's husband and family. She is survived by her husband, a son and a daughter, her parents and one sister. A class gift to the Chatham Library has been made in Peggy's memory.

Maddie and Rosella reporting:

Nancy Aeberli Mooney was happy to be at our 1967 reunion and hopes for a bigger "20th." (So do we, Nancy.) She is attending the Community College in Pittsburgh, looking forward to more biology and a "pickled cat."

Thanks to Esther Bender Shaffer, our "lost" Rita Howard isn't lost at all. Rita is a Navy nurse in Japan, due home this summer. While on a western trip, the Shaffers visited Ann Gould Moore in Colorado. Ann in turn had the first reunion in 15 years with Eleanor Balent Young and family in Seattle, and the Youngs also vacationed the Northwest and Vancouver Island.

Being president of the Women's Association at Westminster Presbyterian Church will keep Suzanne Blair Murray hopping besides having 6th Grade Sunday School. Since Edith, 13, Kimberly, 12, and Jennifer, 8, were in the same wedding last summer, and this might be a preview of the future, Suzie and Roger may encourage three elopements.

Other than a trip to Fort Lauderdale, Florida, Eleanor Colvin Wiley and Tom are keeping up with the activities of Jeff (9th grade) and Sue (6th grade).

Dorothy Dodworth Scullin, at news gathering time, was dashing about the house getting it in shape to be photographed for a design composition entered by their architect. Dottie has started painting again. She was accepted for the third year in the Berkshire Arts Association, exhibited in Pittsburgh Museum, was in painting classes in the Summer Institute of Arts and Science. We wish her good luck on her future one-man show. Ann de Shazo Robertson and Tom dropped in to see the Scullins on their way to Vermont skiing. Ann is continuing on her Ph.D., interning next year at Bethesda Naval Hospital. The four boys are adjusting to American life, and the Robertsons plan to be in the Washington area another year and a half.

Natalie Eger Novick and Ivan are active in community and business activities, particularly as president of Wightman School PTA and in sight conservation work. Howard, 15, Billy, 12, and Phyllis, 9, are growing fast.

Shirley Elliott Johnston's new son, Jeffrey, brother to Jill and Jay Tommy, had a future Chathamite as "nursery-mate," the new daughter of Jane Steele Edmundson,

'50. Jeffrey's early arrival made it possible for "Mommy" to attend our reunion and didn't complicate moving into the Johnston's larger new home. Even though Shirley doesn't have her own kindergarten this year she still is teaching Sunday School, is on the church kindergarten committee and Juliette Lowe chairman for the East District of the Girl Scouts. The Johnstons were Expo '67 visitors.

Marigolden Guest Tritschler and family spent all last summer at Lake Champlain and saw some shows and plays in New York City in January. "G-G" reported that Peggy Clifford recently had a children's book published.

Sorry to hear Jeanne Hoy Dible has been in the hospital. "Shippa" seems to be settled in her new home, hopefully to stay awhile, having lived in five houses in just 18 months. She sees Ivy Watson Baird often at bridge club. Shippa and Ivy's husbands work together for Alcoa.

State-side since August, 1967, Alice Ann Jones Winner is working on a teaching certificate at Elizabethtown. Son Chris is experiencing his first taste of life in the U.S.A., adjusting well to typical American boy activities, although finds the work much easier than in Vienna. In June, after practice teaching, Alice Ann will be homeward bound and a possible teaching assignment in Vienna.

Pat Kennedy Earley sorrowfully canceled reunion reservations at the last minute but later, as a consolation, had a great vacation on the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

Anna Mae Landefeld Eckert had just returned from skiing in Austria at news deadline. "MacFuddy" talked to Kathryn Jones Schurman who has gone back to school for teaching credits while doing part-time kindergarten teaching.

Expo '67 was well represented by '51ers including Louise Larson McGeary, who also traveled to Sarasota, Florida, and Nag Head, and Patricia Meyer Kovacs, who is working part-time for the Center of Occupational Mental Health.

Laura Miksch Diaz announced that her husband was nominated by the Governor of Pennsylvania as a judge for the Workman's Compensation Board, and still has his private law practice. Laura joined the "pierced ears" crowd.

With all the traveling Chathamites, Stella Pavloff was disappointed that she ran into only one of them during her two months in Europe last summer. Stella enjoys teaching in California and hopes to see some of her friends in Pittsburgh this summer.

We extend our deep sympathy to Nancy Perry Vesely on the death of her father on December 26, 1967. Nancy enjoyed being on the job every day during the construction of the Vesely's new home last year and is still putting the finishing touches on the interior decorating. Children are Carol, 11, and Edward, 7.

A move to New England from Ohio was a Christmas gift for Beverly Sandberg Minor. Cecil is manager of the Process Instrumentation Sales at the West Lynn, Massachusetts, plant of General Electric.

Sarabelle Segmiller Krapfel extends best regards to all and invites any class member to stop by if ever Ann Arbor way. Peggie moved to Michigan just one week after attending the reunion and loves Ann Arbor where Dick is vice president of Argus, Inc. Son Richard, 11, has a remarkable list of athletic trophies and honors, and Jim, 6, is following in his footsteps. Brad, is in nursery school.

Marlene Shettel Stovicek and family's "togetherness" is an 18-foot Mercruiser. Jan driving and college-looking; Larry, Jr., and Mark earned football letters this year; Eric's and Neal's intramural tag football team won the league championship. Bart loves first grade. Marlene didn't improve her Spanish on their two trips to Mexico City and Acapulco, but seems to be doing great at sewing. Her real challenge is getting deeper into the fascinating world of business with Larry and the building of their new plant and office.

Norma Smith Watters and Les are enjoying an extended auto trip out west.

Marguerite Sullivan Hannon keeps on the constant go traveling with Jack whose training centers are progressing. He has opened a new one in England. The Hannon's have become horseback riding enthusiasts, and hope soon to build a new home in Fox Chapel.

Like so many others, Peggy Tucker Thompson was disappointed she missed our 1967 reunion, but graduation activities at Swarthmore College, where Peggy has a part-time job as supervisor of dramatics, made it impossible.

Currently involved in a school musical with 150 parents, Martha Whaley Webster is active with our New Jersey Alumnae group. Betty was amazed how our Chatham campus has changed when she visited Pittsburgh over Thanksgiving.

Joyce Wilde Round claims "haven't any fascinating news" but we happen to know that she and Dan took a quick trip to Europe last summer while the children were off to camp.

It was a fun summer of camping for Mary Lou Wilkinson McCall's family of seven, having bought a tent, sleeping bags, and a trailer. They camped their way to Quaker Lake, Pennsylvania; then Mary Lou's parents and sister joined the group to make 10 in the small trailer to Expo '67, then on to Margate, New Jersey before returning to Alabama. For contrast, the McCalls spent Thanksgiving on the beautiful white beach at Panama City, Florida. Mary Lou puts New Orleans on everyone's "must visit" list.

Although Joan Young Drugmand prefers warmer climate, the family likes snow country, accounting for the many trips to Vermont. Troop committees keep Joan busy with David working to make Eagle Scout and Ellen and Jane in Girl Scouts. The Drugmands plan a trip to Sea Island and Hilton Head, Georgia for golf and relaxation.

Lois Young Flyte works one day a week in the school library, does playground duty, is a deacon in the Presbyterian Church, superintendent of the junior department in Sunday School, and is in an exciting Book Club. Lois and Howie attended a Cleveland Chatham Alumnae Dinner with Larry and Marlene Shettel Stovicek, Don and Joann McCord Wilson.

Your class secretaries include themselves with those who say, "hi—no exciting news": Gwen Bach Lammert, Eleanor Balent Young, Ann Crouse Harvey, Jane Feiler Miller, Lois Franke Lee, Marian Jaffurs, Peggy Kennelly Murphy, Shirley Kerchner, Mary Ellen Leigh McBride, Adele Pfeifer Ferianc, Marilyn Pfobl Donnelly, Audrey Sommers Whigham, and Elaine Stevenson Bolanis.

Thank you for the enjoyable letters. We wish we could have shared them as received, and apologize for the editorial chopping but orders for brevity prevail. However, "keep those letters coming," and we'll try to do better next year.

Also, many thanks to all those answering our plea to replenish our class mailing fund. Have you done your share?

Jeannine reporting:

It occurs to me that the Class of 1953 has reached some kind of plateau. Not one of the class members who sent me their news had a birth to report! A couple of gals sounded almost breathless as they wrote their replies midst the packing boxes and crates. Ellie Bailey Reese had just moved back to Pittsburgh and Thelma Fiori Lacerte had left. Thelma's husband has been promoted to works chief metallurgist for the new Jones and Laughlin steel mill in Hennepin, Illinois.

Our military members are still on the move. Betty Frantz Purdom's husband, Bill, is now commanding officer of the USS Thomas Jefferson SSBN618. She complains that she doesn't feel "old enough" to be the Captain's lady. We rejoice with Peggy Harbison Hendrickson that Don returned safely from Vietnam. He will be in Test Pilot School at the Patuxent River Naval Air Station for ten months and then will be reassigned. Peggy wishes they were a little closer to Washington, one of her favorite cities.

Gloria Palmer Hadsell works as a teacher's aide, helping with elementary children on the playground and in the cafeteria. She is still active as a Republican committeewoman. The usual household duties with three girls, a husband, and a dog are enough for Diane Gray Hall. She was planning two weeks of skiing at Stowe in February. Diane Barratt Swift joined the housekeepers when she lost her maid. She now finds a full career in watching four "Indians" (9, 5½, 3½, 2), chauffeuring, and teaching Sunday School. Her next-door neighbors moved to San Antonio and met Judy Welch Layton and Priscilla Sanford Johnson and their families.

New approaches to education in the Pittsburgh Public Schools has proved to be an interesting project for Lois Glazer Michaels. Milt is now chief of hematology at Allegheny General Hospital. They have been touring the western and south-eastern parts of Pennsylvania with the children. Lynn Hann Baxter writes that she is working on her master's at Westminster and teaching in Sharon. She had a visit last summer with Ellie Bailey Reese and Jean Wilkins Meyer.

With the addition of a new music room Marion Gallup Drummond finds it possible to have piano students at home as well as at Heidelberg College in Tiffin, Ohio. Two of her children are playing violin and a third the cello.

Now that the four children are all in school Sheila Burke Loeffler is teaching under-educated children in grades one through six. She remains active in the Junior League theater, her latest contribution being Sinbad in Sinbad the Sailor. Jan Geiersbach Barr is also branching out with both children in school. She has been studying tole painting and paper mache sculpture.

Hoping to be in her new house in February is Sally Hoffman Spangler. She still has her Fife and Drum Corps and is doing some substitute teaching. She attended the National School Board Convention in Portland, Oregon last April. Already moved into her house is Alice Berry Adams. She looks forward to a vacation in Puerto Rico in May and then reunion in June.

Betsy Lee Mendicino says she has no news but we are glad to hear from her, anyway.

Barbara Logan Brown reports that her husband became assistant principal of Ingomar Junior High School after twelve years in the classroom. Among his teachers are Chatham alumnae Arlene Campbell Timmons and Jill Putnam Huston, both class of 1960. Barbara's family is planning a summer safari in their new camping trailer. Ann Stoebr Grupe and her family are experienced campers and are already looking forward to the summer. Ann's husband joined American Hardware Supply Company of Butler as information services manager.

This secretary, Jeannine English Abel, has another busy year to report. It included a busy teaching schedule, several oratorio engagements, appearances with the Antiqua Players of Pittsburgh, and the role of Anna in The King and I (I also directed the production). As I compile our class news I am looking forward to three engagements with the Erie Philharmonic Orchestra.

Phyllis reporting:

Bunny Fraser Bell and husband Dick had a fun week-end in New York City in January.

Helen Halpern Berkson is busy getting settled in their new house, and also as assistant Troop Leader for her daughter's Brownie Troop. Husband Harold is chief of the biological and ecological section of the National Estuarine Study. Helen reports that she has been seeing Lois Sherry Schworm, '54.

Jane Smith Donaldson has been busy, busy, busy doing substitute teaching, buying boats and traveling. She and her family are now the proud owners of a 19' 6" cabin cruiser which sleeps three. This summer is already booked up with various boat trips. They also plan to spend several weeks on an ore carrier. Jane also reports that she and the boys were in Pittsburgh during the riots in Detroit. However, her husband Bob was home and it was quite a hectic time since their home is at Fourteen Mile and the riots went out to Seven Mile. Jane will not be able to attend our reunion, but she sends her regards and hopes that anyone going to Detroit will visit her.

Susan Smith Schweitzer and her husband are building a cottage on Lake Ontario, and Susan is looking forward to a wonderful summer of swimming and "eating sand" with the baby!

Our deepest sympathy to Alice Snook Kalla whose mother died on New Year's Eve. Since Snooky's four boys are all in school now, she is taking piano lessons and a course in weaving.

Marilyn Vandermay Ostendorf had an interesting and educational trip from coast to coast going to a new job and a new home in sunny California. She had a nice reunion with Squeak and John Golden in Dallas.

Elaine Vincic Berman worked part time with emotionally disturbed students this past fall. She is looking forward to a return trip to Israel this May but hopes to be back in time for our reunion. They are also busy house hunting.

Mary Carroll Williams Hofer is busy doing church work and keeping up with her three children, Don (D. L.), 10, Andrea, 7, and Angelique, 1. Husband Don is a general supervisor for Household Finance Corporation.

As for your reporter, Phyllis Hersb Spitz, I am really looking forward to our fifteenth reunion in June. I can't quite believe it has been that long since our care-free college days when the most important things were getting reports in on time, dating, and deciding which pair of jeans to cut up for shorts! I sincerely hope that we will have one hundred percent present for our reunion. I know we will have a great program as our capable co-chairmen are Marcia (Mack) McDowell Bennett and Alice Berry Adams.

May I take this opportunity to thank you for your response for class news every year. I have thoroughly enjoyed reading your letters, and I really appreciate some of the "short novels" that good friends took the time to write to me. As you know, I have not personally answered any of them!! But I loved hearing from you. I promise to be present at our reunion just to make sure that two other girls are elected secretaries. Maybe then I will have the time for some letters of my own. It has been a pleasure working with Jeannine English Abel—my thanks to all. Phyl.

Libbie reporting:

Barbara Beacham Volk successfully campaigned for the office of Justice of the Peace in Carnegie last November. She has attended a twelve-week school for new "Squires" and is enjoying her introduction to fundamental law, although she suspects the Constitutional Convention will decide to eliminate the office eventually. We salute you, Squire Volk!

Caring for her growing family and watching six-year-old Tommy enthusiastically skip off to first grade, has provided Barbara Braun Bajoras with a busy, rewarding year.

A thoughtful tribute was paid to Marilyn Campbell Kahn by her fellow teachers in Plantation, Florida. They elected her Teacher of the Year at the close of the 1967 term.

Art continues to capture Eleanor Carroll Molnar's spare time. During the past year she has served as chairman of the Uniontown Friends of Art and has taught art workshop classes.

Linda Cunningham Bham invites us all to visit Atlanta. She has found it to be a "great place to live" and is enjoying her church school teaching and committee work. Linda wonders if any of us have information about our former classmate Doris (Dorrie) Lawrence.

Enthusiasm over Expo '67 was expressed by several classmates including Nancy Follitt Waichler. Her family also enjoyed a trip to Florida which included visiting Cape Kennedy. Nancy and Mary Jo McKee Groppe, who recently moved to Oak Park, have been reminiscing.

Zoe Gbiates Lalos was surprised to discover Reggie McDonald O'Rourke at the grocery store one day. Their husbands are both with I.B.M. in the D.C. area.

Plans for a new home, A.A.U.W. activities and garden club have kept Lois Gilpin Pollock very busy this year.

Marcia Glazer Arnold had a wonderful trip to the West Coast last year and a pleasant summer at the shore with her children. Her husband Larry is busy with his practice and actively involved with the Junior Achievement Program.

A promotion to programming adult education classes and special programs for the University of California extension in San Francisco was just one of Marilyn Hill's experiences last year. She also spent three weeks in the Soviet Union getting to know people through Citizen Exchange Corps seminars in six cities.

Janet Hoy Sterling is doing substitute teaching and joins her family in their new winter recreation, skiing. She and her twin, Joanne O'Roark, were planning February reunion in Santa Barbara.

Patti Kirk Volbrecht's excitement over a new job and a new home was clouded by a serious hand injury suffered by her husband, Walt, shortly before Christmas. Fortunately, the doctors were able to save his hand which will require several operations to complete the healing process.

Doing medical and general library work at Pittsburgh's Veteran's Administration Hospital and attending Carnegie-Mellon lectures keeps Mary Jane Kahn occupied.

Kay Avers Headley and Molly Lenhardt Rowden send greetings to all and are looking forward to the reunion in June.

Jay, Jay G. and I moved to our "country" home in June and are enjoying it more each day. I'm teaching full time, playing bridge and helping to start a garden club.

Please make every effort to join us at the reunion. Angie and Dottie are making plans with each one of you in mind. See you there!

Joan reporting:

Carla Norberg Gaut had the unique experience this year of being one of four women aboard the United Aircraft Turbo-train when it reached 170.8 miles per hour on the Pennsylvania Railroad Test Track in New Jersey. Besides such pioneering, Carla is also a part-time chemist at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital.

Nancy Walker DeWard is extremely busy these days as chairman of the Reading and Study Skills Department at a junior high school. A.A.U.W. still claims Nan's time as legislation chairman, and she has been chosen to appear in the 1967 edition of Outstanding Civic Leaders of America.

The great Northwest has claimed Marion Sweeney Guthrie and her family. Her husband is working in metallurgy at Battelle Northwest. They would love to see anyone in the area.

Betty Woods Goodwin has been covering Central America on vacations. She has seen Barbara Freas Cole, who is now in Ankara, Turkey with her husband, Colonel William Cole.

Reggie McDonough O'Rourke encourages anyone who can to work with mentally retarded children as she has this past year as a volunteer. Sounds like a most rewarding job.

Home again to Maryland for the first time in fifteen years is Nancy McCafferty Watts. It has taken her no time to get involved in Scouting, full-time employment and other activities. Six children made her trip from Honolulu, cross-country in a motor home, quite eventful. Bill is now a Lieutenant Colonel and commutes to the Pentagon.

Anne Cohen Winkelman is planning on seeing everyone at reunion. She is still attending American University and hopes to graduate soon.

Working with disturbed children is Nancy Reynolds Rdesinski. The Teacher-Mom Program she is working in sounds most interesting.

Greetings have come from Mary Kay Moseley Kamath, Ruth Oberheim Webb and Barbara Kelley Linkous.

Pat Jankowski Smith is the busiest girl around. Active in the Women's League of Rutgers, church activities, Red Cross Donors' Program and hostessing foreign teachers, she also spent the summer at a Stanford University program helping design a satellite.

Mannie Thorne Wright has had over 100 visitors to her new home in Lancaster. She and her husband vacationed in Mexico last summer and stayed with Ellie Malpass Peth, '52, who lives in Mexico City.

As for the McFalls, we are looking forward to reunion in June. As president of the Junior League of Pittsfield, I'll be travelling to Colorado Springs in early May for the annual convention. Volunteer activities, house renovations and children keep us very busy. I'll look forward to seeing you all at our class reunion in June '68.

Betts reporting:

We're on the move again this year—toward fancy vacations! "Pete" Alogna Riess and Dan celebrated his new J.D. degree by travelling through Spain and Portugal in July; they must have just missed

Barbara Baker Kreindler and Herb who spent two weeks in Spain in August. Mini-skirted Polly Fleming's travels were limited to the British Isles (including a sailing event on the Isle of Wight with "Prince Philip, Prince Charles, Princess Anne, and me!" and a week in Wales) and the United States this year, but she plans to rectify this inactivity (which has caused her to lose 20 pounds) by boating to Norway in April. Chin up, Pol—we feel for you!

Ginny Ladish Angulo got tired of waiting for visitors and came to Pittsburgh for three months in July. She's resumed her vigil though, and we're all welcome anytime. Jennie L. Dunlap Blackmore is looking for friendly faces in Roanoke—she says "the mat's out and pot's on." Dottie Devine Agnew, Pete (just made vice-president of his company), and family vacationed in the South last summer. It was Dottie's first experience with the ocean and she loved it. And Sandy Esmen Chernew and Nick travelled across the country in May, taking in as many sights as possible before he left for Vietnam in June. They were looking forward to "rest and recreation" in Hawaii in March and returning to Pittsburgh where Nick will be on the staff of Montefiore Hospital in June.

With possibly one exception, our classmates are involved in clubs, committees, associations, campaigns, and organizations from A. A. U. W. to Arts and Flowers. The exception (there has to be one to prove a rule) expresses it in verse:

I've delivered up no babies not singleton or twins . . .
I've played some supermarket games but've not been one who wins . . .

I haven't traveled anywhere especially near or far . . .
But I have sat and dreamed of trips
(inside the brand new car) . . .

I activate appliances day after casual day . . .
Their motors link the silences of home, when Gregg's away . . .

A couple of German Shepherd dogs are company I keep . . .
No cards, no clubs, no civic jazz
I sleep untroubled sleep . . .

I'm not big on entertainment even movies, just a few . . .
What I really want to say is—
I'd rather know what's new with you!

Signed,
Dull-as-dishwater Nancy Kasper Nixon
(who studies calligraphy secretly).

And some are teaching, too: Mary Kileen Cochran is a teacher's aide for Project Headstart; Joyce Dull Sepp has switched from subbing to teaching eight friends to play bridge (don't know that that's any less nerve-racking); Jo Long Pahl is teaching 6, 7, and 8th grades at a country school; Carol LaRoza Andrews is back at it while running "Bedlam, Inc. with a black refrigerator in the kitchen" on the side; Jean McIlwraith McCally's still working with and teaching Peace Corps trainees in horsemanship and horse science, and contemplating a master's in educational guidance; and I'm in 3rd grade (sometimes, I think, literally).

Marilyn Grady Candler (in between playing the organ at church), Dorothy Dieckmann Harman, Nancy Kingham Gardiner, Mary Elliott Donaldson, and Kathy Iannuzzo are looking forward to our reunion and say "Hello" in the meantime. Janni Goldman Coppersmith and Sandy Gilbert Goldsmith staged their own at the home of mutual friends in Los Angeles, where Janni and Jim have finally settled after bouncing through four major-city moves in three years. If you're interested in decorating hints, these new-homes people are really doing some lovely, and original, things.

Best closing comment is from Nancy Gellman Rubenstein: "Nothing new. Judy is ten, Billy is seven, and I must be 100!" Have a good year!

Lynn reporting:

Keay Baker Hathaway is back in the frozen north after some years in Florida. She says her children are having fun in the snow—the little ones didn't remember it.

Gisela Paoli Villafañá travelled to the states last November with her husband. They stopped in Pittsburgh and she saw Nancy Galley, Joyce Dull and Barbara Ashe. She also stopped at Chatham and reports it looking the same. Gisela is hoping to come back again for class reunion.

Jane Pattie Vyssotsky is house hunting. She says Vic is happy in his work on Nike X at the Bell Telephone Lab in Whippany.

Our sympathy to Mildred Schulte Pastor on the death of her father last September. Mildred saw Ginny Ladish Angulo last fall. Mildred says her fourth child has caused more turmoil in eight months than the other three in seven years.

Ann Scott Byers is settling down in their new house. With one in kindergarten and one in nursery school Ann has some peace and time to sew.

Rose Senoff Eisenstein's husband has accepted a National Institute of Health Fellowship in the anaesthesia department at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. Rose and her three boys, aged 8, 6, and 3, hope to be able to spend the summer months with him in Pittsburgh.

Carolyn Spark Hitchcock's husband Peter is devoting full time to his travel agency. They spent two weeks in Mexico in February 1967, and last fall traveled to Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Bangkok and Singapore. Carolyn has been named in this year's publication of Outstanding Young Women of America for her participation in community and political activities in Hibbing, Minnesota.

Tee Speerhas O'Connor writes from Stuttgart, Germany, where they went last July for a three-year stay. Tee says they are having a wonderful time walking. There are paved paths through the woods so off they go, stroller and all. She and Pat have taken short trips alone to Liechtenstein and to the Ahr Valley, and they hope to get to Paris this spring. Tee is studying German. Four of the children are in school, but two are still at home.

Rosalie Stern Wolfe is busy chauffeurin the older children and taking care of the baby. She and Dick went to the West Coast last October, visiting Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas.

Jane Stocker Burfoot reports Rickie in third grade and Jamie in nursery school. They are building a house to be read next summer. Fred is with the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, and the find life in Washington, D.C. continual exciting.

Marlene Valentine Daugherty misses being close to New York City. Dick is personnel manager of the IBM plant. She says with three pre-schoolers life is wild all the time.

Carol Vogel has a new job with a management consulting firm, Nelson Associates Inc., which does work for educational institutions and libraries. She has been assigned to projects in Iowa, and now in the Miami, Florida area. Carol sings the praise of New York City as a place to live, and she has a great list of restaurants for anyone visiting. Most of all, Carol insists, New York is friendly, if you give the people a chance.

Rhoda Weitsman David is singing the blues about a bad winter of flu, ear infections and all-round sickness. Rhoda spent their last vacation in New York City doing all the tourist things the natives miss, and finally got to the United Nations.

Ann Yanko Wilkinson wrote about her "splendid and terrible" daughter, and her full-time job at the University. Last summer she and John went to Geneva, Paris, London, Vienna and Venice, and came home on a slow boat. They hope to repeat the trip this summer.

My year has been busy. I am in the process of disengaging myself from PTA and Girl Scouts, being firmly convinced they are glorified busy work, but I am still reporting for our North Hills newspaper. We spent a glorious week on the Jersey shore last year and are planning to return this summer.

Sylvia Angelo Gosztonyi received the Doctor of Law degree from Duquesne University last June, and is employed in the practice of patent law with Mobay Chemical Company.

Judy Davis Levitan's new addition is a rather monstrous St. Bernard who keeps them busy while Debbie attends first grade and Kenny nursery school. The Levitans built a summer cottage in the mountains which they used for skiing this winter.

Just returned from a marvelous trip to Israel, Myrna Deaktor Prince is now back doing volunteer work at the hospital and taking care of her son.

Bette Jo Bergad Greenberger has been busy decorating her new apartment. This summer the Greenberger's had a great vacation touring Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece. The climax of the trip was the hiring of a yacht and leisurely exploring every archeological site they could find along the Aegean.

Marty Jo Campbell Lane reports that Cal is an associate professor at the University of Hartford. The Lanes recently built an addition to their home and look forward to filling it with antiques.

Recently settled in a new home is Ruth Cooper Huber. The Hubers are delighted with the fruit trees and shrubs on their grounds. She claims to be a typical proud, prejudiced mom who can hardly wait for our class reunion to show off her seventeen-month-old Heidi.

Barbara McCaban Frank received her M.D. degree from the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine in 1963, served her internship at Shadyside Hospital, and completed a two-year residency at Children's Hospital. In addition to providing pediatric services at the Russellton office of the New Kensington Valley Medical Group, Barbara is also in charge of the West Deer Township school health program. Her husband is an engineer with Dravo Corporation.

Back in Pittsburgh after a period in Germany with the U. S. Navy, Diana Montgomery Montgomery is doing part-time "home" work translating a survey for her former employer, Maynard Research Council, while husband Dick is studying at Carnegie-Mellon.

Harriet Moore Clements, still in London, drove to Geneva in January to visit Francoise Thelin Sadik. Do you remember? She spent her junior year with us and would like to hear from you. Her address is 55 Route de Florissant, Geneva 1200, Switzerland. Harriet's twin boys are now going to separate nursery schools which is working out very well.

Ginny Nabors Kearney and her former roommate, Dotty Whitfield Purdy may wish to contact Harriet for advice since they both have twin boys. Ginny recently moved from Chicago to La Grange, Illinois. Dotty is now back east after having spent 4½ years in California while her husband served in the Navy. Ken is working in Manhattan as a commercial manager for the New York Telephone Company, while Dotty keeps busy with the local A.A.U.W. Chapter.

Joan Winters George has moved into a new contemporary style home. The Georges recently had their third daughter. Jack is director of the Clinical Research Center at Ohio State University and has received a Research Career Development Grant starting July, 1968.

This past summer Barbara Hughes Schrader returned from Germany to Fort Harrison, Indiana where they will be stationed until June. While the Schraders are happy to be back in the U.S.A., they miss Germany and all the travel they were able to do abroad with their three boys.

Earla Sue Smith McNaull is looking forward to her impending move to Stamford, Conn., made necessary by Colin's new job.

Sandra Smith Lyter reports that Irv is now assistant principal at "his" junior high school and serving his third year on Bradford City Council. Sandy is an assistant den mother and also finds time for A.A.U.W. and Republican Women's Council. This past year the Lyters visited with Barbara Heck Reeser and Elaine Carberry Allison and their families.

Marie Smith Smith is busy as chairman of the Antique Club of Newcomers and she is still teaching piano. Jim, manager of the Liberty Mutual office in New Hartford, is also acting as promotional director for the greater Utica Winter Carnival.

Hoping to be reassigned overseas with the Foreign Service for another two-year tour is Ellie Roeger Nyhus and husband. She sends her greetings and good wishes to all classmates.

Sally Manfredi Guthrie is still living in Peters Township where her husband Dick, having received his master's degree from West Virginia University, is still teaching in the local high school.

Still active in the Chicago Alumnae Club is Lynne Hughes Mayer, who reports that Chatham is very popular in the "Windy City."

Delighted to be back in the beautiful Pennsylvania Dutch Country, where Bill accepted the pastorate of a new church, is Jan Roux Seaman. She is doing substitute teaching and is also kept busy with church work.

Elaine Rosen is now at Pitt working on a master's degree in social work.

Doris Redman Foster recently moved to Meadville, Pennsylvania, where John is spending this year as a full-time graduate student at Allegheny College. He is working on his master of education in social studies.

Susie Quad Croel is now living in Birmingham, Michigan, where Phil has a new job with Tab Products. In addition to her own two daughters, Susie was kept busy last year with a four-year-old foster daughter.

Holly Wilbar Johnston and family vacationed in the historic Chesapeake Bay area last summer. Her husband Dave is an attorney for the Pennsylvania Department of Highways.

Alice Rexer Kolek called us just in time to send her regards. Alice recently built a new home near the Pittsburgh Airport.

She corresponds frequently with Sally Head Mulcahy, who also sends greetings.

Your reporters had a very easy job this year as the responses were scant. We hope to hear from more of you as we write our last article next year. Our best regards to all of you.

Ruth reporting:

Both Robin Askin DeKleine and Hannah Brush Van Horn traveled last summer. Hannah and her husband spent a week last September in Colorado Springs and Aspen, Colorado. Robin and Bill traveled to Canada for a five-day fishing trip during the summer. Robin also reports that she joined a community choral group, and is now "back at the piano" as accompanist. She was also elected president of her women's group at church.

Marianne Byrn Caple is now a senior chemist at Parke-Davis & Co., doing research in organic synthetic chemistry. Having been in California so long, she says she loves every minute of the snow in Michigan.

Joan Cercone Gilson thought she knew how to sew until she took a tailorin course at the Adult School last fall. She spent a pleasant day with Claire Jua Schweriner, '60, in December, and she also visited with Mr. Ashman, who is now Business Manager at Beaver College.

Barbara Easton Marks is enjoying decorating their new townhouse in charming historic Annapolis, as well as sailing and waterskiing on Chesapeake Bay.

Two children, a church choir and the March of Dimes keep Marilyn Eckert Winters quite busy. She was town Mother March co-chairman this year and topped last year's contributions by 10%.

Building and moving into a new home has kept Judith Elliott McNierney quite busy this year. Her husband John is now with the Gilmore Research Laboratory, part of the UpJohn Company. She and her daughters spent a very enjoyable summer on Peak's Island in Maine.

Alice Evans has a most interesting job. She is a student control and records officer in the Pre-Helicopter Instruments Squadron of the Naval Air Training Command. She is also a part-time instructor in academic at the Naval School of Aeronautical Sciences. As a Navy Ensign, she has travelled to all parts of the United States, Canada, Mexico, and eight countries of Europe.

Jan reporting:

Karlana Glemser plans to be married in August to Fred Warnock who will begin work on a Ph.D. in engineering. Karlana will continue her work in the Office of Anthropology at the Smithsonian Institute.

Sue Scheiner Druskin and Leonard are living in Minneapolis where Sue is using the training from her master's in social work as a social worker for the Minneapolis Public Schools. She is a member of a local singing group, and has toured Europe with them three times.

Maggie Ferguson Goldstone and Leo are both employed by UNESCO. They are looking forward to traveling in Kenya this summer (including a safari!) for the conference of African Ministers of Education.

Another traveler is Marge Hanson Honig who was married to Barry Honig in Israel in February of this year. Barry will be doing post-doctoral work in physics at Harvard next year. Marge is working on her dissertation at Columbia.

"Jess" (Sue Jessop) and Jon McGowan now live in North Amherst, Massachusetts. Jon is teaching in the department of mechanical and aero-space engineering at the University of Massachusetts, and Jess is working on her M. A. in sociology. She is enjoying Amherst and university life and, among other things, brushing up on her bridge game and taking a course in copper enameling.

Mary Jennings Quickell and Ken expect to spend another year in Atlanta where Ken is with the Communicable Disease Center, then they will leave for "somewhere" where Ken will work on a fellowship in endocrinology. Last year they had a wonderful vacation in Bermuda.

Sue Hocker Ballay directed Bell, Book and Candle and Romanoff and Juliet for the Community Theatre this past year. Sue, who is assistant professor of design at the University of Cincinnati, is looking forward to more graduate work in the fall. Little Jamie will be starting to kindergarten. The Ballays traveled to Expo last year.

From Mary Booth Fassett Roberts — . . . have had the usual busy, housewife, volunteer stuff, children, etc., type of year . . . Am provisional chairman for the Junior League this year, on the advisory board of the Child and Family Service, Altar Guild at church, and most recently named to the Board of the Humane Society! . . .

Carol Ewing Goff is kept busy with Kevin and little Steven. David works for the Celanese Corporation.

Susan Engel Golden and Phil are living in their new home, built last year. Sue is a Chatham Alumnae Representative in the Baltimore Area. They spend weekends hunting in antique shops for the oil lamps they collect. Sue's hobby of baking led to her winning a blue ribbon in the Maryland State Fair last summer.

The Printzes are visiting in Pittsburgh as this news is being written; Morty is presenting a paper at the Biophysical Society meetings. Barry will be in first grade next year and David in kindergarten. I am kept busy with work on the executive boards of our cooperative nursery school and the elementary school P.T.A. I am still painting, somewhat encouraged by having sold two works at our community art show last summer. I enjoyed hearing from all of you on my new list. Have a good year!

Alumnae Office reporting:

Due to the resignation of Susan Smith Balika as class secretary, her section of the class was solicited for news by Mrs. Swiss-helm. We know that Susan's third child arrived around the first of the year, but we have no further details.

Libby Jones Gadd is keeping busy with a Y. W. C. A. sponsored pre-school program, a small but active garden club, and with her two youngsters—Jenny, 4, who is clamoring to learn everything at once, and Scott, 1, who, at the falling age, maintains a constant shade of black and blue.

Mary Lou Kaylor Maury's husband, Captain James, is a navigator in the U. S. Air Force. Mary Lou would love to see any classmates who might be in the Newburgh, New York area.

Donna Lange, who continues as a drama writer for The Valley Independent in Monesson, still rates travel uppermost in her activities. A September visit to Expo '67 and to Quebec City brought back memories of French classes at Chatham. On one of several trips to New York to see plays, Donna saw Ingrid Bergman in More State-ly Mansions by Eugene O'Neill, who was her tutorial subject.

After spending most of last summer at Johns Hopkins, where she is studying for the master of liberal arts degree, Carol Lemke Keil and her husband toured Florida. They especially enjoyed traveling down through the Keys.

Barbara Levine is a psychiatric social worker in the Child Guidance Clinic at Metropolitan Hospital, New York City.

Shirley Lewis Minner, who retired from teaching before Brian Lee arrived, is now a home-bound teacher for two students who are hospitalized. Her husband is now well started on his Ph.D. thesis with June 1969 as his goal for completion. After spending the summer on his parent's farm, they stopped in Columbus for a brief visit with Joyce Teegardin on the way back to Lafayette.

After five years of work as a management specialist in the Defense Department, Kathryn Messina Gamble says it is great to be a "plain old housewife." She and her husband recently purchased part ownership in the Baltimore Orioles Baseball Club, and plan to spend the summer cheering them on to another world championship season.

Jackie Nadolny Rosenberger and Karl moved into their new home in Mt. Lebanon in plenty of time to welcome the arrival of Scott Andrew. Karl is comptroller for the Pittsburgh Playhouse.

Barbara Neilan, who received her M. D. in 1966, is serving her medical residency at Washington, D. C. General Hospital.

Sally reporting:

Best wishes to recent bride Anne Putnam Mallison and her Bill, who honeymooned in Bermuda where they were pleasantly surprised to find Betsy Johnson Harper and Randy in the lobby of their hotel! The Harpers were there to show their American Champion Standard Schnauzer in the Bermuda Kennel Club Dog Show. On their way home the Mallinsons also saw Carol Bretz, Pat D'Alvia Foley, and Liz Jones Sheehan in New York. Last spring Anne helped to convert an old barn into The Warren (Pennsylvania) Summer Theatre, and appeared there in Streetcar Named Desire and The Madwoman of Chaillot. While Bill, who is Warren District Plant Supervisor for Bell Telephone, attended meetings in Pittsburgh, Anne spent a day with Arlene Sinkus Lewis, who "retired from the teaching profession in June and picked up the role of mother in October." The Lewises moved to McMurray, just outside of Pittsburgh, when John was promoted to financial analyst in the budget department of Allegheny Ludlum, and they are now "ensconced in the suburban routine typical of Barbecuesville, and love it."

New sons are also keeping Jean Thonen Nickel and Brenda Purdon Stober busy. Jean, whose husband is a tax manager for Sheppard & Company, also has 3-year-old Kathy to help with little "Nicky," and says she would love to hear from anyone visiting Pittsburgh. The Stobers built a new house during the summer, and enjoyed a visit from Martha Bulkley Hostetter and Bob, who have "a precious little daughter also born last April."

Mary Sendek Jakabcsin loves all her jobs "as wife, mother, dietitian, nurse, gardener, etc.," while her husband "Jake" is enjoying his new job as internal auditor for all May Company (Kaufmann's) operations in Pittsburgh. The Jakabcsins visited Dottie Seif Kapp and family last summer at their beautiful new home in Butler County. The Kapps have enjoyed visits from several other classmates too, including Betsy Johnson Harper, Randall, and son Randy, and Carol Lemke Keil and Elmer. Dottie says "Kappenglen" is only 10 miles off the Pennsylvania Turnpike and would love to see anybody; she is "trying to work up to a reunion within a reunion for the day student gang in 1971." Her husband Marshall is working with computers as an engineer for Koppers Company, and is having fun teaching night school at the Butler Community College. Dottie received a master's degree in history from the University of Pittsburgh, but lists her job now as "mother" to young Karl. Dottie also keeps in touch with Elizabeth Waite, who is back to teaching 7th and 8th grade Spanish in the Baldwin-Whitehall Schools, having received a master of arts degree from the University of Kansas in October. Margaret Brenneman is now assistant professor in charge of the music library at Roosevelt University in Chicago.

Judy Rubenstein Rubenstein is keeping quite busy with three children, substitute teaching in high school and Sunday school, taking a Hebrew course, helping at her husband's store, RICHARD'S SHOES, and still finds time to be active in many civic organizations. The Rubensteins were planning to see Marlene Schweig Hartstein and Harriette Cohen in New York on their way to a Caribbean cruise in February. It looks like they just missed Marilou Querns, who seized a sudden golden opportunity and is now flying as a stewardess for Trans Caribbean Airways, which will take her from various points in the United States to San Juan and Aruba, as well as Germany, Spain, and England. She will be based in New York (but has no new address to report yet) and hopes to see some Chathamites travelling on TCA, as well as those living in the New York area. Marilou also "ran into" Melinda Scott Snyder while skiing at Camelback last March.

Karen Tiedy Ream and Bob, who is a steel salesman for Wheeling Steel Corporation, enjoyed a trip to Williamsburg, Virginia, last summer. Karen keeps in touch with Mary Lou Kaylor Maury and Judy Hicks Musser.

Barbara Pings Rawley is "enjoying life and keeping busy" in Iowa, where they have bought a small house and hope to do some gardening and weekend camping in the many nearby places. Wayne received his master of library science degree from the University of Pittsburgh in June and is Reserve Book Room Librarian at the University of Iowa until July 1968, when he will become the Undergraduate Librarian for that University.

Your reporter enjoyed a weekend visit from Joyce Teegardin, who is a vocational rehabilitation counsellor and is working on final requirements for a master's degree in "Rehab," between frequent professional conferences. Joyce toured the Ohio State Fair with Shirley Lewis Minner and family when they were in town, and reports that Shirley's new son is "a real cutie." The Vasses acquired "The Vassalage," a large, middle-aged urban house, last summer and are enjoying all its attendant joys and perils. I "retired" from the library profession in December and to celebrate we flew to California to enjoy the holidays with Bill's family in Pasadena. Back in Flint, I spent much time on the campaign to sustain Flint's Open Housing Ordinance in the recent referendum. As of this writing (the morning after) the results are in favor by only 43 votes; if the see-saw remains on that side, Flint will be the first city in the nation to approve such an ordinance by popular referendum! Although the demands of academic life keep our noses to the grindstone most of the time, we look forward to another brief but glorious cultural feast this summer at the Stratford Festival of Canada. It was wonderful to hear from so many of you this year, and I look forward to even more news next year.

Jane reporting:

How does one compose a neat opening generalization with which to launch the section of class news? I thought about this, re-read your letter and came to the conclusion, by no means reluctantly, that there was to be no such thing! Your infinite variety allows me to report just one display of unanimity (as you must agree that it is highly insignificant)—that is, that 100 per cent of the babies born to the members of this fit of the class who responded to the questionnaires were daughters!

Becky Albright McLay, who received her master's degree in history from Carnegie Mellon University last June, is teaching and living in the family home in Hollidaysburg.

Distant-most among us is Pat Burda Sliwinski who finds herself this year in Juneau, Alaska. Stan is fulfilling his military obligation as a doctor for the Public Health Service at a two-man clinic which serves the Flitig Indians, Eskimos, and Coast Guardsmen in the area. Pat reports that the weather on the day of daughter Staley Beth's christening (incidentally, Christmas baby) was warmer than in Pittsburgh, and that the scenery is absolute spectacular, altogether a far cry from my own mental image of Alaska.

Mary Ann Conti Sheline plans to retire from teaching at about the same time she completes her master's degree. She's been doing work in the natural sciences, particularly biology and chemistry, at Carnegie-Mellon University, which, for the benefit of you out-of-towners, is the new designation for that place we used to call "Tech."

Meg Alexander Sprenkle, now the mother of two young ladies, finds time each week to do volunteer work for a local library and has just begun a term on the board of Directors. Perhaps she ought to hire Mary Cook Guy, the gal with all the short names, who will have completed her degree in library science in August! Mary and Don are still at the University of Illinois where he is a Ph.D. candidate, specializing in the Soviet economy. Mary hints that a trip to Russia might add spice to their life but adds that it hardly seems likely.

Ellen Block Blumenthal and daughter Linda were delighted to welcome their husband and father, respectively, safely back from Vietnam. They have bought a new home in Baltimore, and Linda is already attending nursery school.

Apparently Stephanie Cooperman Parker has retired, temporarily at least, from the sky-diving she was indulging in a while back. Motherhood, she admits, has its compensations. The Parkers are now in Cleveland where Alan is doing his residency training in surgery at the Cleveland Clinic, and I got the impression that Stevie doesn't consider Cleveland a satisfactory substitute for California.

Betty Bennett Morrow, on the other hand, is thrilled about her relocation to the city of Lincoln, Nebraska, after having spent three years in a small rural town. Mel is studying math and computer science in the graduate school of the University of Nebraska. Jan Carver King and George visited the Morrows last summer on their way to California. Jan has begun teaching computer programming in the math department at the University of New Hampshire and reports, "I've never worked so hard in my life."

Newest bride, Grace Bailey Miller, and her husband John are both teaching school, Grace at Swissvale High School in suburban Pittsburgh. She had previously been doing graduate work in theater arts at the University of Denver.

The prospect of a trip abroad in the spring has kept Linda Cooper Brodson from complete despair over a winter of snow, Asian flu, and the tax season (John is a C.P.A.). Also, she has done quite a lot of painting and feels she has made great strides, as her art work is no longer confined to a special niche behind the furnace.

My sincerest admiration goes out, again, to Margie Conner, who is continuing to work in a program of preparing people to teach in the city ghetto, a job she can speak knowledgeably about, for she is currently teaching a slow second grade in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. I hesitate to re-interpret Margie's letter, for fear that I might blanket some of the genuine enthusiasm which comes through in her own words, "All my kids are black and they are nice, vital, interesting children. The fact is, they wouldn't be so slow if the school came up with some way to compensate for what the home cannot do. This is, of course, up to the new teachers, but I can tell you that it is a hard goal to meet. At any rate, I can say that I've finally found my slot—there's no job like this."

Nancy Fendrich reporting:

First, before I cause too much confusion, my apologies for urging every one to attend our FIFTH Reunion this June. I automatically assumed that since this is our Fifth year out of Chatham that we would be reuniting. We aren't—not this year anyway. Guess it was wishful thinking on my part. Anyhow, hope to see you all when we do in 1970, when we will come back with the classes of 1960, 1961 and 1962.

Had a nice note from Bonnie George Switzer. She and her husband Bob are busy preparing for a year's stay in Munich beginning in September. Bob has a fellowship from the Public Health Service to do bio-chemical research in Noble Prize Winner Professor Lynen's lab. They are both taking lessons in German. Bonnie has her hands full with her "mischievous" son Brian who is almost a year old, but still finds time to take a course in ceramics and to progress to the stage where she is ready for her own potter's wheel. The Switzers extend a welcome to any '63er who is in the Washington, D. C. area. We'd all better hurry as September is fast approaching.

I am pleased to hear that at last, after five months, Susie Herb Richard is out of the hospital. Sue, her husband George and daughter Kathy are a family again and Sue is busy adjusting to full-time motherhood, just in time to catch Kathy at that devilish stage. The Richards also extend a welcome to any of us who are in the area—an invitation which Jan Skeloski Matey and husband John have already utilized.

As I had anticipated, Sheila Grobe Rossbach's newsy note was a delight. Her life continues to be full of excitement garnished with that international flavor. Sheila reports from her "modest Schloss on the banks of Father Rhine" that she is still very much involved in social work, dealing not only with local German clients but also with the U. S. Air Force Child Guidance Clinic. Her description of her work was fascinating even though it did confuse me. Sheila and her international lawyer Ande were home last summer visiting family and friends. Let's hope they return again soon so that more of us can hear of their experiences first-hand.

Rachel Gorr Johnson continues to be kept quite busy with her ever-growing twins. Her husband Ted took a new job which brought them back to Pittsburgh—another '63er to join the crowd already there.

Ann Frank Fisch completed her M.A. degree in Mediterranean Studies at Brandeis University, and is now teaching ancient and world histories in a Brooklyn high school. Anne too must join the ranks of those always-on-the-go mothers and career women as daughter Debbie is now three years old.

Nancy Fleming Demoise and husband Chuck have joined us New Yorkers or suburbanites thereof. Chuck received his Ph.D. last summer, and in the fall they moved to Long Island where he is a post-doctoral fellow in the medical division of Brookhaven National Laboratory. Nancy is teaching high school chemistry.

Mickey Kammerman Kurzbard expects to graduate from Law School this summer and her husband Steve will finish his residency in August. Good grief! A doctor and a lawyer in one family!

Pam Johnson Fenner's long newsy letter was most welcome. She has been busy fixing-up their home, redecorating, sewing, taking courses at the Boston and Cambridge Adult Education Centers, and trying to keep up with her daughter Liesel who is at that age. How Pam still finds time to entertain in lavish style is beyond me, yet, that New Year's Eve Arabian Bachanalia sounded like wild fun!

Sue Hunt Roose quit working last summer, and since then she and Jack have two additions to their household—Rusti, a Saint Bernard Puppy, and Debbie, their daughter born in August. That sounds like having two babies around!

Patti Dobyan Lupton is still full of energy after all of these years. In addition to a confession that she has become quite attached to the southern "Rebel" way of life, Patti gave a very vivid description of what it's like to bring up three boys, including twins. Her oldest is about to enter school. She seems to have latched onto an enviable system—not only does she steal one day a week all for herself to do volunteer work in community projects, shop, etc., but husband Baker is sending Patti and the children to Florida for a month of sun, surf and rest.

Jane Eisenberg is living in New York City and is working as an assistant to the Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Sanitation of New York City. I imagine that was a particularly fascinating job during this fair city's latest crisis—the garbage strike! Jane is also a graduate student in political science at New York University.

Marion Jo Blank Glick writes of her active life with a growing family—one in first grade, one in nursery school and a new baby boy. Jo and her husband took a trip to England last spring, and she's been taking courses at a local university.

And I . . . life is going on as usual with not too many changes. I am still working at the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company in the international money market, foreign exchange field. Susan Bradley and I, since we both work on Wall Street, have lunch together quite often, giving us a chance to catch up on gossip. I love hearing from every one although I do wish some of you had gone into a wee bit more detail.

Marty reporting:

Barbara Kessel Bloxson and husband Ray both had a busy 1967. Barbara retired from teaching third grade and stays busy and happy with Jennifer. Ray finished law school, passed his exams for the Kansas Bar Association, and now works with a Topeka law firm.

A note from Judy Launer Palkovitz tells us she is taking graduate courses while working full time at the Institute of Government, University of Virginia. Husband Harry will complete his residency in neurology in July 1969.

A promotion was earned by Bonnie Ann LoBue at Rockefeller University, where she is now head of the Biological Preparation Department. Bonnie still finds time to travel—last year to Arizona at Christmas, and skiing weekends in New England. She is also working on the local Ambulance Corps.

Sally Mercke has moved into the position of program administrator at Arthur D. Little, Inc., for an industrial development management training program for thirteen Africans from six countries. Weekends are filled with visitors, trips to New York and infinite ski trips. The many other Chathamites in the area can feel free to drop in at her new apartment, furnished in "Early Mercke."

A new job for Howard with a law firm in Milwaukee sent Elaine Mazer Myers to Wisconsin to live in November 1966. Elaine has been working as a school social worker with the Milwaukee Public Schools—a different sort of challenge, says Elaine. They hope to move into their first "house" home in the spring.

Margot Myers Clark is very happy in her new role as mother to an active, inquisitive daughter; Alexis appears to be, and rightly so, the most wonderful part of the Clark's world. Margot was in Pittsburgh twice last year and visited with Diane Brutout Neimann and Lolly Smith.

The grapevine has found Judy Myers for us; Judy is now at Indiana University in Bloomington, busily working on her Ph.D. in zoology.

It's always fun to hear from associate members of our class. A new member this year is Janet Greenlee Robanna. Janet graduated from Ohio University in June 1963, Phi Beta Kappa in sociology. After two years of teaching, she and Kalil, a chemistry teacher, have a 75-acre farm where they raise sheep, beef cattle and their two children.

Cassie Heckler Romain, after leaving Chatham in 1961, transferred to Columbia University School of Nursing to receive a B.S. degree in 1964. After several interesting positions in New York, and marriage to Michael, they have moved to Middletown and have been busy setting up Michael's dental practice. Cassie is now Michael's nurse, and finds it fun and rewarding to watch his practice grow.

Cassie sends news of three other onetime Chathamites. Joy Johnson Mills and Barbara Binkert also transferred to Columbia with Cassie. Joy is now in Taiwan with her husband. Barbara joined the Neurological Institute at Columbia Medical Center after receiving her degree. Carol Llewellyn Dean has moved to Colorado with her husband and two young children.

Sue Hill Warner and husband Edward now reside in Raleigh, where Edward is employed in an engineer-architect firm while working on his master's degree in mechanical engineering. Sue keeps busy with their new daughter, and finds time to do some tutoring in reading.

Jane Martin wrote a fascinating letter from Kenya, where she is doing anthropologic comparative studies for a Child Development Research project financed by Carnegie Corporation through Harvard and University College (Nairobi). The work includes field trips "up-country" to test children of various tribes, and a concentration on a particular community and its children. The work sounds like H.D. & B. come to life, and Jane is enjoying it as well as the country and the people.

As for myself, Marty, I "retired" in May and spent the summer learning to keep house (finally!) and waiting and watching in awe and suspense until I joined the ranks of happy, frustrated motherhood. According to "the charts," Rob at five months is the size of an eleven-monther, and he's composite of angel and imp. Bruce has received a couple promotions as he moved to a different department, same company, and he continues to teach some night courses besides. Many thanks to all of you who replied to my pleas for news this year—I certainly enjoyed hearing from you.

Nancy Beach reporting:

It was wonderful to hear from so many old friends—almost 100% response this year. Wish I could have the whole Recorder for the good news from all.

Ba Norris Missen sends us greetings from London. She and David are theatrical "angels" (watch for the Man in the Glass Booth—their latest and headed for Broadway), busy with David's public relations firm, and quaffing the ale with Guy and Luli Davis Wareing. Super!

Di Phillips is immersed in practical politics—a true child of Ye Olde Modern Society. After a "worthwhile, totally involv- ing experience" as a staff member of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorder, Di worked on a research project and is now the state coordinator of citizens' groups for a Senatorial nominee.

Although Ann Niedermeyer Fox is busy as wife and mother of three, she, too, carries on in our apparent tradition of involvement. Ann's focus—the American Association of University Women.

Susan Popkey Harris is now program director of the reading program for poverty area elementary schools in Seattle. Mark is doing some exciting film work and has an Academy Award Nomination for his movie on saving the redwoods in California.

New homes seem to be another common experience for the Class of 63. Judy Paulsen Webb, Carolyn Rodgers Flood, Pinky Rosen Lebovitz and families are busy settling in. Helen Roesing Monroe has the added attraction of a "pot shop"—kiln and clay, that is—in their basement.

"Nothing new" says Betsy Phelps Tucker. Zebun Kahn Islam and family visited, and Betsy extends the same warm welcome to all friends in the area. Lucy Resnic Derechin and husband, complete with children and dogs, will be off to California soon where Michael will do work in hematology at U.C.L.A. Sandy Rossio Molinoro sends greetings to all.

Sue Rockwell Coen and baby Timmy are eagerly awaiting Jim's homecoming from overseas duty. Sue reports that Timmy is a "true delight." Sue Johnson Dyer sends cheery greetings. The Dyers are a busi- ness faculty couple along with Elena Love Gail- lard and husband at St. Mark's School.

It was good to hear from Bobbie Laike Funkenstein. Dan is a fourth year medical student at Harvard, and Bobbie is a psychiatric social worker at Children's Hospital.

I'm finding my job with First National City Bank more fascinating every turn. This year my travels took me to the Soviet Union—a most revealing and rewarding experience. Wish it could be a part of Chatham's basic curriculum.

Thanks again for all the news.

Gail reporting:

As a newcomer to the post of class secretary, I am thoroughly enjoying myself and love to hear from so many of my classmates again. Thanks to all the fast replies! 'Twas appreciated!

Starting in the west, word comes from Debbie Wolowitz Cowan and Dianne Rubin Newman, representing Euclid and Akron, Ohio respectively. Debbie has a new job, being consultant on federal programs to the superintendent of Cleveland Public Schools. This is in addition to being a patient wife and helper to physician husband Dale. Debbie and Dianne both cheered up the mailman who serves our apartment, with their most colorful felt tip pens. Dianne's witty reply to the question of new job was "chauffeur, cook, steno, slave." She's still going to school (a trait found in almost all people on my list) and has begun a master's in ancient history at Akron University. Presently, she combines hieroglyphics and Egyptology with skiing, and husband Herb adds his new law practice to this combination. What an active family! While attending a Chatham Alumnae meeting, Dianne met Betsy Phelps Tucker. Ohio is getting smaller every day.

Stopping off in Pittsburgh, we find Paulette Schultz Krause busily being wife, substitute teacher, and most recently the mother of a delightful daughter (I quote Paulette). She reports that Pat Burda Slawinski is busy keeping house in Alaska. That's what I call really "getting away from it all."

Heading south to Baltimore, Joan Salas Green greets us as the bride of this section of our class. She was just married a year. I wrote this class news, and had recently received a master's degree in food service from University of Guelph in Canada. The new bridegroom is an electro chemist with Research Institute for Advanced Studies in Baltimore. Looks like 1968 is her year. Judy Strain Barton leads us into Virginia and into her new home. Her husband is a staff member of Post Office and Civil Service Committee, U. S. House of Representatives.

lives. Daughter Jennifer, aged 1½, is entertaining the household with her "antics."

Barb Shullman Young's newsy letter brings our tour to Ithaca where she and Steve are up to their ears in education at Cornell. Steve is finishing at Sloan Institute of Hospital and Medical Care Administration of the Graduate School of Business and Public Administration and will get his M.B.A. in June. Barb joins him in degrees, with her M.A., also due in June. She has been in grad school since last year, and had an assistantship in counseling in home economics. "Joel, age 2, won't know what to do with mother home all day," to quote Barb. Life is not dull in the Young household! Barb saw Nan Hall Lombardi and spoke to Nancy Beach, as well as had a surprise visit from Linda Cooper Brodson and John who were returning from Expo. Seems that Barb is running her own Chatham alumnae chapter.

A quick trip to Italy finds Susan Wilson working at Berenson's Villa "I Tatti" in Florence. This is the Harvard University Center for Italian Renaissance Studies, and it is Susan's 2nd year. I quote Sue: "I love it here." And her letter shows that Italy and Susan are very happy together.

Betsy Snyder Cottingham just made my deadline with her news of a fabulous trip to Mexico, expansion of Bob's store (home furnishings, anyone?) and a most active bundle of energy, Bill aged 1½. Betsy sounds most happy and very much a part of suburban Chicago.

It is very logical (and also sneaky) that our "tour" ends up in my neck of the woods, the Philadelphia area. But I'm pleased to say that this area is well-populated with Chatham alumnae. First, Louise Sonnenberg is at Lankenau Hospital as an intern, having earned her degree one day before "our household." She was the first to answer my letter, and being an intern's wife, I know how busy Louise is. Her comment on news was, "I am a busy and happy intern." And that's quite a lot!

Nancy Sander Haas is located in Wayne. She is occupied with daughter Kathy who has walked since nine months. She is also substituting elementary school in Radnor and Upper Merion townships. Her husband Dave is a pilot, and one easily sees no boredom for Nancy.

Caroline Whaley has been teaching at Temple University, Western Civilization, no less. She is working on her doctorate in history, and for novelty, took her three-week semester break in the form of a jaunt to India. Lucky gal! I've not gotten together with her for lunch yet, but hope to do so before the next Recorder.

As far as the Verlin household (formerly Gail Bloom) goes, things are relatively quiet. Mike is at Albert Einstein Medical Center as an intern. Because of all his night duties, I've lots more free time than I ever did, and now am sewing, knitting, and studying. I'm still working for a master's degree in music history at Temple University and continually see Mr. Clifford Taylor (formerly at Chatham). Also on a large wall in the music building hangs a most vibrant work by Mr. LeClair, also formerly of Chatham. So even at Temple, with all its thousands of students, I'm surrounded by Chatham. We are remaining in Philadelphia because Mike will be a first-year resident in internal medicine at Einstein in July. I'm still teaching music in Cherry Hill. Come and visit if you're in the area. We'd love to see you.

Marsha reporting:

Susie Archer Dawes and Lou enjoyed a happy year which included two weeks vacation in Wyoming with Lynn Schreiber Glasser and Steve. Lou plans to go to graduate school in the fall.

After receiving her M.A. in European history from Pitt in August, 1967, Sue Atherton Kleine is teaching social studies at Fifth Avenue High School in the Hill District. She describes the job as a "real challenge—to say the least." She still sees a lot of Nancy Speck, Mary Krein Howarth and Ellie Raden.

Other classmates who are pursuing graduate degrees include Bonnie Dallas Palmer. She received her M.A. in English from Michigan State University in June, 1967 and is "still plodding along with a year-and-a-half to go for the doctorate." Husband Rick is a doctoral candidate in biochemistry.

Ginny Damato is teaching high school English and speech in Trumbull, Connecticut and hopes to finish her M.S. in education this summer, go to Mexico for the Olympics, and move to Westchester, N. Y. to teach in the fall.

Ginny Fisher O'Leary is very busy as a lecturer in psychology in the Graduate School of Nursing at the University of Michigan while also finishing work on her Ph.D. in social psychology at Wayne State University, which she hopes to complete by September or December.

From the Westfield, New Jersey Leader, we learn that Barbara Bauman's Peace Corps group assignment in Afghanistan is taking her to the rural areas to participate in mass immunization against smallpox and cholera.

Sheila Bennett Harris is meeting lots of interesting people while working in her husband's new lighting showroom in the North Hills area. She enjoyed seeing Pam (Stirba) and Bill Russell and their new daughter on New Year's weekend. She is also chairman of a program for young mothers in the area, Mother's Day Out, which offers a stimulating change from household toil.

Becky Bennett Wallace reports she is enjoying married life. Her husband is in law school. She and Patty Baisler Van Amberg were in each other's wedding.

Bibi Boles is to be married in April when Sam returns from Vietnam. He will have five more months in the Army and then will return to graduate work at UCLA and Bibi will continue acting whenever possible.

Joan Bretz Peirce (please note correction of spelling!) and husband Jim are enjoying living in Chicago. Jim is the business economist for a large corporation and Joan is assistant to the international economist of a large Chicago bank. She has to complete a thesis to receive her M.A.

Diane Browarsky Levine writes that she, David and new son will return to the U.S. in March. When David gets out of the Army in July he will begin his Ph.D. in preventive medicine and Public Health, either at Johns Hopkins, Berkeley or the University of Seattle. Diane then hopes to teach part time or take a graduate course.

After spending an enjoyable year in New York City, Sally Brown Lincoln reports that in January her husband was transferred to Los Angeles as salesman for American Hospital Supply Company. They were both looking forward to the change. Sally was in Carol Hartman Elden's wedding in July, 1967.

Carol Craven Kratz finds living in Taranto, Italy (a small town in the heel of the boot) "interesting, challenging and frustrating." Her husband is working for Westinghouse there, as is Sandy Geldman Forquer's husband. The four of them spend much time together. Anyone going to Italy is invited to visit them.

Pam Davis McGee began doing social work for the Los Angeles Department of Social Service in Long Beach last May when husband Hugh left for nine months of patrolling off Vietnam in a Navy mine sweeper.

Sandy Ellis Kercher reports that they are enjoying the beautiful State of Oregon, where Dave is an administrative trainee with a pulp and paper company. Sandy is busy with new daughter Kimberly and is enjoying the climate which permits year-round golfing.

Janie Flaster Biggard still adores teaching and finds her work at the School for Blind Children quite rewarding.

Linda Breittel Paetz received her master's in library science from Pitt in April and was elected to Beta Phi Mu, International Library Science Honor Society after graduation. She is now the assistant head of the order section at the new University of Pittsburgh Hillman Library, a job she finds very exciting. She sees a lot of Mary Krein Howarth who recently joined the library staff. Linda's husband has been promoted to senior engineer with the Allis-Chalmers Company.

As for your reporter, I left Senator Boggs' office in March, 1967 to work in the newly opened Romney for President Committee Headquarters in downtown Washington. Although I was only there for three months, it was a fascinating experience—and much hard work. During the summer months I was busy getting ready to move back to Pittsburgh in the fall (looking for a place to live, etc.) and did manage to tag along with John on a two-week business trip south to Mississippi and New Orleans. We moved October 1. John is working in the U. S. Attorney's office and is getting lots of trial experience. I enjoyed seeing Sally Brown Lincoln and Carol Hartman Elden at Carol's wedding in July. It was great to hear from so many of you this year!

News from Associate class members:

Linda Berg graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1965 and has been teaching primary grades in a Philadelphia public school. She recently completed work for her master's degree in elementary education at Temple University.

Francie Darr Aley and family are now living in New England where Tom has a new job as national sales manager for Sylvania's Hospital Communications Systems. They see a lot of Sid and Patti Brenman and Mike and Jane Eden.

Penny Embry McGoey is busy "Gillian-raising and loving it!" Husband Bob was recently appointed Assistant District Attorney in Westchester County, N. Y. Penny requests that anyone knowing the whereabouts of Peggy Redmond Bittner please let her know.

Myra reporting:

Georgetown, Delaware, was the scene of Judy Goslee Dias' June wedding, in which Rosemary Cesarone, Carol Craven Kratz, and Ann McClure Hall served as bridesmaids. Ann writes, "It was truly beautiful—the reception was held under a marquis in her yard." After a honeymoon at St. Maarten's in the West Indies, Judy and Dennis returned to Pittsburgh and Judy to work at Mellon Bank.

In August Ann McClure Hall took the long walk, and after a Cape Cod honeymoon she and Jack returned to Pittsburgh, where Ann continues her public relations work at U. S. Steel. At home Ann keeps busy learning to cook and arguing with Jack, a second year law student at Duquesne, that "ramifications" and "lines of reasoning" are every bit as important as the decisions themselves. Mr. Ossman would be proud of her.

Carol Hartman Elden, at whose July wedding Sally Brown Lincoln was matron of honor, has been having a long Philippine honeymoon. Stationed at Subic Bay, husband Tom is a legal officer, and Carol is teaching piano lessons, tutoring, participating in a volunteer reading group for the local elementary schools, and working on a committee that entertains Marines in training for Vietnam. The Eldens spent a week in Hong Kong and even "got a peek at Communist China, too!"

David, who has been working on a research project for Mellon Bank, and Susie Haas Nordby have been living in London near Regent's Park and "are neighbors with the best zoo and its inhabitants." Travel has been exciting for the Nordbys, who in November were in garbage-struck Rome, "it had a quaint medieval flavor," and who at Christmastime visited Paris, "a rainy but lovely fairyland." Susie returned to Pittsburgh in February, where she is preparing their "first and final house" for David's arrival later. We extend our sympathy to Susan whose father died in March.

Sandy Goldman Forquer writes of a blissful life of relaxation, social activity (especially with neighbor Carol Craven Kratz), and travel. She and Tim played Lord and Lady for awhile in a castle-converted hotel in Ireland, and other trips have included Sicily, Greece, and the United States. Summer was especially marvelous with a long visit from Sandy's sister Linda, a Chatham senior. Sandy closes, "Carol and I amuse ourselves by fighting spinal meningitis epidemics, helping a tad with the Sicilian earthquake crisis, and cooking brownies and chocolate chip cookies to keep our men happy. Our best regards to all."

Judy Haberman Katz and husband Robert visited the United States last spring, "returning to Israel just in time for the beginning of the pre-war tension. Since the war we (and the rest of the country!) have been doing some travelling in the new territories, and of course getting used to living in re-united Jerusalem."

Bev Hamilton writes that she is finishing her graduate work at Pitt School of Social Work . . . "finally!" Bev, who will receive her master's in April, has accepted a position starting in May at Presbyterian-University Hospital as a medical social worker. Congratulations, Bev!

Linda Harris Howard's husband, a sergeant in the Air Force, is stationed at Lowry Air Force Base in Denver. While Harold attends school part time in engineering, Linda attends to "Diapers! Diapers! Diapers!"

Sara Heslep is pleased to report a recent promotion at the admissions office of the University of Chicago; she will shortly assume the position of assistant to the Coordinator for Government Fellowships and Training Programs. Sara is kept busy with the tutoring of a Japanese student in English, and with singing in the Collegium Musicum Chorus and the Episcopal Student Concert Choir. She is particularly looking forward to Vivaldi's "Gloria" as an Easter work.

Elaine Hillman Moroney knows what she means; she describes herself as "a professional Mom, and a doting one at that." The red tape has been frustrating but Elaine and Mike are making arrangements to return to the United States and are dying to show off the irresistible Catherine. From her picture, she's a charmer indeed.

Sidney Hudig has the glamorous job of managing the Galleria Clothing Boutique in Miller's shoe store. Sidney went sailing last summer and fall, and "finally bought skis in hopes of becoming a good skier." Sidney also spent "a fantastic Mexico vacation last year 'way down at the bottom of Baja California."

Lynne Jack Porterfield is up to her eyebrows in drama work at Kent State University. Aspiring to receive her master's this summer, she is reading and writing for her thesis on the first female Restoration playwright to earn a living from the theatre. In addition, Lynne is Director of Family Plays for Kent State University and the Ohio Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction.

Congratulations to Heather Johnston, to whom was recently awarded a master of science degree from the State University of New York at Buffalo. Heather writes: spent the summer as a unit leader in Girl Scout camp outside Cincinnati, with time out for Diane Brutout Neimann's wedding. Plan to go back this summer as business manager. Spent first semester living in a cottage on a lake—very Thoreau; but I plan to move to Iowa City very soon—close to where the action is (and incidentally the computer), as it were. Future plans remain the same: perpetual student syndrome."

Nancy Johnson is leading a tranquil life in Boston as a caseworker for the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind. Nancy, who is living with Barbara Zitko and two others, is planning a March vacation to California.

John and Linda Kates Meyer had a happy 1967. John took the California bar exam in August, and the news that he had passed arrived just in time to greet little Laura. Now living in a house and the owners of an endearing Bassett hound, Linda and John love the climate, the slower pace of living, and the variety of things to do. However, after staying in California for two years, the Meyers are looking forward to a trip east this June.

Evie Kinast McElhane describes little David as "a real H. D. and B. practicum!" Evie has been very absorbed in political involvement. A convinced opponent of the war in Vietnam, she has been knocking on doors, taking polls, and distributing literature. Also she has been doing some typing at home; "it's extra money, and it keeps my hands in shape for Ron's thesis!"

Mary Krein Howarth tells of the Junior Sixties Alumnae Club successes with the Man for All Seasons and Gone with the Wind benefits, and of an exciting whirlwind tour to Europe—seven cities in two weeks! The Battle of the Gnats spiced up the Howarth's camping vacation in August to Expo. Mary's Christmas present from Pitt was a master's degree in library science, and she is now a systems analyst at the University's new Hillman Library.

Bridget Kumutat Allen enjoys her position as a "full time 'hausfrau.'" Richard joined the staff at Bucknell University, and now "we and two semi-German shepherds live in a quaint little old house about fifty feet from the Susquehanna River."

Karen Kvam sends her greetings from her work at a ski resort not too far from Innsbruck, Austria. Karen, who traveled part of the four months with Barbara Zitko, visited many European countries and spent several very enjoyable weeks with Elaine Hillman Moroney in London.

Linda Lanius Tomlins and Jack are the proud owners of a new contemporary house and a new dachshund puppy. Jack is enjoying his associate professorship at his alma mater, the University of New Mexico, and Linda is taking beginning Portuguese at the University. She enjoys the chance to use her Spanish with the large Mexican population. The Tomlins like the southwestern sun, the side-trips to Mexico, and a more relaxed pace of living.

Blissfully taking care of a punning husband, two active young ones, and a perpetually mischievous puppy (with the misleading name of Lambchop), Linda Marsh McGurk couldn't be happier. She and Jack bought a "dream of a house—150 years old, colonial two-story with barn, spacious yard with roses and lilacs, and complete with white picket fence covered with trumpet vines. What a welcome change after a small apartment and a grumpy landlord!"

After taking education courses this summer (but no practice teaching yet), I (Myra Hull Gillum) have since been teaching English and sponsoring the school paper in a suburban junior high school. With a dynamic principal, interested faculty, and children who have a good sense of humor, I thoroughly enjoy my job, even though it certainly is a lot of work. Gary is in his second year at the University of Chicago and still loves economics as much as ever.

Pat reporting:

Much news has come from members of our class who continue to be involved in the academic world, either as students or teachers. Nearing completion of work on their master's degrees are Martha Repman (library science at Drexel), Beverly Miller (teaching of reading at Michigan State University), and Janice Patterson (clothing and textiles at Pennsylvania State University). Next fall Beverly intends to return to "the other side of the desk" and teach. She and her fiancé apparently share a love for this vocation; and they will, in years to come, be molding young minds out in the midwest. Janice is presently working on her thesis proposal, but, this summer she deserted the "hallowed halls." Janice and her mother spent six weeks travelling in Europe in "Petunia," a new V.W. Then it was back to the U.S.A., grad school, and work. However, the Christmas break gave Janice an opportunity to visit with Dottie Raymond Matsui and Yas. Dottie, I understand, is working as a high school librarian in Urbana, Illinois, while Yas is involved in work on his M.F.A. at the University of Illinois.

Francie Meyers writes of the "breather" she's taking before beginning work on a Ph.D., but it doesn't sound like much of a rest to me! Having received her M.A. in theatre and speech from Cornell last June, she is now living in Brooklyn Heights and teaching speech and doing speech correction work at Brooklyn College.

One of our teachers, Maxine Ruter, is also keeping quite busy these days. Her attentions are divided between her fourth grade class in Livingston, N. J., and making plans for an August 11 wedding. Can't help wondering if those attentions are evenly divided, Max!

Max has been "in touch" with several of our former classmates. Among them are Joan Montgomery Waltz, Patsy Scarry Jones, and Jill Squire Popish. Joan and her family live in Woodbridge, Conn., and husband Fred is a senior methods analyst for Phoenix Mutual Life—Hartford.

Patsy writes about a new addition to the Jones family, Taurus. He's an SPCA "special" and can do NO tricks! (Well, Patsy, that is some kind of a distinction!) Besides her work as a sixth grade teacher Mrs. Jones has become, in her words, "an auction-haunter" who is "absolutely indiscriminate when it comes to buying things." Although husband Ralph is busy with graduate studies in chemistry at Cornell, he enjoys taking time out to refinish some of Patsy's "super finds." Sounds good!

Good news from Susan Michaels Oringer and Pam Proksa Patt. Boys! Boys! Boys! Susan and husband Mark, who is doing his internship in surgery at Johns Hopkins Hospital, are the very proud parents of a young son. Pam and Jules Patt have three new babies, all boys! Pam tells of six exciting weeks spent in Israel during the June war. "Lovely place if you can duck fast enough!" says Mrs. Patt. Now Pam's exciting days continue as she carries out her duties as "mother extraordinaire."

The "working world" has claimed many of our classmates. A letter from Ellie Raden in Philadelphia made me absolutely dizzy with its resumé of her busy schedule. Ellie's major job is rehabilitation counselor for the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation at a halfway house in Philadelphia. She also attends graduate school at Temple University Evening Division in the field of rehabilitation, teaches music, conducts the youth choir at the Reformed Congregation Keneseth Israel in Elkins Park, is a member of the Singing City Choir (which sings at the Academy of Music with the Philadelphia Orchestra and Eugene Ormandy), and is a youth advisor with the Pennsylvania Federation of Temple Youth. You gave the understatement of the year when you said you were "busy," Ellie!

I hadn't even caught my breath when Lynn Schreiber Glasser's letter came. She describes her career as "whirlwind," and I certainly must agree with her. For the past two years Lynn has been the publications editor for the Institute of Continuing Legal Education at the University of Michigan Law School where husband Steve will finish in June. In her capacity our former classmate supervises a staff of ten, is responsible for the production and publication of numerous books and brochures, and travels across the country making conference arrangements for institute programs. Is there more? Yes! Lynn was recently elected vice president of Seminar Consultants, Inc. and has been a consultant to American Trial Lawyers Association for whom she edited the book, Winning Trial Tactics. Although it seems unbelievable, Lynn and Steve managed to take the time to vacation in Wyoming last summer with Suzanne Archer Daves and Lou.

Barb Schneider and Jane Levitt are both working in New York City. Barb received a promotion from her firm and is now working in the regional office as the executive secretary for the Eastern Regional Marketing Manager. Impressive title! Meanwhile, in another part of the big city, Jane is working for the India Council of the Asia Society, which all sounds like fascinating work.

Another member of our class has a job with real "international flavor," a writer for the Peace Corps at its Washington Headquarters. The writer is Myra Mensh. So, if you see a Peace Corps brochure, magazine article, or press release, it might have been written by Myra. Myra is going to get some first-hand international experience on her three-week vacation to Israel. While there she will stay with Judy Haberman Katz, her former roommate, and Judy's husband Robert.

By the time this Recorder goes to press Miss Susanne Newton will be Mrs.! Her husband, Laird Robert Kelly, is in public relations work for T.W.A. and is sweeping Susanne off—first to Portugal for what sounds like a terribly romantic honeymoon, and, then, to California where the Kellys will live.

Niki Neese Lallande and I are both Navy wives with our husbands completing their last years of obligated service. Niki and Joe are stationed in Norfolk, Va. Joe's ship is home-ported there, but, as Niki wrote, this doesn't mean that Joe is always at home. Last year he was gone for seven months on a Mediterranean cruise. Niki followed the ship for three months but was able to see Joe only three times due to the Middle East and Greek crises. Although her travels would have been much more enjoyable with hubby along, Niki still enjoyed Europe (Northern Europe, Italy, Crete, and Athens). Upon her return to the States Niki attended Betty Bennett's wedding with Genia Royston Brown and Taylor. She is now working for the Welfare Dept. as a social worker in the Family Service Division, and plans to spend her spare time with Joe on the new, small sailboat.

After all the excitement of our wedding and a marvelous week in Bermuda, Susan and I happily settled down to the delightful routine of married life. We're living in Boston where Sid is the Naval Reserve Officer School Program Officer (What a handle!) for the Commandant of the Fifth Naval District. I, too, have become active in Naval organizations, such as the Officers' Wives Club and the Navy Relief Society. We are thoroughly enchanted with Boston and will miss the city and, more especially, our friends when we leave. We've found that many of our college friends live in the area. My former roommate, Jane Tobey Eden, and Mike live in the same apartment building as we do. Many an afternoon dinner has been a late because Janie and I have extended our enjoyable afternoon coffee break! Francie Darr Aley and family also live only a short drive from us. And, we've all spent some very enjoyable hours visiting in their lovely new home. To sum it up, the Bremans are very happy.

Before I close I'd like to thank all of you who took the time to reply. It is so fun to hear from all of you, and I look forward to it each spring. Do have a good year, everyone!

Jane reporting:

Nancy Speck, in her second year at the University of Pittsburgh Law School, is helping to administer the Moot Court Program, and had a note published in the March issue of the Pitt Law Review on the study of wisdom and constitutionality of Pennsylvania's recently enacted parental ability statute.

A new home and the arrival of Jennifer have been keeping Pam Stirba Russ busy. She still finds time however, to actively participate in the Dames Club at Lehigh University where Bill is working part time for his Ph.D. in economics.

Ginny Stretton Smith and Doug, busy with landscaping and remodeling their home, have also found time to partake in the hunting and fishing Michigan's lakes and woodlands provide. Ginny has been

It sounds as though Diana Wirsig Gerrity hasn't sat still for a minute this past year. A week after receiving her master's degree, she and Tom were married. They honeymooned in California and Mexico, (including a camping spree at the bottom of the Grand Canyon)! While Tom is finishing his Ph.D. at M.I.T., Diana, after spending a few months running a computer, divides her time between fashion modeling and editing manuscripts for the Atlantic Monthly Magazine. The Gerritys are also anticipating future travels. Their dream is Aspen and spring skiing.

After our wedding, Mike and I spent a glorious, but much too brief, week in Bermuda. These past months have found Mike at Polaroid and North Eastern University and me in front of thirty first-graders whom I adore. We are still enchanted with New England and divide our time between Boston's south shore and New Hampshire's ski slopes. This annual opportunity to catch up on each other's news is so enjoyable. A tremendous thank you to all who replied.

Evi Tamm to Jack Metcalf, a 1967 graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, and an accountant with Arthur Young and Co., of Pittsburgh.

Beverly Blazey to Richard C. Palmer, June, 1967

Marianne Williams to Lt. John Yatsco, June 29, 1967. John is in the United States Air Force.

Cooky C. reporting:

Four strong winds have blown us far since May. Mary Eaton, in the first year of a master's program at John Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, is specializing in South Asia.

"Still" Mary Boresz is also in Washington. She is working as a graduate assistant while attending American University in Urban Affairs. She directs, as part of her assistantship, the independent research projects of thirty Washington Semester students.

Three graduates, unable to drag themselves away from the academic atmosphere, have become administrators in varying capacities. Cary Cadman is director of part-time employment at McGill University in Montreal. She landed the job immediately after her term of service with Expo ended in October. Cary reports having seen Lucy Hilmer and Linda Van Doren Garlick, both of whom are in New York.

LoLita Dawson is development officer at Keuka College, where she does everything from fund-raising to writing foundation proposals. LoLita has her own home on Keuka Lake, one of the New York Finger Lakes. Anyone passing through the Rochester-Syracuse area is invited to view beautiful scenery and drink local wine.

Leigh Cluthe Tilder is working for Somerset County College, a new and growing college in New Jersey—so new and growing that it has barely chosen a site to develop on. Leigh's husband Geoffrey is with Banker's Trust Company of New York.

Jo Ann Eustace Walther teaches high school English at Cambridge High and Latin School. Fred is a first year doctoral student at M.I.T. This summer Jo Ann hopes to return to school at one of the local universities.

Jo Ann, along with Mary Rosenberger and Bonnie Birks, served as attendants in Penny Anderson Glarwell's wedding in July. Penny and Dave have bought a home in Ashland, Kentucky where Dave is a computer programmer for Ashland Oil and Refining Company. Penny is teaching twenty-two students of Appalachia, her own contribution to the poverty program, in the Boyd County Schools. Both Penny and Dave lead a youth group in Ashland. This summer Penny hopes to pick up a few courses at Marshall University.

Beverly Blazey Palmer, who started with us at Chatham, graduated from the University of Michigan in June, 1966 with a B.A. in psychology. She is now teaching special education at Grove City High School while working on her master's in guidance and helping to develop a personality test with an Ohio State University Hospital psychiatrist. Her husband Richard is in medical school at Ohio State.

Barbara-Lee Buxton Van Sciver is doing volunteer work for the Junior League in Pittsburgh, where Stephen is employed as a security analyst for Mellon Bank.

Erica Loren takes up much of mother Natalie Dingle Bazzell's time. Yet Nat somehow manages to do some substituting for the Pittsburgh Public Schools, an activity which has made her decide to teach. She is now back at Chatham for her education certificate. Creamer is doing community organization work for Hill House.

Jane Birmingham Hanley worked as a caseworker with Child Welfare Services of Allegheny County until the end of January, when she left Pittsburgh to join Terry at Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio, Texas where he is attending flight school.

Barbara Blodorn is working for Mellon Bank. Much of her time is taken up by preparations for her spring wedding.

Patricia Bandomer Rugh teaches deaf children at Bruce Street School for the Deaf in Newark, New Jersey. She is also attending Newark State Teacher's College for an advanced degree in special education.

Meryl Berman Guzinsky is doing protein research with the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health. Maggie is planning her assault on the world of scientific study when she someday publishes or perishes in one of the rarely read scientific journals. Her husband Robert is an insurance salesman in Pittsburgh.

Following her interest in archaeology, Ellen Dailey is attending Brandeis University in Mediterranean studies. She will be part of an archaeological excavation at Ashdod this summer, after which she will tour London, Paris, Rome and Athens. Ellen plans to return to Brandeis in the fall.

Betsy Crone, actively pursuing a career in political science, is helping Maryland revise its constitution. She served as a research assistant to the convention itself, and has now turned her energies toward a post-convention program designed to record their significant work and to educate the apathetic electorate so that it will be able to vote for the constitution in May's referendum. Betsy wishes to hint to all Maryland voters, in a non-partisan way, that they must vote for the constitution.

Marilyn Haines Doeller Blain is in Killean, Texas while Alexander is serving with the Second Armor Division of the United States Army.

Georgia Canellos is attending the University of Michigan for a master's in economics. She is also working toward a certificate in Russian and East European Studies.

Lenore Fellner Lessall, associate member of our class, is attending New York University in history. Her husband Kenneth is an executive with the Glemby Company.

In July Susan Schnapf, Nina Miller, Judy Fletcher, Lynn Hillman and I attended Nora Elizabeth Levy's wedding to William B. Johnston of Street, Somerset, England. Nora is currently attending school in Bristol to earn her teaching certificate.

After seven months of being a government bureaucrat for the Social Security Administration, I have given up government issued pen-pushing for the more creative and infinitely more satisfying world of psychiatric social work with Philadelphia State Hospital. Iris Raskin, my roommate, is momentarily leaving her job with Housing and Urban Development to join me; she plays sax in our salvation army band.

Liz reporting:

Graduate schools are where you will find many 67'ers:—Margaret Higgins Green, statistical research at the University of Washington's Virginia Mason Research Center; Pamela Johnson, English and teaching certification at Carnegie-Mellon University; Nancy Freudenthal, medieval history at Harvard University; and Gini Gold, political science at Syracuse University.

We also have our share of teachers in the schools this year. Diane Furrer Holzheimer and Lucille Finger Harding are teaching in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, and Piney Point, Maryland respectively. Suzanne Hershey takes the 6th grade through their paces at Minodeo Elementary School in Pittsburgh. Her duties include advising the newspaper staff. To relax from everyday trials, Suzanne plays her long-wished for harp and studies foreign languages. Connie Gray Voight is teaching 7th grade English and reading in Laredo, Texas. Her students are predominantly Spanish-speaking students. The most fabulous teaching assignment of all is the one that Connie Jones Crites and Robert share while they teach and enjoy a year in the sun in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

Jane Hope Ross is combining kindergarten teaching and graduate study in Chelsea, Massachusetts. She hopes to finish her master's in elementary guidance and counseling at Boston University next year. A similar course is being followed by Alice Crist Hunter who is substitute teaching in the Elmira Public Schools and working toward an education degree at Elmira College in New York.

Since June 28, 1967, Carol Heinz has been with the Peace Corps in Brazil.

While touring Europe last summer, Ellen Goldbloom Kight received a long distance proposal. Naturally she said "yes" and is now happily working at the Pittsburgh Playhouse as an assistant in public relations to the Community Affairs office.

Judith Gilbert Livingston is a computer programmer for the Social Security Administration in Baltimore, Maryland. Also with a new job is Emmy Hill, who is enjoying W. & J. frat parties and Pittsburgh's Urban Redevelopment Authority.

Lynn Hillman sent an amusing letter to tell us that after a trying term of art courses at Maryland Institute she is escaping to the Bahamas and London. She plans to work and live peacefully in London before moving on to non-Western places. Sounds like fun!

It was so good to hear from Judith Graytock Dengler who is the administrator for all of Alabama's Head Start Programs. Judy has had a chance to learn about Southern politics, George Wallace style.

Jill Haas Hobson has some unusual ideas up her sleeve. She's writing a series of stories and doing casework in New York City. Jill plans to begin painting and sculpture in her own studio at home while husband Larry works as a free-lance artist.

Jacqueline Gibbs Howells and husband Bill won a trip to Miami with IBM's 100% Club. Jackie reports that besides her little girl, Laura, she busies herself with bowling and refinishing antiques. Jackie writes that Alexis Mashuta Sellins had a baby girl in October, 1967. Alexis finished one year at Chatham and graduated from the University of Louisville last June.

As for me, Liz, it was a pleasure to hear from all my classmates. I'm teaching basic language arts skills in the Adult Education Component of the Pittsburgh Public Schools. At night I'm studying urban affairs at the University of Pittsburgh and taking up space at Chatham's library.

Cookie M. reporting:

It was great fun to receive news from the other side of the world. Sara Leuthy Chamberlain and Mike are spending their Peace Corps days in Micronesia teaching English. Kapingamarangi is an island paradise where mail reaches them only once every two months. They are truly happy with their new native friends, and they love living in bamboo huts and on diets of coconuts, breadfruit, and fish. How exotic!

Nora Levy Johnston is also living outside the country in Somerset, England, where her husband is an economist, and she is studying education at Redland College, Bristol. Kathy Marchant sends word from England, too. She is in London, and is optimistic that the British home office will declare her a desirable alien so she can stay permanently.

Elaine Levitt is perfecting her beautiful French accent as she prepares for a master's degree in French at Indiana University. After this, she will teach. Also in graduate school is Judy Light. She's at Pitt in the Department of Educational Research, and is living with Karen Lake, who is really enjoying her job as an assistant in clinical psychology at Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic.

Shadyside is still a bastion of Chathamites, with Judy London there, working as a research assistant with the Mayor's Committee on Human Resources (OEO agency in Pittsburgh). Debbie Little has become a budding young journalist for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, but plans to leave in the spring and move on to Boston for a possible stint in grad school. After a seven-year lapse, Debbie has resumed skiing, and longs for New England mountains. News from Chatham via this grapevine is that Laughlin House is finally and beautifully finished.

Nancy Lippman is back in Pittsburgh after a jaunt around Europe with Teg McAteer. They helped in the restoration of works of art in Florence, in between cultivating the art of cafe sitting. Nancy is thinking of returning to that historic city.

Members of Chatham's politically-minded crew stationed in Washington are Dale Kiesler and Meg McDonald. Dale is employed by the Food Stamp Program (U.S. Dept. of Agriculture), and deciding the fate of retailers who violate this program, in addition to taking courses in poli sci and doing volunteer work for a congressman. Meg is living with Mary Borecz in Georgetown and working on the staff of Sen. Peter H. Dominick of Colorado, with hopes of working in his Denver office (shades of skiing?). Pottery classes and singing Georgetown are keeping her busy.

Way down south, Margo McKay Mulligan and Jim are in Columbia, South Carolina, where he is a graduate student in chemistry at the University of South Carolina. She's working in the library there.

A few members of our class are seeing the insides of the armed forces. Martha King Evans and her husband Charles, a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Ordnance Corps, are finding army life pleasant in Aberdeen, Maryland. Linda McPhilliamy Nielsen and her husband George, who is a captain in the Army and an instructor pilot in the helicopter school, are in Fort Worth, Texas. Linda is successfully applying her education courses to teaching fifth grade, and writes that she spent a few days with Connie Gray Voight and her husband in Monterey, Mexico during Christmas.

Sandy Korman, an associate member of our class, is completing her master's degree at University of Akron, where she got her B.A. Sandy is studying speech pathology and audiology, and would like to hear from girls in our class, especially to compare notes with anyone else studying speech.

In the big city, Joan Lessing loves working for the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. She shares an apartment Jeanne Osterhout, while they explore the wonders of New York.

Kammy McCleery is participating in an unusual activity. As a field recreation worker with the American Red Cross in Vietnam, she spent a rewarding Christmas directing choirs and singing for over 8,000 marines, and has visited several of the major areas of battle during her six month stay in Danang.

Tonya Hines Pentz and Steve are now in the Peace Corps in Turkey. They both completed their degrees at Purdue last year. Tonya's home address is 608 Dayton Avenue, Fort Wayne, Indiana. 46807.

As for me, Cookie, I am at University of California, Berkeley, working for a Ph.D. in zoology and marine biology (still studying crabs)! A big university is quite a startling change after small college living. This area is definitely the pulsating center for what's happening in our generation politically, musically, and otherwise. Across the bay, in San Francisco, I've seen Lee Macey, who is living with Lory King, '66, and apprenticing in a photographer's studio. Neither of us can believe the gorgeous northern California scenery. Susie Coburn Brenner and I exchanged old Chatham anecdotes while lunching in Chinatown. Her husband is stationed out here in the Army. And, I managed to get back to the chilly east at Christmas and saw Lolly Lowery in New York, where she is developing into a great political scientist at Columbia School of International Affairs.

Many thanks to you all for sending in the news!

Teg reporting:

Andy Moss writes from New York City that she has "settled into the 9 to 5 business world." After a summer in Europe (incidentally we ran into each other in Paris), she is now writing copy for Ogilvy and Mather, an advertising firm. She's keeping up with all the artistic events in the city and often sees Kathy Osage, who is working for Montgomery Ward. Right now they're apartment hunting together.

Dara Murphy spent the summer working on Nantucket and made enough money to take off for Europe in September. While in London, she stayed with Kathy Marchant, who is working there and taking drama courses at night. Now the two of them want to go to Australia! For the time being, Dara's earning money again working for a bank in Boston.

Judy Murray, like Gary Cadman, has gone north to Canada. She's currently studying at the University of Toronto in Theater Arts and T.V. Production. If any of you are up that way, you can hear her on the student radio station where she broadcasts a "Report on Quebec" twice a week.

Ruth Oliver Hewitt sends word that she's still being a housewife in Pittsburgh where her husband Norman is a Technical Service Engineer. The difference this year for Ruth and Nathalie Osgood Simsak is that without studying they can do their job full time. Nat and her husband Marty spent a terrific summer touring Europe in a VW camper bus. Marty passed his Ph.D. qualifiers in October '67, and they have hopes that he'll finish his thesis in psychology by September '68. They saw Peggy Ernst Shriner and Rick over Christmas and report that they are presently stationed in Puerto Rico until Rick finishes his time in the Navy.

We have several Chatham alums representing us in the Capital City. Carol Pogash is living with Mary Eaton and studying American Government at Georgetown. Carol Pusin is now an instructor with the Westinghouse Learning Corp. in the John Corps Washington Project. The D. C. crowd are all happy in their respective positions and absolutely love the city.

Philadelphia seems to be another gathering place for our class. Lauren Nagler is studying hard at Temple University in psychology. She's engaged to Mark Tuckfelt and they plan to marry when he finishes Medical School at the University of Pittsburgh. Iris Raskin writes that she worked for eight months with the Social Services branch of the Public Housing Administration. She's recently decided that "being a bureaucrat" wasn't for her and has just changed her job. She's now doing casework for the State Mental Hospital in Philadelphia. She and Cooky Chasanov share an apartment, they both love the city and Iris is really looking forward to "working with people again." Also in Philadelphia is Joan Reisner, who is a production assistant for WHYY, Channel 12. She mentioned seeing Madelyn Gorchoff in September. I ran into Madelyn this summer too, in London. She looks great.

Moving west, we find Eileen Richey Hepler newly married and living outside of Harrisburg, Pa. Her husband Tom is a graduate of Dickinson College and is employed by the Harrisburg School System. Eileen is working for the Commissioner of Mental Health of Pennsylvania.

Back in the shadow of Chatham, Louise Royster is living in Shadyside with Louise Farmer. She's studying for her master's in political science at Pitt while her fiancé Jim Brown is finishing his last year in architecture at Carnegie-Mellon. Not far from Louise and Louise is Mary Ruddell Lindburg. Jack is now a civil engineer with Richardson, Gordon and Assoc., and Mary is doing casework for the Allegheny County Board of Assistance.

From the Associates' Corner:

Trudy Levin Cushner writes that she graduated from the New York State University at Buffalo in August '67. She and her husband Arnold have just moved to Lancaster, Pa., where he is teaching English at Franklin and Marshall and she is doing some substitute teaching. Trudy doesn't have any children yet, but Joanne Locurcio Pavia has been busy in that department. Her two new babies must really keep her running. Last year when she and Ken were living in Rochester, New York, she managed a small import shop called "The First One." That was before the real "first one," Ken, Jr. Her husband is a corporation consultant in Euclid, Ohio.

Nancy Lynch graduated last June from the University of Delaware with a B.A. in political science and history. She's living at home in Wilmington and working as a reporter for the News-Journal Co. and my guess is that she's probably also spending a lot of time on the tennis courts.

As for "Traveling Tegner," like Andy Moss, I've finally settled here in New York City, but not in the "9 to 5 business world" just yet. I spent a fantastic summer traveling through Europe with Nancy Lippmann in a successor to the old "green machine." In September, after three months and 12 countries, I ended up in Copenhagen, Denmark, with no money so I decided to get a job and stay a while. I've only just returned to this country and am still searching the job market. Copenhagen was simply marvelous and I'm having a hard time keeping myself away from the SAS offices before next fall when I plan to go back for a year or so. I was to Carol Swenson Foss' wedding at the end of January. Swens looked beautiful in her grandmother's lace veil, and I also saw Dara Murphy, Ginny Gold, Barbara Crick Klingsporn, '66, and Margie Morrison Hofer, '66. Until next year . . .

Jo reporting:

Among those continuing their education are Cookie Schiffman, who is working towards a master's degree in speech pathology at the University of Maryland; Jean Sour, who is earning an M.A. in science education at Columbia University Teacher's College; Low Vanderwart, who loves Canada and her study of physiological psychology at McMaster University; and Janie Ziskind, who is working in a master of arts of teaching program at Northwestern University, as part of which she is teaching chemistry part-time at Evanston Township High School.

Mary Schlitt Kostalos and John want all Chathamites to stop and see the pictures they took on their honeymoon in Africa. Mary is studying fresh water ecology at the University of Pittsburgh under a National Science Foundation traineeship program.

Trina Shelburne English and her husband are teaching English to the natives on the island of Aur Aur. Trina and John will be in Micronesia for two years. They left for the islands from San Francisco June 21.

Combining work and study, Judy Siegel is head resident of a woman's dorm at Syracuse University while she is doing graduate work at Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. She plans to study through the summer and finish in January. Judy's "boss" is Carol Carew McGregor, former Director of Residence Halls at Chatham in 1965-66. Carol's husband, Bill, is also studying at Maxwell.

Before her January wedding, Carol Swenson Foss was employed by Southern New England Telephone Company. As soon as she and Charley get settled in their first home, Carol will again join the working world. Guests at the wedding included several Chatham alumnae—Patricia Foss Shaw ('62), Gini Gold, Teg McAteer, Barbara Crick Klingsporn ('66), Kathi Hoover Hill ('66), Kristin Jellison Castell ('66), and Margie Morrison Hofer ('66). Dara Murphy was a bridesmaid.

Evi Tamm is working for Pennsylvania State Senator Jack E. McGregor in his Pittsburgh office. Her job covers everything from working for the Pittsburgh Penguins hockey team, of which Senator McGregor is president, to meeting Governor Shafer on one of her many trips to the Capitol in Harrisburg. In addition to this, she and Jack (Metcalf, not McGregor) are planning a summer wedding—"finally!"

Among the newlyweds who are working or studying are Linda VanDoren Garlick, who is doing both by working for her master's in social casework at Columbia University as well as doing field work in Harlem; Janet Washburn Grana, who is secretary to senior surgical residents at University Hospitals; and Marianne Williams Yatsco, who is a social worker in Dayton.

Jane Weigel is putting her Spanish major to good use in her work at Wyeth International Limited where she is assistant to the administrative assistant to the executive vice-president. She has an apartment near Bonnie Birks and Mary Rosenberger and sees them often.

As always, Sue Whitfield is up to her elbows in activity. Sue is public relations director and coordinator of "Volunteers Tie-line," a non-partisan political committee which operates throughout New York State supplying information on state programs and legislation through 2,400 women volunteers. Her job consists of "all sorts of things," including giving speeches to men's and women's groups, devising questionnaires on state programs to indicate grass roots sentiment which state officials might find helpful, doing lots of PR work on the volunteers, writing reports and a periodic newsletter, and attending social functions on both the governmental and grass roots levels.

Pam Zerwick is teaching tenth grade English at Tappan Zee High School in New Jersey. She enjoys living near New York City and visits its museums and theaters often. Especially recommended are Man of La Mancha and Pearl Bailey in Hello, Dolly!

Mary Lou Patrick McJunkin, an associate alumnae, graduated from Meredith College in Raleigh, North Carolina, with a degree in mathematics. She and Mac live in Milwaukee, where she is working for First Wisconsin Bank.

Sue Slagle Young, also an associate member of the class, reports that she and Tom love Texas—"no more northern winters for us!" They moved to Houston last March and have been sightseeing throughout that part of the country as much as possible. Tom is busy with his new job at an advertising and printing company, while Meredith is keeping Sue on the go

It was wonderful to hear from so many of the alumnae. Although I did not mention it in the paragraphs above, everyone I heard from said—in one way or other—how much she is "enjoying life!" which really is the kind of news which should be shared!

Right now, I'm studying for finals. I have found law school to be a very challenging experience, not only academically, but also in trying to adapt to a men's school after going to a women's college for four years.

Like Judy Siegel, I am working as a house resident while going to school. This, too, is a challenge. All in all, this has been quite a year for me.

I am very happy about being a bridesmaid in former roommate Doe Adamson's ('66) April 20 wedding to Peter McCallum, a representative for a Hartford insurance company. Sherry Smith ('66) is maid of honor.

● The election of Mary Virginia Brown Bowden, '36, to the Chatham College Board of Trustees has been announced by Mr. Arthur E. Braun, board chairman. She previously served as an alumnae trustee from 1964 to 1967. Mrs. Bowden is senior economic analyst with New York Life Insurance Company, and was one of ten nationally prominent women who participated in the symposium on "The Public/Private Woman" held on campus last winter.

● Dr. J. Cutler Andrews, chairman of the department of history at Chatham, was honored at the 1968 Spring Council Meeting of the Pennsylvania Historical Association when he received a certificate expressing appreciation "for his exceptional services as president of the Association" during his three-year term of office from 1963 to 1966.

● The back cover of this issue presents a unique opportunity for Chatham alumnae to own original watercolors of four campus scenes. Those who have seen the paintings have been very favorably impressed with the quality and beauty of the artist's work. A full set is on display in the alumnae office.

● The alumnae office is now well settled in its new location on the first floor of Beatty Hall. A cordial invitation is extended to all alumnae to visit our spacious and attractive quarters.

● Lois Applegate, '31, who prepared the copy for The College on the Hill, wishes to make the following acknowledgments:—to Laberta Dysart's CHATHAM COLLEGE: The First Ninety Years as the source of all historical material; to Helen Smith, chairman of the editorial board, for valuable aid in deciding on the final format; to Sue Allardice for the art work and layout; and to Ruth Swisshelm for searching the archives for pictures.

The College on the Hill

Human beings, whether acting individually or in groups, seem to accomplish the most when under the greatest pressure. In the ninety-nine years since 1869, there probably has never been a period in the history of Chatham when the College has been free of the need for expanded physical facilities, higher salaries for faculty, or more endowment. Each time additional funds have been needed to provide these necessities, the Trustees, with the help of loyal presidents, alumnae and friends, set to the task and accomplished it.

That Chatham has been able to survive two World Wars and the years of the Great Depression and to grow in spite of obstacles, has been the result of the determination, loyalty and courageous spirit of many dedicated people. That Chatham College has today a substantial standing in the academic field is due, in part, to the philosophy of a former president who said, "The difficult we do at once; the impossible takes a little longer."

Almost a century has gone by since Chatham was founded. As a prelude to the observance of the Centennial in 1969 and to the eventual construction of the Chatham Forum, we relate on these pages the growth of the campus from the single building of the original Berry Hall and its ten acres on the hilltop to the present fifty acres and twenty buildings on both sides of Woodland Road.

With inspiration out of the past, we approach the responsibilities of the future with the same determination, loyalty and courageous spirit of those dedicated people who have shown us the way.

Chatham College, originally Pennsylvania Female College and one of the oldest colleges for women in the United States, was chartered on December 11, 1869. From that date the faculty, with the authority of the Board of Trustees, was empowered to grant degrees in the liberal arts and sciences. The Trustees purchased the property and mansion of Mr. George A. Berry on Murray Hill above Fifth Avenue, and immediate plans were made to adapt it for use as a college building.

On June 8, 1871, the cornerstone was laid for the first extension to Berry Hall. Dr. Beatty, Secretary of the Board of Trustees, had an able champion in the family physician of the community, who declared, on laying the cornerstone, that he knew of no reason why a girl's brain was not as capable of being educated as was a boy's. Invitations to the ceremony stated that trains would leave Union Station at 4:20 P.M. and that carriages would meet the guests at Roup Station.

During the eighties and nineties the growth of the student body presented an acute need for larger facilities. In addition to a fourth floor being constructed atop the original Berry Hall, there were two major building programs. Dilworth Hall, named for Joseph Dilworth, a member of the original Board of Trustees and whose bequest of $10,000 formed the nucleus for the building fund, was completed in 1889. The massively built structure, with its Romanesque arches and turrets, reflected the influence of a famous architect of the period, Henry Hobson Richardson. The three-story building housed a chapel-auditorium, class and dormitory rooms, science laboratories and an art room in the tower.

The last addition to the Berry Hall complex was a gymnasium, built in 1892. It was completed in 1897 when a second story was added to accommodate a music hall.

The first completely new dormitory, Woodland Hall, was erected in 1909. Furnishings were provided by the alumnae. Like Berry Hall, Woodland has undergone many changes in its almost sixty years. The first was the addition in 1930 of a new south wing which doubled the capacity of the dining hall and provided dormitory space for fifty students. In 1950 the present dining hall was added through funds raised by the Alumnae Association. While breakfast is served in several of the present dormitories, the dining halls in Woodland continue to be the crowded center for all other food service.

Chatham—1869

The drawing above, showing the original Berry Hall (white) in relation to the present campus (light brown), depicts graphically the extension of the college property during Chatham's first century.

Twenty years passed before any other new buildings were constructed. A grant of $100,000, contingent upon other gifts of $400,000, was made by the Buhl Foundation toward the building of a science hall. The Louise C. Buhl Hall of Science, completed in 1930, was named for Mrs. Henry Buhl, Jr., who, along with her husband, had been interested in promoting education for women. Dr. Earl K. Wallace, professor of chemistry, working with the architect, was responsible for much of the planning of the interior. In addition to the facilities for the teaching of biology, chemistry, physics and astronomy, the building housed an unusual master clock which recorded time in split seconds, and a six-inch telescope made by astronomer John Brashear.

The exterior appearance of Buhl Science Hall looks much the same today as it did thirty-eight years ago, but in 1966 the interior was once again made "modern" by a complete renovation and the installation of the most up-to-date laboratory equipment. (See Recorder, Spring 1967, for a detailed account of the "new" Buhl.) One of the interesting features of the building is the stone tablet above the front entrance. Through a plan conceived by Dr. Wallace and carried out with the help of science majors, the names of twenty-eight prominent scientists living in 1930 were chisled in the stone.

By 1931 a new library was essential to the growth and standing of the College. For many years the library space on the first floor of Berry Hall had been inadequate. A new building became a reality when Miss Anne Irwin Laughlin of Philadelphia gave $100,000 in memory of her grandfather, James A. Laughlin, one of the founders of the College and the first president of the Board of Trustees.

That Laughlin Library in 1968 can no longer accommodate the 76,000 volume collection, nor provide adequate reference and study space for today's 650 students, is witness to the growth and expansion of the past thirty-seven years. That Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Mellon have made a gift of more than two million dollars for the Jennie King Mellon Library, which will be an important part of the Chatham Forum complex, is witness to their faith in the future of the liberal arts education for women and in Chatham College as a major institution of higher learning.

With the acquisition of the former Hicks home on Fifth Avenue—now named Grenville House in honor of the wife of the Earl of Chatham—a temporary location has been provided for more than 15,000 bound volumes of periodicals.

During the decade of the forties the College acquired several properties on Woodland Road which, in addition to increasing the size of the campus, provided much needed dormitory space for the growing student body. The first of these came in 1940 when Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mellon deeded their property adjoining the campus to the College. Andrew Mellon Hall, named for Mr. Mellon's father and former Secretary of the Treasury, was so ideally suited for college use that it was put to use as a dormitory almost as soon as it was vacated. The spacious rooms on the first floor and the swimming pool, bowling alleys and ballroom on the ground floor are still in almost daily use for social and recreational functions.

The James A. Laughlin Memorial Library

The large and attractive carriage house on the Mellon property was converted into an art center. New partitions and flooring created music and art studios, a music library and a recital hall. During World War II the second floor rooms were requisitioned for dormitory space, but since 1948 the building has been used entirely for music and is known as the Music Center.

In 1943 the Fickes home became a part of the campus, the first addition on the east side of Woodland Road. In 1946, when there was again an urgent need for dormitory rooms, a three-story wing was added joining the original home with the carriage house.

The Music Center

The first occupant of the house located on the south side of Woodland Hall was Dr. Henry D. Lindsay, seventh president of the College, who moved in with his family in December, 1910. In 1945, when it was converted for dormitory use, the house was named Lindsay Hall in his honor. In more recent years it has undergone further renovation and is now the Infirmary.

Since 1945 the President of Chatham College has lived in Gregg House. This spacious home, located on Woodland Road near Wilkins Avenue, was given to the College by the descendants of Mr. John R. Gregg.

The second property acquired across Woodland Road was the residence of the late William Holdship Rea and his wife Mary Childs Rea. Named Beatty Hall, the house was put into use as a dormitory in 1948. Speaking at the dedication ceremony, Mrs. Charles Spencer (Mary Acheson, class of 1883) remarked that she and Mr. Rea had both become members of the Board of Trustees in September, 1902, and that the College owed its survival in the early years of this century to the dedicated efforts of this man. The name Beatty was chosen to honor Dr. William Trimble Beatty, first pastor of the newly organized Shadyside Presbyterian Church and the first Secretary of the Board of Trustees. At present Beatty Hall is the temporary location of the alumnae office and several other administrative offices.

From Matriculation Day, 1948, until the end of 1953, the campus was in an almost constant state of upheaval. Somehow the college community survived the inconvenience of displaced classrooms and offices, the noise and dirt of demolition operations, the sight of gaping holes in the ground, and the presence everywhere of construction crews and materials.

However, the end results—five new buildings—were well worth the ordeal. Actually, there were six buildings. While major buildings were coming down and going up at the top of the hill, a new dean's residence was built on Woodland Road on the slope below the Library and the Chapel. It was named Mary Acheson Spencer House.

Through anonymous gifts of almost $500,000, the dream of a new Chapel became a reality and the cornerstone was laid in February, 1949. An important feature of the white-spired, Georgian structure is the four-manual Moller organ which was designed by Russell G. Wichmann, chairman of the music department. Its 5000 pipes are in seven sections, each of which is a complete organ. The Carillon bells which are played each evening before dinner and before certain programs in the Chapel, are rung also to announce one of the newer campus traditions, "Toe-Dabbling Day." When the bells are heard early on a spring morning, the news is out that classes are suspended for the day and students may do as they like.

A new physical education building became a necessity before the old gymnasium wing of Berry Hall could be razed. Again through the generosity of a number of anonymous donors, the new Gymnasium was built on the old McCargo property on West Woodland Road. The two-story, red brick structure provides suitable space and equipment for every kind of physical instruction.

The greatest single change on campus occurred in 1952 and 1953 when it became necessary to tear down Berry and Dilworth Halls, now structurally unsafe and a fire hazard, to make room for the new three-building complex which, with Buhl Science Hall, Laughlin Library and the Chapel, completed the present quadrangle. To preserve a small portion of old Berry Hall, Harriet Duff Phillips and her class of 1902 had two of the Gothic doors refinished, inscribed, and set into the end wall of the Library Browsing Room. Two lecterns were made from the newel posts of the main stairway, and two gavels from the bannister.

Braun Hall, which houses administrative and faculty offices, the book store and snack bar, was named for Mr. Arthur E. Braun, a member of the Board of Trustees since 1923. Elected president of the Board in 1924, Mr. Braun continues to serve in that capacity today. In her history of the College Miss Dysart notes that, in naming the building, the trustees recorded, "Mr. Braun's confidential gifts to the new building are merely the most recent of his benefactions to the College . . . The use of any other name would seem out of place."

The Laura Falk Hall of Social Studies was made possible by the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation which provided $350,000 for its construction. Class rooms occupy the first and second floors. The college post office, audio-visual department, placement office, telephone and central service facilities are on the ground floor.

The Buhl Foundation, once again a benefactor, gave $350,000 for a Hall of Humanities which was named in memory of Dr. Coral Helen Coolidge who served as dean of the College from 1906 to 1914, as acting president, 1914-15, and returned in 1922 to become president, the office she held until her death in 1933. Those alumnae whose privilege it was to know Miss Coolidge can attest to her gracious presence and deep devotion to the College. Her wit, her deep sense of humor, and her complete loyalty to the traditions and aims of higher education for women added to the dignity and stature of this truly remarkable woman.

Sunday, May 2, 1954, was a day of celebration at Chatham. The fresh, spring green of new grass and shrubbery covered the construction wounds of the past few years, and warm, bright sun shone down on the hundreds of students, faculty, alumnae and friends who were present for a memorable occasion—the dedication of four new buildings, Braun, Falk and Coolidge Halls and the Gymnasium. It should be noted that each of these, as well as the Chapel, was made possible by the gifts of individuals and foundations who believed in the future of Chatham College. Dr. Theodore A. Distler, then President of Franklin and Marshall College, closed his dedication address with a fitting quotation from

Erasmus: "Everyman and Everywoman will be convinced that wholehearted study of the humanities will lead to virtue and thence to faith, and finally to a knowledge of things Divine within the limits of man's intellectual powers."

Since 1959, either by construction, gift or purchase, seven buildings and their surrounding grounds have become part of the campus. The Dilworth name was carried on when a new dormitory, built in 1959 on property adjacent to the Music Center, was named in honor of Joseph Dilworth, a founder and Trustee. Members of the Dilworth Hall Association, alumnae of the preparatory school that was part of the campus from 1872 until 1917, were guests at the laying of the cornerstone and dedication.

Benedum Hall, formerly "Greystone" and home of the late Michael L. Benedum, became a part of Chatham College in April, 1960, a gift from the Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation. The Foundation was created by the elder Mr. Benedum as a memorial to his son who died in World War I. The bequest included eight acres of landscaped grounds surrounding the mansion, the garage which is now the Art Center, greenhouses, and the Childs home at the entrance to Woodland Road. The latter property had been leased by the College since 1950 and was named Gateway House. It was once the home of Mary Childs, granddaughter of General Thomas Howe (for whom Howe Spring on the Benedum estate was named), and later the wife of William Holdship Rea. (See Beatty Hall) Benedum Hall, built in 1911, is elegant in every detail and has provided a second center for social events on campus. The wide veranda and terrace overlooking the city is the scene of the Alumnae Reunion Dinner each June. Mr. Benedum, one of America's foremost oil wildcatters, was born the same year in which Chatham was founded. In this lifetime he was very fond of his neighbor on Woodland Road and took a deep interest in the education of young people.

Two properties were acquired by purchase in 1962 and 1963 to provide needed dormitory space. Alumnae will no doubt recall the stately, three-story Georgian home which faces the point where West Woodland and Woodland Roads meet. It has been named Berry Hall, not in any sense a replacement of the original, but to keep the name as part of the campus.

The Fifth Avenue apartments, which are now known as Pelletreau Hall, are situated directly below the Library and are joined to the campus by lighted steps up the landscaped hillside. Named for Miss Helen E. Pelletreau, President of the College from 1878 to 1894, they provide a different type of dormitory living. Each unit has been adapted for living and study space for four students, and a first-floor apartment in each section has been set aside as a reception and typing-study area.

All of the east side of Woodland Road between Fickes and Berry Halls became part of the campus with the gifts of the Rea and Laughlin properties. Rea House was the gift of Mr. James C. and the late Julia Rea in November, 1965, while Laughlin House, next door, came as a bequest from Mrs. H. Hughart Laughlin (Marianne Rea '00) in the spring of 1967. Both of these spacious residences were built at about the same time as Benedum Hall, and have been transformed into exceptionally lovely dormitories. The basement of Rea House has been converted, through student planning and decorating, into an attractive campus Coffee House.

Chatham's ninety-nine year history of growth and improvement is a record of dedicated effort and loyal support by every segment of the college community. As Chatham enters her centennial year it is clear that the efforts must continue undiminished.

The first and most obvious need is for a new library. The present building, charming as it is, has simply been outgrown. The collection, which now totals about 76,000 volumes, should be doubled. Student study spaces must be increased, and provision must be made for the new developments in library science, information retrieval, and the integration of all learning resources.

Chatham also urgently needs a central, modern dining facility with adjacent spaces for co-curricular activities and essential college services. The new student-faculty center will combine large and small dining areas, food preparation and service on one level, a rathskellar, and spaces for student and faculty activities.

Finally, Chatham needs a multi-purpose lecture hall-little theatre seating approximately 350. The Chapel, currently used for such purposes, is an inappropriate setting for many lectures and dramatic performances. The new hall will have facilities for lectures, audio-visual screenings, conferences, stage productions, and recitals. It will also be connected with WQED, the Pittsburgh educational television channel.

At Chatham the pursuit of knowledge can and should be integrated with the daily life of the student. The new concept of the Chatham Forum is an attempt in structural form to bring together the primary concerns of the contemporary student: reading and studying, listening and learning, and the enjoyment of intelligent conversation.

The Forum is essential to Chatham's continuing program of distinguished services to young people, to the community, and to the wider sphere of higher education. It will be a fitting step into the second century.

Frank A. Hayes

1919-1968

Frank Hayes was my friend and colleague for more than thirteen years. He was a proud and gentle man whose intense interests ranged from theoretical problems in nuclear physics to symbolic logic and the terrible dilemmas created by the moral indifference which so often divides and destroys men.

I cannot recall ever turning to him with a problem for which he could not suggest a reasonable approach or a relevant source.

He shared with the ancient Greek philosophers the conviction that the scholarly life—the life of contemplation and preoccupation with eternal things—is the life most worth having.

His profound interest and unique talent in combining photography with philosophy reflected his belief that the beauty of things seen transforms the quality of our thoughts and that the interpretation of the visual image is an indispensable part of the beauty of things seen. The eternal idea, he believed, is grasped only in the most intimate cooperation of the eye and the mind.

But Frank Hayes' intense love of beauty in thought and image, though certainly a gift that graced his life and drew some to him in almost unparalleled appreciation and devotion, was also clearly an enormous burden insofar as ugliness, disorder and indifference brought to his life pain and sorrow that none of us ever fully shared.

Frank Hayes was a man who loved the good in a world that sacrifices justice in the pursuit of power and self-interest. He was a man who loved beauty in a world that seeks wealth and convenience, though the price is intolerable ugliness.

He was a man who knew that the value of all things is inseparable from the mind that knows and loves; but he had to live in a world in which persons are often more dispensable than machines.

And Frank Hayes loved above all things companionship and the dialogue through which persons are revealed to persons; and yet he was "a man stricken with . . . solitude" because his own voice was too gentle to compete with the multitude of voices that praises things instead of communicating with persons.

If we are shocked and saddened by the tragedy and the immensity of our loss in losing Frank Hayes, we ought now to do all we can, in whatever brief time we ourselves have left, to create a world in which such men will not lose their "taste for living among" us. Such a task of course is difficult.

But in the words of Baruch Spinoza, who was Frank Hayes' favorite philosopher, "all things excellent are as difficult as they are rare."

Forty-fifth ALUMNAE COUNCIL CONVENES on CAMPUS

Beautiful fall weather welcomed sixty-six delegates to campus for the Forty-fifth Alumnae Council on Monday, October 21, 1968.

Morning sessions included a club workshop under the direction of Peggy Korb Smith '46, second vice president. The following representatives participated in the discussion: Peggy Tucker Thompson '51, Philadelphia; Carol Lenz Houck '48, Buffalo; Marianne Byrn Caple '61, Detroit; Dorothy Whitehead Heinig '37, Chicago; Eleanore Luthringer Mattson '49, Cleveland; Marie Timothy Obermann '53, New Jersey; Sharon Smith '66, Boston; Coral Wigent Burke '60, and Barbara Whiteside Harris '50, Washington, D.C.; Carol Cristiano Raymond '59, New York City; and Vicki Sneathen Petsinger '54, Mt. Lebanon, Pittsburgh. [Since attendance seems to be one of the common problems of all clubs, we urge you to affiliate with a Chatham club if there is one in your area. Check the list on the inside back cover of this issue. Through club membership you will enjoy association with other Chatham alumnae, and you will be serving the College by participation in club projects.]

Meeting at the same time with Carolyn Cosel Lampl '45, chairman for reunions, were class secretaries and/or reunion chairmen for classes ending in 4 and 9, the group from the fifties—1956, 1957, 1958, 1959—and 1968, all of whom will be celebrating on June 7, 1969. A continuation of the campus-oriented program of the past several years has been recommended, perhaps with some additional features in observance of the Centennial Year.

The nominating committee, under the chairmanship of Carol Moran Russell '58, held a preliminary meeting to select nominees for offices to be filled for next year—first vice president, alumnae trustee, recording secretary, three directors, and two members of the nominating committee. The final report of this committee will be presented at the February meeting of the executive board for its approval, and ballots will be mailed by the middle of April.

The scholarship committee—Helen Birmingham Proctor '35, chairman, Lee Corey Hanson '50, Ruth Anne Maier Bengston '64, and Amy Botsaris '53, director of financial aid—selected the following students as the eight Alumnae Scholars for 1968-69:

Bobbi Franklin, senior from Portland, Oregon, the Harriet Duff Phillips Scholarship.

Jennifer Gearhart, senior from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, the 1969 Alumnae Scholarship.

Sally Marks, junior from Auburn, New York, the Herbert Lincoln Spencer Scholarship.

Constance Wiencek, junior from Cleveland, Ohio, the 1970 Alumnae Scholarship.

Diane Price, sophomore from Newtown, Connecticut, the Luella P. Meloy Scholarship.

Shelley Stuart-Bullock, sophomore from Ossining, New York, the 1971 Alumnae Scholarship.

Kathleen Ferraro, freshman from Ridgway, Pennsylvania, the Laberta Dysart Scholarship.

Frances Keally, freshman from Oak Park, Illinois, the 1972 Alumnae Scholarship.

The members of the executive board will honor these Alumnae Scholars at a pre-holiday dinner on December 10.

Following a buffet luncheon in Mellon Hall, Patsy Speers Bradley '45, president, presided at the Council business session.

In addition to reports of the morning sessions, Cordelia Suran Jacobs '60, first vice president and chairman of alumnae-student relations, spoke about the activities taking place this year. A very successful Prospective Students Open House, co-sponsored by the Admissions Office and the Alumnae Association, was held on campus on October 5. Diane Brutout Neimann '65, co-chairman of the student relations committee, presided, and several members of the Pittsburgh Junior Sixties Club served as registrars and aides. Mrs. Jacobs and Mrs. Neimann met with student leaders on October 18 to discuss ways in which the Alumnae Association can be of service to the students. In November, three arm-chair career discussions will take place providing an opportunity for interested students to talk with alumnae in the fields of government, social work, and administrative secretarial positions. In this area, but not part of the arm-chair series, two other alumnae have served as career consultants: Marianne Boggs Campbell '48, director of community affairs for AVCO Broadcasting Company, spoke about women in broadcasting and communications; Jo Messersmith '66, second year student at Dickinson Law School, talked with students interested in going into the legal field.

The program following the business meeting was presented by Mr. Leonard G. Doran, Secretary of the College, who spoke first about the progress of plans for the Centennial Year observance and the building of the Chatham Forum, and then introduced Chatham's new executive Dean, Dr. Eugene Hotchkiss. Dean Hotchkiss explained that his remarks were based upon first impressions of a newcomer, but went on to describe what the Centennial Fund, particularly the part designated for endowment, will mean to the academic future of the College.

A tour of Laughlin and Rea Houses, and a visit to the new alumnae headquarters in Beatty Hall preceded dinner, after which three seniors, Sarah Bornstein, Bobbi Franklin and Kathleen Perrone, talked informally about their personal views on religion. Their frank statements may have startled some members of the audience, but none could help being impressed by their honesty and their willingness to share with us their thoughts on such a personal subject.

ALUMNAE REPRESENTATIVES for ADMISSIONS SERVE in MANY AREAS

Chatham alumnae are called upon to serve the College in a number of different capacities: elected offices, club activities, fund raising, committees, representing Chatham at convocations and inaugurations in various parts of the country, and assisting the admissions directors in their work with prospective students.

Alumnae in key areas are appointed by President Eddy to serve three-year terms as local representatives for admissions. According to the college catalog, they "work with the admissions office to inform prospective students and their parents about the College, to act as good-will emissaries, and to aid the College in selecting the most desirable applicants."

In fulfilling these requirements, the alumnae representative is called upon to visit secondary school guidance counselors, to attend and present Chatham material at high school college nights, to interview prospective students, and to submit written reports to the admissions office. Of course, in all of these duties, she works very closely with the admissions directors.

To keep her informed about all of the current developments at the College, she receives all publications including the student newspaper, and she spends some time with the admissions director when she comes to call on schools in her area.

Although the job of alumnae representative is classified as "volunteer" it is much more demanding than many activities which come under that category. For that reason, and for the splendid job they are doing, we take this opportunity to thank the eighty-six alumnae who are currently serving as alumnae representatives.

DEATH

Kathryn Robb Dunn, April 15, 1968, at Lancaster, Pennsylvania

It is indeed grievous to record the passing of our beloved Kathryn, our sweet singer. The class members extend deepest sympathy to David, their sons, daughters and grandchildren. David writes appreciatively of our gift to the college library of a book in memory of Kathryn.

Also, heartfelt sympathy goes to Helen Steele Truxal in the sudden death on July 23 of her daughter, Martha Jane Dougherty, class of 1943, wife of Dr. Wilson Dougherty.

And Jeanne Mabey Smith has suffered great bereavement in the sudden death on August 8 of her husband Carman. We deeply sympathize with Jeanne.

Our congratulations to Leila Hill Lytle upon the arrival of a granddaughter, Barbara Louise Lytle, on June 3. Leila sends best wishes to all.

Frances Boale Belding, during July, had a tour of Nova Scotia with a Columbia University classmate. She found it a "beautiful and interesting place." En route home, she visited with a friend in New York for a few days and enjoyed some plays.

Gertrude Frame Patterson and "Pat" drove to New Jersey for the month of May. On the way home to Florida, they stopped to see David Dunn in Lancaster.

Edna Gaw Colvin writes that "news is about the same as it was last year."

Martha Gibbons Millspaugh tells of D.A.R. and Chatham group activities; also of her purchase, for protection, of a "mischievous, destructive, swell-dispositioned Schnauzer pup," resembling the dog in "Petticoat Junction."

Margaret Lee says that from her "choice" new apartment she can see the Chatham College buildings through her field glasses. She, Grace and Melba had lunch together on August 10.

Mildred Nicholls Kohman spent the summer and early autumn at Lakeside, Ohio, where her grandchildren visited her at various times.

Adella Stewart Anderson journeyed by train (which she greatly enjoys) from Wilmington, Delaware, to New Haven, Connecticut, to visit her son and his wife on his fiftieth birthday. Her daughter Jane met her there and took her by car to East Walpole, Massachusetts, for Jane's forty-eighth birthday. At Methodist Manor House, Seaford, Delaware, where Adella is a guest, she can enjoy travel pictures, lectures and an excellent library. Also, there are classes in arts and crafts.

Mary Stratton writes, "Life goes on, but at a slower pace. Most of my activities are limited." She sends best wishes to all.

We greatly appreciate notes from Rebekah Crouse Costanzo, Rosemary Geary, Melba Martin Ingersoll, Amelia Slater and Grace Woodrow, even though they report no personal news. They send "greetings to the 'girls'."

With the rest of the Errett clan, your secretary has been eagerly awaiting all summer the arrival home from a two-year absence in Saigon of nephew Russell. His most recent letter gives September 15 as his departure date. A very pleasant week was spent in July at Bethany Beach, Delaware, with niece Jane, her four children and niece Patsy's thirteen-year-old twins. Chadds Ford, on Brandywine Creek, is not far from Chatham, and on September 7 we attended a review of eighteenth century history in a re-enactment of the Battle of the Brandywine, with local citizens depicting the Red Coats, the Continental soldiers and the Hessians. Also, the paintings of the Wyeths, well known artists of Chadds Ford, were exhibited. In a beautiful park in the vicinity, are old headquarters of General Washington and the Continental Army.

DEATHS

Janet Lockhart Hill, January 21, 1968

Annetta Marks Horwitz, August 12, 1968
We are saddened by the passing of two of our classmates. Our sincere sympathy is extended to their loved ones.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Charlotte Hunker Hays whose husband Byers died on August 31, 1968.

And to Ruth Long whose mother died in October 1967.

And to Kamala Cornelius Asirvatham in the death of her youngest sister in May 1968 in Bangalore.

A letter from Kamala brings the news that her husband is still seriously ill and Kamala herself is not too well. They have enjoyed the visit of their second daughter, Premi, who came out from London to see them. Their eldest daughter, Vasanti, who used to live in Long Island, is now in Switzerland with her husband who is on sabbatical leave. She expected to visit her parents in October. The third daughter lives in Bangalore and sees them frequently. Kamala was sorry to miss our reunion. "How I wish I had the chance of being with you all. Please give my best wishes to all my classmates. Tell them I shall be glad if they could come and visit me sometime."

Mollie Davidson Nass reports, "All is well here. We are planning to travel in the fall."

Eulalia Fournier Babbitt writes that her granddaughter Martha Williams is with her most of the time. She is a junior at Kent University and through her Lala is getting a second college education, strangely different from the one she had at Chatham. She sends greetings to everyone.

Ruth Kaufman Morrison writes, "I was sorry my doctor didn't approve of my being at the reunion." She says she would be glad to have any of her classmates call at her home when passing through St. Petersburg.

Ruth Long is enjoying her new apartment.

Dorothy Minor Cary says, "I have really nothing to report as I do nothing. I'm supposed to be improving but sometimes I have my doubts."

Winona Stirling Hopwood writes, "No interesting news. Just the usual trip from Florida to Pennsylvania for the summer and back to Florida in the fall. Our family all well, busy and happy. Oldest grandchild in college and other two preparing to go."

Florence Younkens is sorry she couldn't be at the reunion. She spent the month of July with her daughter and family at Kitty Hawk, N.C., and in January had a lovely three week trip to Hawaii. Says she is well and keeps busy with her house, yard and grandchildren.

Our 50th Reunion at the college in June was much enjoyed by those of us who were there. We were sorry more of our class could not enjoy it with us.

I stayed at Mellon Hall as did Mollie Davidson Nass and her husband. Mollie and I went to the lecture in the morning and saw beautiful slides on English Cathedrals. At lunch we were joined by Dorothy Minor Cary, Ruth Long and Eleanor Fuller McMurray. At each place was a beautiful corsage of yellow roses and the interesting place cards provided by Ruth Swisshelm—pictures of each of us taken from our year-books.

At 5:30 we went to the reception at the President's home which was followed by the delicious steak dinner served on the terrace at the beautiful Benedum estate. It was a fitting climax to a very pleasant day.

Thanks to all of you who sent in cards and letters. It is a pleasure to hear from you.

NEW ADDRESS

Gladys Fournier Todd (Mrs. Lewis S.),
1941 Lexington Avenue, Warren, Ohio
44485

Imogene Armstrong reports that she is active in A.A.U.W. and church work as well as telephone work for the Republican Party, which indicates that she is much better than for some time. She also refers to her pride in the great success of her architect nephew in the buildings of the city.

Julia Aspinwall Dunlap reports enjoyment of their life of retirement in the home they built two years ago.

Betty Davidson Davidson still enjoys her busy life and made a point of attending the Alumnae Luncheon in June when her sister Molly returned for her 50th reunion. Betty and I were the only representatives of 1920 there this year, but I am looking forward to seeing more of you at the 100th Anniversary of the College in 1969 and our own 50th in 1970.

Elizabeth Fleming has returned from a six weeks leisurely trip through New England which she thoroughly enjoyed.

Helen Horix Fairbanks has advanced from president to chairman of the board of Horix Manufacturing Company, but still finds time for bridge and weekend trips.

Gladys Wilson Green and Ed, jaunting as usual, spent three weeks in England and Scotland last spring, and met Louise Thorne and some of her family in Philadelphia Airport. Their oldest son, Andy, received his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania in May and is now working in Belgium as a foreign representative.

Helen Bennett Nelson and her husband are keeping well and are very proud of their son, King Bennett Nelson. He is management assistant of Metrametrics Corporation of Arlington, Va., and his wife is working on her master's degree at George Washington University under a Ford Foundation Grant.

Minnie McGrew Coyle and her sister have much the same arrangement as last year, but go out very little because of existing conditions.

Eleanor Trimble Peel sees Peg Hamilton Chick when she visits a mutual friend in Washington, and occasionally hears from Harriet Hill Kraus. Eleanor and her sister are taking a cruise this fall.

NEW ADDRESS

Betty Dean Boots, 5444 Baywood Street,
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15206

Helen Allison Dunbar writes that Mary Dunbar Patton passed away May 3, 1968 after a long and lingering illness. Mary was a member of our class during our freshman year. Our sincere sympathy goes out to Helen and her husband.

Peg Berryman Lowstutter said she has been doing real well this past year—no more broken bones—and is thankful to be alive and able to get about. Her husband is still working.

Betty Bean Boots finds her new small small apartment very satisfactory and will have a guest from Florida this fall. This season she will be president of the Thursday Afternoon Club of Wilksburg. Working on the program has kept her busy.

Dot Burleigh Courtney and husband spent another winter in Europe—Austria, Germany and Switzerland. The high light was visiting the little German village where her grandfather was born. After many years he returned to place a stained glass window in the family church honoring his parents. A beautiful church and a beautiful window, says Dot. They are having the usual busy summer with the family. Their twelfth grandchild arrived in January.

Bon Connelly visited with Jane Taylor and had a wonderful time with Jane and Helen Dunbar. Bon had no real news of herself but would like us to know that Marion Slocum, her roommate for two years, is quite ill in a nursing home. Her address is Avalon Manor, Marsh Pike, Hagerstown, Maryland. I am sure some of you will wish to send her a card.

Ina Connelly Cross said "no big trips this year, but this being campaign year, it will be interesting just to be at home. She was busy with three grandchildren from California on a three week visit.

Leah Davis Mead reports that time flies by in Petryopolis and she and Morris are busy with various hobbies and are well and happy. Now that they are near Pittsburgh she hopes to see some of her college friends. They have three grandchildren in New Jersey.

Rose Gorzo Rapach hopes to do some welfare work this winter. She has done some traveling and substitute teaching but most of her interests have been devoted to her family.

How nice to hear from Anne Jay! Her first year of retirement has been a most enjoyable one. She spent part of the fall in Sarasota, Florida and later five months on Siesta Key. In April she took a South American cruise, especially enjoying the trip to Machu Pichu and Cuzco getting some almost unbelievable pictures. July was spent in the Black Hills, Yellowstone and the Grand Tetons.

Ruth Keck Shell said they are still enjoying life with a busy schedule and sends greetings to all of '22.

Anne Kiskaddon Griggs has had a happy and meaningful activity this past year in helping establish the Grace Orthodox Presbyterian Chapel, which presently meets at the Holiday Inn at Sewickley. Feeling that the present Presbyterian Church and the National Council of Churches have become so liberal, the new social gospel so well rooted, it would be impossible to change it. Last July a new church was opened for the area west of Pittsburgh with the confessions and beliefs of the original Presbyterian Church. Their grandchildren live a mile and a half distant, so they enjoy them. Anne sends best wishes to all of 1922.

Florence Newmaker Knapp and husband spent three months at Myer's Beach and Delray, Florida, arriving home to enjoy the flowering shrubs blooming in all their glory. They planned a fall trip to Concord, Massachusetts, to visit their daughter and family, then on to Philadelphia, Wilmington and Falls Church, Virginia. Their son John and family of Falls Church and close friends of theirs will spend a week at the Knapp camp. Newnie said there will be twelve for each meal but they will get everyone in on the act. Their granddaughter Pam became Phi Beta Kappa in her junior year at Wellesley. Proud grandma.

Susan Scott Tucker had a trip to Maine visiting her older daughter and family. She is still painting and had two large oils in the A.A.P. show. Both paintings were sold.

Jane Taylor had Bon Connelly for a visit which was too short, Jane felt, but still very enjoyable. Due to her sister's illness she did not plan to go to California until fall. She did take a trip to Williamsburg, but the hundred degree temperature was not in her favor.

Carolyn Titzell and her sister spend three winter months at the Gulf Stream Hotel in Lake Worth, Florida. They have a wonderful time with season theatre tickets, Round Table lectures and something doing every minute. Her name appears in Marquis Who's Who of American Women for 1968 for her work on National, State and Local Historical Commissions. Congratulations Carolyn!

Elizabeth Wilson Lorenz said they plan to come to Pittsburgh for the first time since leaving two years ago for Florida. They had a spring trip to Charleston, South Carolina, and in May flew to Nassau. Aside from that they enjoy their apartment and pool.

Beulah Boggus Coffindoffer sent her news notes after being away several weeks. She said she still lives in Shinnston and her only child, Ina Jackson, lives in Morgantown. She has two grandsons, one seventeen, and one nineteen who is in medical school at West Virginia University.

Being your class secretary proves interesting and we had a good response, but we would like to hear from those who failed to reply. I spent two months in Naples, Florida with my sister and her husband, and then returned with them for three weeks of spring on Cape Cod. I expect to return for the fall season. The summer has passed quickly with a few short trips and trying to coax my garden into blooming. I hope all 1922 members will begin planning for their contributions to the Chatham Centennial Fund Campaign so that we may be proud of our efforts.

Helen Errett Hourdequin (Mrs. L. Remy),
16 Captain Wyly Road, Jekyll Island,
Ga. 31520

On the brink of our 45th reunion, and after letters, phone calls and sleuthing, I have been rewarded with some news.

Two "silent ones" have come through. Olive Keck Comfort, widowed, and after living 23 years in Pleasantville, New York, has a contented way of life there and turns down offers to live with her daughter and three granddaughters in Massachusetts or with her son in California. She devours the Recorder news.

Florence Steele Bullock continues to teach in the Philadelphia Public Schools as she has for 20 years, likes it and works it in with a retired husband, one single son in St. Paul, and one married with five children in Baltimore.

Grace Davis Mechling has felt the loss of her young and fatally ill son-in-law, ending long periods of taking care of her three granddaughters. Also, a badly sprained foot has temporarily suspended activity on those numerous and purposeful projects in Forest Hills.

Several are still enjoying the good life through their own or their husband's retirement. Martha Glandon Luthringer and Marshall's latest trip was a month's thorough tour of Alaska.

Helen Errett Hourdequin has changed their permanent address from Delaware to Georgia and much golf. With three courses within a mile, their favorite is one overlooking the Atlantic Ocean.

Marian Taylor Clark, since her husband's retirement from a busy car dealership, divides her time between their cottage at Penn State and fishing in Florida.

Virginia Lilley Christ still spends half the year in the Poconos, and the other half at Edenlawn Plantation on the east coast of Florida in happy retirement.

Ruth Baxter Hill says all is well in Georgia but she may have a new address by next year.

Marion Stewart Smith has a recovered-from-surgery husband and finds pleasure in her two married daughters, one in Pittsburgh and one in New York.

Stella Wagenfehr Shane loves retirement and is all set for reunion, and Lenore Allen is finally catching up on everything from dental work to traveling.

Hedwig Pregler subbed for an ailing principal of four schools during the teacher's strike last spring, has been teaching at the School for the Blind, is teaching a night course on elementary curriculum and curriculum development at Duquesne University, and is serving on the public relations committee of the YWCA and on the official board of her church. Retired, did you say?

Barbara Coit Templeton landed in the hospital after nearly falling over a precipice while touring the Grand Canyon of Pennsylvania. Her heavy activities with the Greensburg YWCA and other civic groups have been curtailed, but not for long, you can be sure.

Calling around, I found that Billie Hibbs Williams, after a heart attack two years ago, retired after fourteen years of substituting. She fills her forced inactivity now with book clubs and her married daughter in Washington, D.C. Elsie Goldberg Rosen-shine's life centers still around her two daughters, one a secretary and the other still in school. Carolyn Lohr Steele, with her retired husband, spends much time trekking to Philadelphia to see their two grandsons.

As for your secretary, she retired officially the first of this year and is volunteering on four fronts, not only surviving but enjoying it.

DEATH

Katherine Munroe Heppenstall, April 24,
1968

Mary Ailes Sechler had three especially exciting "happenings" this past summer. In May, she took a trip to Williamsburg with Helen Ryman; on Alumnae Day her ninth grandchild was born (which accounts for her absence from the Campus that day); and in August she and two of her children plus families visited Les Cheneaux Islands, in northern Michigan, scene of her family's summer home, and they all loved it just as she had. Looking toward next June she says: "I still live within walking distance of campus; I have room for visitors and will be glad to have any of you stay with me."

Louise Harcom Einstein and husband are back from their year of teaching in Taiwan, Formosa. Since an experience is timeless we would love to have a report next fall. As of now Louise is supervising student teachers who are English majors and is faculty advisor for a newly organized sorority. She writes: "When the pressures and problems of those two groups had me ready to climb the walls, I've wished I were back in Taiwan where students trust people over 35, where the pace is slower, where affluence and permissiveness aren't in evidence, and life is more like it was 'in our day!'"

Elizabeth Hubbard Ewing and husband have returned from a two months trip to Europe "just wandering around with most of the time in England, which we love." Both sons are married; the older one lives in Atlanta, works for an investment firm, has a "dear wife and three darling children; the younger one is in Colorado Springs "working on some sort of secret deal." They see Ruth and Don Hooton once in a while since Ruth's brother and his wife live in Delray. She wants her classmates to stop and see her if they come her way.

Eleanor Fulton McCracken reports that she has done nothing notable in the last year. (That was in reply to a poorly worded query asking what was her most memorable experience since we last went to press.) However, on April 1st she was the victim of an attempted purse-snatching. He didn't get the purse but she still has two battered-looking knees. (I think that qualifies as memorable, all right.)

Marion Johnson Kipp and Orval have returned from a fabulous trip to Alaska. Three of the seven weeks were spent in Juneau with daughter Naomi, whose husband is a budget analyst for the State of Alaska, and of course Joel and Jennifer, aged six and three, added to their delight. Then they all took off for a sight seeing trip into the Yukon. It required two days to go by boat and train and 40 minutes to return to Juneau by jet! "The scenery was really inspiring to Orval," she wrote, "who painted three water colors and made many sketches while we were there." They had left their car in Vancouver, so for the return trip they put it and themselves on the train and went through the Canadian Rockies to Winnipeg where they again drove, this time headed south to Mt. Vernon, Iowa, where daughter Katherine and her husband are on the faculty of Cornell College. It was good, she said, to be home again with the rest of her family—son John, who is assistant minister at Calvary U.P. Church in Indiana, a member of the philosophy faculty at the University, and the father of David, Robert, and Katherine. Marion retired from teaching last June and she reports "already I am wondering how I ever found time to teach."

Ruth Justice Rowley says that since Millard retired a year ago they have been flitting hither and yon like butterflies and that she is only back in town long enough to do a stint or two with the Civic Theatre. The "stint" consists both of acting and directing. Last February she played Mme. Desmontes in Anouie's Ring Around the Moon, and directed Sartre's No Exit which opened late in September. She has been playing Grandma in Albee's American Dream off and on for a year. As for their travels—last winter saw them through Cape Hatteras, Myrtle Beach, Charleston, Florida and the Keys; summer found them in the Thousand Islands and Virginia Beach. After her show is over they are leaving for two months to wander through Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, and perhaps Louisiana if time holds out. They will be home for Christmas and for their theatre production of Inge's Picnic. "Our experiences have not been memorable" she writes, "but our footsteps go on pleasant paths. We're lucky!"

Elise Moller's most memorable experience of the past year is her first full year of retirement, after five years of partial retirement from professional work so that she and a friend could get started on a small summer cabin business in the Laurel Highlands of southwestern Pennsylvania. Her mountain home is on the western slope of Laurel Ridge and she says their

Jeep got them in and out every day in bad weather. She writes that Pennsylvania mountains are very satisfying every season of the year. She concludes: "It is satisfying, too, to find use for professional skills in our very rural mountain community."

Ruth Rimer Hooton writes, "My trip to San Francisco was prompted by my great desire to see our newest granddaughter. Jane, our youngest child, had her first baby February 12th . . . In spite of the fact that Carolyn is our seventh grandchild, the thrill and excitement has been equal with all of them. Six of the grandchildren live in Pittsburgh. John, the oldest of our three children, has two boys and a girl. Virginia, our other daughter has three boys." Ruth and Don have lived in Sarasota for three years. Although Don is busy with the lawn, he has time for fishing and helping to build sets at Sarasota Players where they produce semi-professional plays from October to May.

Catherine Sayers, after suffering a rather severe heart attack a year ago and doing nothing but sit for six months, is now in orbit again. She is doing substitute volunteer work at the hospital, is president of the Woman's Club, secretary of AAUW, and counsellor to the Hospital Auxiliary Board. Last summer she drove south in her new air-conditioned LeMans and visited Ruth Baxter Hill in Gainesville, Ga., and Eleanor Taylor in Atlanta.

Helen Simons Polhemus writes that after a delightful spring trip back to North Carolina, their home for nine years, a series of mishaps overtook them which made them feel jinxed: severe sciatica complicated by a fall for her; an operation for Poly and later a fall which cracked one of his ribs: "Through all this," she writes, "it is wonderful to have our four families of children and grandchildren near enough to run in and out."

Constance Clark Russ retired a year ago after seventeen years in social work. After her husband's retirement in October, they headed south for the winter. On the trip north in April they stopped to see son Clarke, an orthopedic surgeon and the father of three sons. They frequently see daughter Jean who lives with her husband and ten-year-old daughter in nearby Huntington, Long Island. Their youngest daughter, Elizabeth Ann, lives in a Boston suburb, and her husband, who completed his doctorate in aeronautics and astronautics at M.I.T. in June, is now doing research there. They have three small children. In spite of having suffered a sprained back, Constance has found time to take part in an AAUW study group as well as to join the Woman's Club.

Estelle Silverman Small's husband passed away after forty-two years of marriage. We know the agony of such a break and send her our deepest love and sympathy. It must be some satisfaction to know that some part of him still walks the earth in the person of their seventeen-year-old grandson, Doug, who entered Purdue University this fall to begin his studies in aeronautical engineering. Estelle is on a trip to Los Angeles and Honolulu with friends as this goes to press. We hope that this will be a balm to her wound which only time can lessen. Our love goes with her.

Dorothy Swan Miller must have had time cutting her roots in Racine after 7 years of residence. However, Santa Barbara is a lovely place, and, in addition, her sister and Virginia Glandon Hackett live there. Daughter Laurel is in San Francisco working on her M.A. in music at San Francisco State.

Gertrude Bradshaw: I had a bad time thinking of the answer to what was the most memorable experience during the last year. Then suddenly my mother went to the hospital for tests. At 95-plus one is apprehensive. Now, with all tests proving negative, our household has again resumed its usual pleasant turbulence.

Betty English Beadling sent a letter and check in August. She changed jobs last year from one department to another in the United Rubber Workers—the Skills and Trades Department. She is also active in the Business and Professional Women's Club. Sorry she did not get to the reunion as she usually does.

Fran Frost Brumbaugh and Jim drove to Sarasota one day in May to see Ruth Mary Wilkinson.

"Sorry not to attend the reunion." Sara Friedman Bigg spent more time with her children in Illinois and Ohio than they had planned.

Leona Newcome Meier spent the summer at home and expects to teach two more years, but is not moving east when she retires.

Mildred Parrill Gilmore and her husband took a cruise in June on the new Swedish-American ship, Kingsholm, to the St. Lawrence River, the Saguenay River, Quebec, Cape Breton, and Bermuda. She had to work an extra four weeks this summer and attended a four day workshop for her teaching job.

Ruth Mary Wilkinson drove home from the reunion via the Great Smoky Mountains. Her sister, Honor, took the pictures of those who attended reunion.

Hope you received the letter all about the reunion. Because of it, I have included less news for the Recorder. Write me whenever you have time as it is always nice to hear from you.

DEATH

Ruth O'Donnell Gallagher, September 20, 1968

We are saddened to learn of Ruth's passing, and we extend the sincere sympathy of the class to her family. A class gift to the Chatham Library has been made in her memory.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Pauline Gibson Gilsdorf whose husband died in August 1967, and to Eleanor Nevins Rubenstein in the loss of her husband in September 1968.

Geraldine Anderson Daum took an early retirement from Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh in February, and moved to Sarasota, Florida in March. She invites any members of our class who travel to stop by. Best wishes, Gerry and Robert! We'll miss you around Pittsburgh.

Catherine Backofen speaks of a rough year for those who teach in Pittsburgh. First the strike, then the riots, and adds, "Who knows what awaits us in September '68!" Catherine enjoyed a N.E.A. sponsored tour of New England and the Maritime Provinces in July.

Polly Bickhart Garratt moved into her new home last year. She and Frank visited their children and two grandsons in Tacoma in August. Polly plans to attend reunion in 1970.

Myra Boor Fuller wrote while crossing Canada via train. She and Denton were enroute to Alaska and boat on inland waterway.

Vi Chadwick Rosso at last has a daughter of her own. Middle son Edwin married Nancy Beetem July 20 at the First United Presbyterian Church in Paoli, Pa. They will live in nearby Newtown Square. John was best man and David an usher. John has finished his first year of work on his Ph.D. at Penn in Philadelphia. David is applying for college for 1969, and Vi is teaching after a five-months vacation.

Dot Collins Pierce is the new president of the Women's Association, Pittsburgh Symphony Society—a big job! Congratulations!

Betty Daugherty Dennis was in Pittsburgh to attend her niece's wedding last summer. She talked with Dode Crawford Macy '31. Betty enjoyed summer visits from daughter Donna, her husband and three children, and later from son Lt. j.g. F. L. Dennis, III, who is stationed in Turkey. Her other daughter Lynda, husband Bill and baby Dan live on their place, which is nice for all.

Eleanor Diskin Houghton wrote from Weld, Maine where she and Bernard have spent many summers. They are retired now and can stay for the September foliage. They have sold their Cleveland home of seventeen years and are building in Sarasota, Fla. After November 12 they will be happy to have visitors from the class of 1930 at the new address. They plan to continue summering in Maine.

Justina Gill Beggs teaches mornings and Dave paints beautiful abstract compositions in acrylic. He is planning to exhibit later. Wendy, their older daughter, is busy with her four children. Wendy and David live in Indiana. Nancy flew to Germany August 2 to join her husband Doug Lamberson in Karlsruhe where they will be for a year. Nancy speaks French, Spanish, and Italian but no German!

Imy Flanagan Truman received her M.S.W. in June 1967, and has returned to counseling.

Pauline Gibson Gilsdorf is continuing her work at the Laboratory of Psychological Studies, Stevens Institute of Technology. She has been pleased that the alumni and students of Newark State College in Union, N.J. have set up a full 4-year scholarship in the name of her late husband. This was granted for the first time this past spring.

Marian Haines Schap and husband Ed toured South America for three weeks last summer, attending music and dance events in each city. They found Machu Picchu and Iguassu Falls exciting.

Winifred Hartman Whiteman did not take time to write family news as she had just returned from visiting her brother Bill who was very ill in Chicago. Thanks, Winnie, for the check for the Dysart fund. We wish your brother a speedy and complete recovery.

Martha Henderson Lewis sounds as full of pep as when she was an undergrad. Her mother and son are with her. Her daughters and their families are fine. Mart says "We're all going strong!"

Danica Ivanovich Henninger's husband Joe went to London, Paris, and Spain with a painter friend while she and the friend's wife went to Mexico. She reports Mexico City fabulous with archeological museums, markets, restaurants. She loved the old colonial towns of Cuernavaca, San Miguel d'allende, and Taxco where she bought silver jewelry. Dan's daughter Dana is a secretary at U.C.L.A. Mike works at the Union Bank in L.A. since graduating from Berkeley. Mark is in his last year at U.C.L.A. as a philosophy major.

Lucille Jackson Strauss says the library takes most of her time and now another revision of the book on scientific and technical libraries is in process. She visited Portugal and enjoyed it despite knowing little of the language. She attended the Special Library Association dinner in Pittsburgh honoring Gerry Anderson Daum and plans to see all of us at the 1970 reunion.

Sally Johnson Bailey spent two weeks in Denver, and flew to the British Isles for a three-week tour which included lots of plays. Her daughter Nancy graduated from University of Missouri, St. Louis campus, and Nancy's husband, Ron, from Washington University Law School and has passed his Bar exams. Sally lunched with Peg Loftus, Louise Dickenson, and Lou Vallowe Spinelli while in Pittsburgh in July.

Ethel Lehmann Grabe and husband Dick were planning to take that trip to the West Coast in August. Their son Charles has recovered from a serious wound and is working on his master's at Pitt in international relations. She enjoyed having all the children home for Christmas—a total of 13 with grandchildren.

Peg Loeffler Loftus and Frank are still enjoying city life. She said it was great to see Sally Bailey, Lou Spinelli and Dickie and gab about the class of '30. Peg saw Amelia Lockard Welker in Sacramento in the spring and talked with Doris Bushnell in San Francisco.

Nancy McIlwain Sweet has had a busy year baby sitting and "getting to know" their only grandchild, Debbie Louise, who was one on September 4. Coburn had major surgery in June, but made a remarkable recovery. They live only twelve miles from Plattsburgh where both married daughters, Connie and Prue, live. Nancy plans to be at reunion in 1970.

Mary Louise Miller Pitcairn sends best wishes with her check to the Dysart fund. Thank you, Mary Louise.

Sally Reamer Matlack found it hard to get used to having no neighbors but now likes it very much. They have room for their dogs to run and have beautiful flower and vegetable gardens. Ed and his brother sold their business a year ago, but Ed still keeps busy. Sally saw many of the Chatham group in Philadelphia at a luncheon for freshmen.

Ann Saxman Underwood reports that her husband Jim was a delegate (4th time) to the Republican Convention, but she did not go—too late hours! Ann expects to go to Sea Island, Georgia, January 2, 1969 and would enjoy seeing anyone should a trip to Florida take them that way.

Dot Thompson Seif went island hopping to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands where she learned the joy of snorkeling. She then attended Audubon Camp in Maine and went birdwatching. In June she visited the Schaps near Chicago after attending the Biology Advanced Placement Conference at Miami University in Ohio. Her son Jim is in Pitt Law School.

Louise Vallowe Spinelli is settling down to school after a busy summer as delegate to the B.P.W. State Convention at the Hilton in June; then two weeks at the Washington Inn, Virginia Beach, in July. During the year she attends the Spinelli concerts at Chatham. No relationship!

Lois Watt Cooper and Henry enjoyed their cruise last fall to the West Indies and South America. Their son passed his Ohio Bar exams and has located in Cleveland. Other interests are their seven grandchildren and an apartment they have bought in Fort Lauderdale. They will divide their time between Florida and Pittsburgh.

Mary Elizabeth Woodworth still finds many interesting places to visit. This year she went on a Caribbean Cruise on the Santa Paula to Haiti, Jamaica, Aruba, Caracas, and Fort Lauderdale. While a guest at Lake Canadota she drove to New Hope, Peddlers' Village, and Washington's Crossing, Pa. "What a welcome change, after a school year disturbed by riots!" she adds.

Does anyone know where to reach Velma Duvall Hazlett, Martha Johnston, and Renee Mattman Rothschild? If so, please let your secretary know.

Most sincere thanks to all the girls for their cards, and letters, their suggestions, pledges, and several checks, including the Centennial Fund. Let's keep in mind that our 40th reunion is only one year away. We hope to add a nice reunion gift to our scholarship fund in honor of Miss Dysart. There is still time to send word of your activities and a check before June 1970.

Florence Bouldin Chase (Mrs. Maurice), 1801 Cravers Lane, Wilmington, Del. 19803

Marion Brindle Miller (Mrs. Fred H.), 766 Big Hill Road, Dayton, Ohio 45419

Catherine Cochran Schaeffer (Mrs. Lee E.), Keister Road, R.D. 4, Slippy Rock, Pa. 16057

Margaret Eisaman Muranyi (Mrs. Stephen A.), Box 212, Eau Claire, Pa. 16030

Lillian Lafbury Wills (Mrs. M. Vincent), 7602 17th Avenue, North, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33710

Our sympathy and heartfelt wishes for a complete recovery go out to Carolyn Bickell Morris who underwent two operations in July, followed by X-ray treatments. Her daughter Mary Lou graduated from Grove City College in June, and is now an executive secretary at Wilmington Trust Company and able to live at home and keep Carolyn company. Her son John is back from Okinawa and working for the Dupont Company in New York.

Among our proud grandmothers are Betsy Dearborn Souren with 3; Rita Lefton Pincus, 2; Marion Stone Howard, 2; Lil Lafbury Wills, a new granddaughter making 4, and Ruth Grafman Weiner expecting her third.

Wedding bells rang on June 15 for Lee Schaeffer, Jr., son of Catherine Cochran Schaeffer, and Judy Maxwell; both began teaching this fall.

On October 21, 1967, Grace Mabie Wilson, '64, daughter of Cady Brady Wilson, and Mark Thomas Sundelin were married. They make their home in Boston.

In December, Cooke McGough, son of Mary Cooke McGough, married Mildred Stewart, a 1962 Chatham graduate. He is a trust officer at Mellon National Bank.

Also in December, the youngest son of Viola Swenson Leeper was married to a lovely girl from Virginia.

Among our travelers are Betsy Dearborn Souren, who has had three European trips, and now a fourth to Portugal this fall; Marion Stone Howard and Wayne revisited the British Isles in August; Libby Ewing Cogbill and Mac spent the summer at their cottage at Van Buren Point; Charlotte Graham Dight splits her time between her homes in Butler and Delray Beach, Florida; Lil Lafbury Wills and Vince retired to St. Petersburg, Florida, and are enthusiastic about their new activities; Rita Lefton Pincus and Irving went to Israel this spring for a vacation; Alice Bair Albright had a six-week seminar at Westminster College, followed by a vacation in the Bahamas; Viola Swenson Leeper and Don visited Germany, Switzerland, Italy and England where they spent a week with friends in their three-hundred-year-old home; Jean Muller Knetsche spent the summer on their island in Canada (what memories these words bring back to me); Katherine Lee Sisco and her husband and niece took a trip to California that included fifteen states and many points of interest; Sara Stevenson spends weekends and vacations in Pittsburgh when not teaching Latin and English in Indiana, Pa.; Harriet Osma Lundquist and her husband launched and christened their retirement dream boat Ariel, on July 25, and next May they will set off for the Bahamas, Virgin Islands and other exotic places, and will no longer have a fixed address. Happy sailing!

Catherine Cochran Schaeffer has been appointed assistant professor of special education at Slippy Rock State College. She and Lee are building a small house just off campus and welcome visitors.

Mary Wooldridge Beyer is busy with her family and new job with General Electric at Schenectady, New York.

Peggy Price Guyton is a happy librarian and home-maker.

Mary Frances Tarr Peat is busy with Garden Club and is serving this year as president of the Johnstown Art League founded in 1884.

Alice Bair Albright's step-son is a senior at Findlay College, Ohio, where he is president of Student Government and on the Dean's List.

Marion Brindle Miller and her husband have moved to their new home for retirement.

Your secretary had two poetry programs put on in her honor by the Harrisburg Pa., Library and also Radio Station WHF in Harrisburg. Our daughter Kathleen is now a professor of English at the University of Massachusetts.

Our class treasury now has a balance of $42.41; keep the dollars coming in, girls! Also, the Chatham Centennial Fund Campaign is underway, and we all will have an opportunity to do something big for it. More of this later!

NEW ADDRESSES

Synnove Haughom, 1205 Lisbon Street, Lewiston, Maine 04140

Frances Lorimer Hepburn (Mrs. John N.), 148 Roselawn Avenue, N.E., Warren, Ohio 44483

Ruth Miller Allen (Mrs. Frank), 10091 Paradise Boulevard, Treasure Island, Florida 33706

Berenice Beamer Williamson reports that her family is well and that she still enjoys her part-time job.

After fifteen years Harriet Cole Lewis likes Florida better than ever now that her son and his wife and the one and only grandchild, Cole Phillip Lewis, live there.

Daughter Christine has moved to San Diego, California.

Hazel Ellwood McClure and her husband spent five weeks in Europe this summer. Hazel will teach Head Start in Jeannette, Pennsylvania again this winter.

Volunteer work keeps Edna Geiselhart Thorp busy. She is co-chairman of the Christmas Bazaar at her church again this winter. The Thorps have had short trips to New Hampshire, Oklahoma City, the Adirondacks, and Canada.

Margaret Goldberg Maxwell's youngest daughter presented them with a beautiful granddaughter. Her son graduated from Duke University Law School with honors and is now associated with the Taft law firm in Cincinnati, Ohio.

In June 1968, Jean Hamilton Charlesworth flew to Jerusalem, Israel, where her husband had been invited to participate in the Summer Institute on Near Eastern Civilization at the Hebrew Archaeological School. This Institute is only for Professors of Religion in American Colleges and Universities.

The middle of August, Synnove Haugbom took a position in the Art Department of Bates College, Lewiston, Maine. Her duties are numerous, but Synnove says she spends most of her time in the Treat Gallery which features exhibits besides its own collection. After she gets settled in her new apartment the end of September, she hopes to work on her dissertation.

Rose Hollingsworth Stambaugh's news is family news. Dick, Jr. is program director at KYA, San Francisco, California; Chris is a junior at the University of Florida, and Jim is a Junior College sophomore; Nelson is senior class president in high school and Phyllis is an enthusiastic 10th-grader.

Anne Irwin Hoffman's granddaughter, 2, lives in Aurora, Colorado where her son Phil and his wife built a new house. The middle boy, Eric, has finished Basic Training at Fort Dix, New Jersey, and Mark, the youngest son, is a freshman at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Anne has joined the Tuscarawas County Art Guild, paints "to please me and for fun."

Luise Link Ely wrote, "just now, as has happened to so many of you, a granddaughter . . . Noel Luise. Mary Margaret Robb knit Noel a pink topper with a tassell!" Linkie reports her third children's book is in the slow hands of the editor. The class sends its sympathy to Luise on the death of the mother, November 29, 1967.

It is a grandson for Jean Ludebuehl Fisher, Kenneth Charles Fisher. Her older son is a 1st Lieutenant in the Air Force, at Pease Air Base in New Hampshire. Her younger son is attending Duquesne University.

Alice McCarthy Bowman writes that they finally had a wedding. Thomas, her #2 son, was married June 1, 1968; he will finish law school next June. #1 son Peter is at Montana State University as teaching assistant in the art department. #3 son Rush, Jr. works in Memphis, Tennessee where daughter Patti is at Southwestern. The class expresses its sympathy to Alice on death of her father last October.

In February 1968, Anne McCullough Frey and her husband visited Santiago, Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro. On September first they left for three weeks in northern Italy and Switzerland where they expected to see Eleanor Harbison Bream '35, and her husband. At home, Anne is president of the Rector's Guild at the Church of the Redeemer.

Mary Louise Martin is still secretary to the Superintendent of Schools in Carlisle, Pennsylvania. She is also editor of the AAUW Newsletter. This summer Mary Louise traveled through the Smokies with her sister Carolyn, class of 1941.

In June Ruth Miller Allen went to Rochester, New York for the wedding of her niece, and then spent three days visiting her sister in Tarentum, Pennsylvania. Ruth says it is the same job, but a new home address.

Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort's family and travel news combines. Daughter Ellen, Barnard and the three little Huets have moved from Paris to Strasbourg, France. Daughter Betsy, class of 1966, was married last September to J. Paul Aland and they are traveling in Europe and expect to winter in Germany. In December Dot and Bob, with son Dave and his wife Sue, expect to go to Strasbourg to spend Christmas with the Huets and the Alands. Dot is to head the Alumnae Special Gifts division for Allegheny County in Chatham's Centennial Fund campaign, and is very active with the United Fund.

Avanelle Schlosser Grafton continues as counselor in Kittanning Senior High School. She is beginning a two year term as President of the Alpha Theta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, and is serving as a Grand Chapter committee member for the Order of the Eastern Star.

It is family news from Marion Starkey Hamlet. Debbie is a freshman at Mt. Holyoke College where she will have a duel major in applied art and English. Jeff is a sophomore at Loomis Preparatory School in Hartford, and Susan is a freshman at the Chaffee School, girl's division of Loomis. Marion is teaching English in Hartford.

When Harriet Stephenson Stearns wrote, she had just returned from a "tour of her young." She has a grandson, Ronald MacDonald Stearns III, born December 16, 1967. Her son and his wife live in Roselle, Illinois. Daughter Mary (Mrs. Gary L. Esch) is still in New Mexico and works at White Sands as a statistician. Ellen and Jean are also through college; Ellen lives and works in Louisville, Kentucky, and Jean is in New York City. Liz is a junior at Florida State University. Harriet said she enjoyed riding down Woodland Road to show Liz "my old haunts."

The class extends its sympathy to Jean Walker Fox on the death of her husband. Dick died April 25, 1968 after an emergency operation. Jean went back to work at Carnegie Institute, at the request of the director, to supervise termination of Dick's work under his National Science Foundation Grant. Jean said she is still limping from a broken ankle of last January.

Olive Walker Beatty's news combines family and travel. Her son, Dr. Robert W. Beatty, was to leave in September for Germany where he will serve with the United States Army. His wife and eleven-month-old son plan to join him. Daughter Judy and her family live in Ocean City, New Jersey. Olive's husband is the architect for the American Embassy at Neamy, Africa and they were planning another trip to Africa with a stop-over in Germany.

Ellen Yeager Husak reports that she is busy with home chores for their two sons who are still with them, and her volunteer work with the Public Health Department in Child Health Conferences. The class extends its sympathy to Ellen on the death of her father last November. Ellen's older son, John, is working at the post office, and Allen is working on the last phase of his doctoral dissertation.

In July Mary Jane Young and her room mate enjoyed a wonderful trip through the Pacific Northwest . . . Banff, Lake Louise, Harrison Hot Springs, Victoria, Seattle, Portland, and San Francisco. Then they visited friends in California and Texas. Mary Jane says she is still working for the Department of Commerce in Washington, D.C., and is fairly active in her P.E.O. chapter.

As for your secretaries, Margaret White says she has no news and that the Recorder would save space on her this time.

I, Helen, have a part-time job as library technician with the Chicago Public Library. There will be three Empfield boys in college this year, as our oldest son has returned from two years active duty with the Navy Reserve, and just one Empfield boy in High School.

Thanks to all of you who answered my letters. And special thanks to those who sent money for our treasury. It was fun to discover Hazel Ellwood McClure's husband once lived next door to me in Blairsville, Pennsylvania. Eight of you said you planned to attend our 35th Reunion in 1969. I expect to see YOU then, and, hopefully, many more.

DEATHS

Edna Dague Rigg, January 10, 1968

Margaret Rowe Husted, February 7, 1968

We were saddened by the passing of two of our classmates. Books in their memory have been placed in the Chatham Library.

Jane Dowler Elder is working as a librarian at Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh where she often meets former school chums and old friends. Son Paul, Jr., is living in Colorado Springs, and daughter Sara is in her second year of graduate work at the University of North Carolina.

South of Pittsburgh, on Route 19, on the way to Washington, Pennsylvania, is a furniture store designated as the Manor House, where Nancy Henderson O'Dell's daughter Nancy Leah is a decorator. Nancy's son Herbert is at Penn State where he is in his last year working toward a master's degree in fine arts. Nancy is busy working on the thirteenth annual Opera Workshop of Chatham Fashionlogue Benefit. She is also a volunteer at South Side Hospital and the Woman's Auxiliary of Southminster Presbyterian Church in Mt. Lebanon.

Agnes Ralston is still with Regional Industrial Development Corporation, playing a little golf in the summer and skiing in the winter.

Our sympathy is extended to Harriet Bannatyne Moelmann who lost her mother July 26th, 1968. Son Jack is a captain in the Air Force in Wiesbaden, Germany, and son Larry is a junior at Princeton.

This summer has been a happy and sad one for Carol Pfordt Davis. A second grandson arrived in June to their older daughter, Susan, in Devon, Pennsylvania. Carol and her husband had his older brother, Robbie, aged four, as a house guest for two weeks. After his departure, plans were going ahead for their daughter Carolyn's wedding on August 10th when Carol's mother passed away a week before the wedding. Now both daughters are in the Philadelphia area as their new son-in-law is in his last year at the University of Pennsylvania, Wharton School.

From the San Francisco Bay area, Betty McCook Mills writes that she spends her time between the ranch and Lake Tahoe. Since her youngest son, Tom, entered the University of the Pacific this fall, she has no one at home and has returned to teaching part time. Another son, David, is a senior at the University of the Pacific. Her two older children, Bob and Joanne, are married, and Betty and her husband are grandparents of a girl and boy.

Doris Pierce received a card from Katrina Utne Brown from Oslo, Norway, saying she was taking an eight week's summer course in Norwegian. Doris is looking forward to retirement after thirty years with the McKeesport Area School District. She hopes to move to Fort Lauderdale, Florida, when she sells her home.

If you ever travel to Wayne, Pennsylvania, look up Ruth Simpson Woolford for she conducts a party shop there. Ruth is a grandmother. Her daughter, Judy, has "an absolutely perfect two-year-old." Nancy, the younger daughter, is married and working as a medical secretary. Their son Sam is a high school senior and a member of the National Honor Society along with being an outstanding athlete.

The mail strike in Canada almost prevented news from Mary Adah Trussell Gray. Their family summers at Lake Memphramagog in Quebec. Daughter Anne is entering her last year at Smith, and son Christopher will enter Washington and Jefferson this fall.

Charlotte Ley Glover sends greetings to all.

Frances Ferguson O'Callaghan finds her job as president of the American Legion Auxiliary for the eighth district in Florida challenging and rewarding.

Olga Catizone Bonaddio has returned to teaching as an assistant professor in biology at Allegheny Community College. She was delighted to find Jane Seaton Young is also on the staff.

Two of our classmates report daughters at Chatham. Jody Dodds Shradler's daughter Nancy is living at Woodland Hall. Helen Lindsay Lee's daughter Normandie is a junior and is spending this year in France. Helen did a flower arrangement program at the Metropolitan Museum of Art for the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

While her husband and son fished for salmon in Alaska this summer, Jane Griffith Potter and her daughter vacationed in San Francisco, Seattle, and Vancouver. She has a daughter at Washington University and one at the Grier School. Charles, Jr. is a freshman at Colgate.

Mary-Stuart Clements Harriman was kind to dash off a note while packing to move to England for a four-year stay. Her husband Ben has been appointed scientific liaison man for the 3M Company for Europe. One of the family is already there as Ed is working on his doctorate at the London School of Economics. Mary-Stuart has a grandson, Richard Benjamin Stocton. Anyone going to Britain? She would like to see you. They have bought a charming 400-year-old Elizabethan cottage with a thatched roof—but with central heat!

There is another grandmother in our midst and she claims to be typical. Jean Anders Berger has a granddaughter. The Bergers have become apartment dwellers, dividing their time between Milwaukee and Boca Raton, Florida.

Our sympathy goes to Ruth Frost who lost both her parents this year. Ruth is still living at home, but is considering moving to an apartment.

We have all read about Mary Virginia Brown Bowden's exciting career in the Chatham Newsletter. Congratulations, Mary Virginia. Her husband has a new assignment for American Telephone and Telegraph directing many of the systems programs involving urban and educational problems. Son Burk is a physicist at Stanford and daughter Kathie is in her third year at Randolph-Macon Woman's College.

Although Ruth Rosen Hartz said she did not have any news, she did ask how we make out the checks for our 35th Reunion class gifts. I was more than happy to report that all checks are made out to Chatham Alumnae Class Account and are to be mailed to your local secretary. Our fund now stands at $672.18. So send your dollars per year as agreed.

Jean Maeder Lindsay has been occupied this past year building and furnishing a new house and getting ready for a wedding. Her daughter Beth was married June 15th and moving day was June 24th. Son Bill is in the Army, and his wife is living with the Lindsays and teaching in the Midland area.

Your local secretary, Mary Jane Cameron Michael Garvin, has just returned from the University of Miami where son Jim was enrolled as a freshman. Previous to this the Garvins were at Lake Placid for a week and in July traveled to San Francisco for the Million Dollar Round Table Conference. After the conference Mary Jane, her husband, and Jane, who is a junior at Winchester Thurston, toured California from San Diego to British Columbia. Daughter Katie is in her last year at Gettysburg, where she is head resident at Hubbard Hall.

Emily Smith Goll (Mrs. Gene), St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Southboro, Mass. 01772

There we stood in our academic caps and gowns, so serious, so dedicated, and so young! Thirty years later a few of us at our Thirtieth Reunion stared at our class picture which Mary Deemer Nagel has added to a bulletin board of messages and letters from absent members. Present were Barbara McCormick Tener, Ruth Kleib Buel, Mary Baldwin, Edith Thompson, Mary Deemer Nagel, Helen Johnson Montgomery

omery, Lois Kramer Boyd, Cynthia Cate Beal, Beatrice Lynch Perrin, Florence Gibbs Momeyer, Dorothy Ringler Creutzer, Mary Margaret Schmitt, Helen Thomas Nevin and Sarah Reese Warrick. We were not so serious, the years sat lightly on our shoulders, and we chatted about our absent friends. (Now you will know better than to stay away.) All in all, a most pleasant reunion!

Our class expresses its grateful thanks to Dorothy Ringler Creutzer and Helen Finkel Eger who were our class secretaries for the last five years. Theirs was a good job, well done!

Your response to our plea for class news was most gratifying. Thank you very much.

Kay Arnold Dague and Mary Baldwin send their greetings to everyone with promises of longer messages next year.

Chita Cate Beal was spending a week in New York at a math workshop learning the Cuisenaire method to teach modern math to primary teachers. Chita says she will be putting up hems the rest of the vacation time, a practical application of the math.

Martha Bright Wolfe was in Canada at the time of our reunion. Her daughter Ellie graduated from Penn State in December, married George Holes in January, and is now in the Dominican Republic with her husband working for the Peace Corps. Fred is a junior in Muskingum College and Richard a freshman in Swarthmore. Husband Larry and his brother Tony are partner architects presently doing a whole new zoo for Pittsburgh—most interesting for the whole family. Martha sends everyone her best love.

From California, Marge Chubb Randall writes that she likes to read about everybody in our class and hopes our reunion was a success. We missed you, Marge!

Elizabeth Coates Elliott sent her regards to us in Spanish which she and Paul study at night school in preparation for their trip to Chile to visit their "Octavio" and his family. They urge anyone who has a chance to make a home for an exchange student. It is an experience which adds a whole new dimension to one's life. This summer son Tom was in Europe for ten weeks, and older son, Peter, worked in New York City.

Associate Cathryn Cottrell Deemer writes that her first grandchild, Julie Anne Deemer, was born August 17, 1968 to Dick and Kathy, her eldest son and his wife. Son Art and Judy are both teaching school. Art is a second year graduate student. Karen is to wed Don Bennett September 28, 1968. Son Bruce will enter his senior year of high school. Cotty and Art are planning a trip to Hawaii.

Mary Deemer Nagel helped to cater two weddings at her church this summer. She attended the Pennsylvania Clubwomen's Conference at Penn State in July, and went with her family and son Bill and his wife on a camping trip to Montreal in August after daughter Mary finished work as a cook at Camp Henry Kaufmann and before John was due to register for his junior year at the University of Pennsylvania. Mary L. is a senior this fall at Carnegie-Mellon. Sons Charles and Harry are active in their dad's Scout Troop.

A new address will be reported as soon as Dora Diamond Hake and her family move to a home near their present address.

Our class extends its deepest sympathy to Helen Finkel Eger whose husband Bernard died on August 10. Daughter Terry, a senior at Vassar, worked for the A.P.A. Repertoire Company office in New York this summer. Son Jan is a sophomore at Wittenberg University.

It's "Aloha" to Florence Gibbs Momeyer and Glenn who traveled to Hawaii and dream of retiring there some day. Flo is busy as ever as Associate Director of Retarded Children's Association. Douglas was married in June and is in his last year of law school. Rick is teaching at the University of Washington and Alan is a junior at Penn State.

Our class extends its deepest sympathy to Hespie Godlove Gillette whose mother died in April, 1966. Hespie's children are sixteen, fifteen, and fourteen and keep her busy driving from one activity to another. With her usual verve, Hespie is involved as a Gray Lady in hospital work, has been a substitute in the Pensacola schools, teaches Sunday School and sings with the Pensacola Fiesta Chorus. Honestly, Hespie, when do you find the time?

"My sons, the doctors" will soon be Helen Griffith Wrights' proud saying. Following in the footsteps of Helen's husband, who is president of the staff at St. Francis General Hospital, George III is in his second year at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. David graduated from Harvard and entered Tulane Medical School in September.

Dotty Hawk Bryen is "launching" daughter Becky on her college career at Queens College in Charlotte, North Carolina, where Becky hopes to take up elementary education. The whole family took a lovely West Indies cruise in the spring. Jimmy and Dotty are planning to rest at Hilton Head Island now that Becky is settled.

With one Dotty relaxing, another Dotty, Dorothea Hunter Haas continues to see the world. Ben and she toured the British Isles with an alumni group from Allegheny College.

I, Helen Johnson Montgomery, envy both of you. In just this last week and a half we settled sophomore Sam in West Virginia University, transported daughter Susan to enter a graduate fellowship at the University of Wisconsin, (Susan graduated Phi Beta Kappa and summa cum laude from Denison University in Ohio in June) and lived through three extremely hectic opening days at our high school. Did you ever know that a computer, while scheduling classes, can become confused and refuse to assign lunch hours? Well, it can! My husband Ward is now an instructor in lab techniques at our area technical school.

I wish we had joined Ruth Kleitz Buel and her family as she traveled to California and the Pacific Coast in their travel trailer. She says, "All was unforgettably beautiful!"

It must have been a grand vacation before Barbara entered the University of Pittsburgh and Virginia entered senior high school.

Dorothy Kirkland Manthey amusingly reports living in the same house, working in the same place (secretary to the president of Arthur W. Schmid Company), and having the same daughter Linda, who is a senior in elementary education at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. We wouldn't want you to change, Dottie.

Our class extends its deepest sympathy to Beatrice Lynch Perrin on the death of her husband Harry on September 10.

Sarah Marks Volkwein sends her new address and news of her children. Sally's oldest son, Fred, received his Ph.D. from Cornell, is married, and has made Sally a grandmother. Son Edward is married and is studying at the University of Virginia after three and a half years in the Navy. Honey is married to a doctor who is intern-ing in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Eleanor Meanor Croyle writes that her daughter Barbara was married July 6 to Paige Butler, Jr. They are back from Acapulco and settled in their apartment. Virginia Mencken Morrison and Dave flew down for the wedding. There was much fun all the way around. Bob Jr. finished Law at the University of Texas and now sports an LLB degree. He took the Bar in June and is now waiting for the Army. Phil, who is nineteen years old, was a life guard this summer and is a sophomore at Stanford this fall. Anyone coming Houston way is invited to call and come see Bob and Eleanor.

Margaret Perry Huessener's occupations include: on the Board of Fox Chapel Town Hall; co-chairman of the Fall Bazaar of Fox Chapel Episcopal Church; chairman of the Pittsburgh College Club New York Theatre Tour. Her children are sixteen and thirteen. Her activities include golf, knitting and needlepoint.

Sarah Reese Warrick looks forward to the return of her son Dick from Vietnam, where he is serving with the Ninth Division in the unbelievable heat of the Mekong Delta. He is due home October 24. Sally is secretary to the Director and the Associate Director of the New Citizen's Library. She enjoys her work with a staff that's fun to know, and she enjoys her contacts with the high school girls who help keep her young by reminding her a new hair-do looks cool and hemlines aren't below the knee. Her husband Richard continues in the insurance world. He is busy twenty-five hours a day, eight days a week, and in his spare time he keeps active as a Boy Scout Commissioner.

Dorothy Ringler Creutzer and her husband, Willard, are planning a trip to Australia.

Phyllis Schaeffer Geffel's daughter Melissa has graduated and is now associate planner for Snohomish County, a lively, hard working young group of geographers. Her two boys are in high school and Phyllis would remind us that all over America women are celebrating the "return to school."

Mary Margaret Schmitt is attending a seminar on Africa in Africa. She sends good wishes.

Associate Emily Smith Storkerson Goll is now living in Southboro, Massachusetts. Her husband died a year ago and she has remarried. Her new husband, Gene Goll, is the Episcopal Minister of St. Mark's Church in Southboro. Emily has had four children, one of whom is dead, and Gene has three children. Beaver was Gene's home town.

Helen Thomas Nevin writes that her son Tom is in his senior year at Washington and Jefferson. Her grandson Joey enters first grade.

Edith W. Thompson participated in the Billy Graham Crusade August 30 to September 8 in Pittsburgh. Through all the years since we graduated from college, Edith has taught in the Sunday School at First Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, and has considered this to have been a wonderful privilege. Besides working, she has been a busy housekeeper for her aunt and herself.

Martha Wycoff Cross is active in the college club group in Dayton and enjoys the study groups. Her daughter is sixteen, a junior in high school, and she has fallen heir to Martha's golf clubs. Martha's husband is working towards his doctorate.

Helen reporting:

I sent the cards out early this time, but did not receive too many replies. However, I was rewarded with a wonderful letter from Helen Cheng Cheang bringing us up to date on herself and family. Her husband, who is an architect, has not been well, but is improving. Their oldest daughter, Elizabeth, was home on holiday after four years of school in England. She will resume her studies in dietetics in the technical college at Leeds University. Their second daughter will be a senior (pre-college) at the St. Stephen's School. Their third daughter is fourteen in tenth grade high school. She writes a great deal and has an excellent command of English. Their youngest, and only son, is seven and a half. She says he is a solace to her in her old age. In the fourteen years they have been in Hong-Kong, life has been placid. The weather is always hot and humid there, around ninety degrees, which she says makes her look and feel wilted all the time. She has done quite a bit of teaching, from fifth grade to the senior year in college, but is now resting, being a lady of leisure and waxing fat—measurements close to five by five. After so many years P.C.W. days seem an eon ago, although in some respects she can recall vividly her life there. About two years ago she had a nice visit with Dr. Kinder, and a few months ago with Elva Bogren Goodwin, '39.

Ruth Bauer Greenawalt, after substituting for ten years, is teaching art full time from kindergarten to sixth grade. Their family is quite grown up. Dawn is married and lives in Edinboro, Pa., Susie is a senior at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and the "baby" is a senior in high school.

Elinor Bissell Offill reports a major removal for Paul and herself. In June she left Wooster School in the Waterbury Rehabilitation Center. Paul has joined the staff of Young Life in New York and will be working in the Tower, East Side, teaching in a Street Academy for drop-outs and doing administrative work and fund-raising. They will be living in the "ghetto" area there as soon as they can find an apartment and she expects to be working in that neighborhood. Their son Dave was married early in the year, then he and his bride graduated from the University of North Carolina in June. This summer they spent a month in Colorado and California and welcomed their fifth grandchild.

Peggy Christy Graham says their oldest daughter, Anne, married Lt. G. Curtis Gibby, U.S.N., August 3 in Coronado, California and they attended. Keith (No. 2 daughter) has been accepted by the Philadelphia Temple University Teacher Corps Program. She just returned from a year abroad, so Peggy and Barrie spent two weeks with her in London and Paris. The other two children are still in school.

Nancyann Cockerille Gleichert agrees that this was a fast year just passed. She is still involved with volunteer work and teaching "high-school drop-outs."

Betty Crawford Colbert went back to teaching this past winter at Sewickley Academy. She teaches in the morning and has afternoon classes in American and World History which have been a great challenge and much fun. Their son Britt will be a senior at the University of Denver. Billy is a sophomore at Sewickley Academy.

Jean Curry Burt says their daughter Anne graduated from Carnegie-Mellon University in June and was married August 10. She will work at Children's Hospital as a therapeutic dietitian. Their son is a second year pre-med student at Kenyon College.

Margaret Dunseath Wilson took a quick tour of Germany and Switzerland this spring. The highlights were viewing the horrendous Berlin wall and a slanted tour of East Berlin. The Rhine Valley, with its medieval castles, presented a majestic picture. Luzerne was very beautiful with happy, fun-loving people and a shopper's paradise. This summer's vacation was spent fishing and golfing in the Thousand Islands. She was re-elected president of the North Hills Women's Golf Association and is kept quite busy.

Eleanor Gangloff Morris says no special news—still working and living in the same place and at the same pace.

Audrey Horton Skillman's card came too late last time due to her being in the hospital. Now all is fine with them with their family growing. Priscilla is married and they both teach in Connecticut. Gordon is married and lives in Galveston, Texas. Rebecca and Michael plan to be married in September.

Carrie Louise Kinzer Trapp and Charlie had several trips this year. During the winter they went to the Caribbean and to England in June—business for him, all pleasure for her.

Rachel Kirk Bobo moved into the same building where Eleanor Hackett lives. She is glad not to have to worry about grass, plumbers, storm windows, etc. Kirk started to Dickinson College on September 11.

Patricia Krause Kosco's card came too late last time. She said the "kids" are growing like weeds, but fun. She did substitute teaching in the school year, and spent the summer on a stepladder patching and painting this "old house."

The class extends sympathy to Louise Lean Fontaine on the death of her father this year.

Anne Ludlow Kinney has been tutoring deficient French students and teaching 8th and 9th graders in Sunday School. Harriet 20, is a senior at Allegheny College this year. Son Rob, 23, is a senior at the University of Delaware. Sons Charles, 16, and Mike, 14, are still at home.

Ada Lee Mangum Clark thinks there is no place like Florida to enjoy life and work too. She teaches kindergarten in an air conditioned room with more than enough equipment. Their home is on the Gulf where they can swim and sail from their back yard. They welcome company there. Their son John is a junior in high school and daughter Carol is married and lives in Poughkeepsie, New York.

Eleanor reporting:

Roseanne Martin has been moving with her whole household in Herman, the truck since November, 1967, seeing lots of wonderful U.S.A. She will head westward again in October covering the southwest enroute home. She had a great visit with Eleanor McKinley Wright in Mobile and was introduced to some Alabama food. I am any of you are planning a similar trip, she warns that a year is not really long enough for such a venture because she feels she has missed as much as she has seen.

Ruth Mengel Roosa has been busy with Children's Aid Society. Her oldest daughter was in a bad accident last winter at college but has miraculously recovered; her middle daughter starts to Mount Union College this fall; her youngest daughter is a junior in high school; her married son lives in Annapolis. She and Paul celebrated their 27th wedding anniversary by going to Kentucky and Tennessee to see the Cumberland Gap and the Hermitage. In March she and Paul spent a week at Jekyll Island, Georgia.

Mary Ellen Ostergard Lutz and family had quite a year—two daughters married, a granddaughter arrived and a teenage driver-to-be quite soon.

Katherine Rutter Hingeley continues to teach at the Village Academy in Bethel Park and finds the work interesting and rewarding. Her son is a senior at Harvard this year.

Mary Louise Shoemaker Hockensmith has had a wonderful year including a trip to Florida last winter.

Frances Shoup Brant had a trip to California this summer. While she thought the country in the north was nice, she still prefers good old Pennsylvania. She is still working with a mentally retarded junior high group and playing the organ at church.

Alida Spinning and Mary Wolff Gamble extend best wishes to all their classmates.

Nancy Wilson Patterson and her family went to Newark, Ohio, for son Tommy's wedding, September 7, 1968. The couple were married in an Episcopal service in the Baptist church. Her husband Tom performed the ceremony. Tom ran into Paul Offill in New York City. The Offills are moving to a slum ghetto area to work. Nancy and Tom have remodeled their little dream house in Hampton Bays, N.Y.

Jane Viehman vacationed in the west this summer and visited California for the first time.

Eleanor D. Hackett. In July I spent a week at Windermere House in Windermere, Ontario, Canada. In August my parents and I visited my niece and her husband in Newport, where he is stationed with the Navy, and then toured Cape Cod. I am happy to have Rachel Kirk Bobo as a neighbor in the apartment building in which I live.

It must be a sure sign that I'm on my second hitch as Class Secretary when I have trouble remembering maiden names! Postcards just aren't big enough for '42 news—especially when my arms aren't as long as they used to be!

Mankey Anderson spent the summer taking care of her father who was recuperating from a broken hip and reports that he is now getting along very well.

Betty Baker Patterson moved to Massachusetts in March, and daughter Vickie graduated from Sullins College in June. Older son, Bob, Jr., is engaged and planning a late fall wedding. Glen, 14, has entered high school and she and Bob keep busy with golf, bridge, etc.

Co-chairman of the Cinderella Ball, Carol Bostwick McConnon reports that son Wick is a senior at Shady Side Academy, and daughter Cathy is working in Boston.

Jane Campbell Fair finally got a view in their new home in New Jersey. They went to California in May to see son Bob before he left for Vietnam in July. Getting settled has helped make the time until he returns pass more quickly.

Our "traveling agent" Jané Chantler went to Southern California for quick training that ended with a day of familiarization with Disneyland, flew to New York for a few days of theatre and fashions, is beginning her second year as president of the Butler County Council of Republican Women, and is trying to train an overgrown Irish Setter to become a gentleman! How's that for becoming involved?

Finishing "Alison Lodge" in Cook's Forest has kept Sunny Croft Armstrong busy for the past year. She says they sleep twelve without resorting to sleeping bags and love company, so if anyone gets up their way, they would love to have them visit—right off Gravel Lick Road, easy to find back in the forest! Son Tom is now a senior and Alison a freshman.

Besides teaching nursery school, Ruth Demmler Benner is writing a paper on Persian art for a literary club, has finished designing her Christmas Card, and spends her spare time writing to their 22-year-old son, Paul, who is on the Battleship New Jersey heading for Vietnam, and getting news of home relayed to Jeannie, their 19-year-old college sophomore.

Anne Driver Toumey is barely keeping up with her three teen-agers and her 89-year-old mother who is joining her to fly out to the University of Minnesota to visit their fourth child at college there.

Jean Faris Watt is still keeping up with her son, daughter-in-law, and daughter in pursuing the academic life at college—and hopes they all make it! Gib is fine, bearing up well under the intellectual strain of having all of his family in college!

Betty Gabagen Lindsay understated when she said it had been a big year for them. Carol married Bill Kronen last November and they are living in one of the old houses on the farm which Bill is managing. Al married Patricia Waddell in Tucson in June, after graduating from W and J. He and Trish live in Pittsburgh where he has entered Law School and Trish teaches home economics in Brentwood. John has been in the Army for almost a year and goes to Vietnam this winter. Charlie is a sophomore at Bryn Athyn College, Jim a junior in high school, and Laurie is active in school. Music, Rainbow, Andy and Tom (5 and 3) keep Betty happy. Alec is still busy with law, farm and bank—also amateur radio. Betty helped her mother and father celebrate their 50th Anniversary in May in Los Angeles. And we think we're busy!

Mary Alice Spellmire Girts says they got son, Rob, washed, sewed and househanded in his apartment for his 4th year at Cornell in engineering physics. Daughter Muff won a three-year scholarship to Ellis and has started her 2nd year. They enjoyed a weekend of motor and sail-boating and a concert at Chautauqua, then a week at Cape May and Ocean City. Mary Alice plans to study piano and teach a jewelry course at Arts and Crafts Center this year.

Ethel Herrod Blackburn says she's getting to know Chatham pretty well these days since daughter Nancy is in the freshman class, and she has just signed up for her second hitch as Alumnae Representative. As of now, all their 'birds have flown the nest' but she hasn't been home long enough to realize the pros and/or cons.

Grace Mary Horton Haller spends most of her time driving—due to the kid's schooling. They were getting ready to take son Hal back to Boston for his senior year at M.I.T. Marjorie is a senior in high school and they have been visiting colleges—and they still have two more to go!

Barbara Maerker Baum hears from Jane Chantler but hasn't seen her in ages. Dick finishes at Duquesne this year. Son Bob is going to Robert Morris, and daughter Carol has two more years in Peabody High School.

D. J. and Peggy Matheny Bailey play a lot of golf, do a lot of church work (Peggy is the first woman Vestryman at their church) and work themselves silly in a little theatre group they are devoted to. She still keeps her hand in advertising with more free-lance assignments than she bargained for when she left the agency business. They are happy, healthy and very, very grateful—a typical "Peggy" state of mind!

Jane McClung Sincell's exciting news is her daughter Pamela's engagement, with the wedding date set for August 16, 1969. Their son is a freshman at Southern Illinois University. Jane has a terrific new job as secretary to the Head of the Lower School at North Shore Country Day School—8:00 to 12:00, five days a week, nine months a year—and you can't beat that!

Janet Murray Newton says I know what she's doing—being President of our Forest Hills Women's Club and trying to get classmates more deeply involved! Daughter Barb graduates from Penn State in December, and the others are progressing gradually through the educational system—she trusts.

This news has to be from Jean Patterson Bliss even though it wasn't signed—but so neatly written! They spent another great summer at Chautauqua, where Jean and Gib Watt are their next-door neighbors. Jean went antiquing with Ellen Copeland Wick and Barbara Copeland. They were home from the lake for two days and drove their daughter to Arizona where she is transferring for her senior year. Their son is in his third year at Mercersburg Academy.

Except for the fact that Alice Provost McCutcheon moved in September, she says things are as usual. They are still in the same school district and have the same zip code.

Dorothy Purkiss Linke's daughter Bobbie worked at the State Library this summer writing publicity releases. She is a junior at Indiana University in radio-television. Dorothy received her educational science degree this summer in the area of reading and English. Her thesis, at Butler University, was based on work done with math-tract classes (the slowest achievers in junior high). Sewing, painting (walls), and housecleaning consumed the summer days after the schooling was done. She is now back at School 101, teaching the mentally retarded who are educable and are placed in our regular schools for their education. These teen-agers, ranging from twelve to sixteen years of age, need much love and encouragement. What a rewarding career!

Mary Elizabeth Rope LaHue has a son in Taiwan in the U.S.A.F. The other three are still at home. They spent 2½ weeks sailing again this summer—across Lake Ontario at night and through Canada into the St. Lawrence. She flew back to California for a family visit and is involved this year in more Scout work, "patterning" a cerebral palsy child, some art work, clubs and volunteer "Inner City" teaching work.

Elizabeth Rowse Pray studied a little Spanish this summer and is teaching fifth grade again. Their oldest boy spent his spring semester on "World Campus Afloat"—went to South America and Europe. Their younger son, Jon, enters Colorado State University this fall.

Betty Steffler Baker's son Richard received a master's degree in public relations this spring and is working in Columbus, Ohio, for the Ohio Education Association.

Kathleen is a junior at Miami University, majoring in journalism, and worked as a feature writer on the local newspaper this summer. Dick is, as always, busy this time of year manufacturing the 1969 calendars. Betty is still teaching sixth grade—a considerable challenge since the class is reaching the 40 mark.

A new way of life and a different perspective seem to be in order for Clare Stewart Burkhart since her family is all grown up. Their oldest daughter was married in July and is living and teaching elementary school in Nassau in the Bahamas. Their second daughter is a biological science senior at Chatham and was supervisor of the Highland Park Children's Zoo this summer. The third daughter is a sophomore at Carnegie-Mellon University studying architecture, and spent her third summer as set-designer for the Sherwood Forest Theatre. Claire is still a kindergarten teacher, and active in Pittsburgh Council for International Visitors through which they enjoy many international guests in their home.

Florence Succop Klotz and her family vacationed this year in the Northwest Territories—Yellow-Knife on Great Slave Lake and also to the Canadian Rockies. Since school started, she is trying to adjust to being all alone at home for the first time in 25 years. Our sympathy in the loss of her father-in-law, who had been part of their family for almost that long.

Marjorie Wood Yearick and her family are hosts to an American Field Service student from Australia. She will be with them for a year and will graduate from Churchill Area High School with their daughter Pat in June. They are having fun learning all about the land "down under." Marjorie is also becoming more involved in the Community Service Program at church and feels that the Yearicks are in for a lively and interesting year!

Co-secretary Joan Myers Rankin "discovered America" with her family this summer, trailer-camping to California and back. Joan says it's the only way to go! None in college yet, unless you can count Jamie (13) studying piano at Carnegie-Mellon. Paul (10) is taking trumpet lessons at school and Jay (17) plays the bag-pipes. If you would like to be "turned-on," just drop in some day when they are all practicing at once!

The Cline's were host-family to a 15-year-old Exchange Student from San Juan, Argentina, last winter and thoroughly enjoyed our No. 2 son, Cesar Alberto Savastano. With limited Spanish, we managed to acquire quite a vocabulary of Argentine slang and sent quite a few choice teen-age expressions home with Al! Now we are looking forward to hosting a couple from London, England, for two weeks in a Rotary Exchange Program. Karen entered Thiel College as a freshman with aspirations of becoming a physical therapist. Tom is in ninth grade and a charter member of a "Hand-Bell Choir" (fondly called the "Ding-a-Lings" in our household). Harold and Helen still fight the golf course and the bowling lanes, plus the usual church, community and volunteer activities, which somehow seem to increase each year.

It was so much fun to hear from all of you that I think I will make a career of letter-writing this year because you really just get a 'taste of news' on that little postcard!

Marion reporting:

If one theme runs through our news this year, it is that we are a busy and happy group and find these middle years to be good ones.

Norma Bailey McLean writes that they have had a busy summer with trips to Atlantic City and New England and two family weddings in which their daughter Susan, 14, served as a bridesmaid.

Gladys Bistline Belz found a month long vacation in the west visiting National Parks so delightful that she and Paul were tempted to become "middle age drop-outs" and just travel on and on.

Joanne Bowdle Turnbull writes of a pleasant and quiet summer at home which included a visit from Mary Sampson Eckman and family. It's back to school for her now. With her first class at 7:00 A.M., evening activities are really curtailed.

Certainly a very worthwhile summer was spent by Betty Bush Sinclair. They rented a Dodge Motor Home and the whole family drove to the Cheyenne Indian Reservation in Montana where they stayed at a Catholic Mission helping "medically and domestically." Johnny, 19, a junior at Guilford College, worked at an Indian camp, and David, 18, a freshman at St. Andrews, worked on a ranch. Betty worked in the lab and her husband "doctored" at the government hospital. She plans to do some part-time work in a hospital lab this fall.

Barb Caldwell Blackburn works one day a week for the Red Cross at the Home for Crippled Children, and continues to sing alto in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church choir. John is in his senior year at Shady Side and Liz is in 6th grade at Edgewood.

Peg Craig Murray sends no news but is hoping to see everyone at the Reunion.

Jeanne DeHaven Uhl and John are entering that period of their lives when they'll have two children in college at once for what seems like forever. At present John is at the University of Louisville and Bob at Rose Tech. Jeanne has been teaching nutrition and chemistry for two years at Kentucky Southern College.

Evlyn Fulton is excited about a coming trip. Traveling as a representative of the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations of the United Presbyterian Church, she leaves on December 5 for three months in Africa. Her plans call for her to go out through Iran, to stop briefly at Beirut, to spend Christmas week in Egypt with friends, then ten days in Ethiopia, and to arrive finally in Nairobi, Kenya on January 4 for two months. Evlyn will work in a hostel for girls coming from the villages, getting them ready for employment in the city. She'll come home through Zambia and Cameroun, arriving back about March 10.

Nellie Ireland Phillips enjoyed a vacation in Europe in August. She speaks for most of us when she writes that the children are growing up much too fast. Richard is married and continues his studies in sociology at Northern Illinois University. David entered Western Michigan this fall. Janice, a graduate of Pitt School of Nursing, is working at Magee Hospital, and Nancy is in junior high.

Lu Ann Isham Staley finds the Iowa country air "fantastic." The girls, 11 and 13, already look like healthy little Iowans. Eldest son Craig is in Vietnam. Their second son entered the University of Iowa this fall.

We were sorry to learn that Joanne Knauss Fitzpatrick had a brain operation last summer. She writes that she is feeling reasonably well. We all wish her a quick return to good health. John is in 8th grade at Taylor Allderdice, Janet in 7th and Jean in 3rd grade.

Ruth Laird Grant writes that life goes pleasantly along with gardening, antique hunting, and a class in conversational French included in her activities. Their oldest daughter graduates from Swarthmore in the spring.

A disorganized summer was so nice, Patty Leonard Bodle says she's tempted to stay disorganized the rest of the year. Short trips to the beaches and to the mountains, all kinds of fishing and much "doddering" about the tennis courts added up to a good vacation. Jean Archer Rothermel and Dan stopped by for a visit. Trish is in 10th grade, and Bob, Jr., started at Florida Institute of Technology this fall.

Ruth Lynch McFarland and her daughter came east in August for the 80th birthday of her father, a remarkable man still taking canoe trips to the Adirondaks and Canada. Pittsburgh Press readers may remember the article on him a few years back when he had a group of boys on a long canoe trip on the rivers. The McFarlands spent a week in San Francisco and one in Zion National Park in September. Fred is studying for the ministry at Covenant College in Tennessee, and John is a pre-med major at Westmont College. Living with them this year is the son of friends who are missionaries in Guatemala. He will finish his last two years of high school with Tom. Ruth enjoys meeting with Edie Succop Dibble who lives just 40 minutes away.

While in Pittsburgh Ruth visited with Nancy Raup Palmer, and I very much enjoyed seeing her too.

As for this secretary, Marion Springer Edmunds, I returned to work part time last year and almost succeeded in turning back the clock, too, since I have many of the same co-workers as when I left in 1950. We're doing research in air pollution. We enjoyed a vacation at Otisco Lake and also a trip through New England and to Quebec City. Our daughter is in 11th grade and our son in 8th.

Thank you for your cards and thanks also to those who sent a dollar for the class treasury. We hope everyone is marking off Reunion Day next June 7 for a trip back to Chatham.

Dorcas reporting:

This year's news for the class of 1944 started arriving during your reporter's absence from the country, so if it seems that I'm pulling things together to make a deadline, I am!

Unfortunately not many of our classmates responded to the call for news this year. Those that did, however, seem to be leading interesting, busy lives with many exciting interludes along the way.

Martha McCullough Lohmeyer spoke enthusiastically about the job she has at the Museum of Modern Art. Incidentally, daughter Sue has finished Carnegie-Mellon, and son Jim is off for the University of Maine this fall.

Betty Monroe Musselman reports that she has just returned from six weeks in France and Switzerland, which she spent along with daughter Peggy who has finished her second year with the Foreign Language League School.

Mary Lou Reiber Peter spent some time at camp this summer. She reports that her two daughters, who incidentally married brothers, have settled down in Chicago and Baltimore, which is somewhat distant from the old homestead in Los Angeles.

Nearer at hand is Helen H. Smith who is still in Pittsburgh, and always has something going on! She writes so graphically that I quote her reply: "My former partner gave me an oil painting kit a couple of years ago. I stored it in the closet for a long time; finally got it out early this year and discovered an interesting thing—you don't have to be able to draw to paint. Lots of fun. Thus far friends are confiscating enough pieces to keep house from inundation with canvasses. How long can this last? Painting favorite subjects—fruits and vegetables. Always wanted to retire and open produce stand. Maybe we'll sell pictures of produce along with real things. Still backward segment of public that enjoys recognition of subject in art—maybe enough to humor one equally backward amateur painter. Have plenty of subject material in backyard vegetable garden." A future Chatham Grandma Moses, maybe?

Betty Spierling Arentson writes that she decided to return to her old job as personnel director of a department store before she "rusts out."

Nancy Stauffer Grantham is another classmate who has been traveling with her daughter. Nancy, who is chairman of the foreign language department at the high school, took off with her daughter for a summer's motor tour through Mexico.

Mary Lee Ullom Hoy in Pittsburgh reports that her daughter will be finishing her senior year at Winchester-Thurston this year.

As I hinted at the beginning of this bit, your reporter, Dorcas E. Leibold, is just back from three glorious weeks spent in Japan, Taiwan and Hong Kong. I almost went mad trying to take pictures with two cameras, soak in the dramatic contrasts of beauty and squalor, antiquity and modern, all amidst the vitality and industry of teeming humanity, and at the same time to keep my fitting appointments with the tailor, a must for any visitor to Hong Kong. And so another year has rolled by!

Nancy Means Creed to Carrol C. Hudson, January 1968

BIRTH

Marge Mistrik Sweeney, a daughter, Barbara Louise, January 18, 1968

Would you believe it's only three years until our 25th reunion? Peggy Korb Smith asks us to please remember the 25th gift fund. It needs 100% participation to make it a success. Send your gift any time—preferably now—to Mrs. Robert F. Smith, 540 Miranda Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15241. Make checks payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account.

Chatham is blessed with another daughter of a '46er. Ouida McGehee Young delivered her eldest daughter to the fourth floor of Woodland Hall. She says the freshman orientation program is wonderful but those steps are just too much for her. It's no wonder since she has had orthopedic surgery on her leg, followed by a long recovery period.

Marty Yorkin Berman's daughter has been named a Chatham Scholar while her other daughter is in the Master of Medicine Science Program at Pembroke. Marty is really missing them but is continuing to work as a guidance counselor in high school.

Ginny Uber Haug became a grandmother on August 28, when daughter Karen had a lovely little girl. A sad note, however, since Ginny's father died the same day her daughter Cheryl returned from Germany.

We also extend our sincere sympathy to Bee Kiester Farneth whose mother and father died within six weeks of each other. Bee is teaching second grade this year. She sent me pictures of her family which really made my day.

Two more class members had children marry this year. Grace Savage Freeble's son was married and Linnea Lunstedt Evans' daughter.

Speaking of marriages, we offer our best to Nancy Means Hudson. She and her new husband, Carrol, will visit Nancy's son Donnie in Germany and then tour Europe.

Lois Jean Jackson Ritenbaugh and Dottie Groves Carson spent some time together on their vacations in Ocean City. Helen Parkinson Gambridge also saw Dottie this summer. Parky tells us her son, a high school junior, is a mere 6'7"—she wants to know if any of us can top that?

Flo Ostien Chew visited Helen Brown Michaels at Levittown this summer during vacation.

Lula Copetas Blazakis is still dreaming of their family vacation to Bermuda.

Another great vacation was the tour of Europe enjoyed by Doris Fairfield Jamison and her two daughters.

The two "Mamas" stayed home, but Kitty Lancaster Cone and Penny Myers Smith each had a daughter studying in Europe this summer. Kitty's going back to school part time so she won't be the only "illiterate" in her family. Penny is teaching still and claims she has one son who is surely headed toward being a hippie—complete with artistic and musical leanings and hair.

Doris Rowand Schroth has started teaching again, too. She sees Marty Coate Challenger often and had a lovely visit with Chickie Sawders Laisy this year.

Ginny Vogt McDermott is now on the teaching faculty of Presbyterian-University Hospital. She has seen Dean Marks and Dr. Phyllis Martin in the course of her work.

Jan Bovard Poole is happy to tell us her husband is home from Vietnam and now stationed in Washington, D.C. When Charles is discharged they plan to move to New Mexico where they have a son in college.

Helen Hunter White's oldest girl is off to college, and Jean White Markel's number one girl will be a freshman at the University of Michigan. Jean's son, a high school junior, was on a golf team which won the state championship.

Jean Purves Bowman's oldest girl is a junior in college and Jeannie is working in the lab for husband Rog.

Gloriana Sandquist Luley has a senior at Lehigh University this year and she is most happy to be moving back to Pittsburgh, where Howard will be working with the Pennsylvania Health Department.

Joan Titus Dunlop and family took a fascinating trip on one of the early pioneer trails from Montana to Walla Walla, Washington. Her husband is using this material for his new book called "Great Trails of the West." Joan is a member of a recorder-string group which will be holding concerts again this fall.

Miriam Egger Hosack says their whole family, including college son and two high school sons, are deeply involved in the American Field Service Program.

Patty Eldon Carpenter's older daughter is a sophomore at Dennison University while her younger girl is in the sixth grade. The difference in age is most interesting and fun, too.

Sally Smith Cross tells us her daughter graduates from Junior College this year and the whole family, except for Sally, has taken up sail planing. Sally says she's hung up on board meetings.

Mickey McKee Barnes is working part time in the local library and Ruth Teplitz Goodman is working as a free lance fashion illustrator.

Roberta Carpenter Morel is both moving and changing jobs. She's excited but will miss her little granddaughter.

Sally Parker Herrup may someday be the "mother of a president." Her son attended the Democratic Convention and came back with plans to run for president. We can say "we knew her when—"

Betty Rains Thorton spent the summer in an ankle cast. Her twins are at Andover, and Liza is in fifth grade.

Barbara Work Coleman is up to her ears in civic affairs because she hasn't learned that little magic two letter word—"no", but she loves it anyway.

Mariellen Roche Duval's husband Gene was in a very serious auto accident which took all winter and most of the spring as a recovery period. The Duvals will have three in college next year and Mariellen says that's the time her hair will turn completely gray.

Carol Thorne King is still urging us all to visit her in London where they are having a wonderful time. They recently met and talked with the Queen's husband. They introduced themselves as "The Kings of Buckingham Road, Pittsburgh"—royalty meets royalty.

Helen Gilmore Reinhard and children spent a lovely vacation in Stone Harbor, and Joan Davies Bream still enjoys Ocean

City the "most." Evie Matthews Reece and her family sailed the rivers on a 28-foot cruiser.

No special news but "hellos and best wishes" from Delores Knoll, Helen Shriner Irvin, Harriet Hoffman and Marjory Couch Lynn. Jane Field Taylor sends her best too, and says for once they don't have a new address. Jean Thompson Johnson reports that all five are well and sends us her love.

Thank you all for your wonderful letters and also for your response to our failing class treasury. If you have not yet had a chance to send your treasury contribution please send it to the Alumnae Office. My older son was to start college this fall but an old football injury is sending him to the hospital instead for at least the first quarter. My "baby" is a senior in high school and I still expect the sixth grade to pay attention for I ask lots of questions.

DEATH

Anne Watson Lofton, March 15, 1968
Anne's friends are deeply saddened by her untimely death. A note expressing the sincere sympathy of the class was sent to Anne's husband John and their two sons and a class gift to the Chatham Library has been made in Anne's memory.

Ginger reporting:

Remember, gals, that our next reunion—our 25th—is scheduled for 1973, but that we are aiming at having an interim one in 1970. We hope when you read this you will sit right down and write a check for our Reunion Gift to the College. A gift of over $225.00 has already been made, given by one person. If you would make out your check for $25.00, or send approximately $6.00 a year between now and 1973, we could as a class give our Alma Mater around $2,000.00. How about it? It's even tax deductible. We wonder if you realize how much there is to gain in this day by supporting our excellent small liberal arts college, and there is certainly nothing to lose by donating the money we would so easily let slip through our fingers for relatively meaningless and worthless objects. I know; I speak from experience. Thanks to all who contributed to the Postage Fund. Love ya all.

I send a figurative bouquet to Hilda Fish Bricker for the first card returned, on which she reports that in between getting Patti ready for Grove City College (graduation with high honors, no less!) and chauffeuring candy-striper Debbie to Columbia Hospital, she and Dick still managed to find time to play golf and go to several square dancing conventions. Perhaps Debbie will run into Nornie MacMillen Morris's son Richard, a sophomore at Grove City this year. Nornie says she finds it hard to believe it has been twenty years since we graduated and since she and George were married.

Gini Barkley Robertson had a "just great" trip to California.

Shirley Lawrence Grasso guesses they are a typical suburban family—Brownies, Webelos, chorus, PTA, church circle, gardening, and the like. But what isn't so typical is that she works part time for an orthopedic surgeon, studies piano again, and gives the children lessons. That's typical? She had to "slow down" a bit because her mother has been very ill. Hope her mother feels better now.

Marij Caldwell Berlin, Jack and children put in a pool last summer, and she has to admit she finds it delightful; it even beats a cottage, she says.

Billie Lapsley, thoroughly enjoying her airline instructor job, travels every opportunity she gets. How would you like to fly to Disneyland just for the day? Or fly to Greece, just to visit some places you had missed on other visits? Get this: the Greek Isles, Kentucky, Boston, Toronto, San Francisco, throughout New England. Where, oh, where does an old Chatham grad go to become an airline instructor, Billie? Line forms on the right.

Church, civic affairs, and growing girls keep Janet Kirkup Marville hopping. She's not complaining a bit, though; she loves every minute of it.

Honey Holland Rank sounds especially proud of their new house which is beginning to look like home, and of their two boys, who not only help out enormously around the house but also excell in the drums, piano and dance. She "got rid" of a troublesome gall bladder last November. This October she plans to go to Philadelphia and Atlantic City to a surgical meeting. She and Hao Obermayer Sellers and husbands plan to get together in Philadelphia. No old stay-at-home is Honey.

On the other hand, Susie Harton Conklin claims to be a stay-at-home of sorts, since she has an almost-two-year-old around the house. Is there anyone who doesn't know what she means?

Susie talked with Mary Aiken Brown recently when she called her to get her grandmother's watermelon pickle recipe, which Susie assures us is Ummmmmm, marvelous! Of course, everyone who ever tasted Mary's sticky buns knows she has some really super recipes in her family. Mary herself reports "no news," except that the family is growing fast (age range now of five children is from 16 down to 5), with one driver at last to help with errands.

A nice note from Bonnie Beck Melhorn reveals that she has been working as librarian in their elementary school. Her husband has been made the acting head of the Geoscience Department at Purdue University. Having just acquired a horse, they find riding a wonderful way to keep away the unwanted middle-age spread!

A record of some kind or other has been set by Mary Ann Houck Brown—she is looking forward to being in the same house for four years in a row!

Imagine, if you can, that Betty Albach Weamer managed to complete her work for her master's degree in English from Columbia University amid all the chaos there this spring. Her youngest daughter starts high school this year. Merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads accounts for their move to the Philadelphia area.

Wish all of you could have read the hilarious account of Nancy McDonald Sutherland's vacation, which I am sure would provoke gales of laughter from even the dourest Scot. Irma Brombeck, move over. Indian Lake and Ocean City must still be reeling from the impact of Nancy, Jock, seven children, their wonderful housekeeper Katie, and a nephew they picked up along the way. Mac issues fair warning to teachers: she says she'll soon wipe from their faces those smiles they flashed at her back in June! ! !

Dottie Doolittle Collins, after a lovely vacation in San Juan and St. Thomas in early spring, spent much time with their nephew Bill out in the countryside, stop watch in hand, as he practiced his running. This is the seventh summer Bill has spent with Dottie and John. May we say what a nice aunt and uncle to have?

Mary Lynott Norman and John are anxiously waiting to move to their house being built on a lake named after Norman John!!! John is now professor of history and government at Pace College, Westchester (try that for initials) and also at the Graduate School of Fairfield University. She keeps busy working on her master's degree and should finish this fall. This year all four daughters will be in school.

Dottie Berg Groomes sounds very contented with their three teenagers who keep the house noisy and busy. Swimming, golf, and college-shopping for daughter Cindee are all part of the Good Life for Dottie and family.

Jean Forncrook Armstrong reports a busy, hectic, but memorable year. The arrival of their English A.F.S. student, Carol, last August caused their house to be invaded by teenaged girls every weekend. Jean reports a happy relationship with Carol from start to finish. Not the least to enjoy this happy situation was twelve-year-old Christopher. After a seige of mono, the year ended on a smooth note for Cathy, who is entering Mt. Holyoke. Sister Missy will certainly miss her (no pun intended). A wonderful trip to show Carol historical Williamsburg this spring added further excitement to Jean and Clyde's year.

Back in the swing of things in Houston, Marie Cohn Chiles is on the Houston Symphony Board again and also the Board of Holly Hall for the Elderly. Marie and John enjoyed the ski slopes of Vail, Colorado, recapturing some of their Swiss honeymoon atmosphere.

Sally Geary Hanson reports a busy year (what other kind could Sally have?) as they moved into their contemporary-style home in December and in January cruised again on the same Swedish ship they were on three years ago. She and Will got to Caracas, a new port for them. In May Ruth Swisselm, Pat Kennedy Earley, Barb Black Bloomstrom, Nancy Herdt Hall, Marilou Haller Swensson, Janice Wilson Bader, and others, were at Sally's for a luncheon. Two weeks at a Chamber Music Center at Bennington College provided an off-beat vacation, which they loved.

To prove that once an Arrow editor, always an Arrow editor, Audrey Bigelow Baur is now editing the newspaper for their 200-family civic association. Or, as Audrey says, "Back to the rubber cement!" Fred is now manager of an Engelhard division in Philadelphia and commutes daily from Morristown. Freddie, Kurt, and John are growing at a mad pace these days.

Wandalea Johnson Smith is "jest a gal who can't say no," and so she is paying for it by being chairman of ways and means for her Women's Club this year, which means, among all those other things we all know about—the myriad phone calls, listening to excuses of less busy women—being in charge of the Annual Antique Show and Sale in March. Headache powders gratefully accepted. So, Wandalea pleads, "You all come." With her youngest in kindergarten she finds it strangely quiet around the house.

Ceil McKay Geddis, Layton, and four daughters enjoyed a marvelous summer seeing America First. Gettysburg, Hershey, Lancaster, Las Vegas, Hoover Dam, Lake Mead, Grand Canyon—well, you name it, they went there. In spite of the excitement of first train ride for the girls and their first time West, Pittsburgh looked very good upon their return. Funny thing, that.

Jerry Kimball Wells, now the "runt of the family," although the metaphor is difficult to imagine, has been working as a secretary at the University of Kentucky. Cataloging new books at the junior high school and being on the election board add a little spice to Jerry's life. She claims she didn't want to go anywhere this summer because the house is air-conditioned and too comfortable to leave.

Betty L'Hote Franks reports a wonderful vacation at Stone Harbor. Peter, two, keeps the house jumping.

Carol Lenz Houck reports that in the Ah, Youth Department son Don, Jr. took a 550-mile bike trip around Lake Ontario, averaging over 100 miles a day. He'll enter college this fall, while Cynthia will be a high school senior and Missy a 6th grader. They managed to get in a few days camping this year.

An envelope from the Avco Broadcasting Corporation disclosed a letter from Marianne Boggs Campbell, Director of Community Affairs, who is now also the president of the Ohio Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs this year. Life sounds very exciting for Marianne and Bill, who spent a fun weekend at Hilton Head, South Carolina—right on the ocean—combining pleasure and a national board meeting. She plans to spend a day on the Chatham campus, talking with students about opportunities for women in Broadcasting.

The Carlsons seem to have completed a full circle; we are back in Churchill Borough, where we had our first house in 1951. New grass has sprouted up, and Whitey's petunias, roses, and chrysanthemums are bustin' out all over. Lisa is a high school senior and is contemplating Chatham next year, much to Ma's delight. Bobby is a sophomore and Erika a freshman. I've gone back to school, too—modeling school, that is. I've decided to try my hand at directing the Barbizon School of Modeling, a school new to Pittsburgh but old to New York City. However, I could use a few more hours in the day.

An inveterate sentimentalist, I avidly "ate up" your news as it arrived and sat back to fondly recall memories of our days at Chatham . . . while trying at times to swallow a lump in my throat. Something about old friends being gold and all that . . .

Having undertaken to write the class news, I now realize no one, but no one, can appreciate the amount of time and work Ruth Swisshelm spends lovingly on The Recorder. Ruth, you delete this on pain of having an old Pennsylvania Dutch hex put on you; so don't you dare! [I wouldn't think of it! It is music to my ears. Thanks. R.S.]

Just want to tell you all before I turn this over to Joy that Jean Hadfield Smith sent me a few pages from Good Housekeeping on which there appeared an article by none other than your other class secretary, Joy Wilson Douglas. I am seething with jealousy. And now . . .

Joy reporting:

Thanks for your kind response to my cards. Like many of you, I'm occupied with children in school, civic and church responsibilities, and some substitute teaching. Dick is a freshman at Western Maryland College, so we filled the void with a handsome, delightful Uruguayan boy through the American Field Service program. With son Bob a member of the football team, we have girls flocking to our doorstep!

Betsy Ross Kubn responded with a newsy letter about her move to New Jersey after eleven happy years in Rochester. Les is now sales promotion manager for his firm. She's involved with church choir and circle, PTA, Junior League, Women's Club, and swimming at the Y! Paul and his dad are active Scouters, David is playing the electric organ with a combo, and Janet just started to school. The Kuhns visited Jessie Gilbert Chew and Tom in Swarthmore, and Betsy has met Randy Ullom Doig, Audrey Bigelow Baur and Phyllis Ingram Stout at local alumnae functions. Her brother, Dr. John Ross, Jr., is now Director of the Cardiovascular Division of the University of California, San Diego, School of Medicine, and is doing a great deal of research work in the field. We may be hearing of him!

Ruth Zucker Bachman is a clinical instructor in medical-surgical nursing at the Presbyterian University Hospital School of Nursing. She frequently sees Ginny Vogt and Norma Trozzo Hopkinson in their professional capacities.

We extend our sympathy to Helen Suckling Beckert and her husband, who both lost their fathers this summer. Her boys are in the seventh and third grades, Lizi in the second.

Wilma Moore Stoeber is selling and appraising real estate. She and Harry and their Labrador retrievers vacationed in Canada.

Charlotte Exley Eck visited with ex-roomie Janice Wilson Bader in Cincinnati last spring.

Henrietta Meyer Garrett traces a familiar pattern of Suburbia. She's breaking routine with a Junior Great Books Leadership Training course.

Bobbie Mueller Baylor is enrolled in the School of Education at Pitt, and says it's easier than teaching. Mark is a sophomore and drum major of West Mifflin South High. The family vacationed in New England, where they enjoyed the kayak that her husband built.

Ruth Shaffer Loughney has both children in college—Patrick at Georgetown's School of Foreign Service, and Ellen at Waynesburg. She teaches English at Fifth Avenue High School in Pittsburgh.

Mary Lou Stone Clark has a senior at Michigan. She is enrolled for a second year at Oakland University in Berkley, Michigan.

Doni Vail Rea reports that they vacationed "down East" and in Canada this summer, and hope to do the Poconos and Williamsburg this fall. Daughter Gini was life guard at the Philadelphia Girl Scout camp. Doni is Worthy Matron of her Eastern Star chapter this year, plus church and music activities.

Mary Ruth Forney Snyder subscribes to the theory that the family that plays together stays together. She says all six of them, including six-year-old Robby, play tennis all year, and ski and water ski according to the season. She also has two in college. Their new home with the romantic-sounding address overlooks the blue Pacific and Los Angeles.

Eleanor Robinson Hastings has a daughter matriculating at Mary Washington College, and a son in the first grade! She says it's different to be alone, but she'll manage to fill her time doing some feature writing for the Canton Repository.

Barbara Rodgers Schlegel is taking vacation from junior high teaching this year, but is enrolled in some "fun" course at the University of Alberta.

Hao Obermayer Sellers and family vacationed at Puerto Rico and St. John this summer. She is expecting a visit from Honey Holland Rank in October. Doctor husbands conveniently share mutual friends.

Suzy Sutton Hepler is beginning her eleventh year as a "home-bound" teacher. She is instigating a private reunion with Suz Harton Conklin, Carol Lenz Houck, Wandalea Johnson Smith, Henrietta Meyer Garrett, Doni Vail Rea, Shirley Morrow Hedenberg, and Ruthie Zucker Bachman and their husbands this fall.

Grace Migliore Frances enjoyed a trip to Hemisfair, Austin, and Mexico. She's substituting also.

Phyllis Dornberger Taylor's card came in March, announcing that she had married an Englishman and had been living in England for over a year. She was apparently visiting in Pittsburgh at the time she wrote. She loves her new environment and sends best wishes to all her classmates.

And from Marge Reckard, Carol Watson Smith, and Jane Picard Pursell, who's back at kindergarten, we send a pride of cheerfullos.

Louise Anderson Spence was, for a brief six months, a weekly newspaper columnist. Her column, "One Woman's View," appeared weekly in the Wilkinsburg Gazette during the time her father owned the paper. Now, alas, she's just a housewife again.

Nancy Beamer Stewart says that while their friends are looking for colleges for their children, the Beamers are looking for a nursery school for two-year-old Lucy. Nancy is, busy with Stewart Construction Company, P.S.E.A., third-graders and student teachers in Burrell School District. With their new science program, she says she may even try experiments with white rats (again! ! !).

Shirley Bemis Martin is in the antique business. She and a friend have opened a shop in St. Marys called "Antiques and Originals." They invite any of you driving on Route 219 or 255 to come and see them!

Janet Crowe Gustafson reports that they have had quite a year adjusting to Pittsburgh after 12 years in California. They all enjoy the snow and the change of seasons. Ann and Margaret are both in Middle School this year and Carol is a junior in high school. Jan is active in the League of Women Voters in Upper St. Clair Township—a great way for a newcomer to learn about her locale.

Jacky Davies Templeton is teaching third grade and helping out with the children's choirs at church. Bill is professor of economics and chairman of the business department at Findlay College in Findlay, Ohio. Daughter Karen is in 9th grade and plays the flute. Sons Bill and Jeff are in the 7th and 6th grades respectively. The family went to both Expo '67 and HemisFair '68, enjoying both expositions and the opportunity to become better acquainted with more of our beautiful country.

Corky Davis Anderson and Bill spent a few hours in March with Ann Carpenter Morris, her husband and two children when they went with the Erie Ski Club for a week's skiing in Aspen. This summer has been busy with camps, sailing lessons, swimming, picnicing, etc.

Ruth Fabry flew on a Cook's Tour to London, Paris, the Riviera, Switzerland and Rome, then an individual trip to Venice, Cortina, Milan, West Berlin, East Berlin and Frankfurt where she drove a car to the Rhine all by herself.

Rita Harbert Hudson's husband Cliff was injured in a hunting accident on the first day of deer season last year. After three months in the hospital and a long recuperation at home, he finally returned to work on June 1 and is doing fine. Timmy is in 3rd grade and Brian in 1st. Lisa, at 4, is patiently waiting her turn to ride the school bus, while Kevin, 2½, keeps Rita company.

Lois Mars Mignogna's son John is a senior in high school, and, having his driver's license, is busy chauffeuring the family. Rachel is in the 8th grade and taking drama at the Playhouse School again this year. The Cowles and Mignogna families spent a delightful weekend at the Mignogna "farm" this summer.

Gail McConnor Mumma's letter was too late to be included in the last Recorder, but she reported that her husband, a Lt. Col. in the Army, is working at a Naval Depot under Department of Defense jurisdiction, and they are living in quarters at Olmstead Air Force Base. Gail has a junior Girl Scout Troop and a Cub Den.

Jinx Neal McCreary, who says that her attempt to see if blondes have more fun went over like a lead balloon, has been busy organizing an S.P.C.A. and getting the building built to house it. Working at election headquarters, taking a course in anthropology at the Bradford campus of Pitt, and attending a workshop to prepare for a Federally sponsored remedial reading program for underprivileged children have kept her quite busy. She and Bob planned to return to Curacao and Caracas, Venezuela for 10 days this fall. Last year they toured the Orient for a month—Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand and Hawaii.

Carol Norton Diffenderfer called me long distance and it was great to hear her voice again! Carol is teaching 10th grade English and promotes Chatham to all of her students! Randy is a senior in high school after spending the summer at Chico State College in California on a National Science Scholarship. He's a National Merit Scholarship Finalist. Wendy, in the 9th grade, divides her time between the back of a horse and the swimming pool. And Jan, their "Mad Man with a Microphone" is in the 7th grade. His room is an electronic maze! Last year the family spent their time in Canada—Expo, Gaspé Peninsula, Nova Scotia, and wandered as far south as Georgia. Carol wants to know; was Betty Schweider DeBono at Expo 67 the third week in June, 1967? Carol was sure that she saw her but couldn't quite catch up to her in the crowd. Last January Carol was a delegate to the Poetry and Prose Conference at Pitt. She ran into Gail McConnor Mumma at an affair in Mechanicsburg and they discovered that their husbands are fraternity brothers.

Lenore Rothschild Klein enjoys doing hospital volunteer work, and she and Bob find it quite a challenge to be raising a teenager—Gary, 14, who is busy with sports activities, guitar playing and singing. They still enjoy their little theatre activities.

JoAnn Rounsley has fond memories of a delightful summer spent touring Spain, Portugal and North Africa. Now she has returned to teaching and numerous activities including education committees, being chairman of two A.A.U.W. groups, bridge parties, fashion shows, and so it goes!

Dodie Seale Warren was one of the first to reply all the way from Hawaii. Dodie is still teaching watercolor painting and winning prizes now and then. She and Bill and the children are hoping to come to the Mainland next summer—maybe even to the Pittsburgh area.

Betty Schweider DeBono, who was hospitalized last March, is feeling better now but has had to give up teaching. After almost 15 years, it seems great to be a lady of leisure. Daughter Lorin is in junior high now. Bill, in 2nd grade and a real outdoor boy, wants to surf, catch a striped bass bigger than Dad, and own a speed boat. The DeBonos became members of the boating clan this summer—spent every weekend on their 27-ft. Cris Craft. They also had a wonderful two weeks in Florida in February. They ended up buying property in West Palm Beach with the thought of someday retiring there.

Joan Steele Edmundson reports that they took a trip to California last fall and to Florida in March. Janey is in the "get into everything" stage.

Judy Sutherland Latimer finds it hard to believe that a year has passed since they came to Chappaqua. They are delighted with the town, the excellent schools, the enthusiastic tennis players, the nearness of good skiing and very friendly neighbors. She says that Tom could do without his commuting to the city, but, one can't have everything!

Ann Thompson Johnston reports that finally all four kids are in school. They have a lovely new home with lots of badly needed roaming room, and in May Ann had her first "sans kids" vacation. She flew to Florida and left everyone with a housekeeper—and they all survived! Ann reported also that Barbara Berkman Rotb's father died in September. Please accept our sympathy, Barbara.

Jessie Tomlin McCurdy's oldest daughter, Yolanda, entered Wilson College in September, the recipient of the Sarah Wilson Scholarship, and their youngest, Sarah, began first grade at St. Joan of Arc School, Hershey, Pa. In between, the other six are in various stages of pursuing their education. As Den Mother, Jessie pursues 6 or 8 Cub Scouts weekly, and Rene is on the Boy Scout committee. Paul was initiated into the Order of the Arrow at Hidden Valley in August.

Joanne Wilkowsky Bloomstein reports the usual quiet routine. Marcia, in 5th grade, still plays the piano, and Marc Jeffrey, in 2nd grade, seriously pursues his bugs, frogs, etc. Eli is still exercising regularly under doctor's orders and feeling very well.

Esther Peters Bleikamp, Barbara Illig Rabenkamp and Barbara Miller Gregg sent greetings but no special news.

And now for the Cowles news. We sold our old Nimrod, and in our newer, larger one we spent a week at Blackwater Falls State Park, West Virginia, enjoying the delightful mountain atmosphere. Ivan is in the 8th grade at Mt. Gallitzen Academy and plays on the football team, while Stephanie is in 2nd grade. In addition to selling Tupperware, I took a Red Cross Volunteer course and am helping at the Blood Canteen occasionally.

Many thanks to all who sent postage money and/or contributions for the Special 25th Anniversary Fund.

Judie reporting:

The reason we missed Pat Baris Davidson at reunion is that she and her husband were in Israel where he presented a paper at the International Medical Meeting. All is well with the Davidsons with Lynn in 8th grade, Jane in 5th, Barbara in nursery school, and Mom taking courses to keep her busy.

From California Pat Boyd Royer writes that because of her interest in group dynamics, she has returned to College (San Jose State) to get a master's in psychology. She can go only part time as Cheryl is in nursery school, Howard in 3rd grade and Ken in 8th. Although it will be several years before she finishes, Pat is most enthusiastic about it.

Betty Cornell Hirsch was sorry to have missed the reunion. She finds it hard to believe that her oldest is now in junior high. She teaches Sunday School, is circle chairman at her church, and she has signed up for the court-visiting program in Buffalo. All this, plus her 2nd season of skiing, has kept Betty busy and happy!

With four children back in school, Ira Davison Ketcham sends her regrets for not attending our reunion but hopes to make it next time. She has taken up selling real estate.

"Nothing exciting" has happened to Louise Eddy Davis, except a lovely summer spent at Chautauqua. She sends her best to everyone.

Harry and I have had a wonderful summer. Our eldest son Jeff was Bar Mitzvah on our 16th anniversary (July 6th) so it was a very special celebration. Ronni, 10½, is in 5th grade; Gary, 7½, in 3rd, and our "baby" Stevie is in kindergarten.

It was wonderful seeing so many girls at reunion. Everyone looked the same—even after 16 years; For those who didn't come, do try for our next one. It was just wonderful renewing old friendships. Let's hear from more of you next year.

Elsa reporting:

Marilyn Morgan Henderson went to Hawaii the early part of September to meet her husband Jack for a week's reunion. Jack has been commanding a battalion in Vietnam since February. Marilyn has been keeping busy the past year as chairman of the China Committee for the Fairfax Area League of Women Voters and was in Chicago in April as a delegate to the National Convention of the League.

Nancy Kelly Hilland also spent a week in Honolulu in June while her husband Carl was on leave from Vietnam. Carl is due back to the States in November and they anticipate a move to Washington.

Peggy Justice Hallam spent most of the summer taking courses to earn a B.A. in education. This fall she is doing teacher aide work and teaching art courses in the high school. Peggy's children are both in senior high this year.

Nancy Galey Wigton writes she is now employed as a part-time secretary to the Visiting Nurse Association as well as working for Shields Church. G.G. and family spent their vacation at Bethany Beach, Delaware.

Martha McLaughlin Ellers is looking forward to getting back to work at the school library and enjoying an "old-fashioned" Thanksgiving at Greenfield Village, Michigan. Martha spent a week in August at Saratoga Springs, New York.

Barbara Mills Foresti was among those attending our reunion this year. Barbara and family are still in the process of finishing their new home and kept busy with P.T.A., 4H and Boys Club activities.

Nancy McFarland Pollock was one of the many who wrote to say she was sorry to miss our class reunion. Nancy did visit with Joan Hebrank Smith and Helen Barbour McKelvey while at their high school reunion this summer.

Our reunion this past June was enjoyed. I'm sure, by all who attended. There was ample time to visit with everyone through lunch, class meeting, a lovely reception at President Eddy's home, plus a delightful dinner on Benedum terrace. My thanks to all who planned and worked to make it a fine day.

Barbara A. reporting:

Artie Gianopoulos Helgason reports that in addition to the news of her daughter's birth, a big thrill for seven-year-old Thor they all had a wonderful few days on Martha's Vineyard this summer. I heartily agree with her wish to return again and again.

Joanne Finkelhor Blum catches us up on her varied doings. With two daughters ages seven and five, and a husband who is president of Point Park College, Joanne continues her own career as chairman of Point Park's education department. She asks who will conduct a seminar regarding the wife and mother with a career? Sounds busy, Joanne!

We, the Armstrongs, are settling into fall after a busy summer and a wonderful trip through the Carolinas. Rob is a high school freshman, Carol a third-grader, and Laura is in kindergarten. Time is a bit freer now, but I also feel older. As a new class secretary, my job was made easy for my first try at reporting. However, I would much prefer to hear from more of you next time.

Ginny reporting:

Fifi Rougraff, returning from a late summer vacation in Nags Head, N.C. writes of enjoying the reunion especially since she got a chance to catch up on all the news with Shirley Gorman Aitken and Ann Stapledon Keffer.

Beverly Roush Johnston spent part of the summer in California and Upper Michigan with her family and relatives. Along with redecorating her home she plans to do substitute teaching again in junior and senior high math and work with the Girl Scouts.

Ann Orner Davidson will be enjoying her children on the trek schoolward this fall by teaching kindergarten. She did substitute teaching in that line last year along with participating in the Head Start program in the spring. Additional courses at Central Missouri State helped prepare her for the new challenge.

Oregon seems to agree with Jane Oellig Gould. Her husband Al takes the two older boys into the mountains to camp and ski while Jane keeps tabs on Mark, age 3, Eric, age 2, and baby Steven.

Edie Pennoyer Vassamillet has cared for three adorable foster babies for the past two years. Since they were between babies this summer, they camped throughout the State of Maine, climbing Mt. Katahdin and canoeing on the Allagash Wilderness Waterway with daughters Laura and Martha.

News from Helene Mueser Pande was very welcome since most of us had lost touch with her. Typical suburban housewife that she is, she lends a helping hand wherever needed on community projects and PTA. Her husband started his own business last summer manufacturing and selling a unique line of specialty coatings for the marine industry that may be applied under water. Her sons are enjoying their exposure to skin-divers, and twin daughters, age 4, keep her humming.

The Sweests toured the North East stopping wherever anything proved of interest. Christmas always has an added lustre with a Florida vacation with all four grandparents. Julia Arnold Eva and I have much in common lately since our husbands are mutually involved in a new corporation they started.

Barbara B. reporting:

Joanne Shelley Davis spent a week at a lake near Bar Harbor, Maine and some time in the Catskills this summer. Jody's boys are in 3rd grade and kindergarten and Nancy, at 1½, is working hard toward a degree in "getting into the most number of things in one day."

Sarah Jane Smyser Naylor, after 12 years away from work, is back in part-time nursing. She is busy in P.T.A., in church work, and is president of her Nurses' Unit. Husband Geff moved up to being wire chief in the East Liberty Central Telephone office. Her family's hobbies are bee keeping, winter camping and Junior Olympic wrestling.

Doris Warner Brown enjoyed a wonderful "chatty" luncheon in the spring with Judy Bierman Linowes, Barb Mills Foresti, and Barb Harris, (50), at Marilyn Morgan Henderson's home. She and her family traveled through Florida this summer.

Sally Weissberg Nussbaum and Paul made it to the evening part of the reunion. She felt, as we all did, that we looked pretty much the same after 16 years.

Marilyn Wolfert Zimmerman missed the reunion but visited the campus with Dick and the 3 children in April. They all happened to be in Washington, D.C. and Chicago during the riots. Marilyn and Dick toured 9 countries in Europe in the fall of '67.

LaRue Thompson still lives in The Virgin Islands. She works at the Pelican Beach Club, a small resort hotel. For a complete change of climate she spent June in Switzerland.

Our June reunion was great. Twenty-nine were there for part or all of the day. Eva Fisis Strategos brought her daughter Sylvia, hoping to interest her in entering in 1971. I spent Sunday with her and her family before flying back to Atlanta with my mother, who was there for her 40th reunion.

John, the children, Carmen, and I spent July at our beach house. John and I drove to New Orleans, my first visit, for 3 days, where I tried unsuccessfully to contact Janet Fitzsimmons Carr. Bourbon Street is quite an eye-opener! I am still in pediatrics, but I left private practice September 1st except for some limited referral work. Now I divide my time between teaching and supervision of house staff and medical students in the outpatient clinics at the hospital as an associate in pediatrics at Emory University School of Medicine, and working with a comprehensive health center funded by O.E.O. for patients in a poverty area of Atlanta. It is all interesting work and leaves me much more time with my family.

Isabelle Allias is keeping busy this hectic political year with the Joint State Government Commission, and enjoyed a good vacation in the Bahama Islands.

Hilton Head, S.C. was the vacation spot of Mary Anderson Sheehan and family this year. Their neighbor in the next cottage turned out to be another Chatham girl, B. J. Woods Goodwin '55.

Pat Bennett Nicholson and family enjoyed camping out at the lake, antique hunting, and visiting historical spots in Southern Ohio. With the children all in school now, Pat will have time for her Camp Fire group and DAR activities.

Meg Berger Canon managed to do some of the inside work on their new home, taught science at the high school and kept the house going for six youngsters. Meg also studied on a government grant at a NSF summer institute. My hat's off to her.

Glad to hear from Jeanne Bishop Righter who keeps busy doing private tutoring. She'd love to see anyone passing through as they live only three blocks from Chatham.

Bo Bolger Collett's news is of husband Bill's appointment to the University of Florida School of Dentistry. Bo's been busily getting settled into a new home and enjoying side trips to Florida's many tourist spots.

I had lunch with Lois Bradley Fegley who was home from Nassau visiting her family. Life is continuing to move along well for them.

Joan Brown Thompson and family took their vacation at the Jersey shore and visiting the Pennsylvania Dutch country. Lynn is in nursery school this year, and Joan has been busy. We hope for a speedy recovery soon.

A wonderful educational and fun trip through Lewisburg, Hershey, Lancaster and Gettysburg was enjoyed by Sally Dietrich Baily and family. Sally is active with Women's Club, a Cadette Scout Troop, and is neighborhood consultant for the Scouts.

Anne Fuellenworth Sampson and family have been spending a lot of time in Ocean City since they acquired a town house there. Her daughter is becoming quite an equestrian.

Had a nice long newsy letter from Elsie Gage Balano, now in Vienna, Austria. Jim was sent over there for one year working with the United Nations Industrial Development organization. Their first two weeks proved very eventful when they found their place surrounded by policemen. It seems the upstairs neighbor was a crook and used their address as a front. After a steady stream of victims looking for the crook and a visit from Interpol, life settled down. The children are becoming bilingual, thanks to the maid.

A vacation in Maine and the White Mountains in New Hampshire was enjoyed by Joan Hagler Saklad and family. Joan keeps herself active with politics, organizations and adult education courses.

This has been quite a big year for Laura Hammer Inglis. Laura and Bill adopted a son, William, born February 20, and moved to Louisville, Ky. Bill, now out of the service, begins as a pulmonary instructor in medicine at the University of Louisville Medical School. Ruth, now 3½, is enjoying her new role as big sister and mother's helper.

Shirley Hartman Heil is busy showing four dogs. They bought a farm for dogs, horses, etc. but haven't had the time or courage to build a house and move out.

We wish to express our deepest sympathy to Jean Hulse Souleret on the loss of her mother, Mrs. Malcolm Hulse.

Jackie Legros Hall has been elected to her church senate and is social chairman at the Racquet Club.

After emergency surgery last fall, Janet Loos Seibert is feeling well again and working in the intensive care at Children's Hospital.

Watching the construction of, and finally moving into their new home has kept Nancy Miller Howard busy.

Maggie Morgan Rasor is teaching U.S. History in junior high school and is also the athletic director. Maggie and Bill spent two wonderful weeks in Hawaii.

Angie Ottino Stahl will soon be a country woman with the completion of their new home on a fifteen acre farm complete with horses, sheep, cows, and a goat. Angie and her husband took a trip to the Orient, seeing Japan, Hong Kong and Bangkok.

Lois Potts Adelson and her husband vacationed out of the country also. They had a thrilling trip to Chile, Peru and Ecuador. With the help of Indian guides, they shot the rapids, and caught salmon and trout in the mountains of Chile.

Jane Rowlett Stuart's husband was one of the doctors on call at the recent Republican convention in Miami, and Jane couldn't even get into the place. The Stuarts spent their vacation at their favorite spot in North Carolina.

Florida was the site for the vacation of Bobbie Senior Stewart and family this year. With the children all in school, Bobbie will have time to spend as chairman of the Junior League Thrift Corner.

Audrey Shanaberger Kellermeyer and Bob spent a fabulous month touring Japan. On the way home they stopped in Hawaii for two weeks, getting in some surfing. They brought back 25 miniature orchids to add to their collection in the greenhouse.

Lois Sherry Schworm has spent the summer taking trips to Connecticut and Pennsylvania, and having guests from Pennsylvania and California. Lois will be a hospital volunteer and president of a Jewish War Veterans Auxiliary this winter.

Vicki Sneathen Petsinger and family spent three weeks in Ocean City this summer. Vicki will keep busy this year being president of the Mt. Lebanon Area Alumnae Club.

Rose Spoa attended the NEA convention at Dallas and is still active in PSEA work for Lawrence County.

Teaching an adult education course in creative writing will keep Tush Starzynski Collier occupied, plus doing some freelance manuscript editing.

Joyce Tinnemeyer Schafer's husband had a serious accident resulting in back injury. We hope that Bill is on the road to recovery. Joyce has been doing substitute teaching and has gone back to college to pick up education credits.

Sophie Yanchewski Engels and her husband are now the proud owners of a girl's camp in Naples, Maine, called "Camp Pinecrest." The camp offers all sports, drama, ballet, sailing, etc. It is for girls 6 to 16 so anyone who would like to send their daughters to camp can contact Sophie at 49 Andrew Avenue, Oakland, N.J. With the summer season over, Sophie will return to teaching this fall.

No special news to report but greetings to all from Kathie Wragg Batson, Mary Lou Maivey Shombert, Gerry Corba Wilson and Marilyn Bickmore Boleky.

The Hopkins have no special news to report this year, but I do want to thank all the girls who have answered my cards over the past five years. I have had such fun reading them all and getting the news condensed for the Recorder. Marline Frost Ewing has graciously accepted the job of being the new class secretary. Please be as good to her as you have been to me these past years.

Let's sock it to you right off. JUNE 7, 1969 IS REUNION DAY!! Other classes included in this group reunion will be 1957-58-59. Come and see what 13 years will do. It's not all bad either because some of us have mellowed. SO . . . PLAN AHEAD . . . COME . . . REMEMBER AND ENJOY.

Everyone is on the go. There has been lots of moving and lots of traveling. Joanne Hammonds McDonald and Bill have done both. Bill has accepted a position teaching political science at W. and J. which necessitated a move from New York to Washington, Pa. They spent five weeks in Europe during the summer, mostly in Yugoslavia.

Buncie Douds Campbell and her husband also spent five weeks touring Austria, Germany and England. She arrived home expecting to teach this fall, but had a hasty change of plans with the arrival of David for adoption. What a great reason to retire!

Also among the European travelers were Sunny Koehler Peterson and family who vacationed in England and Germany. Dick's new orders take him to the Submarine School as Director of the Executive Department, so they happily remain in Connecticut. Sunny is working with the Red Cross as a Gray Lady at the Submarine Base Medical Center.

Jacy Kurtz Meyers and Karl spent a month in Europe returning via the S.S. Rotterdam complete with a storm at sea. Must have been an exciting conclusion to a memorable trip.

While writing of Europe we must mention Ann Hawthorne Lewis who has been our overseas correspondent for some time now. Annie, by the way, has now attained the rank of Major. By the time she gets back to the States she will have seen most of Europe. She hopes to be back in this country somewhere by mid-summer, but expects Bill's next assignment to be Vietnam.

With the three children in school Cynthia Snider Greene is able to spend time acting as Girl Friday to Irv who, this summer, opened his own graphic arts and advertising agency—Irv Green Associates.

Rose Fossee Weyhmann is anticipating becoming the owner of a split level townhouse if it ever gets finished. Walt is now associate professor of physics at the University of Minnesota.

Busy, busy, busy Elm Musson Brower is as diversified as ever in her interests and activities, but was hoping to find time to spend November in Grenada as she did last year.

Betty Knox Jesse and family toured Kentucky and Tennessee for a week, followed by an eight-day trip to the Bahamas for Bill and Betty. Barbara Krantz joined the Jesse's for a pleasant reunion. Meanwhile, Barb has made the big move that she has been contemplating—to Miami and into a home complete with a pool. Let's go visiting this winter.

One of our class is gaining recognition in the art world. Susan Bergman Gurrenz, whose work may be found in private collections around the country, is planning a one man show at the Arts and Crafts Center in April and another one man show at the Gallery Downstairs, Shadyside, the following December.

Liz Miller Tutchings has taken a job with Theatre Communications which is set up by the Ford Foundation to work with professional groups around the country. Pirie is directing plays everywhere from Louisville to Seattle, says Liz.

Happy to report that Lorrie Barofsky Schmookler, while not yet fully recovered from last year's auto accident, is getting around pretty well. The Schmookler's are enjoying their new home and hope to start work on the old barn on their property when they finish work in the house.

Sharlene Sparks Ferguson spent the hot summer playing the sometimes delightful, tedious game of Home Improvement.

Spending her summer in that same general line was Sonya Klein Vernau who moved to her new home in April. She and Walt managed to steal a week in Miami Beach where they attended the Florist Convention. Still busy nights at the hospital, Sonya, this fall, will become assistant clinical coordinator in OB and pediatrics. So there!

Speaking of impressive titles, Carole "Willy" Williams is engaged in professional activities that sound mighty impressive. She is on the board of directors of the California Association of Cytotechnologists and liaison representative from that group to the American Society of Cytology. I was so impressed that I used the dictionary to find out the area involved. That's an important field to work in this day and age. Have you a dictionary?

Not much new with Meg Floyd Kaufman except that the Kaufmans visited with Marilyn Miles Oliphant.

There is a new house in Sally Newton Vanderslice's future with her husband, who is an architect, drawing up the plans.

This will be another year of waiting for Jinny Hadfield Berry with David in Vietnam for a second tour, due to come home in May.

Martha Kovolovsky Frew and Ralph had a fine time on their visit to New York City, her first opportunity to see Fun City. Martha managed to see Bette Topley Jack, their first get-together in several years.

Among this year's travelers was Esther Rothman Greenwald who slipped off to Puerto Rico with David in the spring, to the shore with the family this summer, and was heading for New York this fall.

Had a cute card from Chung Wha Lee Iyengar. Raja is teaching at the University of Pennsylvania. Chung received her Ph.D. in chemistry at Bryn Mawr, but no job, she says.

Grace Nardulli Regutti's youngest started nursery school this year leaving Grace more time for club and organization work and guitar lessons. Perhaps we can persuade her to perform at the reunion. How about it, Grace?

If you send out enough self-addressed post cards, sooner or later people get the message—or return one. Johnnie Sawyer Barbro finally came through. She took a linguistics course from Carol Stolley Hastie's husband Jim last year, received her M.A. in English from Carnegie-Mellon, and is currently teaching at the South Campus of the Community College.

Joanne Sterling was visited by Joan Wilkinson Zook and daughter this summer. She says she couldn't drag them away from the Indian dances. Joanne is working on her doctoral dissertation and is employed as director of rehabilitation services at a new community health center.

All is well with Caroline Mapp Cuneo who is still teaching and enjoying her new home.

It was off to Boy Scout Camp for Dana Rose Sleepy and family where Bob was camp director for the third year.

Joyce Kiesewetter spent the summer studying at Union Theological Seminary and lolling on the beaches at the Hamptons.

Nancy Meyer Kane was in Indianapolis but it must have been during one of our little summer jaunts so we didn't meet, unfortunately. Nancy talked with Carolina Johnson Kiggins at Christmas and says that all is fine at the Kiggins household.

Florida resident, Sally Weise Hall, busy with her new house and John's new job, vacationed in Pennsylvania in July, but deferred a trip to Key West and beaches until October when it was a mite cooler.

Patty White Payne visited Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas this summer. The children were thrilled with their first flight.

Christie Walter Rinehart is enjoying village life with easy access to New York City, forty miles away. Stan is education editor at Thomas Y. Cornell Company, Publishers.

Pleased to be within commuting distance to New York City is Judy Pitasky Markstein whose husband Don was transferred to the New York office of Price Waterhouse.

Traveling was out for Lois Katz Blaufeld this year with the arrival of son Henry, but she is hoping to get to Israel next year.

Janet Schmults Lee mailed her card as she was about to depart for a camping trip to Texas. Hope it was fun. Janet has been involved in planning the reorganization of the Division of Nursing at Allegheny General.

A great thrill for Carole Schmitt Schug this year, with all the kids in school, is a solo shopping trip to the supermarket for the first time in ten years. Our sympathy to Carole who lost her mother this spring.

From Sue Scott Fenstermaker comes news of her husband Lloyd's promotion to assistant superintendent of the 100" mill at the United States Steel's Homestead District Works. The Fenstermakers spent some time at Black Water Falls, West Virginia this summer.

Delight Reed Dann spent much of the summer in Canada, but is back teaching nursery school and busy with organization work.

Nancy Wallace Bridges and family vacationed most of the summer in a cabin they built on a small lake in Hampton, New York. Although household activities keep her busy, Nancy still does some private duty nursing.

Carolyn Houghlin Joiner is living in a lovely split-level parsonage in Holiday Park just east of Pittsburgh. Don completed work for his master's in religious education at Pitt, and is now pastor of Holiday Park United Methodist Church.

A friendly hello from Mary Bailey who is still teaching student nurses. Mary vacationed in Boston and Plymouth this summer.

Greetings also come from Barbara Evans Danver, Barbara DeLaney Brown and Mary Alice Irwin. Alert! We have a lost classmate. Barbara Miller Tyndall, last known in Youngstown, Ohio is missing. Can you help us? Notify the alumnae office if you know of her whereabouts.

The Ellerys have had another good year. Each one is better than the previous one. We enjoyed a summer of many short trips afforded by our central location in the beautiful state of Indiana, and a few longer jaunts to Pittsburgh, Chicago and upper Lake Michigan and Mackinac Island. This fall we embarked on another football season at the Y where son Clifford's team, coached by his father, won the local championship. This will be another year of school chauffeuring duties for me. For while Liz rides the bus to first grade, Becky, in morning kindergarten, and Debbie in afternoon nursery, each require separate rides in different directions, with Kathy P. going along for the ride.

As I have said before, it was a great honor to act as your class secretary. Perhaps sometime in the future I may again have the privilege. See you at the reunion! Don't forget!

Marcia reporting:

Most of us are now enjoying the "status quo." Car pools are a way of life—inbetween we engage in diverse activities in and out of the home.

Libby Anthon Petrolis faces a troop of Brownies after completing a Girl Scout Leadership program. Just for fun and "escape" Libby continues with her acting.

Another Girl Scout Leader, Benita Biggard Rapport, also is busy with community activities.

Jean Dym Glushien is currently involved in such varied activities as the Animal Rescue League, West Penn Hospital Guild, crewel embroidery class and breeding miniature Schnauzers. Husband Tommy is a staff anesthesiologist at West Penn Hospital. Their daughter Abby is now seven.

Betty Farmerie Seaborn and her family enjoyed a trip to the gold mining country in Northern Canada where George was born.

With the entire summer free from teaching, Nancy Galley was able to travel—first to Puerto Rico where she visited Gisela Paoli Villafana, '57, then to Long Island for a few days with Pat Kappel Lloyd.

Pat Gardner Macdonald married in June and since has traveled to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, New York, England, Scotland and Ireland. Daughter Christie is in the seventh grade.

Also vacationing in Europe this summer was Patricia Gregory Barrett with Jerry, who gave a paper in Amsterdam. Jerry is now an associate professor at the University of Rochester and the Barretts are enjoying their new home.

Island hopping to Aruba, St. Croix and Bermuda happily occupied the family of Joan Herman Coleman. Joan is now vice president of Cancer Care in her area.

Carole Koko Ward combined travel and politics during the year in spite of a broken leg (the skate board went the other way!) and a bout with emphysema. Carole is the Republican publicity coordinator in her area and served as a delegate to the county and state conventions. After visiting her parents in Mexico, she toured the southern part of the country.

A trip to Israel comes highly recommended by Martha Lasky Sanders, who enjoyed every minute of her vacation there.

American's Program for Neighborhood House continues to occupy most of Rosmary Leet Stark's time. Ray returned to work for G. E. last February as manager of the employee relations management training program.

Janice Miller Schmidt has both children in school and is now even more involved in community activities.

Traveling is still very much a part of Barbara Sanford's work. She received promotion in March and attended a national conference on rural youth in Washington. When on vacation Barbara traveled everywhere—to the Islands of Maui and Kauai, Hawaii.

With two of her three boys in school, Ann Sheckter Powell is now able to devote more time to political activities.

Marilyn Steinman Roth completed work for her master's degree at the Graduate School of Library and Information Science at the University of Pittsburgh. She is now serving as the staff librarian at St. Margaret's Hospital.

Denise Zadeik Chatfield is enjoying a stimulating "musical" year. She now gives lessons to 15 private students and has organized a third choir at her church. She plans to direct a folk mass which will include guitars, banjos, and enthusiastic high school and college age singers—a new experience for Denise and the church and one which she hopes "both will survive."

Phyllis Prinzo McShea and Myrna Samuels Blower send their regards to everyone.

Sam and I spent most of the summer getting settled in our new house. Sam received a promotion and is now a project manager in charge of operations planning still with IBM.

Pat Tanton Blayden has seen many faces come and go to Chatham since the Class of '58 roamed the campus, and she looks forward to seeing all of us again in June. Carole and I hope you'll all plan to be at our class reunion. Any special suggestions? Drop us a line.

Carol reporting:

In reading the mail from my fellow classmates, I was happy to hear some of the girls already planning to return to Chatham in June for our class reunion. Lorrie Edwards Troyer writes that the Chatham reunion is her pleasure goal this year. Her education goal has almost been reached as she is on the last lap of her master's program with just 6 more credits to take and the writing of the dissertation. The Troyer family is faring well with Bill III in first grade, Steve, 3½, in nursery school, and Daddy Bill beginning to look at faculty positions as he anticipates his return to civilian life in October 1969. Lorrie had some perfectly delightful visits from Barbara Asche and Nancy Galley this year.

Barbara Sickles Bernstein is planning to come to the reunion—Goody made her swear in blood she would come! The Bernsteins had a grand summer with vacations at the New Jersey seashore. The exciting thing in their lives at the moment is that they are in the process of looking for a house—"after all this time, my husband who loves apartment living, has decided to move."

Barbara Weissman Marks already made a return visit to Chatham this past summer. She took Amy, 3, and Stevie, 6, to see her old room in Mellon Hall and they were very impressed. She said the school looked lovely.

"At last, all 3 children are in school." To still keep busy Carol Couley Ross took a night school course in real estate last spring and in May passed the state exam. At present, she is busy substitute teaching and selling real estate in addition to being a housewife and mother.

Sandy Whitmyre Young and family have been busy with church and community activities. This past year Sandy served as director for their Vacation Church School and is currently serving on the Board of Deacons in their church. Now that the young Youngs are in school, she is teaching in the Head Start Program working with "culturally deprived" children—a job Sandy finds very rewarding.

Airin Lee Kim writes that the Kims are doing fine in Hawaii, enjoying the lovely beaches, trade winds, and the hula dances. But their biggest news is that they are finally going home to Korea in September for a visit!! Jai Won will return home the end of October, but Airin and children will try to stay long enough to be able to return with her parents who are planning a world tour including some U.S. State Department invitations. Their son, age 4, understands a good bit of Korean and is excited about learning more from his grandparents.

This has been another busy year for the Staples gals. Elaine Rockwood Staples began teaching senior English in Orchard Park full time last January and is continuing this fall. In addition, she is taking evening courses at S.U.N.Y.A.B. toward a master's degree. Carrie is going to nursery school.

Claudette Smith Cooper writes that she has no real news like babies or new houses, but the family is busy with church work and Parents Club at school. She says, "Hello to all." Greetings to everyone are also forwarded from Anna Liadis Zervos. Angelo is in second grade now and Maria keeps busy by helping take care of her new baby brother.

Congratulations are in order for Mary Anne Knuth Braithwaite. She finished her master's in library science and graduated from Pitt in June. She has been working part-time for PPG in an arrangement where she does most of the work at home with a weekly visit to the library to maintain communications. A classmate and neighbor, Annabelle Irwin Few, has been assisting Mary Anne in her work with the local elementary school library. So Tim Few, age 2, and Dale Braithwaite, age 3½, have spent some afternoons playing together while their mothers catalogued books and visited. The Braithwaites shared an ocean-front home on the New Jersey shore with Nancy Knuth Thoman and family for a week this summer. With Nancy's four children and Mary Anne's two, there were six children under age 7 which made for a hectic week but one they hope to repeat.

Another type of library project is the interest of Barbara Berg Morrison. She tells stories every Saturday at the Colonial Park Library to between 30-50 children. Her greatest thrill has been the opening of a Community Day Care Center which has been the result of a 2½ year community effort. Barbara and Vic were chairmen of the Heart Fund for Cumberland County this past February and this year Barbara is secretary of the PTA—"keeping busy keeps me young."

The Russells have had a good year with a relatively calm and routine way of life. Most of my activities are family and community centered. I'm chairman of our local Women's Club scholarship committee and am happy to serve Chatham as a member of the Executive Board this year. Chauffering Jimmy back and forth to nursery school is an extra added attraction this year, but I have been enjoying my time alone with Jennifer, age 2. Hearing from all of you has made me look forward to the reunion with increased excitement. I hope to see many of you there.

A letter to Ruth Swisshelm in the alumnae office tells of Carol Ashman Briggs' new location in Abadan, Iran. They are happy and comfortable in spite of 120-130 degree heat, thanks to thick walls and air-conditioners—no primitive living for missionaries any more, even a man-servant in the kitchen! After 7 months of language study in Tehran, crates packed 15 months earlier in Ohio were unpacked and within 24 hours were in place. The children are in school and Darr is serving two congregations, one English and one Persian. The Briggses would welcome news from classmates.

Sue reporting:

This seems to have been a quiet, settling-in year for much of our class. Faith Magdovitz Willis has temporarily retired from teaching with two infants to care for. Tom is doing a residency in surgery at the Emory University hospitals. Sandy De Broff Roth's husband, Ronnie, has completed his stint in the Army and is practicing obstetrics and gynecology. Sandy, Ronnie, Debbie, Susan and Pamela moved to Youngstown where they've met Ruth Cooper Klodell and Barbara Stein Heimann. Bobbie has three children and is finishing school at Youngstown University. David is a labor relations advisor.

Nancy Cohen Stein has a new house, a new baby and a back-to-school regime to keep up with. Keeping up with a handful of children is busying Bobbi Hesse Tabachnick, Margie Marcus Krinzman, Berenice McGrew Fitzgerald, Norma Hunt Mahle, Betty Goodrich Westgard and Jimmy Long Springen. Barbara Kurtz Brody's family spent two weeks on Long Beach Island this summer. Patty Evans Burns broke up her housewifely chores with trips to Florida, Nassau and New Orleans. Bobbie Friedman London's Marla, who entered nursery school this fall, is entertained by her baby sister, Karen Beth. Ditto Claire Judd Schweriner's Randi and her baby brother Jeffrey Howard. Joanne Kretz Weiss has been organizing several Junior Great Books discussion groups in the North Hills area. Gretchen's third birthday present was a baby brother, Eric Christopher.

Sandy Roth's three girls have nothing on Ann Curry Haux—she now has four! Ann and George have taken up leather crafting and Ann is still painting, carving and horseback riding in Skaneateles.

Ralph and Barbara Eckel Goettler are busy campaigning for Nixon and settling into their new home with their three children.

Kudos to Margaret Cooke Skidmore, recently elected to Chatham's Board of Trustees by the Alumnae Association. The birth of Heather Cooke was followed by a month in Maine. The summer also brought visits with all of Margaret's roommates. Arlene Boyda Porter, busy as Dayton's Alumnae Representative and excited by a year of substitute teaching, plans to teach full time in about two years, when she will have completed her master's. Nancy Leventorf Recht is chairing an AAUW study group in Society's Reflections in the Arts and working in the Community Nursery School where Larry and Toby are enrolled. She bumped into Natalie Barish who is teaching biology at Cal State at Fullerton.

Another politicker is Amy Markus Kellman. She and Sy worked for McCarthy before Amy started working in New York as an associate cataloger for Library Journal Cards two days a week. Sorel Berman attended an NDEA Institute at Carnegie this summer. But she still loves Boston living and returned this fall to resume teaching.

I'm happy to report that Gordon and Lois Klein Schochet adopted a baby boy this fall. Gordon is teaching political science at Rutgers. Keith and Carol Koepke Brown dropped their little ones with their inlaws and headed a section of 106 teenagers on a North Hills Youth Ministry trip to Europe. The whole experience sounded thrilling. Carol said they learned as much about themselves in community living as about Europe.

Charlotte Hogg gave up Washington and the Peace Corps for New York. She's working as special assistant to our Commissioner of Human Resources and kicking up a storm in City Government. Sue Gordon is now off on a European jaunt. I'm looking forward to visiting Joe and Tela Cohn Zasloff in their new home in Pittsburgh. They are back from Southeast Asia for the time being and Joe is teaching at Pitt. Ira and Andrea Lopen Jolles have returned from a much-enjoyed trip to Dubrovnik and the Riviera (with a Chagall). I am still trying to raise funds for the American Civil Liberties Union and attended their Biennial Conference this June in Ann Arbor.

A late note from Mary-Anne Koenig Pomputius says, "Bill bought me a rebuilt old home in Edgewood for Christmas—half dozen fireplaces, dozen rooms, oak beams. Our only problem is misplacing Mary-Alice. We "excavated" a window seat and found some family silver. Removed a ton of plaster from Billy's room and found a marvelous handmade brick fireplace. Regarding academia, the art history department of Pitt sent me (expenses paid!) to New York City to poke around galleries and museums for several days . . . My baby brother, John Steven, married Pennie Mastantuono, '68. Billy served as page and Mary-Alice as flower girl. John and Pennie are now in Brazil with the Peace Corps." MAK reports also that she saw Enid Gruskin Sapira and Joe on a river cruise and garden party for new Pitt faculty; that Diane Keck Osborn and Ozzie have built a new home in Ohio; that Bea Langer visited Pittsburgh briefly in March to discuss her thesis (art history—Pitt), and then returned to Vienna.

Kay reporting:

There were many more replies than usual this year, and your reporter thanks you. But some cards are so very interesting that housewifery becomes terribly drab when they arrive.

Naomi Kipp Smith had been living in a log cabin (!), but has moved to a new duplex in Glacier Valley. She's been playing with the Juneau Little Symphony and has done a little chamber music. If any alums take the "Inland Passage" ferry trip the Smiths would welcome them.

That ten year absence from her violin forced Coral Wigent Burke back to lessons. They paid off—the Arlington Symphony accepted, then promoted her. A message for those of you whose husbands have National Institutes of Health Research Grants: please file accurate reports. The overtime you save could be Paul's.

While Joan Munroe's Ph.D. thesis was at the typist's, she replied to our queries with news of her move to Madison to work in the labs of David Green on some aspects of mitochondrial (part of a cell where energy is produced) membranes. Then, in a red P.S.: "Passed!" Congratulations Dr. M!

Debbie Phillips Rothman began a fascinating job this fall—a private practitioner in behavior therapy. Bill is doing research in photochromics.

Three classmates rejoined the communicators after long absences. Gail Peters reports that she's been with D.C. Heath and Company in Boston for eighteen months. After their wedding in October, she and her husband will live in Falls Church, Va.

Our sympathy to Yseult Snepvangers on the death of her father. She is now manager of subsidiary and foreign rights for Charles Scribner's Sons.

"Jeep" Snodgrass Owens has retired after five years of teaching. Henry is a broker with Hayden, Stone, Inc. in California.

Like Jeep, Gayle Thomas Harris is going in for the joys of homemaking full time now.

Bette Nadel Balk, Marcia Rubinoff Rosenthal, and Marie-Paule Visentin Van de Wiele write enthusiastically about their newly-built homes. Son Lee is another favorite subject of Marcia's. Marie-Paule is continuing to teach, and has a woman care for Dominique while she does.

Kate Holloway's arrival must have only slightly slowed her mother's dash through her civic jobs. Dottie Spurr Holloway also finds time to raise corn!

Her son's birth and her husband's avocation, politics, have made Barbara Stone Hollander's year full and exciting. Tom was a McCarthy delegate to the Chicago convention.

David and Sally Swartz Baldus spent last winter in Harrisburg at the Constitutional Convention and the spring in Pittsburgh selling the results of it. Now they're off to Yale to begin David's doctorate in law.

Promotions in our news: Anne Turner Arnold relates that her husband is assistant investment officer of Mellon Bank. Anne is busy with one-year-old David, and Paul is working on his M.B.A. which will be completed at Christmas.

Jill Putnam Huston is attending Pitt Graduate School at night. Hank is now assistant principal at North Allegheny High School.

Al Stoycos has also moved up—to assistant treasurer of Armstrong Contracting and Supply Company, Inc., an Armstrong Cork subsidiary. Pat Ross Stoycos works for a branch of the Lancaster Public Library, among other diversions.

New employment has taken Edward and Marcia Smiley Kung to Philadelphia. He is now the director of operations research for Insurance Company of North America. Marcia will continue to work for the admissions office as a part-time field representative.

Others have changed jobs. Anita Gessler Hecht has a title of sorts with Olivetti Underwood Corporation—supervisor of all non-exempt personnel (about 500) doing job evaluation and wage and salary administration. Marilyn Mercur works for the director of the San Francisco Opera Company—and finds California beautiful.

Two more of us are doing post-graduate work. Glen Rich DeBroff has sandwiched credits toward her master's in library science between trips this year. She's also been on the Alumnae Association nomination committee, and intends to help compile a gourmet cookbook. Carole Smith Petro is back at Canisius College this fall for two more courses.

"Greetings, but not much news" from Morissa Bernstein Lundy, Anne Smith Wright, Jane Sanford, Dottie Schall Schweiger, Joan Shultz Shively, Mary Peck Galloway, Laddie Lochner Kruiten, Anne Meyer Klein, Kathy O'Donnell Watson, Margie Roessler McDuffy and Nina Rhodes McCullough.

Your reporter was delighted to run into Claire Tober on the beach in Ocean City, N.J. in August. Claire likes her tasks dealing with adolescents at a state hospital, and is working toward her master's in social work.

The latest project at the Elders is an attempt to reorganize a defunct unit of the League of Women Voters. And the continuing referee, cook, valet routine. Cheers!

Ginger reporting:

Koppers Company, Inc. has kept Sally Clarke Veil and her family on the move. After 18 months on Long Island the Veil's have returned to Pittsburgh where Fred is now assistant labor relations manager at a Koppers plant. Sally reported that she recently visited with Helen Hirsch Bostock, Ethel Woefel Fiderer, Faith Buchner, and Anne Glass, '60.

Marriage has apparently brought retirement to Maxine Basson Vasquez who writes that she is now just "enjoying" Boston. Maxine's husband Richard is a computer systems analyst.

I don't think many people are as busy as Faith Buchner. Each year Faith writes of a new outside activity. This year she is involved with two Girl Scout groups as well as her continued graduate studies, travels, visits with classmates and full time job.

Carol Black Radack is thoroughly enjoying life in Hawaii. She describes it as fascinating, beautiful, casual, friendly, glorious, etc. . . . I'm sure Carol could have gone on for pages.

While caring for her "model baby," Dottie Christman Lilja is still keeping in touch with her interests and is active in community affairs. I'm quite sure her participation in the League of Women Voters will keep Dottie quite busy this fall.

All the work that comes with settling into a new house is keeping Terri Abrams Zions busy, yet she still squeezes in time for varied outside activities. Stan is now teaching at the Graduate School of Business of the State University of New York at Buffalo.

Jane Chittenden Hopkins is now settled in Atlanta where Harry is assistant professor of chemistry at Georgia State College. "Chitty" writes that her life consists of baby bottles and diapers. She had a chance to catch up on old and current news when Vicki Hartung visited last Thanksgiving, and she saw Lee Baratelli at Christmas.

Carol Jo Bullen soon departs for Japan where she will teach English in the International Traveling School of the UP WITH PEOPLE casts. Carol Jo has been working with these youngsters since they arrived in the United States for their summer tour. She encourages all alumnae to "keep their eyes open" for UP WITH PEOPLE visits in their cities.

Life could not have been more hectic for me this summer. After the wedding I thought I could just get oriented to the housekeeping routine and get settled at our new address. No sooner were Allan and I back from the Virgin Islands than we were on our way to New York. Allan is the labor relations manager for Borden's, Inc., and, after a three-month break to re-settle, I am again behind a desk as executive assistant to a vice president of Sloan-Kettering Institute. All the moving about has at least given me a chance to visit with or talk to classmates—we saw Lynn Leister Rojban in San Juan, Puerto Rico, and I recently heard from Susan Baird Blake who is settled outside of Detroit where David is teaching political science at Wayne State University. Sorry there was not more response from this part of the class—maybe next year.

Barbara reporting:

As I sit at the typewriter at the last possible moment before the deadline to assemble your news, I wonder if I am always the last to get my news into the Alumnae Office. I rationalize that it gives you all the chance to get all your news in, but actually I haven't changed my writing habits much since Chatham days. I apologize for the short un-informative postcard which you received—I have really enjoyed and appreciated your return letters—but too much goes on at the beginning of September. I am back teaching instrumental music at five elementary schools in Pittsburgh, and as much as I enjoy it, it is hard to get back into the routine after a year as a student at Pitt. I have finished my course work for my master's in music at Pitt and have "only" to write my thesis which I plan to do this year. Jim and I were married here in Pittsburgh last Christmas. We had planned to "elope" but our friends wanted to attend the ceremony and so we had a small service followed by a gathering at Vicki Hartung's apartment. Jim is in his final year (we hope) of graduate work in computer science at C.M.U. and we will probably both be attending graduations in June.

Among Chathamites still here in Pittsburgh is Marcia Hammond Deem. In addition to having her third child, Marcia is also busy singing in the choir at the Beulah Church, and directing the Youth choir and a dramatics group. Also a new mother is Barbara Elder Streveler. Barbara and her family are living in Alaska where her husband is in the Park Service, and they welcome visits from any and all Chathamites.

A letter from Liza Elers McCraren came to me this year from Alabama where she and her husband and son Peter are living for 10 months while Joe attends a government Fisheries School there. Marva Jo Harris also moved this year from Pittsburgh to Gary, Indiana. I wasn't able to talk with her personally but Marva's mother told me that Eugene had been transferred and they moved to Gary in August. Jack and Julie Helgesen Keiluhn have also moved this year from Rhode Island to Maine, where Jack is stationed as a photographer in the Navy. We were glad to have a visit from Julie and Jack and their son Jon while we were in Maine this summer. At present the Keiluhns are on a canoe-camping trip in Wisconsin.

Among classmates who are busy being housewives and mothers are Marty Carson, Helen Bostock and Judy Sphon. Both Marty and Helen are living in New Jersey and Marty is Alumnae Representative for Chatham in her area. Her three boys are all in school so she is finding some time for outside activities. Helen has seen Marty at an alumnae luncheon and also visited with other Chathamites: the Keiluhns, Fred and Sally Clarke Veil, Faith Buchner and Anne Glass ('60), and Jerry and Ethel Woefel Fiderer and their daughter. Judy Halko Sphon and her husband Dick have taken up canoeing this summer. In addition to being mother to two girls Judy has also been playing some golf.

Ruth Ghering Biro has become an instructor in Library Science at Duquesne University in the School of Education. In addition to teaching, Ruth and her husband are also involved in a business company which deals with land development in Somerset County, Scenic View Land Company, Inc. . . . Bill is a student at Pitt studying geology and will be making a trip to South America early next year. Another working housewife is Joyce Helsing Marlowe who is a professional worker for the Girl Scouts in Tennessee. Joyce is also teaching swimming for the Red Cross, and her husband Claude is beginning work on his master's degree. The Marlowes are planning a trip to Pittsburgh at Christmas to visit the Trautmans. Katie Kerrigan Miller is keeping busy teaching biology to high school students, working on her master's degree, and being a wife and mother. Her husband Sealy has sold his Atlantic station and the Millers are enjoying some time together before he enters another business.

In Philadelphia, Hap Dietz has finished her master's in political science and has one course left to complete course work for her Ph.D. Hap spent three months this spring in Europe doing research on a project. She spent two months working in Belgrade at the Institute of Social Science and one month "wandering." Vicki Hartung is working on her master's here in Pittsburgh at Duquesne University in the history department. In addition to being a student, Vicki works full time as a librarian at the Duquesne Library. This summer she visited many Chathamites including Jim, me and my family in Maine, and Linda Clinton Eaton, Charles, and the three daughters in Buffalo. In Buffalo Vicki also saw Judy Wetlaufer Clinton ('64), Linda's sister-in-law, and they traveled to Chicago where she stayed with Mary Loughbran Fell, Joe, and their daughter, in their new apartment. Vicki also moved into a new apartment this summer. However she is still on the same block and welcomes any visits and calls from Chathamites passing through Pittsburgh.

Lila reporting:

Elaine "Casey" Kessler Ruben writes that she is active in the "Dental Wives" group in Los Angeles. Phil is practicing dentistry in Inglewood and Beverly Hills. Casey hopes to visit Pittsburgh in November. I'm sure there are many there who are anxious to see Jill Renee.

Mary Loughbran Fell received the nice gift of all for her fifth anniversary—Karylda. She and Joe have moved in "traditional retail fashion" to an apartment over Joe's store. Viki Hartung spent five days with them in August.

Julia Loubris Hanson is working with the Department of Public Welfare in Philadelphia as a social worker in Protective Services. After John finishes his dissertation for his Ph.D., it's bye-bye Phil! hello ? ? ? ? ?

Kathie Otto McDowell and Mac are pretty well settled in Glastonbury. Mac is delighted with his new job. Kathie's brother er's wedding brought them back to Pittsburgh, giving her a chance to see the Chatham campus again.

Heather Muir Meacham is now a lady of leisure, spending most of her time decorating their first home with their "Early Artic" furniture. John will complete his Ed.D. this year and has accepted a position as counseling psychologist with the State University of New York Agriculture and Technical College.

Greetings, but no additional news are sent by Jeanette Mikkelsen Lamar, Jo Mitchell Soltman, Lynn Leister Rojahn, Nancy Landy Oleinick, Ann Kleinschmidt Newlin, and Joy Klee Kleeman.

My life has remained satisfying and happy. I am still teaching in a ghetto area of Oakland. When I visited Pennsylvania this summer, I spent an afternoon with Sally McGuigan Dauer, who was also visiting her family. After she put her darling son down for a nap, we drove through Chatham and looked at the new dorms. Sally said that Judy Malmquist Banz is now living in Switzerland. Incidentally, Bob and I spent an evening with Johanna Turich Huntley as they passed through San Francisco on their way to live in Japan for two or three years. That's all for now. I trust that if any of you visit San Francisco, you will call and say hello.

[Editor's note:—Through one of those errors which we think can never happen, Terri Zionis did not receive her materials for class news and her section of the class—Amy Parker Doty through Alice Yankura—did not receive a request for news. Several are mentioned in other parts of the news, and we have included all of the new addresses we know about. We know, also, that two class members are serving as presidents of alumnae clubs: Mildred Stewart McGough, the Pittsburgh Junior Sixties, and Sara Westlake Delmar, the Philadelphia Delaware-Main Line Club. Gail Siegrist Nafstel was one of several recent graduates who served on the committee for the alumnae-sponsored Prospective Student Open House on campus, October 5. We have offered our apologies to Terri in person when we were together at a meeting in Buffalo. Since the omission was discovered too late to get in touch with each one of you, all we can do before press time is to say that we are very sorry, and that we can "almost" guarantee that it will not happen again. Carolyn reporting:

Carol Baker Wildemann has decided to retire from the working world to become a full-time student once again. While husband Don completes his Ph.D. in psychology, Carol will join him at Pitt to begin her master's degree in educational research. In anticipation, or so it may seem, the Wildemanns have recently moved to a new apartment—with a study! The camping bug has also bitten Carol and Don; their summer journey down through the Skyline Drive and Outer Banks in North Carolina sounded marvelous.

Another camping enthusiast is Phyllis Fox Catz. However, what began as an ambitious and exciting four-week adventure across the country with her husband Sanford and daughter Sheryl came to a very abrupt and most unfortunate end midway through the journey. As they were heading back from California, their car was hit head-on, and they spent the remainder of their vacation in the hospital. We are surely thankful to know that the injuries were only minor—not a very pleasant way to spend a vacation, though! Phyllis also mentioned that Millie Grossman Zacher and family are neighbors and that up until August, when they moved to Paris, Janet Kessling Boese and her family made up the third member of their local "Chatham-in-miniature."

Harriet Bass Little writes that with some regret she and Tim will be leaving lovely Burlington, Vermont in December after a "great year" at the University where Tim has been a graduate student and teaching fellow. They are not sure as yet where they will be headed for Tim's Ph.D. Harriet has been busy as the secretary of the German department at the University and with her continued involvement in singing and acting; in fact both she and Tim had parts in The Best Man this summer. On a visit to Washington, D.C. in June, there was a grand old Chatham reunion with most of the 64'ers living in the D.C. area—and that's quite a bunch!

Karen Blomquist Struckman's newsy note was a delight, as usual. Her life continues to be busy and full of excitement running what she calls "the Struckman Hotel . . . make your reservations early." In addition to running her own "rest stop" for cross-country travelers and Chathamites, Karen has found volunteer work for Recording for the Blind most rewarding and stimulating, and enthusiastically suggests it to anyone who has a few free hours a week. The unit that she is involved with in Denver records on tape textbooks for college students, and she added that Dr. Elliott's Social Disorganization has been taped. Another important delight is making trips to the sites of her husband's bridges to watch the physical creation of his designs. Russ is the assistant highway engineer for the Colorado Department of Highways.

Barbara Caplan, after studying ceramics at the Greenwich House Pottery in New York, which she says is now her avocation, spent one glorious month traveling in Israel.

A letter postmarked Germany began, "I have finally made it to the country of my major!" Who else but Suzanne Clewell!

She is now in Frankfurt teaching fourth grade and German (of course). The school is one of two American Elementary Service Dependents Schools in Frankfurt. With all of Germany waiting to be explored, she is eagerly shopping for a car. If any 64'ers get to Frankfurt this year, she would love to see them for "some good German 'Gemutlichkeit'!"

Carol Daugherty Heierman is almost finished with her graduate study at Hunter College in ethnomusicology and is in the midst of completing her thesis in addition to singing in the New York area.

Beverly Fretz Nelson continues to be busy with her work in adult education for a rural nine-county War on Poverty agency in mid-Missouri. This summer she also had the opportunity to become part of the staff at an adult education institute at the University of Missouri in Kansas City.

It is always good to hear from our associate members, and Catharine Barley Paiste's newsy letter, as usual, was most welcome. Busy with her one-year old, two dogs and her home, Kitty still finds time for more. During the spring she tutored three children in math and reading, and participated in the leadership of a Girl Scout troop. With the arrival of fall, it's back to teaching nursery school again—energy unbounded.

Happy to hear from Kathleen Coyne Guenther, too. She and her family moved this past winter; they bought her grandmother's home. Kathy and her two sons had the most recent excitement was trying to locate Daddy on TV at the Republican Convention this summer.

And I (Carolyn) . . . our island existence in the shadow of Manhattan tower still continues to be an interesting and unique experience. Just a ten-minute ferry ride separates the bustle of the City from the solitude of Governors' Island. Much to our delight, Dave and I have discovered during the year that NYC is a popular stopping place for travelers—hope to see more of you as you pass through in the coming year.

Many thanks to all who replied to my plea for news—I thoroughly enjoyed hearing from you!

Linda reporting:

Marian Friedman Siegel and Bill moved to Detroit the end of June. Bill has a dental fellowship at Sinai Hospital for a year.

My questionnaire to Margie Frye Wilcox caught her in complete turmoil. She is in transit for the sixth time in three years. Chub accepted a position in Milwaukee after his May graduation from Law School at the University of Pennsylvania, and now this fall he changed law firms and will go back to Philadelphia and begin apartment hunting once again. Another move was made by Janet Kessling Boese this summer and she's back in Europe with Klaus and the children. Klaus is an administrative assistant at the French affiliate of the Fidelity Bank in Philadelphia. The Boeses plan to remain in Paris for 12 to 18 months and then, hopefully, find more permanent roots in Philadelphia. Also on the continent is Karin Gemassmer Ehrlich.

who sent us her change of address and news of her recent marriage in Germany to an attorney.

Mary Jane Hantman Perrin keeps busy with her two little girls and teaching advanced biology part-time at Winchester-Thurston. She is anxious for Ron's return from the Air Force in Korea, where he serves as a commander of a base hospital, and their return to civilian life. Ron plans to take his residency in radiology.

Living a very suburban life complete with station wagon is Julie Givner Reppenhagen. She keeps busy with her volunteer work with the Girl Scouts and Woman's Junior League in Amityville, plus raising her delightful towhead Kristen, while Charlie architecturally changes the local community. Mary MacConnell Ferry visited her this summer and so did Janet Kessling Boese and family before they flew to Paris.

Toni Hartung Albitz and Fred have bought their "forever" house in Edgewood. Now they are awaiting a German Shepherd puppy and their family will be complete. Another new home-owner, Mary McConnell Ferry was settled in suburban New Orleans before school opened in September and she returned to her teaching duties. Since Bill had never seen the city, Mary took him on a quick sight-seeing trip of New York this summer.

Living in Greenwich Village is Sue Haskell Clokey who is a merchandise analyst for a department store and Frank is an attorney for N.B.C. Also working in New York is Gwen Gurnack who is still in advertising. She is launching the fall campaign for the "Tigress" fragrance by Faberge—"Tigress: Are You Wild Enough To Wear It?" She had lunch at the Plaza with Judy Wentworth Mullan, Sue Haskell Clokey and Val Valentine who was en route to London. "They all looked great and seemed busy and happy," reports Gwenn. Can you believe, girls, it will be five years in June since we left Chatham?

Energetic Millie Grossman Zacher is getting a gypsy foot. When Jules finishes his master's they hope to take an assignment abroad. Meanwhile, they vacationed this summer in California and Tijuana. From Oklahoma, Judy Krasner Barbarosh reports that she is still teaching special education and George has two more years to go for his Ph.D.

Your reporter, Linda Wason Bardonner, is busy with the activities one gets involved in living on an Army Post. We plan to go to California this fall in between John's hunting trips, and in June we head for greener pastures in Pennsylvania where John will open his private practice.

Marty reporting:

The Organists' Guild Convention brought Ruth Anne Maier Bengtson and her husband Bruce, who is organist and choir director of the Fox Chapel Presbyterian Church, to Denver, Colorado this year. They also traveled to Chautauqua, Tanglewood, and finally to Hanover, New Hampshire to visit Margaret Fulwiler Jernstedt, her husband Chris, and their two little girls. Bruce will be playing a recital at Chatham on December 15.

Enjoying her new daughter Amy and her new home in Upstate New York is Nancy McBride French whose husband Don is now the Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Gouverneur. Nancy writes, "We live in a 10+ room house and would love to see anyone on their way to Montreal."

Mary Ann McCormick Tucker also reports that she and Jay are enjoying their new home and their two-year-old golden retriever which they inherited. Mary Ann is the speech therapist in the Wayzata School System and Jay is the assistant legal counsel with the Gold Bond Stamp Company. Mary Ann relates that she saw Tracy Quarry Gill and her husband when they stopped to visit on their honeymoon and that she also saw Linda Nevin in Minneapolis.

In a short note Marianne McGuire wrote that she had a fabulous vacation in San Francisco and Carmel this summer. Marianne is now the director of public relations at Allegheny General Hospital in Pittsburgh.

We send best wishes to associate class member Barrie Jeanne Miller Gregory on her marriage. Both Barrie and her husband Thomas are teachers. Barrie teaches Spanish.

Associate class member Nancy Moore Orlando writes of a move to Vermont and a new job at Marlboro College for Richard.

Having received her master's degree in psychology last December, Barbara Morris Stock and her husband Lee traveled cross country to San Francisco where they lived for three months while Lee worked at the University of California in ophthalmology research and Barbara worked as a psychologist for the San Francisco schools.

"Happenings" seem to be the order of the day for Nancy Munson McCormack. Nancy and Jim joined the Wycoff Community Players who produced Guys and Dolls this fall. The McCormacks also participated in the Fresh Air Fund Program by having a boy from New York City with them for the summer. In her "spare time" Nancy reports that she enjoys sewing and serving as a substitute teacher in remedial reading.

A new baby and a new home are keeping associate member Marjorie Murdoch Bass occupied. Marge writes that the twins, Cathy and Betsy, are four years old now and a big help with their new little brother, Charles Edwin.

Last spring Angela Patrizio Smith and Wallie had a delightful ten-day vacation in Nassau. They also visited Expo '67 in Montreal during the previous October. Last December they bought a Cape Cod style home in Bethesda. Angela continues as a sixth grade teacher and Wallie is now a full-time professor at George Washington University, teaching computer courses. The Smiths saw Alice Ropes Turnbull and her husband John this year.

Nancy Pierson Tolley and John spent a delightful three weeks last spring in England where Nancy was thrilled to see Queen Elizabeth at the Trooping of the Colours ceremony in London. Nancy still works for the Urban Redevelopment Authority of Pittsburgh.

"In late August and early September we took a twelve-day trip by a car to Washington, D.C., Williamsburg, Jamestown and Philadelphia and saw all the historical and cultural sights," writes associate member Bonnie Podolsky Theiner. Bonnie has just completed a master of education degree in counseling and guidance at the University of Pittsburgh. Her husband Micha is assistant professor of biological sciences and chemistry at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Suanne Pollack Singer and her husband Howard, who completed his residency in pediatrics in June, are now stationed on the upper peninsula of Michigan with the Air Force.

Nancy Redmond is still going to the Art Institute of Chicago, and she is also teaching arts and crafts and ceramics part time in a senior center on the southside of Chicago.

Gourmet cooking and decorating her French Quarter apartment are keeping Ronnie Rittmaster Brenner busy. Ronnie and her husband Joe, who is a Fellow in pulmonary diseases at Tulane Medical School, have enjoyed traveling in Louisiana and staying in some ante-bellum plantations.

Robb and I (Marty Richards Cummings) are still in Syracuse. Robb is a second-year resident in obstetrics and gynecology at Upstate Medical Center. I am now an employment interviewer with the New York State Employment Service.

Nancy reporting:

Although the responses this year were fewer than usual, the news was as interesting as always. Travel was prominent in many letters. Janet Saperstein Slifkin and husband Malcolm combined business and pleasure by going to Scandinavia where Malcolm presented a paper at the International Congress of Virology in Finland. The Slifkin's then toured the other Scandinavian countries and found the Norwegian fiords a special highlight of the trip. Toba Schwaber also attended a conference in Finland, the International Congress for Social Welfare. Toba is now supervising two graduate students from the Maryland School of Social Work.

Natalie Selkovits Lustig finds her time filled with studies at the University of Pittsburgh Library School and with keeping up with two-year old daughter Jessica. Arnold has been appointed assistant vice president of the C. S. McKee Company. Two other busy mothers also took time to report their activities to us. Linda Simmons Bacon and husband Larry have moved to Larry's hometown, San Francisco. They finished remodeling their "Victorian flat" just in time for the arrival of baby Katherine. Larry's new job takes him literally all over the world, and Linda is looking forward to being able to travel with him soon. In the meantime, she is loving every minute of life in San Francisco. Mary Ann Wrigley Church finds that the year has really flown since baby Bobby arrived. She has been taking courses at Delta College and is anxiously awaiting another skiing season.

I was delighted to hear from Bonnie Taschler Casey soon after her wedding. Bonnie met Michael at Milton College in Wisconsin. They were married in the University of Detroit Chapel, and then had an outdoor reception at Bonnie's sister's home. As Bonnie writes, they then decided to "follow Horace Greeley's urging" and ended up in California.

Susan Uptegraff Endersbe and Robert have had a busy year. In February they moved into their new house and have since been busy with paint brushes and lawn mower. They are also pleased with Robert's new position as an industrial engineer in the family transformer business.

While working again this year for IBM, Linda Young has begun an M. S. in computer science at the School of Engineering and Science, Pratt Institute. After a good summer, Linda also is looking forward to the skiing season.

Two brief notes brought news from associates. Sally Taylor Pleasants wrote to say "hello" and give her new address. Karin Rumstedt Babb and Al have just bought a new home in San Francisco. Al has returned to the University of California Hastings School of Law in San Francisco. Their son Paul has entered first grade this year. Karin is working as a mail distribution clerk.

Larry and I spent six weeks of our summer vacation in Europe—chaperoning a group of students (of French, of course) from my school. We visited England and Switzerland and stayed for four weeks at the Institute Culturel de Vichy, where the students attended classes. We found Paris to be surprisingly free of tourists, which was much to our liking after the crush of London and much to our advantage for sight-seeing. As you can imagine, I was delighted to be in France again and I especially enjoyed having Larry discover the French food, wine and people for himself. We had a most enjoyable trip. Thanks again to all of you who answered. We'd love to see anyone traveling through Connecticut.

Last minute notes bring news of three classmates:

Pat Prycl Klabr reports that she and her husband David are enjoying their sojourn in Scotland where David is doing research in the cognitive development of children at the new University of Stirling. In January they will move to London for six months where David has a Fulbright Lectureship at the University of London and Pat hopes to work at the British Museum. They will return to Chicago in June.

Tracy Quarry Gill and her husband David, whom she met during Peace Corps training, are now studying at American Institute for Foreign Trade and preparing to return to South America.

David and Elizabeth Watson Merchant returned in February from a year in Karachi, Pakistan. David has completed his master's degree in international public administration. They are at Elizabeth's home until they decide where they will locate.

Susan reporting:

Lynn Burkhouse Obernyer went to St. Thomas for her honeymoon with Stan. Presently, they both are doing graduate work. Lynn hopes to get her M.A. in history in 1969. Then they plan to go to Denver where Stan will finish his graduate work.

Jackie Cain Miller finished M.S.W. and is employed in an experimental community mental health clinic in Coney Island. Jackie attended Margaret Paulson's wedding and saw Jeff Potter, Betsy McGregor, Sherrie Smith and Kathy McNamara.

Leslie Caplan Iskowitz and her husband have returned to Pittsburgh where Alan is a medical resident at Montefiore Hospital. Leslie is teaching English at Greenfield Junior High this fall.

Suzi Callas Francis is still working at the Urban Redevelopment Authority with Jerilyn Donahoe, Emmy Hill and Nancy Pierson Tolley. Suzi and Dave spent two weeks this summer in New Hampshire and Maine.

Janie Coulter Burger has completed her M.A. in educational research and earned a specialist diploma in educational research. This fall, Janie continues her work in Project Follow Through by evaluating the handicapped and retarded children in the Cleveland area.

Susan Jane Cohn Brenner writes that she is halfway to getting her degree in counseling and worked as a counselor in the summer. Susan and Paul like California so much that they plan to stay in San Francisco post-army.

Diane Cole Roberts has had a very special year. Along with getting married, Diane received her M.A. in voice from the New England Conservatory. She is singing with Cambridge Opera Company. Also, Diane is a soloist at a local church which will sponsor Ed and Diane in a joint recital in the spring. On October 31, Diane and her sister will give a duet recital at the Gardner Museum.

Barbara Crick Klingsporn write from England where Harold is being loaned to Esso Europe for about one year. Barb plans to take courses in London. They hope to take short trips while they are abroad. Barb urges that anyone who goes to London will call her (BEL 1468). Anyone for a trip? ? ? ? ?

Louise DeCarl is entering her third year at Loyola University Law School and says "I am doing better than I ever did at Chatham! ! ! ! !". Also, Louise is working for Raymond, Mayer, Jenner, and Block law firm as a docket clerk. Louise is still uncertain about a particular field, but has narrowed it down to some aspect of commercial law.

Nancy Dechter received her M.A. in experimental social psychology and is working for Audience Studies Inc. This firm has the interesting task of testing audience reactions to T.V. commercials, and to pilot shows and Screen Gem Movies. Nancy is in a training program to become project director. Nancy went to Raquel Halty's wedding and spent some time with Linda Breitel Paetz.

As for myself, Susan Coleman Heckman, I am still teaching fifth and sixth grades at the same school. This coming year will be challenging for I will be involved in the teacher training program, student scheduling, Student Council sponsor, etc. Jim is in his fourth year at Jefferson Medical College and is trying to decide on where to do his internship. We have made the first of many trips to look at hospitals, but as of now Jim is still undecided.

Bonnie reporting:

Hannah Gilman returned from Korea in January, as she had been "medically evacuated;" she spent four months recuperating and loafing at home. Presently she is working in Brooklyn and Staten Island as a field representative for the Youth program of the Red Cross, and living with classmate Brenda Hilken.

Congratulations to Katy Hopkins Macher, who completed her master's in education at Temple University this June. She and Don spent a wonderful second honeymoon this summer traveling through the New England states. They also enjoyed a visit from Irene Fraser. Irene spent the greater part of her summer in Washington, D.C. working with Comsat. She received her master's in February at University of Illinois and expects to take prelims in May, 1969.

After a wedding in Northridge, California, Raquel Halty Ferguson and Bill spent their honeymoon at Caneel Bay Plantation on St. John in the Virgin Islands. Raquel met Bill while both were in the Spanish graduate program (1966-67) at Harvard. Bill is a poet and owns The Ferguson Press, specializing in limited editions of poetry. They are enjoying their share of a Victorian house in Cambridge, while Raquel continues to teach at Northeastern University.

Also teaching again this fall in Mt. Lebanon is Judy Howard Reilly. She and Mike bought a five-year-old Appaloosa (horse), named Nikki-G, which they hope to show next season.

Marty Friday Roberts completed her master's degree this summer and planned to continue for her Ph.D. in social psychology when she and Tom returned to Boston. They enjoyed their summer in Laurel, Maryland, but look forward to Boston again as soon as the Army allows.

Kathy Hoover Hill and Scott still love Morristown, although they were almost evicted for possessing their cat, Tippy, and they are moving in December a few miles from their present place. This spring they visited Kathy's sister at Wells College where they met the chaplain, Dr. Morrill, who has since joined the Chatham faculty.

Bobbie Hewitt Orloff writes that, although she and Jon are still in Pittsburgh, their hearts belong to Portland, Oregon, and they look forward to when they can move there. Jon is on the last leg of his doctoral thesis and hopes to teach in Portland next year. Bobbie continues to work with the aged for the United Fund, and will be formally trained in handling "suicides" for the agency's upcoming Suicide Prevention Center. Bobbie nostalgically notes that she and Ann Quenin attended Song Contest at which time the graduating class (our sister class) sang New Frontier to the class of 1966.

As for me, I have been busy getting ready for a November wedding and getting our apartment ready in New York. Roger is a 1962 graduate of University of Michigan, and is currently director of client services at Roper Research Associates, Inc. Our address after November 12 will be 1010 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10028.

Marjorie reporting:

Kristin Jellison Casteel, whom I saw in January at Carol Swenson Foss' (68) wedding, reports she was married last November and is still working, though in a new department, at Keydata in Boston.

Pat Kane received her master's in June from Winterthur Museum in Delaware and is now working as Assistant Curator of the Gavuan Collection at the Yale University Art Gallery. She extends an invitation to all to come visit her there and view the gallery's great treasures.

Ruthe Klein Kaplan informs me that her husband Bob received his Ph.D. from Carnegie-Mellon University in June, and they are now in Columbus where Bob is a research metallurgist at Battelle Memorial Institute while Ruthe works in the Student Employment Office at Ohio State. They have also added to their family—a German Shepherd puppy named Amigo!

Sandy Kretz loves working at VISTA and plans to go to grad school part time in the fall. Sandy also said she was glad to see Jeff Potter this summer.

Donna Kwall Smith, after her late summer wedding, is completing course work for her Ph.D. in counseling, and is also working full time as personnel and program co-ordinator of University Housing at Pitt. Meanwhile, her husband John, serving as assistant secretary of the University of Pittsburgh and its Board of Trustees and also staff assistant to the Chancellor of the University, has completed his course work and is a candidate for his Ph.D. What a busy life!

Christina Lagueruela Mendoza writes that her new husband Victor is an accountant with IBM and is studying for his master's in finance at Florida Atlantic University.

Vivian Lazur Brantley received her master's in natural science from Carnegie-Mellon in June, and then moved to Massachusetts with her husband Bill who is serving his tour of duty with the Army at the Army Material and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown.

Carol Beth Levin Hill spent last semester teaching kindergarten. Ed is still with the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's Corps.

Berry Marshall Hoak sent a long letter—she met her husband Dale at her tutorial meeting when he was a history instructor at Chatham! They were married last April in Greece, and after a "fairytale honeymoon on Mykonos" they are in London where Dale is now working on his Ph.D. in Tudor history at the British Museum under Cambridge University, and Berry will be teaching 4th grade at an American school. Berry says London is quite a meeting place for Chathamites—she has recently seen Barb Crick Klingsporn and Peggy Whiting '65.

Elizabeth Marty Welch writes that her husband Curt was promoted to lieutenant j.g. in the Navy after spending 7 months off the coast of Vietnam. Liza's keeping busy working as coordinator of academic services for the Oceanic Research Institute.

Betsy McGregor spent the summer in Europe with her twin sister and Sherrie Smith. Her future plans were indefinite at the time of this writing.

Shadbano Mirza Ahmad writes from India that she is working toward her master's in sociology at Delhi School of Economics, Delhi University, while Sohail is a lecturer in microbiology at the Medical College at Aligarh.

A long and happy letter comes from Judy Parry Pike, who has been teaching Peace Corps volunteers how to teach English as a foreign language. Her husband Harl is also a Peace Corps volunteer who has one more year to go, so Judy will be spending another year in Tunisia. She spent a short two weeks in the States in July at which time she saw Helen Scofield Ramagli.

News comes from the associates, too. Betsy Kern is entering her second year at the Medical School of West Virginia University. During the summer she worked in a Charleston hospital pathology department as an extern. We wish her luck on the long road ahead to doctor-dom!

Heather Martin Price also sent a long letter. Jim has passed the first step toward becoming a professional mechanical engineer, and has started a part time design and rendering service which they hope will grow to full time eventually. Heather is keeping busy painting the kitchen and caring for her lively red-headed Beth!

Now, where shall I (Margie Morrison Hofer) begin with my news? Bill and I had an exciting and rewarding evening on May 3rd, when the Smithsonian Institution in Washington opened its new National Collection of Fine Arts, where I was a secretary and Bill was the consultant designer and overseer of all construction for all the exhibit systems used in the building. The opening was quite some affair, attended by many dignitaries including the President, Mrs. Johnson, and Lyndy Bird. The formal gowns of some of the avant-garde artists' wives were as fascinating as the bigwigs! It was quite a night of triumph for Bill.

Almost as much of a triumph for us was our purchase of a new house this summer. We have moved east, since Bill has a new job as a designer with a New York industrial design firm. After spending all of August painting, unpacking, planting chrysanthemums, etc., I have gone to work as personal secretary for the New Canaan Board of Education, and I love it. Anybody need a teaching job?—let me know!

Thanks to all of you for the news—hope next year you'll all answer. I would also like to extend a welcome to all who would like to stop and put our spare bedroom to use. We'd love to see any and all!

Sherrie reporting:

From my corner of the ring, Chatham College For Knowledge grads are continuing to hold down the academic fort, both as graduate students and teachers. Margaret Paulson Falk continued her work in anthropology this year at the University of Chicago, then she and John had a late summer trip to England before tackling the fall semester.

Nancy Persson Klock was very enthusiastic about substitute teaching in Shaker Heights, Ohio, but more excited about her new house and Kimberly.

Graduate school is in the offing for Betsy Pincus Candler, who has been working for the Dallas County Child Welfare Unit. Although their winner was disqualified, Betsy and Dan had a grand time at the Kentucky Derby visiting with some of Dan's Carnegie-Mellon classmates.

Jeff Potter Silver finished her Peace Corps assignment in Thailand last January and worked as a staff member in Hawaii for six months. Her month's vacation in June was jammed with lots of reunions up and down the East Coast with Betsy McGregor, Kathy McNamara, Sherrie Smith, Margaret Paulson Falk, Doe Adamson McCallion and Jackie Cain Miller. Paul, a 1966 Yale grad and also a return Peace Corps volunteer from Thailand, is "sweating the draft" at present, but will hopefully be a law student at the University of Chicago.

An English sheepdog named Timmy provides Hilary Prouty Van Rensselaer with lots of daily running exercises, as long as Timmy stays out of Pickle's prized rose garden. Bob hopes to join a New Jersey law firm after his Army career ends in October and after the Van Rensselaers return from a West Coast vacation.

Helen Read resigned as a chemist in polymer physics to return to "the best of all places," New Hampshire's White Mountains, where her cats are happy hunting field mice while Helen teaches in a local high school.

Another member of the academic world is Madelon Rose, who received her M.A. in social work last June after completing a two year program at the School of Social Service Administration at the University of Chicago. Maddie is now a school social worker in Chicago's public schools.

The Prince George County, Maryland third graders continue to be enlightened by Nancy Ruehl Gallagher, whose husband Dave is a medical student at Georgetown University. Ruehlie and Dave hope to join the Chatham West crowd next year, as Dave would like to intern in Oakland or San Diego.

Another teacher is Nancy Ross Delatash, who has a new job teaching French in the Bel Alton School in La Plata, Maryland.

During the past year Nancy Russell Ross has been working as a caseworker for the Allegheny County Board of Public Assistance, at the same time trying to keep house and keeping up with Holly, who is now a super-active one-and-a-half-year-old. Richard is a supervisor for the training of hard-core unemployables for work with Westinghouse Electric.

The Bay Area now claims Shelia Sadin Nevins and Don, who is a resident in psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center. The Nevins have had a grand time exploring the many facets of San Francisco.

San Francisco is also Cathy St. Clair's base for her many flights to Saigon and Taipei as head stewardess on Pan Am's R and R runs. She flew in the opposite direction last spring for a marvelous European vacation.

Carol Sheldon received her MAT degree from Georgetown University in June, as well as completing her first six months of teaching in the Model School Division. This summer she participated in a Reading Institute run by the school, where they experimented with lots of exciting projects. Carol's description of the use of Polaroid cameras in the classroom was fascinating. She also had a delightful visit from Becky Blasingame, on vacation from her job in Brussels.

After a summer in Flagstaff, Arizona, Sandi Smith Mueller and Jim headed for Chicago, where Jim will be a visiting student at Northwestern in African Studies, while Sandi teaches biology. The Muellers already miss the Arizona sun.

As for me, Sherrie Smith, I've had a great year trying to keep the first graders from eating their crayons and the third graders from painting their faces—all a part of being an elementary art teacher in Stoneham, Massachusetts, while continuing work on my master's at Boston University. It's been a year of many reunions, particularly the weddings of Doe Adamson McCallion, Bibi Boles Evans and Margaret Paulson Falk, topped off by a fabulous European tour this summer with Betsy McGregor and our sisters. Highlights were Sligo, Ireland, where we stayed with Laura Oliva, and Brussels, where Becky Blasingame was a lovely hostess. I'm looking forward to this year, since it seems that the Boston area is being taken over by Chatham grads.

Rennie Mazo Cohen writes that she is doing social work at the Franklin County Welfare Department in Columbus, where Dennis is a third year medical student at Ohio State University.

Sage reporting:

Helen Scofield Ramagli reports that she is still teaching while her husband Rich is attending Southern Connecticut full time working on a degree in education. She also reports seeing Judy Parry while she was in the States between Peace Corps stints.

Clare Stebbins is now at Southern Illinois University studying secondary education, majoring in English.

Rachel Stein Gragg and husband Mike spent time this summer in San Francisco, Lake Tahoe, Yosemite, Sequoia, and Oregon, but they are now back in Tucson where they are finishing up their graduate studies at the University of Arizona; Mike is studying chemistry while Rachel is in government.

Out of the Army and happily ensconced in Flushing, New York are Janice Thomas Wolf and her husband Harton. Harton has exchanged his Vietnam duty for that of a banker, where he works in the bond division. Janice reports that she sees Joan Lessing ('67), Brenda Hilkin, and Hannah Gilman quite often.

Jane "Goodman" Trader Moore and Richard are now back in Western Pennsylvania. "Goodman" is presently teaching biology at the Penn Hills Senior High School.

Sue Ward Swartz, Howard and daughter Ellen had to make a sudden move this summer as they were burned out of their apartment. They seem to have survived well, however. Howard has started his last year at Law School while Sue spends time caring for the baby and getting "over-involved," as she puts it.

The great news from Lois Welsh Byrne is about her recent marriage to Tom, who is an attorney in Philadelphia. Lois is in graduate school at Temple working on a master's in educational media.

Lynn Williamson Lawrence has a new job in Boston where she and her husband are now living. She is a personnel interviewer at New England Merchants' National Bank. Lynn also reports seeing various Chatham alums during the past year.

Patty Williamson has a new job as the assistant project director for a new publication being produced by the Association of College Admissions Counselors and the 3M Company. Patty's job will consist mainly of designing and conducting a field test of the first edition this winter.

Jean Weist Chamberlin and Lesley Smith McGregor send greetings but no news.

Pat Mullen, an associate member of our class, reports that she is now living in a converted barn in Westport, Connecticut. She expects to get involved in Harkness House of Ballet Arts in New York, where she will be working on a pilot program teaching ballet on the college and university level. In addition to planning for this, Pat has completed most of the requirements for her master's in English. All that remains is the writing of her thesis.

Joan Stahlbrodt Lewis and husband Roger have taken up residence in Rochester where Joanie is teaching 5th grade. Roger is a draftsman in a Rochester firm.

As for your reporter, Sage Tower Mumma, I have been busy with a job as research assistant in the Department of Biophysics and Microbiology at the University of Pittsburgh. Mike is almost finished with his Ph.D. work so we are looking forward to leaving the University.

I was in Rochester in April for Joan Stahlbrodt Lewis's wedding. I have also been busy with the Chatham Junior Sixties Club which was organized for graduates in the 60's from the Pittsburgh area.

Mary Ann reporting:

Hi! It's hard to believe that we're reporting news about the class of '68 already. Everybody whom I have heard from sounds as though they've found plenty to keep them busy.

Quite a few decided to stay in Pittsburgh to work. Vera Berkowitz Greenberg is doing medical research at Montefiore Hospital and Marcia Binstock is working at Westinghouse Electric in the Tele-Computer Center. Sabra Burdick is sharing an apartment with Sandy Hochhauser and their new cat. Sabe is a caseworker for the Allegheny Board of Assistance and reports that she really misses the Class of '68. Nancy Banchiere is training to be a buyer for Horne's. Carol David is busy attending classes at Pitt and working full-time in the psychology department there.

Pam Davis will be in Grenoble, France studying French literature on a Fulbright Scholarship until June. Then she plans to travel around Europe on the back of a motorcycle.

Kathy Carlson Schuchat and her new husband are both working for the Monsanto Company. Kathy is a biochemist with the Life Science Division and Bill is a design engineer.

Sally Barnett is living in New York City, working for the International Software Corporation and having a good time. Diane Savage has moved back to the southwest, Houston, Texas, where she is working in the personnel department of Gulf Oil Corporation.

Betty Adams reports that she spent most of the summer boating and is now attending secretarial school in Baltimore.

Becky Conrad Hahn and her new husband, Larry, have returned from their honeymoon to St. Croix and are both teaching near Harrisburg. Diane Savage, Jennifer Jessop and I were in the wedding; Sally Barnett, Cory Dautlick, and John and Judy Siehl also attended—making it a small Berry Hall reunion.

As for me, I've been living in Philadelphia, working in the tax department of Fidelity Bank, and loving the idea of being out of school and on my own.

Goldie reporting:

Molly Day, an associate of the Class of '68, will complete her senior year at Wheelock College in Boston and student teach in the third grade. She also spent six months traveling in France. How lucky can ya be?

Boston seems to be the "in" place and has attracted many Chatham grads. Harriet Dye is at Tufts University, taking elementary education. She also attended Radcliffe's publishing procedures course this past summer and doesn't know whether she'll teach or go into publishing. Whenever she picks, Harriet says, "This is definitely my last nine months of school." Another Bostonian is Cathy Horowitz who is teaching first grade in Randolph, Mass. She had a nice vacation before starting work, though: a month's travel through five European countries. Cathy is sharing an apartment with Alice Kessler, also teaching.

Jill Dworkin Eisner really pleasantly surprised us with her marriage and is acting like a marvelous wife and housekeeper. She's also busy teaching sixth, seventh and eighth grades in Pittsburgh.

Pat Elio Cash expects to be in San Francisco working as a chemist while Dennis is employed by Standard Oil of California as a chemical engineer. Pat was a bridesmaid in Kathie Kratt Neeley's wedding earlier in the summer.

Susan Esterman Borish (alias Suz) sat around all summer waiting for her furniture to arrive. I attended her wedding, as did Barbara Stern, Bobbi Livingston Reitzes, Jill Dworkin Eisner and Cathy Horowitz. I had to see Sue as a bride with my own eyes to believe it and she was a beautiful one. She's teaching eighth grade English in Philly.

Leslie Greene Herskowitz is doing social work for the Jewish Social Service in Louisville, Ky. while husband Fred studies medicine for his second year.

Jane Grisell is in grad school at Emory University, School of Sociology, specializing in mental retardation. Wonder if she'll come back with a southern accent?

Ellen Guzum Hutton is still looking for a job as a French teacher, but in the meantime is busy with her husband Tim and six-year-old daughter Jennifer. After graduation, Ellen and Tim went on vacation to Bermuda. She says, "We were chased by a 10' shark, and I spoke to Adam Clayton Powell on Bimini. (The two events are unrelated)!"

Judy Herbst Goozh expects to be working while Steve continues in dental school. Betsy Bosson, Cathy Horowitz and Leenie Love all attended her wedding.

Alexandra Marie Hoch (alias Sam) is a parish worker and kindergarten teacher as an extension volunteer with the Catholic Church. Is Corpus Christi ready for you, Sam?

Sandy Hochhauser, a high school classmate along with Fern Weiner Canter, Jenny Jessop and yours truly, is in a training program for neuropsychobiology (WOW) at the University of Pittsburgh.

Judy Hormats, who left Dr. Knolle's class with a wealth of information, is presently living in New York and might teach in its public school system. Do we have another Sandy Dennis in our midst?

Mary Lou Hutchins McGuire reports that Pam Matthias, Patti McBride, Merry White and Audrey Smith, '67, did a great job as bridesmaids in her wedding.

As for me, Goldie, I had a great summer being a tennis bum along with Alice Kessler. Mrs. Blayden still can't figure out where I learned to serve the way I do. I'm presently teaching French at South Junior High School in Monroeville, Pa. as part of my master's degree program at the University of Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh just isn't the same without all you girls, although Chatham seems to go on with a "new sea of purple heads." It was good to hear from all of you. Keep writing.

Zelda reporting:

Ann Joseph, who is going to Dickinson Law School, was a gopher at the Republican Convention. She goes for food, goes for coffee, etc. The last I heard she could be anywhere between Miami and the Virgin Islands.

Many people are attending graduate school, or are taking some further education. (If you have a B.A. and can type, you can be a secretary). Kelley MacIsaacs is studying anthropology at Catholic University of America. Jennifer Johnson is studying for a M.A.T. in music at Wesleyan University in Middleton, Connecticut. Chris Joyce is training for a teaching position at John Robert Powers. Sarah Llewellyn is studying social anthropology at the University of Manchester, England. And I am studying psychology at West Virginia University in Morgantown.

Among those who are working, Alice Kessler is teaching first grade in Framingham Massachusetts. Kathie Kratt Neeley is a research chemist at the Soil and Nutrition Lab at Cornell where husband Jim is a graduate student. Barbara Krause Pegg is working for the Social Security Administration in Manhattan, and is probably very proud of husband Bill who has completed the New York Bar exam.

Marsba Lane Camitta is an eligibility technician at the Maryland Department of Welfare in Baltimore. Jennifer Lewis is, at last report, looking for a job in Boston. Sharon Litchfield is off to England for a job in public relations and advertising, and plans to go to graduate school after that. And Ann McCall is teaching English in Melanasia—Pamua in the British Solomon Islands. That sounds like fun!!!

Georgia reporting:

Several of us are still going to school. I'm at graduate school in history at Pitt; Kathy Osmond is there in political science. Alexis McMillan is at Georgetown University in political science, and Meg Sandridge is also there in law. Marcia Mount is at University of Pennsylvania specializing in child welfare in the School of Social Work. Chilton Richardson is going part-time to graduate school (biology) at Pitt while taking Donna Dalton McCall's place as laboratory assistant in biology at Chatham. Caroline Roth was "girl Friday" to two Japanese bankers for the Japanese Development Bank this past summer, and is now at George Washington getting an M.A. in anthropology.

Elinor Marks found a temporary niche as a caseworker with the New York City Department of the Social Sciences. Pennie Mastantuono Koenig and John spent September in Brazil training for the Peace Corps. They will be working in education-community development in Sergipe, a small state in the Northeast of Brazil. Closer to home, Jan Miller Kahler is working as an executive-trainee for Kaufmann's Department Store, while her husband is a student at Pitt. Leslie Miller is working as a systems engineer for IBM, having spent ten weeks of the summer at a training course in Detroit. Barbara Morgan Spiegelman is a technical writer for Maynard Research Council; Stanley works at Bettis Atomic Power Lab (Westinghouse) as an engineer.

There are also two happy "mommies" in our group—Audrey Pysb Theis and Ann Robinson Risch. Audrey's husband is a fourth year medical student at Pitt, and Ann's is assistant manager of production, control, and distribution for the National Brewing Company.

Marsba Otterman is teaching kindergarten, and Pati Pronovost teaches second grade at Julia Ward Howe Elementary School in Mount Lebanon, Pennsylvania.

Ellie reporting:

It seems as though most Chathamites cannot relish the thought of staying away from academia. Susan Sheppard is working towards a master of arts in teaching degree in French at Colgate University and reports that graduate school is great so far. Barbara Stern is attending Teachers College at Columbia University for a master's degree in special education. Connie Swjantek is at the Graduate School of the University of Pittsburgh, specializing in library and information sciences. Faith Yoho is also at Pitt studying English; she resigned her job with Kaufmann's in favor of continuing the academic grind. Ellen Witt is taking up school psychology at the University of Maryland. Gail Young, pursuing studies in social psychology at the University of Kansas, writes that furnishing the apartment she's sharing with Gisela Krueger is a major undertaking; she offers the suggestion of the year—"spinster showers."

After spending the summer galavanting all over Europe, Leslie Tarr finds her thirst for adventure temporarily cured. She is settling down to graduate work in community organization at the Columbia University School of Social Work. Laurie Weiss traveled this summer in France and joins Leslie at the Columbia University School of Social Work.

A few of our alums actually are going to work for a living in the "real world." Mary Templeton is very excited about her job as a research correspondent with Mutual Funds State Street Bank and Trust Company in Boston, Massachusetts. She is sharing an apartment with Ann Getman. Sue Thomas worked as an auditing clerk in a department store in Wilmington, Delaware, this summer and is now beginning a stint as a secretary to two professors of economics at the University of Pennsylvania. She tells us that she's sworn off bridge in favor of hearts and is learning to cook something besides Mexican food. She hopes for graduate school within a year—in English or communications. Mandy Timney is a research assistant in the department of pharmacology of the Harvard Medical School. She's looking forward to the experience of living in Boston. Merry White represents us with American Express in Akron as a travel representative.

Eleanor Wait has been working since last February as a writer (speeches, booklets, film strips, articles) in the public relations department of Westinghouse Electric Company in New York City, as well as some free lance work. She shares an apartment with Linda Geldman who is doing rehabilitation work with Cerebral Palsy.

One of our associate members, Candy Saly, is attending the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown while taking a correspondence course from London in the Montessori method of education.

As for me, Ellie, I've changed my plans radically, from going to Germany and France for a year to attending Ohio State University in Columbus. Once I was offered a four-year fellowship-assistantship toward a Ph.D. in curriculum and instruction, I decided that Europe could wait until next summer. I attended Kathy Carlson Schuchat's wedding in June with Susie Sheppard and also saw some '67ers at Sylvia Woods Mudenda's wedding on August 31. After a summer of teaching, tutoring, and typing (Yes, Chatham's tutorial does prepare you for the outside world!), I am approaching graduate school with some trepidation, not in the least caused by the prospect of cooking! And the traumas of multiversity life have given rise to fond memories of Chatham's emphasis on the individual. I enjoyed receiving all of your replies this summer, and I hope you all have a rewarding year ahead.

by Davis Gray

Yes! Right now you can enjoy an exciting and colorful new idea in decorating your family room, library, student's room, office—A gift to delight the eye and stir the spirit!

What better time . . . the most nostalgic season of the year . . . to treat yourself, or someone near you, to a rare gift that recalls the splendor of the campus in all its brilliance . . . so universal in its beauty and appeal that even friends of alumni will be delighted to own these paintings expertly rendered with the unmatched spontaneity and freshness only possible with watercolors.

Artist Davis Gray was chosen to do the series because of his unusually fine, free technique which has won him national recognition and an award-winning watercolorist. He has captured in these paintings the very essence of Chatham.

Each full-color scene measuring 11" x 14" matted, is individually rendered (NOT printed reproduction) on the finest watercolor paper.

The very low price of $3.50 for each painting matted and ready for framing (only $12.50 ordered in sets of four) is possible only as an introductory offer of the College Watercolor Group, a gathering of expert watercolorists who seek to create the widest possible appreciation for the medium of watercolors—and to introduce you, reacquaint you, or renew your delight in the marvelous, spontaneous, and refreshing world of watercolors.

For your convenience, you can also order these distinctive paintings framed with glass in handsome, hand-crafted frames of grey-brown wood with inset of soft-toned green linen, delicately highlighted with inner border of gold trim to add dignity and beauty to any decor and color scheme. These are available for an additional $4.00 per painting shipping and handling charges included.

So, at a fraction of the actual value of this rare set, make this initial offer—with full money-back return privilege. For a perfect gift to yourself—to alumni and friends alike—FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY, RETURN THE NO-OBLIGATION COUPON TODAY.

● The Alumnae Scholarship Fund has been substantially enriched this year by contributions given in memory of Edith N. Stanton, class of 1902. Following her death on November 26, 1968, Mr. Charles A. Stanton and Mr. Roger F. Stanton suggested that, rather than flowers, their sister would prefer contributions to her alma mater. Miss Stanton, who has lived in California since her retirement, was a past president of the Chatham Alumnae Association. She was well known in Pittsburgh for her long years of service as executive director of the Y.W.C.A.

● Miss Doris Crozier, who for the past five years has been assistant to President Eddy and assistant professor of anthropology, will leave Chatham at the end of the 1968-69 academic year. She will become the first dean of the new coordinate college for women at Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio. Miss Crozier will go to her new career with the very best wishes of the Chatham Alumnae Association. She has been a good friend, and a gracious and enthusiastic speaker on many alumnae programs.

● Once again attention is directed to the back cover advertisement for Chatham scenes painted by Davis Gray of the College Watercolor Group. After the paintings were offered in the December issue, 40 orders were placed for a total of 104 individual scenes. In March the Chatham Alumnae Association received a check for $142.08 in commissions on these orders, a very much appreciated bonus.

● Mary Anderson Sheehan '54, a former ARROW editor and member of the Recorder editorial board, assumed the reporter's role again to conduct the interviews and assemble the material for VOICES on the CAMPUS: 1968-1969, beginning on the next page. In view of the fact that action has been taken on several of the issues mentioned during the interviews, information pertinent to these decisions has been summarized in a companion article on page 9.

Voices On Campus: 1968-1969

"While building dreams anew, Seeking for all that's true . . ."

The words are familiar to most Chatham graduates, but today's dreams are not the same as those of thirty, twenty, even five years ago. The search for truth continues, but the means of seeking it are changing.

Across the world students have, depending upon how you view it, either "agitated for" or "rightfully secured" a stronger voice in college government. France, Mexico, Japan, Spain, the United States—all have supplied arenas in which students have wrestled for greater rights.

What is happening at Chatham? Are her students au courant with the rest of college youth? How do they differ? In an effort to answer these questions, a member of the Recorder's editorial board talked with ten members of the Chatham community, all of whom were extremely helpful and most generous with their time.

Those interviewed were President Edward D. Eddy; Executive Dean Eugene Hotchkiss; Dr. Frances Eldredge, professor of English; Dr. Richard L. Morrill, Chaplain and assistant professor of religion; Mr. Francis B. Nimick, vice chairmen of the Chatham Board of Trustees; Sarah Bornstein, senior and immediate past president of Chatham Community Government (CCG); Risa Ellovich, senior, chairman of Honor Board; Cathleen O'Daniel, junior, chairman of House Board; Cheryl Olkes, junior, editor of THE ARROW; and Evie Lewis, junior, CCG president for 1969-70.

Perhaps the best jumping-off point would be a statistical picture of present freshmen, the class of 1972. The figures are based on the results of a survey prepared by the American Council on Education, Office of Research, to "present national normative data on the characteristics of students entering college as first-time, full-time freshmen in 1968." Included among the 358 institutions participating in the survey were Amherst, Hamilton, Briarcliff, Connecticut, Wheaton, and locally the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie-Mellon University.

Over 86% of incoming Chatham freshmen had an average grade in high school of "B" or better (71% in other four-year women's colleges); almost 40% had had original writings published as compared with 21.5% in other colleges. Among the major influences in their decision to attend Chatham, 82.1% listed the academic reputation of the College. A few more telling statistics:—92.3% were of the opinion that students should be actively involved in decisions concerning curriculum; 42.7% felt that military service should be voluntary; 34% considered that colleges had been too lax on student protests. During the previous year, 60% had argued with a teacher in class; 84.2% had read poetry not required for a class; 91.3% had visited an art gallery or museum; 22.7% had participated in a political campaign outside of high school; 54.1% had participated in political discussions.

What of upperclassmen? What are their concerns at Chatham? On September 7, 1968, members of the Student Officers Conference at Chatham ratified the DECLARATION of RIGHTS of the COLLEGE STUDENT:

"College students are adults and must be regarded as such. Therefore, students have the right to participate actively in the decisions that affect student life.

"Consequently, students must have the right to share in the decisions that determine the nature of their educational experience.

"Consequently, students must be able to acquire information about and exert influence upon the involvements and the priorities of the institution of which they are a part.

"If such rights are violated, neglected, or ignored, students have the obligation to secure these rights in order to fulfill their responsibilities as adults in the college community."

The students have been far from reluctant to pursue these rights. While they have "evidenced a basic willingness to work through existing structures," as Dr. Morrill put it, they have involved themselves in college budgeting parietals, and have attempted to prove a "latent night" to attend faculty meetings. (In case parietal is a new word to you, as it was to this reporter, it comes from the Latin parietalis, a wall, and in its current application means "resident within, or pertinent to life within, the building of a college.")

Throughout the interviews, certain themes and ideas kept recurring. The following, in no set order, are the topics that concern Chatham students today:

1. Student participation in all phases of college government.
2. The curriculum.
3. Social regulations.
4. Relationship with other local colleges, through cross-registration, shared library service, a common calendar.
5. Co-education.
6. Self-scheduled exams.
7. Attrition.

Student participation in college affairs has taken some long strides in the past few years. One of the innovations introduced by Dr. Eddy is the President's Roundtable. Held at two or three week intervals in his office, it is open to any student and they are free to discuss any topic with the President. Subjects range from the college budget (after this particular session, a copy of the current budget was published in the Arrow—a "first") to salaries for the maintenance staff (a hot issue last year) to relatively minor complaints. Student views about the Roundtable ranged from "pretty successful—it gives you an opportunity to air problems" to "not very worthwhile—there are too many ways to skirt a subject."

Perhaps chief among Dr. Eddy's innovations in student life is his decision to have student members, appointed by students, serve on eight of the thirteen standing committees. Among these is the President's Advisory Committee, which has three student members. The President has turned to this group for counsel on such subjects as the college calendar and the selection of a new executive Dean. Students serve on the Curriculum Committee ("very active," according to one student member. "We meet at 8:00 A.M. sometimes in order to discuss ideas and new approaches.") the Financial Aid, Library, Non-Western Studies, Religious Life, and Special Occasions Committees. Some of these are more active than others—those less active are regarded as somewhat suspect by the students, although they are quick to admit that very few other colleges have student participating on faculty committees.

Probably unique at Chatham is the policy, also established by President Eddy, that prospective faculty members are interviewed by a student committee, usually six in number and at least half of whom will be majors in the candidate's field. Candidates who are later hired have confessed that this was their most difficult interview. There have been at least two occasions recently when applicants were rejected on the basis of student opinions.

Chatham Community Government received qualified praise among both faculty and students. Sarah Bornstein considers it a workable organization. "We are living in a community, and each member must realize that certain regulations must be adhered to for the good of all." Sarah, intelligent, extremely articulate, and well-respected by all groups on campus, is representative of today's more restrained student leaders.

Last November 4, when a midnight rally was held on campus, Sarah, in refusing to lead a march to the President's home, expressed her ideas this way: "We are here to demonstrate not our anger, apathy, or alienation, but our concern, our sense of responsibility, and our support for student rights. We are here in support of the concept of community, that is, people coming together for common interests, common concerns, and common gains." While expressing her satisfaction in having chosen Chatham, she yet quoted another student with whom she agreed as saying: "Chatham is a challenge. Like the Peace Corps, there is so much to be done."

Evie Lewis, the new CCG President, is a most enthusiastic and engaging person. As soon as she took office, Evie distributed a questionnaire in an effort to determine the areas in which CCG could best serve the community. In the three hundred questionnaires that were completed and returned, the following subjects received the greatest attention: social rules; library privileges with the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie-Mellon University; a re-evaluation of the grading system; a re-evaluation of the Financial Aid program. [Roughly 30% of the students receive some type of financial aid; their greatest complaint seems to be that this help decreases as they advance through their four years in college. Since the alumnae are very much involved in financial aid through the annual Alumnae Fund, this complaint was checked out in the Financial Aid office. Miss Amy Botsaris '53, Director of Financial Aid, explains it this way: "Facts will prove that every student's financial need is met by financial aid. After the freshman year the amount is adjusted annually to meet the current need. Circumstances may indicate a change to a greater or lesser amount of aid, or it may remain the same. However, every student who applies for financial aid and needs it, receives it. There are few colleges in the country that can make that statement. The only requirement is that the student is expected to do the best she can in her academic work and in her job performance."]

In looking to the future, Evie Lewis hopes for complete autonomy in the area of social rules; greater student participation in college governing; and greater student interest in their academic powers." It is only fair to state that the number involved in CCG and in faculty-student committees is only a small segment of the student body. The activists are few in number. The majority of students continue to air their complaints (via the Student Opinion Board, THE ARROW, or just general griping), but they do not take an active role in college affairs.

Ask a student a question about the curriculum and you will be deluged with suggestions, criticisms, opinions. Unquestionably, the Basic Curriculum is due for study. In 1963 several changes were made in area requirements: twelve hours of course work required in the Social Sciences, twelve hours in the Natural Sciences, and fifteen hours in the Humanities (thus reducing the Arts Course to three semesters in an effort to step up the content). Aside from these and some individual course changes, no major revisions have occurred in the Basic Curriculum since it was instituted in 1946. The Curriculum Committee has given this subject high priority on its current agenda.

Students have suggested such changes as the dropping of the speech requirement aside from remedial work when necessary; the inauguration of the Arts Course in the freshman year; greater uniformity among departments in tutorial requirements; and changing to a pass-fail system in physical education, and possibly in Basic Curriculum courses, so that these grades will not be part of the cumulative average (one faculty member commented that Chatham students are "too grade-conscious").

The Arts Course drew both high praise and condemnation. Dr. Eldredge confessed that it was "one of the strongest drawing cards of the College to me." Two members of the senior class described it as being the most important course they have studied at Chatham, but that there was a great disparity among students in preparation for it. Many students expressed a preference for taking a course in one of the arts, thus permitting far greater depth in study.

The tutorial continues to be a controversial favorite. Dr. Eldredge explained that the English department is trying a new approach by offering a series of seminars leading into the tutorial, described in the college catalog as "advanced, largely independent studies in particular problems in literature . . . open to qualified junior and senior majors only."

Dr. Morrill commented that he would like to see Pittsburgh used as a "laboratory" for some courses, an idea that was echoed by students, particularly those interested in education and political science.

When the subject of social regulations is raised, a discussion of the Honor System is bound to follow. Both faculty and students, with perhaps one exception, wholeheartedly endorsed the system in the academic area. Rita Ellovich described the social area, with which she is directly concerned, as "somewhat gray," a problem of some year's standing. In an effort to bring some sort of order to the current confusion, the Honor Board published the following statement at the opening of the fall semester:

If the girl has broken a rule which the student body, through Honor Board and other due process, has recently tried to change, and, if that rule still exists in spite of the attempt to change it, then there is no obligation to report the girl, or for her to report herself.

The above process insures that rules under the Honor System are not haphazardly changed; yet the process further confirms the Honor System as a flexible code having as its base the definition of an Honor offense as an offense against the generally accepted norms of behavior of the Chatham College community.

Both Risa and Cathy O'Daniel expressed themselves very freely on the current college issues. Cathy put it, "Certainly one of the most explosive issues this year is the statement prepared by student officers that students are to be viewed as mature adults." These girls have found the faculty to be "academically approachable" at any time, and very cooperative to work with on joint committees. "On the Curriculum Committee," Risa commented, "we don't line up as students versus faculty members. In any instance, there will be representatives of each group on opposing sides of a question."

Cheryl Olkes praised the open-door policy of Chatham faculty. Generally, every student who was interviewed felt that this outstanding attribute of Chatham—the warm faculty-student relationship—was still very much in practice.

Cheryl, an attractive and very vocal student leader, said that the tutorial program was her main reason for coming to Chatham, although she would prefer to see an Honors Program in its stead. She is an active student, carrying five courses, working twenty hours a week on THE ARROW and nine hours as student assistant in the Public Relations office. Her editorials have shown an incisiveness often lacking in student writing. THE ARROW has termed this "Fight Year," and the students give the impression that they will stick firmly to their convictions.

There is a strong movement afoot for a closer relationship with other local institutions of higher learning. Certainly a common callendar would facilitate the matter of cross-registration for courses.

Mr. Nimick, speaking from the point of view of a Trustee, stated that an inventory is being made of possible areas where joint efforts can be made by all of the colleges. Many students are eager to have the opportunity to enroll at the other local institutions in courses not available at Chatham.

A workable library system embracing the five schools is not too far away. Every student interviewed mentioned the great need for this, suffering, as they all do, from the inadequacies of the present Library, and waiting, not too patiently, for the new Library to be constructed.

And what of co-education? At least some members of the faculty and administration seem to favor the idea. The problems of the small, women's, liberal arts college in today's world of complex universities are manifold. "We must look at it," explained Mr. Nimick. "Small colleges are having difficulties throughout the country. Enrollment is dropping off. Perhaps co-education can solve some of these difficulties. We are not going to jump into it, but we are going to examine it from every angle."

"The real validity of Chatham," Dr. Eddy feels, "lies in its relationship to the city. This is where its 'uniqueness' can be found. There are other small women's colleges. There are other excellent liberal arts schools. There are almost none that pair these qualities and can match Chatham's location."

Oddly enough, it is the students who are the most questioning about the advisability of co-education. These are a few typical remarks:

"I specifically wanted a women's college. I did not want to compete with men in the classroom."

"Last summer I was at Penn Summer School. The girls there were afraid to express themselves in the classroom and constantly took on the menial jobs in any student project. I didn't like the situation. I'm very glad I came to Chatham."

"I'm on the fence about it. While I feel it's easier to become involved in student affairs at a women's college, the separation of the academic and social atmosphere is not wholly normal."

Undoubtedly, the next few years will see many changes other than the decision for or against co-education. Students have shown that they can take an active, responsible role in college government, and, consequently, that role probably will become increasingly significant. There will be changes in the curriculum, perhaps primarily ones that will free the student from too many requirements, thus allowing greater latitude in choosing courses in particular disciplines as well as more electives. Cross-registration, now a strong possibility, may offer one solution to the problem of attrition, one that is assuming somewhat large proportions among women's colleges today.

The students have come a long way in advancing social regulations, and, in the not too far future, it is quite possible that they will control all of the decisions in this area. They are aware that in so doing the College will surrender its role "in loco parentis," and this will present the student with new problems. They are ready to accept the challenge.

This is the way it is at Chatham today. The students, like their counterparts across the country and the world, are active, articulate, and proving themselves to be mature adults. Unlike some of their fellow students, they have elected to move through existing channels. They are in revolt, but it is a bloodless rebellion.

As those familiar words go, they are "shaping their lives to be mansions of beauty to endure"—beauty as they see it.

VOICES bring action

If it is important to relate what is being said on campus, it is even more essential to report on the progress being made in answer to what the VOICES are saying. The "seeking" is resulting in action, and perhaps through it the Chatham Community will be "building dreams anew."

Juniors Win Key Privileges

For the past two years members of the senior class have enjoyed the privileges of a system of keys to residence halls in which all curfew hours are waived. Under the rules of the system a key, when used, must be signed out for each occasion and returned the next morning. Registration of a destination where the student can be reached is mandatory for all sign-outs. Parental permission is required in which the parents agree that the student "uses her own discretion on all occasions and for all conditions pertaining to her over-night absences." The key system has proved effective and satisfactory for seniors.

On January 31, 1969, after a semester of careful consideration by the members of the ad hoc committee on social regulations (composed of faculty members, two trustees, an alumna—Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort '34—students and two Deans), the announcement was made granting a similar system of keys to members of the junior class. It became a reality after parental permission had been assured and the problem of locks and security for individual dormitories had been worked out.

Cross-College Registration

The Pittsburgh Council on Higher Education, of which President Eddy is chairman, announced in February a new plan for cross-college registration among the five member institutions—Carlow College (formerly Mount Mercy College), Carnegie-Mellon University, Chatham College, Duquesne University, and the University of Pittsburgh.

In making the announcement at a news conference, President Eddy said, "The new program will not only make it possible for the sharing of the City's vast educational resources, but for the further development of Pittsburgh as a major center of higher education in the nation." Hopefully the program will lead to academic enrichment, and better use of faculty time and physical resources among the five schools.

Under the experimental program, which will begin in September 1969, a junior or senior full-time student at any of the participating schools will be allowed to enroll in one course outside his own institution during one term or semester. Certain necessary guidelines will be in effect, and in each case of cross-registration the approval of the dean or the student's advisor must be obtained prior to registration.

New Calendar for 1969-70

One of the major concerns of the students has been a revision of the college calendar. A minor change was made several years ago when provision was made to complete course work before the Christmas holiday, but study week and exams were still scheduled in January after vacation.

By action of the faculty at a special meeting on February 19, a new calendar for 1969-70 was adopted.

Fall Semester		Spring Semester
Freshmen arrive	Aug. 31	Classes begin	Jan. 19
Registration	Sept. 3, 4	Spring vacation	Mar. 13 to Mar. 30
Classes begin	Sept. 5, 6	End of classes	May 6
Thanksgiving vacation	Nov. 26 to Dec. 1	Study period	May 7-11
End of classes	Dec. 10	Final exams	May 12-20
Study period	Dec. 10-14	Commencement	May 24
Final exams	Dec. 15-20

This calendar, which puts Chatham on approximately the same schedule as the other four colleges, is expected to facilitate cross-registration. Also, it fulfills the urgent desire on the part of the students for finals-before-Christmas.

Curriculum Revision

While each of the foregoing decisions—junior keys, cross-college registration, new calendar—required careful and detailed consideration, the question of curriculum revision is one which cannot be quickly or easily resolved. However, the wheels have been set in motion and the preliminary steps have been taken to implement the work to be done.

Following a report by Dean Hotchkiss to the Board of Trustees in February, the Trustees passed the following resolution: "Resolved that the Board of Trustees welcomes the proposal of the curriculum committee to examine the Chatham curriculum and degree requirements and to recommend major changes it may find desirable. The Trustees recognize the basic importance of a strong and viable curriculum to a strong and viable college. The Trustees pledge their support to the efforts of the curriculum committee and the faculty in this direction. The Trustees hope that this review may be completed early in the fall term of 1969."

This resolution prepared the way for the passing of a three-part motion at the March faculty meeting:

1. That the faculty support a study of the curriculum of the College, leading to a redefinition of its goals, a restatement or reaffirmation of graduation requirements, and, if appropriate, a restructuring of its content.
2. That this study be undertaken by an ad hoc committee of the faculty; the President's advisory committee, meeting with its student members, is requested to make recommendations concerning structure and membership of this committee at the next (April) meeting of the faculty.
3. That the administration of the College be urged to provide financial support for the study, as requested by the ad hoc committee.

The Tutorial Question

"If 1969-70 is the year of the Great Experiment, let's make it the GREAT Experiment. The new calendar, cross-registration, and impending curricular revision promise a transfusion of positive academic blood into the community. It is time to do something about the eternal victim of pernicious anemia, the tutorial." These words from an editorial in the February 28 issue of The ARROW express rather pointedly the general feeling of the students about the tutorial.

A petition, signed by two-thirds of the members of the present junior class and presented at the March faculty meeting, requested the faculty to adopt an experimental program of options to the tutorial for the academic year 1969-70. President Eddy, in urging the faculty to give the petition very serious consideration, said that the students, in questioning the value and necessity of the tutorial in its present form, were motivated by a genuine concern to get the most out of the educational experience.

The matter rests here for the moment. In all probability, according to Dean Hotchkiss, the tutorial committee will make some suggestions for revisions for 1969-70, and these will constitute an important item for discussion by the ad hoc committee as it studies the whole curriculum.

Pass-Fail Option

The primary purpose of a pass-fail system is to permit full-time students to engage in courses of value to their academic programs, but for which the grading system has acted as a deterrent to participation.

Chatham students may elect one course each semester under the pass-fail option. It is not applicable to courses taken to fulfill the basic curriculum, junior or senior level Education courses, or courses taken by juniors and seniors in their major subject.

The usual prerequisites or other requirements of entrance into a class continue in effect, and students are expected to meet all course requirements including attendance, papers and examinations. Once a course has been declared as pass-fail no change is permitted.

Opportunities for Volunteer Tutors

In every urban area there are many high school students who are in need of help to prepare for college entrance. And, in every urban community there are college graduates who are well qualified to give that help through individual or group tutoring. Getting the two together seems to be the major problem.

In Pittsburgh, the thirty member colleges of the Women's Alumnae Club Council are attempting to do something about this problem by recruiting volunteers for two types of tutoring at the high school level.

The first, a program in academic subjects, uses the facilities of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church and is approved by the Pittsburgh Board of Education. Classes meet for 2-hour sessions on Monday and Thursday nights during the school year.

A second option is to tutor potential college women from ghetto area high schools who are not sufficiently prepared for college work on a one-to-one basis. Arrangements for getting student and tutor together at a convenient time and place are handled individually.

At the kindergarten and elementary level another program is offered in Pittsburgh and in a number of other metropolitan areas. The School Volunteer Association, a fully accredited national organization, works through the public schools. The Association offers training sessions for the volunteer who is usually assigned to a school in her own area. A volunteer works during the school hours, guarantees a minimum of two hours per week, and assists the regular teacher in academic subjects as well as in music, art, library and recreation.

The Chatham Alumnae Association, as a member of the Women's Alumnae Club Council, suggests that any one of these services could provide a tremendously rewarding type of volunteer work for alumnae in the Pittsburgh area. To volunteer, or to request further information, call or write to WACC TUTORING PROJECTS COORDINATOR, Mrs. Allan Brodsky, 2716 Clare Street, Glenshaw, PA 15116 (Telephone: 486-0774). Mrs. Brodsky is a member of the Beaver College Alumnae Club. OR, call Mrs. Swisshelm in the Chatham Alumnae Office (441-8200, ext. 216).

Although the above information is specifically for alumnae in the Pittsburgh area, there are similar opportunities in every city. Consult the telephone directory for the School Volunteer Association. Consult the local school board about individual tutoring programs. This is a volunteer service in which some Chatham alumnae are already involved. Many more are needed.

Fall Honors Lists Include Alumnae Relatives

Five alumnae daughters are among the students whose names were announced by Dean Eugene Hotchkiss when the Honors and Dean's Lists for the first semester were released in February.

Seniors Sally Burkhardt and Ann Turnock achieved Honors and the Dean's List. They are the daughters of Claire Stewart Burkhardt '42, and Ann McClymonds Turnock '44, both of Pittsburgh. On the senior Dean's List are Andrea Dubs, whose mother is Carla Gregson Dubs '45, of New Canaan, Connecticut, and Lynne Osterloh, granddaughter of Emma Geiselhart Osterloh '13, both of Pittsburgh. Sally Burkhardt also has won an honorable mention in the annual competition conducted by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation to find the best future college teachers in the United States and Canada.

Janet Christie, on the junior class Dean's List, is from a real Chatham family—mother, Marian Lean Christie '46; grandmother, Mary Tipper Lean, Special '16-'18, both of Northfield, Illinois; and aunt, Louise Lean Fontaine '40, of Washington, D.C.

In the sophomore class Diane Berman, daughter of Martha Yorkin Berman '47, of Washington, Pennsylvania, achieved High Honors and the Dean's List.

Two Alumnae Scholars also appear on the lists: senior Jennifer Gearhart on the Dean's List, and junior Sally Marks on the High Honors and Dean's Lists. Sally is a grandniece of Dean Emeritus Mary Helen Marks. And Director of Alumnae Affairs Ruth Swisshelm is proud of her cousin-by-marriage, Beverly Swisshelm, who is on the sophomore Honors and Dean's Lists.

100 : 1869-1969

On December 11, 1969, Chatham College will reach a significant milestone—a 100th birthday. One hundred years of life is a noble achievement for any institution, particularly if it has lived those years in true dedication to its purpose for being. Certainly Chatham can claim that distinction.

As a college of liberal arts, it has from its beginning been concerned with preparing young women to meet the varying circumstances of life with a fund of useful knowledge, with a clear and discriminating understanding, and with a readiness to adjust and act responsibly. (Quoted from the college catalog.)

Birthdays usually are celebrated with parties—gala, expensive affairs that are over in a few short hours and very soon forgotten. The Chatham Centennial Commission, the committee charged with the responsibility of planning the birthday observance, has taken that responsibility very seriously, and, after careful consideration of many suggestions, has reached a decision. The Chatham Centennial is to be a projection into the second hundred years. What better time to evaluate its mission in higher education? What more appropriate time to plan for its future?

The major events marking the anniversary will take place next fall. There will be guest speakers, exhibitions including an alumnae art show, musical and dramatic productions, and an all-college open house for alumnae, friends of the College, and the community. Perhaps the most significant event for this "look-ahead" year will be the groundbreaking for the new buildings—the Jennie King Mellon Library, the student-faculty center, and the lecture hall—little theater.

The alumnae birthday celebration will begin on Reunion Day, June 7. Here, too, the program will take the forward look, but there will be plenty of time for reminiscing. After all, that's what reunions are for.

If present plans become reality in the fall, the annual Alumnae Council will be extended from its usual one day program to two or three days, and will be an open meeting to all alumnae.

Come to Chatham on Alumnae Day, June 7, and help to start the celebration. Full information about the fall program will be forthcoming as soon as all details are complete.

HUNDREDS seek HUNDREDS for the HUNDREDTH

The Alumnae Division of the Centennial Fund is holding its own. In fact, if the response in money equals the magnificent efforts of our many volunteers, this capital fund campaign will surely surpass its goal of $150,000. We'd like to name a few of the women who are in charge of the geographic campaigns now in progress across the country.

Our Allegheny County chairman, Amy McKay Core, '43, has 194 volunteers to keep her busy.

In the Boston metropolitan area, Joan Anderson Booth '59, is serving as chairman. She has 15 alumnae working with her.

Joan Swannie Ruch, '49, is heading up a group of four loyal Chathamites who are working in the Buffalo area.

In the Chicago Club area, Mary Loughran Fell, '62, is the very fine chairman for 18 solicitors.

Eleanore Luthringer Mattson, '49, president of the Cleveland Club, is responsible for 13 hard-working volunteers.

Long Island has been organized by Eleanor Goldfarb

The Association has a membership of 109. Of these, 31 are married. There have been six deaths: one from Class of '74, two from '76, two from '77, and one from '82. There are thirty grandchildren claiming the protection of the P. F. C.

After you have read my columns,
Linger just a little while,
Unto me you owe a debt now.
Many are the friends you loved,
Named upon my pages here.
Are you glad to learn their doings,
Even if but once a year?

Round our Alma Mater gathering,
Every one should promise here,
Contributions brief or lengthy,
On my pages to appear.
Read by sisters that are absent,
Doubly dear your words will seem,
Every line will bring a memory,
Rescued from life's rushing stream.

looking back . . .

As the College prepares to observe the Centennial Year by evaluating its present and future mission in higher education, the Recorder takes one brief, backward glance to its inauguration in 1883—eighty-six years of continuous publication, one of the oldest alumnae magazines in the country. The masthead, poem, and text are from Vol. 1, No. 1.

"Every editor of a newspaper pays tribute to the devil."—La Fontaine.

Since the history of Eve was written, down to the present time when Henry James, Jr., writes such disparaging things about our sex, various have been the opinions expressed by men with regard to woman. Shakespeare says "Frailty, thy name is woman," and Milton calls her "Fairest of creation." To all these agreeable things we assent; as to our follies, we own to them also, but there is good reason for their existence, for some one in Adam Bede says, "I'm not denyin' women are foolish; God Almighty made 'em to match the men." But when they say women have no business ability, we rebel; and we graduates of the P. F. C. are going to prove it as far as we are concerned by publishing a real newspaper.

The main object of this paper is to create more interest in the Alumnae Association. But why is there such a lack of interest? The place where we have spent so many happy days, formed warm friendships, and acquired such stores of knowledge, should be dear to us, and when we have the opportunity once a year of meeting these friends, talking over old times and airing our knowledge, we should avail ourselves of it. But how many do?

There are over one hundred names on our roll, and though two-thirds of these live in Pittsburgh or within a few hours of it, still we seldom have more than one-fourth the number present, and each year the meetings grow "smaller and beautifully less." To those who say the meetings are dull and uninteresting, we say, come and help make them more entertaining. To be sure, "the feast of reason and the flow of soul" is not such as would be expected from a learned body of men, yet is as well, for we are safe from all danger of mental indigestion.

There is another way by which we can show our interest in the Association, for if this paper meets with your favor and is continued another year, we beg you will cooperate with, and aid our successors in their difficult task. If you are asked to write something, do so; anything will be acceptable, a letter or poem, or article on any subject —

"The meaning doesn't matter, if its only idle clatter
Of a transcendental kind."—

And now, with greeting to each alumna, and best wishes to the Class of '83, the RECORDER comes to you, asking indulgence for all faults, and promising, with your aid, to be better in the future. The printing of this paper cost fifteen dollars, and all incidental expenses, such as sending the notices, are borne by the persons sending them. We do therefore beg, if this paper has been of any interest to you, has recalled old college days, and classmates dear, you will help to swell its columns and defray its expenses.

Sara Carpenter is busy caring for her invalid sister, and Belle McClymonds Marshall lives quietly in Negley House.

No news came from Rachel McQuiston Kelly or Maggie Mae McCullough Huffman at this time, but Maggie Mae visited Pittsburgh at Thanksgiving.

Edna Reitz attended Alumnae Council in October, and later made some contacts for the Centennial Fund. It is interesting to follow another in the series of changes in which we have had a part.

Faye Atkinson McCune and her husband have both had operations in the past year and Mr. McCune was to have a corneal transplant late in February. Faye mentioned that her sister Merle, whom I am sure we all remember, lost her husband last September.

Lucile Atkinson Baker continues to keep very busy and says her travels nowadays are all in imagination and memory. She speaks of P. C. W. May Days, plays, etc., and comments on how quiet it was in those days with no airplanes and few cars.

Helen Blair Baumann's reply to my request for news took the form of a nice chatty phone call. She said I should just report for her that the "needle is stuck"—as her activities remain the same, church, College Club, Decade V, and lectures at Carnegie Institute. Your may be sure that Helen enjoys them all.

The trip to Pittsburgh to which Christine Cameron Bryan was looking forward when I wrote last spring did materialize and she and Betty Frank met Jeanne, Helen, Laila, and me downtown for lunch. It was great fun to be together. Christine had had a phone conversation with Grace Wilson just before she wrote me.

Laila Clark Ament continues with her usual activities. She reports that her auntie, Mrs. Dilley, is quite well and looking forward to her 105th birthday in May. I'm sure we shall all be wishing Mrs. Dilley a happy birthday.

a very definite taste of winter. She had to be pulled out of the ditch twice. So far Helen was succeeding in avoiding last year's history of broken bones. She is contemplating a trip later in the year.

The note that came from Elizabeth Donebo Stoltz was written from their home in Bradford, Ohio and not, as is usually the case, from California. Due to an operation which Mr. Stoltz had, the departure for California had been delayed, but they were just about to go, and Elizabeth was counting on the desert sunshine to benefit her husband.

It was good to learn that Louise Fletcher had been able to get back to Sarasota for the winter. She is grateful to have escaped the cold weather. Louise enjoys the meetings and study groups of the A.A.U.W. and speaks again of her pleasant contacts there with Mrs. Hinckley and Dolor Steinecke who are both graduates of Chatham. She also finds Chautauqua friends in Sarasota.

It is interesting to hear from Emma Geiselhart Osterloh that her granddaughter, Lynne, will graduate from Chatham this spring. Emma also reports that her grandson Bob is now in Vietnam.

Jeanne Gray Orcutt has thirteen grandchildren and their visits are a joy to her. She says they come to her nowadays instead of her going to visit all of them. Jeanne had one piece of bad luck this past year in having burglars get into her house while she was out of town.

For the sixteenth winter Sylvia Wayman Gotham returned to Fort Lauderdale with her brother Marc. They love the life there, the warm weather there and when Sylvia wrote they were planning to go on a cruise. Sylvia has given up her apartment in Cleveland and hopes to get another in the same building and on the same floor where her brother's apartment is. She hopes any of us go to Fort Lauderdale we will get in touch with her. The phone number is 566-7575 but unlisted, as they get their calls through the switchboard. Sylvia sends her love to all.

Mildred Weston Rogers wrote from Galitzin having just returned from New England. She and her husband have not been out of the U.S.A. since they came back from London in January of last year. Mr. Rogers' book, "Ladies Bountiful," came out in London last September and received a lot of newspaper coverage, the best of which Mildred says was a long appraisal in the Literary Supplement of the London Times. Mildred herself is still getting recognition for her poems. This year they have appeared in two new anthologies, "On City Streets" published by M. Evans and Company of New York and "Impact" whose publisher is M. Dent and Sons of Toronto. One sentence in Mildred's letter appealed to me as being applicable to most of us: "It seems as if we are always too busy to tell how busy we are!"

From Grace Wilson comes a statement which covers her activities when she says, "The aged are helping the aged!" In other words Grace is still doing volunteer work at the Brooklyn Hospital and at the Y.W.C.A. And we can be sure that what Grace does, she is doing well.

Martha Young McKeon reports that life in her family circle is routine "except for assorted colds and two broken limbs among the grandsons." She repeats her cordial invitation to all of us to come to see her in Toronto.

This secretary of yours did a bit of visiting here and there last spring and summer, but otherwise has been doing the usual things in Sewickley. Laila and I enjoyed being at Chatham for part of Alumnae Council Day in October.

NEW ADDRESS

Olga E. Losa, 136 Centennial Ave., Apt. 104 Normandy, Sewickley, Pa. 15143

Mary Ruth Jeffrey's chief writing endeavor this past year was the compilation of the history of the last ten years of the College Club for its sixtieth anniversary celebration last October. This combined with the history of the first fifty years was printed in a very attractive volume.

Olga Losa took four young grand nieces to Ocean City for a week and had an enjoyable time. She also made a memorable visit to historic New Castle, Delaware.

Betty Cameron Frank is justly proud of her grandson, who is a student at Yale, having been honored by a four-year National Honor Scholarship. Betty expects to sell her house soon and move into an apartment.

Mary Estep Starr and family spent a pleasant month in Chautauqua. We are happy to report that Mary is making a fine recovery from a fractured hip.

I am sorry that your secretary has nothing interesting to report.

NEW ADDRESSES

Agnes Dorman Walling, (Mrs. Arthur), Pennsylvania Hotel, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33731

Martha Dunbar Say (Mrs. D. L.), 330 South Cypress Street, Virginia Apt. 610, Pompano Beach, Fla. 33060 (Winter address)

Edna Evans Peterson (Mrs. Charles A.), 763 Cabin Hill Drive, Greensburg, Pa. 15601

Well here we are again, now facing that 75th birthday or looking back at it. Can you believe it? And yet the letters come in telling about cruises, journeys east and west, or north and south, or even all around the circuit of our country. New grandchildren appear and older ones get married. Each of us has some mal-functioning part that causes aches and pains or loss of mobility or even, sadder perhaps, a restricted diet. So we can all sympathize with each other and keep on traveling.

Leah Claster writes from Pittsburgh that she hopes for an opportunity to be with members of the class at a future reunion.

Martha Crandall Noyes reports a Caribbean cruise and two weeks in Florida. She and Charles also attended a Daedalion convention of World War I fliers. Since this was in Dayton, Ohio she had a visit with Pauline McCaw Patterson, and also with their son Jim and four grandsons. Then with daughter Martha they had a tour through the beautiful lake district of Wisconsin.

Martha Dunbar Say still calls Chautauqua home, but during this winter Dr. Say is still Visitation Minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Fort Lauderdale. She reports the arrival of a grandson in the Pietz home in Saginaw, Michigan.

Edna Evans Peterson cherishes fond memories of her associations with College alumnae when she lived in Pittsburgh. Now she devotes her time to the care of her sister Margie, who is helpless. Together they have a pleasant apartment, and kind friends are nearby.

Ruth Gokey Walters reports a healthful and happy year. We associate Ruth with Jamestown and the Lake, but she seems to flit in and out of Ridgewood, New Jersey. As a family party they went to the Bahamas for a Phi Gam convention. In the Christmas season two grandsons were married, at which time they had a brief reunion with another grandson, a Navy brother from Vietnam.

Katharine Keck Van Kirk says she has traveled the deepest valley with the death of her husband, Scott, in March. And yet she has realized the immeasurable satisfaction of the love and loyalty of sons and daughters and their children. Two sons are physicians, in Pittsburgh and Chambersburg. One daughter lives in Pittsburgh, and one in Youngwood. There are fourteen grandchildren. Kay lives in West Newton, and would enjoy a visit from any alumna.

Betty McClelland Crauford has had a somewhat strenuous year with a wedding, and also family gatherings in her apartment. Moreover she has been President of Decade V Club, and I heard tell that she looked very pretty, presiding.

Helen Pardee Nichol found it wise to live the life of a lady, taking things more slowly while visiting her daughter. Helen eats to gain weight, not to lose it. Graduations of grandsons, and the wedding of one contributed to grandmotherly pleasure.

Louise Reinecke Thorne spent the early months of the year in England with the Kings; summer in Happy Holler, surrounded by children. Later she visited Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and Cleveland, Ohio. She sort of resolved to settle down at home in 1969, but now it is California in January and Texas in February. For April Fool's Day she will stay at home, maybe.

Dorothy Stoeber Markell's beloved young people are in Michigan, successful in school and sports. One of them, at least, looks down on her from six feet, five. Dot says they are such nice kids. Somewhat later than the birds she and George took off for Florida after some rather crowded days of sewing, visiting and parties.

Miss White's letter expresses great appreciation for the messages she has received from the Class of 1917. She also congratulates us all for the growth and success of the College.

Your secretary went into retirement but she came right out again. Temporarily, at least, she is back at her old position as head of the Public Library of West Chester, the county seat of Chester County, Pa. Her work is probably as interesting as any work can be, in the midst of books on all sorts of subjects and of all eras. Interesting names of this vicinity are the Brandywine, Valley Forge, the Wyeths, three generations, Longwood Gardens and Winterthur Museum.

Margaret Brand writes from California that she has no special news. She broke her hip several years ago and must still use a cane. Though she will not be able to come to our reunion she sends greetings to all classmates of 1919.

At long last, word from Marg Hamilton Chick. She is busy taking vitamin pills to keep up with seven grandchildren, and is sorry she hasn't been on some sort of space flight to lend glamour to 1919. Sounds like the Marg of old college days!

Martha Brownlee Bovard's life has been made more interesting by her daughter Janet's family being stationed in Washington. Brownie has a great-grandchild and hopes to have pictures to show in June. As I recall, Brownie had our class baby and now our first great-grandchild.

Viola Cox still enjoys a busy life in Santa Barbara which she calls the perfect retirement spot—near perfect climate, a beautiful beach (?), and an all-year-round resort city. Vi is president of the Vista del Monte Association and at work on a rummage sale.

Marjorie Errett is also enjoying her retirement and her new house in the pine woods of Bethany Beach. The latch is out to her friends. She and Brownie hope to drive to Pittsburgh in June.

Mary Crauford, while ill this winter, entertained herself by reading Rachel Carson's "soul-satisfying books." Mary has been coming quite often to our Decade V meetings.

Marjorie Barron McKelvey reports two new grandsons, making a grand total of eleven grandchildren. She and Paul are still holding down the same old corner at Perry and Vine Streets, and Paul is still practicing, sharing an office with Paul, Jr. She hopes to be here for our 50th.

Betty Stevenson Porter is sorry she cannot come for our reunion in June. She enjoys life in Florida and is happy to have a daughter and family near by.

Rachel Buck Reinken was about to leave for Florida when she sent her card. She hopes to see us all in June. She went to her husband's reunion at Annapolis last year so plans to bring him to hers. Hope there are other husbands who will come, too.

Gus Rogers leads a busy life in Paris, Kentucky. Though she reports no special news, she finds much to occupy her time. She has many friends, a large family of cousins, and her hobbies of sports, bridge, music, stamp collecting, etc.

Varleska Jarecki Whiting comments that our anniversary has crept up very quietly. She looked forward to a visit from Brownie and Marjorie in March, and wishes some other "old girls" would look her up when in Florida.

Margaret Workman Witherspoon gladly gave up retirement to work in the office of the Brooklyn Rotary Club. New York, for her, is still "unbearably exciting."

Here in Pittsburgh, Henrietta Leopold, Floss Farr Betz, Helen Bell Frost and I all seem to keep busy at work and play. We meet occasionally at Decade. And a few last words—"Don't forget our 50th Reunion. Remember:

"Let tempus fugit.
To us that will mean
We're all just 1919."

NEW ADDRESS

Margaret Wills Dodds (Mrs. Archie),
1139 Indiana Avenue, Cape May, N.J.

Edith Honsaker Schumacher and her husband were already at Oceanside, Cal. for the winter when she returned her card. Her son-in-law has received his Ph.D. and is teaching at Marquette University, Wisconsin.

Florence Fast McIntyre visited her daughter at the Plattsburg A.F.B. and took a trip through New England. The death of both her brothers within a year has been a great loss and our sympathy goes out to her. To Elizabeth Murphy Walter, also, whose older brother died in January. Liz was planning to go with her husband to Florida for the late winter.

Edith Pew and Stella Espy went to New York with the College Club theater trip group, and Edith is attending lectures at Pitt.

Mary Reed Reeves enjoyed an Hawaiian tour last fall. She is very proud of her son who has received his Doctor of Law degree. Her four grandchildren now include a little namesake.

The card of Wilma Davis Kennedy last year was returned much too late to be included (as will yours unless I get it by the middle of February—office ruling, not mine). She was just leaving on a Mediterranean cruise which would include extended travel through Spain and Portugal.

The death of the mother of Helen Treloar McGarrity in January marks the passing of the last parent of any of our class and we all join in extending our sympathy to Helen.

Mabel, Ella, Ada Lou, Marcella Geary and Lucille all reported themselves busy but with no special news.

NEW ADDRESS

Margaret Foster Bergstrom (Mrs. Edward W.), 25 S.E. 13th Street, Boca Raton, Fla. 33432

DEATH

Laura Morris Furman, December 1966.

We were saddened to learn at Reunion that Laura had died but we had no definite information. Since then Catherine Sayers, '26, has informed me that she died in Florida after an illness of several months. To her daughter, son and sister, the class extends its belated sympathy.

1968 was a sad year for Dorothy McCormick Means, Marion Rainey Johnston and Lillian Silverman Berkman who lost their husbands. The class extends their deepest sympathy.

Harriette Bowers Sime, who has done graduate work at twelve universities since her master's, is active and on the go including a trip to the Virgin Islands at Thanksgiving. Her sad news was the death of her wonderful mother.

Jean Bumgarner keeps light-hearted in spite of having to use a cane, a different one to suit the occasion. She is president of the Petal and Twig Garden Club, attends the Town Hall Series in Fox Chapel, and is a member of the College Club where she offers to sponsor a class reunion luncheon. She and Louise make pilgrimages to the shore spring and fall where they see Justine Kress Kreps.

Josephine Dickey is delighted to keep occupied on a semi-retired basis. She attends alumnae meetings in New York and wonders how long Chatham will continue without becoming co-ed.

Margaret Foster Bergstrom and Ed have happily exchanged New York City living for the serenity of Boca Raton, Florida and will be glad to see anyone coming their way.

Marjorie Garner Schmeltz and Marion Rainey Johnston sent letters of appreciation last summer for the Reunion letter. Martha Leslie Stewart sent a card from the Poconos.

Lyda Hamilton says she is just doing the usual things that a busy retiree does. She and her two sisters enjoy country living.

Helen Kutscher Petty and Hiram are still living active lives but expect to retire the end of this year. Helen has enjoyed teaching for eighteen years but says it is a challenge to-day. Hiram retired from active General Practice eleven years ago to become Ashland City County Health Commissioner. They have three daughters, two sons-in-law who are Air Force Majors, and six grandchildren. Janet, Chatham '47, with her husband, an engineer with I.B.M., and three children live in Boulder, Colorado.

Elizabeth Mason Richards reports no retirement for Stan and herself. She is concentrating on work as a Deaconess and gives book reviews. Their two children travel a lot in connection with their work. Caroline, who is executive secretary for Dean Ford of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at Harvard, is at present on a three months leave of absence in India with Experiment in International Living.

Julia Matthews Kirk says life goes on too quickly but stays interesting in Holiday, Florida. She sends greetings and best wishes to all the class and promises to come to our fiftieth reunion.

Dorothy McCormick Means with Eliza enjoyed representing our class at the Fall Alumnae Council Meeting.

Helen McKenzie Jamison and John left Chicago in 1961 and retired to a ninety-five acre farm fourteen miles from Asheville, North Carolina. They are blessed with three married daughters, ten grandchildren, excellent health, and enjoy horseback riding, golf and garden.

Martha McKibbin Tatnall and Tom could hardly wait to get to Water Isle in the Virgin Islands to soak up the sun after a nasty bout with the flu at Christmas.

Mary McKinney Wilson enjoys living in Gateway Towers for convenience and the interesting view of river traffic on the Allegheny. In October she drove to New Hampshire and Vermont with a friend.

Margaret McRoberts Egbert proudly announces the arrival of a new granddaughter, Jennifer.

Marion Moffet Barnes and her husband have decided to keep on the go as long as they are able. At present they are on the West Coast. Their two sons and families live near in Sewickley.

Marie Ohle Craig, now a public spirited citizen of Phoenix, Arizona, has four times to travel to Mexico, and had a delightful tour in October to Denmark, Portugal, Spain and England with a congenial party of five.

Marjorie Patterson Kaiser and Carl completed a trip around the world in September following a year's residence on the Island of Malta. Carl received a Fulbright award from the United States government as Visiting Lecturer in Economics at the Royal University. Lack of space forbids description of an unusual trip to out of the way places partly spent visiting professors and students in Kabul, India and Japan. Having tea with the Moslem President, an audience with Mrs. Indira Ghandi, and meeting American Ambassador Chester Bowles were highlight experiences in India. Unexpected thrills included flying down the Mekong River over South Vietnam at tree-top level due to a typhoon on the China Sea, followed by a forced landing in Canton, China, where they were subjected to gunpoint surveillance of Communist guards for twelve hours with no food or water and much propagandizing. After spending thirteen months near Pammunjon, Korea, their son Bill, an Army doctor, and his wife, a Red Cross nurse, returned to the United States. Bill began residency in General Surgery in Boston City Hospital and Mary is on the staff of Children's Hospital. At Reunion Marjorie wrote and invited any of the class to visit them in Kingston, Rhode Island and go sailing.

Eliza Peterson says she gives most of her time to the Library and Historical Society in Ligonier. Her help to me has been invaluable.

Helen Sapper Rider takes family pride and finds life full supervising her farm. For the information of those who attended Reunion Matilda had her calf, a heifer, in September so Helen is in business.

Louise Wilson Matthews and her husband are in the process of selling their home of thirty-one years and trying to decide where to retire. They hate to leave their friends and year-old granddaughter in Cincinnati.

My son-in-law, Bard Thompson, has been appointed Dean of the Graduate School at Drew University. I was so happy Dorothy and Eliza could visit me over night the end of August. There is an open invitation to all the class to do the same. Your cooperation has made the office of class secretary a real joy.

NEW ADDRESS

Elizabeth Stevenson McQuiston (Mrs. W. Bryce), 2506 Hollywood Drive, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15235

DEATH

Miriam Buchanan Canfield, December 24, 1968

Helen Ahlers Patton and John have both enjoyed good health this year, and are looking forward to the summer at their mountain home in Deep Creek, Maryland.

Elizabeth Archibald Andruss and her husband have built a home in Bloomsburg where they expect to live after Dr. Andruss' retirement. He has served for thirty years as president of Bloomsburg State College. Next fall, they leave for a tour of southern and eastern Africa.

Mary Archibald Kline and her husband are spending the winter in Mexico.

Louise Bumgarner sends greetings but no news.

Katherine Dashiell Roberts writes from sunny Ft. Lauderdale where she and Cyril have lived for five years. Cyril's health has improved this year. Her children have contributed to the population explosion by adding three more grandchildren—there are now ten. One of their sons worked on the Apollo program for eighteen months, but now lives in Seattle. Katherine extends an invitation to visit them. She is looking forward to our 1970 reunion and a look at the new campus.

Volunteer work, activity in various organizations, and a growing family help Margaret Herron to lead an active life.

Louise Graham Brown is kept busy traveling to state conventions as First Vice-President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. This spring she will visit Michigan, Arizona, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Colorado.

Catherine Humbert Good's welcome letter from Hawaii, the first since I became secretary, arrived just in time for the news. Kay went to live with her daughter, son-in-law and three teen-aged grandchildren in Oahu, Hawaii after Joe's death in 1959. She finds running her own business, Ceramics Un-Limited, Inc., very exciting. Four years ago she won the National Ceramic Award in Los Angeles. Her son and family also live in the islands. He works for C. Brewer Sugar Co. Kay loves Hawaii and doesn't miss the cold, ice, fall leaves, dirt and dust of Pittsburgh. She sends love and Aloha, and extends a cordial invitation to any classmates who travel to Hawaii to visit her. Kay, could we persuade you to come to the reunion in 1970?

Who travels more than Frances Rolfe? Last summer she enjoyed a tour of Arctic Norway and Finland—the beautiful fjords, glaciers and icebergs of deep blue and green are a sight never to be forgotten.

Mary Shane Muir and Marshall enjoy life in an active community in northwest New Jersey. He has completely recovered from a serious illness last year. Both their sons are ministers. John, who lives in Hinsdale, Illinois, is director of Camps and Retreats for the United Church of Christ for Illinois. Jim is pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Willingboro, New Jersey. Mary and Marshall enjoy their five grandchildren.

Bee Stevenson McQuiston writes from her new home in Blackridge where she and Bryce moved last fall. She regrets that her daughter Sallie Ann and family were transferred to Kansas City last summer. Bee enjoyed having lunch with Marian Frank Patterson when she visited her daughter, Nancy, who lives in Fox Chapel.

Sally Chisholm Springer and I have no particular news. We are both well and busy. Sally enjoys her two grandchildren, and I my five—all under five years of age. I was so happy to hear again from all those who wrote. It is not too soon to be making plans to attend the reunion in 1970. Do make a special effort to come to this one—our 45th!

NEW ADDRESSES

Elma Corpening Bingaman (Mrs. Joseph H.), 255 Ixora Circle, Ridgewood Park, Venice, Fla. 33595

Ella English Daub (Mrs. John C.), 631 2B Oaklynn Court, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15220

Elizabeth Hewitt Holland (Mrs. R. L.), 5807 Shoal Creek Blvd., Austin, Tex. 78757

Margaret Johnston McClintock (Mrs. Ray), 5701 N.W. 2nd Avenue, Boca Raton, Fla. 33423

Dulcina Marshall Walker (Mrs. William P.), 3615 Rugby Drive, Toledo, Ohio 43614

In spite of problems, the 1927 news has made the Recorder this year. Since no one has heard from Mae Proesl after accepting the duties of secretary in June 1967, Ella English Daub has been serving as acting secretary. However, a trip to Florida at deadline time interfered with news collecting so your former secretary, Kathryn McPeake Arnold, has filled in. We do hope to hear from Mae before next year! A SPECIAL NOTICE from Ella: "We have been working for our College ever since the Freshman Follies. Do not flag yet! Keep the five dollar checks coming, please. Make them payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account, and mail them to me at the above address. This will be the only notice this year. We have passed the $400 mark—which isn't very far very fast. The money already paid is earning interest so let's have some more principle. Stars for $50 checks to Ruth Allman Jones, Dulcina Marshall Walker and Sallie Everson Bright. Half stars for $25 checks to Adeline Crown Jubelirer and Bernice Keefer, and thanks, of course, to all who have paid "on account."

The 1967 reunion was so enjoyable that Marybelle Carroll Emerick is already looking forward to 1972. We hope that many others feel the same way and that the enthusiasm will spread to those who have not been back to campus for too long a time.

Clara Colteryahn brings us up to date on her travels. In 1967 she went to the Isle of Wight and then to Copenhagen and the fjord country of Norway. Last summer she spent her holiday at an art and resort colony on the rocky coast of New England.

Our card and Dave and Rae Stevenson Bair arrived at the same time at the home of Elma Corpening Bingaman, the Bairs for an overnight visit. Elma and Joe sold their North Carolina home and were moving in March to their new Florida location and much more leisure.

Ella Daub and John moved last August and she retired from the Mt. Lebanon Library on November 1. She says she will never be a gourmet cook, but broils a mean hamburger and loves being a parasite.

From her apartment window, Harriet Evans enjoys a view of the snow-capped Sandia Mountains and of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains at Sante Fe. However, having broken her arm in a fall on the snow in Albuquerque last December, she would prefer that it would stay in the mountains. Harriet works part time as a technical writer and editor for the Bureau of Engineering of the University of New Mexico.

Eleanor Ewing Buterbaugh, busy, well, and "young at heart," looks forward to reading news from all the "gals."

Eleven months of the year Mary Harner Britton is "Mrs. Methodist," but March is travel month for the Brittons. Last year they toured the southeastern states; this year by car through the southwest and on to the Pacific.

Margaret Johnston McClintock's new address is in a new complex right on a golf course. She will be spending the summer in West Virginia, but hopes in a few years to stay in Florida the year round. We are all invited to visit!

Miriam Kirkel's main job in the fast-growing education department at Point Park College is in the placement and supervision of student teachers. For relaxation, her four-year-old grandniece has her dancing all over the place. "Can you picture me cavorting around like a Troll, Titania, or a waltzing flower???" asks Miriam.

Our deepest sympathy to Dulcina Marshall Walker whose husband William died suddenly in January 1968. Dulcina has moved to an apartment and is teaching.

The class extends sincere sympathy, also, to Anne Negley Brunot whose sister, Genie McLean '28, died on December 18, 1968.

Mary Katherine Reed Lose vacationed last summer in Avalon, N.J., and announces the arrival of their third grandchild, Reed William Lose.

"Far Away Places" is the theme song of Grace Wilson. Christmas 1967 in Hawaii; November 1968 in Africa, a tour which ended in an exciting camera safari in East Africa; Summer 1969, a sentimental journey to her grandfather's Ireland and on to the British Isles. In between, Grace is a "not too bad" first mate on her friend's cabin cruiser as they sail the inland waterways of Florida. She hopes eventually to live in Hawaii, but she promises to come back for the 1977 reunion.

Our thoughts of sympathy are extended to Mary Jewell Barr whose husband passed away.

NEW ADDRESSES

Jane Haller McCafferty (Mrs. Charles H.), 406 Spring Hill Road, Hagerstown, Md. 21741

Martha Stem, 15106 Dickens Street, Sherman Oaks, Cal. 91403

DEATH

Dorothy Burgess Jones (Mrs. Parkin R.) on June 29, 1968 in Sarasota, Florida. A note of sympathy was sent to Dorothy's husband, and a book has been placed in the Chatham Library in her memory.

Dorothy Apple Adelson and her husband vacationed in the south this spring. Her three grandchildren occupy a most important place in her life.

Dorothy Appleby Musser has enjoyed several gettogethers with '29ers in the past year. The eleven who met in Indiana last June spent a pleasant afternoon reminiscing and making plans for reunion. The Mussers, as this is written, are ready to leave for a winter vacation in the South Pacific Islands—Hawaii, Fiji, Samoa and Tahiti.

Lucretia Bond Wagner and Glenn have spent the last two years in Naples, Florida, so Glenn could be near his doctor. He has now recovered sufficiently that he was to leave on March 1st for a Pocket Testament League survey of Indonesia. Later, when he goes to Vietnam, Lucretia expects to join him. The Asian tour will be climaxed by a trip around the world. In the meantime, Cretia will visit her son and family in Chicago. She is anticipating the pleasure of seeing old friends at reunion.

Ellen Connor Kilgore and her husband enjoyed an early vacation in Eleuthra. Their daughter Sue and her husband, who had been serving on the staff of a Japanese hospital, have now moved to New Haven, Conn., where their second daughter was born.

Kay Crawford Stancati was brought face to face with the passage of time when, at a fund raising meeting of the Chicago Chatham Club, the speaker mentioned "way, way back in the twenties." In spite of this she plans to attend our fortieth. Kay continues her work as Red Cross Coordinator of Volunteer Service to military families; her husband is a college biology teacher and her son is a college student majoring in mathematics.

Elsie Duncan Harrison reports two grandchildren in 1968—Christopher Scott Harrison and Charles Gregory Hamilton. Her son Scott (and family) is at Vanderbilt University where he is taking a special course in hand surgery.

Lillian Green Surlend continues teaching at Keystone Oaks High School. She also will be on hand on June 7.

Ruth Hunter Swissbell and Bob enjoyed a new experience when they attended the January opening of the first one-man show of their musician-turned-artist son in Stockbridge, Mass. Ruth hopes that lots of her office work for the June 7 reunion will be opening reservations from '29ers. While in Chicago recently, Ruth enjoyed telephone conversations with Peg Constans Jones and Kay Stancati.

Mary Louise Jones reports her special events as follows: a "non-recurrence" report from her doctor; Kay Strouss' delightful letters; Erma and Glenn Stewart's late summer visit; Peg Fifer's mid-December visit; and the notes on her Christmas cards. Mary Lou hopes to be able to attend the reunion.

Mary Kolb has been kind enough to consent to serve as your reunion chairman. If you have any suggestions, please get in touch with her at High Horizon Farm, R.D. #1, Bolivar, Pa. 15923, or with me. We both hope this will be a memorable occasion and will welcome any ideas. Mary continues her part-time work with the Frick Foundation. On January 5th, she appeared on Channel 4 T.V. as the able moderator of a panel discussion commemorating the birthday of George Washington Carver.

Betty MacColl visited Pittsburgh early in January to attend the marriage of her brother Sandy. Unfortunately, she was in the city for such a short time that very few of her friends had the pleasure of seeing her.

In addition to her teaching at Michigan University, Katherine Reebel serves as president of the Senior Citizen's Guild of Ann Arbor, Ruling Elder of the First Presbyterian Church, Ann Arbor, consultant to the Veterans' Administration Office on hemodialysis, and consultant to the Social Work Council. She spent the Christmas holidays with her family in Florida.

Frances Reeder Battaglia's daughter Cathy is busy doing T.V. commercials and fashion modeling in Los Angeles. She is a most attractive and talented girl. Son Charles will leave the service in July but will remain in Los Angeles for four more years in hospital residency, specializing in ear, nose and throat. Fran will attend the reunion.

Ethel Rendelman Fritchman's son, Vernon, Jr., is attending night classes at George Washington University to get his master's degree in corporation law. The Fritchmans vacationed in Florida this spring.

Helen Sawyer Ryman has been busy working on the Chatham Centennial Fund Drive. In addition, she continues as Altar Guild director of the downtown Trinity Cathedral and keeps an active interest in the International Scholarship program of P.E.O. Helen and Walter spent Christmas in Glenview, Ill. Roxanna Ryman Coop, younger daughter, has been named one of the Outstanding Young Women of 1968, in recognition of her work in organizing a volunteer program for a mental hospital near her home in Maryland.

Martha Stem continues as Director of Professional Relations of the Optometric Association. Following the 71st Annual Congress of this organization she was asked to serve on the Board of Directors of Volunteers for Vision, a program to assist under-privileged children toward academic readiness. She is also optometric correspondent to Academic Quarterly Magazine. In May 1968, the Optometric World Magazine in a series, Profiles in Professionalism, published an article entitled The O.E.P. Story: Martha Stem A.B.—A Symbol. The article lauds her as a charming and proficient member of the official family of the Optometric Extension Program. Martha plans to attend the reunion.

Mary Lou Succop Bell wrote when she and her husband were enroute home from a vacation in Naples, Florida. She hopes to be at reunion which, she says, "sounds delightful, though a little hard to believe in, numerically."

Anne Textor Thompson and Bob are vacationing in North Miami, Florida, this spring. Their oldest daughter, Jane, will receive her master's degree in June from

Cranbrook Academy of Fine Arts in the field of graphics and print making, and will be married in July. Daughter Marcia will return to college in the fall to work toward her master's degree in Community Development. Anne entertained a group of '29ers at her summer home in Zelenople in October. All guests reported "a wonderful time!"

Evelyn Thompson Wible has two new grandchildren, making a total of five boys and one brand new granddaughter. Her son Lee has passed his National Board examinations in anesthesiology. Evelyn will attend the reunion on June 7th, even though it is the date of her father's ninety-first birthday. Happy birthday, Mr. Thompson!

Dorothy Warner was the guiding spirit behind a get-together at the Hilton Hotel in November. Your secretary (for one) can attest that it was a completely enjoyable afternoon, with lots of reunion ideas in the air. Many thanks, Dot.

Margaret Woolridge Fifer and her husband released their newest booklet of poems, Notes From the Fifers, in January of 1969. The poems are so charming—as is the cover of the booklet—that to read the first one is to continue through the entire book. Congratulations, Fifers!

Kay Rockwell Potter (Mrs. William S.), 250 Casuarina Concourse, Coral Gables, Fla. 33143

Thanks to all who replied to our request for news; it was good to hear from you. Greetings but "nothing special" from Sara Hunter Nelson, Agnes McKain, Mary Duff Miller, and Isabelle Patterson Konold. Our sympathy to Anne Ritenour Harbison who lost her husband two weeks before Christmas.

Betty Babcock Hull has completed her second year as vice president of the Alexandria (Va.) Church Women United, and has accepted the chairmanship of Alexandria's Mothers' March of Dimes Campaign. Married daughter Myra Gillam, '65, is teaching English while her husband is studying for a Ph.D. at the University of Chicago.

Eleanor Barberger Dearborn says that the "R.C. Dearborn family seems to be eternally too busy." Son Dick is a sophomore at Juniata College, majoring in music. The Dearborn cabin on their 100-acre farm in northeastern Pennsylvania is still not quite finished after four years of labor. She concluded "I don't see how the pioneers ever managed to build, fight Indians and raise crops, all at the same time."

Edith Beale Asper writes that the weather in Juneau has been cold and dry, with high Taku winds. Because of the cold many pipes have been frozen, but the Aspers let the water run and have had good luck so far. Juneau needs rain and warmer weather to refill the reservoir. Edie's family spent Christmas with her and Lynn, Sr., and the senior Aspers plan to go to Washington and Oregon this summer to attend two graduations: Lynn, Jr., from the Law School of the University of Washington; and Jim in Business Administration from the University of Oregon.

Our sympathy to Martha Bradshaw Stout who lost her husband early in November. Keeping busy, Martha has enrolled in an Adult Education typing class, and has volunteered for rehabilitation therapy at Magee Hospital for post-surgical patients. Son Don plans to be married in the late summer to Mary Steinmiller, daughter of Betty Porter Steinmiller, '28. Don is an examiner in the Patent Office in Washington, D.C., and has started night law school at George Washington University.

Claiborne Brown Ziegler, after two hip operations, is now able to walk ten blocks. She has retired from library work, is sorry she is not younger so she could work in the "Head Start" program, and may do so anyway if the "walking" continues to improve. Clai deplors the chaos caused by the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King and the shambles left by the political convention last summer. As a result of racial tensions and other unrest, many streets of Chicago are unsafe, even for University students unless they travel in cars or in groups.

Sara Cecil Faist's letter came from The Homestead where she and Harold spent a week-end in January. During 1968 Sally and Harold did a lot of traveling. They were thrilled to attend the Republican Convention. "The speeches were not dull, regardless of what the mass media's announcers said. We were exhausted just attending the sessions and have real respect for the people who did all the work." In October they went to Mexico City for the Olympics and continued on to Acapulco to the same hotel where they spent their honeymoon. Sally also does the usual community volunteer work.

Dorthea Crawford Macy comes to Pittsburgh often to see her mother. Dode has two married daughters and three grandchildren, and usually goes to Arizona for winter vacations.

Ramona Crawford Shirey has ten grandchildren now. As a result of major surgery in the summer of 1968, she has become interested in some new and less strenuous hobbies: needlepoint and collecting old-time buttons. If anyone has any with pictures on them and would care to send them to Ramona, she would be delighted to have them for her collection. Paul is planning to retire this summer and turn the business over to one of their sons-in-law.

Clara Falconer Simmermacher is putting all her energy into recovering from a fall at their Cleveland home last Labor Day. Her leg was broken near the hip joint, and at the end of January she was still using a walker. As soon as Clara is able to travel, they plan to return to Florida, leaving the sale of the Cleveland house to a real estate agent. They were delighted to have all three daughters home at some time during the Christmas holidays, but Clara will be happier when they are back in Florida and can relax in the sun.

Gertrude Ferrero Prather's youngest, Mike, will be graduated from Yale in June and is planning on graduate work. Daughter Lynne is with Playwright Unit, looking for a new theater.

Lida Fischler Lampe saw much of Martha Leathers Stewart, '30, at Chautauqua, N.Y., last summer, as they both have cottages there. In the fall Lida met Beverly Robinson Smith at a wedding.

Ruth Haddock continues as Dean of Women at Northern Illinois University, but took time out last summer for a trip to Europe. She visited the fjords of Norway, the Danish countryside and some relatives in Switzerland.

Our sympathy to Kay James McCann who lost her mother in March, 1968. She stayed with Linda Monroe Suiberland when in Pittsburgh at that time. In June, Kay and Ray camped in Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Park; and in September they camped on the Mendocino Coast and Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park. Kay is active in the Santa Clara Valley Audubon Society and the AAUW, being head of AAUW's study section on regional government. Kay feels that the most significant sight of the year (for them) was the flight of 200 white pelicans overhead and later watching the birds floating on two large rafts a hundred feet away.

Margaret Jefferson lived through school evaluation last April; went to Seattle in July; and is now back at work, recovering from surgery. If all goes well, she will be going to California in March for some meetings and alumnae visits.

Florence Jones Maddox' youngest, Dave, was married in Indiana before Christmas, and the newlyweds returned to Stanford for Dave to continue his studies. Flo and William are planning a long trip west this spring. Their itinerary includes Tulsa, Beaumont (Texas), San Diego, Vancouver, Salt Lake City and Bryce Canyon.

Adelaide Lasner Sachs' most important "contribution to our life and times is grandmotherly devotion to four dear little granddaughters." Addie's newest interest is "Decoupage"—a delightful hobby which has overpowered the Sachs apartment with paint, varnish, wax, scissors, etc.

Betty Marshall has retired from active library work, but finds more than enough to keep her busy with house, yard and an occasional bit of library work.

Elsie McCreery Longwell and husband go often to Cincinnati where their daughter lives—"to spoil the babies," Elsie says. They were all in Florida for Christmas and visited with Mary Peters Wilhelm and her husband in their new Fort Lauderdale home.

Helen Miller is anxious to return to adoption work after a three-month absence as a result of a car accident two years ago.

Ann Norcross Brockschmidt has moved to Lafayette, La., to be near her married daughter and her growing family. Ann took a quick trip to Pittsburgh last April and was quite impressed by the changes in the city.

Vartanoush Parounkian Turner's daughter Anne and family has moved from Bethel Park, Pa., to Hamden, Conn. Noushka's youngest daughter, Louise, was married last December and will live in Hong Kong for five years where her husband is employed by an importing firm.

Margaret Ray McDowell and husband are now living in Bergenfield, N.J., since John works for the National Council of Churches in New York. Their eldest daughter and husband are teaching missionaries at the Philippine Wesleyan College. Their middle daughter, Janet, is a senior at Boston University and the youngest is in the School of Nursing at Rutgers University.

Kay Rockwell Potter's big news this spring is their house-building, a new experience for them. It is located on a wide canal a few minutes from South Biscayne Bay (just across from "Nixon-land"). To relieve some of the frustrations of living in small quarters, Kay, Bill and Baron (their big German shepherd dog) often go out on "Bianka III." Three of Kay's sons and their families are in Miami; the other two are in Pittsburgh.

Lucilla Scribner Jackson's three children are married and have, among them, six grandchildren. Lucilla and Bill planned a long trip in April (some business and some pleasure) to Australia, New Zealand, Indonesia, India, Iraq, Burma, and then home through Europe. When she's at home, Lucilla does gardening, a little golf and enjoys the class news in the Recorder.

Viola Smith called to say that she had taken a sabbatical leave this semester from teaching English at Wilkesburg High School, and planned to use part of the time for a trip to Portugal in April. Viola also told us that she had received a letter from Elinor Martin Vaughn which explained why we have had no address for Elinor. The Vaughns have been out of the country for almost five years while Harold has been working on engineering projects on three major continents. When Harold retired last September, they visited Tokyo, Hong Kong, Bangkok, the Holy Land, Australia, Finland, Denmark, Sweden and England before returning to the U.S. They will be with Elinor's father until they secure permanent quarters. Elinor's son was married last fall, and her daughter Beverly and husband returned from three years in Italy.

Lois Sproull Hincley was elected a Commissioner of Longboat Key (the Sarasota community where the Hincleys live) last March. After ten months as a public official, Lois thinks community duties are frustrating and wearying, brought about, perhaps, because she is a minority of one. She is still involved in AAUW, Girl Scouts and a local environmental health study group. The Hincleys came to West Virginia to spend Christmas with their son and his family, but were very glad to get back to Florida sunshine after "the gray, short northern winter days." Lois sends warm greetings to all.

Last May, Olive Wycoff MacCarthy and Parker joined three other couples for a tour of Hawaii. Later they headed for Pennsylvania and Virginia, stopping in Pittsburgh to visit with the Walter Stouts (Martha Bradshaw), and the Robert Hulls (Betty Babcock) in Alexandria, and their elder daughter Marti, back from a year of traveling in Europe. Olive continues to grow flowers, read books, play bridge and baby-sit for Beth's growing family.

There isn't much new with me. I spent my vacation at Montego Bay, Jamaica, and was surprised at the warm tropical air (in November), the deep green vegetation and the tremendous air traffic on the north shore. The country was not quite as plush as the travel folders indicated, but we found the natives friendly and many of them working hard to improve their homeland.

NEW ADDRESSES

Virginia Hall McAleese (Mrs. John), Twin Pines Road, Hilton Head Island, S.C. 29928

Marjorie Hopkins, 20 Hillpack Avenue, Apt. 2-A, Great Neck, L.I., N.Y. 11021

Phyllis Lebew MacArthur (Mrs. W. O.), 7 Over Ridge Court, Baltimore, Md. 21210

Edith L. McBane, % P. A. Rishberger, 617 South Sixth Street, Indiana, Pa. 15701

Helen McCreery Eckels (Mrs.) 11627 Canal Drive, Apt. 4, North Miami, Fla. 33161

Edith Rial Benford (Mrs. John D.), Box 73-B, R.D. 1, Buffalo Mills, Pa. 15534

There has been much interest expressed relating to our 35th Reunion. Seventeen classmates attended the Reunion Luncheon and rejoiced in the academic spirit of our alma mater. Later we had a delightful, nostalgic class meeting, renewing friendships and gathering news. Our faithful secretaries, Louise Metzgar Iams and Eleanor J. McClimans Muncaster, are to be commended for their years of conscientious service. Dorothy Ballantyne Milliken and Helen McCracken Bennett were appointed to fulfill the secretarial duties for the next five years. Those of us present agreed to defer discussion of a class gift to the College, but to consider the matter at our next reunion. Late in the afternoon a number of husbands joined us for a reception at President Eddy's home, followed by a buffet supper on the terrace of Benedum Hall. We missed the classmates who were unable to attend.

Helen reporting:

Greetings and best regards were received from Sara Allison Allman, Helen Rowand Dunkle and Genevieve Shabler Karn.

Evelyn Alliff Dautlick's daughter Cory, who graduated from Chatham with the class of 1968, is employed at Western Psychiatric Hospital in Pittsburgh and plans to attend graduate school in the fall. Jay is a Captain in the Medical Corps stationed at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas. He and his wife Susan enjoy their location, and she is teaching Mexican and Italian children in third grade. Joe has many cross-country trips, and Ev continues to teach 11th and 12th grades.

Too bad I am unable to pass on the impressive personalized stationery used by Marian Baughman Monroe. At the top is a two-inch sky blue band with white outlined stars, a crescent moon, and Vaughn's signature. How apropos! Her newsy letter reports that she and Vaughn love their new home in Florida at the junction of the Indian and St. Lucie Rivers, on a peninsula called Sewall's Point. It is a small community on the Atlantic Ocean fifty miles north of Palm Beach. Vaughn continues to be busy in the entertainment field, doing many shows for civic organizations along with night clubs in Reno and Las Vegas. He had just completed a twelve-day cruise on the S. S. France as a guest of the French Line in exchange for singing two shows during the entire Caribbean cruise. Marian fulfills many demands as his business manager, travels with him, and when at home prepares for the next trip. Candace, 27, and her husband, Major Jerry T. Wagner, Army Air Command, are currently at Fort Rucker, Alabama, where he is a senior instructor in helicopters following a year in Vietnam. They have two children, Jerry, Jr., 6, and Carrie Merrell, 4. Christina, 24, spent a year in Copenhagen and traveled through Europe for the third time. At present she is secretary to the Dean of Education at Boston University. Next summer the Monroes plan a tour of Germany plus a working trip to the Far East.

Evelyn Bitner Pearson's daughter Cynthia was married last August, and Linn will go to college in September. Evy now has six grandchildren. Between visits with her family, she still works in the rehabilitation and training of young adults at Goodwill Industries.

Helen Chambers Swartz regrets that she arrived at Chatham one week late as she attempted to tie in the reunion with a trip to Pittsburgh. She is elated that her niece, Emily Chambers, is enrolled at Chatham, class of 1972.

Mary Crumay Kebew and Nox miss their girls. Sarah and Amy are in Boston, and Ann lives in Denver. Mary visits Ann and their two-year-old grandson as often as possible. She continues with her regular home-bound teaching and some substitute teaching.

Genevieve Davis Crawford, since we last heard from her, enjoyed a trip to Mexico and another to New Orleans.

Jessie Doudna Phillips' only daughter, Anne, was married on February 8. She is teaching in New Jersey, and her husband, a graduate of Harvard College and Yale Law School, is employed as a law clerk for a Justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court. David is a freshman at W&J, and Johnny is in 8th grade.

Virginia Hall McAleese's husband John retired last June after more cardiac trouble. They were expecting to move into their new retirement home in March, and Ginny extends a cordial invitation to all classmates vacationing in Hilton Head. While waiting for their house to be completed, they spent two months in Naples, Florida. Ginger was graduated from Rollins College last June and is teaching in Atlanta, Georgia. Anne is a junior at Queens College in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Marjorie Hopkins enjoys teaching in Great Neck. Her second children's book, The Glass Valentine, is on the market, and a third book will be published this spring. She is pleased with all the gratifying remarks in the Parents' Magazine publication.

Charlotte Iams claims her only news concerns her nephew, Jay Donald, who is in his first year of medical school at the University of Wisconsin. He is to be married in June to a nursing student at the University.

A very busy year for Phyllis Lebew MacArthur included a summer trip to Europe, two weeks in Pittsburgh in August, a new position as reading specialist as change from classroom teaching, and moving into a new apartment in October. The Christmas holidays were divided between visits at Bill's and with daughter-in-law Kathleen's family.

Gene Llewellyn Price welcomed her second grandson, Randall, in October, and flew to Omaha, Nebraska, to take care of Todd. She is looking forward to an early summer visit from Roger and his family, and in the fall she plans to begin teaching piano in her home.

Ruth Ludebuehl Early toured Glacier, Yellowstone and Teton National Parks with Jay, Barbara and Bobby last summer. She also spent Christmas with them along with Barbara's parents. For the past five years she has enjoyed her interesting work at the public library.

Last fall Edith McBane moved temporarily into her cousin's home. As this is written, she is recuperating in the Indiana, Pa., hospital from a severe siege of flu. She invites news from her Pittsburgh friends. We have been concerned, Edith, and hope you will quickly regain your strength.

Eleanor McClimans Muncaster happily reports her son Hugh's return from Army service in Korea. He is now a sales trainee for Jones & Laughlin Steel Company in Chicago. Hal and E. J. had an extended trip to California last fall.

Helen McCreery Eckels, following her divorce from Michael Jovanovic, finds it easier to use her former name. She says she is very happy living in Florida.

Louise Metzgar Iams and her family have been much concerned about their youngest son, Dan, who was stationed at Pleicu in Vietnam since last March, and were relieved and happy when he returned home safely on February 7 for a 45-day leave. Husband Charles received a business promotion the same week, so Louise feels that good news often comes double. She keeps busy as secretary of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Forthrightly Review, and is finding a class in silk screen printing very interesting.

Ruth Morgan Lansberry's husband Tom is completing a 20-year term as judge, but is not ready to retire. They were most interested in the election of President Nixon, having entertained him, as Vice President, at a luncheon in their home. They have one grandson, Tommy, who lives in Silver Spring, Maryland.

As for me, Sue's teenage activities keep me busy. She will graduate from Mt. Lebanon High School in June, and we have been involved in the hectic college-looking pace. Wes has completed an 18-month assignment as Captain, Crew Commander, and instructor with a Tactical Missile Group in Okinawa. As of this writing, he is en route to the States for a joyous reunion before reassignment to Lowry Air Force Base in Denver. Last summer Sally Miller Brash, '32 and I sailed on the Michaelangelo to Italy, visited there, and went on to Switzerland and England. My role as secretary was undertaken with many misgivings, but it has been a pleasure to receive your warm, friendly responses. Until next spring, sincere good wishes to you all.

Dorothy reporting:

Dorothy Newell spent her first winter in ten years in Warren, Pa., due to the cancelling of an intended cruise. However, she is sailing on a North Cape cruise in June. Last year a cruise on the Gripsholm took her to the Greek Islands, southern Russia, Venice, Majorca, and Portugal where she bought some lovely woolens. Dot plans to come to Pittsburgh this spring to visit her two Dorothy B. Newell Scholarship students at Chatham.

Ruth Nirella is finding it very difficult to teach these days. Last summer she went to the seashore, Cape Cod, Niagara Falls, and the Canadian Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Ontario. Her spare time is taken up with her sorority, church circle, theatre or opera.

Since her husband Carey was in Bagdad, Iraq, for eight months for Westinghouse, Gertie Ray Mann and her sister Virginia Randall, '28, went to visit him last July. In addition to Bagdad, their five-week trip took them to Lisbon, Majorca, Rome, Malta, Athens, Beirut, Lebanon, Istanbul, Lucerne and London. The entire Mann family was home for Christmas.

The Jessups (Vi Sekey) had their last college commencement when their youngest daughter, Jennifer, graduated from Chatham in June, and their last wedding when she was married in December to Mr. T. A. Beckett (son of Rachel Greer Beckett '31).

Sarah Stevenson Foster and Joe drove to Northfield, Minnesota, in June for Nancy's commencement at Carleton College, then on to Pittsburgh to visit family and old friends. Both daughters are working, Susie as a social worker in Riverside, California, and Nancy as an assistant curator at the State Museum in Tucson, Arizona. Will is a senior in high school. Sally continues as a social worker and Joe as a professor at Scripps College.

Martha Stuart Muhlbeizler and her husband keep young and healthy through the constant activity on their farm in North Carolina and their mutual interest in their growing beef herd. Daughter Ann has two children, and daughter Judy teaches English at Memphis State University, Memphis, Tennessee.

Betty Clarke visited her sister, Constance Russ '26, and her husband in Longboat Key, Florida, where they have been spending the winter.

Estons Lee Davidson's youngest daughter, Mary, graduated from Denison University and was married to Daniel Berger. They are now in Colombia, South America, with the Peace Corps.

Jean Saul has fortunately recovered from her fall on June 8. Twelve days were spent in Westmoreland Hospital for leg surgery to remove a blood clot, but she is happy to have her leg, scar and all.

I have had a most exciting year. Our youngest daughter, Ginny, had her first child, Timothy Hugh Buzzard, in September. In February '69 our oldest daughter, Anne, had her fourth son, William Garrett Brown. That makes six grandsons and one granddaughter for Ed and me. In March we moved to a smaller home, but still in Churchill, and we keep busy with our usual activities. Many thanks to all of you who took time to send us your news.

Helen Birmingham Proctor, who does editorial work for a publisher of investment books and services in Rye, New York, writes that her trips to Chatham College as a member of the Alumnae Board are most rewarding.

While daughter Margaret studies at Beloit College, Margaret Eichbley Storer keeps very busy teaching kindergarten and attending the University of Pittsburgh as a graduate student working for teacher certification and master's degree.

Three of Jean Engel Reppun's sons are in college on the mainland: Charlie a senior at Hamilton, Tom a sophomore at the University of Puget Sound at Tacoma, and Paul a freshman at Harvard. Martha, their eldest, is working for Pan American Airlines in Honolulu, and thanks to her, Fred and Jean are presently leaving for Europe with Martha as escort.

Prudence Goodale Martin has traveled many times this past year to Cambridge, Massachusetts to visit her daughter Stephenie and husband.

The class extends sincere sympathy to Eleanor Harbison Bream who lost both parents in 1968. Her mother died in July and her father in December. Eleanor made two emergency trips home from Geneva last summer, and then in October she and Gray returned to the United States permanently. Many of their possessions were lost or misplaced due to the dock strike. Since Gray has now retired from the Foreign Service, their plans are indefinite. They may move into their home in McLean, Virginia. However, at present Eleanor is residing at 150 Oakhurst Road, Pittsburgh 15215, and is making plans to leave soon on a trip to Australia, New Zealand and other Pacific areas.

This winter, while working for the Chatham College Centennial Fund as a section chairman, Jane Harmeier Nims has had a chance to renew old acquaintances and make new friends among Chatham graduates. Daughter Martha Jane is a junior at Duke University and her parents traveled there for the Duke-North Carolina football game. The Nims also enjoyed a long weekend at Pinehurst, North Carolina and a vacation in Bermuda last fall. At this writing they are planning a spring cruise.

Caroline Hesse Ender has developed a new interest—wrestling—since son Dave, 15, is wrestling for Liberty High School. Bill, Caroline and Dave traveled to Washington, D.C. for the Inaugural they termed as "just great." The Ender family rented a house boat to sightsee around the Thousand Islands last August and enjoyed it so much they are planning a house boat caravan on Lake Powell, Colorado in 1970 and are "looking for some takers." From the beautiful scenery pictured in the National Geographic Magazine for July, 1967 they should have a good response. Caroline and Bill also enjoyed a long weekend with Bob and Louise Leadman Faller at State College where they attended the Maimi-Penn State football game. The Fallers also commuted to Lake Chautauqua last summer and by the time you read this will be in Europe where they will rent a car for sightseeing.

Marie Martin had a delightful vacation in Hawaii last fall.

Mary Ida McFarland Shannon and husband Dean vacationed in Bermuda in October 1967 and in the Caribbean last October. Vancouver, Canada is their planned destination for this coming summer. The three Shannon children are busy receiving their educations. Bonnie is working for her Doctor of Philosophy degree at the University of Toronto, Canada. David graduated last June from Allegheny College and is now a freshman at the University of Pittsburgh School of Dentistry. Mary Ann is a sophomore at Chatham College and loves it.

Golf and swimming interest Jane McQuiston Webb. Also, she and Douglas are planning a trip to Bainbridge Island, Washington this summer. Their oldest daughter, Patricia, was married in December 1967. N. Douglas, Junior is with the army in Germany. Roberta is a sophomore at Rider College in New Jersey, and Robert a freshman at Palm Beach Junior College.

Ruth Moorhead Sward sends warm greetings to the class from Santa Monica, California. Oldest daughter, Susan, will graduate from Stanford this June; Martha, second child, a sophomore at Stanford, is spending six months in England on the Stanford-in-Britain Program; Ellen, youngest daughter, is in 11th grade. Ruth and Keith both continue in their professions and enjoy the work.

Gail Mouromseff Keith and her engineer husband George love the western life in Reno. They are active in church work and take frequent trips in Nevada and California. George will speak before the AIME convention in Pittsburgh in May.

Gertrude Russell Lydic, her sister, and their husbands were in a hold-up in a Pittsburgh drugstore just before Christmas. No one was hurt, but they all lost their wallets. Forrest and Gertie have two sons: Jim, a sophomore at Allegheny, and Clark, a senior at Lafayette.

Virginia Schweinsberg Hyde and her Ed, while attending a convention in New York City, spent a delightful evening with Eleanor Splane Trullinger. The Hydies proudly announce that their daughter in Rochester had a baby boy on Dec. 14. His sister is 1½. Their other daughter is in graduate school at Pitt and teaching Spanish.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Mary Seaver Hewitt in the death of her father. Mary and Ken had a "fabulous year" visiting their son Frank in Munich, skiing in the Austrian Alps at Innsbruck, and later sailing among the British Virgin Islands. On Frank's holiday in April, he and Mary went touring through lovely Spain in his V.W. station wagon. Frank has completed his International law training, has a master's degree, and a position in New York City.

Anna Claire Snyder Milford and her husband John will have two June graduates: John Jr. will receive his master's degree in hospital administration from Virginia Commonwealth University, and Dale will receive a B.A. from the same university where he is a fine arts major. Youngest son, Jim, is a junior in high school. Anna Claire is still Director of Nursing Service at Richmond Memorial Hospital, and still very much interested in news from Chatham!

Dolores Steinecke sent cordial greetings to her classmates.

Margaret Stockdale Jenkins writes: "Still enjoying my library work here at the Public Library in Oakmont. Son Chip is working on his master's in business administration and plans to be married in August. Daughter Christy and family (3 children) still live in Southern Illinois. Paul and I head that way as often as possible."

Dorothy Taylor, in addition to her job at U.S. Steel, investment counseling, and activities in the Pilot Club (a women's service organization), is building a house for herself in Monroeville, for completion in late spring!

Helen Wilson Houston sent a good letter reporting on her husband, two sons (both lawyers), two daughters and grandchildren.

Our deepest sympathy goes to Dorothy Wood Clarke whose mother died in December. Dot sends best wishes to all.

Dorothy Woodward Evans and husband George enjoyed a two-week vacation in Florida last March. In the fall they flew to Phoenix, Arizona to visit son David who works there, and then rented a car to drive to California by way of the Grand Canyon. In Costa Mesa, California they visited their daughter Janice, her husband and their nine-month-old son.

Vida Hurst Kerr says she's "down on the farm, busy with a home-grown crop of boys . . ." That means husband Don, sons Andy (15), David (4), a spaniel (16) named "Hey You," and 213,999 bees!

Alice Stockton Albert has recovered well enough from bacterial endocarditis to enjoy her family's activities and a little golf. She and Bill have a married daughter Anne (a grandson), and two boys in school. Good luck, Alice!

Please keep in mind that we are only one year away from our 35th reunion when we hope to have a sum which we will be proud to present to the college. Contributions to this gift fund are entirely separate from the annual gifts to the Alumnae Fund and may be sent either to Ruth Swisshelm or one of your secretaries. The money is in deposit in a special savings account and will continue to earn interest until June 1970. Our thanks to those who have paid in full and to those making payments. How about all the others? We will fall far short of our goal without the support of each one. Checks should be made payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account.

DEATH

Jane Terry Richardson (Mrs. William A.) in June 1968 following a very long illness. The sympathy of the class is extended to her family.

Betty Kraus Hilsdorf had a wonderful trip to Japan, via freighter, and after a vacation there, joined her son Bonn, his wife Ritsuko, and her five grandchildren in Okinawa. Bonn is stationed there as Chief Petty Officer, regular Navy. Her other son, John, is in Phoenix.

Betty Grace Hammer Maxwell, Martha Torrence, Betty Bevan Winkler, Betty Lewis Williams got together for a weekend at Cacapon State Park in Berkley Springs, W.Va. and had so much fun they decided to make it an annual outing. During the summer, Martha had a delightful trip to Nova Scotia, and found Cabot Trail breathtaking.

Several classmates have joined the motor-home brigade. Mildred Brown McIntyre and her family travel extensively in theirs. She writes that Lowe and she continue to be blessed—daughters Joan and Claudia had baby boys in February 1968, making a total of six grandchildren. Claudia and her family returned to the states from Uruguay after a two-year absence. Shirley Campbell Berg traveled to Nova Scotia in their Airstream last summer. Her children are in business now, except Geoff, who is a pre-med student at Yale and active in Civil Rights.

Louise Johnston Purnell is back to office work—a nine months job—fund raising for the Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital Building Fund. She and Dave had a leisurely trip to Georgia to visit son David who is an aerospace engineer with Lockheed Aircraft, then later to Maine where their son John was at a camp on Lake Sebago.

Julie Weller Gump says the days are never long enough for what she has and wants to do. The "Gab 'n' Eat" group is still going strong.

This will be a big year for the Sterlings! Izzy Silvis is in the throes of preparing for her daughter Judy's graduation from Wellesley in May; then Judy will be married later in the summer to an M.I.T. marine biologist. "Iz" is finding little time in which to indulge her own interest in oil painting. She and Jim are planning a trip to Australia.

Martha Jane Gerwig Rial and Jack attended the Mid-Winter Trust Conference in New York in February.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mary Elizabeth Eisaman Washington whose husband was killed in a horrible automobile accident early in January.

"Absolutely delighted with granddaughter Lisa Brown" is Miki McBride McMaster, who is busy "being the middle generation" and is also trying to be slightly active in the League of Women Voters in the area of town planning.

Betty McCarty Boyd is still enjoying Hilton Head Island life although it isn't as tropical this winter as the odds would lead one to believe. However, she and Harry can still play golf as there is no snow. Betty had a visit with Sally Anderson Amtsberg at Hilton Head this winter. In her note, Sally tells of having a note from Margaret Robb, our class sponsor. Miss Robb has a new apartment in Boulder, Colorado, and is preparing to retire in June.

Sally Donaldson Stoll and Bob spent last year in Cambridge while Bob studied at M.I.T. Sally took advantage of a year free from teaching to indulge herself in several different art areas. This year they have settled down into their normal lives, Bob back teaching at Oberlin College and Sally teaching kindergarten on a half-time basis.

A vacation on Mt. Desert Island, Maine was enjoyed by Kay Pyle, who is wondering now where she'll plant her gladiolas for springtime enjoyment!

Dorothy Motheral Porter's oldest daughter has two sons, and her youngest daughter is attending Greenwich Country Day School. Dottie and Bill had a good trip to Jamaica last year.

A new position in the Legal and Legislative Department of National United Cerebral Palsy is Elsie Dressler Helsel's news. She is their representative in Washington, with offices in the Dodge House. Elsie and Bob have moved to Athens, Ohio, where Bob is the new chairman of the mathematics department of Ohio University.

Neil Culbertson, husband of Martha Branch, is back at work after five months in the hospital and a lengthy recuperation at home. Alan, their son, has returned to college, pretty well recovered from multiple injuries received in an accident last March.

Dee Whitehead Heinig, Chicago Alumnae Club representative to Alumnae Council, finds her post an interesting one. All her children were home for Christmas, bringing their families (one grandson!) with them. Jeff works for DuPont, Don is a med student at Colorado, and Suzanne graduates from Lake Forest College this June.

The Inauguration was fun and excitement for Florence Kinley Mercer, because so many of their personal friends are in high government positions. Son Tom is a junior at Carnegie-Mellon, and daughter Lynn is a sophomore at Rollins College in Florida.

Several members of the class sent their greetings and said they looked forward to reading class news. Muff Potter Koerner's daughter is a biochemist doing research work at Massachusetts General Hospital. Elsa Steifelmaier Talbot is looking forward to an Hawaiian vacation as an antidote to the "flu" bug. Mary Follansbee Buck has three children who are college freshmen this year! Mary Jane Addy Braley enjoys getting together with the old gang for lunch when she comes to Pittsburgh for a visit. Pats Netting Morehead and her husband are still going to all high school games because their son Kenneth plays the drum in the band. She says hers is a busy, noisy household!

Two members of our class have new ministers in their families. Nancy Diven Seagren's son Barry will finish at Covenant Seminary in May. They, Barry and his wife, will spend two years in Switzerland where he will be teaching and counseling at a Foundation supported by the Reformed Presbyterian Church. Son Dean is a graduate student at Purdue where he is teaching and studying in the physics department. Mary Travers Scott's son-in-law will graduate from the Philadelphia Episcopal Seminary in May, and son Doug from V.P.I. in May. Mary and Scotty had a wonderful trip last June to celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary—a week in San Francisco, then two weeks in Hawaii.

Harriet Erickson Kirk's family is reaching all kinds of milestones this year; son Carey, studying for his Ph.D. at Vanderbilt, will be married in May. Daughter Jane attended the University of Grenoble (and the Olympics) during her junior year, and will graduate from Lake Erie College this June. Youngest son Tom enters Akron University next fall.

Connie Bell Sedgwick and Frank are contemplating a trip to Australia via Pago Pago and New Zealand. Connie and Frank enjoy spending their weekends at a condominium in Deerfield Beach. Their son Dwight is working on his M.A. and teaches high school in Atlanta, Georgia.

A Caribbean cruise was enjoyed by Elizabeth Bradley during the early winter. Elsie Hopkins Edgar says her five children and three grandchildren keep her busy.

Time marches on, we all get older, husbands prepare to retire, take sabbaticals, etc. Our children are through college, grandchildren are the interest of the moment. As your secretary, Mary Trimble Brittain, I am finding it a bit hard to return to earth! Last year, Ray and I took a four months trip, traveling by ship, plane (44 different flights!), and automobile. We sailed through the South Pacific, stopping at several of the islands, to New Zealand and Australia. We flew to Indonesia, Bali, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand. Spent a month in India, Nepal, Kashmir, West Pakistan, Hong Kong, Taiwan, two weeks in Japan, and two weeks in Hawaii. After returning home the middle of May, we baby-sat grandchildren most of the summer and early fall. Our youngest daughter, Elizabeth, spent last year studying in Greece, and returned to College of Wooster from which she will graduate this June. In "spare" moments, I am still active in the Winchester-Thurston Alumnae Association, the Harman Rehabilitation Center, and the church. It is gratifying to hear from so many classmates in response to our request for news.

Martha Torrence, who underwent open heart surgery early in February, died on Easter Sunday. We are deeply saddened to lose a dear classmate and our co-secretary.

Beth reporting:

This was a mixed up year for the Foxes. After renting our house for two years, we decided to buy it. That was in January—in February we were transferred! However, this is a wonderful area, especially for an eight-year-old boy. Our welcome mat is out to any of you.

It doesn't seem like five years since our last reunion. Time must go faster now. I have asked Peggy Cooper Uptegraff to organize a committee to make plans for our 30th.

Helen Archer Fardig drove to Minnesota for the February 15th wedding of her oldest daughter, Marsha, picking up daughter Leslie, her husband and baby in Oberlin, Ohio, on the way. Daughter Elaine, a freshman at Lycoming College, toured the Soviet Union last July, having studied Russian for four years in high school. Allison, 9, and David, 8, are still at home.

Peggy Cooper Uptegraff still keeps busy doing too much! Daughter Sue, Chatham '64, is back in Pittsburgh with her husband, and teaching history and English in junior high school. Daughter Judy is a junior pre-med at Penn State. The twins are in 8th grade, one at Winchester-Thurston and one at Shady Side Academy.

Genevieve Gibson Hansen's husband took an early retirement from U.S. Steel in 1967. They spend the summers in Manasquan, N.J., where they enjoy boating, fishing, and trying to keep trim with bicycling. During the winter Genevieve works with the Red Cross and League of Women Voters. She hopes to get to reunion.

Mary Gregg Stockton is back in the routine of office and home after a bad fall in May which took her away from work for ten weeks. Her oldest daughter, Linda, who will graduate from Carnegie-Mellon in June, hopes to do something "romantic" like the Red Cross, Vista, or the Peace Corps.

Katherine Cuthbert Hardee's Christmas letter described their experiences in Ecuador. The trip was far beyond their wildest dreams in experience, pleasure, and the learning and understanding of a different culture. Kay, for the last two years, has concentrated her major efforts on her private practice of medicine, and on her special interest in alcoholism.

Gene Detwiler Davis is back in Pittsburgh now, and extended an invitation to visit her at reunion or any other time.

Betty Duckwall Laubach sends greetings to everyone.

Jennie Ferralli spent a delightful month in Europe last summer and is already planning a "return trip."

Millicent Hoyt Faison reports that 1968 was a traveling year for her family. They visited HemisFair '68, and then George and George, Jr., spent a week in Mexico City at the Olympics. Between Christmas and New Years they flew to Des Moines, Iowa, for a family gathering. Her children, anxious to be in snow, had their wish but in zero weather. After 19 years in Texas, Totty wonders how they ever survived the cold.

Ivy Huetter McLaughlin, retired from working, is catching up on her reading and bridge-playing, and trying to keep up with her 16-year-old son.

Our sympathy is extended to Esther Jackson whose mother, Eva Cohen Jackson '09, died in June. Esther still enjoys her work at N.I.H.

Jeanne Kalish Samuels played hockey from school in October and flew with Emerson to visit inspiring Israel, colorful and drab Turkey, and diversified Greece and some of the islands of the Aegean Sea. Their oldest daughter spent her last semester at Smith College traveling with Senator McCarthy and is now with CBS News in Washington, D.C. Emily is a music major at Smith, and Janet is a dramatic sophomore in high school.

Jean Keenan Farrill is still teaching second grade. Daughter Barbara was married last July, and oldest daughter Diane is in Central America—Guatemala and El Salvador—on a Shell Oil Fellowship to finish her doctor's thesis. Son Jack is back at Cornell, so Jean and Kathy rattle around alone except for the constant influx of high school friends.

Letitia Mabaffey Andree has joined the retired members of our class, and is helping with the Chatham Centennial Fund campaign to fill some of her new free time.

Alma reporting:

A surprise letter from Elva Bogren Goodwin in Hong Kong tells us that she hopes to be at our 30th, come June, by combining that trip with visits to other parts of the world. Their big trip this past year was a 45-day trip around the world with visits to Nepal and India, and a drive through beautiful Austria which they had missed while living in England.

Amy McBride Bell and her husband are involved in church and community activities in Lewisburg.

Mary McCullough Abbott's oldest daughter is through college, and her second daughter is a junior at Washington University in St. Louis.

Hortense Norton Seedlock has three married children, one grandson, and a daughter in college.

Betti Rindlaub Lord's mother has been quite ill, and her aunt was to celebrate her 101st birthday in March. Betti still teaches, does some acting, studies and travels.

Florence Smith Hess reports that her oldest, Bruce, was married last year. She has two daughters at Duke University and a thirteen-year-old at Friends School. Flo is thinking of going to work part time in the fall, after 25 years of volunteer and board jobs.

Betty Speer Schenck raves about the fact that she now has two granddaughters. Besides being busy in her studio with hand-built ceramics, wheel work, and papier-mache, Betty is chairman of the Pink Frolic for Pittsburgh's Civic Light Opera.

Helen Starkey Dixon is busy working on a library science degree and planning for a family vacation in Europe this summer.

Mary Jane Totten Dickinson says her crop of gray hair has multiplied since Scott, Jr. (a high school junior) started to fly last summer. Daughter Diane is a freshman at Colorado State.

Mary Lou Weber McClenaban is teaching retarded young adults at the County Hospital. Daughter Cathy, after two years of Peace Corps in Kenya, now attends graduate school at the University of Wisconsin; Janie is the mother of Mary Lou's only granddaughter; Marge finishes high school this year; Bill III is in eighth grade.

Mary Bee Weibel McEuen reports the biggest event for her family this year was the arrival of their first grandchild, Barb's daughter. Second child, Richard, is a freshman at Purdue; Peter is in ninth grade. The empty nest syndrome is not happily anticipated at this point, Mary Bee says.

Doris Chatto Kimball has had a wish fulfilled . . . she and her husband bought the house they had rented when they were first married. Now they're having a second honeymoon with wall-to-wall children. Bob is the new Potentate of Syria Temple in Pittsburgh.

Now about the Bacons—social worker husband returns from Vietnam in June, after two years in Saigon with AID, the Agency for International Development. Luckily Bill got home every four months or so. Last summer the girls and I met him at Helsinki for the International Conference of Social Work, and we were able to absorb Scandinavian culture, except for all those open-faced sandwiches! In between times I teach junior high math.

Again this year Beth did more than her share of gathering the news by sending out cards to the entire class. That's a true friend, and I'm grateful.

See you at our thirtieth in June!

Ruth reporting:

Our author Jeanne Anna Ayres Widgery is in the process of final revision of her new novel, and still English department chairman at Winchester-Thurston. The Widgerys have been doing some traveling. Carolyn spent the summer in Greece as an American Field Service student. Rolande was in South America twice this past year, and four of the family went to the Virgin Islands for Christmas while Catherine skied in Quebec. Quoting Jeanne Anna, "All of you who knew how unathletically inclined I was will be amused that all three girls are active and good in sports." Carolyn is like her mother in one way; she is the Yearbook editor.

I had a nice Christmas letter from Alice Chattaway Kittle with lots of news. Son John was married last June and Alice and Jim love having a daughter. Jimmy is in his third year of law school and lives in the same building as John and Ann. Both boys work in the new store which makes Jim a happy father. The store has won three national awards and is nominated for a fourth. Alice is busy keeping up with her family and civic work. She goes to Monongahela frequently to see her mother who is still hospitalized.

Shirley Clipson Clarke has been off and about, too. She and Jamie flew to San Francisco in the fall to visit Cindy and did lots of sight-seeing in Tahoe, Carmel, and the Big Sur. Then before Thanksgiving she was off with friends to Cooks Forest. While here a cat adopted her. The fun began at home when she made a formal introduction of the kitty to her Basset.

"Haven't seen or heard from a fellow classmate in so long," wrote Elaine Fitzwilson Anderson. Occasionally she hears from Shiney and Steiny, but other than that she learns about us from the RECORDER. Life is busy and exciting for the Andersons. Two offsprings are in college, one in high school, and one in junior high. Tom's business that he started five years ago takes him around the world. And lucky Elaine goes with him as much as possible. Their last sojourn was to South and Central America.

Elizabeth Frey Wicke reports, "I'm still doing social work on behalf of neglected children for the Department of welfare." She added, also, that she had joined the happy ranks of grandmothers a year ago.

Jean Hammer Schoman says that they are busy beavers in Kittanning. Reverend Schoman has a very active church, and daughter Nancy (12) keeps things a constant "happening" with all her youth activities. Jean teaches Sunday School, is president of the Women's Association of the Faith United Presbyterian Church, and runs a free nursery school for underprivileged four-year-olds.

1968 has been a big year for Beth Howard Smith and her family. Dick retired from the Navy in July, and is working for Computer Sciences Corporation as a systems analyst. Young Carl was selected for a cluster group class at school. Beth does the usual PTA, with an exciting extra chore as Little League scorekeeper. Gram Smith and her friend came from Boston to spend the winter in La Jolla. Beth says everyone should come to San Diego for its 200th birthday.

Same old news says Natalie Lambing Paige; summer afloat, winter on "slats" or flat on her back if she gets too jazzy on those slats! The Paiges cruised the Inland Waterway to Florida again last fall, and plan a return trip in May. Peter, the oldest, is engaged to be married in June, after graduation from the University of New Hampshire. Douglas, a Lehigh sophomore, is a Phi Gamma Delta on the hockey team. Lee, the youngest and tallest, is at Choate. During spring vacation Lee will be treated to skiing at Aspen, Colorado. Natalie is fund raising for Chatham, working two days a week in a children's shop, and attends the Foreign Policy Lectures in the City. She loves reading about everyone in the RECORDER.

We are sorry to learn that Anne Lindsay York has had a long session at Tempel Hospital. Jim is with Bethlehem Steel and gives lots of time to the Boy Scouts. Daughter Margaret is on the college faculty at Bryn Athyn. Kenneth is happily married and in the computer business for Burroughs Manufacturing. Janet, the youngest, is a freshman in college.

"Happy to report two grandsons, Scott and Eric Bowman." This from Mary Linn Marks Colbaugh. Jack is Dean, Evening Division of Point Park College. Mary Linn is doing her thing at suburban fund raising, church work, etcetera, and even has time to read occasionally.

Someone once said "Go West," so Carolyn Martin took this journalistic propaganda to heart and plans to do just that, this summer. In the meantime, she is busy at Dickinson College, church, AAUW, community activities, social life and housework!

Adelaide Mitchell Hughes had a brief "stopover" visit with Sis and Walter (Helen Weller Tkach) at the airport when they came through from Honolulu on their way to Washington, D.C. Walter is the new personal physician to President Nixon. As you probably remember from earlier RECORDERS, Walter (Colonel USAF) was the White House Doctor under the Eisenhower Administration. Adelaide's son Jimmy is in his third year of medical school at Stanford. Last summer he worked in a hospital in Jamaica. Jim still does a lot of traveling and, you all guessed it, Adelaide goes with him much of the time. Last fall it was a month in Europe.

Louise McIntyre Casner was on a plane enroute to Pittsburgh when she wrote her news. "On the fly" she said she was going to Beaver to see her mother who was in the hospital. We hope all is well by now. Bob is being transferred to New York, so there is some mad house-hunting. Ted, their nineteen-year-old, is in Vietnam, and the fifteen-and-fourteen-year-olds are in high school. In January, "Weasie" was in Hawaii AND Palm Springs, and February finds her in London and France.

Your reporter "stayed put" in Garrison New York for three years! After 29 months all over the world in 25 years, I feel like a homesteader! My gad-about classmates make me wonder if I haven't gotten too entrenched. Chet is now a professional writer with three out of four cover stories in the last five months. He hopes in the near future to do nothing but write. However, he still has proprietary interest in his advertising-public relations agency to pay bills! Pam, the number one and only child, teaches this year at a Greek Orthodox School for underprivileged children of broken homes. I, too, am fund raising for Chatham when I'm not working part time at an art gallery. The remuneration is dubious but it's loads of fun. Fifteen '41-ers are on my WHERE ARE YOU LIST!

Mary Bertha reporting:

M-Day for Eleanore Asp Stahl and John is April 1, when they move into the new home they are building. Daughter Carol, still teaching in Rome, N.Y., got her master's in January. Young John is a pre-med freshman at Colgate.

We gained a new grandma on January 9 when Mae Oettinger Schweinsberg's grandson was born. All thrilled, Mae was off in a flash to Philadelphia to see him.

Another recent granny is Dorothy Oliver Friday. It's a boy too, Master Matthew Friday. Gulliver's Travels now boasts a staff of nine, and President Dottie is the busiest. She "moonlights" as well, lecturing on travel at a La Roche College night course.

Jane O'Neill Cox reports a wonderful Christmas at a ranch in Tucson. As for her daughters, Margaret had ten weeks in Europe last summer and will graduate from Mount Holyoke in June. Nancy is a Dickinson College sophomore, and Janet a tenth-grader.

Back at the old stand presiding over Grade 3 is Jane Pierce Eaton. Son John, now home from Alaska, is at Bowling Green University and will be married this summer. The post card wasn't adequate to describe the one-year old light of her life, grandchild Erica Eaton.

Congratulations to Eleanor Schaffer Kautz! On February 1 she became Director of Social Services of the Montgomery County (Ohio) Child Welfare Board which cares for 2,700 children. Another feather in her cap is that the national professional magazine, Child Welfare, is publishing an article by author Eleanor.

Jane Shidemanile Cross did substitute teaching in the Lancaster schools last semester. This semester she is at Franklin & Marshall in the education department helping to supervise student teachers.

It was nice to hear from Eleanor Tiel Rinne who teaches senior English at Mt. Lebanon High. Husband John is at Connelly Tech. Younger son Danny is an uncomplicated, delightful seventh-grader. Eric is majoring in Asian studies at Pitt. A summer trip to England and Scotland is in Eleanor's plans, also retirement from teaching before long.

Elinor Weibel Stoltz and Ed, sans children, had a great trip to California last summer. Currently she is embroiled in an art class, College Club, library work in Elizabeth's school, theme correcting in Eddie's school, plus gardening, all with much enjoyment.

Charlotte Wolf Beckman's good news is that her husband has recovered from that heart attack and has returned to his pulpit full time. Carl, Jr. is a freshman at the University of Toledo. Alan shines as a junior high school bandsman, and daughter Mary, now married, is continuing her nursing career in Cincinnati.

Up to their ears in tax work were Sue Wooldridge Fishburn and her lawyer husband. Alice and Mary are at the University of Iowa. The latter will graduate in nursing in June, and Jack will enter next fall. The youngest Fishburn, Bill, is a high school sophomore.

I, your correspondent, have been doing some traveling plus moving to Michigan. Last April we found that New Orleans and the Gulf Coast is the ideal spot for spring vacation. In October we had a wonderful trip to San Francisco and northern California after the big move to Michigan in September. Williamsburg at Thanksgiving was also fun. Since then I have been enjoying my first Michigan winter, Lake Huron, my cat Calico, and my good friends with whom I live. Our house overlooks the lake which today resembles the Arctic Ocean, but in summer it requires endless hours of ship-watching.

DEATH

Martha Jane Truxal Dougherty, July 23, 1968

Arch reporting:

It is with great sadness that we record the death of Martha Jane. It seemed especially poignant since we had enjoyed seeing her as her usual vivacious self at reunion in June. We extend our sincere sympathy to her husband, Wilson, and their five sons, and to her mother and sister. The class has placed a book in the Chatham Library in her memory.

About thirty of us attended one or another of the reunion activities. The highlight for me was dinner at dusk on the lawn at Benedum overlooking the city.

Pat Blue Byers, back in her home after the destructive fire, has son Paul at Pitt, Kris, a senior in high school, and Chuckie in kindergarten. Pat is business chairman of the Edgewood district for the United Fund.

Edith Cole has become a homeowner, commuter, gardener, fire-builder and mortgage-worrier all in one fell swoop. She is a physical therapist and part-time Army Reserve officer.

Mary E. Campbell Eckhardt missed reunion to see her mother receive an Honorary Award at Wells College. Son Robin is at Harvard, and Mary's antique business is flourishing. They sailed to the Bahamas in March.

Barbara Cooper Hepburn's daughter Kathy was married in August and is back at school. Her son is a junior in high school, and she and Jim are celebrating a 25th anniversary.

Marion Cruciger Nichol's oldest daughter, Carol, is a freshman at Lake Erie College. The two younger children, Linda and Bill, are in the 8th and 4th grades.

The Baileys (Jean DeWoody) do their traveling in the fall (the Canadian Rockies and West Coast last September) and the spring (two weeks in Florida) so they can spend the summer on the farm with the horses and cows.

Virginia Ditzes suggests that Abingdon, with its beautiful Virginia mountains and good summer theater, is a good place to visit and to live. She has a special interest in arts and crafts.

Peggy Dietz Abele reports Ralph, Jr., a junior at Allegheny, Jennifer at Pitt, and Peggy herself, still in the fourth grade!

Nancy Doerr Wilson and Fred are taking a sabbatical from being fond grandparents and are traveling to Europe in May. Both girls are married, and Rick is in his second year at the Naval Academy.

Jane Fitzpatrick McGough's Jane Ellen is a junior at Ellis, Tom a wrestling sophomore, and Hugh and Marita in the 6th and 7th grades. Jane keeps busy with volunteer hospital work and teaching.

Pinky Garrett Gitting's daughter Nora was graduated from Grove City in June and is teaching in Monroeville. Her wedding will be in June. Matt, 14, is busy with scientific experiments and learning Japanese. Dan and Pinky are involved in Scouting and teaching a conservation course.

Janice Goldblum is working with the poverty area programs of the Los Angeles city school district. She vacationed in Jamaica, Puerto Rico and New York City.

Louise Haldeman Richardson is enjoying her granddaughter. Younger daughter Cindy is a cheerleader at Churchill Area High. Louise Menges is now Louise's neighbor.

Ginny Hendryx Shank was sorry to miss reunion, but was consoled by her trip to the Virgin Islands to celebrate their 25th anniversary and to visit daughter Lyn, who runs a photography studio there. Sally will graduate from Lynchburg in June.

Claire Horowitz Klein's mother, Annetta Marks Horowitz, class of 1918, died in August. Our sympathy to Claire. Claire's family and her father spent the holidays in Israel. In March Claire presided at the Carnegie Library Biennial Program Services Institute for the Tri-State area. She and Seymour planned a trip to Las Vegas and the West Coast in April. Alan is a freshman at Duquesne and Evan is in grade school.

Peg Johnson Milton is attending the University of Arizona for post-master's work in remedial reading. She will be a reading consultant in Bowie, Arizona. She flew to North Carolina for daughter Chris' wedding in November.

Althea Lowe McCalmont and Nina Maley Ross send greetings.

Our news is that both boys are in college in Ohio—Wooster and Kenyon. We enjoyed Amy Core's visit in January en route to the Herb Society convention, and Marian and Marianne McKone's visit in November. I am writing this just before Dan, Patty and I leave for a February trip to Hawaii. Dan goes on an educators' tour to Russia in April.

An unsigned, air mail card says, "... After our cruise to Vancouver, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Mexico, Panama Canal, Nassau, and finally Miami, we plan to spend some time in Pittsburgh . . . I plan to stay a little longer. Roy will have to fly back early." By the process of elimination, we have decided that this has to be from Jane Evans Linsenmeyer—she has the only husband named Roy!

Marian reporting:

Thank you all for sending back the postcards . . . it was like Reunion all over again! Nothing dramatic has happened to the Arnheims since then, which may be just as well. Dave is in his junior year at Yale, a history of art major. Dan got his driver's license in October and has been chaffering Louise to ballet lessons, dancing school, etc., which is marvelous for everybody and helps me find the energy for projects like this!

Dorothy Marshall Autore's card came in immediately to cheer me on. As ex-class secretary, she knew! She wishes that she had some interesting news for the Recorder, but the "happenings" at her house are more for the Humpty Dumpty set.

Jane McCall Downing glows right through the postcard as she writes, "I had two weddings in 1968, Patty's and Diane's. I can't imagine what I'll do in '69 for an encore. Chip will graduate in June from Mt. Lebanon High School, and the real estate business is great!"

Janet McCormick McDole did have some dramatic moments since Reunion, where, she says, "It was good to see 1943 looking so maturely chic." She was on a murder-trial jury that was locked up for two weeks. Then, in October on vacation in California, she and Clate picked up a plane crash victim in Death Valley. Janet talked with Janice Goldblum, picking up a conversation started twenty years ago in Pittsburgh, and comments that Janice's work in Watts sounds very interesting.

Amy McKay Core reports Gordon a sophomore at W&J, Philip a senior at Westtown School, and Amy Jane entered there as a sophomore last fall. "Between vacations and Parent's Day, it is nice to be free to do my own 'thing,' which this year has been raising pledges for the Chatham Centennial Fund."

Dorothy Anne Minneci McCabe and Jack are delighted that Patti is a happy freshman at Briarcliff College.

Jeannette Myers Erler checks in to say no big news, but she is looking forward to some business trips with Jack.

Marjorie Noonan Ladley delivered her card to me in person, so we could chat. Tom, who won two "Most Valuable Player" awards in football this fall, is a senior awaiting "the word" from college. Barbara, Bobby and Jane are athletic and active.

Thanks to Janet Ross for sending along the YWCA brochure, so I could see how busy she is! Janet says they are planning for a new building—"We have 8½ acres and lots of hope!" She has a brand-new niece named—Janet Elizabeth Ross!

Class philosopher for '69 is Mary Schieweppe Hoffman, whose daughter Nancy attends Penn State. ". . . so we (Paul, Nancy, Beck and I) flew to the Orange Bowl. Penn State's victory should be an inspiration for a whole year—no odds are too great!"

Gloria Silverstein Goldberg says, "A month's tour of the American and Canadian National Parks last summer provided marvelous photographic possibilities with splendid results."

Barbara Steele Mangan and Bill celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary in August. Their younger daughter, Kathy, is a freshman at Denison University. "Much to my surprise, Bill and I are keeping both busy and happy, now that neither chick nor child is in the house!"

Delighted to hear from Marian Teichman McKone who has returned from Djaharte, Indonesia. Her husband has returned to Thailand for a year of flying duty. She and daughter Marianne are living in Germantown, and will depart again in August or September. Gussie reports visiting with Jean Archer Rothermel, Lib Esler Duncan, Amy McKay Core and Peggy Suppes Yingling.

"It's great to be back," says Louise Wallace Menges, whose family has moved to the Churchill area where Dave is in second grade. Merrily is with the Cook County Welfare Department in Chicago and lives with Sally, who is working for Marshall Fields. Bobby is a freshman at Purdue.

P. J. Wragg Bender's oldest son, Allen, graduated last summer from the University of Southern Florida and is working on his master's degree there. John and Jane are attending St. Petersburg Junior College, and Ray and Robin are in junior high. P. J. sends good wishes to the class, as did Peggy Suppes Yingling.

Dorothy Horne Mollenauer's married daughter, Linda, is an editorial assistant at the Charles Merrill Publishing Co. in Columbus, and Dorothy is busy keeping up with Bob, 20, David, 12, and her very active husband.

And Kay Von Fossen Johnson's daughter Julie is also a high school senior in the "year of decision."

I felt really rewarded to get a letter back from Lorny Wolf Regan, who has been living in Frankfurt for eleven years. Their oldest daughter, Kathy, is in her second year at Mary Mount, and Susan, 17, will enter college next summer. Anne is a sophomore in high school, Ellen in eighth grade, and Mary in sixth . . . "It's an Eddie Cantor-type family! Bill has taken much teasing, but proudly proclaims that he is a specialist. The Germans really feel sorry for him—some of them look at me slightly askance—no boys! We are all happy here—have a delightfully big, old-fashioned house; foyer, entrance hall, kitchen, powder-room, living-room, dining-room and library on the first floor; three bedrooms and baths on each of the second and third floors. It has been interesting to stay so long in one place—and a challenge. All the girls speak German—I had to learn early to get things done and food on the table. Every once in a while I have to laugh—studied French and Spanish at 'PCW', went to Trieste Chad to learn Italian, then here to Germany! Hindsight is great! Keep hoping to make a reunion some day—hope it's sooner than the 50th. Greetings to all . . . Lorny."

MARRIAGE

Agnes Conner to James M. Davis, July 30, 1966

Ours is still a class of travelers. Ruth Ford Woodward saw Europe last summer with the family. Her oldest will enter Chatham in September. Ruth Jenkins Horsburgh spent March in Nassau and Florida while Ken was off on a safari in Africa. Tish Heston Kidder and Fred went to Spain in February. Marion Updegraff Sunnergen swam in the Atlantic, Gulf of Mexico, Pacific, and many motel pools during their trip to Mexico last year. Marion should compare notes with Ginnie Alexander McKeag. She and Jack did Mexico in the fall. The McKeag children all ride their show horses and six-year-old Sally and her horse won the State Championship last year in the English Pleasure Class. Patty Smith Joyner and Archie were in Florida in January. They traveled to New England with the boys last summer and wound up their trip at Stone Harbor. Louise Flood Egan took her two oldest with her to Japan last summer for a reunion with her United States Embassy sister Marjorie. Later in the summer she piled all six little Egans in the car and drove to a ranch in Wyoming. Louise is currently running columns in two different papers. Marjorie Mayball revisited much of Canada with her mother. They took a second look at Quebec City, the Gaspe Peninsula, and Nova Scotia as well as lots of New England. Martha Cox Hartman with Howard, Carolyn Cosen Lampl with Jack, and Patsy Speers Bradley with Charlie, all vacationed in Bermuda within a few weeks of each other. Let's get together on this the next time, girls! Petie McFall Schall must have had the most exciting trip of us all. She and Allen attended the Inaugural Ball in Washington.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Helen Truxal Noyes on the sudden loss of her sister, Martha Jane, '43. Edith Succop Dibble has been in a wheel chair with a fractured left femur. We hope that by publication time she will be on her feet again. She reports that Ruth Lynch McFarland, '44, lives nearby and has been a great help. Emily Noll Zerbe had pneumonia but is now recovered. Marion Cohen lost her mother last year and she has been staying with her father in Cherry Hill, New Jersey. She reports the dust-is collecting on the piano but she is enjoying new friends and a more domestic life.

Marie Minnemeyer Houston has been covering the college circuit with her fifteen-year-old twin sons. Helen Robinson Forsyth has adopted a "think young" attitude as a result of her job as Director of Service to Military Families Department of the Red Cross.

Much of the news this time centers on our college age children. Grace Benner Crosbie has a son at Carnegie-Mellon. Janet Harkless Beattie has one at Bethany, Audrey Heston Kidder at University of Michigan, Ruth Jenkins Horsburgh at Bowdoin and at Denison, Trudy Schmeichel Hutson at the University of Maine, and Lois Allshouse Harnack at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Eleanor St. Clair Hurtt's son Bill is finishing at the Wharton Graduate School of Business. Jannie Beck Jameson has a son at Penn State and Patsy Speers Bradley one at Cornell, as well as each having a daughter in the junior class at Chatham. Polly Wilson Achenheil is also represented at Penn State with a daughter. Carla Gregson Dubs' daughter will graduate this year from Chatham. Phyllis Ingraham Stout has a daughter at Radcliffe, Jane Meub Evans, a freshman daughter at Denison. Carolyn Morgan Meller's daughter is at Pitzer in Southern California, and Miriam Davis Schellhaas' daughter attends Grove City College.

By way of information that came to the alumnae office, we learn that Luceille Egan Fleming is president of Dunhill of Harrisburg, a national computerized personnel service.

There was no great news from Helen Clewer Armstrong and Jean Dalzell McMillan but they responded to our cards with cheery "hellos."

Polly Wilson Achenheil and Carolyn Cosel Lampl are working on plans for our 25th reunion next year. Start thinking "Chatham in '70" right now. We will be there, will you?

Patty reporting:

Greetings, but no news, from Ruth Arnold Harmon, Jottie Beeson Schrader, Margie Bennett Sherts, Peggy Dodge Poin-dexter and Ruth Grasso Vaughn.

Patti Balch Lando and family have bought a charming carriage house in Pittsburgh. Their daughter is a student at Boston University.

Alice Burns Kasimirsky reports that the sunshine is wonderful in St. Petersburg. However, she and her family vacationed in the Smokey Mountains last summer. Alice recommends it for relaxation and recuperation from middle age drag.

Jane Campbell Little does the publicity for the Mt. Lebanon P.T.A. Council, finds time to take a three-year writing course from Famous Writer's School, and also is taking Russian language and history courses. She and her husband are also active in church music.

Margaret Cavanaugh Boylan and her family have moved into a new home. She is engaged in psychological counseling and teaching in a private academy in Mt. Lebanon.

June Davies Rush spent a busy fall checking out colleges for her daughter Jan, a National Merit semi-finalist. She also has a daughter in junior high school and an eleven-year-old. June does substitute teaching in the Keystone Oaks School District where Bob is again running for School Board.

Pat Gersmann Joseph relaxed in Florida last summer and has been doing regular substitute work in Pittsburgh schools this winter. Daughter Randy is transferring from Chatham to "who knows where to major in drama," and daughter Judy is a sophomore at Taylor Allerdice. Herb continues doing speaking engagements for Internal Revenue Service to accountant groups and C.P.A.'s.

Ellie Goldfarb Hirsch's older daughter is at the University of Rochester, and her fourteen-year-old is quite an artist. Ellie is teaching 11th grade English this year. She enjoys meeting old friends when they visit New York, and was looking forward to a spring visit with Rosemary Hoge Milliken and Phyllis Ingraham Stout '45.

Vicki Haverstick Myers relates that this is the last year to have three daughters in different schools—elementary, junior high and senior high. Kathy, the oldest, and Vicki spent Thanksgiving in New York enjoying the art galleries. Vicki is still doing market research, interviewing, and supervising. In her spare time she works with 30 Girl Scouts.

Rosemary Hoge Milliken is tutoring children with severe reading disabilities, work which she enjoys and finds very rewarding.

Lee Hutton Sage's daughter Chris is a freshman at Chatham, and, if you can believe this, son Enos is a junior at Syracuse University and the father of a beautiful little girl. Lee finds her role as a grandmother rather hard to believe since her youngest child is in kindergarten this year.

The class extends sympathy to Esther Kennedy Macdonald whose father died in June. In addition to this sad news, Esther reports that her husband was hospitalized for a severe stomach operation, and her son-in-law received a medical discharge from the Marines due to illness. On the brighter side, daughter Barbara is working and son Bruce is in kindergarten.

Each year at this time I realize how much I enjoy hearing from you. I want to especially thank Vicki for the delightful picture of her family. Dayne and I both lost our fathers in the past year. However, we are looking forward to the summer when we take Becky and Tricia to Europe to meet our A.F.S. daughter in Germany and take her with us to Italy, Spain and Portugal.

Gloria reporting:

Angie King Sedwick's husband is busier than ever as director of George Washington University Center which has doubled in size in the last two years. Son Curt graduates from high school and daughter Betsy from junior high.

In addition to teaching again this year, Mary Alice Kline Morris is back at school taking one course. The family has been enjoying daughter Marty's appearances in West Virginia University's musical productions and in the leading role in an opera. Son Steve will enter the University of Cincinnati School of Architecture in the fall.

Virginia LeFurgy Tubbs found a course in linguistics at the Claremont Colleges to be demanding but challenging. She continues to serve as president of the Southern California Chatham Alumnae Club.

The climate and "aloha spirit" are keeping Barbar Mason very contented in Honolulu where she has been living since October 1967. She is buyer for sleepwear and robes for the five Liberty House stores on the island of Oahu. Buying trips to New York and weekend trips to the neighboring islands have kept her busy.

Nancy McCleery Mullen has been teaching sewing and math (not modern) for the past seven years at Steubenville High School. "If anyone ever passes through Steubenville, please stop," says Nancy—she never sees anyone from college.

Jane McCormick Lohr, while doing some substitute teaching, has been giving some thought to a master's degree in library science, but needs a shove. Okay, Jane, shove off!

"We're on our way 'round the mulberry bush," writes Mary Lou Michel Tiernan. Children in four different schools this year, with Charlie at home—he graduates from high school in 1984. The Tiernans do physical and mental fitness at home so they can walk to commencement and comprehend the "new" ideas.

Jacqueline Neal Jackson will miss the mild winters of Texas. Jim started a new job in Denver and will be commuting weekends until the family joins him after son Neal's graduation. Jackie has been doing YWCA work which she hopes to continue in Denver.

Lois Pauer Moore is a mother-in-law. Tom, Jr. was married on August 17 and took his bride to Germany where he is with the Army Engineers. Lois shares her new Camaro on weekends with son Ed who is 6'5". No wonder she doesn't win out every weekend!

Jessie Smith James' children are presently representing three levels of schooling—a girl in college, a boy in 11th grade, and the youngest in 4th. And she feels that 14 years at the same address is something in this transient society.

"Heilo to all" from Doris Snyder Hook-way who is fully recovered from surgery in August and enjoying the nicest first grade she has ever had.

From Roberta Swann Tipton comes news of a happy October reunion with roommate Norma Trozzo Hopkinson in Harrisburg, and a tour of Spain, Portugal and Morocco in November. Roberta is publicity director for the Advertising Club of Central Pennsylvania, editor of their monthly bulletin "The Advocate," and busy with her job in the advertising department of the Patriot-News Company newspapers.

Nancy Walters Cobetto had just returned from her first trip to the West Coast. Jack had meetings in San Francisco and from there they went down the coast line.

Greetings from Janet Thomas who is looking forward to tennis again this summer, from Peggy McSwigan Friday whose children are growing up, and from Joan Werner Peterson who looks forward to gardening this summer.

It was fun hearing from you all—keep those cards and letters coming, folks. My latest interest is learning to play the organ—had a Hammond delivered last month and have started lessons. I have a long way to go, but I'll let you know when I'm ready for my first recital.

DEATH

Irma Cathcart Prine, December 25, 1968.
We are saddened to learn of Irma's sudden and untimely death in an automobile accident on Christmas day. We extend the sincere sympathy of our class to her husband and their six children, and to her mother. Irma was teaching in the Shaw Avenue School in McKeesport with the Urban Teacher Corps, experimenting with techniques to develop a more effective educational involvement with a group of students who have been called "culturally deprived." A book has been placed in the Chatham Library in her memory.

Jeanne reporting:

Marge Alexander Brinkworth has dropped volunteer work in the publicity-writing field to devote more time to free-lance writing. She is contemplating a move to Philadelphia this summer.

Mimi Altman Russell teaches sixth grade English and math. She and her three youngest sons are involved in the theater, having appeared in Finian's Rainbow, Summertime, and The Impossible Years. Rich, the oldest, is the wrestler.

Jeanne Balter Alexander paused from packing for Puerto Rico to answer her card. Lee will enter Penn State and Lynn is ready for high school.

Elaine Beyer Zivkovich is deep in mud waiting for the contractor to begin work on an addition to their house. David is in first grade and Bobby will go to kindergarten.

Ruth Brodnax Craig was hostess to an exchange student from Guatemala while her daughter Sue spent ten weeks as a student in Buenos Aires.

Claudia Bullers Janke has moved back to New Jersey; Eva Christy Frangoulis hopes to see many of us at our next scheduled reunion in 1971 when we return with the classes of 1950, 1951 and 1952; Ruth Clarkson Brown has taken up ice skating in her "old age" to the delight of her four children; Ann Lanicker Ulrich left her husband's "employ" and accompanied him to Bermuda for a winter vacation; and Lu Beery Wenneker says "Hello."

Jean Forward Frank is studying music and philosophy at Chatham. The sports-minded Frank family enjoys skiing, ice skating, and year-round tennis, their son having become a tennis pro.

I, Jeanne Nesbit, have enjoyed reading your replies. Thank you for sending them. Substitute teaching in the primary grades keeps me in touch with the "little ones."

Betty reporting:

Louise Diehl, after four moves in a two-year span, has settled in Wheeling, West Virginia as executive director of the Upper Ohio Valley Girl Scout Council. She still misses the Philadelphia area with its proximity of the seashore and availability of antiques, but she keeps busy with her two cats and 9,000 youngsters.

Barbara Evans Dismukes has been substitute teaching in her area schools for the past year, and is very involved with their four Golden Retrievers. Wall-to-wall dogs! They are now being trained for tracking so if you lose anything, call Barbara.

Mary Jane Ewing Sipe is doing volunteer braille transcribing for the Beaver County Branch of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind. Involving textbook material for blind students at Geneva College, she finds it both engrossing and rewarding. This and two teen-agers keep the Sipe household hopping.

Jean Fraser Bailey had just come back from a wonderful trip to Fort Lauderdale and the Bahamas, the first trip for Oak and her without the children in a long time.

Elaine Haase is still teaching, is active in church work, Pi Lambda Theta Western Pennsylvania Alumnae Chapter, plus many other things. She spent last Easter vacation in Nassau and, as usual, wished she could stay longer.

Roberta Hanson Helm writes how snow it has been in Wisconsin this year, the children having had many days off because of bad weather. Bill, the eldest son, is 18 and anxious to get his driver's license, the 13-year-old is acting like a "typical teenager," the 11-year-old girl is in fifth grade and the littlest one is now in kindergarten. Ralph continues to travel all over the country, so once in a while Roberta gets to go along. Her year was saddened by the sudden death of her father in May, but her mother still lives in Butler.

Harriet Kerr Daye spent last summer directing the Venango County Headstart Program, an enormous job, but with great rewards in watching the children who took part in the 8-week session. After this the family took an extended New England vacation.

Shirley Laurence Mason still loves living in the Golden West, and sends her regards to everyone.

Jean Mattern Myers invites everyone to San Diego, California in the year 1969 for the 200th anniversary of the founding of the city, the birthplace of California. Her husband is a computer programmer for the University of California. In their free time, they enjoy camping and boating, and have been to Guaymas, Sonora, Mexico four times. Jean also wrote that her father died last October.

The Weltman clan is also kept pretty busy, what with church, garden club, and three active youngsters. Thanks to all of you who sent me your news.

Marilyn reporting:

Eleanore Luthringer Mattson, in addition to her full-time job as homemaker, finds time to continue as financial secretary at church, become re-qualified as a water-safety swimming instructor, serve as an instructor at the Chagrin Valley Racquet Club last summer, serve as president of her local Chatham Alumnae Chapter, and assist the leaders of her daughter's Girl Scout Troop. There is no such thing as a spare moment at the Mattson household.

Barbara Moore Hagaman is busy with Cub Scouts and P.T.A. If anyone mentions P.T.A. president to her again she will run fast the other way. She hopes to be in Pittsburgh in June to see what the "new town" looks like by now.

Joan Morledge Michaelian is still quite busy with her four children and their activities. Her biggest "chore" at present is being Cub Scout den mother. She enjoys a drive through the Chatham campus last fall.

Jo Nusbaum Cone and husband enjoyed a visit with Jean Riithiluoma French and her family in Bermuda while they were there on a fishing trip. The Cones also enjoyed quail hunting in the Ozarks in December. Their oldest son, Steve, is a freshman at Coe College, and Artie is a sophomore at Mt. Hermon. Jo keeps busy with the family, three dogs, and substituting.

The biggest news from Frances O'Neil Kerr is their plan for a summer exchange of churches and home in Plymouth, England. They will be there for two months while Russ serves the Nutley-Plain Methodist Church. Meanwhile, the rest of the family plans to do lots of sight-seeing.

Shirley Patterson Kroske is college-shopping for Debbie, who is seventeen and a senior this year. Doug is fifteen and Mark eleven. This year Shirley is directing choirs in the Presbyterian Church.

Pat Pew Simpson is doing a new "thing" this year, teaching junior high science. Pat says that it is great fun and the curriculum is on a par with the science she learned in college, sometimes even more advanced! She has the same school hours as Edith, who is now in fourth grade.

Mary Lou Rider sends greetings to all and hopes for more and better things next time.

Carol reporting:

Joyce Robinson Hauck's children are finally all in school, ranging from kindergarten to 11th grade. Joyce is a licensed real estate saleswoman in Pennsylvania now. She also is having the last laugh over all those who chided her on her collection of odd facts. Two summers ago she won $1,100 on Jeopardy simply by remembering totally useless information.

Ann Shane Perkey is still teaching kindergarten and going to graduate school. Her husband Nevin was made assistant vice president of Pittsburgh National Bank and will be attending the University of Wisconsin Graduate School of Banking this summer. Their eldest son is a freshman at Indiana University. Doug, 15, and Tom, 9, just put up with the rest of them, she says. Ann sees Betty Melvin Nix, a neighbor, quite often, and hoped to see Mary Lou Tite Ellsworth in February on a trip to New York. Their Christmas visit with Timmy Mountford DeFrance was cancelled due to flu and bad weather.

Barbara Shields Sullivan has taken up substitute teaching in the Pittsburgh kindergarten and pre-primary school program since Mary Ann, 5, is now an active kindergarten. Her husband Bob, after managing several H. & R. Block income tax offices for three years, has taken the job of City Manager for the Johnstown area. This means they will be moving to Johnstown in May or June.

Beverly Stein Johnston still teaches second grade at St. Edmund's Academy, and husband Art is still with U.S. Steel. They are prep school shopping for their son Bruce who finishes 8th grade next year. Daughter Deb is in 5th grade at Winchester-Thurston. A lovely time was had by all on a trip to Williamsburg and Virginia Beach.

Joan Swannie Ruch, after eleven years of being a career girl, has spent the last six enjoying home and family. Their daughter is in kindergarten and their son in nursery school. Swannie is finding out all about car pools, P.T.A. and all the rest!

Mary Lou Tite Ellsworth and her family joined the local theater group for lots of fun. Her husband Bob had a ball performing in "Barefoot in the Park" and "My Fair Lady" while she and daughter Peggy worked backstage. Mary Lou is also active in the College Club and is a song and dance gal in "Once Upon a Mattress," their scholarship fund-raising play this year. Mickey McKee Barnes, '47, is also in the chorus. Mary Lou also enjoys her part-time job as medical secretary to a surgeon and had great fun hostessing wedding receptions at the church. Peggy is a junior in high school, which means college hunting soon.

Jean Tsagaris Karidis has gone back to substitute teaching in the elementary grades and finds it good to be back in school.

Rhea Jane Turner Risdon is now a social worker for the Department of Welfare, and is on a State Department scholarship in the Graduate School of Social Work at the University of Denver. She expects to complete her master's degree in 1970. Don, her husband, retired from the Air Force in 1964 and is now in the nursery and landscaping business. Their oldest daughter, Sheldon, 15, is a sophomore in high school, Susie, 14, in 9th grade, Scottie in 7th grade, Becky in 4th grade, and Cole in 3rd grade. Becky had brain surgery in 1964 for a tumor and has had many cobalt treatments. However, she is in school every day now, and so far holding her own.

Virginia Van Scoy Armin and her husband Perry adopted a boy, Robert David, on March 30, 1968. They have two daughters, Jennifer in 2nd grade, and Pamela in nursery school. Perry teaches American history at Bemidj State College.

Candy Walker Hyser has three sons, Chris, 14, John, 11, and Mark, 2, who has top priority with them all. Candy had a trip to Chatham with her niece last fall and met Jean Karidis and her daughter Cindy. It was Prospective Students Open House for high school seniors. She thought the campus looked beautiful!

Corinne Welch Patton manages to keep busy with church, Newcomers Club, Women's Club and Chatham Area Alumnae Club activities. Her husband Jim is as busy as ever with his trust work at Pittsburgh National Bank. John, Alice and Billy are in 6th grade, 2nd grade, and kindergarten, in that order.

Eleanor Wenning Atwell and family are avid skiers, which has changed their attitude about snow. She and husband Bob attended a surgical meeting last fall, and had a chance to enjoy some great theater experiences. They will be college-hunting for son Bob, 16, who will be a senior at Shady Side Academy next year. Amy, 13, is a freshman at Ellis School.

Eleanor Shaver Mitchell, husband Mitch, and Maurie, 10, were camping in Florida when she wrote. Mark, 19, and Mike, 17, were holding down jobs, school and the dog at home. They stopped in Atlanta, hoping to see Frances Koos Patterson, but she was ill with the flu. Mitch started his own advertising agency a year ago in their remodeled attic, and Eleanor went back to school to learn how to be his secretary-treasurer.

Martha Sutton Ammon, husband Jim, daughter Sarah, 13, and son David, 9, live fairly tranquil lives. Jim is a golfer and Martie plays lots of tennis. They spend their winter vacation somewhere in the Caribbean, and in the summer they go somewhere in the United States with the children. As a member of the executive board of the Community Church, Martie is trying to help resolve the racial question.

Mary Shumaker Drake, Peggy Thompson Weil, and Mizzie Wiles Knight have no news, but send their greetings to all. We extend our sympathy to Bobbie Watson Wagner whose sister, Anne Lofton, '48, died last spring. I am filling in for Bobbie who has resigned as secretary for this section of the class.

Biology credits at Community College mount for Nancy Aeberli Mooney, but she took time to go with husband Jim to California and New York. Nancy found the audience of "Hair" nearly as weird as the actors, but the performance wild and exciting.

The 1968 deadline was missed by Ethel Anderson Mesloh, and quite understandably with all their bouts with the doctors. Daughter Stephanie fell out of a tree breaking both wrists, son Karl had jaw surgery, youngest Nickey picked up impetigo; then after several bouts of flu, son Fred fell out of a car and was seriously injured. All this happened while husband Karl was working out of town. We didn't hear from Ethel this year, but certainly hope life is now brighter.

Gwen Bach Lammert, who enjoyed her two-year term on the Alumnae-Student Relations committee, has been busy with PTA and church activities, but took time out last summer to vacation in Ontario.

Who said 51'ers are getting old? Eleanor Balent Young reveals the secret to feel 10 years younger—learn to water ski. This was accomplished by the Young family on a camping vacation at Lake Wenanatchie on the east side of the Cascade Mountains. Eleanor has been taking courses in early childhood education, teaching a cooperative nursery school, and keeping up with the activities of five children.

Marilyn Black Auchterlonie had a great Christmas in Naples, Florida with her folks. Son Jimmie, 15, is a debater; Rich, 14, is a sports and people lover, and Amy, 2 is loved by all. At a Chatham "do" last spring, Marilyn got together with Barbara (Bunny) Hyde Asbury, Sarabelle Segmiller Krapfel and Nancy Baker Fekety.

Our news questionnaire arrived in the middle of crates and boxes as Suzanne Blair Murray and family moved into their new home. Daughters Edith, Kim and Jennifer are thrilled to have a swimming pool in the backyard. The Murrays spent a quiet four weeks at their summer cottage in Michigan. Suzie is looking forward to a more relaxed pace now that her term as president of the church Women's Association is over.

While children Jeff and Sue keep Eleanor Colvin Wiley on the go, husband Tom is doing well in his own fabricating company in conjunction with being a manufacturers' representative.

With only a few months of internship at Bethesda Naval Hospital Psychology Clinic to be completed for a very rewarding Ph.D., Anne DeShazo Robertson loves clinical and research work, and looks forward to work outside the academic domain next year. During a research trip to the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf in Pittsburgh, "Shazo" walked over our campus and discovered the "young" looking students. The greatest revelation was the change in Pittsburgh, and trying to find the "old" groovy spot, the Carousel (long time gone and torn down).

A great idea for Pittsburghers—the highlight of Shirley Elliott Johnston's summer was their vacation spent at the Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel showing the children the city (being a native Pittsburgher, Shirley hesitates to admit she had never seen the Blockhouse). Twenty-month-old Jeffrey keeps his mother trailing after him while Jill and Jay Tommy are in school. Shirley is registrar for the church kindergarten and nursery school and teaches Sunday School.

Norma Jean Gittens Stoffer has 90 second-graders in her reading class who are delighted and awed by the fact that she really knew the author of "Mrs. Doodlepunk" (Dorothy Dodworth Scullin). Norma Jean and Van continue classes at Baldwin Wallace and plan to pursue their latest hobby, golf, in North Carolina for spring vacation.

Not much news from Colorful Colorado according to Ann Gould Moore, but the family had a three-week vacation in California last summer.

Jean Graham Hague, on leave of absence since December 1968, hopes to return to Allegheny General Hospital where she has been evening supervisor for the past six years. It was very nice of little Thomas Edward to arrive just in time for our Recorder news deadline. Jean and Fred took their sons, aged 12, 11 and 8, on a trip to Williamsburg for Christmas.

Believe it or not, Barbara ("Shipa") Hoy Dible has had the same address for a whole year, and has become involved in volunteer work with retarded children. The Dibles vacationed in Canada and Upper New York State for a family reunion. "Shipa" and Ivy Watson Baird are neighbors. Ivy is still enchanted with Iowa, being elementary school librarian plus mother and homemaker, and can hardly believe that her boys are already in high school, junior high and 4th grade.

Pat Kennedy Earley, whose life is never dull, says that Jeff, 14, Pete, 12, and Janet, 7, claim their new brother is smarter, better behaved and better looking than they are. The Earleys had a wonderful visit from the Donna Bischoff Meess family.

Last summer Louise Larson McGeary and family (husband Hunter and son Hunter, Jr., 8) flew to California for a month's vacation and returned by train, enjoying stops enroute.

Mary Ellen Leigh McBride recently became a member of the "New Home Owners Club" and loves being surrounded by a number of Chathamites from other classes. "Mel" and family vacationed in Wyoming last summer.

Everyone would agree with Pat Meyer Kovacs that celebrating Christmas with her children on St. Maartens Island in the Caribbean beats shoveling snow. David is in 9th grade, Lynn in 6th, and Pat continues to work part time for the Center of Occupational Mental Health. The Kovacs spent part of last summer in California.

Do you know the thrill of receiving a new Dodge-Charger wrapped with a big red bow on it for a Christmas present? Laura Miksch Diaz does—a gift from her husband. May will mark 15 years as church organist for Laura.

In the midst of major remodeling Patricia O'Keefe Beede almost lost our news request card, but made the deadline to tell us all is fine and life goes too fast in the usual uproar of raising boys.

Marguerite Paoly Marshall has been "out of touch" while moving around, but now is happily settled in Michigan. Husband Arn is a Labor Relations Director and their three sons are teenagers. Music is still an important part of life. Last September, Marguerite attended a Detroit Alumnae Club luncheon to hear Peggy Donaldson speak.

It was a great reunion with many Chathamites for Stella Pavloff on her visit and tour of the new Pittsburgh last summer before returning to teach in Los Angeles.

Nancy Perry Vesely found it a great thrill making 12-year-old Carol's first long gown for Rainbow Girls. Edward is a typical, active 8-year-old.

Not many nursery school teachers have their own special "helpers" but Adele Pfeifer Ferianc does. Her youngest daughter goes along the three mornings Adele teaches at her church nursery school. In the afternoon, "Mother's little helper" takes leave of her duties to trot off to regular kindergarten.

An active and exciting 1968 is putting a mildy for Mary Jane Regel Hagemeister. In the midst of moving into their new two story colonial, of which M. J. designed every inch, she and George took a small Girl Scout Troop to Canada and Niagara Falls. In July, George was elected Mayor in August, it was out to Long Island for a total collapse and rest; in October, a luncheon with "Mugs" Sullivan Hannon in New York; in November, to Atlantic City for the League of Municipalities convention with George re-elected to another term on its Board of Directors; on New Year's it was skiing at Stratton Mountain in Vermont. Then on January 17, the entire Hagemeister family packed for the Inauguration in Washington, D.C. and the Inaugural Ball at the Shoreham. Somehow in between all this, M. J. has been Pipe for the Girl Scout Council and has a new job on the G.S.C. Board.

Emily Seaberg Barends claims she and Frans are typical child-orientated, suburban parents to their five children, Jerry 13, Frans 9, Jamie 7, Andrea 4, and Emily 2. Morocco was particularly enjoyed on their three-week vacation last September, which also included Spain and Portugal.

It was a wonderful surprise to receive long distance call from Sarabelle Segmiller Krapfel. "Seggie" was hardly settled in Michigan when Argus corporate offices were moved to a "should be permanent" location in South Carolina. Dick, a vice president of Argus, Inc., is participating in the Master's Golf Tournament in Augusta, Georgia.

The change of climate from Houston to New York hasn't been too hard for Doris Seese Bell's family. The children, Kara 16, Dan 11, Jane 15, and Steve in the 11th grade, love the snow. Maybe between husband Ken's too-frequent business trips including two foreign assignments each year, Doris will get her wish to return to Pennsylvania.

The thrill of the year for Marlene Shettles Stovicek was daughter Jan's announcement that she wants to go to Chatham. Now they are waiting nervously to see if Chatham likes Jan as much as she likes Chatham. They have completed the new building for their business where Marlene works part of every day for Larry. She "relaxes" by refereeing homework every night, sewing, and taking dancing lessons. She also relaxed at Montego Bay with ten friends last March, at San Juan in May with Mother, plus two weeks in August at cottage at Madison on Lake Erie.

Marlene got to see Alice Ann Jones Winner before she finished the 1967-1968 college year, received her teaching certificate at Elizabethtown College, and returned to Vienna with son Chris. Thanks to Marlene's sharing her Christmas card with us, we learn that Alice Ann finds teaching great fun and a challenge in spite of being a novice and the tremendous amount of work. She teaches 25 children from 11 different nations. Husband George is planning to do some writing now that he has retired.

We disagree with Barbara Sidehame Donaldson that anyone would dare say "Who is this Nut?" just because w haven't heard from her for so many years. Quote from Barbara, "Life has been so simple and wonderful and uncomplicated that I really never feel I have any news unless I have the great miracle of birth to report, and not everyone thinks that's so great." Therefore, after Barbara's teaching for five years, we are grateful to Mark for joining the Donaldson's three older children, aged 15, 13 and 10.

Audrey Sommers Wigham's note began, "I'd like to tell you the following news: I've been nominated for Homemaker-of-the-Year; Bob has retired at 40; we've bought an 80-foot-yacht which we plan to tour the world in; and our four-year-old Sheila has been placed in fifth grade. I'd like to tell you, but who'd believe it." Audrey, we are sure many more share your daydreams, but thanks anyway for saying "hi" to all.

Last November, Elaine Stevenson Bolanis acquired a new sister-in-law, Chathamite Nancy McQuillan Bolanis, '61. Elaine has no problem being idle since husband Bill's candy store-restaurant has been relocated in East Liberty due to that area's renovation.

Growing interest in horses prompted Marguerite Sullivan Hannon's family to follow the shows. After the usual frustrations and joys, their new home, with stable for their horses, was completed in Fox Chapel. Future plans indicate a pack trip in Montana.

Bertha Thompson Thompson announced that husband Bard has been appointed Dean of the Graduate School of Drew University. Bert and all are well and happy.

Anyone in the area of Indiana, Pa. is invited to stop in to see Joan Walthour, who is teaching at the college.

Joan Young Drugmand reports running back and forth between Harrington Park, N.J. and Vermont. Son David, in high school, is wrapped up in sports, and daughters Ellen and Jane get dragged to all his games. Joan hasn't yet decided if this will make the girls sports fans or haters.

After a marvelous ten-day trip to London, England, it is back to the usual activities for Lois Young Flyte—church, League of Women Voters, Chatham Alumnae Group of Cleveland, volunteer work at the school library, along with her children's interests. Lois was proud to hear about the wonderful future of Chatham when Mr. Leonard Doran spoke at the Cleveland Alumnae Dinner.

Our "Hello—no news" classmates include Esther Bender Shaffer, Natalie Egar Novick, Jane Feiler Miller, Margaret Kennelly Murphy, Shirley Kerchner, Anna Mae Landefeld Eckert and Marilyn Pfohl Donnelly.

As for your secretaries, Maddie, busy with the activities of Penny, 14, John, 7, and Gregory, 4, can't wait 'til Greg goes to kindergarten next fall. Then she plans to spend all afternoons in the bath tub eating bon bons.

Rosella, enthusiastic about her position at U.S. Steel with the corporation's Medical Director, always manages to squeeze in time to travel and see the world, the latest trip being to the Bahamas last November.

Your secretaries are truly delighted with every word we receive from you and appreciate all prompt replies. Again we say, "keep those letters coming."

Fran reporting:

In addition to the usual housekeeping chores, a number of classmates are engaged in other interesting pursuits. Sheila Burke Loeffler is working with socially maladjusted children. Jeannine English Abel has been teaching and working on her concert schedule. Katherine Coleman Thomas is teaching prenatal classes at Elgin Hospital. Marian Gallup Drummond has twenty-three piano students, and Sally Hoffman Spangler teaches and works with the high school band.

Other news comes from Diane Gray Hall who has been elected to the Harrisburg Charter Commission, and from Elizabeth Frantz Purdum who writes a social column for the local paper.

Husbands are also in the news. Peggy Harbison Hendrickson reports that Don has finished Test Pilot School. Janet McKain Faucett's husband Dave has been appointed to the Allegheny Court of Common Pleas as a judge.

Thelma Fiori Lacerte and Joan Fischer Boyd are busy decorating their new homes.

The following classmates send greetings to all: Marjorie Beard Kelley, Alice Berry Adams, Amy Botsaris, Lou Colborn Dobbs, Marie Damiano Carricato, Sally Crum Ferrell, Lois Glazer Michaels, Helen Halpern Berkson, Lynn Hann Baxter, Nancy Hegan Wadsworth, Betty King Olson, Barbara Logan Brown and Nancy Lutz.

Diane reporting:

First off, special thanks to co-chairmen Al Berry Adams and Marcia McDowell Bennett for making our reunion such a great one, and to Nancy Hofsoos for donating her apartment for the party afterward. It was such fun seeing so many of you again, and, for the benefit of those who weren't there, we've held up nicely and are pretty well-preserved, considering. Do hope more of you will be able to make it to the next reunion. Start planning now for June 1972!

This seems to be our year for catching up on back news from people we haven't heard from in ages. Associate member Dr. Gretel Gatschberger Sigmund wrote that she is still working for Austrian Airlines, and had just returned to Vienna from Dallas where she took part in the North Atlantic fares negotiations.

From Barbara MacDonald Whalen comes word that they have been in Michigan for almost three years now and the children have finally lost their Texas draws. The Whalens had a delightful vacation on Lake Van Etten last summer. They hope to visit Mexico in the fall without their three live wires. Bambi hasn't been back to her old home town of San Luis Potosi in nine years and says that her accent is becoming horrid. Hope the trip works out for you, Bambi . . . wish I could go along!

All sorts of news from Jean Maize Kmetec. She met her husband at Wright State University where he is a professor of biology and Jean was in charge of the freshman biology labs and doing some teaching. Jean has now stopped working in favor of being a full-time mother to Emil's two children, Jeff, 7, and Jamie, 9, as well as to her own three girls, Janet 12, Julie, 7, and Jeri, 4. It must be quite a household! The Kmetecs will be moving into their new home in July.

Another stranger heard from was Ann Matlack Wieland, who wrote of her marriage in 1954 and three fairly grown up children, Jeffrey, 14, Mark, 12, and Linda, 10.

Four children and all that goes with them are keeping Nancy McGhee Mangold busy these days. The Mangold's biggest joy is the beautiful area in which they live, where they skate on the lake in the winter and swim in it in summer, a great place to raise children.

All is well and fairly routine with Jane Montgomery Dickey and her family. She reports that Nancy Patterson Courtney now lives just two miles from her and their daughters are second-graders together.

Gloria Palmer Hadsell is still working as a teacher's aide at Memorial School, is working on the Chatham Centennial Fund campaign, and keeps busy with daughters Sidney, 10, and Heidi, 6. Her involvement in Republican politics and the shock of victory proved a bit too much and she landed in the hospital for nine days.

Holly Sherrard DeMart writes of a nine-week trip to California in their trailer last summer and of plans for short trips in a new trailer this summer. Herbie, 13, will go to Scotland and England with his Scout troop while Nancy, 10, keeps her parents company. Herb is still teaching at the Naval Academy, and Holly invites all future D.C. sightseers to visit them in Severna Park.

A delightful cruise on an ore carrier last summer (courtesy of Great Lakes Steel), and plans for a winter trip to Las Vegas and Southern California were the big news items from Jane Smith Donaldson. She does substitute teaching and attempts to keep up with her 11-and-9-year-olds.

Alice Snook Kalla says that four boys and all of the activities associated with them are more than enough to keep her busy. However, with Dick on the Ski Patrol, Snookie finds time to ski when the weather permits.

The class extends sympathy to Jean Sweitzer Bower on the sudden death of her father in November, just 27 months after her mother's death. Jean reports that Paul has changed jobs (still in sales, though) and that she is working part time for a Columbus department store.

Judy Welch Layton moved to Tucson in November and has decided to "make her mint" in the real estate business. She would love to hear from any Chathamites who might get out her way.

Apparently Marge Whitfield Piker has not been heard from for a long time either since her news this time goes all the way back to her marriage in 1956! She says that, compared to most of the class, nothing exciting or even notorious ever happens to her or her family. While her husband is acting as a Cub Scout den "mother," Marge is completing her third year as a Girl Scout leader. Last summer she attended a 10-day conference on Girl Scout Adult Training at Camp Macy, the National Training Center. The Piker children are Eileen, 11, Keith, 10, and Michael, almost 3.

Although Trisha Wilkinson Bloomfield didn't return her questionnaire, she did send a Christmas card in mid-February (!), so I will pass on her news. She met Frank while skiing, was married in November, and is still trying to get settled in their new home. Trisha will stay with Ginn & Company while Frank works part time and continues his pre-veterinary studies. She was planning a February trip to Arizona where she hoped to see Judy Layton, Anne Beaumont Sanborne and Dee Rofey Ober, two former members of our class.

"Nothing new to report," wrote Mary Carroll Williams Hofer, "just keeping busy with all the things mothers of three children normally do." M. C. did mention that Catherine Derrick Zubal, who was in our freshman class, now has eleven children and a new boat!

Marie Timothy Obermann, Claire McGrael Johnston and Shirley Myers Simcik say "Hello" to all.

The Swift household continues to be a veritable "chaos corner" with four abnormally active children. I hope there will be less noise and confusion once we move into our new and larger house this summer. I got away from it all last summer for a week by myself in San Antonio where I had a marvelous time visiting and gossiping with Judy Layton and Priscilla Sanford Johnson and listening to Judy play the piano. (That was before Judy moved to Arizona.) I also attended a delightful, small Chatham-type luncheon given by Judie Bierman Linowes, '52, at which the gossip flowed while I poured.

Thanks to all who responded to our plea for the class treasury. If you are among those who might still like to contribute, you may send your dollar, or check made payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account, directly to the alumnae office where our treasury is on deposit.

Marjorie Mounts Hartz (Mrs. Lawrence R.), 3902-60th Street, North, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33713

Carla reporting:

Kay Avers Headley and family enjoyed a week's vacation at Stone Harbor, New Jersey last summer. Then they embarked on a new adventure in camping made interesting by having two of their four children in diapers. More camping trips are anticipated for this summer, so all in all it wasn't that bad!

Barbara Beacham Volk, better known as the "Perry Mason of Rosslyn Farms," thinks she may have to go to law school to keep up with her duties as Justice of Peace. Barb and husband Dick had a wonderful week skiing at Vail, Colorado in January. Teaching fifth grade in Sunday School keeps her alert too!

Sandy Blumberg Sonnerborn and Barbara Braun Bajoras are very busy with five children—both have three boys and two girls—a full house.

Last year Marilyn Campbell Kahn taught adult night classes in science and social studies for kindergarten teachers, contrasting to her daily first-grade classes. A vacation in the Smokies in North Carolina and a quick trip to Pittsburgh with the children was a nice change of pace before school started again.

Landscaping, ceramics, decorating, illustrating, Arts Festival planning, art patron for her daughters and refuge for artists occupies Eleanor Carroll Molnar's time. Suggie has been doing the landscape design for all the new buildings husband Mike designs, including the Uniontown Public Library. She is also arts and humanities chairman for the Greater Uniontown Chamber of Commerce, and redecorated the dining room and bar of the Uniontown Country Club.

Fred and Joan Evans Taylor are thoroughly enjoying a new life in their historic old home. The original part is about 160 years old. Joan finds her weekly volunteer work in an inner-city nursery school most satisfying.

Greatest event for Nancy Follett Waichler was the arrival of Leslie with final adoption proceedings complete with a Navajo middle name. Nan was general chairman of the Woman's College Board

Forum on February 25, with a distinguished panel of speakers discussing "The Woman's College: Dinosaur or Dynamite, The Trend to Co-education."

Zoe Ghiates Lalos delighted in seeing the girls at the reunion. Zoe hopes to take advantage of the "Big City" after moving near New York from the Washington, D.C. area.

A visit to Washington before the Inauguration was quite exciting for Marcia Glazer Arnold and husband Larry. Marcia has retired from her professional life at Pitt to be with baby Susan.

Lavinia Grimes Simons had just moved but was not settled into her new contemporary home designed by architect husband Tom.

Still much absorbed in organizing courses in the language arts for the University of California Extension in San Francisco is Marilyn Hill. She is looking forward to spending a month in Japan in the late fall.

Janet Hoy Sterling is teaching a class of eight trainable junior high retarded students one hour a day and finding this field of special education quite interesting and rewarding. She also teaches Sunday School, leads the junior choir, and says her family is taking up skiing.

Molly Lenhardt Rowden's husband Cliff is now on the metallurgical staff of Republic Steel Corporation. She loves living near Lake Erie and sees Ruth Levison Kalish and Dotty Bigg Milstein occasionally.

Sending greetings along with the others is Marie Kibler Gaerner.

Such fun for me talking to Libby Graham Williams, Mary Ellen Donaghue Ploeger, Mary Jane Kahn, Pat Gordon Moore, Janet Loos, Angie Fee Levy, Ann Cohen Winklemen, Barbara Wagner Fredette, Yvonne Brooks Saxton and Dottie King Lind at the reunion. A July fishing trip to Canada with our sons was most rewarding, and an October trip to Quebec with just Chuck was more than rewarding. I have retired from paid employment to full-time volunteer. Your notes were delightful and I loved every bit of news you sent.

Jean reporting:

Pat McCormick Goodrich is enjoying a busy art career, attending lectures and classes in Bethlehem and New York. During the year she has sold three paintings, won a first prize, and in March exhibited in a four-man show at the Pennsylvania Playhouse.

Still busy with Junior League, Joan Monahan McFalls is now serving her second term as president and planning a trip to California in May.

Ruth Oberheim Webb writes that family life is about the same, but that they did enjoy a month of touring California last summer.

Scouting and all the other activities connected with a growing family keep Marion Sweeney Guthrie on the go! She extends an invitation to anyone in her area to visit and says she is also looking forward to the 20th reunion. By that time her oldest daughter may be applying for admission to Chatham, or possibly a son if the present trend continues.

Mannie Thorne Wright has been substituting as a kindergarten teacher, and had just returned from a trip to Williamsburg.

The Wrights are planning a future trip to England to visit Mannie's sister.

The Research Institute for the National Art Education Association has kept Barbara Wagner Fredette traveling. She had been to Salt Lake City, and was going to New York as an instructor in March. Summer plans include a two-week trip to Seattle to give a workshop in elementary art education at Seattle Pacific College. On this trip she will be accompanied by her two sons, aged 12 and 14.

"We survived the big rain," writes Nancy Walker DeWard from California. Nan is still teaching, but will be retiring in June to keep up with her busy family and continue her work with A.A.U.W. She reports a new interest, golf, and is looking forward to seeing Joan Monahan McFalls in the spring.

A busy family of scouts, both boy and girl, and a full-time job keep Nancy McCafferty Watts hopping. Six out of eight in the family are registered in scouting and two of the oldest boys worked during the Inauguration in Communications Centers and at the Inaugural Ball. Nancy is a store manager for Top Value Enterprises. She also reports that her cousin Marilyn Hill had a wonderful trip to Russia last summer.

Marjorie Mounts Hartz and her family are now enjoying life in sunny Florida.

As for the Rhodes, we made our annual trip to the shore and to visit the Gauts in Philadelphia last summer. In September we returned to Atlantic City to attend a convention. All of you who did not attend the reunion missed a great day at Chatham. Start planning now for the next one in 1973. Your letters were most interesting and we are sorry we cannot include all the news—keep writing!

Betts reporting:

Hope the lack of news this year means you're all saving it for the reunion! Lynn Backus Wilson writes that she'll be there on her way back from Portland, Oregon, and San Francisco—sounds fancy! She and Hal vacationed in Jamaica "to see if it was still the same after 11 years." Jean McIlwraith McCally and family were so happy with their vacation last fall at Trekking Inns (good horses, low cost, no Americans) in the British Isles that they sound like they'll be off again first chance they get.

Dorothy Dieckmann Harman and David are on their way to Ft. Lauderdale this spring for a month of sunshine for daughter Anne who began the year with mononucleosis. While vacationing at Lake Erie last August, they had fun reminiscing with Mildred Schulte Pastor and family. On a real "toot" south, Ginny Ladish Angulo and Carlos visited Argentina, Uruguay, Chile and Peru in December. Ginny again extends their welcome to any of you traveling to South America. Across the world, Polly Fleming also renews her invitation to touring Chathamites for afternoon tea. Polly still adores England. She had a wonderful holiday skiing a Norwegian valley in April. "I loved Norway, where everybody breaks into song at a whim, even singing American folksongs I'd never heard of." A first-in-three-years visit from her parents and one from Carolyn Spark Hitchcock and Pete topped off a good 1968.

Barbara Johnston Tredennick joined her husband, in Europe on an ophthalmic surgery fellowship, for a wonderful two-weeks tour; then home to settle Jack in his new ophthalmology office. Sandy Esmen Cherenow and son took advantage of Neil's R&R and visited him in Hawaii last March. In April, she bought a house and Neil finally came home from Vietnam in June.

A note to Mrs. Swisshelm in the alumnae office brings us up to date on Marcia Froimson Baum. Dr. Baum is director of the newborn clinics at Beth Israel Hospital, one of four pediatricians working in a child care program in the Roxbury ghetto, and an instructor in pediatrics at Harvard Medical School. Marcia is working as a speech pathologist and teaching two graduate courses in speech pathology, one at a university affiliated state school for retarded patients, and another at Emerson College. She was pleased to represent Chatham at the inauguration of Morris Abrams as chancellor of Brandeis University.

If you don't mind an occasional foot-wetting, California must be the place to be. Judy Kohn Goldie reports a busy, happy life and Nancy Kasper Nixon and Rick loved every minute of their tour of the state last fall (they also had time for a stop in Las Vegas which added to the general impression).

The range of activities we're all involved in keeps getting broader. Marilyn Grady Candler writes, "George and I are now a husband and wife team at our church—he's choir director and I'm full-time organist. My first two funerals were unnerving, but otherwise I'm having great fun." Among other things, Barbara Baker Kreindler has opened a small children's boutique business in their home! Alice McGee Collins, in addition to her sermon-writing and responsibilities as interim preacher at a local Baptist Church, is now leading monthly discussions for the Wilkes College Faculty Women's organization. She and Carver are in the process of buying a big, old 10-room home which will give her space for a studio, so the brushes must still be flying. And Carol Grim LeClere and Bill have apparently, somewhat out of necessity, become real estate nuts. They're moving to Washington, D.C. in June for two years, so will rent the "oldie" in Marblehead (which they own), rent a home in Washington, and summer-vacate to their cabin in Michigan. They're fine, but frequently confused, and very busy papering and painting "all by the ocean roar!"

Dorothy Devine Agnew and Pete have kept up with Irene Patterson Siebert and Dolores O'Neill Cooper and report them and their families both well. Dottie has every minute full and happy with chaffering, feeding, etc. Mary Elliott Donaldson fits the same description, but she must have some spare seconds because they have been trying, since a year ago February, to adopt a little Korean girl through the Pearl Buck Welcome House. Baby, when she comes, will make five little Donaldsons. Last of the "helios" comes from Kathy Iannuzzo who still loves her work as a social worker at the School for the Blind.

Sorry I'll miss seeing many of you at the reunion, but "enjoy!" as I've enjoyed this term as your secretary. Have another good year!

Lynn reporting:

The big news from Jackie Miller Van Doren is moving into an old hotel (circa 1900-1915). It has 18 rooms (all bedrooms), door transoms, 13 acres of woods, and a real barroom with taps and a 20-foot bar. They are busy restoring and refurbishing, and taking care of four girls, three dogs and a cat.

Gisela Paoli Villafana is secretary of the Exchangette Club of Millaville, works with community activities for a group of mentally retarded children, and is taking guitar lessons. She had a nice visit last summer with Nancy Galley. If airlines can promise her a flight to Pittsburgh without a detour to Cuba she may make it to reunion.

Jane Pattie Vyssotsky also has an old Victorian house, and she has discovered that Helene Crowe Johnson, '54, is her neighbor.

Maggie Poolos Yeotis' husband was elected Probate Judge last fall after having served as a municipal judge.

California living seems to agree with Stephanie Ruben Klein. Harvey is pathologist at the Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center, and is president of the Friends of the Sausalito Library. Stephanie handles the annual book sale and is in charge of the volunteer program in the local school district.

Eleanor Skinner Wainwright says Bill is teaching philosophy and religious studies at the urban campus of the University of Wisconsin. Mimi is in PTA and the usual things. Her daughter said, "How is it that we're new in town and already you're a big deal in everything?"

Jane Stocker Burfoot is continuing to be hostess to foreign visitors including students from South America, Korea and Africa. She also sold about $500 worth of cards and calendars for UNICEF.

In addition to her marriage, Carol Vogel Scrivens' news is settling into a new apartment and a new job. She is now librarian of a special materials collection for teachers of handicapped children at Hunter College.

Rhoda Weitsman David is looking forward to one daughter in nursery school, one in kindergarten and only the baby at home.

There is no special news from the Hawkers. Karen started junior high school this year and I am beginning to realize what the early teens are all about. We visited Jane Stocker Burfoot in Washington, D.C. last fall and had a marvelous time. On the way to our vacation last summer we stayed overnight with Lynn Backus Wilson in their new home.

Don't forget Class Reunion. From the replies I received, it doesn't look as though our class will be too well represented. Other classes sharing in the group reunion on June 7 will be 1956, 1958 and 1959.

Joan Winters George, a daughter, Sarah
November 23, 1968

Jan Roux Seaman writes from Lebanon, Pennsylvania that she is now a first grade teacher in a pilot program introducing Human Development in the local school system. Jan is also house hunting, looking forward to finally owning their own home.

Doris Redman Foster is very excited with her "new old house" of the 1920's vintage. Doris' husband John has a new job teaching in the Meadville Junior High School. He is also working on his thesis to complete his master's degree.

The Chicago Chatham Alumnae group is still very active. Lynne Hughes Mayer reports seeing Lil Kubrick Miller at a recent meeting and having dinner with Mimi Skinner Wainwright '56. Besides being president of her local nursery board Lynne is kept busy with her three children, ages 10, 8 and 5.

Sandy Wagner Gross, another Chicago alumna, also has gotten together with Lil and Harry Miller and their families.

From Michigan we heard from two other classmates. In Ann Arbor, Fern Klein Kallstone was looking forward to a visit to Sarasota, Florida with her new son and daughter Sara. The Kallstone's will be leaving Ann Arbor in July when Charles completes his Ob-Gyn residency. The Air Force will decide their destination.

Nancy Sherwood Willcox and her husband are serving as part of a team ministry in the Congregational Church in Benton Harbor. Nancy's husband has become primarily interested in the Church's role in the community. This presents many interesting problems and issues in an urban area which is quickly becoming predominately Negro.

Jinnie Nabors Kearney's twin sons, Billy and David, continue to keep her busy. One labor of love squeezed into her schedule was the planting of a rose garden.

A long cheerful letter from Sally McQuiston Schneider indicates great enthusiasm about their new surroundings and Bob's new position. Sally, with both girls in school, is tutoring, and expects to have a regular position at the Sunset Hill School next year. She was in Pittsburgh in March for a visit with her family.

It was nice to hear from Carol Cristiano Raymond. She has enjoyed seeing many of our classmates this past year including Ann Reynolds Wise and Parthy Karfes. Carol also told us of some very bad news. On behalf of the class of 1959 we would like to send our deepest sympathy to Judy Davis Levitan and her husband on the loss of their daughter Debby.

Bette Jo Bergard Greenberger sends news about further travels. The Greenbergers had an apartment in Tel Aviv last summer, spent this Christmas at the Mardi Gras, then went on to Guatemala and the Yucatan. Bette Jo is on sabbatical leave, and in her leisure time she has become a licensed welder. The Greenbergers are excited about the reunion and plan to come to Pittsburgh with Ellie Feibusch Kimmelman and her husband Marc.

Also looking forward to the reunion is Ruth Cooper Huber, who is trying to rearrange her schedule so that she will be able to attend.

Having recently moved to Stamford, Connecticut, Earla Sue Smith McNaull has finished a graduate math course for state certification in Connecticut. She and Colin, who has been promoted to export manager of his firm, are also planning to come to reunion.

Marie Smith Smith's return to the Washington area has a sentimental twist—this is where Marie and Jim met. The Smith's new home in Rockville is not far from Elaine Frank Sloan's in Bethesda.

From Ohio we received letters from Lesley Wells Brooks, Joan Winters George and Parthy Karfes. The Georges and their three daughters are enjoying their new home. Joan saw Dana Vance Mitchell in Syracuse last August.

Lesley Brooks is attending Law School two nights a week. Whenever possible Les and family flee the city to the Northern Algonquin wilderness for canoeing or to work on a friend's grape farm. Les says that this arrangement keeps them relatively sane and happy with city dwelling.

Parthy Karfes finally moved into a new house which took about six months to build. She sends greetings to all.

From Monroeville Debbie Brog Bernstein informs us that she is now head of the Occupational Therapy Department of Allegheny Valley Hospital, treasurer of the Garden City Garden Club, and busy with ORT, oil painting and bridge.

Molly Kemp Wood says she could stand a little less excitement than they had in 1968, but she is very grateful that everything has turned out well. "Surprise" twin daughters suddenly increased their family to two girls and two boys in April. Then Rod spent one month in the hospital and two at home recuperating from a mild heart attack in September. He is back at work full time, they have made it through the first year with the twins, and Molly says she has loved "almost every minute of it."

Pat Mabon Johnson's letter was full of news. She is teaching church kindergartners and writing the AAUW Newsletter. The family enjoyed a 10 day end-of-summer vacation at Key Biscayne Beach, and without family Pat and Bill are looking forward to a July trip to Mexico. Pat saw Elly Roeger Nyhus last June soon after Elly's father had died very suddenly. The Nyhus family is now in Rio de Janeiro on a two-year assignment. In September Pat ran into Betsy Heim Searight at a church conference.

Ruth McMillian is teaching sixth grade in the Fox Chapel School District, and occasionally sees Shirley Brusco who teaches in the same area. Ruth hopes to take a Caribbean cruise this summer.

Alma Salvetti Jennings, who moved back to Pittsburgh last summer, was pleasantly surprised when the house across the street from their new home was purchased by George and Mary Sendek Jakabcsin '61.

Elayne Rosen, who received her master's degree in social work in June, is now in the research department of Health and Welfare.

Carol Parker Berkman is almost completely settled in her new home and is looking forward to reunion.

Cookie Hourvitz Klein and husband Stanley are both going to school for their master's degrees, Cookie is the reading field and Stanley in urban housing.

Myrna Deaktor Prince sends regards, as do Barbara Shapiro Stein and Carol Glass Gottlieb. They look forward to seeing you at the reunion.

Harriet Lewis Franklin called in her news this year. She and husband Ken had just returned from a ski weekend in Wisconsin. In addition to being president of the Council of Jewish Women, Harriet has returned to Carnegie-Mellon for her Ph.D. in English. Her thesis is to be a text book for seventh grade, part of a new creative series.

Your reporters have finally come to their last issue. We have enjoyed hearing from all of you and we thank you for your co-operation. We highly recommend this job to you. All those letters coming in the middle of an ugly winter slump do wonders for the morale. We will be very happy to turn over all our excess postcards and five years' worth of handy hints when we are replaced at the reunion on June 7.

Ruth reporting:

Judith Allan Mitchel has been busy with her three children, working for the Chatham Centennial Fund in the Boston area, and finishing her master's in education at Tufts University. She and her family enjoyed a fall pleasure trip to Virginia.

Robin Askin DeKleine has been accompanist for a community chorus and president of the Women's Guild of her church. She has run into classmates Joyce Teegardin, Sue Henderson Anderson, and Glorienne Hubert Robbi at different times during the past year.

Martha Bulkley Hostetter has moved from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania to Madison, Wisconsin where husband Bob is a writer and producer for an educational TV station. While still in Harrisburg, Brenda Purdon Stober and her family visited the Hostetters.

Marianne Byrn Caple attended the Alumnae Council on campus in October as representative of the new Detroit Alumnae Club which she helped to organize. She and Chuck have had several opportunities to see Sally Williams Vasse and her family. More recent news has the Caples transferred to Atlanta, Georgia.

Sue Childs Matheson, Jim and their three children, David, Steven and Amy, are well established in California now, having bought a Spanish style home with many varieties of fruit trees and roses on the property. Music has become a favorite pastime with Sue singing in a choir and Jim studying classical guitar. They enjoyed a recent trip to the desert country.

Jan reporting:

Karlana Glemser's Fred, who received his M.A. in electrical engineering in June, is a design engineer in the Naval Ordnance Laboratory in White Oak, Maryland. Karlana remains in her job in the Smithsonian Institution.

"Suby" Hocker Ballay and her family have been in Pittsburgh for this school year while Joe works for his M.A. in graphic design at Carnegie-Mellon. New daughter Kate is charming the family.

Eila Foster Amdur and Dave are very pleased with their new location—Baltimore—where there is so much to see and to do with Washington, D.C. convenient for frequent visits. Eila is teaching math at a remedial clinic.

Carol Ewing Goff's two small boys keep her busy, but she has been substitute-teaching in high school, too. In October she spent a day in Pittsburgh with Jean Thonen Nickel, Arlene Sinkus Lewis and Suby Hocker Ballay.

Sue Jessop McGowan and Jon drove to the West Coast for a month last summer. Sue has a teaching assistantship in the sociology department of the University of Massachusetts and hopes to have her M.A. by this summer.

Marlene Schweig Hartstein and family traveled to Surinam, South America last year, and also attended Harriet Cohen Turndorf's lovely wedding in July. Marlene is editing a local newsletter for the National Council of Jewish Women, and is a volunteer at a local center for teenage drug addicts.

Also involved in community work is Sue Engel Golden who works with the PTA, homeowners association, Jaycee wives, and as an Alumnae Representative. She found time last summer to win a baking prize at the Maryland State Fair for the second year.

Fran Goodside Feigert, who has an M.S. in Library Science, has retired to be a housewife, mother, cook and committee woman. Frank completed his doctorate in June, 1968, and is now assistant professor of political science at Knox College.

Donna Gagliardi Marinofsky reports no news, but is busy keeping up with her two sons.

Gail Scheiner Druskin is now mother to Lori in addition to her job as a social worker.

The big event this year for the Printzes is our "number three son." I managed to squeeze in a creative writing course, and we spent a wild spring of 1968 while Morty co-ordinated a presidential primary campaign in our assembly district.

Dottie reporting:

My big surprise this year was finding out that I was filling in for class secretary. I loved it and your letters and notes were great. I attended the Fall Alumnae Council at Chatham and had fun seeing some from our class and our sister classes. There are lots of exciting plans at Chatham these days. Hope everyone plans to visit the College, either for the Centennial or our Reunion or both?!

Like many of you, we are going through the "Terrible Twos" with our son Karl. We visited Mary Sendek Jakabcsin in her new home, and hear from Betsy Waite. Sue Harper Cholko and Marva Hord Harris. Marshall is enjoying his new job as a member of Pittsburgh National Bank's Computer Time-Sharing Team, and he has been elected Sunday School Superintendent. We are team teaching an adult course and I substitute in the Nursery and Kindergarten. We are also "expecting" our first foster infant from Child Welfare in Butler County—a new venture for us.

Paula Keizler Cramer finds Philadelphia a delight and enjoys being in Pennsylvania again where Gil is with a city law firm. She keeps the homefront bright with Ernie, 4, and Reid, 2.

Liz Jones Sheehan moved from a "new" built, but dull split level to a big monster of a house that is anything but dull! Kerith, known as "Peachy," and her new brother, Robert, keep Liz busy.

Mary Lou Kaylor Maury is another of who had a new baby and moved, and she "doesn't advise it." She hopes to see Karen Tiedy Ream and Marianne Byrn Caple soon since they are not too far from Battle Creek. Mary Lou's husband James is a Captain in the United States Air Force.

Kathryn Messina Gamble is looking forward to attending the special celebrations for the Centennial Year. It was "bad" year for Katie, since she was member of Senator McCarthy's campaign. Not one to give up, she is helping to organize liberal Democrat and Independent Clubs in Pennsylvania, and, at the same time, taking a course at Penn State Major American Authors. Katie sends news of Benita Acheson who spent last summer in Italy and is now spending the winter "whizzing" around Philadelphia in her red sports car. Fran Dunlap, Katie's little sister who lived in Benedum, was married to Tony Marciano.

Joan Levine Gilder sends "good luck" but "no news this time." We do have news from "Libby (Alma) Jones Gadd who reports that Ross is selling real estate and flying. He has his private pilot's license and is working toward his commercial rating. Libby occupies her time with "multitude of handcrafts" and with projects of the children, Jenny, 5 and Scott, 3. This is quite different from her tasks as systems analyst for IBM.

Jackie Nadolny Rosenberger visited Karlana Glemser Warnock when Karlana was married in August. Jackie's husband has a new job as Controller for On-Line Systems, Inc., which is in the computer time-sharing industry.

Shirley Lewis Minner's husband hopes to finish his Ph.D. in mechanical engineering at Purdue University in August, and they are "in the midst of making trip necessary for the decisions in the next phase" of their lives. As a part of the decisions, they are looking forward to travel to Pittsburgh, Roanoke, and Hartford. Shirley is teaching two homebound pupils and enjoying Brian. She corresponds with Joyce Teegardin.

We need more "alums" like Donna Lange, who volunteers to be a class secretary! She reports: "I still eat, sleep and breathe theatre as entertainment editor of The Valley Independent in Monessen. Most days are spent at the newspaper; my evenings in a theatre somewhere—mostly New York City, often several times a month. A highlight of a February trip was getting stranded in a 20-inch snowfall. Last August I drove to Nova Scotia; the ocean scenery was relaxing, but I couldn't forget drama. On the way back, I stopped to see a Shakespearean production at Stratford, Connecticut."

Among those "indulging" in home activities are Carol Lemke Keil who is relaxing, after all that teaching and going to school. Carol and Elmer did some traveling, and at home they canoe on the river. Elmer is a mathematician with Westinghouse in Maryland.

"Sam" (Carroll) Spelke Smaltz says that Don and three other attorneys opened their own law firm in December, 1968. She and Don love their new home complete with swimming pool. Sam applied to California State and hoped to begin in March.

Adair Sidford Alworth sings in the church choir, teaches pre-scouting skills to 10-year-old boys, is president of the Cedar Grove Junior Woman's Club, and secretary of the African Violet Club. She grows 500 African violets in her basement. Jeff, Roger and David, plus a German shepherd puppy and two kittens, fill the rest of her time. For ten days, the Alworths visited Trinidad and Tabago. Adair hears from Sue Jessop McGowan and Mary Booth Fassett Roberts.

Sally reporting:

"A new home is such a pleasure," writes Mary Sendek Jakabcsin, who discovered upon moving into the one they built last fall that her new neighbor is Alma Salvetti Jennings, '59! Mary's new son Mark is "a real doll, and naturally, we think, quite bright!" Also enjoying the blessings of a new home is Sharon Norton Tomalin, who reports that Mike is working on an M.B.A. degree at New York University, and that they enjoyed a visit with Arlene Sinkus Lewis and family last summer.

Joyce Teegardin celebrated the completion of her master's degree in rehabilitation counseling by taking a trip to visit Sue Henderson Anderson, Larry, and baby Arthur in Virginia, then up to New Jersey where Sue and Joyce enjoyed a dip in Robin Askin DeKleine's swimming pool. Back in Columbus, Joyce works very hard as a "Rehab counselor" for the Ohio Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, and the last I heard she had a caseload of some 300 people!

Karen Tiedy Ream wasted no time finding things to do after moving to Dayton, Ohio, in September. She is busy fixing up an older house, refinishing antiques, doing volunteer tutoring, is active in the A.A.U.W., and has applied to graduate school "to see if a class a quarter is compatible with two active little ones." Bob is now resident sales manager for the Wheeling-Pittsburgh Corporation. Karen keeps in touch with Jean Thonen Nickel, who says "Kathy is now four years old and Nicky is two. Need I say more about being busy?" The Nickels did spend several days in New York City and the Pocono Mountains without the children, and took Kathy to Ocean City, Maryland, for a delightful week at the shore. Jean had "quicky" reunions with Mary Lou Kaylor Maury, Angie Blumberg Levenstein and Carol Ewing Goff, and hopes that many of us will be able to get together for our class reunion in 1970.

Travel also highlighted the year for several other classmates. Judy Rubenstein Rubinstein returned just in time to send news of their "fabulous" Caribbean cruise among the American and British Virgin Islands. Betsy Waite vacationed in Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks last summer, and also traveled to Quebec and Georgia. Back home in Pennsylvania Betsy enjoyed a picnic with Mary Sendek Jakabcsin and Suzanne Harper Chalko (x'62) at Dottie Seif Kapp's home, "Kappenglen." For Barbara Pings Rawley, "life seems to center on travel—never get enough." Barb and her family traveled to Colorado last August, Pittsburgh and North Carolina at Christmas, and are planning a southern tour for this summer. Travel is a full-time job for Nancy Wright Miller's husband Myron, who has been to the Far East, South America and Mexico for the Singer Company during the past two years. Nancy keeps busy at home with their three children and her many church activities, but enjoys at least one "fringe benefit" of world travel, five-year-old Marilyn's collection of dolls from all the countries her Daddy visits.

Marilou Querns, "your smiling stew," has completed 747 hours of flight time (a symbolic number because of the new Boeing 747 Jumbo Jet) as a stewardess for Trans Caribbean Airways, with a total of about 448,200 miles including San Juan, Aruba, Jamaica, London, Madrid, and Frankfurt. She says "with those miles and hours came many wonderful, often challenging experiences—intellectual and and otherwise." Once in a while she visits her apartment, and invites alumni in the New York area to call "Querns in Queens."

"Life is just good in general" for Anne Putnam Mallinson and Bill. They saw Mary Booth Fassett Roberts and Ralph briefly on the way home from a trip to Montreal and Quebec City in September, and spent a few days in Ocean City, New Jersey, with Liz Jones Sheehan and her family last summer. Anne appeared in a local production of "The Pirates of Penzance" last fall. The Mallinsons enjoyed a visit from Sue Smith Balika and Butch, who are building a summer home in the Pennsylvania mountains near Warren. The Balikas also found time to travel to Washington, D.C. in June for a convention and then on to Florida for several weeks "to visit the doting grandparents." Butch is chairman of the board of the Cleveland Litho Club and first vice president of the National Litho Club. Besides teaching piano lessons and keeping up with three children, Sue is secretary of the Episcopal Church Women and very involved in church work.

Life is good at the "Vassalage" too. The "stork" won the race with Bill's doctoral dissertation, but both crossed the finish line with "flying colors." Delightful little Mary Benedict is our chief source of entertainment these days, but we do plan to go to The Stratford Festival again this summer and to make a few brief visits to the grandparents in the Michigan north woods. Other than being secretary of the Faculty Women's Club and trying to play my flute again, my main occupation is being a wife and mother—which is pure joy! We enjoyed a superb barbeque one evening last summer with Chuck and Marianne Byrne Caple, who just called recently to say that they've been transferred to Atlanta, Georgia! During her brief residence in Michigan, Marianne managed to get a Chatham Alumnae Club started in the Detroit-Toledo area—no easy task according to those who have tried it before. We had a delightful luncheon last spring and it was good to discover so many Chat-hamites in this area. Many thanks to all of you who sent news. I appreciate your prompt replies and enjoy hearing from you.

Jane reporting:

We in Pittsburgh have thus far had an incredible winter, with not a single significant snowfall, so Pat Burda Sliwinski's report from Juneau, Alaska, of close to 100 inches of snow gives one reason to whisper a silent prayer of thanksgiving. This is to be Pat, Stan and Staley Beth's last winter in Alaska, as Stan has accepted a residency in ophthalmology at Montefiore

Hospital in Pittsburgh, and they'll return shortly with mixed feelings. Pat added that they'd caught a 175 pound halibut last fall, which took an hour to catch and, six months later, is still being eaten!

Three ladies among us with two young ladies apiece report busy days refereeing sibling rivalries. Ellen Block Blumenthal, Meg Alexander Sprengle, and Sudy Bullock Bell display apparently discriminatory attitudes toward male offspring. Ellen's newest, Amy, arrived on husband Mickey's birthday. Big sister Linda has reluctantly allowed her to stay. Sudy and Jim, with Tina and Beki, have moved into their first real house after seven moves and they hope to remain for a while. Jim, having completed his M.B.A. at Dartmouth, is now with Chase Manhattan Bank. Meg continues to be active in her community library and is this year the library's representative to the Town Board. A Christmas card photo of Suzy and Betsy reveals two very lively-looking little gals.

A new son, Erik Harold, and part-time teaching at Ellis School have kept Mary Ann Conti Sheline from becoming bored, although she anticipates being a full-time mother next year. Jim is in the Graduate School of Industrial Administration at Carnegie-Mellon and hopes to receive his master's in June.

Patty Allen Rourke and her husband are now living in Arlington, Virginia, with Pat working on her master's in anthropology at George Washington University. She lists her activities as "studying, teaching, cleaning house, cooking," with a parenthetical "ugh" below the third.

The Reference Librarian at the University of Illinois Education and Social Science Library is Mary Cook Guy. Illinois, like so many of the larger colleges and universities, has undergone serious student disorders in support of "demands," which Mary compared with our own rather exemplary conduct of not so many years ago!

I have very little news of a personal nature this year, other than a recent job change two months ago. I returned to teaching, although a far cry from the third and fourth grade assignments I undertook following graduation. This move was to an institute of computer programming in Pittsburgh. However, I'm presently involved in making plans to return to my previous job as a programmer with National Cash Register. What was it the man said about the grass being greener somewhere else? Regards to everybody.

Fender reporting:

The response to this year's questionnaire was quite meagre which leads me to think that we might be suffering from an early case of "old age syndrome." Anyway, my thanks to those who did reply—every letter was great, and here goes:

Luci Davis Wareing and Guy moved to their new London address in July. In December they flew to Chicago for Christmas and then, with Luci's parents, went to Panama for deep sea fishing. In addition to enjoying all that London offers, she is working with the West London Family Service Clinic. The Wareings extend a cordial welcome to any classmates coming to London.

Susan Herb Richard moved to Bristol, Connecticut, right after Christmas. In addition to George's new job working on those high speed turbo-trains with Sikorsky Aircraft, they are both busy with a new home. It certainly is wonderful to hear that Suzy is finally up and around again after her long illness. I have never heard such enthusiasm from a female about doing her own housework! However, having been on one's back for so long, I suppose that even cleaning the oven would be exciting. The Richards extend an open invitation to anyone coming to the Hartford area.

Congratulations to Mickey Kammerman Kurzbar who received her law degree in June from George Washington University. With her L.L.B. in hand, Mickey is working for the U.S. Patent Office in Washington where husband Steve has a private practice in medicine.

Bonnie George Switzer and Bob are in Urbana where he is an assistant professor of bio-chemistry at the University of Illinois. Bonnie and 2-year-old Brian are trying to adjust to the cold Illinois winter. She is taking courses in ceramics and tailoring, and is active in the League of Women Voters and the University Women's Club.

Nancy Fleming Demoise teaches school on Long Island and enviously watches while husband Charles travels to such exotic places as the Marshall Islands with a medical research team from Brookhaven Labs. She can't really complain, however, because Charles took her to Spain for three weeks as a reward for being a patient wife.

Pam Johnson Fenner has been acting as interior decorator for their New England home—up to her neck in wallpaper—while husband Paul is responsible for the outside planting trees and laying out garden. Daughter Liesel is now three.

It was great to hear from Nan Lombardi, one of those enviable people who owns a New York town house, the entire renovation of which—inside and out—was completed by Nan and husband Joe. Joe has started his own architectural firm specializing in renovating town houses and brownstones. Their son Chris is another 3-year-old.

Sheila Grobe Rossbach's note illustrated how much of a "fraulein" she has become in the past three years. She and Ande are genuine suburbanites "Teutonic Style" complete with station wagon and TV, with one exception—Ande dons lederhosen every morning. Sheila is busier than ever, dividing her time between the U.S. Air Force Guidance Clinic, lecturing, and as a field work supervisor and member of two German academies. She is also a consultant at several social agencies and has a private practice of her own. Wow! Ande is equally busy with his international law practice in Frankfurt.

Micky Folino Huff is another energetic '63-er. She has received her master's degree in social work and is working as a supervisor at the Allegheny County Child Welfare Agency. Micky, Barry, and daughter Dawn, now eight years old, are putting the finishing touches on their home which they bought in 1966. Micky enjoyed the weekend with Nancy Lee Welsh, husband Joe, and their two daughters. She reports that Mary Pensyl has completed her graduate work in library science at Simmons College, and is now working at M.I.T.

As for me, I am more involved than ever in international banking and money markets, especially this past year with its many currency crises. I am also trying madly to avail myself of all that New York City offers in the way of culture, excitement, etc., before I too settle down to the suburban way of doing things. Those of us in the New York area should make more of an effort to see each other—and I am as guilty of neglect as the next. I sincerely hope that next year's response will be better. I shall make it a point to mail the questionnaires early—then there will be no excuse. Until then, have a great '69.

Marty reporting:

Probably at this very moment Sue Hill Warner and family are enjoying their camping vacation to Arizona and other points west, and wish that 1½-year-old Amy was old enough to remember the trip. Husband Edward is presently an engineering student and works full time as well.

It's hard to believe we are getting "that old" but Veronica Kotulak Benson's new son is her third child!

I was happy to hear from Judy Launer Palkovitz just three weeks after Sharon was born. Judy has retired from the Institute of Government and is enjoying her new role. Harry's Air Force assignment has taken them to Dayton, Ohio.

As usual, I can't keep up with Bonnie LoBue's activities. In addition to her regular duties in the Biological Preparation Department at Rockefeller University, she has become involved in consulting work with regard to departmental organization. Also, she is learning to roller skate, keeps active on the Ambulance Corps and the Civic Conference, and is helping to organize a ten-year high school reunion. I'm sure there will be many of these this year!

Two other classmates have moved into new homes this year. Elaine Mazer Myers has sandwiched decorating furnishing, etc., into "free" time between caring for Michael. She and Howard did escape, however, to spend a week in the Bahamas.

Our other new home owner is Lois McCune Flowers. Lois is a systems analyst at the Miami Dade Junior College Library, but finds time to enjoy their new pool and the Florida sun, as well as trips to Jamaica, New York City and southern Florida.

Sally Mercke is presently realizing one of her dreams, that of living and studying in France.

Without question, the most interesting and most uncondensable response this year was from Helen Moed. I am sorely tempted to send it to the alumnae office and let them edit it! She has been director of political research for CBS News. She found the work challenging and varied, and found her year filled with great personal fulfillment and agonizing depression. To try to give some of the highlights—Helen worked in most of the primary states and on the floor of both conventions, and prepared a 600-page book on the elections for Walter Cronkite and other reporters. After a vacation of skiing in Vermont and visiting friends in Guatemala, she was sent to Cape Kennedy for the Apollo 8 shot, then to Washington for the Inauguration. In the near future Helen may be sent to Washington to work, but meantime she is working on a generation gap series (that means back to Chicago again) which will be aired in May. She and Lissa Karp planned a trip to Aspen in February, and she has seen Sue Bradley, Ellen Rusch and Nini Lenz Sheikh in New York.

My past year has not been as exciting as Helen's—I probably could not have stood all that without getting ulcers! Last summer we sailed and had a two-week camping spree in our much-loved Adirondacks. We will join the new home owners when we move in April, after which we will be busy completing some of the interior ourselves. We have become amateur photographers with our own well-equipped dark room, and Rob, our private HD&B class, is our principal target. My thanks to those of you who responded. It is easy to put eight names in alphabetical order, but even so, I'd like to see a better response next time. Best wishes to everyone for a successful and rewarding year.

Nancy reporting:

"We've moved again," writes Helen Roesing Monroe. A new job for Cliff brought them back to the Chicago area. Helen is busy teaching dramatics in a new junior high school and tackling the decorating details for the 50-year-old house they have bought.

Carolyn Rogers Flood and husband Bob received their master's degrees last year. Carolyn teaches third grade; Bob is her Vice Principal! Rita Ippolito Hazen is going to Geneva College and will finish in June. She's already doing her student teaching in advanced math.

Betsy Phelps Tucker sends her usual cheery greetings to all! Although she says "no news," teaching art part-time and a trip to the Olympics last year certainly seems notable.

Sue Rockwell Coen and her two "delights," Timmy, and Jenny, were anxiously awaiting Jim's return from duty on Guam, as she wrote. No doubt Jim is as proud of his two offspring as is Sue, by now!

Diane Phillips is still active in the political world of Washington, D.C. She is Special Assistant to the President of the Housing Development Corporation. Total commitment to the problems of our society always leads Diane to the core of activity. Bobbie Laiken Funkenstein is helping society's schizophrenic children as a psychiatric social worker in Palo Alto, California.

New babies are keeping Judy Paulsen Webb, Mary Riley Smith, and Sandy Rossio Molinaroli busy and on their toes.

I am still roaming the world whenever I can. A new promotion has me trying to cope with the sales promotion effort for First National City Bank's Travel Division.

Gail reporting:

The trend for this segment of the class is for NEW things: NEW jobs, NEW children, NEW travel horizons, NEW pets, NEW hobbies, NEW everything!

Starting in far-off Phoenix, Arizona, Lillian Steiner Levine and Stephen are happy with new son Martin, and Stephen is now serving as a physician in the Public Health Service. Moving on to Michigan, Barb Shullman Young says she is staying home for a change, which is new and unusual for the Young household. They also have a new home, just finished. Jumping to Illinois, Betsy Snyder Cottingham is just plain busy with a 2½-year-old boy. Betsy wonders whether Chatham will be going the current way of today's colleges and universities and become co-ed—a thought worthy of consideration by all of us alums.

Dianne Rubin Newman, still plodding along for her master's degree, says "hello" and includes greetings from two other classmates of '63, Judy Schaul Neuger and Linda Liss Hershberg, both of whom are married to Herb Newman's fraternity brothers. Looks like one big happy family out there in Akron, Ohio. In Columbus, Sue Shields Kopp is occupied with her new daughter, as well as husband Glenn's new "shore duty" job in recruiting. Debbie Wolowitz Cowan in Cleveland is also fully occupied with daughter Rachel (born on my birthday, I'm pleased to say!). Debbie said "housewifery" is new to her, and she already contemplates a return to government-affiliated work if the new administration can find anything for her. Husband Dale is now with National Institute of Health as a physician trainee in hematology.

In Allison Park Jan Skeloski Matey is busy with her new son, a new dog who out-weighs both baby and 2-year-old Chris, a new house and lots of related homeowner experiences. I really appreciated the time she spent writing her very interesting letter. On to Baltimore where last year's bride Joan Salay Green is now working for NIH in gerontology research as chemist, dealing mainly with DNA and RNA. (Shades of sophomore chemistry and freshman science!) Joan and John traveled in North Ireland and England last summer, and plan to include Amsterdam on this year's itinerary when John presents a paper there. Joan saw Ellen Block Blumenthal at a recent Chatham alumnae meeting in Maryland.

Back in Quaker City, Louise Sonnenberg's description of the medical profession from the inside looking out makes it sound delightful. She combines a residency in psychiatry with a budding general practice, adds the non-medical fields of skiing, art class, scuba diving and horseback riding, and sounds happy and contented. Caroline Whaley Thibault's description of her India wedding and honeymoon trip to Kashmir makes me dreamy-eyed and causes visions of princes and castles to rise from nowhere. Caroline still teaches at Temple University, so perhaps this semester we'll get together. "Apartment hunting in Center City, Philadelphia in January," according to the bride, "is like looking for a hole that doesn't exist."

The Verlin household is in "transient times," awaiting word from Uncle Sam as to where we will be come July. Our apartment still welcomes all visitors, but better make it before summer. Thanks to all who responded—it helped make my mailbox a little less lonely. Next year we will send regards from whatever distant spot we end up in.

omist. Sue is working in the Army Research Office, but is anxious to return to teaching next year. They love Reston and invite all Chatham alums in that area to come see them.

Penny Barley Wolboldt and her husband are settled in Delaware, Ohio where she is teaching Spanish at Rutherford B. Hayes
High School. He is director of Innis-
City work in Springfield, Ohio.

Becky Bennett Wallace is looking forward to returning east after Jim finishes Law School in May. She is thoroughly enjoying their daughter, and sees Sally Brown Lincoln occasionally and Patty Baler Van Amberg frequently.

Sheila Bennett Harris and Joel moved into a new home in March. She helps Joel in his lighting showroom, and enjoys seeing Jill Squire Popish and Pam Stirba Russell on side trips to New York. She is also in touch with Sidney Hudig and Adrienne Swins.

Bibi Boles Evans is acting while Sam getting his master's at UCLA. They are living on the beach and love it.

Joan Bretz Peirce and Jim were on vacation in Canada last summer during the Democratic Convention, which they considered fortunate since they live only a few blocks from the Hilton Hotel where a lot of the action was. Also, she tried skiing this winter for the first time and enjoyed it despite the fact they haven't had much snow and there were too many people on the slopes.

Diane Brouarsky Levine is enjoying her 17-month-old son and is teaching part-time—two classes a day. Her husband is getting his Ph.D. at Johns Hopkins in the behavioral science department of the School of Hygiene.

Diane Brutout Neimann is doing profession work in Juvenile Court in Pittsburgh and also finds time to teach one section of Modern Society at Chatham. Paul works for a law firm downtown.

Carol Craven Kratz and Ken returned from Italy last July, were in California last six weeks, and then were sent back to Pittsburgh by Westinghouse. Carol is back at her old job at Page Airways, but not for long. Ken is scheduled to go to Belgium in early summer on another computer systems job. Carol sees a lot of Sandy Goldman Forquer, Judy (Goslee) and Denny Dias and Rosemary Cesarone.

Patti Baisler Van Amberg and Ron are going into VISTA in September for a year, after spending the summer in Spain. He graduates from University of California, Hastings College of the Law, in May and plans to take the Connecticut bar exam. They plan to settle in Connecticut after VISTA. Patti was working for a brokerage firm in San Francisco.

Congratulations to Bonnie Dallas Palmer and Ginny Fisher O'Leary on the completion of their Ph.D.s in June. Bonnie has accepted a position at Wayne University, Detroit as assistant professor of English beginning in September. Ginny writes that Morgan's position as public information director for the Michigan Democratic Party brought some interesting experiences their way during last November's election. They enjoyed meeting all the candidates and said the Chicago Convention was really something. Although they were disappointed with the election outcome, the Democrats did sweep Michigan. They are now eagerly awaiting '72.

After working for nine months as assistant to two interior decorators, Doris Damour has been promoted to the position of consultant. She spends Saturdays at the Art Students League studying painting under Lennart Anderson who was at Chatham our freshman year.

Pam Davis McGee went to meet Hugh (Lt. j.g., U.S. Navy) in Japan just before Christmas when he was able to get some time off from an eight-month cruise. They had a wonderful time and were impressed by the graciousness of the Japanese. Hugh will be finished with active duty in November and they are not sure where they will be located after that. Meanwhile, they are enjoying California.

Genie Eickele Haldenwang is busy keeping up with Michele's inexhaustible supply of energy. She is also sewing, working in her garden, and making plans for a trip to Europe late next summer.

Janie Flaster Biggard and Donald bought a house last April and were thrilled with Debbie's arrival in October.

Linda Berg Samuels and her husband are living in Worms, Germany where he is stationed as an Army Officer. They are enjoying their "European life" and are doing a lot of traveling in Germany.

*Penny Embry McGoe*y sends greetings to all.

Nancy Gettes writes she is now attending Temple University School of Medicine. Good luck, Nancy.

This has been a busy but wonderful year for your reporter. Being a housewife and mother to year-old Lynn is a full-time job. However, I have become active in the Pittsburgh League of Women Voters, which provides much needed intellectual stimulation to daily household chores, and a good way to maintain my interest in politics. I'm also doing some Alumnae Association work for Chatham, and John and I enjoyed skiing last winter. The highlight of the year was a 3-week vacation in Europe in March which included some skiing in Austria and a visit with friends in Denmark.

Thanks to all who responded this year!

Myra reporting:

After returning from London in March, Susan Haas Nordby and David have been kept busy with a new house and a new baby. She and Lynne Swartz Jacobson have been working hard for the Centennial Fund. Susie strongly recommends cram courses in subjects such as Paying Income Tax, How to Repair Appliances, and Where Does All the Money Go?!

Judy Haberman Katz has joined the ranks of working mothers. She, Robert, and little Shira visited the U.S. in September and enjoyed seeing Amiel and Rina Sigal Segal.

Carol Hartman Elden writes, "It seems hard to believe I really have a baby, but she's such fun and a real joy!! We'll be returning to the States in April after a most interesting tour in the Far East. Tom still has another year as a Navy lawyer, but we don't yet know where he will be stationed."

From Sallie Hendon comes this news: "This good Democrat decided she'd see what the other side was like so took a job as secretary to Charles S. Rhyne, National Chairman of United Citizens for Nixon-Agnew. What an experience! From the middle of May till November 5, I was a virtual SLAVE. My political viewpoints have not really changed, but I will never regret the fantastic insights I gained into how a campaign is run. Am now working as the personal secretary for Mr. Rhyne."

Sara Heslep is having a hectic time working with the annual fellowship competition at the University of Chicago, although she enjoyed the paid vacation during the student occupation of the Administration Building.

Elaine Hillman Moroney has been "attending night school painting class, running after Catherine, not learning any French except for things like 'easy parking', 'shopping center', 'sale', etc. (really ashamed of myself), re-reading arts course books, this time for enjoyment, and skiing with Mike."

Nancy Johnson became Mrs. Stephen Saperstein at a beautiful wedding in the M.I.T. Chapel in Boston. Barbara Zitko served as maid of honor and I as a bridesmaid, and Maxine Ruter Horowitz, Linda Marsh McGurk and Jennifer Lewis watched her go down the aisle. After a Jamaica honeymoon Nancy and Stephen, who is a systems analyst in Los Altos, returned to California, where she is fixing up the apartment and "learning how to cook a la Julia Child."

Linda Kates Meyer is working as a part-time reader assistant for advanced eleventh grade English classes at San Diego High School. "The job has helped brush away some of those cobwebs and has provided some intellectual stimulation in addition to 'conversing' with our one-year-old all day long." Linda and John bought a house in September and are looking forward to March when John bids the Navy goodbye and takes up criminal and civil trial work, something he has always wanted.

Housewife, mother, typist, and political activist *Evelyn Kinast McElhane*y is currently working full time for the University of Connecticut Placement Office, and finds herself with a bird's-eye view and mixed emotions on campus tensions. Husband Ron will be receiving his Ph.D. in biochemistry in June, and they are hoping that the Angel of Money will look down upon them and make possible postdoctoral study in Holland, but if not, then somewhere in the U.S.

Mary Krein Howarth has enjoyed seeing many old Chatham friends, and in August was in the wedding of Beverly Miller Blessinger. Mary, who is working on another master's degree, has Dr. Keefe for her advisor, and she finds herself well loaded down with six credit hours of classes and a full-time job. Now an "information librarian," Mary is also responsible for the undergraduate library at Pitt. The Howarths look forward to new territory upon completion, sometime in the coming year, of David's studies.

Jane Lanigan recently became a buyer of millinery and hair goods at Lane Bryant, Inc. She travels a lot and says that the work is very demanding but also very exciting. Holiday travel for Jane will now include Memphis, where her family has made their new home.

Jack and Linda Lanius Tomlins "are thoroughly enjoying the antics of our little blue-eyed Leah. My days are too busy to even think about attending classes. We would like very much to see any old friends traveling west on Route 66."

Hurrah for Ann McClure Hall! Husband Jack will be graduated from Duquesne Law School in June, will take the bar exam in July, and plans to become a trial attorney for a defense firm in Pittsburgh. Ann and Jack see quite a bit of Denny and Judy Goslee Dias and hope to get together with Tim and Sandy Goldman Forquer, who have recently returned to Pittsburgh from Italy.

Your reporter, Myra Hull Gillum, is happy to say that the second year of teachings is much easier than the first—I even watch television occasionally! When in Boston for Nancy Johnson Saperstein's wedding, I stayed overnight with Linda Marsh McGurk, who is busily working on their house and looking after two adorable children. Linda and Jack enjoyed a January Florida vacation.

Christmas at home was marvelous; we stay half the time at my parents' and the other half at Gary's, who live across town. On our way we stopped overnight to visit with Jim and Lynne Jack Porterfield. Jim is working for an insurance company in Pittsburgh and Lynne in the music department at Kaufmann's.

New Year's Eve found us at my grandparents' house in Wilkesburg (an amazing couple; my grandfather was 90 in February!), and now, back at home, Gary has begun work on his dissertation. I am savoring thoughts of this summer, when, for the first time, I won't have to work or go to school unless I want to. Huzzah!

Pat reporting:

It's always such fun to hear from Chathamites, and this year has been no exception. Happy news for Massachusetts, Michigan, and New York . . . Three of our classmates have taken "the big step." Judy Meub Haggerty and new husband, Frank, are both at present affiliated with Harvard College—Judy as secretary to the Director of Admissions and Frank as assistant track coach. Come May, however, Judy will be changing jobs while Frank continues as assistant track coach and as a teacher in a Boston high school. Teaching is the profession chosen by newlyweds Beverly Miller Blessinger and Ken. They both received their master's degrees from Michigan State last summer, and then took the walk down the aisle in August. The wedding drew several Chathamites from other parts of the country—Mary Krein Howarth (an attendant), Elaine Wenger, Ellie Raden and Sue Atherton Kleine. Bev and Ken are happily anticipating another exciting summer this year—a visit to the British Isles! Ithaca is the home of recently-married Francis Meyers Bullis and Jerry. Francie's busy schedule includes instructing in Ithaca College's Department of Theatre and Speech, and the full range of "housewifely" duties. Jerry is both student and teaching assistant at Cornell where he'll get his Ph.D. and M.F.A. next year.

Completing their last year in Ithaca are Patsy Scarry Jones and Ralph. Teaching junior high-aged "disabled learners" (children who can't read) has been Patsy's job this year, a rewarding, enjoyable experience . . . "But, I've used up most of my precious (small) supply of stability in the process." One can't help but feel that the Ithaca school system will suffer a real loss when the Joneses move on this summer. Their whereabouts after Ralph receives his Ph.D. will be determined, says Patsy, by where the job is.

Patsy's letter also included some welcome news of Susan Watkins Owens. Susan, who left for the University of Utah after junior year, married in September, 1966. She and her husband, a medical student finishing up this year, became the parents of a little girl in January. Congratulations!

"I'll be looking for Chatham grads everywhere—because it seems that right now that's where I am—everywhere!" So writes Janice Patterson as she "jets" about the country as one of the three traveling Field Home Economists for the J. C. Penney Company. Jan's new job, which she acquired upon receiving her M.S. in clothing and textiles from Penn State in December, will keep her on the road about six months of every year. The job sounds fascinating from Jan's description . . . "presenting programs to home ec teachers. In the programs we preview the educational materials which our department (Education and Consumer Relations) prepares during the six months we're on the road." In a typical week of the six months, Jan may visit as many as six different states! The other six months, New York City is "home port" as all office work is handled there. This would seem to add up to a very exciting life, but I've one question . . . does a year's supply of vitamins go along with the job?

Dotty Raymond Matsui writes that Jan called her and Yas from St. Louis. Although the Matsuis tried to persuade Jan that she could sell some good will for J. C. Penney by coming to Champaign, their attempts were in vain. Like Patsy and Ralph, Dotty and Yas are unsure of where they'll be next year. Yas will have his graduate degree in industrial design in June, and he's presently in the process of going through innumerable interviews! And, wherever they are, Dotty hopes that she'll find something in children's or reference library work to do.

An invitation to any Chathamites "in need of bed and board while passing through the Philadelphia area" comes from Martha Repman. She and her roommate have rented a town house, and the word is that the couch in the study is very comfortable. Martha began working for the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, re-cataloging their collection, upon completion of Library school (last August) at Drexel.

It was good to hear from Barbara Schneider, and of another promotion for her. She is now the executive secretary on the president's staff of the firm for which she works. Though her job is in New York City, Barb lives in Elizabeth, N.J.—"just twenty-five minutes by train from the city." Any Chathamites in the area are most welcome in Barb's "roomy" apartment. Barb "wandered" off to Nassau, Bahamas, and Miami Beach last year for a "fabulous" vacation.

Via Barb came word of Susie Newton Kelly, one of our contingent on the West Coast. Barb writes, "Marriage obviously agrees with her!"

Both Claudia Miller and her finance are at Brown University. Claudia is working for her M.A.T., while Martin is working on an M.A. in education, and teaching French at Portsmouth Priory. Martin already has his B.A. and M.A.T. from Notre Dame and plans to get his Ph.D. in college administration.

Sally Richards Nurminen sends greetings to all from the midst of a very busy schedule with new daughter Kristin.

Susan Michaels Orringer's husband Mark, a resident in thoracic surgery at Johns Hopkins, has been invited to continue through the surgery program there. This will keep Susan, Mark and 14-month-old Jeffrey in Baltimore for at least three years.

Ellie Raden seems to go from one interesting job to one even more so, the latest being the executive director of the Prison Service Committee of Southern New Jersey, a private agency concerned with the plight of persons caught up in the county jail systems of eight southern counties in the state. The Committee provides community educational programs and in-service training for correctional personnel, and is particularly interested in the rehabilitation of female offenders of all ages. Ellie is continuing her graduate work in counseling and guidance at Temple University, and, for relaxation, is an active member of the Philadelphia Singing City Choir which is a rather unique organization. Composed of 125 members from all types of background, it is dedicated to the promotion of brotherhood through music. All concerts are free to the public, and financial support comes from voluntary contributions and from the sale of recordings on RCA and Columbia labels.

Lynn Schreiber Glasser, who during the past year has lived in three states and worked in four, is now settled enough to have bought a home. In addition to a new home and new baby, she is assistant to the director of the Practicing Law Institute where husband Steve is an attorney, and president of the Michigan Corporation Seminar Consultants, Inc. In the latter capacity Lynn is responsible for the entire publication production which includes 50,000,000 brochures and 200 books a year.

Upon completion of Sid's military obligation, we said a tearful good-bye to Boston and all our friends there and returned to Western Pennsylvania. Sid is in a management training period at our family's Pontiac-Cadillac dealership, and I am working part time in the office as general "girl-Friday." I took a course in the General Motors Accounting System which I found, much to my amazement, to be extremely fascinating. A far cry from my biology major, however! When not working at the office, I keep busy with civic and church-affiliated activities, such as teaching a fourth-grade released-time religious education class comprised of thirty-three lovable (???) cherubs! Sid and I are excited about our forthcoming vacation in Ft. Lauderdale and St. Petersburg.

As always, I've rambled on, but I do want to thank you for all the news you sent along. I hope to hear from even more of you next year: 'Til then . . .

Jane reporting:

This year's prize for a prompt report goes to Susie Soule Cox! She and Larry are living in what must be paradise! They moved to Bethel, Maine, last April when Larry became manager of the Sunday River Ski Area, and because of early snow, they've been tied to the mountain since November. Sue is busy with Sam, but in addition to leading a Girl Scout troop, does secretarial and bookkeeping work for the Area. When he can find time, Larry does commercial photography.

Pam Stirba Russell is once again in a new house with a new baby. Bill is now the Manager of Development for Eastern Airlines in New York City, and the opportunities for travel are endless! For example, she and Bill have tentatively planned trips to Miami, Paris, and the Caribbean—all within the next six months if they can convince the grandmothers that they'd love to babysit. She'd like to know if she can pre-register her girls at Chatham! She has seen Jill Squire Popish and Sheila Bennett Harris during the past year.

Diana Wirsig Gerrity, a busy gal, assistant editor for the Atlantic Monthly, writes book reviews (for which she thanks the Arts Course!), and does "lunch-hour" fashion modeling, both photographic and shows! Tom is teaching and "Ph.D.-ing" at M.I.T. as well as being a consultant for a Chicago firm. As of this writing he's debating between Harvard Business School and Stanford for teaching next year. They had a grand time skiing at Aspen last year and hoped to get to Jackson Hole in March. She asks if anyone is interested in taking a year off and going ski-bumming.

After his graduation from Harvard Business School in June, Ingrid von Dattula Detweiler and Doug honeymooned in Europe, primarily Denmark and Germany, driving in a V.W. they christened the "Blue Baron." They have settled in California where Doug is administrative assistant in Industrial Structures Group (wow!) of Whitaker Corporation. Ingrid is busy making their town house into a home and would love to know of anyone in the Los Angeles area. They had a lovely visit with Suzanne Archer Dawes and Lou over New Years.

Jill Squire Popish and Paul are thrilled with their new daughter. They contemplate a re-location this summer when Paul becomes an Army pediatrician.

The Defense Department, specifically NSA, is where Betsy Unangst spends her working hours, completing a three-year internship qualifying her as a data systems analyst. She occasionally lunches with Pam Proksa Patt who is also working there. Betsy is now the proud owner of a "ferocious" TR-4 and uses it when Bridget Kumutat Allen and Richard come down for sports car races. She spent a week last fall on a cattle ranch in Texas, and has taken up portrait painting.

Martha Wilson, also still in Washington, D.C., is looking for new fields of interest (i.e. travel, new job) possibly on "the hill."

Barbara Zitko is working on the synthesis of the active components of marijuana, which sounds exciting and is certainly pertinent! She was maid of honor in Nancy Johnson Saperstein's wedding this fall and enjoyed seeing other Chathamites. Barb has travel-fever again and hopes to get to Europe, or somewhere, in the near future.

Word arrived that both Ellen Wetzel Mialky and Edward left for the Peace Corps in Ghana last August. They are teaching and enjoying the experience.

Susan Vansant Bartz and Jerry plan to retire from Navy life in 1970 when they hope to move to Miami or parts north. Until then, Susie will continue to work in Key West as a caseworker for the State Welfare Department.

Lynne Swartz Jacobson and Blair traveled to the West Coast in July and to conventions in Ocean City, New Jersey and Grossinger's, New York during August and November. Lynne's lazy life since leaving West Penn Hospital in May ended pleasantly with the arrival of Larry.

Janet Simpson Prescott and Ed have purchased a home in the city and find urban living interesting but not as secure as the suburbs. Jan is busy with their two-year-old son and brand new daughter.

Also thrilled with the arrival of their daughter are Ellen Tilles Weil and Jim. Ellen left her teaching job in June, spent the summer working with the Head Start Program, and then "took it easy." She sees Jane Levitt and Karen Schweig Brown frequently.

Two of our associate members have also been blessed with the arrival of daughters. Jackie Smyth Gawthrop is enthralled with Betsy, their first, and Tina Swansen Cummings wrote from the hospital after Amy's arrival, a sister for Randy who is now two. She plans to continue teaching at the Cerebral Palsy Center.

The highlight of the past year for me was meeting Mike's friends and relatives during a glorious three weeks last summer in England and Belgium. We are now busy with the final details of our new home which we hope to occupy by May. To make up for the lost time during the January thaw, we've been dashing to the ski slopes whenever we can. I'm still teaching and am currently taking a course at Boston University. How different from Chatham! We see Francie Darr Aley and her darling tribe quite often. Thanks to all those who answered my plea for news. As always, it was wonderful hearing from you.

Cooking reporting:

Time and lives away from Chatham we still take time to remember faces and names that are perhaps less familiar but once were Chatham. Mary Borecz Pike is still directing the independent research projects for students participating in American University's Washington Semester. Meg McDonald, maid of honor, and Judy Siegel attended her wedding to David, the assistant city editor of The Evening Star. Mary expects to receive her M.A. in government from A.U. in June.

Bev Blazey Palmer has been serving as president of the Ohio State Chapter of the Women's Auxiliaries to the Student American Medical Association. In her spare time she teaches special education at Grove City High School and will complete work for her master's in guidance this August. Bev's husband Richard is in his third year of Medical School at Ohio State.

Donna Beiswenger Riggs, in addition to her work in theatre arts at Pitt, managed the first Pittsburgh production of Marat/Sade. Her husband Dick free-lances as theatre technician and lighting designer. Donna most happily reports that Dick flunked his Army physical.

Heather Bastow sends greetings from London where she is doing graduate research in environmental studies and child development at the Bartlett School of Architecture, University of London. She is also teaching a course in visual, interpersonal and environmental perception in the architecture department of a new polytechnic. On vacations Heather has been traveling through Europe. In November she ran into Lucy Hilmer when they both wandered into the American Embassy in Paris for the election returns.

Penny Anderson Gladwell is also teaching and doing graduate work. She teaches first and second grade in the Boyd County Schools and is working toward her master's in elementary education at Marshall University. Dave has been promoted to systems analyst for Ashland Oil and Refining Company. They are enjoying their new home and are both active in church work. Penny has been writing a book; one chapter is now complete.

Betsy Crone, after one year out of the ivory tower, has climbed back to academia. She is working for her master's in practical politics at Eagleton Institute of Politics, Rutgers. Her summer was spent working on an executive branch reorganization project for Spiro T. Agnew, then Governor of Maryland, now Vice President—guess it worked.

Bonnie Birks O'Connell is teaching art at Mt. Lebanon High School and taking courses at Carnegie-Mellon University, ever "Tech," while Tom is working toward his Ph.D. in metallurgy there. In a similar situation, miles away, JoAnn Eustace Walther is teaching English at Cambridge High and Latin School while Fred pursues his doctorate at M.I.T. JoAnn is taking courses at Simmons toward her master's in English. She reports a visit with Mary Rosenberger and Philip Hourigan, Mary's fiancée and Fred's former roommate.

Mary Eaton Fosler is working as research assistant in the Center of International Studies at Princeton where her husband Scott is a second year grad student, Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. Nat Dingle Bazzell is teaching eleventh-grade English at Lower Merion High School and is serving as part-time guidance counselor. Creamer is attending Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science to earn a degree in marketing. Nat reports that Erica is toddling . . . often with mother in hot pursuit.

After honeymooning in South America, Polka Dotts Antrim and husband Joe returned to New York where Polka is secretary to the President of Rockefeller University. Joe is an investment analyst with Chemical Bank New York Trust Company. Maggi Berman Guzinsky and Bob have moved to Birmingham where Bob is a marketing representative for Armstrong Cork Company. Maggi is doing research at the medical center of the University of Alabama.

Cary Cadman has moved back to the States, namely Cambridge. She is working as Director of Student Employment at Radcliffe. Cary takes charge of summer and semester jobs, the work-study program, graduate fellowships and the summer sectorial course. She is also the assistant to the Director of the Career Planning Office and a member of the Financial Aid Committee.

Jane Birmingham Hanley sent only a brief message because her life is currently in transition; she and Terry are finishing up their Air Force stay in Texas and will receive orders for parts unknown momentarily.

Lenore Felner Lessall and Kenneth have been traveling to Puerto Rico, Portugal and London. Home base is still New York where Kenneth is an executive with the Glemby Company. LoLita Dawson Pfeiffer and Ray are also traveling, although they are confined stateside for at least the next year and a half. Ray is stationed in Seattle with the Navy, and they think stateside is great under those circumstances. When Navy life, and all the things that go with it end, Ray will be returning to graduate study. LoLita said that Ann McCall, '68, and Barb Blodorn Kronenberg were among her bridesmaids. Mimi Doeller Blain and Sandy have almost reached that rare moment—return to civilian life. Sandy finishes his tour of duty in September when they will return to Detroit where Sandy will study and Mimi teach.

Barbara-Lee Buxton Van Sciver has been doing volunteer work for Head Start and with the International Poetry Forum. Each Wednesday Barbara-Lee reads poetry to Susanne Hershey's sixth grade class. Barbara sent her new address to the alumnae office just in time to be included in the Recorder, but no information about what took them to Rhode Island. Daughter Sara is almost a year old now. Phyllis Berman sends greetings from Florida.

Dr. J. Cutler Andrews shared some news with us from a letter he had received from Ellen Dailey Bedell, who is continuing her graduate work in Mediterranean Studies at Brandeis University. She and her husband, an anthropologist, spent a two-month honeymoon digging in Israel. Her courses are mainly related to three areas, Egypt, Palestine and Mesopotamia, and include the language, literature, history, culture and archeology of each. Ellen hopes to complete her Ph.D. in 1971, after which she and her husband probably return to Pittsburgh.

As for me, Philip and I moved to Newtonville right after our marriage in June. Philip has taken a leave of absence from his doctoral program in American Civilization at Brown to get his B.D. at Andover Newton Theological School. I am working as a methods and training analyst at Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company. That means I write procedures and programmed instruction after performing a methods study of the project area. Susan Schnapf and Iris Raskin were guests at our wedding and have since been to see us. Susan is still working for the Welfare Department in New York and had just returned from a visit to Europe to see Lynn Hillman McCullough and Nora Levy Johnston. Iris has been promoted to psychiatric caseworker at Philadelphia State Hospital.

Liz reporting:

Most of us have the same news to report, a change in jobs this past year. Judith Howland is a stewardess with TWA flying the domestic routes out of San Francisco, while Alice Hunter is a service assistant at First National City Bank in New York City. Gini Gold is with the New York Trust Company in New York City and is apartment hunting. She will receive her master's degree in political science from Syracuse in June. Judy Fletcher works for an architect in Cambridge, Massachusetts, while wrangling admission to Yale Graduate School of Graphic Design next term. Louise Farmer is a technician in the bacteriology laboratory at Magee Woman's Hospital in Pittsburgh and studying at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medical Technology. Pamela Johnson teaches English and world cultures at Allegheny High School with this reporter, and is almost swamped with night work and planning for her March 31 wedding. Gretchen Gray Sheridan is presently a DPA caseworker in Pittsburgh, but she plans to enter Pitt's Graduate School of Social Work next fall. Gretchen's husband is completing his doctorate at Duquesne University and serving as psychologist at Woodville State Hospital.

Diane Furrer Holzheimer and husband Bob have been in Fiji since the first of the year. Diane is teaching 7th grade and Bob is supervising the work of local co-operatives. The Holzheimers live in a thatched burre near the beach. They keep their own chickens for fresh meat and eggs to supplement the fresh fish, fruit and coconuts on the island. They are enjoying their work and the country immensely.

Connie Gray Voight and husband Ron have been traveling and having a delightful time. On their way from Tucson, Arizona, to Miami, Florida, Connie and Ron visited Linda McPhillamy Nielsen and George in Fort Worth, Texas. Since they have been in Miami, they have seen Marianne Williams Yatsco who is planning to meet John on R&R from Vietnam very soon.

Lucille Finger Harding is also living by the ocean with her black retriever, Byrd. As Bones will be out of the Navy next year and back in school in conservation, they are combining skiing trips up north with investigating credentials of the local colleges.

Ellen Goldbloom Kight is teaching speech, drama, and world cultures at Our Lady of Mercy Academy in Monroeville, Pennsylvania, as well as heading up the drama club. Her plans are to visit Europe this summer and see Kathy Marchant in Oslo, Norway.

I was deeply saddened to learn of the death of Marilyn Gilardi, our former classmate, of pneumonia in June, 1968.

Pat Jalowick Demase is marvelously happy following her wedding in Boston. The day went perfectly (almost). The reception was held at a hotel in Harvard Square on the same day as the Harvard-Yale football game. The wedding ceremony and game were over at the same time creating mass confusion. Pat and Larry are at home in the new apartments right across from Woodland Road. In addition to getting settled and teaching at Liberty School, Pat is working toward her doctorate in Pitt's program for curriculum and supervision.

Judy Graytock Dengler and Bill are settling down in Bay City, Michigan, where Bill works with Dow Chemical Company. They have two new additions to the family: a miniature dachshund, Posie, and a mastiff named Maximillian—quite a study in contrasts. Judy is also doing substitute teaching in the Bay City Public School system.

As for myself, Elizabeth Claytor, I am teaching 11th-grade English at one of the local high schools. The restlessness is in me once again, so I will probably be far from Pittsburgh next year at this time. It was marvelous hearing from everyone whether they write long notes or just send greetings like Judy Gilbert Livingston and Carol Heinz. Please feel free to drop me a line during the entire year and do not wait until next January.

Cookie reporting:

In our school city, Judy Light is now involved in an impressive-sounding program at Pitt in Educational Research, on Individuality Prescribed Instruction. Karen Lake, her roommate, left Western Psych to work in the same program.

Debbie Little leaves Pittsburgh for Cambridge, Mass. (where we all meet at one time or another) to write. But before the pilgrimage, she will discover America via car and tent for 3 months.

Sara Leuthy Chamberlain and Mike are "fat and happy" on their paradise island, and wish they could stay longer as Peace Corps Volunteers on Kapingamarangi. Law school may be next for Mike. More Peace Corps news comes from Tonya Hines Pence and Steve who are teaching English to young Turkish villagers, and observing ancient exotica in Beirut, Cyprus, Greece, and Israel. Tonya loves it, yet can't wait to return to "dancing, taking bubble baths, and driving a car," the privileges we women have in America.

Dael Kiesler will venture west since her future husband Charles will be Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer for San Francisco. She will transfer from the Food Stamp Program in Washington to their office in San Francisco. Judy Graytock will be bridesmaid in Dael's wedding.

Abroad, Nancy Lipman sends word from Florence that Italians don't learn English as fast as she would like, but teaching at the Berlitz School there is interesting (Who's teaching Whom?)

Nora Levy Johnston provided this bit of information: her address, Whitenights Street, in Somerset, England, represents the name of her house (Whitenights) and her village (Street). She and William are building a house in Street, while she is mistress (i.e. teacher) for 39 five-year-olds. (Are we really using the English language correctly?) A visit to the U.S. is planned for April.

Martha King Evans will go to either New York City or Connecticut after Chip leaves the Army. In the meantime, Martha serves as a management analyst trainee at Aberdeen Proving Ground. More Army news from Linda McPhillamy Nielsen. George will leave in June and hopes to be a stock broker. Linda continues her love for Russian at Texas Christian University Graduate School, while sponsoring a Russian Club at the high school where she teaches American History.

Kala Lapidus Paul is finishing her M.A. in bacteriology at Oregon State University while her husband Jim completes his Ph.D. in physical chemistry. Destination is unknown in June, but Corpus Christi, Texas sounds like a good bet. Kala and I visit occasionally, and even trade recipes for sour dough French bread and paklava.

Trudy Levin Cushner and Arnie dwell in "a very old and very large" house near the Allegheny College campus. Arnie teaches English and Trudy observes many nostalgic campus scenes as she works in the college library.

Kammy McCleery is still with the American Red Cross where she met her future husband, Wayne MacKirdy, an officer in Military Intelligence. Her hospital work is hard and admirable, and gives her quite a different view of the war in Vietnam than we have. She hears from Debby Rosch and Andy Morgan Weyer and attended Zelda Lipshutz's wedding.

Vivian Louvery Derryck's wedding was fabulously lovely, graced by a mass of Chatham girls. Dennis is, among many other things, a consultant to the Ford Foundation and a manpower specialist; Lolly is finishing grad school at Columbia. Last time I heard they were off to the Caribbean for a rest from New York City life. At a party the Derryck's gave over Christmas, we met Anne Clark, who has an exciting job as an urban consultant in an architectural firm, Jeanne Sour, and Cass Spears.

Speaking of urban activities, Carol Pogash holds a very enticing job as the administrative aide to the president of Curber Associates, an urban research corporation that specializes in encouraging black capitalism. She is sent all over the country to major black-populated areas, and will soon also visit the west. She constantly bumps into Chatham people in the nation's capital, among them Kelly MacIssacs, when they both participated in the Anti-Inaugural.

Patty Williamson came to San Francisco recently and, with Lory King and Lee Macey, we toured the city. Lee and Lory are presently unemployed, but last summer they explored, taught and photographed Mexico.

I, Cookie, am immediately in the midst of what may soon erupt as another Columbia-type riot at Berkeley. I'll finish my M.A. in June and also take off for Mexico inlands and highlands for some animal collecting. I have a few of my own, a teddy-bear-furred Chesapeake Bay Retriever puppy, a parrot, and two finches. Being teaching assistant in a graduate zoology course keeps things moving, and in two more years, I'll have my Ph.D. Come visit when any of you are in San Francisco, and see weird California scenes.

Thanks for the news!

Due to circumstances beyond the control of the editor, no news was received from Sheila McAteer for her section of the class.

Jo reporting:

Jane Ross Ross (who, I'll bet, got used to her married name very easily!) and Randy are looking forward to June when he will get his master's at Harvard Business School. They will then be moving to an "as yet undetermined place." Jane, who teaches kindergarten near Boston, hopes to finish a master's degree in guidance next year.

Studying under a National Science Foundation grant at Pitt, Mary Schlitt Kostalis is enjoying her program of studies. Cookie Schiffman, who plans to have an M.A. in speech pathology by June, is working for a school system in Maryland and looks forward to a clinical-type job after getting her degree.

Judy Siegel also will get her master's from the Maxwell School of Syracuse University in June, having completed her thesis this winter, and looks forward to working for Congress. She and Judy London spent two weeks in Israel last summer.

Susan Slagle Young, husband Tom, and 3-year-old Meredith enjoy living in the southwest very much.

Jeannie Sour teaches chemistry at Stuyvesant High School in New York City, and was in Jane Ziskind Cohen's wedding in August. Jane, also a chemistry teacher, is living in Chicago where husband Sheldon is working for a Ph.D. in philosophy at Northwestern University.

Only the telephone company has "lateral" promotions, writes Carol Swenson Foss, and she got one! Husband Charlie, meanwhile, has had an inner-company transfer to a division in Norwalk. Swens sees Dara Murphy, Margie Morrison Hofer, '66, and Kathie Hoover Hill, '66, frequently and reports that all is well with them.

Linda Van Doren Garlick and John manage to spend much time together in spite of the fact that he is stationed on the Great Lakes while she is in New York City. This will change in June when she completes her graduate work at Columbia School of Social Work and joins John, a Naval officer.

Janet Walker, who will receive an M.A. in French from Bryn Mawr Graduate Center in June, plans to continue working toward a doctor's degree.

Janet Washburn Grana works as a secretary for the State Services for Crippled Children in Iowa City, while husband Ed continues his graduate studies at the University of Iowa.

The military has also separated John and Mariann Williams Yatsco. While John is in Vietnam, Mariann is living with her parents in Miami where she teaches reading. She traveled to Singapore in February to meet John for his R&R, and is looking forward to August when he will come home. In the meantime, she sees fellow Gatewayite Connie Gray Voight who also lives in Miami.

My thanks to all who contributed news. It was fun to hear from you. My second year has been very busy at Dickinson School of Law. I am especially interested in helping to establish a county legal services office, organized by students to provide legal aid to the poor. Last June I attended the class reunion on campus and in October I represented the class at Alumnae Council where a session on reunion planning made me realize that it is not too soon to be thinking of our 1977 reunion. If you have any suggestions or want to help, please get in touch with Cary Cadman.

Hirsh, '47, with the help of 5 solicitors, and by Natalie Lambing Paige, '41, with 2 solicitors.

The city of New York is responding superbly under the able leadership of Carole Cristiano Raymond. '59, Elm Musson Brower, '56, and Mary Virginia Bowden, '36. They have 19 women working with them.

The Westchester County (New York) group is being co-chaired by Helen Birmingham Proctor, '35, and Ruth Strickland Clark, '41, with the help of 9 other alumnae.

Fairfield County (Connecticut) is in the able hands of Margaret Graham Lathrop, '42, who has enlisted 5 helpers.

Subscriptions in northern New Jersey are being handled by Anne Braddon Hansen, '52, and Elaine Vincic Berman, '53.

This list is by no means complete. We are just now (April 1) in the process of enlisting leadership in Detroit, Baltimore, Washington, D.C., Florida, Upper Mid-West, and California.

To those of you now helping and to future helpers, many thanks for displaying a willingness to assume an important role in assuring Chatham's continued excellence.

NEWS from ROME

Dr. Mary A. McGuire, associate professor of English is in Europe this semester to observe the American Studies Programs Abroad in action. She is the first recipient of a fellowship under the Ford Grant for faculty study in the humanities. In a letter to President Eddy, Dr. McGuire recounts an interesting encounter in Rome:

"You may be interested in some reverberations from the past history of Chatham as I encountered them over here. Possibly you have heard that on my "duty visit" to the Embassy I was referred to an Italian woman who turned out to be Chatham's second exchange student, Eleanor Vigliaroli, Class of 1935, now Mrs. Mancuso. She spoke very warmly of her experience at Chatham and was most kind to me—arranging a cocktail party at which I met Italian and American scholars, Embassy people concerned with cultural affairs, and the Director of the Seminar I am about to attend. Later (again through her) I met the Cultural Attache, who seemed much interested in my project, and who added Chatham to his roster of Harvard, Duke, and other institutions presently represented in Rome on similar errands. So these pleasant and valuable encounters are a sort of return to Chatham of bread cast upon the waters many years ago."

. . . Superb Sparkling Paintings

by Davis Gray

Yes! Right now you can enjoy an exciting and colorful new idea in decorating your family room, library, student's room, office—A gift to delight the eye and stir the spirit!

What better time . . . the most nostalgic season of the year . . . to treat yourself, or someone near you, to a rare gift that recalls the splendor of the campus in all its brilliance . . . so universal in beauty and appeal that even friends of alumni will be delighted to own these paintings expertly rendered with the unmatched spontaneity and freshness only possible with watercolors.

Artist Davis Gray was chosen to do the series because of his unusually fine, free technique which has won him national recognition as an award-winning watercolorist. He has captured in these paintings the very essence of Chatham.

Each full-color set, measuring 11" x 14", matted, is individually rendered (NOT printed reproductions) on the finest watercolor paper.

The very low price of $3.50 for each painting, matted and ready for framing (only $12.50 for the set of four) is possible only as an introductory offer of the College Watercolor Group, a gathering of expert watercolorists who seek to create the widest possible appreciation for the medium of watercolors—and to introduce you, reacquaint you, or renew your delight in the marvelous, spontaneous, and refreshing world of watercolors.

For your convenience, you can also order these distinctive paintings framed with glass in handsome, hand-crafted frames of grey-brown wood with inset of soft-toned gold linen, delicately highlighted with inner border of gold thread to add dignity and beauty to any decor and color scheme. These are available for an additional $4.00 per painting, shipping and handling charges included.

So, at a fraction of the actual value of this rare set, make this initial offer—with full money-back return privileges. For a perfect gift to yourself—to alumni and friends alike—FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY, RETURN THIS NO-OBLIGATION COUPON TODAY.

● Mrs. Clifford S. Heinz, a member of the Chatham College Board of Trustees, is honoring President and Mrs. Edward D. Eddy at a luncheon on February 18, 1970 at the Surf Club, Surfside, Florida. All Chatham alumnae who are Florida residents will be invited to be guests at the luncheon, and Mrs. Heinz would like to include, also, those alumnae who will be visiting there in February. The Director of Alumnae Affairs requests that vacation addresses be sent to the alumnae office before December 31. Please indicate whether an invitation mailed early in January should be sent to the home or to the vacation address.

● The Chatham College Choir will open its second semester season with a concert at Colgate University, Hamilton, New York, on February 28, 1970. This will be followed by Colgate's visit to Pittsburgh on March 7 to present the same concert, a program of short works, in the Chatham Chapel. On April 18, the Princeton and Chatham choirs will combine to present the Brahms Requiem in the Chapel. Alumnae and friends are invited to hear these fine concerts. Last spring the Hamilton College Glee Club (Clinton, New York) invited the Chatham Choir to join with it for a European tour in the summer of 1971. With the approval of President Eddy, the Choir members are now attempting to raise the necessary funds to finance the trip. Current projects include selling birthday cakes, handling orders for the New York Times, selling Christmas gifts, and presenting an audition.

● Doctor . . . Lawyer . . . Helen Smith's article on Chatham alumnae in the medical and legal professions, continues the now-and-then series on careers. Editorial board research shows that graduates of a women's liberal arts college find many interesting and profitable jobs to do. Stories about more of these will follow in future issues.

This advice may come a bit late for some of you, but beginning at age seventeen you ought to have a pap smear every year. I can also tell you where to find a swan or a peacock if you happen to need one, where to go for authoritative consumer information on small cruisers, how you can land a job as a housekeeper, and what southern city you can speed through with little likelihood of paying a fine. Oh yes, and do you read all articles on contraception with a grain of salt, or maybe a grain-of-salt-pill?

Once again I am impressed with the goldmine of instruction and enlightenment that is the Chatham Alumnae Association. This time I was probing among alumnae in the fields of medicine and law, and I would be delighted if I might have the opportunity to know personally each of the kind respondents who have contributed to this article. They are individualists of the highest order. Even their handwriting—extremely back-handed or extremely small or widely cursive—proclaims their individuality. Only a few of the younger ones, those from the so-called revolutionary generation, are not yet true revolutionists. Yet, for all their personal individuality they are unanimously concerned with the ranks of the hurt and underprivileged—the underfed and, underhoused, the legally ...Doctor ...Lawyer...

Dr. Clara Jean Bobb Ersoz '58 (left)

put-upon, the physically or psychologically ravaged—and they are, unanimously, actively implementing their concerns.

To assume that a family and a career can be combined easily has become a popular point of view. There is little evidence among our alumnae doctors and lawyers that this is the case for them. To be sure, three of the 13 respondents graduated within the past five years and haven't had much time to find out whether or not children and careers can be made to mesh. One of the three is wondering how the combination might work out, and says she awaits a hint from this article.

Five of the remaining 10 respondents have no children. Only one of the professionals has as many as three children. She began working on her law degree at the age of 42 when the youngest was in school, and was not ready to practice for another five years, when the youngest child would have been about 11.

Two women, both doctors, have two children each. Says one, "Home management is a particularly difficult problem for the female physician." (She's looking for a good housekeeper; has had a steady sequence of not-so-good ones.) The other, whose youngsters are bilingual because of the ministrations of a Colombian nursemaid and housekeeper, is moving into full time academic and administrative work. While she bemoans lack of patient contact, she says, "I look forward to more regular hours, little or no night work, and to seeing much more of my own family."

The remaining two professional women each have one child. One has a four-year-old son, the other a foster son, aged 12. Neither of them mention any problems in connection with family management. The latter has a family practice in what must be a delightful semi-rural setting—a situation as nearly as possible tailor-made to minimize trauma for a 12-year-old boy and his physician mother.

Those who may have felt from time to time that doctors, embroiled as they must be in technology and continuing education, have ceased to care deeply about human problems, will find solid and refreshing evidence to the contrary among our alumnae physicians. In mid-1968, Dr. Louise Sonnenberg '63, was a psychiatric resident at Eastern Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute, Philadelphia. Concerned about adequate medical care for low income Negro families, Dr. Sonnenberg bought an old house in a ghetto district, and in the evenings began building a non-profit general medical practice. "There is no way," she says, "to understand the problems of Negroes and poverty but to live with them."

Dr. Clara Jean Ersoz '58 (Mrs. Namik Ersoz) observes that if a would-be physician can survive the lean years of preparation, patient care rewards are great. By the "lean" years, Dr. Ersoz means the years of study when "the average medical student is poor, harassed, tired, and always trying to scrape up some extra money for a textbook that he knows will be out of date next year." The "rewards" she describes this way: "When the critically ill patient with whom you sat up for many, many nights comes back, smiling and healthy, to visit you, this is all the reward one needs for the long period of study and hard work. This may sound very 'hearts and flowery' but I think it is often the thing that keeps many of us going."

Dr. Ersoz is an anesthesiologist affiliated with Presbyterian-University Hospital, Pittsburgh. Most of her time is spent as Medical Supervisor of respiratory care in a 16-bed multi-discipline intensive care unit. She is Medical Director of the Department of Inhalation Therapy at Presbyterian-University Hospital and Director of the University of Pittsburgh Health Center Hospital School of Inhalation Therapy.

As Assistant Professor in the Department of Anesthesiology at the University of Pittsburgh, she is involved in the training of medical students, residents, and postgraduate fellows. She is also responsible for Presbyterian-University Hospital's active fellowship program in anesthesiology. Most intensive care deals with acutely ill patients, and Dr. Ersoz finds this work "exciting, challenging, and very rewarding." "We here at Presbyterian-University Hospital," she reports, "feel that we have one of the most outstanding multi-discipline intensive care units in the United States."

Dr. Ersoz became a diplomate of the American Board of Anesthesiology in May, 1968. Research projects and publications in which she has participated have been largely in the field of intensive care. She finds time, however, for such extra-curricular activities as training swimming pool lifeguards in cardiopulmonary resuscitation. (Isn't it heartening to know that pool lifeguards have such eminently qualified instructors!)

Katherine Cuthbert Hardee '39 (Mrs. Pearson Hardee) has been in general medical practice for 20 years. She is a member of the American Association of General Practitioners and a member of the general practice services of the 450-bed Bryn Mawr Hospital in eastern Pennsylvania.

Dr. Hardee's subspecialty and major interest is alcoholism, and she has been researching, writing, teaching, training, and treating in this field throughout her practice. Dr. Hardee does not go on record as opposed to drinking. She believes that alcoholism is a disease and should be treated as a disease. She has been a board member of the Main Line Council on Alcoholism for 11 years, and a vice president of the Council for four years. She is both founder and director of the Bryn Mawr Treatment Center, founder of the Rehabilitation Unit of Haverford State Hospital, and a director of the National Council on Alcoholism for the Delaware Valley Area. She has also been a member of the board of directors of Community Health Association for 15 years. Dr. Hardee finds off-hours relaxation in sailing, camping, and traveling with her husband. Another A.A.G.P. member is Dr. Eleanor Gangloff Morris '40, who is affiliated with 100-bed Somerset Hospital in the Allegheny foothills. Dr. Morris has a large family practice spread over a wide rural area whose winter weather makes news each year, and where travel often can be difficult.

In addition to activity in her professional societies, she gives her services to a child health clinic and as a scout leader. On her small farm she raises a variety of animal life, including deer, peacocks, geese, ducks, swans, and horses.

In pediatrics is Dr. Barbara Stephenson Bruner '52 (Mrs. John J. Bruner). Dr. Bruner is a member of a large partnership practice (125 partners and associates) known as Emory University Clinic, Atlanta, Georgia. All are faculty members of Emory Medical School and spend part time in teaching responsibilities. As an associate in the Clinic's Department of Pediatrics, Dr. Bruner has for the past nine years instructed senior medical students in practical child care, and conducted an office practice in pediatrics. Because of an increasing teaching load in the pediatric training program, in September of last year Dr. Bruner began giving full time to academic and administrative duties in the Medical School and Grady Memorial Hospital, the teaching hospital associated with Emory complex. She continues a small private practice, limited to referrals of special problems by other physicians.

Dr. Bruner is on the staff of the Henrietta Egleston Hospital (100 beds), and Grady Memorial (1,000 beds), as well as Emory University Hospital. She is a board fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics (since 1961), a member of the Southern Society for Pediatrics (since 1961), a member of the Southern Society for Pediatric Research, on the Advisory Board of the Christian Association for the Retarded. She also participates in a lecture-discussion series on sex education for adolescent girls.

Dr. Bruner's husband, John J., is a Traffic Division judge in the Municipal Courts of the City of Atlanta. With him and their two children she spends July each year, and as many week-ends as possible, at a second home on the Gulf Coast of Florida, west of Panama City, with "the prettiest white sandy beach in the world."

Dr. Jane D. Patterson '60 has one year of practice in obstetrics and gynecology under her belt, as it were. She has completed her residency and the written examination for board certification, and looks forward to taking her board oral exam after two years of practice.

Dr. Patterson works in the Kaiser Foundation-Southern California Permanente Medical Group, a group practice serving about 600,000 patients subscribing to pre-paid medical insurance. She practices in a Hollywood hospital that currently has 440 beds but is undergoing another in a series of expansions. The hospital's obstetrical service handles about 3,700 deliveries, and has an equally busy gynecological service. An active residency program provides Dr. Patterson with opportunity to participate in teaching.

Along with most physician respondents for this article, Dr. Patterson recommends a medical career for women, and she puts in an added word about her specialty. "There is so much that's exciting going on in the field—RH disease, advances in contraceptives, the controversies over abortions and family planning. There are as many things still to come, that need research—the 'morning after' pill, the prevention of prematurity and birth injuries, predicting and preventing inherited defects."

Also practicing obstetrics, but over the hurdle of board qualification, in California is Dr. Miriam Santisteban Wysocki '54 (Mrs. Louis F. Wysocki). Dr. Wysocki is Chief of Obstetrics at West Anaheim Community Hospital, a 99-bed facility that is headed for immediate expansion. (And I thought the greatest increase in California's population was among the senior-citizen age group!)

Dr. Mary Hostler Green '34 has a master's degree in biochemistry as well as her medical doctorate. She is a specialist in internal medicine with a subspecialty in diabetes mellitus. She serves a busy practice from her home office and works out of Suburban General Hospital (220 beds) in Pittsburgh's north suburbs, and as a consultant at St. John's, a 750-bed general hospital. She also contributes her services to the Health Office of Bellevue Borough.

For some 10 years before taking up her medical practice, Dr. Green worked in various areas of chemistry—as a researcher in organic chemistry, as a food chemist, an analytical microbiologist, and as chief chemical clinical technician. She has participated in published research in chemistry, enzyme activity, and cancer tissue culture.

What special message do the doctors have for us?

DR. WYSOCKI: "I feel strongly about every woman beginning at the age of seventeen to seek medical attention and having a pap smear done every year; every six months if she is taking oral contraceptives. It is painless, highly effective in detecting the early stages of cancer at a time when the per cent of successful treatment is the highest, and available to everyone desiring to have it done."

DR. GREEN: "Be happy stay healthy."

My "soap box" is: "the inconsiderateness of the average American patient (who) calls at any hour of day or night, especially at dinner time, even though the call is not urgent, and (who) insists upon unnecessary house calls."

DR. PATTERSON: My "soap box" is: "urging more women to select medicine as a career." Also, "read those articles in the magazines with a grain of salt. They . . . are often filled with half-truths. Particularly in the field of contraceptives this is quite common."

DR. BRUNER: "Go to your doctor for regular check-ups, and if you feel sick or find anything wrong, have it taken care of immediately. To be afraid to go to the doctor because you're afraid he might find something, and to delay until too late, is sheer stupidity."

DR. HARDEE: My "soap box" is: "alcoholism is a disease—preventable and treatable."

DR. ERSOZ: My "soap box" is: "the lack of adequate available personnel to help the woman in professional fields with the management of her home. My preference . . . is a middle-aged widow who is looking for a 'family' to live with, but in this day of social security and aid to the aged, very few people seem to want to work or live with a family."

DR. MORRIS: "See your doctor regularly! Ha!"

My "soap box" is: "Government waste, high spending and high taxes."

What do they say to Chatbam undergraduates?

DR. SONNENBERG: "I feel my liberal arts foundation was the best preparation I could have had for medicine. In fact, I think it is the choice preparation for anyone considering further scientific study. I would heartily recommend medicine as a career for women. I have never met a woman physician who regretted completing her training. It can be mixed with any style of home life, and there are a variety of ways to meet the responsibilities of being a woman in medicine."

DR. WYSOCKI: "The educational foundation I received from my liberal arts curriculum enabled me to acquire a diversified and well-oriented background for my medical studies."

DR. GREEN: "Choose a field of greatest interest, and give it all you have,—remembering that a woman must have or strive for, happiness which does not necessarily mean great affluence."

DR. PATTERSON: "I feel that a liberal arts background is a necessity for advanced medical education. Medicine is not a science, it's an alliance, particularly in this age of the biological sciences, sociology, psychology, etc. In OB-GYN there are so many problems on a large scale than the individual patient—family planning, therapeutic abortions, sexual problems, conflicts in the morality and ethics of all these. A person with a restricted education is very often not even aware of these problems, or when faced with them is overwhelmed. I can strongly recommend a medical career for women. It is a natural calling for us, and . . . the demand for physicians is always increasing."

DR. BRUNER: "There is a place for women in the field of medicine, and more women should go into it. The expense of a medical education . . . is a deterrent; the length of (preparation) time is also a factor. Some medical fields are better suited to women with children than mine (pediatrics), but I would do it all over again. It helps to have a medical husband."

"I have been pleased with liberal arts as a foundation for advanced medical education. To be able to listen to, understand, and discuss world events, history, politics, etc., is a must these days. (A doctor) has to have interests other than medicine for peace of mind. To have a husband and children is nice, too; it is possible to have a career and a family, but admittedly it is rather hectic at times."

Ruth Moorhead Sward '35

DR. ERSOZ: "Home management is a particularly difficult problem for the female physician, and we have been through a long succession of housekeepers.

"(Medical education) is a lot of hard work; it is very frustrating when you are trying to raise a family at the same time; but, above all, it is fun to be a member of the medical profession."

DR. MORRIS: "(Liberal arts) is excellent preparation for medicine, especially the 'appreciation' courses in music, art, etc.

"In my opinion, medicine is still the finest career a woman could choose."

Interest in the law as a career has increased dramatically among Chatham students in recent years. Graduates who have chosen this field are of quite recent alumna vintage. Ruth Moorhead Sward '35 (Mrs. Keith Sward) is an elder statesman in the group, and she deferred her law career until her children were well on their academic way.

Mrs. Sward is a member of the bar in California, and belongs to the Los Angeles and Santa Monica Bar Associations. She practices independently, and specializes in family law and probate.

Her route to law practice was hardly direct. She followed Chatham with an M.A. in English, and taught in high school and college for four years. She then took a master's degree in social work, and worked in public housing until her family began arriving. After three girls and ten years of full-time motherhood, she enrolled in law school. Four-and-a-half years of night school later, she had her LLB.

She has deliberately limited her practice in order to keep some control over working hours and types of cases. She works with the Legal Aid society in helping low-income people, and is occasionally active in Democratic politics.

Here are some interesting excerpts from Mrs. Sward's letter:

"I get hot under the collar often about our divorce laws—the gaps between what the statutes say the law is, and what social reality requires, and about some of the profession's practices in divorce litigation. Extra-professionally, I get hot under the collar about Vietnam and the ghettos."

To Chatham alumnae: "Avoid law suits entirely. If you have to encounter the maze of the law, pick your lawyer with the care you'd give to picking a husband."

To Chatham undergrads: "If your primary interest is an absorbing preoccupation with the legal profession, it will be hard to do a completely satisfying (and probably satisfactory) job of family and home. If you are willing to settle for less than earth-shaking professional status, it is possible to do both."

Jeanette Mikkelsen Lamar '62 (Mrs. William P. Lamar) practices corporate law with Litton Industries, Inc., and maintains bar association memberships in both Beverly Hills, California, and Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Lamar has no conflicts as yet with child-rearing, but finds her time more than adequately filled by political interests (she is an active member of the League of Women Voters, and was an avid Eugene McCarthy supporter), bookkeeping and secretarial work for her husband, and several hobbies (knitting, reading, playing guitar).

She believes liberal arts to be good foundation for certain abilities essential to the law—reading, writing, and self-expression.

Last September, Shiela Rush Jones '61 (Mrs. Charles H. Jones) became Associate Director of Community Law Offices, "a privately funded pilot program to provide free legal services and representation to indigent Harlem residents and community organizations." The offices are funded principally by Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations.

After graduating from Harvard Law School in 1964, Mrs. Jones became a staff attorney in charge of housing litigation for the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. (As an undergraduate, she had served as a legal intern in the Eminent Domain Division of the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office.) Later, in 1967, she became attorney to the Architects' Renewal Committee in Harlem.

In her new position, her specialization in urban renewal and housing law continues, but now she also handles criminal cases as well. "Professionally and extra-professionally," she says, "I support activities and efforts aimed at making the Afro-American community independent and self-determining. My main concern is the plight of black people in the United States."

Mrs. Jones is a member of the Committee on Housing and Urban Development of the Bar Association of the City of New York, and also a member of the Harlem Lawyers' Association. She is an avid reader, and writes poems and short stories. "One of my poems," she recalls, "once appeared in Chatham's Minor Bird."

In Mrs. Jones' opinion, a liberal arts education is good preparation for law school—"in particular those courses which require analytical and logical thinking, such as philosophy, literature, and the arts."

A summer in New York City's Criminal Court cured Nancy Speck '65 of her supposed interest in practicing criminal law. "I am interested," she reports, "in how law school curriculums are adapting to what I see as a new demand for lawyers trained in social problems as well as the law. I think that laws on housing, welfare, marriage and divorce, juvenile delinquency, and so on, could all be more effectively used in solving our current urban problems (and) that as the government becomes more actively involved in the lives of urban residents, a knowledgeable Bar will be necessary if the private rights of individuals are to be protected.

"I think that my eventual career plans will have a great deal to do with my personal convictions and concerns about the legal profession, which in turn hinge upon the nature of the liberal arts education I received at Chatham. (In law school) I have appreciated the broadly based background I had acquired in history, the arts, and the social sciences . . . the necessity at Chatham to read large quantities of material and learn to think about it rather than memorize. This kind of background helps a person to see his society and its problems in proper perspective and to deal with them much more effectively . . . particularly valuable in the study of law."

Last fall, at the beginning of her third year at University of Pittsburgh School of Law, Nancy had no definite career plans, but that picture has changed now. Since receiving her J.D. degree in June, she has been working for the Department of Transportation in Washington, D.C. in an honors program for lawyers dealing with all areas of transportation law. Nancy took the District of Columbia Bar exams in September and, at last report, was anticipating admission by the end of October.

A third-year student at Dickinson School of Law, Carlisle, Pa., is Jo Messersmith '67. Jo is especially interested in juvenile law, but since this is not yet a major area of practice, she is considering other possibilities, among them—work in a legal aid program. Meanwhile, as an extra-curricular activity, she acts as an advisor to students from thirty-six Greater Harrisburg Area High Schools under a program called Youth Forum.

She has been working with a Dickinson professor on revising Laub's Pennsylvania Trial Guide, for which labor she receives half tuition, and is a 1969-70 member of the Mock Trial Board that plans mock trial competition for students.

The state of this country's two-party system is one thing that bugs Jo. (She was a McCarthy supporter during the last presidential campaign.) She is also worried about the credibility gap, particularly with regard to the Vietnam war, and has no sympathy with efforts of young people and their parents to avoid military service.

At the time of her response to The Recorder, Miss Messersmith was contemplating marriage with a fellow law student who subscribes to the "old-fashioned" idea of that woman's place in the home. She doesn't disagree with the gentleman, but thought she might be able to work part time, or at least to assist him in his work. "He will be interested to read your article," she says, "to see how lawyer-wives have handled this situation."

Happily, she did not wait for The Recorder to decide her fate. On June 21, she married a fellow Dickinson student, Charles E. S. Mitchell. Now begins the drama "Jo Ann Faces Life." (Can a female law graduate find happiness baking kitchen goodies for a strong-minded attorney?)

As for liberal arts as a foundation for legal education, Jo says "EXCELLENT!" She observes that English is a good pre-law major; equally so, political science; philosophy majors seem to have "the best-trained minds;" science majors are "diligent but comparatively poorly prepared."

"There is a place for women in the law. I encourage all students who have an interest in legal studies to foster and nurture their interest." In general, to those about to graduate, Jo advises, "Don't settle for 'a job,' accept only 'the job.' If it requires more education, continue with school or arrange with a potential employer for a leave of absence. Women, especially Chatham women, need the challenge of an interesting job . . . or an interesting marriage." She guesses none of us would argue with that final sentiment, though some of us may have compromised on occasion.

Centennial News

ALUMNAE DAY—June 7, 1969

Two hundred and thirty-six alumnae and seventy-nine husbands and guests came to the campus on June 7 for a memorable reunion, the opening event of the Centennial celebration. The activities started the night before for those who spent the night in Rea and Laughlin Houses, but the formal program opened with CHATHAM FORECAST, a panel presentation moderated by Cordelia Suran Jacobs '60. The participants were two members of the faculty: Dr. James Diggory, professor of psychology, and Dr. Richard Morrill, chaplain and assistant professor of religion; and two students, Katherine Donahue '70, and Margaret Yockey '71.

Receiving special honors at the Reunion Luncheon were fifteen of the twenty living past presidents of the Alumnae Association. Honored, also, were two alumnae who were celebrating their 70th and 65th anniversaries, Jennie De-

Vore Porter, Class of 1899, and Edna McKee Houston, Class of 1904.

President and Mrs. Eddy entertained all reunion guests at a lovely reception in their home on Woodland Road to start the evening festivities. Then, following a buffet dinner, seven alumnae (and a friend who took part just for fun) presented a musical revue. Appropriately entitled "Those Were The Days," the show was the collective effort of Janice Miller Schmidt '58, writer and narrator, Claire Rubenstein Sachnoff '58, musical director and guitar accompanist, and the singing and dancing chorus: Jeanie Dym Glushein '58, Myrna Deaktor Prince '59, Harriet Lewis Franklin '59, Betsy Lytle Suatoni '59, and Carol Parker Berkman '59.

Next year's reunion committee is already wondering what it can do to equal the 1969 Alumnae Day.

ALUMNAE ARTISTS EXHIBITION

Twenty-one pieces of art work were assembled for the second Alumnae Artists Exhibition shown in Falk Hall from October 18 through November 2, 1969. The first alumnae show took place in 1964, and the current one was planned as part of the Centennial observance. Included in the exhibit were paintings, drawings, collages, fabric and stitchery, a wood block print, and several ceramic pieces.

Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania artists who contributed individual works were Susan Scott Tucker '22, Jeanne Kalish Samuels '39, Helen Heath Smith '44, Marilyn Marks Zelt '49, Rita McEldowney '50, Susan Bergman Gurrentz '56, Lois Katz Blaufeld '56, Eleanor Carroll Molnar '56, Frances Venardos Gialamas '59, Connie Merlino Tamburo '62, and Zoe Warwick Sherman '62.

From out-of-state came the entries of Dorothy Dodworth Scullin '51, and Dorothy Hauser Fritts '54 (Massachusetts), Ann Hutchinson Winterling '54 (Missouri), Patricia McCormick Goodrich '55 (New Jersey), Anne Turner Arnold '60 (Connecticut), Helen Roesing Monroe '63, and Patrice Williamson '66 (Illinois), Doris Damour '65 (New York), Melanie Redhead Applebaum '67 (Michigan), and Yvette Bourgeois '68 (Texas).

The show was co-sponsored by Mr. Jerry Caplan, chairman of the Chatham art department, and the Alumnae Association.

100th BIRTHDAY PARTY

The gala 100th Birthday Party on November 21, 1969 will be history by the time this is in print, but now, the end of October, there is a great flurry of work and excitement as plans proceed for this once-in-a-lifetime event. Invitations are out, reservations are coming in, decorations are being made, and a number of alumnae are devoting hours of time and effort toward the final success of the party. And PARTY it is to be—a true celebration of one hundred years of proud history and a toast to the years ahead.

The ballroom of the William Penn Hotel is the scene of the festivities. During a reception preceding the dinner, guests may indulge in a nostalgic look at the past through the medium of a display of memorabilia. History will repeat itself again during the program when a very unusual showing of slides will be presented. President Eddy will speak, the Chatham Choir will sing old songs and new, and the program will be climaxed with the presentation of ten Centennial Service Awards.

The awards will be given "with deep gratitude for distinguished personal contributions to the achievement of the College during its first century of service" to: Mr. Arthur E. Braun, Mr. George D. Lockhart, Mrs. Robert D. Campbell, Mrs. Clifford S. Heinz, Dr. Paul R. Anderson, Miss Mary Helen Marks, Miss Laberta Dysart, Mrs. Alexander Murdoch, Mrs. Albert F. Keister, and Miss Helen Ryman.

Very sincere thanks are in order for those who have served on the following committees: planning and arrangements, Cordelia Suran Jacobs '60, Mary Anderson Sheehan '54, Arline Sinkus Lewis '61; publicity, Helen Ryman '24, working with Toby Milligan, public relations director; invitations, Janet Murray Newton '42, and the many volunteers who prepared more than 4,000 invitations for mailing; decorations, Helen Lindsay Lee '36, Rita McEldowney Spalding '50, Connie Merlino Tamburo '62, and members of the Mt. Lebanon Club who assembled the table centerpieces; memorabilia, Louise Wallace Menges '43; recognition and awards, Helen Smith '44, Peggy Donaldson '44, Lois Kramer Boyd '38; slide show, Ruth Garland Lesko '56; music, Alma Salvetti Jennings '59; college coordinator, Mr. Leonard G. Doran; and, of course, the alumnae office staff.

A DATE for YOUR CALENDAR

ALUMNAE DAY

June 6, 1970

CENTENNIAL FUND PROGRESS REPORT

The Alumnae Association has approximately four thousand women on its rolls. Centennial Fund volunteers are reaching their fellow alumnae by mail or by personal solicitation, depending upon where our Chathamites live.

Geographic Campaigns

Personal solicitation campaigns are in different states of completion in the following geographic concentrations: Allegheny County; Buffalo; Chicago; Westchester County, New York; Long Island, New York; Detroit; Miami and Fort Lauderdale; Sarasota and St. Petersburg; New Jersey; Philadelphia; Fairfield County, Connecticut; Baltimore; and Washington, D.C. Still to be cultivated are the Los Angeles area and the San Francisco area. Thus far we have 375 alumnae volunteers canvassing these concentrations—a very fine indication of how our alumnae respond to a challenge!

Mail Campaigns

In the very near future each class will have been canvassed by mail. Please understand that not everyone is to receive a letter of solicitation from a classmate. For those of you that we have reached by letter, we simply could not convey the story of the Centennial Fund any other way.

And there you have it. We're still working hard, and we're well on our way to reaching the Alumnae Association goal of $150,000.

FORTY-SIXTH ALUMNAE COUNCIL

Alumnae Council, usually held in October, was scheduled this year for November 20, 21 in order to have the 100th Birthday Party as its climax. Delegates were invited to attend a lecture in the Middle East series before the opening luncheon in Mellon Hall.

Group discussion followed an exploration of ideas by a panel of alumnae, faculty and students on "The Role of Alumnae in the Future of the College." Club leaders had an opportunity to have dinner with area students prior to a club workshop.

A campus tour on Friday morning was followed by an orientation seminar providing an opportunity to learn about Chatham: the College, the students, the Alumnae Association, and the relationship of each to the others.

class news . . .

14 The death of Mary Savage Lewis on December 7, 1968 left her classmates deeply saddened by the loss of a good friend and without their faithful secretary to gather news for the Recorder. As editor, I have taken the responsibility of corresponding with the class members and reporting their news. R. H. S.

Four members were present for a 55th reunion on Alumnae Day, June 7—Mildred McWilliams, Ethel Williams Keister, Adeline Colebrook Voight and Mary Little Aiken.

A note from Janet Brownlee says, "How we will miss Mary, the capable president of our junior and senior years and our faithful secretary for so long! I hope you all saw that the husband of our classmate, Cornelia Gillespie Miller, former Chief of Army Chaplains, conducted the final military rites for Dwight Eisenhower in the chapel at Abilene. The July National Geographic gives the closing words of his prayer and has a small picture of Major General Miller standing in the door of the chapel. I still spend much of my time studying Bible, teaching a little and doing some writing. I enjoyed talking by phone to Miss White last fall, and hope to call on her in October when I visit a niece near Wilmington."

Adeline Colebrook Voight reports a new address:—608 Sunnyside Street, Hartville, Ohio 44632, where she and her daughter live together and which she describes as "a wide place in the road." Mrs Voight's book "Shadyside Childhood," which she wrote last year for 4-to-12-year-old girls, is obtainable at The Red Quill on Walnut Street or direct from the author at $2.00. The loss of her younger sister, Louise, overshadows everything else since her death last February.

After living in one house for almost fifty years, Phoebe Knight Nicholas has moved twice in six months, but is glad to stay in the Pittsburgh area and glad also to be well enough for such undertaking. Her current address is 60 Clover Drive, Apt. 31, Pittsburgh 15236.

Rebecca Larimer Sherratt keeps quite busy with her growing family—two grandsons, two married granddaughters, and three great-grandchildren. One grandson, Douglas Sherratt, graduated from Lafayette College and is now with the Army in Vietnam, naturally a great concern to his family.

Mildred McWilliams returned in September after two months at Chautauqua, New York, her favorite vacation spot.

Ethel Williams Keister says that it has never been easy for her to write about her "doings," but, due to my persistence she did reply. I am glad because she does do the most interesting things. She wrote a day or so after the 1969 Fashionlogue which drew over 1,400 people (even some men) to the Hilton Hotel, the largest group to date. Rated "most interesting," was her trip to attend the Investiture of Prince Charles of Wales, accompanied by her 17-year-old granddaughter, Cherry Semple, followed by a tour of the British Isles.

Mrs. Keister has spent a great deal of time in New York City working on various musical projects with Mrs. Serge Koussevitsky, whom she visited last summer at her home "Saranac" in Tanglewood, Massachusetts. In 1970 she expects to go to Geneva, Switzerland as co-chairman of the International Composition Contest for the National Society of Arts and Letters, whose convention she attended in Honolulu last year. Her granddaughter Carol Semple (a senior at Hollins College, Virginia) won the Pennsylvania Women's Amateur Golf Championship, making Carol and her mother, Phyllis (Chatham 1942), the only mother and daughter to have won the state title.

NEW ADDRESS

Leila Hill Lytle (Mrs. Wm. G., Jr.), 197
Segar Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15241

Frances Boale Belding spent a pleasant winter at St. Petersburg, Florida, but plans to return to Sarasota another year after Christmas. The past summer was so pleasant in Pittsburgh that she took no trips, but she hoped to attend the D.A.R. State Conference in Philadelphia during October and plans to entertain Decade V for the Christmas meeting. Frances is a member of the State Committee of Approved Schools and vice-chairman of the World Affairs Committee of the College Club.

Rebekah Crouse Costanzo and her husband, during a pleasant summer at home, enjoyed visits from their children.

Gertrude Frame Patterson and "Pat," after experiencing considerable inconvenience from a hurricane earlier in the year, by June were able to greatly enjoy an extensive tour—via jet, train, bus and boat—to Anchorage, Alaska, the Yukon and Skagway, and Vancouver, B.C. on the M.S.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, CHATHAM COLLEGE. REMEMBER, "GIVE TO THE CENTENNIAL FUND."

Polar Star. Gertrude mentions especially their "fantastic journey" on the White Pass and Yukon Railway along the Klondike Trail of '98, past Black Cross Rock and Dead Horse Gulch, "some of the most majestic scenery" in North America. Also, in contrast, they took the Arctic Circle tour to Point Barrow and Nome. At Point Barrow, during their day-and-a-half stay, the sun never set. They sampled mukluk and partook of a delicious reindeer dinner. The Eskimos, especially the adorable, smiling children, were most enjoyable.

Rosemary Geary and her sister are planning a winter vacation in Florida.

Martha ("Fairy") Gibbons Millspaugh and her now full-grown Schnauzer dog are hopefully awaiting visits from old friends. She greatly enjoys swimming in the pool of her close friends—her doctor and his wife. An early, cool summer turned hot in July, inflicting hardship on Martha's roses.

Mildred Nicholls Kobman traveled to Ireland and England in the spring. Her "most exciting" news is that of having been in an accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike this summer. No one was injured but her new car was put out of commission.

Amelia Slater repeated last year's very pleasant vacation at the same place.

Helen Steele Truxal flew to Massachusetts late in August and spent twelve delightful days with her daughter Helen, in Maine and on the Cape. Helen is still staying in Pittsburgh. Her grandson Bob entered college in September.

Adella Stewart Anderson reports a waiting list at Methodist Manor Home, Seaford, Del. Guests enjoy programs on nature, travel, music, art, current events and a Bible class. They have bus trips to nearby points of interest. With her son, his wife and their twelve-year-old daughter, Adella visited Puerto Rico in November, and in June she went by train to her granddaughter's wedding in Massachusetts.

Greatly appreciated notes, devoid of news, bore greetings and best wishes to all 1916-ers from Melba Martin Ingersoll, Mary Stratton and Grace Woodrow.

As for yours truly, I have been, since March 1st, enjoying life at the comfortable and very pleasant Friend's (Quaker's) Home at Kennett Square, not far from Chatham. In January, I had a pleasant week's visit with my sister Helen and her husband Remy, in their new home at beautiful Jekyll Island, Ga. Remy's sudden death, in May, took me down there again and, after spending the last week in August at Bethany Beach, Del., I drove to Georgia with Helen, who had come north for a visit. In June, I traveled by train to Alliance, Ohio, to greet baby Amy, niece Patsy's new daughter and fourth child. Almost daily I walk two squares to niece Jane's to visit with her and her four adorable children, with whom I frequently babysit.

DEATHS

Josephine Paul Means, October 31, 1968
Eleanor Fuller McMurray, November 5, 1968

Dorothy Minor Cary, October 20, 1969

We are indeed saddened to learn of the passing of three of our class members. We extend sincere sympathy to their loved ones.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Kamala Cornelius Asirvatham whose husband died in May 1969.

Kamala writes:

I lost my dear husband on May 7, 1969 after a long illness borne with great courage and patience. Before his death he advised me to get away from India for a change and rest. Our eldest daughter Vasantini was spending the summer in Switzerland. He urged me to visit her and I have done so. I spent some weeks with her in Switzerland. I also spent some weeks with Premi my second daughter in England. This trip has done me a great deal of good and has given me great comfort. I feel much better now to return home with new strength to continue my work. On my way back home I plan to stop at Delhi to spend two or three months with my youngest daughter Padmini.

Please write to me at my home address and letters will be forwarded.

With my best wishes to all,
Yours sincerely,
Kamala Asirvatham.

Mollie Davidson Nass says, "We are both in good health and planning a trip in September for our 48th anniversary."

The card from Eulalia Fournier Babbitt this year came from her granddaughter. Dear Class of 1918:

As Lala Fournier's granddaughter I can tell you that your former classmate spends the majority of her time engrossed in the latest Saturday Review or Kent State Student Newspaper. She's quite a unique grandmother and a favorite with my college friends.

Most sincerely,
Martha Babbitt Williams

Charlotte Hunker Hays has spent part of the summer in North Carolina, and has had friends and family visiting her.

Ruth Kauffman Morrison writes that her younger sister, who has been in the hospital for almost a year, is home now in Erie, Pa. Ruth attended a meeting of Chatham graduates at the home of Mrs. Robert Hinkley of Sarasota, Florida. She said, "Although I didn't know anyone personally, it didn't take long to get acquainted. I enjoyed meeting these alumnae very much." She sends greetings to all.

Ruth Long says, "I keep busy doing many interesting things. In May I took a bus trip to see the tulips in Holland, Michigan and found Charlotte Hunker Hays was one of the passengers."

Florence Younkens Fowler reports a quiet year. "No long trips—just spent a few weeks at Kitty Hawk Beach with my daughter and her boys."

Your secretary can also report a quiet year. I spent three weeks in Traverse City, Michigan with my daughter and her family—also spent a week-end with friends in Hart.

Thanks to all who answered my cards. I enjoy reading your replies—only wish we could hear from a few more.

"NOW PRESS WE ON" TO THE CENTENNIAL FUND GOAL.

DEATH

Edna Faddis Stevens, December 25, 1968

We have decided to save all news gathering until June 6, 1970 when we will observe our 50th anniversary. There will be a full day of activities planned on campus and we hope that as many as possible will plan to come. Full details will be forthcoming in the spring, but if you have any suggestions about what you would like to do, please get in touch with Ethel at the above address.

NEW ADDRESSES

Florence Solomon Ellis (Mrs. Robert E)
Leisure Village, 417-A Chatham Court
Lakewood, N.J. 08701

Carolyn Titzell, 501 North McKean Street
Kittanning, Pa. 16201

Helen Allison Dunbar's activities have been slowed down considerably due to illness requiring special diet and rest. She heard from Bon during the summer and sees Jane quite often at various social gatherings.

Peg Berryman Lowstutter wishes she had some interesting news for us. She has the same old ailment but keeps going at a slower pace. Just thankful to be alive.

Betty Dean Boots seems to be our most active club woman. She is president of Thursday Afternoon Club, program chairman of two organizations, and continues working in the Prayer Group at the First United Methodist Church. Her special project is to write letters to patients in the hospitals each week. She is expecting a guest from Miami to visit her during the Christmas season.

Dot Burleigh Courtney writes that the thirteenth grandchild arrived in August—Mary Courtney Howell, daughter of Dot and John. They spent June in California and then went up to Victoria and Vancouver and home by Glacier Park. Hopes to see everyone at our fiftieth reunion.

Bon Connelly also wishes for something exciting to report. She hasn't been Egypt to ride a camel's back or to Hawaii to dance on the beach. How lazy can one be! She doesn't know what would happen if she had to get up at seven and slave for someone eight hours a day. The tornado that hit Lakewood July 4th was just a few blocks away and she realized she never before has she known the force of nature. For two days and nights there were without electricity and hot water. Brought back to mind the gas light era of early Chatham.

Ina Connelly Cross says she has had a good year health-wise and busy-wise. One of her daughters is living in California and the other in Boston. She keeps lan-open, does her club work and tries to keep abreast.

Rose Gorzo Rapach declares that at this time of life it becomes more difficult to relate news. She is very active, vitally interested in domestic, foreign and religious matters. Hopes we can live long enough to see the development of this new era.

Mickey Gray Harlor reports statistics the same and for that she is most grateful. Wishes the same to good old 1922.

How nice to hear from Helen Gross Alderman! We day students will surely think of lunch times in the den. Her activities are limited due to arthritis. Perhaps some day she may see some of our classmates as her daughter and family live in Allison Park. She would like to have one of the three granddaughters choose Chatham though they are years away from college age and by then may be living in California. Her son lives in Denver and has a son and daughter. Helen's husband plans retirement soon and they will go to live in Hot Springs, Arkansas, where they have a home on Lake Hamilton. Frequently she wonders about her classmates and sends greetings to all.

Florence Newmaker Knapp had a bout with Hong Kong flu last Christmas Eve just when her daughter and family were home for the first time in six years. They spent the winter in Ft. Myer's Beach, Florida and expect to return this year. Her daughter has moved to Washington as her son-in-law was appointed Under Secretary of the Air Force. Granddaughter Pam graduated from Wellesley this spring Summa Cum Laude, Phi Beta Kappa, and Durant Scholar. Newnie sends love to all the gals.

Susan Scott Tucker says this year has been busier than ever with painting and exhibiting. In July they took a trip to the Thousand Islands and then visited with their daughter Annie in Auburn, New York. In August, daughter Peggy and her four children were with them. Always busy!

Jane Taylor had a nice trip to Banff, Lake Louise and Alaska. She found the Canadian Rockies beautiful. She says Helen is much better but not able to do much. Like the rest of us, tires easily. She missed seeing Peg Lowstutter this summer.

Caroline Titzell has nothing stupendous to report except that they are moving into an apartment. At present they are living in two places and she feels it will take three months to clear the house. She sends best wishes to all.

Elizabeth Wilson Lorenz and her husband are enjoying Florida as much as ever. Last summer they spent August in Pittsburgh and during the winter had two wonderful trips to New Orleans and one to Fort Lauderdale. They have purchased a condominium in St. Petersburg Beach but will not move in until next year. The address, when the move takes place, will be Regency West, Apt. 415, 5555 Gulf Blvd., St. Petersburg Beach, Florida 33706.

As for your secretary, I have had a busy year. Illness in the family has made it necessary to spend much time in Springdale. In April nine of us from New Castle went to the Caribbean on the first tour sponsored by the Pennsylvania Retired Teachers' Association. Had an enjoyable trip. I spend September in Fal-mouth and all were much relieved when hurricane Gerta decided to head for the sea before reaching the Cape with its hundred mile winds. I wish to thank all who responded.

NEW ADDRESS

Ruth Baxter Hill (Mrs. T. M.) 721
West Hills Road, Henderson, N.C.
28739

This, our 45th Reunion Year, with its barrage of letters and communiques set off by our hep chairmen, Stella Wagenfehr Shane and Lenore Allen, along with the Centennial Fund et al, shook loose news about most of our class. Then the special report on the Reunion, sent you by your eager-beaver secretary, and what we learned there has in turn brought enlightening items.

Grace Davis Mechling's husband is being treated at the Harmarville Rehabilitation Center since his stroke on June 11th and everything is on a wait-and-see basis.

Our sympathy to Esther Miller Kagan whose husband passed away suddenly on August 17, while on a visit to Pittsburgh where he began his ministry. An outstanding rabbi in New York State, concerned with ecumenical affairs, his loss is great not only to Esther and her two boys but to the entire religious community.

Thanks to Dorothy Cooke Ortnier's husband, pinchhitting for her on news to save her eyes, a chance to pass on what she was shy about. While teaching in Corry High School she persuaded the superintendent to put in French courses, so that on retiring two years ago three were teaching seven French courses, and two of her students have become teachers of the language, also. Bravo for her!

Martha Glandon Lutheringer, off September 29th for a 46-day trip to Africa, will have to miss the October Trustees meeting but could still make the 100th Anniversary dinner.

Olive Keck Comfort lost two sisters within two weeks during the summer, her oldest, Katharine '17, and her youngest, Mary Alice x'28.

Marian Stewart Smith is justly proud of her husband who was chosen to be project engineer on the new Elk County Courthouse. Daughter Mary Ann O'Nan is teaching economics at Carnegie-Mellon, and Sally Vicillet is head of the Spanish department at the Friends Academy in Locust Valley, Long Island.

Best wishes have come from Marian Kimmel Darsie who is still teaching; Helen Errett Hourdequin, adjusting to her husband's recent death by traveling; Alberta Sexauer Reissler who still likes her retired village in Ohio; Florence Steele Bullock who retired from teaching this year.

See you all at our 50th Reunion!

NEW ADDRESS

Bertha Gates Goodrich (Mrs. Forrest A.),
310 Pine Avenue, Altoona, Pa. 16601

Ruth Adams, retired from South Hills High School, leads a lazy life and enjoyed two trips, one to Bucks County, Pa., and another to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Mary Ailes Sechler visited her daughter in Winnetka, Illinois, last March, and her daughter and family spent three weeks with Mary during the summer. A niece, Jane Ailes, is a freshman at Chatham this year, the third generation of the family to attend. Mary enjoyed attending the Centennial Alumnae Day in June and hoped to see some classmates at the Centennial Dinner on November 21.

Ruth Bodner Decker is sure the Deckers must have some gypsy blood because they seem to travel so much. Ruth and her husband planned a fall trip to Colorado for deer hunting and to visit their second granddaughter born there in June. Their son Gene teaches at the State University and his research projects take him to such places as Iran and Africa. Son Kenneth is a steward with Matson Lines and has been around the world and on many Pacific tours.

Mabel Breitweiser Hann has been Executive Director of Mercer County (Pa.) Association for the Retarded for twelve years. Also, she is governor of the third district of Quota International. She travels some and enjoys her three grandchildren. Her son and daughter both live nearby.

We have learned of the serious illness of Constance Clarke Russ (Mrs. John M., Jr.), an associate member of our class. Perhaps some who remember her would like to send a card to 17 Ferris Drive, Old Greenwich, Conn. 06870.

Abigail Cresswell is enjoying her semi-retirement although she continues some work in the Elwood City Public Library. She has taken several short trips with friends, and enjoys a bridge foursome, not so much the card playing as the company of friends.

When Eleanore Fulton McCracken was in Pittsburgh last Thanksgiving, she got lost in East Liberty where her sister had taken her to see all the changes.

Louise Harcom Epstein and her husband both taught summer school until the end of July, spent two weeks in New England, and then entertained an assortment of guests at home. During the fall she played the part of a 65-year-old mother-in-law in "Joe Egg" at the local Playhouse. She hopes to see everyone in 1971 "if we're still able to navigate."

Ruth Justice Rowley and Millard have been on the go again, this time on a five-week houseboat cruise on the TVA waterways with Ruth's brother and his wife—"so restful, so peaceful, and unbelievably beautiful." They also visit their daughters, Jennifer in Washington, D.C., and Marjorie in Ohio, and Millard's 90-year-old mother in New York who "has more vim and pep than we have." While Millard golfs and paints the house, Ruth is still active in theatre activities, involved most recently with productions of The American Dream, George M!, and You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running.

Elsie McElwain Emery reports a wonderful trip to the Orient last fall and a more recent visit to their son and his family. The Emerys have eight grandchildren, five boys and three girls. Elsie mentions that this is the 13th year for their Art Association, through whose efforts several students have been persuaded to major in art. The Association hopes to offer a varied schedule of classes in oil, mixed media, sculpture, etc.

An unexpected fracture of a vertebra suffered in the course of volunteer service slowed Elise Moller down for four months last summer. All is well now and life in the mountains keeps her busy and happy.

We were sorry to learn of the death of Mary Jane Paul's sister, Josephine Means '18, last November. Mary Jane sends her love to all "the girls," and says that her address will continue to be 663 Means Avenue, Pittsburgh 15202, her sister's lovely duplex.

Space permits only a summary of Catherine Sayer's letter telling of a wonderful trip in the company of her twenty-year-old nephew. Cay said that they had great fun together, that he helped her to think young "if not to 'look young.'" The trip began with a visit to Rio de Janeiro. While there they spent a day with Yvonne Simoens Da Silva who attended Chatham in 1940-41 and is now society editor for a leading newspaper in Rio. This was followed by two weeks in Durban, South Africa, visiting at a friend's home overlooking the Indian Ocean and spending three days in Hluhluwe (pronounced Shu Shu E) Game Preserve. From Durban, they had an 18-hour flight to Athens where they spent a week, followed by a week each in Vienna, Lucerne and Brussels, and three weeks of motoring through the British Isles.

Helen Simons Polhemus writes that their 52nd wedding anniversary found them still in love and enjoying each other's company. With the exception of their chaplain son who is near Hue in Vietnam, their children and their families all live within the state of New Hampshire. Helen and Poly enjoyed a vacation on Cape Cod, and she mentions that her mother has celebrated her 90th birthday.

DEATHS

Eugenie Negley McLean, December 18,
1969
Betty English Beadling, July 20, 1969
Mary Alice Keck, July 1969

Our deepest sympathy is extended to the families of these deceased members: to Genie's husband Tom and her sister, Anne Brunot '27; to Betty's sister, Ella Daub, '27; and to Mary Alice's sisters, Ruth Schell, '22, and Olive Comfort, '24. The class will be pleased to know that Tom McLean continues his interest in the College and has provided for a memorial to Genie through the Centennial Fund.

For the first time in all these years Petty Bigg Cohn has answered my card with some real news. In June, after ten years of work, she became a Life Master at Duplicate Bridge in the American Contract Bridge League. Congratulations, Petty! Her son has "a little boy who has many of his grandmother's traits." She has 11 grandchildren in all, most of them Harry's, but she loves them all. Petty is writing a book and promises to let us know if she becomes famous. She passes on a thought for all of us: "One thing that I firmly preach is that no one should become stagnant. Stay young."

Kay Caldwell Mayer receives our deepest sympathy on the death of her husband, March 25, 1969, after a long illness.

Betty Corey Wallis says "all's still well with me and mine."

Margaret Cousley retired from teaching in June and had several parties given for her. She went to Chatham for Alumnae Day and then spent some time at Chautauqua, New York.

Mary Crawford, in a Christmas letter to Ruth Wilkinson, told of a trip to Turkey, Rome and Paris in August, 1968. She is now a great-aunt and is beginning to think in terms of retirement and "living it up."

Ruth Dennis also wrote to Ruth. She had won a five-day prize trip for two to Florida, including hotel, meals and $100, to be taken between May 1 and December 20 of either 1968 or 1969. Did you take it, Ruth?

Suzanne Finley Heller is living at the above address this year while John is the Mellon Professor of Classics at the University of Pittsburgh. They visited their daughter Ruth in Los Angeles during the summer.

I was told that Dorothy Floyd Warren was going to Europe for three weeks with a Pitt group, but I have heard no particulars about the trip.

Fran Fulton McClymonds and her husband visited their son Rick and his family in Oklahoma where he was working on an engineering project and living on the Lake of the Cherokees. They were greeted by a four-day-old grandson, brother to Michelle 8, and Matthew 6. The latter two they brought back with them, their parents following later in the summer.

Mardy Jones Rutbart and Bob had a two weeks trip to Florida in January 1969. They saw Fran Frost Brumbaugh and Jim in Clearwater, went on to Miami to visit a cousin and to Atlanta to spend two days and nights with us. We went sight-seeing, but had no sunshine for them. Their son Bob was stationed at Ft. Polk, Louisiana, but was away on bivouac training so they could not visit him. He went to Vietnam in March as an infantryman. Bob has a six-month sabbatical leave and he and Mardy left August 6th for Europe. They bought a small car, picking it up in Scotland, visited relatives in Luxembourg, Lichtenstein, Austria, Switzerland, and Rotterdam where they shipped their car home, then flew to London and home October 26th.

Clara Lawler is still the librarian in junior high school and likes the contact with the students better than teaching. In her tour last summer she liked Norway best, and took a ride in a horse and buggy up to the Glacier.

Nora Lewis Harlan spends most of her time traveling. Her son David is in electronic engineering in Southern California. He flies his own plane and is taking his four children all over the West. The younger son is teaching school in New York and commutes to all the musical places in the East during the summer as he is a "frustrated pianist." Nora sees Jule Lustenberger Adams who travels with her husband, Ed, too. She says Jule looks exactly the same except her hair is white.

Betty Malcolm Clemens was in New Orleans last October, going through Atlanta, but did not have time to call me from the airport.

Leona Newcome Meier retired in June after teaching for forty years. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the Arthritis Foundation and an active member of the auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mildred Parrill Gilmore and Charley had a lovely summer trip to Norway, Sweden and Denmark. Norway, with its fjords, glaciers and waterfalls, seems to be the favorite European country of many classmates. Before their trip, the Gilmores stopped in Long Island to visit Charley's son who has two children. It turned into quite a family reunion when another son, his wife and baby, and a daughter-in-law and her four children came to see them.

Betty Piel drove to Florida in July with friends, going down the east coast and back the Gulf coast, stopping to look at some property she had bought at Cape Coral.

Peg Port Arens is staying in Massachusetts where her boys like to vacation. She visited each of them during the year—first with Sandy in North Carolina where baby-sitting with his two boys, aged 1 and 3, was "strenuous but fun;" then on to the other son in Columbus for three weeks with his two children, 6 months and 2½ years old. Peg has been substituting at the high school, and still plays golf and swims.

Betty Porter Steinmiller and Del's daughter Mary was married on August 2 to Donald Stout, son of Martha Bradshaw Stout '31. They are living in Fairfax County, Va., where Mary is teaching school and Don is working in the U.S. Patent Office and going to George Washington University Law School at night.

Gina Ray Randall's daughter Mary was married May 24, 1969 to Michael Cooney of Whately, Massachusetts. George arrived safely in the States from a year in Korea and a year in Vietnam. He is captain and stationed at Fort Dix, New Jersey. Trudy is teaching second grade in Riverdale, New Jersey.

Deane Reed Blackburn and Bill went to Sidney, Australia in December, 1968 for their nephew's wedding. Their trip included Tahiti, New Caledonia, New Zealand, Fiji, Hong Kong, Japan where they spent Christmas in Kyoto, and a stop in Hawaii on the way home.

Ruth Mary Wilkinson wrote a playette, "In the Beginning," for the 75th anniversary of the Watson Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, of which her mother was a charter member and to which she and Honor still belong. She also compiled and edited a book of memoirs written by various members of the congregation and containing pictures of the original church buildings.

In October of 1968 Ruth Work Miller and Bob took a Caribbean cruise on the S.S. France as far south as Curacao. They have wanted us to go with them on a trip, but I am sorry to say my husband does not like to travel. In May they took an all air trip to capitals of Europe—Lisbon, Madrid, Rome, Lucerne, Vienna, West and East Berlin, Copenhagen, Paris and London. At their summer home on Lake Ahmic in Canada there were 47 people watching their T.V. during the moon walk. It is the only one on the lake. Jim and I have had their third son in November 1968, making five grandchildren.

Isabel Hoffman Cooper moved to Florida last January to begin an interesting work. As Administrative Executive of the World Center for Liturgical Studies, she is in charge of fund raising. This Center is an independent, ecumenical institution for continuing education of pastors, educators and laity of all faiths.

Alice Mahood Torrens visited Pittsburgh in June for a reunion with the girls who used to work at Girl Scout Camp Redwing. I was sorry I could not be there. She has her first granddaughter, and two grandsons aged 12 and 14.

It was so nice to hear from Madeline Teets Bathrick who was in Pittsburgh visiting her sister this past summer. She is active in the Southern California Chatham Club at Los Angeles, and she would be glad to hear from anyone who visits there. She and her sister and brother-in-law have made two trips to Europe, one last June to the North Cape, Norway, Sweden, Ireland, Scotland, the lake country of England, then to Salisbury and home on the Queen Elizabeth II. After twenty-six years with the Red Cross, she retired in June.

On August 16th Jimmy and I flew to Los Angeles to visit his brother who, with his wife, took us on a lovely two-week trip. We visited Sequoia, Yosemite and Crater Lake Parks, took the Columbia River route to Portland, drove on to Seattle, Vancouver and Victoria, then down the coast through Washington, Oregon and California. The men enjoyed fishing for salmon, albacore and tuna along the way. Thanks to all of you who sent such newsy letters.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to several classmates who have lost members of their families during the past year: to Sara Johnson Bailey whose brother William died November 21, 1968; to Dorothy Thompson Seif whose mother died in April 1969; to Louise Dickenson in the loss of her brother, Dr. James, October 1968.

Geraldine Anderson Daum and Robert are still enjoying a leisurely retirement in Florida. Gerry invites any of the class who are in her vicinity (Sarasota) to stop to see them.

Polly Bickart Garratt and Frank look forward to seeing their new adopted granddaughter in early November. Wendy Ann Wollard was born June 11 and Sue and David got her June 17.

Vi Chadwick Rosso and family visited with Louise Dickenson and niece Barbara in October 1968. Vi and her son John visited with Martha Stem '29 and Martha's mother while they attended the American Optometric Association convention in Philadelphia in July. Vi's son Edwin was wounded in Vietnam in June and is making a remarkable recovery at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C. John is at Penn working on his Ph.D., and David is at Temple. Vi is still teaching at Owen J. Roberts. She attended Mary Elizabeth Woodworth's wedding. Last October she attended Alumnae Council for our class. Ethel Lehmann Grabe joined her for the luncheon.

We read that William B. Pierce, husband of Dorothy Collins Pierce, was elected executive vice president of Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corporation with supervisory and coordinating responsibilities for three subsidiary companies.

Imy Flanagan Truman sent her annual news via Christmas card. Daughter Brigid Lynn was married to Dr. John Stricks on June 1, 1968. Last winter, while John was at sea on the "Pathfinder," Brigid took a quarter at the university and stayed with Imy.

Justina Gill Beggs and David had an extra busy July. Nancy came home from Germany July 1; her husband arrived the 29th, and they have just left for Doug's new position in Pasadena. On July 23 Wendy Lee's Elizabeth Ann brought the Beggs' grandchildren up to five, and Bobby (22 months old) came to stay with his grandparents for twelve days. Meanwhile Justina's husband was breaking into a new position. He is designing mobile homes.

Marian Haines Schap was invited to attend the Contemporary Musicianship Workshop held at Eastman last June. En route she visited her sister in Bradford. In July she spent two days with Dot Seif and enjoyed seeing Peg Loftus. In August she and Ed toured Spain and Portugal.

Winnie Hartman Whiteman, now retired from teaching, keeps busy entertaining her three grandsons. Son Harry presented the family with a first granddaughter thirty-five minutes after Christmas 1968, and Winnie is finding it exciting to buy bonnets and dolls after years of balls and caps. Her brother is in a wheelchair, but they are grateful that he is alive.

Mart Henderson Lewis' daughter Mary was home from California in September to show off her little daughter. Mart's mother, who is 89, has to be careful but still enjoys everything with the family. Mart's son is a senior at Ohio State.

Alice Hewitt Murphy now has ten grandchildren. The oldest is fourteen. The Murphy family has seven children with the youngest, Marvin, a Marine at Camp Pendleton, California. Alice begins her thirty-first year in the field of education this year and still loves it.

Sally Johnson Bailey went to Europe July 12 and trotted her legs off seeing London, Paris, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Frankfurt, Munich, Salzburg, Vienna, Venice, Florence, Rome, Milan, Lugano, Lucerne and Zurich. She reports a grandson, William Arthur, born June 21 to son Richard. Daughter Nancy and Ron are in Kansas City where he practices law and she is in social work.

Nancy McIlwain Sweet had to have the pin in her broken hip reset and spent several months, including Christmas, in the hospital in Boston last winter.

Ethel Lehmann Grabe's daughter was married October 18 in Ardmore, Pa. to Evan Legge.

Mary Ludlow writes of a month and a half spent in Florida last year and joyful visits with her niece in Arlington, Va. Mary says the automobile has long since shattered the peace of her once quiet Pennywise Lane.

Mary Louise Miller Pitcairn reports that her daughter Elizabeth Robb had a baby boy last Thanksgiving—her first. His name is John F. Robb III.

Sally Reamer Matlack and Ed spent four months in Fort Lauderdale last winter and have bought a house there which Sally likes much better than their apartment. They returned to Pennsylvania in April and left for three weeks in Europe. Three days before their return to the states Ed injured his back—slipped disc! Back in Media his doctor put Ed in the hospital for sixteen days. This summer they have been enjoying their new home and garden in Media. Sally attends most of the Chatham meetings in Philadelphia.

Dorothy Thompson Seif spent a week at University of Maryland workshop, bonding up on sex education so she can teach the Winchester-Thurston faculty all about it. Last Christmas vacation Dot accompanied a study-travel tour of Florida made by a group of science honor students. In June she lunched with Louise Dickenson, Ethel Lehmann Grabe, Louise Vallowe Spinelli, Adelaide Hyndman McLaughlin, Dot Fisher Maury, Amelia Lockhard Welker and Peg Loeffler Loftus. Six of them, including Eleanor Nevins Rubenstein this time, lunched on the Benedum porch in August and talked about reunion while attending the 20th anniversary of the Chatham Opera Workshop.

Lois Watt Cooper and Henry keep busy with their apartment in Fort Lauderdale and visits from their children and grandchildren. They are looking forward to a trip to Ireland and plan to tour via "drive yourself" method.

Peg Loeffler Loftus has agreed to be chairman for our 40th reunion. You'll be hearing more from her soon. Peg, Vi and Marian will be there, of course, and a number of others have indicated that they are planning to come:—Winnie White-man, Sally Matlack, Alice Murphy, Lois Cooper, Sal Bailey and Dot Seif. We hope there will be many more. Remember to send your check for the Laberta Dysart Scholarship Fund which we will present to the College as our reunion gift on June 6.

NEW ADDRESSES

Beatrice Andrews Dimsdale (Mrs. Laurence), 331 Alvernon Way, South, Tucson, Az. 85711
Louise Blank Lecky (Mrs. George), 2017 Borland Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15243
Margaret Eisman Muranyi (Mrs. Stephen A.), R.D. 1, Petrolia, Pa. 16050
Marion Stone Howard (Mrs. Wayne J.), 2370 Berkshire Drive, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15241

Our deepest sympathy is extended to three classmates whose husbands have died during the past year: Margaret Iams Jenkins' husband, Clifford, in December; Mary Cooke McGough's husband, James, in January; and Jane Norman Widdowson's husband, Herbert, on June 28.

We are sorry, also, to hear of the death of Phyllis Williams Clugh who entered with the Class of 1931 but received her degree with our class.

Grandchildren are very much a part of our current news:—Andrew Wilson Sundelin, first child of Grace Wilson Sundelin, '64, and first grandchild of Caroline Brady Wilson; Lizabeth Pamela Paley, third grandchild of Rita Lefton Pincus; Christopher Wheeler Morris, first grandchild of Carolyn Bickell Morris, who, incidentally, is greatly improved in health. In addition to these latest arrivals, several other grandmothers are enjoying their children's offspring:—Betsy Dearborn Souren (3), Mary Louise Hockensmith Murdock (3), Marian Stone Howard (2), Lil Lafbury Wills (4), and Ruth Grafman Weiner (3). I wonder how many more the class can boast of!

Each year brings news of retirement activities—Lil and Vincent Wills living in Florida; Harriet Ossman Lundquist and her husband traveling on their yacht; Bea Andrews Dimsdale and Laurence taking a 15-port cruise on the Norwegian liner M.S. Sagafjord; Mary Frances Peat Tarr and her husband just relaxing and enjoying retirement; the Dights (Charlotte Graham) still commuting between Butler and Delray Beach, Florida; and Lee and Catherine Cochran Schaeffer retired but busy with their school for exceptional children at Slippery Rock, Pa.

Marie Hahn Lewis, too busy to retire, spent a pleasant vacation on Cape Cod with her niece and family. Other vacationers report interesting travels:—Caroline Wilson to Peru and Brazil last winter; Sally Miller Brash, who is recovering nicely from an emergency operation for retinal thrombosis, to Rome, Switzerland and London; Betsy Souren, a motor trip through Spain and Portugal; Flo Bouldin Chase to Hawaii, San Francisco and the Grand Canyon; Marion Howard to England and now a motor trip across the U.S.A.; and Dottie Russell on a variety of short trips.

Congratulations to Alice Bair Albright's stepson who received the Founders' Son Award for excellence in leadership, scholarship and citizenship on his graduation from Findlay College in Ohio.

Ruth Fugh McMurtry's children are all working toward graduate degrees, a family to be proud of.

Mary McGough is doing some free lance writing, and your correspondent, Alice MacKenzie Swaim, has had another book manuscript accepted. I have also been honored by being named to Foremost Women in Communications, 1969-70, and to the National Register of Prominent Americans. Best wishes to all of you.

Dottie Russell reminds us that three members have contributed so far to our class Reunion Gift Fund. The amount in the savings account is $210. Please make checks payable to Chatham Alumnae Class Account (1932) and mail to the Alumnae Office. For further information write to Dorothy Russell, 11203 Frankstown Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15235.

MAKE YOUR DECISION. GIVE TO THE CENTENNIAL FUND.

Peggy reporting:

Berenice Beamer Williamson's youngest son graduated in May from Point Park College, was married in July, and two days later received his induction notice.

Peggy Donaldson enjoyed the reunion and the pictures some of us took and suggests that next reunion we all stay overnight in the dorm.

Ruth Edgar Daily writes that something always comes up at reunion time—this year her 18-year-old daughter Patsy graduated from high school and is now at Skidmore College. Her son entered high school this fall. Ruth's husband travels a lot and although she has been to Frankfurt and London with him, "I usually stay at home."

Luckily, our letter to Hazel Ellwood McClure reached her just before she moved to London "for the next few years." She wishes to extend greetings to all and would be glad to hear from anyone who gets to London. She says if you get a wrong phone number, don't give up but keep trying as that is London phone service.

Eleanor Ewing Wilson (Nooky) spent the summer at Van Buren Point. Her son is in the Navy and her daughter took her only grandson with her when she moved to Bakersfield, California, so Nooky's house is quiet this year. She keeps busy with volunteer work at Magee Hospital and various clubs.

Marjorie Gibson Shoemaker was enthusiastic about the reunion and says it was wonderful to see so many classmates.

Synmove Haughom has been in Lewistown for a year and started in the Art Gallery at Bates College. She is working on her dissertation and enjoyed the first vacation in years in August, making trips to Quebec, Salem, and other places.

Mary Hostler Green is a suburban doctor practicing internal medicine with special interest in the care of diabetics. She has an extremely busy life with no office or household help and two dogs. In addition to her hospital work at Suburban General and St. John's Hospitals, she is Borough Health Officer. She says, "I suppose I really like my impossible way of life."

Luise Link Ely caught the mail just in time to tell us that she now lives in Pennsylvania in a restored carriage house with tomatoes and a mini-orchard with bees eating the apples. She is busy taking a driver's test, remaking curtains, etc. (Same old Linkie).

Frances Lorimer Hepburn says she leads a fairly quiet life, sewing, knitting, playing bridge and doing hospital volunteer work. Her daughter Jane, a Westminster '67 graduate, was married last year to a Navy Lieutenant and lives in Jacksonville. Frances was looking forward to being a grandparent in November.

Being one of the class secretaries has proved not a chore but a wonderful way to renew old acquaintances, and I am happy to report that your letters warmed my heart. I hope next time more of you will write. Our third grandchild, a girl, arrived in August. My husband and I are now looking forward to a fall vacation in South Carolina.

Mary Jane reporting:

Jean Ludebuehl Fisher and her husband enjoyed travel to Mexico City this summer and planned to visit Hawaii in the fall. Their older son, now out of the service, is located in Hickory, North Carolina; the younger one is at Duquesne University hoping to meet a nice Chatham girl.

Mary Louise Martin continues as secretary to the Superintendent of Schools in Carlisle, Pennsylvania. In July, she and her sister Carolyn, class of 1941, visited relatives in Florida and North Carolina.

Ruth Maxwell Doyle has a new job as Assistant Library Director at Seton Hill College. Husband Matt is still serving as technician at the Westmoreland County Museum of Art. Daughter Emily has just earned her M.L.S. at Pitt and has left to seek her fortune in San Francisco. Son-

Tom, a super senior in civil engineering at Ohio University, is engaged to be married in December and will be commissioned in the U.S. Army next March.

Alice McCarthy Bowman took in Yellowstone Park and Denver when she traveled to Montana to see her older son receive his M.A. from the State University. Second son received his J.D. from the University of Mississippi in June. Daughter is entering University of Tennessee Medical Unit to complete work for her R.N. and B.S.

At reunion, we were saddened to learn of the death of Virginia Miller Nevin's husband Alexander in May.

Jane Mitchell Carpenter was with son Bruce and his wife when Jane's grandson, Alexander Ian Carpenter, was born in July. All three visited Jane in August.

Dorothy Schenck Van der Voort writes that everyone is well and very busy. She and Bob rattle around alone in the family home, but have son Dave and wife nearby. Betsy and her husband are back and settled after a year of work and travel in Europe. They have a nice duplex apartment directly across Solway Street from the house in which Dot was born and married. Bob is run ragged with his duties as presiding judge of the Criminal Court Division of the Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County. Dot is particularly occupied now with duties as a director of North Hills Passavant Hospital and as chairman of the women's division of its expansion fund campaign.

In August, Avanelle Schlosser Grafton returned to her job as counselor in Kittanning Senior High School. Her husband is retired, but has many outside activities. We were sorry to learn of the illness of her mother.

Marion Starkey Hamlet and husband Frank just keep their household of two octogenarians and three teen-agers rolling. Their two youngest, Jeff, a junior at the Loomis School, and Susan, a sophomore at the Chaffee School in Windson, Connecticut, had a memorable trip this summer visiting Frank's relatives in Norway, and also Sweden, Denmark, Spain and Portugal. Debbie, their eldest, enjoyed her freshman year at Mount Holyoke. Upon the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary in June, Marion's parents enjoyed seeing old friends and relatives.

Harriet Stephenson Stearns considers herself a retired housewife. Elizabeth, her youngest, has been in Europe since the first of the year. She studied in Florence for two quarters and is presently traveling. She has one more year to finish at Florida State. Harriet's son-in-law graduated from New Mexico State University, and he and Mary have moved to Sweetwater, Texas, where he works for U.S. Gypsum. Jeanie, her third daughter, is in New York where she loves both her work with Welfare and the big city.

Congratulations to Thelma Stocker Trost who was awarded a Keiven J. Burns citation for excellence in science teaching and an honorarium of $100 by the Spectroscopy Society of Pittsburgh. Since the summer of 1968, she has been working with the Elementary Science Curriculum Committee, selecting textbooks and writing teacher guidelines. Thelma is taking a sabbatical leave this year to travel throughout western U.S.A. by travel-trailer—just her husband, herself and their dog. Son

Jim was married last November. A third grandson was born in July to son Bob and his wife. The oldest grandson started to kindergarten this fall. In May, son Bill received the Army Commendation medal for meritorious service in Vietnam. At present he is stationed at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

Helen Walker Empfield still has charge of the Adult Film Program at her branch of the Chicago Public Library. This summer she returned to school for a basic reference course. Helen is going to be corresponding secretary for the Chicago Chatham Club.

Jean Walker Fox has spent most of the summer in the country, pleading or prodding to get work done on her home there. Since it was built in 1842, it's quite a job to try to keep the place up to date. The textbook, Comparative Entomology, written by Jean and her late husband and published by Reinhold, is now also being published in India for use in the Far East.

Margaret White had no news to report—just more of the same.

Life goes on as usual for Ellen Yeager Husak—a pretty steady stint of enjoyable volunteer work, plus keeping house. Younger son Alan was married in December. He has completed his Ph.D. in civil engineering, and is now an assistant professor in engineering at Carnegie-Mellon as well as engaging in research. Older son John is still at home, making sure that the mail is circulating in the Pittsburgh Post Office. Ellen and her husband had a short vacation in New England, concentrating on Vermont, and planned a fall trip to the Catskill and Adirondack Mountains.

Mary Jane Young continues working at the Commerce Department and would be glad to see any of her friends who come to Washington. She had a grand trip through Southwest U.S.A. this summer.

In September, Harriet Tyler Martin became a full-time teacher of children with learning disabilities at Burr Farms School in Westport, Connecticut. Because of this, she and Paul took a sudden trip to Europe at the same time as our reunion so she could not be with us.

DEATHS

Elizabeth Guckelberger Roantree, December 2, 1968

Peggy Fitch Robinson, September 23, 1969

We are deeply saddened by the loss of two classmates. Books have been placed in the Chatham Library in memory of Elizabeth and Peggy.

Jean Andress Berger and Bill took a cruise last winter but for the most part were in Boca Raton, Florida, where they have a winter home. Since May, Jean has been baby-sitting and helping at Bill's office when needed. Their new address is a town house and they hope this will be it for a long time.

After reading Harriet Bannatyne Moelmann's letter, one wonders how she manages to do everything. The Moelmanns traveled to Germany in June with their younger son, Larry, a senior at Princeton, to visit their older son, Jack, a captain and a career man in the United States Army. The four of them toured Denmark, Norway, and Sweden in Jack's car. A week after their return, Harriet and her husband flew to a convention in Los Angeles. Upon returning home again, there was news that Jack was in St. Louis for a meeting of communications officers and would be home on leave. The rest of the summer was spent between Oak Park and Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, their summer home, entertaining children, their friends, and in-laws. Harriet's daughter, Lynda, is the mother of two children.

Mary Virginia Brown Bowden's mother passed away in November, 1968 at the age of 80, and her father now has an apartment in the same building with the Bowden's. Last spring, Mary Virginia motored through Scotland and spent a week viewing plays in London. Daughter Kathie is in her last year at Randolph Macon Woman's College, and son Burk is still in Palo Alto.

Move to England and you get classmates to visit you, or so it seems to Mary-Stuart Clements Harriman. Liz Saffer and Miriam Brunt Smith stopped for visits that were all too short. Last spring, Mary-Stuart traveled to Italy for three weeks and then to Paris to see the chestnut trees in bloom. She was in Holland to see the tulips and to Malta to soak up the sun and Mediterranean culture. The Harrimans will be in England for at least two years and not more than ten.

Frances Ferguson O'Callaghan hopes that some of her classmates will visit them in Fort Myers Beach, Florida. She and her husband are now alone since their daughter An lives and works in Ft. Lauderdale and their son is in Atlanta.

Ruth Frost moved in June to a three-room apartment and is finally settled and enjoying apartment living. She is still teaching twelfth grade pre-college English at Belle Vernon Area High School.

Jane Griffith Potter traveled to St. Louis this summer to visit her daughter, Susan, at Washington University summer school, where she is a senior this year. Then they visited their son Jack, who worked at Glacier National Park, and continued on to see the Northwest. Jack is a sophomore at Colgate. Daughter Carolyn attended Burham-by-the-Sea, Newport, Rhode Island this summer and goes to Miramar this winter.

Marian Johnson Woodfield wrote from their summer home in North Carolina that they still consider Delray, Florida their home and love it except for the summer months. Daughter Barbara is an architect, married with two children. John is a doctor and on the staff at the Mayo Clinic in gastroenterology. He is married and has two children. Jeff is a graduate student in philosophy, and Sally is a sophomore at Wittenberg University.

Charlotte Ley Glover's father, Dr. Charles Ley, passed away in April. In May, the Glovers welcomed their first grandchild, a boy, born to their daughter Charlotte. Son Allen is a junior at the University of Virginia. Charlotte is still librarian in the engineering department at the Elliot Company in Jeannette.

Rachel Jones Donaldson reported that her older son, John, is a senior at Lafayette College, and Scott is a freshman at Grove City.

Sana Mouromseff took time out from packing to write that her whole family is moving back east from Nevada.

Ruth Simpson Woolford is happy to be working now that her family is grown. Son Sam has entered Brown University after achieving the highest award in his high school class. Ruth has two grandchildren, daughters of Judy.

Doris Pierce has retired from her school job and will be settling in Fort Lauderdale in the spring. In the meantime she is traveling.

Betty McLaughlin Bryant and her husband have left their jobs at Culver and Betty is now librarian at the Bishop's School for girls. Their two sons have completed their stint with Uncle Sam in the Pacific and they see them often. Betty lives in La Jolla, California, and would like to have other Chathamites who live in the area contact her.

Elizabeth Saffer had a fabulous trip to the Scandinavian countries and the Baltic Soviet Republics. She set out for a restful sail up the coast of Norway with deck chair, sun glasses and camera only to discover she should have taken umbrella and raincoat. She reported the sun did shine on the Carelian Lakes in Finland where she spent a week. Last year Liz went to the Balkans and spent three uncomfortable days waiting for the Budapest airport to open after the Czech invasion.

Agnes Ralston managed to get herself banged up again. This time it was a broken collar bone from being pinned between her car and the garage when the car brake released. However, she enjoyed a trip to the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico before tangling with her car. She expects to be in shape by skiing season.

Jane Unger Raaslaub's daughter Mary was married in June. Son David was graduated from law school, and Lorna is a student at Hillsdale College. Jane has recently received her permanent teacher's certificate. She and her husband attended a dinner honoring Dr. and Mrs. Eddy, given by the Chatham Alumnae of Michigan.

Betty Forney Benner's children are married and she has one grandchild. She is busy caring for her invalid father.

Nancy Henderson O'Dell was reservations chairman for the Fourteenth Annual Fashionlogue of the Opera Workshop of Chatham College that was presented at the Hilton Hotel in September. Her daughter Nancy Leah was married in June to John Stewart Eaton. Son Herbert plans to teach at Franklin and Marshall College.

Olga Catizone Bonaddio is busy caring for her family and teaching at Allegheny County Community College.

Helen Lindsay Lee and Ed traveled to Europe in June to visit their daughter, Normandie, who spent her junior year in France. She is now back at Chatham for her senior year. Helen is writing another book, this one on flower arrangements using rocks and gem stones from the collection of her geologist son, Cort, now stationed in Maryland with the Navy. Their older son, Edward, is in Pitt Law School and is in classes with Dorothy Swan Mercer's son. Helen's husband took an early retirement and is now teaching at the Boyce campus of Allegheny Community College.

Your local secretary, Mary Jane Carmichael Garvin's eldest, Katie, graduated from Gettysburg College and is now head resident at Jester Center Halls at the University of Texas. Son Jim is at the University of Miami at Coral Gables, and Jane, the youngest, is a senior at Winchester-Thurston. There have been frequent trips to Lauderdale-by-the-Sea, where the family has an apartment.

The fund for our 35th reunion now stands at $847.18. Many thanks to all who have contributed. Checks may be made out to Chatham Alumnae Class Account and sent to your local secretary.

Mary Margaret Schmitt, 701 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60611

From the activities of our class it is quite evident that, although Chatham College is celebrating its Centennial Year, we are far from ours.

Kay Arnold Dague reports that son Rusty is doing his Army stint as a paratrooper, Pat is studying medical technology, and David, 11½, aids in keeping his mother young and active.

Mary Baldwin and Chita Cate Beal went along for the fun with a movie crew through the Bahamas in June. While at the Harbor Club at Spanish Wells they met a young Chatham alumna on her honeymoon. Chita said they broke into "While Building Dreams Anew." Two of Chita's children rented a villa on the Costa del Sol for the summer, and Pete entered Allegheny College this fall.

Though Jeannette Bartels Wolfe said she had no news, she is busy teaching brain-injured children at Washington Junior High School in Houston. Her daughter is married and living in Savannah, and her son has another semester of law school. That's the news we like, Jeannette!

The class wishes to express its deepest sympathy to Winifred Bliss Endres who lost her husband last April. Winifred's daughter, Jane, is teaching and living at home, while Morris, Jr. is busy at Fort Belvoir. During the summer season Winifred and her family were at their home at Chautauqua, New York.

Mildred Boyer Kostora has lived in Connecticut 5½ years and loves it there. Her older daughter, Shirley Titus, is getting her M.A. at Southern Connecticut while Shirley's husband (their favorite 1st Lieutenant) is in Vietnam. Younger daughter, Claire, is in her senior year in high school.

We'll be looking forward to seeing Marge Chubb Randall who will be visiting in Pittsburgh this autumn and then plans to visit the Mediterranean area in the spring.

Another traveler was Liza Coates Elliott and her family who spent three wonderful weeks in Vina del Mar near Valparaiso in Chile. There they visited the family of the AFS student who had lived with the Elliotts three years ago. Following a tour of the Chilean lake country, they returned home "ready to do it all again." Peter and Tom are seniors this year so Liza won't be at Chatham in June. Incidentally if Liza's journalist husband reads this (and she says he does)—please overlook the reportorial mistakes. I was only a feature writer on the Arrow.

Catheryn Cottrell Deemer reports a second grandchild this year, and a dream trip to Hawaii with Ben and Dorothea Hunt Haas.

Mary Deemer Nagel also has a second grandchild thanks to son Bill's lovely wife, Rosanne. Billy is three and David was born May 22, 1969. Daughter Mary graduated from Carnegie-Mellon University in June. Son John is a senior at the University of Pennsylvania. He motor-cycled home from the west coast after his Midshipman's cruise on the Pacific. Son Charles entered Davis and Elkins College as a freshman and Harry entered high school. Mary and George enjoy bridge and the Carnegie Little Theatre.

Dora Diamond Hake writes that her daughter Sue is to be married February 14, and Bill, Jr. is a junior at Gettysburg College.

To be a first class teacher is Helen Fink Eger's desire as she assumes her new work in Moon Township's air-conditioned school. You will be, Helen, we know! Helen's daughter Terry graduated from Vassar in June and is attending Boston University graduate school. Jan was at Wittenberg this summer.

Florence Gibbs Momeyer and Glenn are planning a winter cruise to South America and the Caribbean so they skipped, with regret, the usual summer vacation. Florence is now associate director of an agency serving retarded children. Rick finished his work on his doctorate and will be teaching philosophy at Miami University, Ohio. Doug finished law school, and Alan is a senior at Penn State University.

Fortunately Hurricane Camille missed Hespie Godlove Gillette in Pensacola, Florida. Hespie wishes she had videotapes of the programs Chatham sponsors so that they could be aired on educational television in her area. Sounds like a grand idea, Hespie. After eleven years as audio-visual co-ordinator, Hespie is doing substitute work and overseeing her active teen agers through Rainbow Girls, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, and DeMolay. To add spice to this life, her daughter Madine required an emergency appendectomy while attending the Grand Assembly of Rainbow Girls. Since she had shown some allergy to anesthesia previously, this was rather frightening, but all went well.

As usual Dotty Hawk Bryen's letter was witty and informative so I'll quote: "This year, our summer started out with an early bang. The night of May 15, after we had all Becky's things packed to bring her home from her freshman year at Queens College in Charlotte, North Carolina, our car was broken into and all her clothes were stolen. It was rather a traumatic 'happening' especially since we were leaving for a vacation in Bermuda. We decided she'd either have to join the cast of 'Hair' ('Oh, Calcutta!' hadn't opened as yet) or we'd have to do some fast shopping." Needless to say, Becky got a new wardrobe and has now returned to college. Dottie is active with church and women's club activities and a group called Adult Basic Education Tutors. Jimmy is treasurer and controller of American Aniline Products.

Dorothea Hunter Haas and her husband traveled to the islands of Hawaii in April with a stopover in San Francisco for a reunion with Lee White Mundhenk and her husband, Bob. The stewardess on the flight to Hawaii was a Chatham graduate. Dottie doesn't say whether they sang the Alma Mater or not. Son Michael is in Vietnam.

I, Helen Johnson Montgomery, have enjoyed your cards and letters—as Dean Martin says—keep them comin'. I wish my classroom was air-conditioned, for all 164 of my students are bright and lively. Ward is teaching and continuing his dental lab work. Susan is completing her master's thesis at the University of Wisconsin, and Sam, in his third year at West Virginia, is composing music which is being performed and well received. My mother's recovery from a lengthy illness has made us all happy.

Ruth Kleitz Buel writes that Bob has a new job. Barbara attended Pitt's trimester in an effort to finish in three years. Virginia, at 15, was glad to stay home with her friends for a change. They have had one week camping with their trailer and hoped to get away on weekends before cold weather.

Jean Lemmon Crick writes that they are all fine. They have two grandchildren, thanks to Reed's lovely wife Michelle. Tracey is three and Patrick bounced into our world July 2. Son Michael is now home from duty with the U.S. Air Force. All enjoyed their vacation cottage in Madison, Ohio.

Beatrice Lynch Perrin is still trying to adjust to her new way of life. Her usual community activities keep her busy and do help occupy the mind. She took a trip to Hawaii and loved the people and the beauty and the way of life there. Our 30th reunion seems ten years ago, so much has happened.

Sarah Marks Volkwein has moved back to Jacksonville. Ed is president of a new company called Beri's Inc. which backs Negroes in ghetto areas to start their own restaurants. All three of their children are happily married and they have two grandsons and one granddaughter.

Eleanor Meanor Croyle and Bob enjoy

Houston. Bob Jr. is a Captain in JAG Corps. U.S.A. at Ft. Bragg. Barbara, happily married, lives close by. Phil was home this summer and worked at the Medical Center. He leaves soon for his junior year at Stanford. Last May in Miami Eleanor saw Dave and Virginia Mencken Morrison.

Margaret Perry Huesener and Dick flew to Switzerland and from there drove to Liechtenstein, Germany, Austria, Italy, and back to Switzerland. Only 18 days to see 5 weeks of sights! But, all was wonderful. Peggy was tour guide making all flight and hotel arrangements, as she does each year for the College Club Theatre Tour in October.

Christine Price Cannon invites the Class of '38 to bring their grandchildren to see the 'dry' Falls this year. Tod is general manager of the Lord Amherst Motor Hotel in Buffalo and is host to so many tourists that he and Chris can't go anywhere. Their son Tom is in Chicago and he and his wife visited Chris in June.

Sarah Reese Warrick's son Dick got home from Vietnam in October, oh, happy day! He is an instructor in Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Virginia and completed three years in the Army in mid-September. He served with the 9th Division in Vietnam, so it was with much interest that Sally watched the return of "our" men of the 9th to the United States. Richard and Sally visited Dick at Camp Pickett where he was stationed for the summer, and visited Fort Lee where Richard served in the Second World War. Richard is at Hartford Insurance in Pittsburgh and Sally enjoys her work at Citizen's Library.

Our class extends its deepest sympathy to Dorothy Ringler Creutzer on the death of her husband, Willard, last September. They were on their way to Australia when he died suddenly in the airlines terminal in Los Angeles. Dorothy planned a two-week trip to Rome, London, Berlin and Lucerne in September.

Mary Margaret Schmitt is well traveled. She attended the 10th annual meeting of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health in Pittsburgh; the National League for Nursing Biennial Meeting in Detroit; the Fourth AMA Conference on International Health in Chicago; the Fourteenth Quadrennial meeting of the International Council of Nurses in Montreal and the 26th Biennial Council of Pi Lambda Theta in Buffalo; the World Federation for Mental Health in Washington D.C.; the American Federation of Arts in Williamsburg, Virginia; the Association of American Medical Colleges meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio, and a golden wedding anniversary in Arizona.

No exciting, earth shaking news according to Elizabeth Slocum Haldeman. Betty's oldest, son Jack, graduated from college this year. Now she and John have only two in college for next year, Beverly and Shirley.

Helen Thomas Nevin writes that her son Tom graduated from W. and J. June 7th and was married June 14th. Five days before the wedding, Helen fell in her garden and seriously fractured her right ankle. She was in Mercy hospital two weeks and then home sporting a ten pound cast and proud of the world's best nurse, her daughter Marilyn. Grandson Joey was seven years old this July.

Our class extends its deepest sympathy to Edith W. Thompson whose aunt, with whom she lived for so many years, died in November. In April Edith had the wonderful experience of going on a trip to the Holy Land. Beside visiting Israel, she was in Athens, Beirut, Cairo and Rome. Athens and the Acropolis were indeed thrilling, for many forgotten facts of ancient history learned in Miss Dysart's class came flooding back to mind. Of course, a camel ride to the pyramids is always a part of every tourist's visit to Cairo. But most exciting of all was her stay in Jerusalem and her journeying from thence to other parts of Israel, including the Galilee area.

NEW ADDRESSES

Elinor Bissell Offill (Mrs. P. M., Jr.), 75 Montgomery Street, Apt. 21-B, New York, N.Y. 10002

Nancyann Cockerille Gleichert (Mrs. James E.), 918-A North Milwaukee Street, Libertyville, Ill. 60048

Nancy Wilson Patterson (Mrs. Thomas J.), 10 Cedar Place, Garden City, L.I., N.Y. 11530

Helen reporting:

Jean Aungst Talbot and her husband work almost exclusively at making antique reproductions now instead of repairing and refinishing furniture.

Elinore Bissell Offill and Paul searched for four months to find an apartment on the Lower East Side of New York near their work. Paul is with Young Life, and Elinore is a speech pathologist at Staten Island Hospital. All the children are married and the grandchildren multiply.

Jean Burry Patten has a busy family. Husband Sam is in charge of ROTC at Syracuse University; son Rick, a Cornell graduate, is doing graduate work at the University of Heidelberg in Germany; daughter Leslie is working at New England Deaconess Hospital in Boston after graduating in June from Syracuse University; and Jean plans to teach after completing her master's in elementary education at Syracuse in January. When Sam retires in 1970 they will choose a "favorite place," but no rocking chairs will be needed for their retirement.

Peggy Christy Graham's family is scattered now, with the youngest a senior at Clarkson College this year. The Grahams went on a trip to Italy in September.

Nancyann Cockerille Gleichert's husband Jim has gone into medical research with Abbott's after 25 years of OB-GYN practice, and they are enjoying their town house. Gregg is beginning a four-year enlistment in Army Security, and Ann is completing her master's degree at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

Betty Crawford Colbert settled down to a busy summer of feeding two active boys and friends after attending Britt's graduation from the University of Denver in June. She is teaching history and English again this year at Sewickley Academy.

Jean Curry Burt, Caddie Lou Kinzer Trapp and Rachel Kirk Bobo sent greetings but no news.

CHATHAM COLLEGE IS ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD, IS STILL GROWING, AND IS STILL YOUNG AT HEART.

Margaret Dunseath Wilson achieved two things this year. She was promoted to assistant director of the Henry C. Frick Educational Commission, and she became a member of the Zonta Club of Pittsburgh, a classified service organization of women executives in business and professions. Her vacation trip took her to New England, the Gaspé Peninsula and Quebec City.

Audrey Horton Skillman is exhibiting and selling her portraits and pen and ink drawings, and does substitute teaching in art. Last spring she took a trail ride, sponsored by the American Forestry Association, from Cataloochee Ranch in Smokey Mountain National Park. The Horton children are on the move, and there is one grandchild. The class extends sympathy to Audrey in the death of her mother in August.

Pat Krause Kosco says the kids are getting older but they are getting younger. Their oldest starts college this year and the youngest is in fifth grade. Pat is active in Mothers of Twins Club, church and school, while Bob keeps busy with Scouts. She hopes to see all of you at our 30th reunion.

Louise Lean Fontaine has been working in the passport office since January. One of her co-workers is Margaret Hibbs Keller '42, who was her "little sister" as a freshman.

Anne Ludlow Kinney's letter brought us up to date on their children. Daughter Harriet graduated from Allegheny College in June; Rob is a senior at the University of Delaware; Charles, 17, and Mike, 15, attended the Boy Scout Jamboree in Idaho during the summer.

As for me, this completes my term as secretary. I have enjoyed it very much, but I will look forward to just reading the Recorder again. I managed "major surgery" last February so will look forward to seeing all of you at our 30th on June 6, 1970. We have lost Beryl Bahr Redington. If anyone knows her current address, please notify me or the alumnae office.

Eleanor reporting:

I had a delightful trip to Ireland with the Gaelic Arts Society of Pittsburgh conducted by Dr. and Mrs. Charles P. Robshaw.

Roseanne Martin says that after nearly two years of pseudo-vacation—20,000 miles around 20 states and 2 provinces in the camper—it is time to go to work again so she can plan her next trip to all the places she missed before. Also, she is going to look for a retirement house—thinks she will be needing one in a few years. Makes us sound old, doesn't it?

Ruth Mengel Roosa sends greetings to all her classmates.

Mary Ellen Ostergard Lutz has had a busy year with the usual round of church, musical organization and community affairs, and a trip to Williamsburg and Quebec. The summer brought guests, family and friends such as Ruth Demmler Benner and Mary Jane Totten Dickinson. She never has a dull moment now that she has a teen-age driver in the family.

Nelle Richards Offutt's oldest son is a Navy flier. Number 2 son is in O.C.S. at Fort Benning, Georgia. Number 3 son is working. Oldest daughter, Jane, is a senior at Allegheny College. Number 4 son is a senior at Mt. Lebanon High School and is looking at colleges. Her youngest, Marianne, is in ninth grade. She has a lovely daughter-in-law and a gorgeous year-old grandson, James IV, who lives in Coronado, California—too far away.

Katherine Rutter Hingeley has had a busy summer. Her son, Jim, Jr., graduated from Harvard in June and in August married Rosalind Brown of Baltimore. He and his wife are now teaching high school in Greenbank, West Virginia. Katherine will teach at the Village Academy again this year.

Ruth Seaman Berg, now that both children are educated and married, looks forward to sitting back, relaxing and doing a little traveling. She has one granddaughter.

Frances Shoup Brant says she finally finished "going to college," having received teacher certification for this year. Her husband fell out of a tree and crushed a beretbrae in his back this past spring, so Frances had to play nursemaid. Otherwise her status quo was maintained.

Virginia Stahl Walker gets together with Amy McBride Bell, Chatham 1939, frequently. Austin extends greetings to all of you and says she enjoys reading about her classmates in the Recorder.

Helen Mar Stevenson Berghaus reports that her daughter Lydia graduated in June from Radcliffe magna cum laude and is now working near Boston. Helen is glad they had their trip to California last summer. As for her—she is just older and grayer.

Betty Sweeney Taylor was surprised and pleased to run into Ethel Blackburn Herrod at Betty's son's graduation from Princeton last June. For the present, son Bill will be working in San Francisco. Daughter Nancy is a senior at Wheaton College this year. Now that her three children have grown up, Betty hopes to attend more alumnae functions.

Nancy Wilson Patterson reports that, after seven years in the parish ministry, Tom has gone back to business with Coules Communications in a wider form of ministry and still in good standing in the Diocese—participating in the conventional way on Sundays and evenings. They have moved to Garden City and still enjoy their house in Hampton Bay where they all spent July, including son Tommy and his wife Barbara. Next year they will have a doctor in the family, and Betsy will graduate from Wellesley—so Mom and dad will be relieved of college tuitions until Laurie, now 13, decides to go. She sends greetings to all our classmates and looks forward to 1970.

Mary Wolff Gamble's son Tom graduated from the University of Michigan last spring and plans to do graduate work in physics at the University of California at Berkeley this year. Susie and Betsie are in high school. Mary is still teaching chemistry lab two days a week at Indiana University in South Bend. They had a delightful family vacation in California in June, and have been home since then to receive friends passing through to the West including Helen Archer Fardig, '39, and part of her family . . . a most enjoyable summer.

Catherine Thompson Mitchell, her husband and their sons Tom, 13, and Bill, 11, toured the national parks this summer in their Chrysler station wagon with a trail pack. Son John graduated from Carnegie Mellon University in June and is working at the General Electric Conemaugh Plant near New Florence, Pennsylvania. She says he is an eligible bachelor, looks like young Omar Shariff, and suggests anyone living nearby might be interested!

Jane Viehman, who spent her vacation close to home this year, is also looking forward to our reunion.

Mothers of the Bride Dept.:

Wedding bells kept three classmates busy this year, especially Betty Baker Patterson who had two weddings. Daughter Vicki married Jim Hartsock, June 21st. Jim just finished a tour of duty with the Marines, and they live in Ashland, Ohio. So Bob Jr. married Lucy Atkinson on Nov. 30th. They are at Fort Riley, Kansas. So Glenn is in high school, and Bob and Betty plan a trip to Florida soon for relaxation.

Janet Murray Newton's daughter Barbara was married this summer to Edward Reed of Lansdale, Pa. Janet still has a child in every school situation—college, high school, junior high and elementary. She says she's busy every minute of every day, but can't think of any way to put it on paper and make it sound interesting. That's the story of a lot of us, I think!

Jane McClung Sincell's daughter Pamela was married August 16th, and won her honeymoon in the Bahamas! She and her husband are living in Valparaiso, Indiana, while he finishes his last year at the University. Jane's son Jim returned to Southern Illinois University for his sophomore year, and Jane to her half-day job at North Shore Country Day School.

We're still "Service gals and know well—dedicated to the Army Personnel"—only now they are our sons:

Ruth Demmler Benner reports that the best part of last year was son Paul's return to the States from Vietnam. He is still in the Navy, but will be in the States for a while. Husband Dave is still traveling for his company, and Ruth is still working in Ben Avon Nursery School. Daughter Jean will be a junior at Allegheny this year.

Mary Elizabeth Rope LaHue's son Greg is back from fifteen months in Taiwan, and leaves this month for Vietnam with the U.S.A.F. Tricia is a freshman at U.C.S.B., and Tom (15) and Nan (13) still at home. The family sailed to Catalina and moored there for a week this summer.

Betty Gabagen Lindsay expects son John home for Christmas. He is completing his year in Vietnam with the 101st Airborne Division, and spent two and a half days during R. and R. with radio friends of the Lindsays in Tasmania, Australia. Betty still has three at home—Laurie (13), Andy (6), and Tom (4). Jim (17) is a senior at Phelps School, Malvern; Charlie (19) a junior at Westminster. Al is in his second year at Pitt Law School, with wife Trise teaching child development in Carrick. Dan is a resident at Montefiore. Alec started to fly on their Florida vacation, and will soon have his pilot's license. He's keeping up with sons John, who has his, and Al and Charlie, who also are learning. The arrival of Carol and Bill's son, Bill, Jr., puts Betty in the "New Grandmother Dept." along with:

Claire Stewart Burkhart, whose first grandchild, Renee Claire, arrived August 16th in Nassau, Bahamas. Her parents are Claire's daughter Dianne and husband Robert Thompson. Sally graduated from Chatham in May, left for Vancouver, B.C. next day with her Mustang and fiancé, another western-going passenger, and a great Pyrenees dog. They were married there June 23, and are fixing up "an old grey house on poverty row" before beginning classes in graduate school. Third daughter is a junior at Cornell in architecture. Meanwhile, back at the homestead, the Burkharts have been hosts to international visitors from Russia, Japan, Yugoslavia and Brazil. Claire is still teaching kindergarten and singing here and there.

Jesse Shook Allen, too, has a new grandson—with an Hawaiian name—Jeffrey Roger Kelehone (meaning "strong and brave warrior"). Allen. Jessie spent four weeks this summer seeing Canada in their camper, and then had a five-week study tour to Japan and Hong Kong. She is still teaching and going to school.

Other world travellers include:

Florence Succop Klotz and husband who spent a long-awaited sabbatical, after 25 years of teaching, taking a memorable trip to the South Pacific. They made stops at Hawaii, American Samoa, Tahiti, New Zealand, Australia, New Guinea, New Caledonia and the Fiji Islands. On a separate trip they visited the Galapagos Islands off Ecuador.

Mary Alice Spellmire Girts and Bob took a cruise to Bermuda this summer. Bob is now a member of NCARB, which means he is eligible to practice architecture in any state. Son Rob Jr. was married June 14th to Christie Chenilla, a registered nurse from Baldwin. They have an apartment at Cornell University where he is finishing his senior year in engineering physics. Michelle is a senior at Ellis this year.

Marjorie Higgins Phillips and Bill left their youngest at home to practice cheerleading, and took their two college offspring on vacation to Paradise Island, Nassau. The Phillips celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary in October. Our sympathy to Marjorie on the loss of her mother this past year.

Co-secretary Helen Shellkopf Cline and Harold traveled to England in September to visit friends who stayed with them last year. They hosted an AFS student from Sweden this summer. Karen worked for the summer in the physical therapy department at Columbia Hospital, while Tom mowed lawns and grew rich. Helen and Harold also spent a week with their bowling group at Pinehurst, N.C.

Accompanied by dad and daughter, Dorothy Purkiss Linke enjoyed a five-week trip to Europe and a Mediterranean cruise this summer. Dorothy has just co-authored a new spelling text. This year she is doing a pilot project in team-care teaching of mental defectives in Junior High. Daughter Roberta is a senior at Indiana University. She worked as caption writer and press interviewer at the Indiana State Fair, and had the pleasure of interviewing Bob Hope, the King Family, and Glen Campbell.

Congratulations to another author—Marden Armstrong Dahlstedt has one juvenile novel with an agent in New York, and will be working on a second one this winter. Daughter Ellen started this fall at Douglass College (Women's College of Rutgers). The Dahlstedts have survived their second season on the island with their antique and gift shop, "The Attic." Dick is advertising manager of the local newspaper and helps with the shop in his spare time. Just now Marden says, "We're enjoying heavenly weather on uncrowded beaches—warm surf, starlit nights and sunny days—a lovely relaxed uncomplicated way to live!" Move over, Marden—is there room on that island for the rest of us?

Jane Chantler, our travel agent, has been too busy sending other people away and training a new girl, to do much traveling on her own. She had two short "discover America" trips to New York and to Williamsburg, plus rediscovering Niagara Falls. Jane still works with one hundred teen-age girls in the Junior Hospital Auxiliary, and does publicity for the Council of Republican Women and the Butler Branch of A.A.U.W.

For those of you who would like to travel by van or trailer, Helen Moore Sacco and Donato have developed a "mini-park" for campers in the Poconos. Look for it on Mountain Road in Reeders, Pa.

Margaret Anderson stayed close to home most of the year because of her father's illness following a broken hip. When her sister came to stay with her parents for two weeks, Margaret spent five days in New York, then flew to Pensacola to visit two nephews in training, then to Los Angeles for a week in Rolling Hills with her brother's family. Serving as treasurer of Greensburg College Club keeps her busy in her spare time.

Summer meant trips to Cape May for Carol Bostwick McConnon. Cathy has returned to Boston and her job, and Wick is a freshman at Clark University in Worcester, Mass.

Jean Burchinal Purvis reports on her family: Joe III (24), is married. He is a Quaker, and is doing alternative service as a house parent in a home for neglected and abandoned children. Bill (21) is a junior at Haverford, majoring in psychology. He took a year and a half at Julliard first. Bob (19) is a sophomore at Wesleyan University in Connecticut, in pre-law. Sally (18) is a freshman at Wilson, and Tom (14) at home. Jean is a school director, served on County Committee for 1970 White House Conference, and hopes to get her M.A. in English.

Sunny Croft Armstrong's son Tom is off to school in Kentucky, and Alison is a sophomore in Fox Chapel High School. The Armstrongs alternate their time between home in Pittsburgh and their hunting lodge in Cook's Forest on weekends and vacations.

June found Ethel Herrod Blackburn commuting between Michigan and New Jersey—first for their son's graduation from Princeton, along with two other Chatham sons, those of Betty Sweeney Taylor ('40) and Mary Kinter McEldowney ('41); then back again for the McEldowney wedding where their son was best man, just 28 years after Ethel and Jim were in the Kinter-McEldowney wedding. Ethel manages to keep in touch with Chatham through being Alumnae Representative, the Centennial Fund, and daughter Nancy, a sophomore.

Margaret Hibbs Keller reports that she and Louise Lean Fontaine ('40) are enjoying a belated career in the Passport Division of the State Department, and have fun reminiscing. Margaret's husband is at Bolling AFB after a year in Thailand. They have two in college.

Things are going to be quiet at Grace Mary Horton Haller's this year since both kids are away. Hal is in his fifth and final year at M.I.T. and Marjorie starting her first year at Penn Hall in Chambersburg. They are glad they still have the dog!

Alice McKain Porter writes that all are waiting for a glorious Fall in the Smokies. Daughter Ann is a senior at Queens College, and son John a sophomore at Davidson. Nancy is a high school junior. The Porters have enjoyed water-skiing on a near-by lake this summer.

Barbara Maerker Baum's son Bob (19) spent the summer in Alaska. Dick graduated from Duquesne and is engaged. Carol is a senior in high school. Barbara and Dick are "bearing up."

Ruth Notz Carland is busy taking care of the family menagerie of dogs, rabbits and tropical fish, now that the children are all back in school. Her oldest son is a junior at Thiel, the next three in 9th, 10th, and 12th, and the baby in 2nd grade. Besides the menagerie, Ruth has Girl Scouts, P.T.A. and Football Mothers to keep her occupied.

Alice Provost McCutcheon entered her oldest son in Duke, at Durham, N.C., this fall.

Nancy Scott Ralston enjoyed two vacations this year—two weeks at Del Ray in January, and a large part of the summer at Van Buren Point. Daughter Dede graduated from junior college and now hopes to join the great army of the employed.

Mary Singer Samson completed the school psychologist credentials requirements for California and has the certificate, but will continue with her present three-day week, counseling at the Educational Development Center West Coast Branch in Claremont. Both boys are high school seniors, the youngest a cheer leader. Her daughter is in her fourth year at Antioch, a biology (pre-med) major.

1869-1969.

IT TOOK MONEY TO LAST THAT LONG!

Jane Smith O'Neill is still a member of that rare breed—housewife—and holding on as long as she can! She divides her time between cooking, reading, writing articles and riding. She and daughter Megan, a high school sophomore, each has her own horse and enjoy rides together.

Betty Steffler Baker is still teaching 6th grade, and Dick is with Shaw Barton, Inc. Son Richard received his master's degree in public relations. He is a bachelor, living in Columbus, Ohio, working in public relations for Ohio Education Association. Daughter Kathleen is a senior at Miami University in journalism, and is engaged.

"Southern hospitality is all that it is expected to be," says Jane Wilmot Conrad, who is enjoying living in beautiful Decatur, Ga. Daughter Betsy started college this fall and plans to major in interior design. After many years of volunteer community service work, Jane is relaxing with a membership in the local Garden Club, but planning to start helping at a nearby Veterans Hospital.

Marjorie Wood Yearick sent her fourth daughter, Pat, off to Theil College this year. Chip is a senior in high school, Peggy studying for her Ph.D. in genetics at Pitt. Marjorie and Ralph have enjoyed a new travel trailer, though they haven't gone far from home due to the illness of Ralph's father.

The Rankins traveled south this summer, camping in Virginia on the way to Warren Wilson College, N.C. with oldest son Jay. Jamie is in 9th grade, studying piano at Carnegie-Mellon Saturday mornings, and accompanying the Campus Life Singers of Washington County. Paul is in 6th grade, taking trumpet lessons. Harry spent two weeks in June at the University of Wisconsin, attending the Bethel Bible Series Training Clinic. Joan has taught Released Time Christian Education Classes, directed Community Vacation Bible School, done volunteer work in the community library. We're looking forward to Christmas and having Jay home again, plus our "foster" son from Uganda, also at Warren Wilson College, and Jay's roommate from Peru.

So many of us seemed to be doing the same thing this fall—starting a son or daughter off to college. Can it possibly be 31 years since we met Big Sisters and faced Freshman Week!

It was great to hear from all of you again. Let's see—shall we hold our next reunion with Saccos in the Poconos, on Dahlstedts' island, or at Armstrongs' hunting lodge?

Puzzle: Which ambitious classmate has been building a dry wall for rock garden plants, and taking classes in abstract painting? The card was postmarked Pittsburgh, but no name—sorry!

Ann reporting:

Betsy Meader Downing had two graduations this spring: Debby from college, Cum Laude, and John from high school. Debby has been managing two departments in a new department store branch, and John has entered college. Elizabeth just started in 10th grade. Her husband is helping his biology department completely re-structure its courses for (as Betsy said, "Would you believe?")—"relevance." She added, "I'm the mother of three young adults in a rather awesome world, trying to keep up."

Betty Monroe Musselman says that her family was all at home this summer, for the first time in six years. Peggy and Paul have previously spent two months in camp, and for the past two years Peggy has been studying in Europe in the summer-time. She is now in college for a five-year nursing course.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Martha McCullough Lohmeyer in the recent death of her father.

Mary Lou Reiber Peter says that one of the highlights of her year was attending the 25th reunion events. She laments that her children are all "so grown up"; her granddaughter is 3½ years old.

Lillian Sheasby Bauer has moved back to Pittsburgh, and despite a few wild shots that land on her front porch, is enjoying the new home near the 11th tee of the Sewickley Heights Country Club. She will miss her lunch dates with Portia Geyer McCoy in Philadelphia, and being just three hours away from their recently-purchased vacation property in Ocean Pines, Maryland. She also had to give up her position as Chemistry Laboratory Supervisor at Swarthmore College. Keith, 17, is in his freshman year at Penn State on the Erie campus. Rob, 21, graduated from Lehigh in June and has been working in Ithaca, New York. Bob and Lil celebrated their 25th anniversary by chartering a 40-foot sailboat in St. Thomas and cruising the Virgin Islands. The trip was such a success that they plan another around the Grenadines in March.

Helen Smith writes, "A teenager who has been living at my house for the past several months thinks I lead 'a very exciting life.' And it's true that since last

IT'S UP TO YOU.

WILL CHATHAM HAVE A

FUTURE TO BE PROUD OF?

Christmas, the beds in both my house and Evelyn Fulton's next door (of which I'm caretaker, when she's away) have hardly had a chance to cool. They have been occupied by a continuous march of relatives, relatives-to-be, friends, friends-of-friends, the new minister, friends of the new minister, and some others with whom I am barely acquainted. This has been a year of sheets, towels, expanded meals, and flexibility. You might say I've been doing the 'inn thing.'

Betty Spierling Arentson has the sympathy of the class in the death of her mother, in Erie. It has been a year of emergencies for her, both at home or at work where she is personnel manager of a store. Her daughter is a senior in high school, "sweating out the college bit," and she also has an active younger son.

Mary Lee Ullom Hoy's daughter graduated from Winchester-Thurston in June, and entered Hood College this fall. They all had a spring vacation in Hawaii, and a three-week tour of the South during the summer.

Your secretary reporting . . . we started the year with a great personal loss: Nick's father died very unexpectedly in January, (in Alabama) and we handled the memorial services and funeral here. I am tremendously indebted to Helen Smith for her help, and to Evelyn Fulton for the use of her home, for guests. (That's one of the nice things about having gone to Chatham—you make friends for life!) Ann was graduated from Chatham in June with honors and as a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She just departed for a three-year mission assignment in Bogota, Columbia, for the Presbyterian Church. Christine is a junior at Penn State; Jim is a freshman at West Virginia University. Paul, 16, has just started to drive—we now have three cars and six drivers, (and I should own a garage!) Our Laura, 13, sews most of her clothes, and Julie, 11, still perks along in her own serene and good-natured fashion. We've had so much company this year that I've barely been able to keep the beds changed, but I enjoy it. We had a mortgage-burning party recently, with a huge outside bonfire; everybody came . . . including the police and the fire department! Nick is jogging, three miles at a stretch, three days a week . . . he looks younger every year. (And I wish I could say the same!) I manage to keep busy, and do a little writing on the side.

Jane reporting:

Jean Bacon Smith looked great at the reunion in June, which is to say she looked slim and young. Norma Bailey McLean has been very busy this summer with swim teams and family camping. Her husband is still on the staff of Leech Farm V.A. Hospital. Susie is now in senior high, Chip in junior high, and Nancy in 6th grade.

Everybody is getting some kind of schooling at Jean Debaven Uhl's house.

Husband John just got his M.B.A., son John is a senior at the University of Louisville, while Bob is a sophomore at Rose Tech. Gary is a junior in high school, and the twin sons, Kevin and Wayne, are in 4th grade. Jeanne joined the study group and got some credits toward a master's degree.

Peggy Donaldson had everyone over to her new apartment on Fifth Avenue almost directly across from the entrance to Woodland Road. (She admits she drives to work—might need the car while working, she says).

Now that her last child has started college, Barbara Findley Copeland has turned to a new creative life. Along with a course in sociology at Pitt, she also is taking courses in creative stitchery, French and painting. This must rejuvenate the spirit completely because she even started playing tennis again this summer after 22 years off the courts.

Gladys Bistline Belz still teaches piano. Her husband and son are "very involved" in Scouting. Family vacation this summer took them to Texas, Southern Arizona and New Mexico. It was very hot and Gladys says she has seen enough cactus to last a lifetime.

Ruth Laird Grant says she is perfectly happy being middle-aged, but enjoys her children. Daughter Christine is a first year med student at West Virginia University, son Russell is a seminarian at Wheeling College, and daughter Leslie attends the local school for retarded children. Ruth and her husband Russ plan to attend Chatham's gala 100th Anniversary party in November. Sounds like a great idea, Ruth. Hope I can come, too.

Ruth Firmin Jacobs has two teen-agers, Linda and Scott, in high school, and thinks this suffices to describe her life. Well-I... in a way, Ruth, but they are all so different. This is the age of "doing your own thing," which means at least describing the source of the turbulence and activity around you! She did say she gets included in some of Linda's Girl Scout trips because of her R.N. background. Jane Murray Blair, '45, is the Scout Leader who was planning to take the troop to Washington, D.C. (Ruth included) in October. The family vacationed in Ohio on Lake Erie.

Evlyn Fulton completed the exciting trip to the Mid-East and Africa she outlined for us in last year's Recorder. She began with a look at Iran, then Christmas in Egypt with Susie Greiss el Daies, '59. Ethiopia was visited as she continued on to her destination, Nairobi, for a seven-week project with a girls school. She came back by way of Zambia, Uganda and the Camaroun. This bare outline has me eager to see her slides. Like all seasoned travelers, she has a lecture with slides to share her experiences with the rest of us. I've already asked the local Presbyterian Church to invite Evlyn. She only got back in March, but tells me for vacation (was that really needed, Evlyn) this year visited friends in San Jose, California, and finds she could easily be converted to California. While she was in Africa, her Monroeville house was used for guests of Helen Smith and Ann McClymonds Turnock. In return, eight of them came to her house in early September and had a "Happening"—they painted the whole interior in one day! She is ecstatic with the beautiful results, and says anytime . . . !

Portia Geyer McCoy managed to get a reply back as she got two youngsters off to college, and still said "no exciting news!" Her daughter goes to the University of Virginia, and her son to the University of Delaware.

Gladys Heimert Aye has a son, Ralph, a sophomore at Dartmouth. Daughter Pam, a high school senior, toured Europe this summer with a group of music students. While husband Tom is very busy in the practice of orthopedic surgery, Gladys does volunteer work in the Hospital Auxiliary, the Crippled Children's Society, and the Medical Auxiliary.

Kelly Jones Clowes has moved to an apartment. She says she is "feeling fine and getting around now." You will remember that Kelly has arthritis.

Dorcas Leibold wrote a postcard as she was about to take off on another fabulous-sounding trip: "Tomorrow (Sept. 11) I depart via Alitalia Airlines for Milan, whence my route will take me to the Italian Riviera, to Pisa, Florence, Rome, the hill towns of Assisi and Perugia, over to the Adriatic Coast and north to Venice, west to Lake Como, Milan and back home via Boston."

Patty Leonard Bodle wrote that visiting old friends at our June Reunion was thoroughly enjoyable. She exclaimed over how "fit" we all looked. I made this out after a few self-conscious minutes in which I was sure she was saying "fat." True, I thought, but does she have to mention it, especially since her still-lithe figure gives testimony that she is still a whiz on the tennis courts. Summer for her was tennis and several trips to the beach.

Others who joined us in June at Chatham, but could not get in a fall report, are Peggy Craig Murray, who came from Akron with Cynthia Say Calhoun, Martha Harlan Kaufman and Betty Johnescu Steenberg.

The Agriestis have been busy building a new house in Granville, Ohio, where we moved two years ago from Columbus. Husband Carl is an industrial engineer for North American Rockwell Corp. With six children we had an impossible time trying to find a suitable house, so we finally planned one that provides seven bedrooms (ours is on another floor from the youngsters), two living rooms—an adult room and a "teen room"—a library with wood-burning fireplace, plus all the other usual rooms. My favorite is the custom kitchen which is huge and designed so several cooks can work without getting in each other's way. A laundry room is next to it. A shaft big enough for a private elevator will soon be outfitted with a dumb waiter to serve the three floors. Although within the village limits, our house is in the woods, and, as we were careful to preserve all we could, we do not have a bit of grass. I have returned to nursing, serving in a shifting schedule during the college year at Denison University, which is only a half mile from us. Son Charles worked this summer to earn his entire first year's college expenses (he is a freshman at Ohio State University), but managed to attend the awesome Woodstock Music Festival, and vacation in Colorado. David, Howard and Marlane are all in high school where Marlane is a cheerleader and I am finding this involves me in dinner entertaining and more chauffeuring. Carol, at 12, is finding junior high school so exciting she loves each new day. Bruce is in fourth grade, so I still attend three P.T.A.'s. At this writing I look forward to representing Chatham at the inauguration of Joel Pritchard Smith as the 15th President of Denison University on October 10.

Thanks to all who sent in money for our class treasury. Any who did not can send a dollar to the Alumnae office. Make check payable to the Chatham Alumnae Class Account.

Virginia Uber Haug (Mrs. Peter), P.O. Box 36, Hiawatha, Iowa 52233

When you read our class news this year you will be amazed at the number of colleges all over the United States and foreign countries in which we have children. Not only that, we are becoming grandmothers and getting gray hair, but, as Joan Davies Bream tells us, it's not that we are getting older, just more mature.

It's only fair that we should begin our college students with Chatham where Marian Lean Christie's daughter Janet is a senior, and Marty Yorkin Berman's daughter Diane is a junior. Marian is working on her teaching certification, and Marty still loves her counseling work. Her daughter Linda enjoyed working at a kibbutz in Israel this summer.

Betty Beck Wiedenman has a daughter who is a junior at Penn State, and Dottie Groves Carson's son is a freshman there this year.

Midge Kovacs Rubenstein is doing substitute teaching this year. Her daughter is at Northwestern. Helen Gilmore Reinhard is also subbing and looking at colleges for her oldest girl.

Lois Jean Jackson Ritenbaugh's husband Hud had an emergency appendectomy right in the middle of their vacation. While they were in the hospital, Dottie Groves Carson's mother passed away. Our sincere sympathy to her, and to Linnea Lunstedt Evans on the death of both of her husband's parents. Linnea says they do have happy news to report, too. Her father celebrated his 90th birthday and her second daughter graduated from Rutgers.

Fran Hilbish Logue is still spinning from her wild year. Beside the birth of her son Eugene, her daughter Frannie was married, and daughter Susan was hit with a serious case of hepatitis while studying at the University of Scotland in Edinburgh.

Mariellen Roche Duval had a year like that, too. Daughter Lynn was married and now has a lovely son, two boys are off to college, and Gene was invited to the moon shot. They also have sad news for Gene's father, who lived with them, passed away this year.

Both Micky McKee Barnes and Marty Yorkin Berman have daughters at Pembroke University. Micky is still enjoying library work.

Ginny Ueber Haug has a granddaughter one year old as well as her new adopted six-year-old. Another of her girls spent the summer in Australia in the Experiment in International Living Program. They purchased an 18-room house and invite us one and all to visit.

Jane Field Taylor is delighted with their adopted daughter, Phyllis, who is also six years old. The boys are fine and B. Frank is operating "satellite" dental clinics at the Marine Corps Schools.

Peggy Korb Smith finds it hard to believe that son Bob is all of 21 and will graduate from Duke University this year. She and Bob enjoyed vacations at St. Thomas and San Juan.

Grace Savage Freeble had an interrupted holiday in South America when husband Chuck had another heart attack. He's fine now and we wish him well. Her son started graduate school this fall at Pitt.

Joan Davies Bream has a boy from Bogota, Columbia staying with them and going to Shady Side Academy with her son. Sue Norton Boord also has a foreign student from Switzerland. She is working on her master's at the University of Delaware and liking it better than housework.

Marty Coate Challener was busy getting a daughter ready to enter Goucher this fall. Husband Dick has two new books coming out on Diplomatic History and John Foster Dulles.

Evie Matthews Reece is a new "mother-in-law." Son Alan was married this year and is now teaching at the University of Miami. Their youngest son is at Union College.

Arlene Levenson Rosenberg is still working as a psychiatric social worker in the Student Mental Health Center at the University of Connecticut. Her son is a freshman at Howard University. The family spent a motoring vacation in France—a last fling before the oldest leaves the "nest."

Joan Titus Dunlap reports another camping trip following the pioneer trails of the Pacific Northwest. They are collecting material for her husband's next book. They also visited the Netherlands and Ireland this year.

Miriam Egger Hosack's family also had a camping vacation and she reports it was no small feat to feed Milt and her three athletic sons on a two burner Coleman stove. Their oldest son, Larry, will be a junior at Earlham College this year.

Camping and hiking appealed to Helen Hunter White and her brood this year, too. Helen is working in a small department store and loves it.

Ginny Sommerfield Hackman's children had a bad year. Her son fractured his skull, and her 19-year-old daughter was in a serious auto accident. She still has a bad facial scar but has recovered quite nicely. She has transferred to Ohio State where she is majoring in ballet.

Glory Sandquist Luley is pleased with their return to Pittsburgh. Her son graduated from Lehigh and is now a Second Lt., but has been allowed to start work on his master's at Penn State.

Helen Louise Myers Duerring feels very blessed that, after three long years and four major operations on her eyes, she is again able to see and do the things she has been unable to do for a long time. Best wishes, Weezie, we are as happy as your family that you are so much better.

Ginny Vogt McDermott is teaching gynecological nursing at Magee-Women's Hospital, and her oldest daughter is off to Beloit College as a freshman.

Penny Myers Smith is still teaching, and her oldest boy is at Allegheny College this year. She claims we all probably have "old-age bog-down" about now. Surely not!

Ronnie Staples Jorgenson is working as a medical secretary and has no college students yet. The thought of college kids also throws Marge Mistrick Sweeny whose oldest is a Cub Scout and the baby is only starting to talk.

Jean Purves Bowman sent a second daughter off to college and continues to work for Rog in the lab.

Jeannie Thompson Johnson played Santa Claus at the Y.W.C.A. Settlement House Party at Chatham last year. She really enjoys her work at the "Y."

Pat Cochran Brown had good news—her husband will be in "Who's Who in the East" this year, and she is working as an English reader for the public schools. She grades English papers for high schools and finds it very interesting.

Betty Sossong Gretzler is doing library work and has a daughter at the University of Denver, while Hillsdale College has Jean White Markell's sophomore daughter.

Betty Rains Thornton has two sons who are avid swimmers and I'm promised a visit next summer when they come to Cuyahoga Falls for a major swim meet. I'm really looking forward to it. She says her boys' goal in life is the Olympic Swim Team.

Chickie Sauders Laisy will have both of her little ones in school this year and she plans to galavant all day and every day. They spent a vacation in Normandy this year and were so impressed with William the Conqueror's relatives that they named their poodle for one of them.

Ruth Teplitz Goodman had a panel of her paintings at the Baltimore Art Festival this summer. She is a fashion artist for a newspaper.

Doris Fairfield Jamison and family got the fishing bug on their Florida vacation and her son caught a small shark. She says she wasn't so lucky. That's luck?

Marjory Couch Lynn is kept busy transporting her daughter all over. They vacationed in Williamsburg and Washington. A European vacation is planned for next year by Lula Copeta Blazakis, complete with all the kids.

Flo Ostien Chew hasn't been active in nursing this year, just "home economics," she says.

Lucy Dorsey took a course in data processing so she could understand what the computer people were talking about. Loves Florida still and invites us to visit.

In fact, judging from your letters, the class of '46 could visit all over the U.S. We are all invited by everyone to drop in anytime we are near. Thank you all for your delightful letters and cards. It's so much fun to hear from you. Please start thinking about 1971 and hope we can all be there for our 25th. Marty Yorkin Berman says her students ask her if her gray hair is for real or from a bottle, so start your plans now—either use the "bottle" or vie for the prize for the most gray hair in 1971.

Joy reporting:

My response was sparse this time—my fault, I fear, for mentioning money. Before going further, I'll elaborate on that message.

At our last reunion (1967), those of us present voted to request each of you to contribute a minimum of $5.00 each year for a class gift to the college at our twenty-fifth reunion in 1973. Checks are to be made payable to the Chatham Alumnae Class Account, and mailed to either Ginger or me, for deposit through the Alumnae Office in a special savings account. So far, only three members have responded, so please consider sending either the full $25.00, or any sort of down payment.

There was also some discussion of an "in-between" reunion in 1970, so please express your opinions though your secretaries.

The news, I found, fell mostly into two categories—travel and schools. Many of us now have sons and daughters in college, and if a Fund check was not quickly forthcoming, I understand. You can't bleed a turnip.

Jean Hadfield Smith sent Debbie off to Muskingum College, and feels, after perusing so many college catalogs, that she would enjoy another crack at it herself. She and Teddy helped with the Chatham Forum Fund drive this year. She also reported an interesting experience as a Chatham mother.

Nornie MacMillen Morris reports son Jeff is a freshman at the University of Connecticut, and Richard is spending his junior year studying in Bregenz, Austria, under a Wagner College program. He will be graduated from Grove City next year. She and George planned a trip to Bermuda this fall.

Carol Lenz Houck also has two in college, Don at Buffalo and Cynthia a freshman at Rochester Institute of Technology. The family managed a week of vacation together this summer, in spite of summer jobs, and camped in New Hampshire.

Hilda Fish Bricker writes that Pat is a sophomore at Grove City, Hilda is at West Virginia Wesleyan, and Debbie got her cap at Columbia Hospital as a candy-striper. Hilda herself has had a bad year observing hospital procedure from the wrong end of the thermometer, but she's concentrating on keeping well and having a better time all around for 1970.

Another of our classmates is having a bad year. Jean Forncrook Armstrong is caring for her father and aunt, both of whom are seriously ill. Meanwhile, Cathy is a sophomore at Mt. Holyoke, Missy a senior at Winchester, and Chris in the seventh grade at St. Edmunds.

Then there's Wandalea Johnson Smith, who sent her baby off to the first grade this year. Happy PTA to you! She has happily finished her chairmanship of the Woman's Club Antique Show.

Sally Geary Hansen had a full year to record. She was in Europe in May, and at the Chamber Music Center at Bennington College in August. Will bought the historic "Fiddle Shop" in Cincinnati and she is adding a sheet music department. She is still engrossed in flute lessons as well. She added that she enjoyed a visit on campus Reunion Day.

Dottie Doolittle Collins and Rip had their nephew with them again this summer. They planned a trip to Mexico in November. She saw Charlotte Exley Eck at their high school reunion in Cumberland this summer. Sorry I missed you, Lefty, but I was confessing to twenty-five years gone that same evening. Horrors!

Marie Cohn Chiles and John took a sentimental journey back to England where they met and married. They enjoyed visiting old friends and familiar places. She has moved for the sixth time in five years, and has had enough of that, but in between, she has chaired two major campaigns, for the Houston Sympathy, and for Holly Hall, a home for retired. She serves on the boards of both.

My nomination for seasoned traveler of the class is Mary Alma Lapsley who, this year, between attending training sessions in Chicago and Cleveland for her company, visited St. Thomas, Los Angeles (for a third trip to Disneyland), and Toronto, enjoyed several theater trips to New York, and had projected a fall tour of Bermuda. A moment of silence, please, while I turn green!

ASK YOUR EMPLOYER ABOUT A MATCHING GIFT.

Mary Ann Houck Brown sent a quiet little note about her three children, ages 11, 8, and 4, a contribution to our fund, and a word about the Nag's Head vacation with the Portuguese men-of-war.

Sports specialist Amy Gage Skallerup is compiling the index to a textbook on football (what won't they think of next?), being published by the Naval Institute Press. She says this must be the bottom of their line, to which my husband responded, "What's wrong with football?" We enjoyed seeing Amy this spring, after 21 years, and meeting all of her family. Since then, she has moved, so I'll have to search her out again.

A Christmas letter from Jessie Chew Gilbert told of a year fraught with emergency surgery for her and her father (both now doing well), a surprise package from their collie of seven puppies, and wall-to-wall cookies during the annual Girl Scout campaign. I hope the summer has been better, Jessie.

I also resurrected a card from Anne Wallace Huntemer, which arrived late last year. She sent her regards to all, and a spirit-buoying comment on "a life full of joy of living." Thank you, Anne, for responding.

I had an unexpected bonus to my job—a phone conversation with Marianne Boggs Campbell, who had just touched down on home base in Cincinnati where she is director of community affairs for AVCO Broadcasting Corporation. This year, she is serving as national president of the Association for Professional Broadcasting Education, and as a national director of American Women in Radio and Television, representing the East-Central area. One of the stops on her coast-to-coast itinerary last year was on the Chatham campus, where she was a guest speaker during a Women in Communications symposium. She said that experience put her into her proper age bracket, but I doubt it, because she bubbles with enthusiasm for her profession! Thank you for calling.

Mary Jane Humbert Upshaw started her youngest child in the first grade, and went to work to use her history degree. She is now one of the costumed hostesses at Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and sends the message, "Yo'all come!"

The final reply received, from Honey Holland Rank, is a sad ending. She and her husband lost their eldest son, Dave, in February after a brief, cruel bout of cancer. Honey, the class extends its heartfelt sympathy to you and Dale and your sons in your bereavement. May your happy years together offer some consolation to you.

For myself, I can report a very happy, "glad-I'm-a-parent" year. Our family hosted an AFS exchange student from Uruguay who was one of the most charming, considerate, loving individuals I have ever known. We had unforgettable times together, exploring the differences and similarities in everything from mores to food. Especially food.

Son Dick, now a sophomore at Western Maryland College, had an exciting experience as a volunteer for Student Opportunities Service in Puerto Rico this summer.

High school senior Bob is Student Council president and football player, so Bruce and I are inevitably involved in school affairs. We also have a host of other most interesting activities between us, limited only by time, money, and, sadly, energy. We did capitalize on our family situation this year and stole away from the construction business for our first summer vacation in more than a decade. For Alvaro's benefit, and our delight, we camped and toured through Maine and New England, just prior to his return home in July.

It's been my pleasure to exchange news with you all again this year. Keep in touch.

Ginger reporting:

Charlotte Exley Eck and Mary Ruth Foreney Snyder capture top honors in the Exciting News Department this time: the Ecks are eagerly awaiting the arrival of their adopted baby, a new little playmate for Henry Howard; and the Snyders saw their daughter Cindy (19) crowned Miss Pacific Palisades by Peter Graves of TV's Mission Impossible. Soon after, Cindy became affianced to her college sweetheart.

We are sorry to hear of Ruthie Zucker Bachman's run of bad luck this year. Her husband Jim had major surgery in January, her brother was in a horrible auto accident, and Ruthie developed an ulcer. Her Anne and David are in high school now, and eighteen-year-old David wants to be a forest ranger.

Jimmy Queenh Berman, Ruth Shaffer Loughney, Alma Anderson Staehle and Donice Vail Rea send news of their children. Jimmy and her family love Hawaii and may settle there permanently. Both of Ruth's children are in college, while Alma's are in assorted places: one son in naval boot camp, one son in college, a daughter in college, and one in boarding school. Donnie is relaxing after her year as Worthy Matron of Eastern Star. One of her daughters is a college freshman this year and the other is a high school senior.

Hao Obermayer Sellers drove to Fairbanks, Alaska, in August and reports that it is a long, bumpy, dusty ride, the kind that people in their right minds take only once—and they did! Her two sons are growing and growing and growing. She is deeply immersed in what she calls the usual involvements—school, community, charities, and hospital committees.

Another conscientious gal is Suzy Sutton Hepler, who is beginning her twelfth year of homebound teaching. Suzy lost her mother last November after her mother had been bed-ridden with arthritis almost four years. Our deepest sympathy, Suzy. She and Tom went to Nova Scotia for their vacation. Suzy's girls are growing by leaps and bounds, too. One went to Europe this summer with a group of fellow high school students, and the other is working at the Masonic Homes in Elizabethtown.

In the No-News-But-Hello-Anyway Department are Wilma Moore Stoeber, Randy Ullom Doig, Marge Reckard and Janie Picard Pursell.

Thanks to each and every one of you gals for contributing generously to my postage kitty. I've had a good and full year, representing Famous Artists Schools International, substituting in English in area high schools, United Funding, Women's Clubbing, Social Ministering at church, and Chatham newsing. Other than that, I am a free agent. Lisa flew off to Arizona State University, Bobby's a Kaufman's teen advisor and Camp Kon-O-Kwee counselor, and Erika is studying art with the Famous Artists School.

Don't forget your Reunion Gifts to the College. I wish all of you could get up to the College occasionally, as I do, and participate in all of the excitement going on there all the time. You would be even more proud of your Alma Mater than you already are!

That's thirty for this time. Have a very good year ahead.

Dolores Baney Conley reports that last November she and Duane went to Freeport, Grand Bahama for a very nice, relaxing vacation. The Conleys, as everyone else, are busy, busy.

Bibs Bassett McMahon reports that the McMahons are represented in every grade from 4th to college freshman except 6th and 11th. Daughter Barbara won two scholarships and started at Elmira College in September—made Bibs homesick for our old school days and eager for our gala reunion. Time flies and 1975 will be here before we realize!

Nancy Beamer Stewart is teaching and working with student teachers in Burrell again. Daughter Lucy is going to nursery school ("It's different when it's your own!"). The Stewarts bought a luxurious motor home and toured the west to California for several weeks this summer. That's camping????

Shirley Bemis Martin has the biggest news of the class. "Buzz" is our very FIRST grandmother! She writes that her oldest daughter is married and now has an adorable little girl. Congratulations! Her second daughter, Gingy, started at Hiram College this fall. There are two in high school and Freddy is in 6th grade.

Midge Beetle Winnicki and her husband popped in on us one day recently. They had just deposited their oldest daughter, Alison, at Bethany College where she is a junior. There are three college girls in the Winnicki family. Midge is back as a full-time student taking special education, and her second daughter, Joan, is a sophomore.

Lee Corey Hanson had just returned from her third trip to the state of Washington this year. They fell in love with the northwest coast of the USA on their first trip and now own a house on one of the inlets of Puget Sound near the town of Shelton. The house is to be their retirement home. Lee wishes that they could move there right now! They sit on their deck with evergreen trees around three sides and watch the tide flow in and out. Tug boats tow log booms in one direction (toward the lumber mills) and barges loaded with sawdust in another direction (toward processing plants). They can see the snow-topped Olympic Mountains across the water. In short, the area is gorgeous! Aside from that Lee is still teaching dog obedience at Schenley Park with the Pittsburgh Obedience Training Club. She and her husband make several trips to New England each year where Bill is chairman of the board of trustees for his college, Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Jane Crooks Rech was surprised to bump into Lennie Rothschild Klein when they were timers for opposing teams in the Swim Lanes. Jane recognized Lennie immediately—she's as attractive as ever.

Jan Crowe Gustafson reports that they are completely immersed in the great college decision for Carl for next year. "Anybody have any suggestions on how to live through this?" Jan was in the Friday night rush at the airport a few months ago when a gal in the next car called, "Jan," and there was Shirley Brendel Culver—and they recognized each other after 19 years!

Betty Davis Herzberg spent a quiet summer recovering from a thyroidectomy. She is now teaching chemistry at Brentwood High School and attending Pitt two evenings a week, working toward a M.Ed. Both children attend Thomas Jefferson High School. Husband Bob has changed jobs and is now working at Williams Buick Company.

Ann Denigan Richardson wrote me a long letter last January, much too late for the last Recorder, so I will include her news now. Ann reported that she had become increasingly inactive—spending her time watching the skiers, working in the school library—no clubs or Scouts this year, but enough livestock to keep her busy. The newest addition is a Gotland horse, which is Welch pony size but from Sweden. The kids are fine. Husband Brad has changed jobs, still in mutual funds with a broker-dealer.

This is Joy Dougherty Chilcott's first year with all three in school all day, Jan in 9th grade, Paul in 5th and Karen in 1st. Joy plans to take a class in oil painting and continue her increasing interest in antique hunting. Also, she is teaching junior and senior life saving at the high school for the Red Cross. Ritae Harbert Hutson, Nina Weaver Peters and Joy (plus husbands) spent an evening with Sully Baux Stevens and Bob in their beautiful new home. They had such a good time reminiscing about 1946-1950 at P.C.W.

Ruth Fabry revisited San Francisco and took in the Rose Bowl activities in Los Angeles during the Christmas holidays. This summer she visited London, Amsterdam, Brussels, Heidelberg, Munich, Vienna, Madrid, Costa Del Sol of Spain, and Lisbon, Portugal. Ruth tells us that Corinne Holm Milton is living in Nepal now—her husband works for the State Department.

P. D. Good Rudd, after having nine broken ribs in an auto-bus accident the end of January, did recover enough by July to spend a month in their car and tent camper traveling 7500 miles to the West Coast and back. They took in many lovely out-of-the-way areas that can be seen only when camping. Dave, 17, and Paul, 16, were able to drive, giving Mom and Dad a chance to sit back with their three girls, Terrie, 13, Linda, 10, and Sandy, 8. They saw Dusty Carlson Bowersox in L.A. still looking the same, and enjoyed meeting her family, 2 girls and a boy. They tried to see Pat Porson Ryan in Casper, Wyoming, but missed her—she was back east on a trip with the whole family.

Nancy Gwosden Curry, now that moving is behind her, has become involved with the junior high Campfire Girls group and is secretary of AAUW. Her son Tom is 4½.

Merny Hamilton Hess was late with her reply because they stayed at their new house at Bethany Beach, Delaware, until mid-September.

Nancy Hughes Evans' son Bob is in junior high and Linda is a 5th-grader. The Evans family enjoyed another season at camp—the children as campers and the parents as assistant directors.

Barbara Illig Rabenkamp's highlight this year was a family trip by car to California. They were impressed by the vastness and rugged beauty of the West and are ready to see more of it anytime. Barbara is involved at her church with a "Meals on Wheels" project for the elderly of the community.

Betty Langer Feathers is curious to know what has happened to Dr. Robert Zetler and Dr. Troy Organ. Can anyone help her? [At last report, Dr. Zetler was at Florida Southern University and Dr. Organ at Ohio University at Athens. Ed.] Betty sent me a picture of her very handsome son Eric, 13.

Carolyn Lippencott Walker is trying to adjust to a whole new way of life—after 16 years all are in school. With three teenage girls, life is a ball. Otherwise Carolyn says, just Scouts, church, and the usual 100 & 1 things the "stay-at-home" mother is expected to do.

Joan MacMillen Neucomb has quite a few things to report this year. First of all they bought a farm, and Jim is no longer a pharmacy professor but a part-time farmer and part-time "drug store" pharmacist. They have 65 acres, a start on a herd of beef cattle, and they are raising the feed for the cattle and one horse. Joans says she has been learning how to care for animals, machinery, vegetable garden, canning, and freezing, etc. The children enjoy their new life, and the town is not new to them, having owned a cottage there for 20 years only 10 minutes from the farm. James Jr. is 16, Janet, 14, and Judy, 6. Since all are in school, Joan may be able to return to painting this year.

Dottie MacPhee Hunter and Burke took the girls, now 9 and 7, for a vacation in California last May, visiting San Francisco, Yosemite, Carmel, Santa Barbara and Disneyland. The highlight was a visit with Nancy Gwosden Curry and her lovely family in Merced. Dottie says it's amazing how, with good friends, the years fly away and we are all young again!

Lois Mars Mignogna and I have been in the "garage sale" business—we've had two so far. They are really fun—you will be amazed at what people will pay for your old junk! Lois was here when Mid-

HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN THE CENTENNIAL FUND?

Winnicki came and we three really had an enjoyable evening. Lois' son John is a freshman at Edinboro this year.

Lennie Rothschild Klein has had a year of reunions. She saw Ann Denigan Richardson twice this year—once when Ann was in N.J., and later when Lennie attended a convention in Denver. Another happy reunion was with Sally Schechter Gurin in July when she was visiting in N.J. And then there was the meeting with Jane Rech at the Swim Lanes!

Dodie Seale Warren was justifiably proud of daughter Anne, who was valedictorian of her graduating class of 900-plus, and who is now a freshman at Swarthmore. Janet, 14, is in boarding school in Honolulu, and 12-year-old Bruce is at home. The Warren family spent most of the summer traveling on the Mainland, and visited M. J. Ewing Sipe, '49, for a short time. Dodie continues her painting and the teaching of painting, while husband Bill adds the teaching of college algebra to his Navy work. "Aloha" to all from Dodie in Hawaii.

Phoebe Thorne Birmingham missed last year's news in the flurry of the opening of school and church activities. Phoebe's mother came to take care of the children while Phoebe went for a wonderful three-week visit with her sister Carol in London.

Jessie Tomlin McCurdy and her husband have just passed another milestone. In the same week they celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary and packed their two oldest daughters off to college. Yolande is a sophomore at Wilson College where she was the recipient of the President's Prize for achieving the highest scholarship standing in the freshman class last year. Anne Marie, who was a National Merit Scholarship finalist entered Dickinson as a freshman. The rest of the family is involved in the usual round of school, work, Scouts and community activities. Jessie's biggest surprise of the past year was receiving the Scouting Order of Merit! Rene is an Explorer Leader and this summer they went with the Scouts for Shore Camp at Cape Henlopen, Delaware. It was Jessie's first camping experience and she is looking forward to the next time. She sees Carol Norton Diffenderfer occasionally. Their last evening together was an amusing and finally successful effort to make ice cream in a hand-freezer.

Jeanne Wilkofsky Bloomstein reports a short trip to Washington, D.C. with Marc and Marcia who were most impressed by it all. The children have added Judo lessons to their usual activities.

And now for the Cowles news. Our "daughter" Nancy Bechtol was married on April 26 and is living in Coraopolis. Ivan went with the Boy Scouts to the Jamboree in Idaho this past summer and was really impressed by the greatness of our country. He is in 9th grade at Highland School and Stephanie in 3rd. I have enrolled at the Penn State Extension Campus to get my credits for certification to teach in the elementary school. In the meantime, I have applied as a substitute teacher and have already been called upon to teach 4th grade.

Judy reporting:

Joan Brechin Sonnenberg reports a busy year with two "one-man" art shows—one at the Pittsburgh National Bank last October and another at the Mountain Playhouse in Jennerstown in August. Fred does the framing while the children do the loading and unloading—quite a team!

A new bulldog named Shannon, along with a small sailboat are the new additions to Betty Cornell Hirsch's family. Besides watching the children grow too fast, Betty is teaching Sunday School, chairman of the Church Circle, and bazaar-coordinator for the newly formed Women's Club in West Seneca.

Dolores Dean tripped out to Arizona after school closed. From there she ventured to Mexico where she caught a 6'5" blue sailfish, weighing 98 pounds (probably more than Deanie herself).

The Linowes family has been happy, well and growing fast. Harry and I enjoyed Puerto Rico last January where I bumped into Barbara Berkman Roth ('49) and husband. We hadn't seen each other for twenty years! During the winter, I lunched with some alums including Barb Mills Foresti, Marilyn Morgan Henderson and Doris Warner Brown. Pat Hopkins Shoyinka called to tell me she and her two daughters were headed back to Sonjo in Ibadan, Nigeria. After a pleasant tennis-playing summer, Harry and I are looking forward to a ten-day visit to San Francisco, Los Angeles and Las Vegas. At home, I keep going with the children, various committees, chairman of the U.J.A. Spring Luncheon, and the Kennedy National Cultural Center. I hope next year you girls will send more of those cards and letters—without you, there is no news. Best to all.

Elsa reporting:

Tomi Jones Miller and family are once more living abroad in Tehran, Iran. Tomi's husband Jack has retired from the Army and is working as a research analyst for the Research Triangle Institute. A trip to Greece and a cruise to other islands in the Aegean was the summer vacation for the Millers. Tomi is teaching the third grade in the Tehran American School.

I enjoyed Barbara Mills Foresti's long and interesting letter. With all her family activities, Barbara found time last year to take the training to become a Family Aide. She now assists the social workers in the program helping low income women with home and community problems. Our sympathy is extended to Barbara upon the loss of her father last year.

The sympathy of the class is also extended to Martha McLaughlin Ellers who lost her father this past summer. Martha, Dick and children were vacationing through the Smoky Mountains when news arrived of her father's sudden death.

Nancy McFarland Pollack has moved "just up the street." Nancy has enjoyed being active in the Cleveland Alumnae Group this year.

Nancy Kelly Hilland is enjoying her new pueblo style home and expects to be in Albuquerque for three years. Her husband Carl is working on his dissertation in plasma physics at Sandia Base.

"Hello's" were sent to all from Janet Houston Rhein and Chris Metro Kachulis. Janet is looking forward to free time with all her children in school. Chris and family enjoyed a vacation in Europe this past year.

My family and I are all well and active in the usual activities of modern day living. I enjoyed hearing from so many girls and thank you for your response.

Barbara A. reporting:

Doris Fritschi had a wonderful trip through Michigan and Wisconsin this summer. At the time she mailed her card, she was looking forward to returning to kindergarten teaching.

Muriel Hands West writes of a great vacation at Sea Gull Beach, West Yarmouth on Cape Cod. She is still enjoying being the mother of two—Linda, 12, and Herbert, 8.

I wish I could include 'verbatim' Mary Beth Hoon Pritchard's letter, but space would never allow it. She, Len and children Carl and Ginny, plus two dogs, two cats and assorted fish, had a home vacation this year—albeit a busy one. A backyard barn (with loft) was erected by the whole family. Karate lessons last winter have them all in good shape.

We, the Armstrongs, had a busy summer at home too, so I'll just say 'hi' to all and hope again for more answers next year.

Ginny reporting:

Pat Nauman Kramer reports all is well with her clan. Remodeling and vacations have filled her summer along with an opportunity to get to know Martha McLaughlin Eller's husband, Dick, who has visited the Kramer home several times since spring. They have hopes of getting both families together in the near future.

To those of us who have our hands full with our own children, Edie Pennoyer Vassamillet must stand out as a real humanitarian. She and her family offered a temporary home to another foster baby, their fifth—2 boys and 3 girls. Edie's only regret is that they couldn't keep all of them. Their camping expedition this year took in the Southwestern National Parks—Bryce, Zion, Mesa Verde, Grand Canyon, Yosemite, and Sequoia. She and Larry belong to a Dialogue Group and work with a Human Relations group in their area. Also, she has done some tutoring in reading.

Camp Lejeune is still the home of Sally Scragg Campbell and group. She has a fine job as a vocational counselor. Their boys spent the summer camping in the mountains, and the whole family enjoys boating on the Intracoastal Waterway.

Our class mathematician, Beverly Roush Johnston, has taught 3 math classes a day since last November. At the moment she is back substituting. Bev and Ralph traveled to Mexico City in March, and spent a few weekends with Carl, 14, and Jody, 10, along. In March she joined the Unhooked Generation (Non-smokers) and a health club to rehook a few clothes.

We have found Nora Patterson White in Fairfax, Virginia. Academic achievements have filled their lives this year. Husband Lyle received his master's (cum laude) in business administration from Bobson Institute in Massachusetts, and son Gordon his high school diploma with honors. Gordon is attending Purdue University. Nora saw Pat Printz Harris and Barbara Drexel Eley while living in Massachusetts. Lyle has been assigned to the Pentagon since June. Susan is now 15 and Lisa, 8.

We Sweets have done our usual thing this year—play golf. Christmas in Florida with the grandparents and July in Pinehurst, N.C. provided an extra challenge. Jeff, 16, attended Golf School for 3 weeks at Pinehurst. Dan, 14, is fast becoming a master mechanic, and Becky, 10½, would rather be a boy. Phil is now the full owner of Sweet and Sons, Inc. and this has kept him on his toes since June.
